PROCEEDINGS of the House of Assembly of Newfoundland

SESSION 1921

Began and holden at St. John's, in the said Dominion on Wednesday and Thirtieth Day of March, Anno Domini, Nineteen Hundred and twenty-One being in the Eleventh Year of the Reign of His Majesty, Our Sovereign Lord, George, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.

WEDNESDAY, March 30th, 1921.

His Excellency having fixed the hour at which he proposed to open the present session of the Legislature at three of the clock in the afternoon of this Wednesday, the thirtieth day of March inst., the Members of the House of Assembly met in the Assembly Room at a quarter to three of the clock in the afternoon, when Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

At three of the clock a message from His Excellency the Governor, was delivered by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, commanding the immediate attendance of Mr. Speaker and the House in the Council Chamber. Accordingly Mr. Speaker and the House attended His Excellency the Governor in the Council Chamber, and being returned to the Assembly Room, Mr. Speaker informed the House that when in attendance on His Excellency the Governor in the Council Chamber, His Excellency had been pleased to make a gracious speech to both branches of the Legislature, a copy of which for greater accuracy he had obtained, and then read to the House, as follows:

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of The Honourable House of Assembly:

On this fourth occasion of addressing you at the opening of the annual session of the Legislature it is my first desire to express my sincere regret at the loss which has been sustained by the death of a member of the Legislative Council, who, though he was a junior in that body, was one of the most experienced business men and able speakers in this Colony.

The policy of the regulation of the marketing of the Colony's staple product which passed the House of Assembly in the summer of last year, without dissenting vote, was placed in the hands of the Codfish Exportation Board created for that purpose by the Act. The practical application by the Board of the policy so unanimously adopted has met with difficulties adventitious as well as those inherent in all policies which seek to regulate the trade of nations. I feel quite certain that should the matter come before you as legislators you will approach its consideration with one ambition only, namely, the welfare of Newfoundland, her commerce and her people.

A year ago I called your attention to the fact that the long-standing dispute between the Colony and the Province of Quebec had, by agreement between the parties, been referred to the adjudication of His Majesty's Privy Council. The final agreement to that effect was signed in London by the Attorney General of Canada and my Attorney General in November last, and substantial progress has already been made in the preparation of the Colony's case.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of The Honourable House of Assembly:

The Revenue for the last fiscal year showed a substantial surplus over all expenditures, but it is to be anticipated that the world depression, which we with all other countries must necessarily share, a depression which is the natural aftermath of war, will cause a large shrinkage in revenue for the current fiscal year. The revenue is so largely dependent upon ad valorem duties on imports that, while the finances of the Colony benefited largely by the greatly increased cost of imported goods during the war and immediately afterwards, this present readjustment of world conditions with largely reduced cost of goods must have a corresponding effect in reducing customs returns.

My Ministers have had this necessary readjustment of expenditures to income under careful consideration. The Estimates of expenditures and the Budget for the next fiscal year to be submitted to you will indicate the efforts which my Ministers have made to deal with the financial problems which you have to face in the readjustment of the Colony's expenditures, so that the great annual burden which the war has entailed may be met without curtailment and the necessary public services efficiently maintained. This will necessitate temporary curtailment of certain large expenditures which previous administrations felt justified in undertaking out of the inflated revenues of the war period, and such rigid economy as is consistent with the satisfactory maintenance of the various essential public services.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:
Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of The Honourable House of Assembly:

My Ministers have kept in close touch with the Imperial authorities in the matter of Newfoundland claims against the German Government and I anticipate that certain legislation intended to harmonize the Statute laws of Newfoundland with those of Great Britain in the matter of the collection of the German indemnity will be submitted to you for consideration in due course.

The Prime Minister of Great Britain has expressed his desire to meet the Prime Ministers of all the self-governing Dominions of the Empire for conference in London on important imperial business in June next. My Prime Minister has authorised me to accept the invitation on his behalf. I appreciate the great importance of Britain's oldest Colony being represented at this conference.

You will be invited to consider a Bill to amend the Crown Lands Act to permit the exportation of certain pulp wood cut during the past winter, and an important Bill submitted by the Social Service Council relating to the welfare of children.

The Charter for the City of St. John's will, I am informed, be introduced at an early date, so that its many provisions may be fully discussed, and, it is hoped, finally dealt with at this session.

The subject of inland and coastal transportation will come before you, and reports will be submitted in the matter of the coal possibilities of the Island. An important arrangement is under consideration in connection with the exploration of oil areas and it is probable that sufficient progress will be made to submit a Bill in relation thereto within the course of a few weeks.

I trust that, under the guidance of Divine Providence, your deliberations may tend to the welfare and prosperity of this Colony.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker, before we proceed with the regular work of the session, it is my duty to call attention to the irreparable loss the legislature has sustained in the death of the late Hon. W. B. Grieve. In February last Mr. Grieve passed from amongst us and in his passing he has left a place, not only in the Legislative Council, but in the commercial life of the Colony itself, which it will be difficult to fill. He had long been connected with this House, had represented the Districts of Bonavista and Trinity, while for several years previous to his death, he occupied a seat in the Legislative Council. He had the reputation of being an able and a courteous gentleman, whether in social, business or legislative circles. When the call to arms came, his only son was one of the first of our men to respond, and although the later did not actually lay down his life on the battle field, it was due to the hardships of a soldier's life that he contracted the disease which shortly afterwards terminated in his death, an event which did much to shorten the life of his father. In patriotic work the activities of the late Hon. W. B. Grieve were well known. He was prominently identified with the Newfoundland Patriotic Association and worked indefatigably in that capacity until the end of hostilities. He was a gentleman, not merely in the narrow class sense, but in the broad sense, an educated and courteous citizen and he accepted success and defeat with an equanimity which won for him the admiration of all who had the advantage of knowing him personally.

During his declining months he faced the inevitable with all the joy of one who sees in death no severance of the strongest ties, but rather as one who looks upon it as going to those on the other side who had preceded him years before, his wife and children and those others dearest to him.

Permit me then, Sir, in expressing on behalf of the House our deep sense of loss, to propose the following resolutions:

RESOLVED:—That the House desires to record the expression of its deep regret at the death, since last session of the Legislature, of the Honorable Walter Baine Grieve, sometime member of the Legislative Council, and of the House of Assembly

RESOLVED:—That a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the relatives of the deceased Honourable Gentleman.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of seconding the resolution proposed by the leader of the Government. Being the oldest sitting member of the House to-day, I cannot recall a session but that the leader of the House was called upon to pass such a resolution as has been moved here to-day. In many cases we have found in the past twenty-eight years experience in this House that two or three members have passed away in the short time from one session to another, and it must strike even the youngest of us not alone the oldest, that our turn must some day come. Since I have had the honor to sit in this House over seventy members now deceased have passed thru the doors of the Upper and Lower Chambers. Many listening to me now might think my time was at hand. Last year I seconded a resolution of this kind relative to the same class of public citizen. The Hon. W. B. Grieve was one of the princes of Water Street, one of the men who put his life and all his best energies into the business of the country. Altho he was seventy-two years of age, he was in this House before, I think some seven or eight years, as an elected representative. He was elected for Bonavista in 1880 and was re-elected unopposed in 1895. He had retired from the House before I had the honor of a seat here. I have known Hon. W. B. Grieve for years here as a politician, but when I got close to him it was after the war broke out in 1914. When the bugle sounded, Hon. W. B. Grieve was one of the first to rush to the Morris government, sinking all differences in politics or in other directions, and placed himself at the disposal of his Country and his King. I was very close to him thru my position in the House, being Finance Minister at the time. Hon. W. B. Grieve came voluntarily to the Morris government and placed himself at its disposal. You will find that that is correct by looking up the records. Hon. W. B. Grieve was on every committee appointed for the recruiting of the sailors and looking after them, as a member of the Finance, Standing, Patriotic Committees, Patriotic Fund and Recruiting bodies, and was nearly always found to be the first man in his place when work was to be done. Up to that time I knew little of him socially, but during that period I learned to love him. He was an outstanding figure on the Patriotic Fund Committee which was created to deal with the dependents of our soldiers and sailors. He was always to be found on duty there and always erred on the right side, always anxious to do the most for the deserving fighting men. He gave his time, and the country knows he gave much more—he gave his only son at the first call to arms, one who was of the first 500, one of the Blue Puttees that we hear so much of, and who while not shot on the field of battle, contracted sickness while doing his duty that brought him to an early grave. Such was Hon. W. B. Grieve as a man as a politician a true man in every sense of the word. To take him as a politician or merchant would need a better tongue than mine to do him justice. He took charge of a great firm at the age of 21 or 22 and managed it at least 50 years. When one considers the business of the Colony for the last half century one must come to the conclusion very quickly that a man who could manage a business such as Mr. Grieve had charge of must be one possessed of great ability and foresight. Mr. Grieve filled a great position in this country and during the last ten years numbers of young aspiring merchants looked to him for counsel and guidance. He is dead now; gone for evermore. His experience, I take it, was second to none. Go back to last year and consider the interest he took in the fish business. The war was over; we were supposed to be back to normal conditions and all were wondering how we would fit in financially. Mr. Grieve then, in my opinion, was right in every sense of the word. I remember meeting Mr. Grieve after his return from England a few months ago and talking over the fish situation. He naturally loved to talk of fish. That was the first time I spoke to him. In leaving, his last words were: "Cashin, you will find that in Newfoundland by the first of May we will have financial paralysis." How many here to-day can contradict that statement. Mr. Grieve was all that has been pointed out by the Prime Minister this evening; he was even more. I feel sorry that I did not know more of him. His firm if looked up, will be found to be the first to prosecute the sealfishery with steamers. They tried other ventures—the herring fishery, for instance, which was taken over without compensation from the government—and brought out steamers with drift nets, but lost considerable money in that direction. We have seen the last of Mr. Grieve on earth. I will not delay the House further, but leave him with God, who, in His great mercy, will deal kindly with him. May his soul rest in peace.

It was moved by Mr. Scammell and seconded by Capt. Jones, that an Address of thanks be presented to His Excellency in reply to the gracious Speech with which he had been pleased to open the present Session of the Legislature, and that a Select Committee be appointed to draft such Address in Reply.

MR. SCAMMELL:—Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of proposing the appointment of a select committee to draft an address in reply to the speech which His Excellency the Governor has been graciously pleased to deliver to us to-day. And, first of all, Sir, I desire to add a personal word of regret on the loss this City, and this Country, has sustained by the death of the Hon. W. B. Grieve. The Hon. W. B. Grieve, as has been stated here this afternoon by the Prime Minister, and the Leader of the Opposition, stood out pre-eminently in the social and commercial life of the country. He was a man whose vast experience and sage counsel the country could ill afford to dispense with at a period of doubt, uncertainty and hesitation in our commercial affairs, such as the country is facing at present. The Hon. W. B. Grieve has left a name that will be a memory fragrant of refinement, charity and fair dealing, and his passing leaves the community the poorer.

My next duty, Sir, must be to welcome to this House the gentlemen who have recently been elected to serve as representatives for the historic district of Hr. Main and to congratulate the Leader of the Opposition and his party on having retained these seats, although perhaps the contest was in a great measure a victory for the Government in as far as the Government received a greater vote by ten per cent than it did in the general election of 1919.

To turn now, Sir, to the matters referred to in the Speech from the Throne, I think it will be agreed by all that the reference of paramount importance is to the Fishery Regulations. No policy has excited more controversy during the past season than the Fish Regulations. No subject has been discussed with more prejudice and bias by its opponents in the press and before the public. Much of the criticism hurled at the regulations has been of a highly destructive nature, undeserving and unfair. The evident design, and the ultimate result of it all, was, and has been, to render their operation less efficacious. It will be remembered that at the last session of this House, two acts of vast importance in relation to our staple industry were passed without dissenting vote. I refer, Sir, to the Codfish Standardization Act, and the Act in relation to the export of Salt Codfish. The first of these acts provided the means whereby rules and regulations were drafted, having chiefly for their object the improvement of our cure of Fish, providing for a standard cull as between fisherman and buyer, and the proper inspection of all cargoes destined for the foreign markets. It was felt by all that in view of the very keen after-war competition we were facing in the markets, the time had arrived when it behooved us to put our house in order, and to take steps to improve our cure if in the face of such competition we were to expect anything like decent prices abroad. We are pleased to-day to be in a position to state, that to the call of the need for an improved cure the Fishermen have responded nobly. There has been indeed a marked improvement all round and we have ample evidence that the result has been taken due cognizance of by our customers, has been favourably commented upon and has reacted largely to our benefit in the markets.

The regulations framed under the Exportation Act were primarily designed with a view to the sustaining of prices abroad, and consequently ensuring to our fishermen at home the minimum price with which they could possibly decently exist, having regard to the fact that there had been no appreciable decline in the prices of supplies and commodities. We may hold divergent views, Mr. Speaker, as to whether that object has been consummated, but as an individual representative entitled to an opinion of my own, I wish to place myself on record as being strongly of the opinion that had there been no such regulations this season the fishermen of this country would not have received for their fish this season the prices they did by as much as three or four dollars per quintal, and I know whereof I speak when I state that in that opinion I shall have in agreement with me thousands of fishermen from all parts of this Dominion.

I do not propose, Mr. Speaker, to discuss these regulations further just now. They were drafted from time to time as circumstances and conditions demanded by the Codfish Exportation Board under the chairmanship of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. It cannot be said that the composition of the Board was partisan either from a political standpoint or from the views held by the Members as to the advisability of Regulations or otherwise.

I am sure, Sir, we all regret that the Minister is not with us to-day, and I feel that further discussion of this subject is therefore superfluous until such time as we are in a position to hear from him.

Mr. Speaker, another matter of country wide importance referred to in the Speech from the Throne is the Labrador Boundary question. I wish first of all to congratulate the Attorney General in having so successfully completed the case for presentation. I understand this subject has been under discussion for many years, and it is gratifying to all of us to know that we have been successful and that the case is now nearing an end. We all are aware that until this matter is finalized and adjudicated upon the development of our resources in Labrador must be held in abeyance. We all know the untold possibilities of our water powers, mineral and timber wealth there and the great future for employment that awaits us in that dependency.

Then the Speech from the Throne has the usual paragraph addressed to the members of this House with regard to the financial position of the Colony. No one anticipates or expects to find the actual facts and figures there relative to our financial position. That will come later. It is encouraging and gratifying, however, to know that we are in a position to round the corner safely as at the end of the fiscal year June 30th, 1921. I should like to refer to that portion of this paragraph from the Speech outlining the necessity of adjusting our expenditure to our income and for the practise of rigid economy. I have had the opportunity of visiting several sections of the country recently, and I can safely say that any policy of economy or retrenchment undertaken will receive the approbation and support of the country as a whole. Our financial position to-day is largely due to the fact that during the years immediately following the war the prices of goods and commodities generally were on the upward grade instead of on the downward grade, and business people anticipating this laid in large stocks and on that account a larger revenue than was normal was derived for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1920, so that had conditions been normal the same result from revenue would have obtained at the conclusion of the fiscal year June 30th, 1921. With the decline of prices abroad again must come a decrease of the revenues largely derived from ad valorem duties. Again the purchasing power of the people was lessened by the almost absolute failure of the shore fishery and these are largely the reasons, Mr. Speaker, why we are going to experience financial difficulties. I wish to reiterate what I said before, and that is than any policy of economy which the Government undertakes will receive the unqualified support of the country.

Reference is made in the Speech from the Throne to the passing of legislation in conformity with English legislation with regard to the paying of the German indemnity of our share of losses sustained during the war. I feel sure that any legislation of this nature which will come forward will receive the support of the whole House, as we are all anxious to be recouped as speedily as possible for the losses we met and the expenses incurred by our share in the struggle.

I desire to congratulate the Honourable the Prime Minister upon his invitation to attend the Imperial Conference in June next. I think it is a sign that although we may be small and insignificant, we are not overlooked by the Imperial authorities and that it is only our due right and privilege to be represented at the Imperial Conference. I am sure that in the Prime Minister we have an able representative, who will at all times advance and protect the interests of Newfoundland, and see that we receive our just due.

I am pleased to note that the Government contemplates passing an act to amend the Crown Lands Act dealing with the exportation of pulpwood cut for charitable purposes during the winter, and I may say that I am personally interested in this subject. As I said before the shore fishery last season was an absolute failure and to obviate actual starvation the Government was faced with the possibility of having to dispense poor relief on a tremendous scale or the alternative of providing employment. After much serious consideration it was decided to allow the cutting of pulpwood in the areas suffering most, and this was largely the case in certain sections of the district of St. Barbe. Peace and plenty have been brought to many a home this winter as a result of this action, where otherwise I fear dire distress and destitution must have prevailed.

There is another matter referred to in the Speech from the Throne which perhaps interests the members of St. John's more than those representing outport constituencies, and that is the contemplated passing of a Bill dealing with delinquent and neglected children in St. John's. This bill has been drafted under the guidance and on recommendation of the Social Council, an organization that has the support of all religious denominations. The bill referred to in the Speech is modeled and styled after the English Acts 1906-8 and partly after Acts of the same nature passed by the Provincial Parliament of the Province of Ontario. I feel that it will be received quite favourably by the whole House, and we anticipate no captious criticism of its provisions. Those of us who have lived in St. John's, even though for a short time, must of necessity have recognised the pressing need of passing some sort of legislation giving properly authorized persons authority to deal with delinquent and neglected children. It will make for the moral well being of the youth of our city and in the end react to the social benefit of the whole country.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I should like to say that we all ought to take due cognizance of the causes for the difficulties confronting the country to-day. We in Newfoundland are only bearing our fair share of the depression which is affecting the whole world as the aftermath of the war. A country like an individual does not live to itself and we cannot have depression in the United Kingdom, Canada, the United States and European countries, with all of whom we trade and not experience depression in Newfoundland as well.

But I have travelled around the country a great deal during the past year, and I would like to tell the House this evening, that there is not in Newfoundland to-day anything like the destitution and privation that one might be led to think exists as a result of all one reads and hears. I wish to congratulate the Government of which I am a supporter and a member, upon the able manner in which it has grappled with the serious situations which have arisen this year. We are passing through a period unprecedented in the country's history and the Government is indeed confronted with serious problems, but I feel that we have reached rock bottom and that things will be better and brighter from now on. It may be with me the optimism of youth that inspires this feeling, but I think that if we all put aside political differences and personal animosity and stand together in service to the country that we shall very soon see the light of a better day and become more than ever a happy and prosperous country.

It therefore, Mr. Speaker, gives me much pleasure to move that a Committee be appointed to draft an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

CAPT. GEO. JONES:—Mr. Speaker, I rise to second the motion so ably and eloquently proposed by the Honorable Member for St. Barbe, namely that a committee be appointed to draft an Address in Reply to the gracious speech of His Excellency the Governor at the opening of the session.

In doing so, I ask the indulgence of the House, while I make a few general observations regarding the subjects touched on in the Speech, subjects that are vital to us all. Mr. Speaker, as we meet for the second time under the present Administration, we are confronted with the fact that this Dominion is passing through strenuous and troublesome times; but, we also realize that those times and conditions are not of our making. In common with all the world we have to suffer from the after effects of the war; the period of depression we are passing through is world wide; things over which we have no control whatever have brought about present conditions, all of which goes to prove that we do not live unto ourselves, and that our interest is identical with the interest of the rest of the world. Although our little Island home is so insignificant compared with the great world, yet we are part of it, a unit in the general scheme of things, and not only in community life, but in national life, the conditions that prevail so act and react upon each other that our interests become common to all.

After all, could we expect anything better than we are getting after a time of wholesale destruction, after years of great wantonness and waste, and so many of the world's producers engaged in that great destruction and carnage instead of production? Is it to be wondered at that we should be faced with hard times and difficult problems in the way of reconstruction and bringing order out of chaos and ruin? Shall we not look forward to the time—we trust in the near future—when order has been restored, when the industries and business of the country shall be rebuilt on a more solid foundation than ever before, and out of the seeming evil times that have befallen us, we shall emerge financially stronger than ever before, because neither men nor nations are made in the easy times when everything is going fair and smoothly. It is in the hard times, the times of adversity, when everything seems going the wrong way, when the difficulties we have to contend with call for the very best that is in us, when we have to fight for our lives—those are the times when we develop such qualities as endurance, perseverance, the ability to successfully grapple with the great difficulties that confront us; so that it often happens that what we thought would bring ruin crushing defeat to us, has in the long run worked for our greater well being and prosperity.

With regard to the Labrador Boundary question it is with pleasure that we learn that steps are being taken that will speedily bring about a final settlement of that long standing dispute. Labrador, with its vast timber areas, water powers and mineral wealth, developed as it undoubtedly could be, would certainly be a great source of employment for the people, as well as of revenue to the country.

The returns to our people from the fisheries last season were not very satisfactory; either as regards catch or price; not that the price was small when you compare it with what we used to get years ago, but when you consider the cost of outfit, as well as the cost of living generally, it was small, so small, that many fishermen found it difficult to pay their bills. I believe that the fishermen profited by the Fish Regulations, by getting considerably more for their catch than they would have got if there had been no regulations.

The action of the Government, in providing for the exportation of pulp wood, I believe to be a wise one. Surely, this is not a time when it would be advisable to stick to the strict letter of the law, when by giving permission to export pulp-wood would provide a means of livelihood for a large number of people who, otherwise would be destitute. I feel sure that in some of the districts where this wood is being cut, the people appreciate the action of the Government in granting this permission. What would have been done in some places without it, is hard to contemplate.

Surely, it would be a great thing for Newfoundland if the oil wells that are to be found, could be opened, so that we could produce our own supply of oil, and perhaps a great deal more for export.

Recent operations have proven beyond any doubt that there are very extensive coal deposits in Newfoundland, and I can see no reason why coal boring on a very large scale could not be carried out.

So, with all this great wealth lying at our feet, just within our reach, awaiting the investment of capital and enterprise to develop it, there appears a much greater and more prosperous future for Newfoundland. With the great wealth in timber, water power and mineral of Labrador, and the oil and coal deposits of Newfoundland, developed as they could be, may we not hope that the time will soon come when we shall not be so entirely dependent upon the fisheries for our support. I trust that the time may soon arrive when the fishery, with all its uncertainties of catch and price, will not be practically the only great industry of Newfoundland. In the meantime we must do all possible to develop our fisheries, because we cannot get away from the fact that at present we are depending on them; nor can we neglect the old industry that has been and is the mainstay of our industrial life.

The coastal and inland transportation service is a very important matter; it is a very difficult problem to give satisfactory and efficient service along our coast, the people being so scattered, the harbors, coves and arms winding in and out, making it almost impossible to give complete satisfaction. When you get on a coastal or bay boat on some parts of the coast, you find that after a good day's work steaming and landing mail, passengers and freight, you are almost at the same point you were in the morning, but as time goes on, we are looking forward to much improvement in this branch of the public service.

It is gratifying to hear the encouraging reports from the sealers, and trust they will secure good trips, return safely, and that the sealing voyage will be the beginning of a good and prosperous year for Newfoundland.

May we not look forward hopefully to the time when the sunshine shall have chased away the shadows, and the sun of prosperity will again shine upon us, and we shall be living in the enjoyment of peace and plenty.

I have much pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in seconding the motion that a committee be appointed to draft a reply to the gracious speech, with which His Excellency has been pleased to open this session of the Legislature.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to congratulate the Mover and Seconder of the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne. The mover indeed I certainly feel that I must congratulate. It strikes me that he was the right man for the job, as he has made a very good case out of nothing. He was selected by the Government, I presume, for special pleading this evening. Never, Mr. Speaker, since I have had the honor of a seat in this House, was there such an absurd speech read by the representative of His Majesty, and handed down to the House. I know that the gentlemen will hang their heads when I make this statement, but it is perfectly true. What is there in it? Not a ray of hope, not one statement telling us what has been done in the past twelve months or what will be done in the next twelve months. It strikes me that it is about time for Newfoundland to wake up. We are here this evening to know something, we are waiting for this House to open to tell us the condition of the country, not to come down here with a document like this in an endeavor to camouflage it. You are only the trustees of this country. The people in the gallery and the people outside the House are the real rulers of the country; you are only sent here to represent them. Are those the true facts given in that speech to-day. The Labrador Boundary, pit-props. We don't want to know about the Labrador Boundary. What is troubling you on the other side of the House is not the Labrador Boundary, it is whether you can get clear with your political perfidies; it is whether you will not have to hand the country over to England or Canada. I, know you are troubling a lot about the Labrador Boundary. It is a piece of impertience to come down with that speech to this House which is supposed to be composed of intelligent men.

We are told that this House passed Fish Regulations last year. It is true we did pass them, but what happened after they were passed, that is not told, it is too long a story for this evening, but it will be told before this House closes. The Regulations were passed, but they were carried out as passed. We agreed to give them a chance, but we also agreed that if they were not the right and proper thing that they were to be cancelled. A commission was to be appointed of men of good standing, men who knew the business of the country, and after consultation with the Governor, a proclamation was to be issued appointing these men.

Was that done when the House closed last year? I am not going to talk behind the honorable gentleman's back, but I have to mention his name. Did he not, the Hon. W. F. Coaker, go to his Department and take charge of the whole fishing industry of the country?, irrespective of everything and everybody else? How many men from the West and North were appointed, and how many fishermen from the city were appointed, and where is the recommendation that appointed them. The whole thing, I repeat, was taken charge of by one man and the story in connection with the matter is a very long one. After the House closed last year the Leader of the Government left the country and left it in charge of that one man and did not return for four or five months. But we hear nothing in the Speech from the Throne about that. What are you members doing on the other side of the House? The people elected you and the Prime Minister to this House to safeguard their interests. In what way was the Prime Minister to this House to safeguard their interests? In what way was the Prime Minister looking after the country during his long holiday abroad.

And then we are told by Mr. Scammell this evening that there was not enough fish caught in Newfoundland last summer. Was Mr. Scammell in this House last year when the statement was made by Mr. Coaker that the more men that went out of this country the better it would be for the country, and that the less fish caught the better it would be? Did Mr. Scammell's leader make that statement in this House last year? Still there are thousands of quintals of fish held by the fishermen of the country to-day that are unsaleable. Do you know, Sir, that there are over half a million quintals of fish in this Colony to day unmarketed and some of it will have to be thrown over the wharves? Mr. Scammell told us something about the North. Yes, they got a fair price North for fish; but was not some of that money wrung from the taxpayers of this country. He says fish would be only three or four dollars a quintal only for the Regulations. He should have said fish would be three or four dollars only for the money was taken from the treasury and the taxpayers of the country have to pay it back to reimburse the Government. But there is nothing in the Speech from the Throne about that. Again, there is nothing in the Speech from the Throne telling how Labrador fish was sold and paid for.

We were confronted eighteen months ago with the Prime Minister's manifesto and there was great beating of trumpets and everything that the Government of that day was doing was wrong, and we were all blacklegs and pirates. Detectives were brought here from abroad, as everybody knows, to find out the alleged wrong-doings and to judge the out-going government, but there is nothing in the Speech from the Throne showing how many went to jail; nor is there anything in the Speech from the Throne telling the House what we handed over to the present Government. Well, I am going to tell the country this evening, thru the reporters' box, that we handed over four million of dollars as surplus and that there is not a cent of it in the treasury to-day. We hear nothing about that in the Speech from the Throne. Now where is that four millions gone? In the Prime Minister's Manifesto and in the Speech from the Throne last year we heard a lot of railway work that was going to be done. We passed a Loan Bill in this House last year. After the Prime Minister had got off a spiel denouncing the contractors and the railroad he introduced a Loan Bill asking for one million and a half dollars at six per cent interest, one million of which was to go to repair the railroad and put it in shape, and a half million for coal. Has that money been raised? Was work done? Who authorized the work done? When was the work done? Did the House authorize it? Was any measure put before the House to carry on that railway policy? No; the same thing happened with the railroad that happened with regard to the Fish Regulations. After the House closed last year a man called Coaker took charge of the whole outfit and he gave the Prime Minister a long holiday.

HON. THE SPEAKER:—I have to call you to order. The gentleman you refer to is an honorable member of this House and Minister of Marine and Fisheries and should be referred to as such.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—The man is called Coaker, is he not?

HON. THE SPEAKER:—I think it is distinctly out of order.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I disagree with you, Sir. I stand to be corrected, but Coaker is his name. I was going on to say that this same thing happened with the railroad as with the Fish Regulations. When the House closed last year the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Agriculture and Mines were given a long holiday and a so-called Railway Commission was appointed, the chairman of which was an individual named Coaker. They took over the railroad from the contractors who had an agreement with this Colony to run it for fifty years. We are not told anything in the Speech from the Throne about that this evening. What authorized the taking over of the railway and how many people in this country know the story about it? I stand by what I have already said that the same thing happened as with the Fish Regulations. One man took control of the whole thing and took over the railroad from the Reid Newfoundland Company, but we have to find out before this House closes the whole story in connection with those transactions; we have to drag from the members of the Government how the money was spent and how much it cost the Colony to operate the railroad, and why the one million dollars was not raised to pay the bill. What happened, in my opinion, is that the Government could not raise the money but took it out of the public treasury, and we will find that before the House closes that the Railway policy will cost the Colony from two to two and a half million dollars for the operation of the railroad up to June 30th next, yet we find a Loan Bill still on the Statute Book and the money never raised. Now, in view of that, I think I was justified in making the statement this evening that railroad matters were handled on the same principle as the Fish Regulations.

Getting back to Mr. Scammell again. He told us that there was not enough fish caught in this country last summer. Well, all I can say is that Mr. Scammell must have been out of this Colony for a long time. There are a half million quintals of fish in this country to-night that is unsaleable and I know of a number of fishermen who have from ten to fifty quintals of fish each in their possession and who have to go to their neighbors with hat in hand and beg to try and support their wives and families, and I know of some of them who cannot get a barrel of flour advanced them on their fish. I know that 260 quintals of fish came into St. John's from my own district by the last train that came over the road, belonging to four or five fishermen, who were endeavoring to get the wherewithal to support their families. After tramping all over the town they could not sell a quintal of it, nor could they raise enough money on it to buy a barrel of flour, but thru the kindness of Sir John Crosbie and others, that fish was put in the store of Sir John Crosbie, who advanced the money to those poor people. That fish is still in Sir John Crosbie's store, and Mr. Scammell may have it to-morrow if he wants to buy it, and at a very low figure, too. Still we are told in an entertaining manner here this evening by a supposedly intelligent man like Mr. Scammell, that there was not enough fish caught in Newfoundland last summer. He must be dreaming. Let him go to Water St. and find out how many thousands of quintals of fish there are that cannot be marketed. But that is not all. The worst is yet to come. The great trouble is where are we going to get the wherewithal to supply the fishermen the coming year. The Government know as well as I can tell them. The Government to-night is in the worst predicament experienced since Responsible Government was granted us. I make this statement without fear of successful contradiction. There are not five merchants in the country to-day ready to supply for the fishery and not one merchant to buy a quintal of fish. Imagine a man coming here after holidaying all summer, surrounded by sane, intelligent people, and talking now about the Labrador Boundary, under present circumstances. Why it's a lot of tommy rot. There are parts of the world where, if our financial matters were thus dealt with we would be tied to lamp posts. Cannot we have common sense. We on this side of the House do not want the government, but we want to preserve the independence of the country. We were born here, we live here, and we want to die here. We do not want to see it financially strangled in this fashion.

As I have already said, when we handed over the government about eighteen months ago there was an overflowing exchequer of practically four millions of dollars, and I make the statement to-night for this country, that when all the bills are paid now by the present Government not one cent will be left.

How that money was spent is another story that will have to be told. Newfoundland to-night is not in as good a position as it was in 1894, the year of the Bank Crash. Our revenue then was about one and a half million dollars, our expenditure an equal amount and our population was something smaller than it is at present. Now what is the position of the country to-night? Last year the Receiver General asked for $11,400,000 revenue. He estimated expenditure was something in the vicinity of $10,500,000. I take it that after putting in his supplemental supply and other amounts that his expenditure will be brought up to an amount equivalent to his anticipated revenue. Now where is he going to get his revenue for this year when the purchasing power of the people of the Colony is twenty-five or twenty-six millions of dollars less than what it was last year. I do not suppose that there was more than five millions of dollars paid from fish this year. What are you going to get your revenue on?

It is on its purchasing power that a country has to depend for its revenue and if you lessen that purchasing power by forty per cent where are you from a standpoint of revenue? How are you going to supply for the fishery the coming season? You have to supply on the expectation of getting $4 and $6 for fish, an average of certainly not more than $5 per quintal, and against that you have flour at $14 a barrel, molasses at $1 a gallon, and everything else accordingly, and would you call it a fancy investment to supply for the fishery under these circumstances? Now, Sir these are but a few of the small proofs of the truth of what I have said this afternoon, and I fear no contradiction to these statements. It is said that the revenues at the end of the fiscal year will $3,000,000 short.

Last year the government asked for eleven million dollars and they have to get that on a falling market. When we handed over the administration of affairs to the present government the imports were $26,000,000 and now they are reduced to seven or eight millions. I think, Mr. Speaker, that it is plain to all we are up against almost insurmountable difficulties. Take, for instance a man who last year had a thousand dollars with which to buy his supplies and this year he goes down with two hundred dollars requiring the same amount of goods. That is the position of Newfoundland to-day and it is the first and only time that we have ever found ourselves in that position.

To get back to the Bank Crash, the revenue that year was one and three quarter million dollars while flour was three or four dollars per barrel against fourteen dollars now. Molasses was then twenty-five or thirty cents a gallon where to-day it is $1.00 a gallon. We were then in a position to increase taxation, but are we in the same position to-day? Our purchasing power has declined by many millions of dollars and we are in no position to further burden the people. I think that in bringing down this Speech from the Throne the government has made a great mistake. If they told all the facts, they would have a very different story to tell. Now, Mr. Speaker, it is not my intention to delay the time of the House this afternoon as it is not usual on opening day, but when I read that Speech from the Throne I was so disgusted that I could not refrain from making some comment.

To get back to the fishermen, where is he going to get his supplies this spring? Is any sane man going to give supplies for fish that are still swimming in the water? Another mistake was made with regard to our fisheries last season was in the matter of cure. The cure last year was much worse than for any previous year in my remembrance. Go down and ask any merchant how much West India fish he hand handled. I know hundreds of men who did not have 500 quintals of Merchantable fish out of 2000. I admired Mr. Scammell when he struck off from the subject and said that he would leave it to the House; he very carefully avoided going too far.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I hope and trust that the Government still have something up their sleeves to tell the House and the country as to how they are going to get out of the mess they are in to-day. Will the Prime Minister tell us how much relief was asked for during the winter? The western fishery amounted to practically nothing while the fishermen of Placentia, Fortune and other districts in that section cannot get supplies this season. I hope when the House meets again we will get or perhaps the Prime Minister will get up in his place and give us some information on these points. When we went out of power we handed over a surplus of something like four millions of dollars with all bills paid. Now take the daily papers and compare the insolvencies of the past year with those of any of previous years. We have been told we are to take off the export duty on pit props. That's a case of "killing the goose that lays the golden egg." If that is the only thing you will have to tell us. It strikes me that you have a very incomplete programme.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I want that to go down through the reporters' box into history. That was Mr. Grieve's statement. I have decided to wait the next two months and believe that will be verified. I apologize Mr. Speaker if I'm a bit out of order. I congratulate the mover of the address and in looking through the government ranks I can see no other who could put it so well, not even the Prime Minister himself.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I desire to join with the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition in his courteous references to Mr. Scammell, the member for St. Barbe, who in such an eloquent manner moved for the appointment of a committee to draft the Address in Reply to the Gracious Speech with which His Excellency has been pleased to open the present session of the Legislature. He is one of the youngest members of the House and one of the most eloquent. I feel sure every person who heard him this afternoon expect from him much excellent work in debate during this session and a brilliant political future. Captain Jones, of Little Bay Island, one of the members for the important constituency of Twillingate, made a most excellent address. He has not had the platform experience which Mr. Scammell has had, but his utterances bore the hall mark of the firmness of character and sincerity of purpose for which Captain Jones is well known. I heartily congratulate these two gentlemen on their efforts.

The observations of the honourable leader of the Opposition on the Speech from the Throne interested me very much, for it gave me an opportunity to judge the sincerity of his attack. I looked through several of the addresses he made on public matters last year. I read some of the speeches he made some years ago when he was a bitter antagonist in this House of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond, P.C., K.C.M.G., the great Liberal chieftian and successor to the Rt. Hon. Sir Wm. Whiteway. Some of the most vigorous pronouncements he made this afternoon are practically a verbatim copy of last year's attack. Some of his vigorous attacks upon myself personally are mild replica of his attacks of a few years ago upon my distinguished predecessor.

My honourable friend has assured the House that this is the worst speech with which a Legislature has ever been opened. He discussed the fact that there were many things in which various sections of the country were interested, which matters were not referred to in the Speech from the Throne. The fact is there are many matters, some of considerable importance, which have no reference made to them in the Speech from the Throne. As a matter of fact, it is not the custom here or in the old country to put a multitude of matters in the Speech from the Throne, but matters of major importance only. My honourable friend has ridiculed the idea of referring to the Labrador Boundary dispute. My honourable friend may regard this matter as insignificant and of no importance.

Certainly the fact that the area in dispute is estimated at three times the area of the whole Island of Newfoundland is naturally not known to the honourable member. He frequently boasts that he has spent twenty-eight years in this House, yet he is presumably not aware that area is of any importance to Newfoundland, and the question of the ownership of an area three times the size of our entire Island is of no importance. Sir Michael evidently has the size of mind to appreciate a speech if reference were made to rabbit and deer regulations, and it is a worthless document if it does not say whether legislation is contemplated about the closing or opening of a partridge season and does lay stress upon the international matter, in the decision of which an area twice or three times the size of Newfoundland is involved.

Referring to the Revenue, my friend opposite pointed out that the customs revenue was falling. I presume he desired to suggest that he was responsible for the large revenues of war years, and I am responsible for the fact that Customs Returns are now falling. Was not my honourable friend sufficiently long in the Department of Finance and Customs to know that our Customs Revenue is dependent upon an ad valorem duty on imported goods. Inflated prices of imported goods meant inflated revenues. We are anxious that prices should decrease and that must mean reduced customs returns. Taxation on the country was exceedingly heavy during the war because of inflated prices.

On the inflated price there was put by our system of ad valorem customs revenues an inflated taxation. Prices are going down; revenue is going down, and the problem of readjustment has to be faced at this session of the House. Taxes during the war were approximately three times as much as before the war.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I admit that.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Thank you for that. Every man is glad to see a reduction of prices but the readjustment of world conditions must necessarily mean a falling in the Customs returns. That's a fact that must be faced. Reference has been made to the Budget of last year. It contained certain figures of expenditure—

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You didn't propose much in your Manifesto. If you keep on as you are going you won't be long in power.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—If I keep on as I am going it is evident I will be here a long time. The estimates of last year were different from the estimates of the year before mainly in the fact that they were honest estimates, giving the salaries which the officials were receiving and not, as the estimates of my honourable friend opposite, the Leader of the Opposition, giving fictitious salaries as voted and saying nothing about the large supplemental amounts which a multitude of officials were receiving. In some cases the salaries as voted last year in the estimates were smaller than the salaries which the honourable Minister of Finance and Customs had been previously paying.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Especially the sessional pay.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The sessional fee was increased at the last session of the Legislature to $1,000. Every member of the opposition supported the increase. I have not yet heard that my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, returned his cheque because it was too large. As a government we were unfortunately situated in finding ourselves compelled to adopt the inflated expenditure. Some salaries were, as a matter of fact, undervoted.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Can you quote one?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Yes, Messrs. Martin and Doyle, the Registrar and Deputy Registrar of Vital Statistics. Their salaries were increased in our estimates, but as voted were less than the salaries which they were actually receiving prior to the supposed increase.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—What was your predecessors', such men as Bond and others got less. And then there are your extra amounts besides.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I receive $4,000 a year as Colonial Secretary, and $4,000 as Prime Minister. My predecessor, Rt. Hon. Sir Wm. F. Lloyd, who was the leader of the party which the honourable the leader of the opposition supported, was Prime Minister and Attorney General. The salary which he received for these two offices was the sum of $5000.00.

As to my salary of $8,000, if the honourable the leader of the opposition will ask any one of the several lawyers of his party, he will be informed that my earning capacity as a professional and business man, entirely outside of any political associations, is more than twice that figure. I am here, not because the office pays me a wage, but because it is a joy to fight on behalf of Newfoundlanders against such people as constitute the opposition. No prime minister under present conditions or under past conditions could occupy the office and support and maintain himself and his family upon the income received from public sources, unless he received money in the way that some of the honourable members of the opposition received it during the war, namely, because of contractual relationship with the government.

The sum of $8,000 a year voted in the estimates as a salary for the Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary is not as great as the amount of money which some of Sir Michael's colleagues when he was in charge of affairs drew out of the public funds per month. Certainly they drew the money in a way which could not be seen in the estimates. The transaction was of a contractual nature with the government of which they were members.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Sir Wm. Whiteway and Sir E. P. Morris lived on it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Sir Wm. Whiteway and Sir E. P. Morris did not live on it, nor did Sir Robert Bond or Sir James Winter live on it, I do not know the details of the financial affairs of these gentlemen, but I do know that when Sir James Winter who was the leader of the Newfoundland Bar, Attorney General for many years and prime minister of this country, passed away, his estate was not sufficient to pay his liabilities. His income was barely sufficient to support and maintain himself in comparative penury for a man of his standing and to educate his children.

Sir William Whiteway was another outstanding case, in which that gentleman, who was an outstanding statesman, a man whose name is indelibly written in the political history of Newfoundland, after a life of rigid economy, died a pauper, leaving his widow and children practically penniless. The Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, when he became prime minister of this colony, was a man of substantial wealth, but when he retired from the position of prime minister, he was a comparative poor man. Take the case of the Rt.

Hon. Sir Robert Bond, it cost him many thousands of dollars a year out of his own personal wealth to live as prime minister of Newfoundland. Sir William Whiteway was the most lamentable case of all.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You know his friends called him Money Bags Whiteway.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Quite right. And they had just as much reason for calling him Money Bags Whiteway as you have for your discourteous reference to me in a similar connection a few minutes ago. Sir William Whiteway was a statesman and a gentleman, a man who lived the rigid economy, and even then could not leave an estate sufficiently large to provide his widow with a living income.

Before the honourable the leader of the opposition was pleased to interrupt me I was pointing out to this House that the seriousness of the situation which we have in this country is such that the time of this House should not be wasted in lengthy and acrimonious debate on the Address in Reply. This session is called for the despatch of business and not for the display of oratory. As representatives of the people we must look the facts fairly and squarely in the face.

Our customs revenues are based almost entirely upon ad valorem taxation. Prices have been and will continue to be tumbling. That means that our customs revenue has been tumbling, and will so continue. The late administration found enormous revenues blowing in, because of the increased price of goods, it being upon that increased price of goods that the ad valorem taxation brought such inflated revenues. Our predecessors made no effort to conserve to Newfoundland these revenues. They increased salaries and expenditures in all directions, and by the building of two new wings to the Lunatic Asylum and a huge addition to the Sanitarium, placed upon this present government not only the expenses of paying a large share of the cost of the buildings which they started to construct, but the expense of equipment and outfitting of these large additions and of the staff, upkeep, maintenance and supplies. Salaries have been enormously increased. A half million dollars of the money which came in easily in ad valorem duties because of the increased price of goods was scattered around the country as the famous corruption fund with which they attempted to secure their return to power in November, 1919, an expenditure for which not ten per cent. value was given.

As I shall have many occasions of discussing these various matters during the course of the session, I shall not, on this, the occasion of the formal opening of the House, further detain you, but I cannot sit down without impressing upon each honourable member present necessity for serious consideration of the grave problems which Newfoundland must face in this after-war reconstruction period. The fact that we are politicians is a mere incident to Newfoundland; the fact that we are Liberal or Tory is also a mere incident to Newfoundland. The important point to Newfoundland is that we are Newfoundlanders, and we perform our duty to ourselves, this Chamber and our country only insofar as each member of this Chamber, whether Liberal or Tory, devotes his very best effort to the solution of the problems of the land of our birth.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, notwithstanding the fact that it is not customary on the opening day to refer at length to the Speech from the Throne, especially by others outside of the Mover, the Seconder, the Leader of the Opposition and the Leader of the Government, I think this occasion the most important one in the history of our country and I cannot allow this opportunity to pass without saying a word or two with regard to the seriousness of the situation we find ourselves faced with. Before doing so, however, I wish to associate myself with the expressions of congratulation which have been tendered the Mover and Seconder for a Committee to draft an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne and I would also wish to associate myself with the resolutions of sympathy which were so ably proposed and seconded by the Leader of the Government and my Leader, Sir Michael Cashin. The death of the Hon. Walter Baine Grieve means a distinct loss to both branches of the Legislature. Without attempting to reflect on the ability of any man who holds a seat in either of these Chambers, I think I can truthfully say that the late Walter Baine Grieve was one of the most brilliant orators that it was my lot to ever hear speak in this country and we have ample proofs of his great wisdom. If his advice had been taken at the last session of the Legislature conditions that now exist in the country to a great extent would not be. By the passing of the Hon. Mr. Grieve the mercantile community of Newfoundland suffers a severe blow and the district that I have the honour to represent will be one of the greatest sufferers, especially now when our people are so sorely in need of financial assistance, so that they may be able to carry on the fishery during the coming season. During the past four or five years we have been called upon to record the deaths of some of our mercantile men whom the country could ill afford to lose. The death of the late John Harvey was a serious blow, and that followed in the wake of the loss sustained by the death of the late John S. Munn of Bowring Bros., then the loss of Mr. Goodridge, whose name was a household word, especially in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, and all of these men and others, including the subject of the resolutions before the House are men, whom the trade of this country cannot be carried on without. I am glad of this opportunity on behalf of the people of Placentia and St. Mary's to add a few words to this resolution and through you, sir, I wish to tender to the relatives of the late Walter Baine Grieve, on behalf of the people of the district I have the honour to represent, as well as on my own behalf, my sincerest sympathy.

Now sir, with regard to the Speech from the Throne, I would first say that I feel sorely disappointed with the emptiness of this document. It is not the kind of programme that the people of this country were expecting at the opening of this Legislature. There is so little of substance to be found in this document that one would have to look elsewhere to find material that would be worthy of discussion in this Chamber. It has already been held up to so much and such well-merited criticism and contempt by Sir Michael Cashin that it is almost unnecessary for me to go into detail. One thing I wish to point out, Mr. Speaker, is that this country is now passing through a period of depression and destitution as was never before experienced in our history. When the people of this country are given an opportunity to read and digest the contents of this document, I have no hesitation in predicting that they will be amazed. It will be poor consolation to the tens of thousands of our fellow countrymen who are this very evening perhaps without the ordinary necessities of life, to find out that the Labrador Boundary question occupies a prominent place in the Speech from the Throne. It will be poor consolation to the half hungry men, women and children who are existing to-day in some cases on pauper-dole to know that the Hon. the Prime Minister is drawing down a salary of $8000 per year besides pickings and picnics galore; it will be no consolation to the people of this country to know that the Hon. Mr. Warren, the Attorney General, has commissioned himself to take a slice out of the tax-payers of this country for his services in connection with the Labrador Boundary question and that already according to the Auditor General's report, $20,000.00 has been paid to some seven or eight firms or lawyers in connection with this Labrador Boundary. In my opinion, Mr. Speaker, this is one of the worst scandals, one of the most vicious pieces of political graft and corruption that has ever been perpetrated in this country, and if conditions are allowed to go along as they have been in the past eighteen months and expenditures are allowed to be made to party heelers, and ignorant interference with the legitimate trade of the country is to be continued by the powers that be, it will be a matter of indifference to the people of this country whether our claim to this disputed territory is justified or whether Canada wins out in the case before the Privy Council. Because in my opinion before six months have passed our financial condition will be such that we will be compelled to go with our hats in our hands and our fingers in our mouths so to speak and plead with Canadian statesmen to take us in holus-bolus. So not only will Canada get the Labrador but the city of St. John's and every town and village in the country, and every man, woman and child in the country will be owned body and soul by the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Speaker, if it is not the intention to sit tonight I have much pleasure in moving the adjournment of the debate.

The following Select Committee was appointed, namely:—Mr. Scammell, Mr. Jones, Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. Targett, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Lewis.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Women's Patriotic Funds Trust Act, 1920."

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Crown Lands Act."

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Encouragement of Sheep Farming."

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that on to-morrow he would ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act for the Protection of Neglected, Dependent and Delinquent Children."

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Chapter 170 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of Marine Courts of Enquiry'."

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Law relating to Lotteries."

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Terra Nova Sulphite Company's Act, 1920."

Mr. Higgins gave notice of question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Mr. Moore gave notice of question.

Dr. Jones gave notice of question.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave notice of question.

Mr. Lewis gave notice of question.

Mr. Sinnott gave notice of question.

Mr. Fox gave notice of question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday next, April 4th, at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, April 4th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I ask the indulgence of the House for the purpose of drawing the attention of the House to a most unfortunate matter which appeared in the organ of the government on Saturday last and of which we desire to register our disapproval. I have here the article in question, printed in the Daily Star on Saturday last and which reads as follows:

"GAMBLING FOR A GRAVEYARD"

It is with deep sorrow that The Star is compelled to express its opinion on the horrible desecration of the name of Beaumont Hamel by the occupants of Government House. The public remembers Beaumont Hamel. With the best blood of our boys was that field enriched. There is no more precious spot in God's Universe to a Newfoundlander. With bloody sweat and agony at home has the name been consecrated.

After July 1st, 1916, our boys' bodies lay on the oozy soil in the scorching heat and nightly dew and then became a part of Mother Earth. Truly, it was earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust. No burial was possible. Nature herself provided interment, and the roar of battle was the requiem they had.

More than a year ago the Government arranged through the Department of Militia to purchase the entire field and keep it sacred as a bit of Newfoundland in France, in fact, the richest bit of Newfoundland in the world.

By what authority then did His Excellency the Governor have a card and pool party at Government House on Thursday night last to raise money by a big social function and gambling for the purchase of this burial plot? If the Governor felt that the taxpayers of Newfoundland were too callous and poor to provide their own shrine and sacred burial plot, then his action might be pardoned, though because of its nature it could never be justified.

The Governor would not have invoked the gambling table of Government House to provide funds for Beaumont Hamel if his boy had sunk into the moist clay to become a part of mother earth with resting place unmarked and untraceable. Supposing the editor of this paper had no sensibilities and no sense of propriety. Supposing he put up a wheel of fortune and had a dance in The Sar office to get money to bury the body of the Governor's boy. What would the Governor think about it? What difference is there between that crude illustration of callousness and the action of the Governor in running of a gay function with draw poker on terms that all the money won at gambling that night should be used to buy the beloved burial plot of Newfoundland?

If money has to be secured by private subscription for this purpose it should be given with prayer and devotion, and not through the excitement, glamour and hilarity of the card room or the ball room, not even if Government House sets the pace.

Let Beaumont Hamel rest in peace.

I beg, Mr. Speaker, give notice of the following Resolution:

RESOLVED:—That this House before proceeding with the consideration of the Address in Reply, feels called upon to place on record its indignant and forceful protest and emphatic condemnation of the article in the "Daily Star" newspaper of Saturday last entitled "Gambling for a Graveyard" This article constitutes a brutal and uncalled for attack upon His Excellency the Governor, in regard to a purely personal matter and one, which in the opinion of the House, in no way warrants the criticism directed at it.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, it is my painful duty to rise for the purpose of seconding the resolution proposed by the hon. leader of the Opposition. The subject is a most painful one and in my opinion it is desirable that it be debated as little as possible. A more unfortunate article never appeared in a local newspaper. Where it emanated from or with what motive it was written I cannot say, but the fact of it being in a government organ makes it all the more serious. I therefore, Mr. Speaker, beg to second the resolution just proposed.

HON. MR. FOOTE:—Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that the leader of the Opposition has thought fit to bring the matter in question before this House. What any newspaper might do is no matter for this House. I was one of those present at the party referred to and I participated in that session or whatever it may be called. I brought the matter to the notice of the members of the Government and knew nothing of it. I don't think it should be brought in here at all and I would ask the hon. member to withdraw his resolution.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I am sorry I cannot see eye to eye with the hon. gentleman. Doctors differ you know, and patients die. It is a well known fact that the Prime Minister is the owner of the paper in which that article appeared.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—That is not true.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I hear that for the first time. Everybody believes that you are or at least that you are the controlling spirit behind it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I am a substantial creditor, that is all.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That is merely splitting hairs, sir. It is well known that you control the Daily Star.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—That does not happen to be the case.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It is public property all the same that you do control it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—It is not true.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There is not a man in sound of your voice who does not believe that you are the owner or at least that you have the controlling interest in that paper and many question the writer of that article, indeed many are uncharitable as to blame you for it. Then when we come in here and express our disapproval of this beastly, contemptible treatment of the king's representative a minister of the government gets up and tells us the matter is not one for the house. The resolution has been moved and seconded in the regular way and it will stand. The prime minister admits that he is a shareholder.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I am not a shareholder, and the government knows nothing of the article in question. I stated that I was merely a creditor of the Daily Star, as no doubt Sir Michael Cashin is of many similar concerns.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—And still after that article appearing in the Daily Star, he goes down and dines at Government, House Saturday night. He says he is not the owner of that paper but he is not in a position to go down and dismiss Dr. Mosdell if he wishes to?

Now I don't want to critic Dr. Mosdell, he is open to criticism where the war is concerned, and was one of those who took to the woods when the war was on and his paper was closed up for sedition. Then you came out and told the country you would stand by The Star politically and financially and your brother member now asks to have this resolution withdrawn. The article was rotten in every sense of the word. There is no reason to withdraw the resolution and he gave none. It should be the first duty of the House to pass the resolution condemning the article.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The leader of the Opposition is right in saying he is within his rights in bringing the matter before the House, but notice must be given of question and none was given in this case.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That's only quibbling.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I do not like that remark and it is not so. The rules of the House are there and if you want to debate it—and I say right here that I wish to disassociate myself with the sentiment of the article—you should give notice of question for to-morrow.

MR. HIGGINS:—I think you have lost sight of the point and look upon this as a vote of censure on the government. It seems that the government side wishes to take all the claim for loyalty. The leader of the Opposition instead of moving the adjournment of the House to discuss the question, as he might have done and as in the practice in England, did ask the indulgence of the House to deal with it. I believe that both sides of the House will go on record in support of the resolution. We have every right to demand that this be dealt with at the earliest possible moment and to go on record as legislators in deploring it. I think it very unfortunate that this should be asked to be left stand over for debate. None of us desire to debate it; I have memories of Beaumont Hamel that prevent me wishing to discuss it. As to what paper it is in is only a matter of incident. I should be condemned, in whatever paper it might have appeared and I think we would be unworthy of ourselves if we failed to go on record as opposed to such an attack on His Excellency. If the desire is to have a dress debate I regret it as there is so much to be said in connection with the matter. In justice to those coming after us we should keep the House clean. This is not a party measure and is not raised in a partisan spirit. It is not raised as an opposition measure and it is this spirit I support the resolution.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I speak that the indulgence of the House. The paper referred to happens to be an organ of the government but I wish to disassociate myself with the sentiment of the article. When the opposition leader got up he left the impression it was a party measure as he stated the article was in the government paper, but I'm glad to hear such is not the case. I don't know what is in the article but think we should follow the regular parliamentary procedure and notice be given of the question for to-morrow. The leader of the opposition might have adjourned the House for consideration of the question but I think it should be left over till to-morrow.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I would like to express myself in favour of the view of the Hon. Minister of Justice and before voting would like to have the privilege of reading the article over. Otherwise I would be voting for something I know nothing about and should like to be able to see it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I agree with some of the observations of my learned friend Mr. Higgins but disagree with the working of the resolution and expressions of the leader of the opposition, if a suitable resolution were moved by Mr. Higgins I believe it would pass unanimously. It is unfortunate that attention was called by the News in the morning and The Star in the afternoon to the incident at Government House.

Sir M. P. Cashin tabled the resolution.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to lay on the table of the House the report of the Comptroller and Auditor General on the accounts of the Colony for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1920, and also his special report under Section 33B of the Audit Act.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would like to ask the leader of the House if the motion for the adoption of the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne be deferred until to-morrow, till we get the answers to some of the questions asked. The reason for this request is that anything that I have to say on the Speech from the Throne, I want to be able to say intelligently, and this I cannot do without some of the information asked for in the questions of the previous sittings of March 30th. Now that the report has been received, I would ask the Hon. the Prime Minister if this motion might stand until to-morrow. The information in particular that I would like to have is in connection with the railway policy.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, with regard to all questions addressed to myself, with the exception of Nos. 6 and 7 which have already been dealt with, the typewritten answers have not yet arrived but will be here some time this afternoon. That applies to Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, No. 7 excepting statement of accounts, Nos. 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, 16, 18, 19, 20, 21. Having been in the reporters' box myself I know the difficulty of reporting these answers, and I am therefore having them prepared in writing, and will be in a position to deal with all of them during the afternoon.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, having already said a word or two in relation to some matters now before the House; having already extended my congratulations to the mover and per it might have appeared and I think we would be unworthy of ourselves if we failed to go on record as opposed to such an attack on His Excellency. Having been in the reporters' box myself I know the difficulty of reporting these answers, and I am therefore having them prepared in writing, and will be in a position to deal with all of them during the afternoon.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, having already said a word or two in relation to some matters now before the House; having already extended my congratulations to the mover and seconded of the Address in Reply to His Excellency the Governor's Speech from the Throne and having already associated myself with the Resolutions of sympathy passed the opening day, it is scarcely necessary for me to go back over the same ground, but I also intimated to the House at the opening that I would avail of the first possible opportunity to deal at greater length with the very important matters that are holding a prominent place in the minds of the people of this country at the present time. Now, I might say at the start that I do not at all approve of the attitude of those Ministers on the other side of the House from whom we have to try and glean all the possible information we can get, so that we can deal intelligently with the conduct of the present administration for the past twelve months. It seems to me that the set policy of the papers supporting the Government is to attack the members of the Opposition and hurl at them the vilest kind of personal abuse so that they may be frightened from asking questions that would expose the conduct of their bosses. But I want to serve notice on these literary assassins that any reference of theirs in the public press will not prevent me from turning the searchlight on the ecations of the Government for the past eighteen months. When I asked a question yesterday, a question that in my opinion is one of the most important that will possibly be put on the order paper, I am the subject of a bitter attack through the columns of the Evening Advocate, the official organ, of the Hon. Mr. Coaker and his associates in the F. P. U. The question referred to was as follows:—

"I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask the Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance to lay on the table of the House a statement showing if the F. P. U. or any of its, subsidiary companies owe any money for bonds at the Custom House."

To-day when I took up a copy of the Advocate I was unmercifully attacked because I had dared to ask such a question. Whil'st I have no personal desire to enquire into the private affairs of any private concern, nor have I any desire to in any way injure the legitimate actions of the F. P. U., or any of its companies. I have also a desire and a firm decision that I am going to safeguard in so far as I can the interests of the other sections of the country that are not represented in this House by the F. P. U. nor its officials. No sane man can argue that the F. P. U. can be regarded as a private enterprise. It must be conceded by all intelligent people that the Fishermen's Protective Union is the biggest political and mercantile corporation that Newfoundland has ever had. As for its political powers one has only to look across the House and there you can find eleven men who came here representing the business and financial interests of this corporation and it is for this reason and this reason alone that I must demand to have any questions that I have to ask in reference to this organization answered promptly. Inotice by the Auditor General's report that $500,000 was taken from the treasury and handed over to the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who is President of the F. P. U. and Managing Director of its commercial enterprises, to be used in the purchase of fish. The motto of the official organ of Mr. Coaker is "Suum Cuique" which means equal rights to all. Well Mr. Speaker, I ask you in all seriousness, is this practising the doctrine of equal rights? This $500,000 was a part of the surplus left by the Government of Sir Michael Cash-

in. It was owned by the tax-payers of this country, no particular section of them. The men of Placentia and St. Mary's Bays, the men of Fortune Bay, the men of Burin District and the men of Conception Bay and the people of this city had just as much claim on the Treasury of this country as had the men who are represented by Mr. Coaker. But the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, whom nobody would dispute is the dictator and who was acting Prime Minister in the absence of the Hon. Mr. Squires last year, was apparently given carte blanche by the Executive Government to handle this $500,000 as he saw fit and then when one comes in here and from his official place in this House makes a query as to the expenditure of the money, he is held up to ridicule by a section of the press. I find that a large amount of that money was spent to purchase fish from a certain section of the Island. I deplore the attitude of the Members of the Government who are not representing F. P. U. constituencies, who will sit by and allow the interests of the districts they represent to be sacrificed. I am sorry to make this statement that we have in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's to-day no less than 20,000 quintals of fish which at the present moment you could not get twenty cents a quintal for and the poor fishermen who had to toil from morn to night to procure that fish have had to appeal to the Commissioner of Public Charities for support. During the seven years that I have had the honour of a seat in this House as a representative for this important district to my certain knowledge there was not altogether during these seven years $700 worth of poor relief sent to the district, but unfortunately within the past two or three months there has been thousands of dollars worth of provisions doled out in the usual way. It is a stigma that the people of this historic old district abhor and resent. It is a stigma that was placed upon them not by their own actions but by the insane legislation of an incapable administration. If the men who are holders of this fish were able to market it as they would have been able to do had the trade not been interfered with, they would be in a position to-day to be able to outfit for the coming season. But it is ancient history now what has happened to our foreign markets and I doubt if the tens of thousands of quintals of fish bought by Mr. Coaker from his friends and from himself in some cases and in the districts which he politically controls at the present moment will be ever utilized as an article of food. By bull-headed interference and undiplomatic actions the Italian market has been destroyed and this fish, which is a perishable article, is now lying around St. John's in stores and with the warm weather approaching, I predict that by the middle of the summer it will have to be shovelled out and carted away to some of the farmers in and around St. John's. The whole procedure is a piece of vicious class legislation and I predict that when the people of this country find out what has really happened there will be an uprising. If for no other reason than this, it is quite sufficient that the present administration will go down in history as the most dishonest and most incompetent administration that ever controlled the affairs of this country. It may be alright for Mr. Jennings or Mr. Coaker or any other Hon. gentleman who holds a seat in this House to do their best for this particular constituency but the other sections of the Island should not be sacrificed. All I would ask for is a square deal and as the Fishermen's Advocate says "to every man his own." But the attitude of the Government in connection with this fish business is not in accordance with this motto. Personally I have nothing but respect and sympathy for any number of the fishermen who banded themselves together for the betterment of their homes and surroundings. I am in sympathy with the F. P. U. as an organization if its activities were confined to the original intention, but when the F. P. U. or any other corporation tries to control the Government of the country then it is about time for someone to step in and say "Thou shalt not pass."

Mr. Speaker: What the fishermen and laboring men of this country are interested in at the present time is what is the Government going to do to find employment for the tens of thousands of our people who are today alarmed at the serious situation. They want to know what programme the Government has to relieve the tension. They want to know what proposition the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has with regard to the prosecution of the cod-fishery the coming summer; they want to know what is the Government's programme for the opening up of new avenues of employment which are daily referred to in the papers supporting the Government and which were outlined in the Manifesto of the Leader of the Government when he appealed for votes. The public are anxious to know what is being done with regard to Bell Island, and whether that antagonistic spirit which I presume is responsible for the tying up of this important industry, is still in evidence. I say it is the duty of the Leader of this House and every individual member in the House irrespective of where his desk may be located, to see that these matters are ventilated properly. Cheap personalities and camouflage should be abolished. Every question that is being sent across to the Government benches by the representatives of the Opposition is a fulfilment of our duty. We are here as the safety valve of the whole machinery which operates the Government and the country who are watching our actions today and are demanding that our queries be answered by the proper men. It is quite true that these questions sometimes cause bad feeling and uneasiness in the ranks of the Government, but we care not who is hurt. We are bound to do our duty. If the members of the Government did not regard these queries as being detrimental to a continuation of their receiving high emoluments, they would have freely handed back answers, but it is because they know that the country is determined to know the true situation that they are complaining about our questions. But the public know and the Ministers of the Government know that there is sufficient ability on this side of the House to be able to force the information no matter how much the Government supporters may wriggle.

Yesterday for a few minutes I dealt with one or two subjects that I found in the Auditor General's Report. I also dealt with the Labrador Boundary question; I do not propose to deal with it any further this session. I found an amount in the Auditor General's report paid to the Price Waterhouse Company of $10,546. I presume this Company is the expert auditors who were brought down here a little while ago so that they may be able to turn the X-ray on the actions of Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosbie, Mr. Woodford, the ex-Minister of Public Works, and other gentlemen who were associated with them in the late Government. It is quite alright apparently to spend $10,000 to compile a report to try to put one of these gentlemen in an awkward position. They never did hope to convict any of these gentlemen and send them to prison as they published broadcast through their filthy papers, but they thought they might be able to get something which would be sufficient to belittle Sir Michael Cashin and his associates in the eyes of the public; and the result is that the tax-payers of this country are called upon to pay $10,000 for this report, and the report itself is one of the best possible compliments that could be paid Sir Michael Cashin and his associates for their honesty, integrity and ability during their term of office; and the men who were responsible for these dirty insinuations, the men who were responsible for bringing these sleuths from America to this country to make this report are not possessed of sufficient manhood to get up here in their place in this House and apologize to Sir Michael Cashin and his associates whom they so foully charged. When Sir Michael Cashin and his Government went out of office in 1919 their story, Mr. Speaker, had been told several times and in several places, but I think the time is quite opportune to repeat this story from my place in the House. I say when Sir Michael Cashin went out of office in November, 1919, he handed over to the Exchequer of this country the magnificent sum of three and a half millions of dollars as a surplus. He handed it to the Hon. Mr. Brownrigg, who, by the way, I regret, is absent from his place in this House. I regret that he escaped my memory on the opening day, and if I may be pardoned, Mr. Speaker, I would avail of this opportunity to express my sincere regret at his absence, and I hope and trust that the time is not far distant when my hon. friend will be restored to his former good health. Though the Hon. Mr. Brownrigg and myself have agreed to disagree so far as politics are concerned, I regard him as an honorable man, and I regard him as a good citizen. We all hope that before the session is very far advanced that he may be able to take his seat.

To get back to the matter I was speaking of, Mr. Speaker, I say that the enormous sum of three and a half millions of dollars was handed over by Sir Michael Cashin to his successor, the Hon. Mr. Brownrigg. This money was given in trust for the people of this country, to be put aside for the unfortunate rainy day which any man with the slightest sense of vision or foresight could see must be the inevitable outcome of the termination of the Great War. The present Government, under the leadership of Hon. R. A. Squires, went to the country in 1919, and they presented to the electorate a very attractive programme. I have a copy of the Manifesto in my hand, and after perusing it very carefully, I cannot blame the larger number of people all over the Island who spontaneously responded to the appeal sent out by the Leader of Government. I say, sir, that this little document, if it were written, as I have no doubt it was written, in sincerity, could hardly fail to secure sympathy and support. Were any of the promises embodied in that Manifesto carried out? I say no, Sir. Despite the fact that the sum of three and a half millions of dollars that was earned by Cashin and his associates and handed over to Squires and his associates and used by the Hon. Mr. Squires and his followers in most cases for their own personal benefit. So far as I can see there has been no attempt made to carry out any of the claims contained in this Manifesto. In this little book a very attractive policy is outlined. The wisdom of being conservative with regard to public expenditure is interestingly portrayed: the erection of public utilities in various parts of the country which requires them is promised. Increased votes for public charities and all the various subjects dealt with in this Manifesto were entitled to sympathy and support of the country, if one believed that the man who made them intended to carry out his promises.

I do not care to unnecessarily prolong the business of the House, but I would say before going any further that I have no fear of what construction may be put upon my attitude by those who are anxious to injure me, politically or otherwise; but I have sufficient interest in the people who sent me to this House to show up as far as I can the misdeeds and broken faith of the Hon. the Leader of the House and his associates. With this intention in my mind, Mr. Speaker, I wish to review for a few minutes the actions of the Government during the past eighteen months. Let us examine how conservative were those who had charge of that three and a half millions of dollars which was handed over to the Treasury by Sir Michael Cashin when he relinquished power in November, 1919. Let us see how conservative the present Government was with his political friends and supporters. Let us see how honorable the present Government has been with regard to the poor widow and the orphan; with the old, worn-out fisherman or farmer, or cooper, or miner—with the poor man, no matter what his calling may be. A prominent place is to be found in the Manifesto for promises that every old worn-out fisherman would receive the pension. Sufficient money is promised to give every old man who has passed his three-score and ten, fifty dollars each. Not only this but the Hon. Mr. Squires went one better than Sir Edward Morris, to whom, by the way, this country is indebted for this pension scheme; Mr. Squires in his Manifesto promised that no matter what the age of the person if he were incapacitated by sickness or infirmity and were in need, they would be entitled to this pension. Not only this, but besides giving the pension to old worn-out fishermen, old women who required assistance would be also given a pension. The fee of the widow and the orphan was to be largely increased. There is only one answer, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, to these promises made by the Premier: no attempt has been made to give to the poor old worn-out fishermen this well-earned recompense for their long and faithful services to their country. Down in the office of the clerk in charge of this department you will find hundreds of applications from fishermen all over the country. The office is worn out from the visits of representatives and clergymen and other friends who go there to secure the aid of Mr. Woods to try and get this pension for those poor old men. But they are met with the answer that there is no increased grant and those three and a half millions of dollars have been squandered on wildcat schemes and picnics and the poor old worn-out fisherman is allowed to die in hunger and want. This promise was made deliberately to catch votes and now when no election is pending no consideration is given to these poor men.

I do not care, Mr. Speaker, to burden the House with a perusal of the Manifesto at this particular time. We will have ample opportunity to deal with the broken promises before the close of this session. I think that the burning question at the present time is the financial condition of the country, and what has brought that condition about. I think the matter of Government purchase of fish is perhaps one of the most serious questions that we are confronted with and one of the most important matters that we as an Opposition as well as representatives of the Government in this House will have to contend with this session. I think perhaps that I may be pardoned if I again revert to this important subject. It seems almost incredible that a Government which has as its Prime Minister a representative of the city of St. John's, the Receiver General also representing St. John's, the Hon. Minister of Shipping representing a Conception Bay constituency, the Hon. Minister of Education, representing Harbor Grace with a seat in the Executive Government, the Hon. Mr. Foote another Executive Member representing the important fishing district of Burin, which embraces Grand Bank, Fortune and other important shipping centres, the Hon. the Attorney General who represents the old historic district of Fortune Bay which is one of the most important banking centres in the Island, and the district of Burgeo and LaPoile represented on the Government side of the House; I say it is almost incredible that these hon. gentlemen will allow half a million dollars of public money to be handed over to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries to be manipulated by him in the interests of himself and his political associates and the commercial enterprises over which he presides at a great sacrifice to the other sections of the country which I have named. I may tell you frankly, Mr. Speaker, that if I were a member of the Government and such legislation was attempted, I would immediately resign my seat. Whilst I am prepared not only to give but to assist in securing for the districts that are represented by F. P. U. men 100 per cent. of what is due them, I am not prepared to allow them to get 1 per cent. more than their due. I think this is a sound principle, and it is a principle which I have no doubt would be endorsed by the Hon. Mr. Coaker were he present in this House this afternoon.

In the early part of November when I heard that Government assistance was being given to a certain section, I wrote a letter to the public press over my own signature and denounced such a procedure. In one paragraph of that letter I claimed in the following words:

"If Government assistance is to be given to fishermen, it must be country-wide. The men of Placentia Bay, St. Mary's Bay, Conception Bay or any other section of the country have an equal claim on the Treasury of this Dominion, and unless the same privilege is extended, the same proportion and assistance given to all fishermen, no Government should be allowed to vote one dollar in the House of Assembly that would be a discrimination against any particular section of the Island."

I think this is also a sound principle. If it is correct that the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries has been given half million of dollars of the people's money to purchase fish from any particular section of the country, the offence is of such a nature that His Excellency the Governor should immediately demand his resignation. If this is not Star Chamber legislation, then I do not know what is meant by Representative Government. The man who would sit at an Executive Board and allow this discrimination against the men who sent him to this House to safeguard their interests, is in my opinion not fit to represent any constituency. Where do the electors of and fishermen of the District of Ferryland come in for their proportionate part of that half million dollars? Where do the electors of Bay de Verde, which is so ably represented by the Hon. Mr. Cave, who draws a salary of $5,000.00 from the taxpayers of this country, and his colleague, Lieutenant LeGrow, our latest agricultural expert, who draws a salary of $4,000.00; I wonder if the people of Bay de Verde who honored these gentlemen with their votes have received their proportionate part of that $500,000.00. I wonder if my gallant friend Mr. Small, who is ably representing the District of Burgeo and La Poile, has seen to it that the fishermen of Burgeo and La Poile are to get their proportionate part of this money. I feel sure that my friend the Hon. Mr. Foote has seen to it that Burin's interests have been safeguarded.

There is a story going around that at least one of the representatives for Conception Bay, Mr. Gosse, has been successful in selling his fish to the Government at a fair price. Of course I feel sure that Mr. Gosse saw to it that the fishermen of his constituency who placed him in the House of Assembly sold their fish also at just as good a price, and it is a pity, Mr. Speaker, that the Hon. Messrs. Cave and LeGrow, the Hon. Mr. Warren and Mr. Foote, Messrs. Gosse and Barnes and their associates did not possess sufficient liberality in their make up to do unto others as they would others do to them. They should have remembered that there are just as good men living in the districts that are not represented by the Government side of the House as there are in these districts that are so represented. They should have remembered that the men of Placentia Bay, Trepassey Bay, St. Mary's Bay were just as much entitled to this Government protection or assistance as the people of their own districts. Now I am presuming that these gentlemen who represent Western districts have seen to it that the whole expenditure did not go to the North, but I have been told that such is the case. I met a gentleman this afternoon who comes from Fortune Bay district, which is represented by the Attorney General. He told me that there is a large amount of fish still on hand in sections of Fortune Bay and that not one dollar of Government money was paid for any fish in that section so far as he knew. Well, if this is so, it makes the case ten thousand times worse against these representatives who are not followers of the Hon. Mr. Coaker and his political organization. The amount of money involved in this expenditure is so large, Mr. Speaker, and the principles involved of so much importance to the future conduct of this Legislature, I think that the matter is of too much importance to pass over lightly.

It is in my opinion absolute proof that we can never again have in this country Government of the people, for the people and by the people, whilst the Hon. Mr. Coaker or any other Hon. man is wielding such large influence in the affairs of the Government. I have no objection to the people of the North getting their share of what is going. As a matter of fact I have a certain amount of special sympathy for some of the Northern districts. I spent sixteen years of my life in the North and perhaps know as much about conditions there as most of the Hon. Gentlemen on the other side of this House. I had the honour to be a resident of a part of the district of Twillingate for sixteen years. Naturally having spent sixteen years of my life, closely associated with my fellow residents there I know something about conditions. I have nothing but sympathy for the people of that district or in fact any other district, but I believe that my Hon. Friend the Minister of Public Works has so ably and well represented the district referred to is broad-minded enough and honest enough to admit that when the expenditure of half million dollars is made that the people of the south, the west and the East are just as much entitled to their share of it as the people of the north. I believe that my friend, Mr. Jennings will agree with this principle. Personally if I were representing the north that would be my attitude and I want to state here that if I had been holding a place in the Government when this expenditure was authorised by the Government to the district which was not represented in the Government required the encouragement and protection that was being offered to my district and the representative of that district came to me and asked me to use my influence to relieve the situation that existed in his district I would be quite prepared to see that equal rights was given to all districts or I would be no party to this class distinction and I further believe that if the members of the present Government had been consulted before this monstrous piece of corruption was perpetrated there are men I think on the other side of the House who would not stand for this Legislation. They would not be satisfied to hand to one man half million dollars to be spent as he wished for his own interests and for the interests of the Companies that he was financially interested in. It is in my opinion the duty of the Members of this House to denounce and condemn in the strongest possible language this spending of public money by any individual or any corporation when it is at the expense of other sections of the country. The Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries is we all know, human, he is only an ordinary human being like most of us, he is to be complimented upon the success he has met with in regard to the formation of the F.P.U. But I think it is fortunate that Mr. Coaker and his F. P. U. enterprizes should have such political power which in my opinion is detrimental to the best interests of a free Government. Whether he is Leader of the Government, Attorney General or whether in the Government or not, whilst he controls in this House eleven seats he is seriously interfering with the principles of representative Government. The present Government will never be of the people, by the people and for the people whilst any one man controls eleven seats in this House, whilst any man who so controls is head of a corporation or the magnitude of the F. P. U. I sympathise with the Leader of the House because of the unfortunate position in which he finds himself. I do not believe that the Leader of the Government was the introducer of that minute of council which hands over half million dollars of public money to be spent at the wish and whim of Mr. Coaker and his associates. I believe if the Leader of the Government found himself in the lead of a party affiliated with the F. P. U. Reid Nfld. Company, Grand Falls, Bell Island or any other corporation he would not be a party to any such transaction. It is common knowledge what led up to this unfortunate expenditure. Everybody is familiar with the doctrine preached by the President of the F. P. U. and his associates during the past eight or ten years the price of fish is what Mr. Coaker makes it, the law of supply and demand has been relegated to the back-ground and the price of fish is nothing more or less than Coaker makes it. This was in the days before my friend the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries had this title placed before his name. I am sorry that the Hon. Gentleman is not in his seat and no doubt I will be told to-morrow that I availed of this opportunity to attack Mr. Coaker in his absence, but if he is not in his place in this House it is through no fault of mine and he is not absent from this House on any mission that I am responsible for. It is his duty to be here and I am not going to be debarred from making the reference that I intend to make his public actions by his being absent. I say sir, that when the Hon. Mr. Coaker was plain Mr. Coaker, President of the F.P.U. we used to have the price of fish dished out in this Chamber in all kinds of ways by this gentlemen and his followers. We used to have it in this House for breakfast, dinner and supper. When the price was high, it was that Mr. Coaker made it, but now that the price is low it is because of the hanger-downs, the wooden heads, who are represented by Cashin, Crosbie and the rest of us, who are associated with these gentlemen on this side of the House. It is now ancient history that last autumn the men of the North who were guaranteed they would be given $10 for fish came on here to St. John's in large numbers, they found that they had been fooled and that there was no such price offering. They held public meetings here in the city and passed resolutions condemning the action of Mr. Coaker and his associates. The result was that Mr. Coaker and his associates became scared and he was forced to use the powers that he held in the present Government to force through the Executive Council a minute or arrangement whereby he would be able to come to the rescue of his followers whom he had deluded, arrangements whereby he would be able to keep or nearly keep the promises he had made them, the whole section of the coast from Baccalieu to Cape John.

It was then that the Hon. Mr. Coaker and his associates had placed before them in no uncertain way that the price of fish was controlled absolutely by supply and demand. There is no doubt in my mind, Mr. Speaker, knowing the ability of Hon. Friend both in business and in politics that half a million dollars will be spent to the best advantage of Mr. Coaker and the F. P. U. both politically and commercially. Before leaving this subject I wish to again enter my strongest protest against this travesty of public funds. Is it not reaping the whirlwind when we find the people on the verge of revolution. How can they be blamed. The attitude of the Government with regard to this transaction is only in accord with their actions with regard to every public matter they have dealt with. In season and out of season, through the public press and from public platforms the Reid Newfoundland Company was denounced by the leader of the Government and by the Hon. Mr. Coaker and their associates who claimed and shouted persistently that if ever they were given power they would see to it that the Reids were made toe the line. After all not a few will believe this and it gives a ring of sincerity to the arguments handed out by the Daily Star as to putting the Reids in their proper place. The country will unfortunately find that these people who made these statements, the Leader of the Government who sandbagged the Reid Nfld. Co., from his place in this House a short year ago, the Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries who through his paper and in every conceivable way attacked and denounced the Reids and all associated with them are the very men who have scandalously betrayed the trust of the people and have relieved the Reids from all the obligations to this country and have placed further burdens of taxation which I am afraid will be the last straw that broke the camel's back. No sooner was this House of Assembly closed last session, the ink was scarcely dry which reported the famous denunciatory speech against the Reids that the Executive Government met in solemn conclave and entered into an agreement with Reid Nfld. Co. which will cost the taxpayers of this country, millions of dollars. To-morrow I will be told by members on the opposite side of the House or through the Press that I am taking advantage of the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to vilify him. I am not doing so. I told the Hon. Minister from my place in this House one year ago that I was prepared to give him a chance and also served notice on him that if I discovered that he was attempting to treat the people false I would have no hesitation in calling a spade a spade and I would not be deterred from denouncing him in the strongest language at my disposal if I found him acting dishonestly by the people. I owe no allegiance to any newspaper, I owe no allegiance to any corporation or political organization or no man inside or outside of this House, but I do owe allegiance to 20,000 people who reside in the district I represent and sent me to this House to safeguard their interests and while I hold my health and strength which is fairly good, at the present moment, barring my hearing, I will do all I can to defend the rights and privileges which in my opinion are being at the present moment by the present Government deliberately sacrificed. I am an admirer of the industry of the Hon. Mr. Coaker, but I have no hesitation in denouncing him in his political capacity, when he attempts to manipulate an important department of the Government for the selfish interests of himself and the commercial enterprises with which he is closely identified. In that decision I think I will be sustained by friends on both sides of the House and by the Leader of this House if he has not changed, his opinion since 1918 when I had the honour to hear him give expression to the very same sentiments that I am preounding here, from his seat in the Legislative Council.

To get back to the subject of the railway is perhaps the most important matter that this House will have to deal with. I have to anticipate what is going to happen on the 30th of June when the agreement which was entered into by the Executive Government and the Reids. I have not sufficient information before me with regard to the handling of the railway during the past ten months to be able to deal intelligently with the matter, but I cannot be blamed for insinuating wrong-doing when we recall the attacks made upon the Reid Nfld. Company by the Leader of the present Government a few short months ago, and now we find that the Hon. Mr. Coaker is chairman or boss of the Reid outfit. One cannot be blamed for having these thoughts when we go to the railway station nearly every Friday evening when the Hon. Mr. Coaker is in town, and find that a palace car is placed at his disposal and cooks and stewards and well-stocked larders are placed at his disposal for his week-end trips to Port Union. I wonder if this expenditure is a tax upon the F.P.U. corporations or whether the taxpayers of the country are being bled for this recreation of the Hon. Minister. I notice Mr. Jennings, the Hon. Minister of Public Works, has fallen asleep. I was not aware that the sleeping sickness had struck this country.

MR. JENNINGS:—Mr. Speaker, I think it is out of order for the Hon. Member for Placentia and St. Mary's to remark whether my eyes are closed or open.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I must remind the Hon. Mr. Jennings that I am not at all particular whether his eyes are closed or open, but what I am particularly interested in are his ears. I want him to keep them open and hear what is being said. Now I think we had better see how far we can get along with this debate before tea. I want to refer to a question which has occupied a prominent place in the public mind the past months. It has also found a place of notice in the Auditor General's report and I believe has found a place in the Speech from the Throne, the question relates to Sugar. This matter has been handled very intelligently by my friend Mr. Bennett in his magnificent address of yesterday. It was equally as well handled by him a year ago in this House and if his sound advice which was given at that time had been taken by the present Government this country would not be called upon to pay a loss of $200,000.00 and the public be led to the tune of twenty-five to thirty-five cents per pound for sugar which we should be able to purchase to-day for ten or twelve cents per pound. The man down in Twillingate who has to go to Ashbourne or some other dealer and pay thirty cents per pound for sugar wants to know why it is so. As there was a Food Control Board under the old Government and when there was a suspicion that things were not being done just right by that Board, the Hon. Mr. Coaker, the Hon. Mr. Squires and my friend the Minister of Public Works, had no hesitation in denouncing the conduct of that Food Control, but now because the personal of the present Food Control Board is friendly disposed to the present Government and because merchant friends of the Government were contributing large cheques to the party funds are interested in the further control of the price of sugar, the hardships that the people are called upon to suffer are winked out of sight. I wonder do the gentlemen on the other side of the House know that fresh meat is being brought into this country to-day which is invoiced at eleven cents per pound is retailed to the people of this country for forty-five and fifty cents per pound. Can the gentlemen on the other side of the House tell me why this is so? Do they know that men who are closely connected with this Food Control Board are financially interested in the importing of this commodity. I commend this information to the Hon. Attorney General for his enquiry and I seriously request that the Department of Justice enquire into this matter and if this statement is correct, this kind of thing should no longer be tolerated.

The public at large have no confidence or no sympathy with any further interference with the legitimate trade of the country. The Food Control Board, like the War Measures Act and the Act Regulating the Exportation of Codfish should be immediately repealed and taken from the Statutes Book. If we are to make a serious attempt to retain our position as an independent colony, a policy of retrenchment will have to be adopted. I do not mean retrenchment with regard to the lessening of the salaries of the minor civil servants, but a policy of retrenchment will have to be adopted and the first place that the weapon should be used is right in this Assembly. We should as patriotic Newfoundlanders commence by chopping down our own salaries. We will have to get back to 1914 salaries. Any sane man with a cord eye can see that we cannot meet an $11,000,000 expenditure with a $6,000,000 revenue. Consequently our expenditure will have to be almost cut in half. To do this a policy of heavy retrenchment will have to be undertaken. We will have to recall our unnecessary fish Commissioners who are at this moment wallowing in luxury at the expense of a half-starved public. We will have to discontinue our elaborate educational programme, which is, in my opinion, characteristic of the trappings of an elephant on the back of a mouse. Before bringing my few observations to a close there are one or two other subjects I should like to touch on briefly. True I may occupy little more time than some, but it is because I am performing a duty which I owe to the district which I represent, a district which the present administration hears more about than any other district in the Island, because in spite of the threats that have been made in the Press to try and drive me from public life I anticipate that if I am allowed to retain my health and strength, I will be found on the floors of this Assembly when those who are now trying to hound me down will have gone into political oblivion and will have been numbered in the Limbo of forgotten things. In the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Speaker, there is not a single ray of hope held out to an anxious public. Instead of the promises of the Prime Minister in his Manifesto to reduce taxation we are now assured that there is to be a further burden placed upon the backs, of those who are already groaning under the load which they are called upon to carry. I notice in his manifesto of 1919 a gloomy picture is printed of the heavy burden that poor Newfoundland was called upon to bear. He says that every man, woman and child in this country is taxed $34 per head and if I and my Government are returned to power I will see to it that there is a reduction in this enormous taxation. Now let us see what this reduction amounts to. Mr. Squires promised reduced taxation in 1919. In 1921 after having squandered three and a half millions of dollars which was left in trust for the people by Sir Michael Cashin and his associates we find that not only is taxation not reduced, but instead of $34 per head which the taxpayers had to pay in 1919 under Cashin, $49 per head of the total population must be paid in 1921 under Squires and Coaker. Mr. Speaker, this is reduced taxation with a vengeance. Instead of a revenue of $9,000,000 which was wrung from the taxpayers in 1919, a revenue of eleven and a half millions of dollars is being wrung from the taxpayers of this country in 1921. Instead of a salary of $2,000 paid Sir Michael Cashin as Prime Minister in 1919 a salary of $8000 is being paid from the taxpayers in 1921 to Hon. R. A. Squires. Instead of $2600 of a salary being paid me as Minister of Agriculture and Mines in 1918, a total salaries amounting to almost $3000 is being paid to Hon. Dr. Campbell, my successor in office in 1921. And so we might go down through the long list of the patriotic Ministers who comprise the present Government.

Mr. Speaker, the working class of this Island are at present very much alarmed. You take a man with a wife and five children, for the purpose of argument; this man is called upon to pay nearly $50 per head out of his annual income, and there are numerous men, family men, east, west, north and south of this country, who cannot see where they are going to make $300 altogether next year, and despite the fact that these circumstances must be well known to almost every member on the Government side of the House, enormous amounts of money, money that was not earned by the present administration but which was left by Cashin and the other members of the late Government to be kept in the interests of the people; it was handed to the members of the present Government to be safe-guarded by them; they were the custodians. But this overflowing Exchequer which was given in trust has been recklessly squandered on high paid officials, picnic trips, legislation of a discriminating character, railroads, sugar blundering, aeroplanes useless steamers and God only knows how many other wild cat schemes that one would not experience in any other congregation of sane men. Let us have a peep at the reform which has been introduced into the Department of Agriculture and Mines. A vote of $50,000 for a model farm was forced through this House at the last session. The Government side of the House voted unanimously for this amount, and I am glad to say every individual on this side of the House protested against it. This $50,000 was handed over to Dr. Campbell, the gentleman who is Minister of Agriculture and Mines, a gentleman who cannot hold a seat in this House and 99 chances out of 100 he never will hold a seat in the popular branch of this legislature. He went on a visit to his native Canada last year and for months nobody knew his whereabouts, until he suddenly turned up at Toronto at a cattle-show. It is unfortunate that we have not a statement of Dr. Campbell's expenditure for stock and expenses during his picnic tour to his native home. I venture to predict that that $50,000 is another dead loss on the tax-payers of this country. When this amount was voted last year, I appealed on behalf of my constituents for support so as they may be able to obtain sufficient seed potatoes to put in the ground, even if they were only loaned the money or the seed; but my request was given the deaf ear. What matter if the residents of Placentia and St. Mary's or any other section of the Island were not in a position to purchase potatoes to put in the ground in the spring, Dr. Campbell's idea of a model farm could not be interfered with, and after the strenuous work performed by him during the fall election and bye-election last winter, he was entitled to a trip to his native country, hence this expenditure of $50,000. Take again this enormous expenditure of nearly $10,000 for snow-shovelling in the District of Hr. Main. I say, Sir, that we are a quiet people if we are going to countenance this kind of corruption, and this is a grave reflection on the honesty and integrity of the present Minister of Public Works. By this expenditure the Hon. Mr. Jennings has branded himself a political hypocrite of the deepest hue. Mr. Woodford or any other Mr. who preceded him as head of this Department never stooped to a lower degree in the administration of this Department than Mr. Jennings by his countenancing this corruption. Money could not be found last winter to be used in other sections of the Island for legitimate work. Applications were sent to that Department for the cutting of material for repairs to bridges and roads, but no money could be found. But when votes were to be bought and the proper general, Dr. Campbell and his able assistant, the Member for Fogo, Mr. Hibbs, made the request, the goody-goody Mr. Jennings fell from grace. I wonder what defence the Hon. Mr. Jennings will put up with regard to this expenditure? How much money did Mr. Jennings send to Twillingate District last winter to shovel snow? How much money could be found to shovel the thoroughfares in and around the city of St. John's last winter? How much money was sent to Placentia, Burin and Fortune Bay and Hr. Grace or to any other district? None, because there was no election pending. This is the most rascally piece of political corruption that has ever been recorded in the history of responsible Government in this country. The unassuming Mr. Jennings is called upon to play the leading role in this damnable drama, and, Mr. Speaker, we are asked and expected not to be too severe in criticising the doings of the present Government and not to be so particular in turning on the searchlight of enquiry.

Another matter that was going to be dealt with was the appointing of a Department of Labour. When the different labour organizations in this city banded themselves together all kinds of promises were handed out by the present Government to try and capture their political support, but this is the second session of the present Government and though strong appeals have been sent from this side of the House on behalf of organized labour, no attempt has been made to render any assistance. It is true that the Prime Minister promised me at the last session that the matter was having his consideration and that he intended to create a Labour Bureau which should be attached to some Department which is already in existence; but so far as I know nothing has come of this promise.

I wonder does the Prime Minister know that an attempt is being made at the present moment to reduce the price of labour? A notice has already been served in some sections of the labouring classes that after the first of May they will be reduced 25 per cent. of their present earning power. I want to say that I, as a friend of labour, offer my strongest objections and most strenuous opposition to any such attempt, especially until the cost of living is reduced to a similar amount. The laboring classes of this town and every industrial section of the Island are taxed to the utmost at present wage to be able to meet their bills and if the earning power is to be curtailed and the cost of living to remain as it is, those men will not be able to exist. It is the duty of the Government to immediately take this matter up, because serious consequences may result.

One does not have to be an accomplished philosopher to see the trouble that is all over the world today with regard to the high cost of living. In almost all of the countries of Europe strikes are the order of the day, and whilst I am not in sympathy with this method of preserving the rights of labour, if there is not sufficient sympathy to be found in the make up of the present Government to be able to come forward and assist labour in getting justice, I for one will be prepared to advise the working man to use any weapon that may be put in his reach if he is being treated unfairly. It is a well known fact that certain business interests in this country are allowed to profiteer. Exorbitant prices are accepted from the people on almost every commodity. Even the Government has been put on record as being one of the biggest profiteers in the whole country. They have bled an already suffering people to the tune of $200,000 to repay their ignorant bungling and impertinent interference with legitimate trade on sugar. They are allowed to profiteer on fresh meat and almost every other article of food and of wearing apparel. The public are being bled white and now the working man gets his ultimatum that after the first of May his wages are to be cut by 25 per cent. I am prepared to support the labouring classes through thick and thin, and I think in this I will be backed up by the whole Opposition. It is not only St. John's that is interested in this matter. As I have often pointed out before, it is time that a Department of Labour be established, and we should have at the head of that Department a man who is able to sympathize with the ideals and aspirations of the men of honest toil. I have also pointed out on several occasions the absolute necessity for having an Inspector of Mines appointed. Our mineral resources are at a stand to become a very important factor in our future existence, and if the Department of Agriculture and Mines is properly looked after and the programme which was outlined by the late Government carried into effect, a competent geologist attached to that Department so that a thorough survey of the Island may be undertaken immediately so that English and American investors who have money to invest may be able through their experts glean all the information that is required before any large amount of money is expended in this direction. A thorough knowledge of the geology of the country may be placed before them. I am a strong believer in the future of our mineral resources. I have had several years of experience in this direction. I have had some experience in other countries than Newfoundland as well as in the different parts of the Island in which this mineral is to be found, and it is because of this practical knowledge and because I have had close association with men who have had more experience than myself that I am convinced that one day Newfoundland will acquire the position that should be hers as a mineral producing country.

It is unfortunate that the important ore mines of Bell Island are not giving this country the credit and support that should be derived from such a valuable deposit of mineral. Bell Island has one of the finest iron ore mines in the world and if we were getting what is due us, this industry should be giving employment to at least 20,000 people. If we have the coal on the West Coast, which I firmly believe we have, this iron ore should not be exported to build up Canadian countries. It should be manufactured right in our own country.

Right in Conception Bay, Harbour Grace or some other suitable seaport over there should be the scene of a great smelting works; steel railways, should be manufactured and even it would not be at all impossible to have a larger shipbuilding plant than Scotland in operation right at our own doors. Of course the absence of those found on the Clyde in this industry I do not blame the present Government for, but all Governments are more or less responsible. It may be said of me you were Minister of Agriculture and Mines why did you not inaugurate those great reforms. My reply, Mr. Speaker, is this, I entered the Department of Agriculture and Mines in June, 1919. I drew up a programme which I submitted to Sir Michael Cashin August 1919, and as a general election was then approaching, which took place two months after, Sir Michael asked me to defer any programme I had until after the election when he assured me that these suggestions would receive the consideration that this important department deserved. Unfortunately our Government was not successful at the polls and both my programme and myself had to vacate this Department on November 15th. So I had no time to be able to bring about any set programme, but the time may not be far distant when it will be my good fortune to return to that Department, and if I do, I can assure those of my country, men who are interested in this particular branch of our industries that no stone will be left unturned by me that may tend to the proper development of this valuable part of our industries.

Before sitting down, Mr. Speaker, I wish to say a word or two on behalf of those who in my opinion are entitled to the best consideration of every member of this House, I refer to the returned men. I understand that the Royal Naval Reservists who enlisted at the outbreak of the war and spent four years, most of them exposed to the storms and hardships and dangers of the North Sea, men who closed the gates of Dover Straits, men who manned the watchdogs who prowled in these waters which were charged with mines and other deadly weapons, men, sons of the fishermen who made England the Empire that she is to-day; I understand that a request has been made by these men for their share of prize money. They have not received it, nor a satisfactory statement regarding it. Now I trust Mr. Speaker that the promise in the manifesto of the Hon. Leader of this House when he refers to these gentlemen as "Our Boys" meaning the Army and Navy, I trust that this will be one of the first that will be kept. I hope that our two representatives who occupy seats on the Government side of the House will see to it that their comrades will receive just compensation for what they have done. Some of these heroes have returned to us broken in health, some of them did not return to us at all. Some of them are buried beneath the waters of the North Sea, others found graves on the shores of England, Scotland or France and their dependents at home are looking to us to see that justice is done, those who gave their all in our defence. Some did not receive the gratitude they deserved and many I am sorry to say are to-day living under a foreign flag some perhaps have already foresworn their allegiance to the flag under which they fought so bravely from 1914 to 1918. If it is correct, and I have no doubt it is that this prize money has been paid by the Imperial Navy to the Newfoundland Government than it should be immediately distributed amongst the men to whom it belongs. In this I believe I will be supported by a great majority of the Members of this House irrespective of where they may sit. I have not had time in this short address to deal with all the subjects on which I would like to speak, but other opportunities will arise during this session and at some future time I trust that I will be allowed to return to the subjects which I have not had time to deal with in this case.

FRIDAY, APRIL 8th, 1921.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Speaker: I have a few brief remarks to make, but I can assure you that they will be made without any undue delay to this House. I will try to come to the point. I do not intend to be personal in my comments, and it is not the intention of the Opposition to be personal in any way towards the members on the other side of the House, but I feel it my duty to criticise the actions of the Government in their conduct of the past twelve months. At this stage we are dealing with the Address in Reply and to say that this document is disappointing would not be conveying the attitude that those inside and outside of this House feel towards the Government for a declaration of policy which fails to convey to us any solution of the problem to deal with the unfortunate condition of the country to-day. I shall await the arrival of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries before dealing with his Department, with regard to Fishery matters, but I shall say here that the policy of Mr. Coaker respecting the fisheries has done much to bring about the present deplorable conditions in trade throughout the whole Dominion. When the Minister of Marine & Fisheries arrives I shall take this matter up and deal with it in full.

I shall now touch upon the actions of the Minister of Education and the Minister of Justice during the past year. I may not permit this session to pass without touching upon the conduct of yourself, Sir, and of your connection with the Government, but I shall leave that comment about you until the House is in Committee when you shall have a chance to reply.

Let me first associate myself with those members on this side of the House, who congratulated the Mover and Secondor of the Address in Reply, on opening day. I regret that the Speech from the Throne was of such a nature as to place those gentlemen in the awkward position of having to say so much about nothing; but after listening to the speeches of both those gentlemen I have come to the conclusion that they have exceptional ability in being able to entertain this House in the manner that they have on a speech, which, in my opinion, is the weakest that has ever been handed to the Speaker of any Legislature. It opens with a funeral and ends with a prayer. I regret as much as anyone the lamented death of the Hon. W. B. Grieve. He was a particular friend of mine, and I often went to secure his opinion and sound advice on matters in connection with the public policy of this country and I feel that if the Government had taken his advice with regard to the Fish situation, we would not now be where we find ourselves to-day. The closing paragraph of the speech is as follows:

The Speech from the Throne makes reference to the Railway policy of the Government; and it would have been an interesting moment, if we had been present at the Executive meeting when the Minister of Education, Mr. Foote, Hon. Geo. Shea, and the Hon. Dr. Campbell signed away the rights of the people of Newfoundland by selling their constituencies. The Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice were not in the country at the time and we may not directly connect them with that deal; but in as much as the Executive Minute had been prepared by the Hon. Minister of Justice and that the Prime Minister had insisted that he take any responsibility in the preparation of that Minute; therefore it is quite evident that both those gentlemen were aware of what would be done after their departure from the country. They left here on the 3rd of August 1920, and the Minute of Council was signed on the fifteenth, but its preparation had been agreed on before the 3rd of the month. The Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice went to England to settle the Labrador Boundary question. This question has been settled several times, but it crops up again at every opportune moment when members of the Government feel that they require a health trip to the Old Country. They were over for five months, and during the most of that time their constituents or many of them were on the verge of starvation. The Minister of Justice left without anyone to look after his district. He left them to the mercy of those who were not particularly interested in their affairs at a time when the district of Fortune Bay was as much concerned with the Fish Exportation Act as the districts of the West Coast and in the actions of Mr. Coaker in forcing upon those people a measure which prevented their doing their business according to their own ideas, and naturally we find that not alone has Fortune Bay suffered by the Minister's neglect and lack of independence in not combating Mr. Coaker's actions in this regard; but from the Auditor General's report we find that several thousand dollars were paid him on account of legal expenses in connection with his trip abroad. I find from this report that ten thousand dollars were paid on account of legal expenses. This is what is contained in the report.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I had a retaining fee of twenty-five hundred dollars, and twenty-five hundred dollars were paid for travelling expenses.

MR. MOORE:—You went away and left the country in the hands of one who has ruined the fishing industry of the country, by the absolute sway which he had in its affairs during your absence. The Hon. Minister spent five months in England when his work could have been completed in as many days. The Attorney General of Canada did not arrive until late in the Fall, and it was not until he arrived that the Minister of Justice was able to sign the document which affected the Quebec Boundary question.

It is evident that the Minister was not entirely concerned with this question, or he would have informed himself when the Minister of Justice of Canada would reach London, and could have made his trip at the same time, and could have saved the country a great deal of expense in connection with travelling expenses. He was bent on having an outing at the expense of the country. He will not go back to his district next year. He will find that the people of Fortune Bay will not endorse his conduct in leaving them to Mr. Coaker's mercies, to have their industry destroyed while he was picnicing in Europe. Twelve months ago he sent the police to the district of Ferryland to take back from the people the money allocated for expenditure in that district. He did not consider it was right that public monies should be allocated for roads and bridges, but still he permitted the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to take the sum of a half million dollars from the public Treasury to be handed over to the F.P.U. and their friends for the purchase of Labrador fish. Now is he prepared to put the police after Mr. Coaker in connection with this expenditure. If it was wrong for us to allocate those sums to the people of Ferryland it is a greater wrong for Mr. Coaker to take from the public Treasury money which belongs to the people of other sections of the Island as much as to the Northern districts, but Mr. Coaker is a great power in the Government, and none can dare defy any action which he undertakes. Mr. Coaker left here last Fall twelve months and went across to Europe. Then the Prime Minister and Minister of Justice went. They were hardly on board of the boat when the Hon. the Speaker hiked it off; Dr. Campbell packed his trunks and left for Canada, and on his return Mr. Coaker started off again on a pleasure jaunt. I would like to ask what benefit those men or their trips have been to Newfoundland. Mr. Coaker will soon return and will be taking his place in this House. We shall then be in a position to enquire from him what he has done to justify his absence from the country at the country's expense during the past few months.

Dr. Campbell went to Canada with fifty thousand dollars of the public money and brought back some scrub cattle, and two or three horses. The cows he imported are giving less milk daily than those already in the country, particularly at Mount Cashel. Evidently the cattle he imported are inferior to those already here, and there is no point in introducing low-bred stock into this country. The fifty thousand dollars which was voted here last year for this purpose is now spent, and we will wait until we have the facts before us in full before we criticise the actions of the Minister in this regard.

The Member for Bay Roberts smiles, probably because his present income for sessional allowance has been raised to one thousand dollars a session. This amount was probably the price given him for betraying the interests of his constituents, but there was a man in this House two years ago, representing that District, who did not sell them so readily. I refer now to Mr. Piccott who never turned his back upon the people of Bay Roberts. I understand that they got no part of the half million dollars used to purchase fish, but were entitled to it as much as the others who did get a part of it.

In the District of Ferryland I find that education is not receiving the attention which such an important matter calls for. I find that the school inspector has not visited the district for several years, and now that he is Deputy Minister of Education he will probably be able to do more than he has done in the past. Were it not for the Convent schools and the interest taken by the various clergymen, education would be at a very low ebb, and I contend that the amount of money voted for education, is not being spent in the best interests of education in the outports. If, instead of the present school inspectors, they were to appoint lady inspectors for this work, we would get much better satisfaction at a less cost. We were told that the inspectors are those who do not inspect. They have not for years gone beyond the smoke of their own chimneys for fear they would miss an invitation to Government House.

Last evening in this House Mr. Vinnicombe referred to the business in which he was engaged for some time, and accused the Minister of Public Works of being in the liquor business. I am now going to tell you a story relative to a little affair in connection with the Public Works Department after the present Government came into office. Mr. Jennings had been appointed Minister of Public Works. Some few days after his appointment a man called at his office, and asked if Mr. Woodford was in. Mr. Jennings replied, "No, and I do not think he will be for some time." The man then asked if he could get a script. Mr. Jennings informed him that he did not deal in scripts. He replied: "If Mr. Woodford was here he would not refuse me a script under the circumstances, as I require it for medicinal purposes." Mr. Jennings absolutely refused to have anything to do with a script, as it was totally against his principles at that time; but a change seems to have come over him during the past year, as we find that he is ready to sit with the Government and endorse the conduct of a member of the Government who not alone deals largely in scripts, but is able to distribute with a free hand throughout the District of Harbor Main unlimited scripts for intoxicating liquors. The man whom I referred to as seeking a script from Jennings came from the head of Conception Bay as his wife was dying and he wanted some stimulant to help her. Being unsuccessful, he went home without it, and she died without any stimulant. This is the story as I got it from her son. It was told me on Nomination Day in the District of Hr. Main. I know Mr. Jennings and Mr. Winsor are total abstainers, but why should they allow liquor to be handed out to a few and not to the hard-working fishermen.

There is another matter, Mr. Speaker, to which I shall call the attention of the Minister of Justice and it is this: The other day eight hundred this: The other day 800 quarters of beef were imported into this country costing twelve and a half cents per pound, and today I was informed that beef is being sold in this town at fifty cents per pound. Is it right that butchers should be profiteering to this extent when the people who need food are starving because of this extortion? In the Canadian Provinces the best beefsteak today is selling at twenty-five cents a pound; but here, because of a meat combine and of the incompetence of the Food Control Board, meat is selling at the enormous price of fifty cents per pound. I think that the Minister of Justice should take the trouble to look into this matter.

Mr. Jennings seems surprised that I should refer to a Road Commission some time ago. Might I ask the hon. gentleman where the ten thousand dollars in this connection was spent?

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS:
—Some of it was spent in Hr. Main, two members of the Road Commission had all to do with it. I will get the necessary information.

MR. MOORE:—The money has been spent in Hr. Main, but none in the District of Ferryland. I understand that most of this money has been spent in and around Kelligrews, the home of the Hon. Member for Fogo. We never deprived Hr. Main of any money for the use of Ferryland. We are leaving that position to be taken by the Government. The Member for Fogo thought he had the election of Hr. Main in his pocket. He figured out that he could purchase the district by expending public moneys in one settlement of that district, but during the campaign another newspaperman put it all over him. He told a story about the Minister of Justice staging a meeting at Foxtrap when he came back, about the man who rushed out in a shower. Having no place to go, he ran up a tree, and when he got there he found that he could not get out. He felt that his end had come, and he prepared for the worst. He thought over the sins of his past life which came before his mind, and the greatest crime he had committed was that he voted for Cashin. He thought that for this sin there could be no forgiveness, and the thought of his future condition became so desperate that he shrivelled up and fell out of the tree. I remember a time when the Minister of Justice had a very different opinion from that which he now expresses of the Leader of the Opposition, and I feel that if the Minister were to express to this House his real opinion of Sir Mchael Cashin in this House, it would be very different from that which he has expressed since the opening of the House.

With regard to Mr. Hibbs, I know he has the right to publish any book he likes provided the Government has not to pay the cost of it, but this one is carefully gotten up and one part of it reads as follows:

(Reads.)

The Hon. Member went to Hr. Main and promised sixty thousand dollars from the Motor Association for the improvement of roads if the people of Hr. Main would vote for the Government candidates. He promised that this sum of money would be spent in the district for the improvement of roads and bridges. If that be his intention, I will not personally contribute any more to the Motor Association.

MR. HIBBS:—I will go to your office off the stage, of one thing I will explain how you are wrong.

MR. MOORE:—You probably will try to explain it, but what about you when you come to Ferryland to fix up the roads there. Every second leaf of this report is a boost for the Government. Instead of being a road booster, it appears to be a Government booster. Every person has his own method of advertising himself. Lipton crossed the Atlantic and entered into a race to advertise his business. We know of a man Gray in London who had his name on jam crocks; but Mr. Hibbs' name appears on every second leaf. Listen to this:

(Reads)

He did not get paid this year yet, but he probably expects he will be paid in the near future. You have done nothing to improve the roads in Ferryland District, and it appears that you have not any intention of making improvements there. You follow the precept of Mr. Jennings, who, although inclined to waste money in Hr. Main, is very much offended when he finds that money from other districts has been allocated to Ferryland. I would not follow this line of action because I consider it small and mean to do so. You refer to the part which I take upon the stage, but whether I take part on or off the stage, of one thing I will assure the Hon. member, I would not find any class of work, which he would be qualified to perform. I will return to this matter in the very near future when I expect we shall have more time to take the matter up in detail as the House will not likely close before August, as it will take until then to straighten matters out.

What are we going to do about the fishermen of the South and West Coasts, who have so many quintals of fish which they are unable to dispose of, and how are we going to supply the fishermen of that section of the country for the fisheries. Are they to be supplied or is their fish to be paid for out of the public Treasury? If this radical idea is followed it will lead to Anarchy and we shall have the red flag down Water Street and over the Parliament Building. The two gentlemen who have the honor to represent the district of Hr. Main, and who have recently been returned to that important constituency will be heard from during this debate, and I am sure I need not mention that both these men are qualified by knowledge and experience of the country's condition to give a good account of themselves.

Capt. Lewis is exceptionally qualified to deal with the fishery perhaps in all its phases; and Dr. Jones, I am sure, will be able to tell this House a very interesting story of how the Government supporters in the recent election tried to defeat him, but were unsuccessful.

MONDAY, APRIL 18th, 1921,

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Fox gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

1. MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Education if any contract has been entered into between the Government and the Supervisors, who are now training abroad; and if so to furnish a copy of the said contract or agreement.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION tabled a reply.

4. SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Education if his absence from the Colony for a period, since the last session of the Legislature was on private or public business, and in the latter case what was the nature of the said business and what amount, if any, did he receive for the performance of the same, and to lay on the table of the House a copy of any report made by him in relation to such business and if no report has been made is it his intention to make one and if not why not?

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION: Mr. Speaker, in reply to the Hon. Leader of the Opposition I beg to say that my absence from the Colony was entirely on private business. No amount was paid to me on account of my expenses.

5. SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Prime Minister:—

(a) If it is intended to reorganize the Public Health Department and to appoint the present Public Health Officer, Dr. R. A. Brehm, to another position; and if so what is the nature of the proposed appointment, what will be the salary attached to it;

(b) If it is intended to appoint Dr. H. M. Mosdell as Public Health Officer or to some other position in connection with the Public Health Department, if so what duties are to be assigned to him, and what salary is he to receive.

HON THE PRIME MINISTER:—The matter of the reorganization of the Department of Public Health and the appointment of Dr. Brehm to another position has not been considered by the Executive Government.

The matter of the appointment of Dr. H. M. Mosdell to the position of Public Health Officer or to any other position in connection with the Public Health Department has not been considered by the Executive Government.

7. SIR M. P. CASHIN:—To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister if his attention has been called to a statement in The Evening Advocate of Wednesday last, April 14th, contained in a contribution by Hon. W. F. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, entitled: "Notes of a Trip to Europe" in which Mr. Coaker reveals the fact that Mr. George Hawes is planning to establish cold storage warehouses and proposing "to introduce into Greece the same system of consignment which prevails in Spain and which has turned out such a curse for Newfoundland shippers"; if this is the same Mr. Hawes on whose advice largely the Government adopted the policy of regulations after taking office in November, 1919; if this is the same Mr. Hawes who visited Port Union at that time in connection with Messrs. Job and Barr and outlined certain schemes of dealing with our cod fish exports; if this is the same Mr. Hawes with whom our codfish exporters were required to deal entirely to the exclusion of the other mercantile firms in various European countries with whom these exporters had been doing business for years previously; if this is the same Mr. Hawes who has acted more or less as a Government representative in regard to transactions in our codfish in Southern Europe for the past eighteen months, and if so how does it happen that the Government trusted the working of this new fishery policy and the fortunes of the people of his country to a man who is now described by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as being practically a menace to the future fish trade of Newfoundland.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, my attention was not called to the statement referred to in the question of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition. I know of only one person by the name of Mr. George Hawes. Mr. Hawes did not have a conference with the Government. I do not know whether he was at Port Union.

HON. PRIME MINISTER, in reply to question of Mr. MacDonnell, No. 8, on Order Paper of April 15th, 1921: Mr. Maurice Hayes of Petries, Bay of Islands, is not in the service of the Customs Department. He was engaged as a Supernumerary Tidewaiter for one month only.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to take up the time of the House for any length of time. I intend to briefly explain. With regard to the Regulations, it appears to me that everything that has gone wrong in Newfoundland has been blamed on the Regulations. All the troubles we have been enduring and all the difficulties we have had to contend with, the Opposition has tried to trace to the Regulations. I might say that the troubles the Colony has now to contend with are not the result of one year's work but the result of many years. What had the regulations to do with the fifty thousand quintals of fish that were shipped in 1918 on which the trade here lost $1,250,000. There were hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of fish shipped in 1918 that never returned a cent's value to the people of Newfoundland. What had the Regulations to do with the fall of the Italian dollar to twenty-five cents? What had the regulations to do with the bringing down of the Portuguese dollar to eight cents? What had they to do with the exchange in Greece where the value of their money was cut in two? Each of these countries are up against serious reverse exchange. You cannot blame the regulations for these conditions, yet they have enormously affected conditions here. The world is in a state of chaos; if you had travelled in Europe as I have you would find conditions as bad, as horrible, as depressing as one could imagine ever existed. The worst conditions in one hundred years are now prevailing in all our fish markets. Millions of men are out of work and employment and countries who in the past few years derived great benefits from war demands are now depressed and insolvent. The great commercial banks in those countries are holding tight and expect at any moment a crisis. Those conditions affect us and the sale of our fish. In Italy there have been four Governments since Peace was signed. In France the people have changed their Government four times, but all to no effect, depression and insolvency grow more alarming month by month. Billions of dollars have gone up in smoke because of the War and the people have got no results from that enormous expenditure. The money was completely wasted. It has all disappeared and all over the world great depression prevails.

In the United States of America over a million men are looking for work. Thousands are idle at New York and in Boston the same conditions prevail. The merchants handling fish in Nova Scotia have experienced the same deplorable conditions as we have experienced in Newfoundland. Fish there has been sold with tremendous losses and firms are on the verge of insolvency; and as my friend, Sir John Crosbie, said, they have sent five cargoes down to Brazil on consignment. This is the best proof of their position for unless compelled they would not ship five cargoes any where on consignment. They have got the fish, they have to get clear of it, and have to take what they can get for it. Those are the conditions of affairs prevailing in Nova Scotia where no regulations exist. What brought cod oil from three hundred dollars per tun to eighty dollars per tun, for cod oil was not protected by regulations? All because there was no use for it but perhaps when the spring opens there may be a want for it. All the tanneries were closed last fall and consequently there was no demand for cod oil, hence low prices. Scotch herring dropped from twenty-five per barrel to ten dollars per barrel. Were the regulations to blame for those losses and the injurious results entailed? Were the regulations to blame for the Norwegian Government dumping fish caught in 1917, 1918 and 1919 upon all our markets last year giving it out to dealers on consignment to sell at any price, often as low as the cost of the freight? Norway lost hundreds of thousands of dollars by buying the fish from their fishermen because of war conditions and by dumping it on our markets at one-third of the price we required this had much to do with conditions we are now facing in this country. To-day we are suffering some because of the regulations I will admit but the way in which they were carried out is the real cause. In the Act we were not given the necessary power to have them properly carried out. The strong opposition and the clamouring Opposition Press helped to impede their operation. If instead of opposing all had acquiesced, I venture to say the results would have been entirely different and very satisfactory and no shippers would have lost money by them. While they were in force the F.P.U. shipped thirty-five thousand quintals to market and we made a little profit on every quintal but since January we have shipped about the same amount and we have lost on every quintal. The regulations have been imperfectly carried out by some and ignored by others and that is the chief cause of any evil effects that have resulted. When the regulations were in force many profited somewhat but since they were lifted all have lost heavily. Nothing could be gained by lifting them in January which is practically what was done by the exporters; as soon as regulations were lifted down came the market—smash everywhere—no one would buy as all expected a big slump and consequently bought from hand to mouth until rock bottom prices were reached which was low enough to almost ruin those who had sent fish to market.

You know the people here would not pay fifteen dollars per barrel for flour if they thought the price will soon come down to ten. Therefore no big stock of fish was handled in any markets from January to March. The reason is obvious. I repeat that if there had been an united endeavour to put the regulations into effect properly there would have been no losses to shippers. I know it would be folly to continue them. But I think that if we had not had the regulations the conditions we are facing now would have been staring us in the face a year ago. I know they kept the price of fish to ten dollars and Labrador to eight dollars and gave the fishermen four million dollars more for their catch last year than would have been received had no artificial prop been established by the regulations. The Revenue has benefited $1,500,000 by the regulations. If the exporters are losing, the fishermen and revenue have gained twice as much as the loss that shippers will experience. If they had not been enforced the earning power of the fishermen would have been lessened and the revenue would have lost considerably and we would have had a greater deficit to face.

What did I say in my speech one year ago at the Conference held in the Fishermen's Institute. Here it is:—

“You will remember that when the Government came into power in November last they passed Rules and Regulations dealing with the export of codfish. Those who are interested in the export of codfish have various opinions regarding those rules and regulations. Many claim that they are most beneficial; others contend that they are injurious. Since those regulations became effective in November last, two bye-elections have taken place in Newfoundland, and on each occasion the fishery rules have been made the sole issue of the election. Even here in St. John's where we would not expect the body of the people to be very much interested in the exportation of codfish, so far as rules and regulations are concerned, the bye-election fought in January was contested solely on this one issue, and the result was that the Govt. won. In Bay-de-Verde the election issue was simply and solely the Fishery Regulations as inaugurated by the Government. The result of that election was a sweeping majority in favour of the Government—a majority such the District never before piled up in favour of any party. The Government therefore take it that on those two occasions those opposed to the Fishery Regulations placed them on trial and on each occasion the Government's position was sustained. We therefore consider them as part of our policy, and we are agreed that there must be no looking back. The position is that we have placed our hand to the plough and we will not waver until this struggle as to whether these regulations which we have introduced are good or bad shall have had time to be fully tested. The Government consider that this year at least we should enforce the regulations according to the policy inaugurated last November, in so far as possible, and this season will prove whether they are valuable or valueless. If, after giving them a fair trial, it can be shown that they are injurious or not beneficial, then we shall only be able to say that we have tried and have failed, and therefore we will forego any further attempt to control the fixing of prices of fish for the foreign markets. That is the position of the Government."

That was the position I placed before them. I contend the people endorsed the policy in both bye-elections. The trade adopted the policy almost unanimously. Had the exporters refused to believe in control last Oct. it would have been impossible to enforce control. What has been done has been the result of the advice of the exporters and the Government is not to blame. It was utterly impossible to enforce the regulations and fix the price of fish unless we have an undivided trade and Government and Opposition behind such regulations. We cannot succeed unless we have unity and co-operation amongst all. The Act as it is is utterly valueless. There is no power to punish and the only power we were given was to cancel a man's license. That is no punishment. I may have my license cancelled to-morrow and then have my assistant manager get a license the next day and have him ship my fish. The Act is absolutely useless for the purpose it was intended for and it is the intention of the Government to introduce at once a bill to repeal the Act.

Let me explain a little further. Last September the fish exporters formed themselves into an association and all but three joined the association. The resolutions as passed by them were not always what I wanted or what the Government wished. At their meetings whenever they required me I attended. No regulation was amended or established last fall that was not first approved by the Exporters Association. The Board were all expert exporters and every regulation recommended by the Board to the Governor in Council was the result of an unanimous opinion on every occasion. I repeat, every rule passed by the Advisory Board was at the request of the Exporters Association. I repeat the whole Board was behind every regulation enacted. The Government as a Government had no more to do with the regulations than they had to do with the making of the moon. The fish exporters ought to have known what they wanted and if they cannot be relied on I am at a loss to know who were to advise us. They have to take the responsibility. If the trade had said in October what they did in January, the Government would not have dared to keep them in force.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I may say I was on the Exporters' Association and because we passed a minute as to the regulations I was accused of politics and had to retire.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:

—The regulations are of no use as they are and cannot be carried out without a united trade. We who are to live here must see that the best price is got for fish. We cannot stand with our hands behind our backs and do nothing. This is a most serious question. I believe that we would be doing a great thing if we had only one body here to do the exporting. This would mean the keeping up of prices and something like two million dollars per year would be turned in to the fishermen. If we must go on in the beaten cow-track as we have been doing for 200 years, getting good money from the banks to buy fish and then shipping to people on the other side to do as they please with and to pay us what they wish, nothing but disaster can result and no country can ever properly progress. Surely this is not to be allowed to happen. I had personal reasons for the regulations because of the treatment I had received from men on the other side. Let me tell you that even this year I and others shipped fish to Spain, and while one shipper received 90/— others received 110/— for the same grade. That is the result of consignment. It happens often that when a man goes into one of these stores to buy fish the dealer offers to give him 10 casks at 90/— if he will take ten of the other at 110/—. My fish at 90/— sells the same grade fish for another more highly favoured at 110/—. Who amongst you would not attempt to provide a remedy for such conditions. Will the day ever come when we will have only one agency to do the exporting, or will we nationalize the business, when the Government will do the buying and selling? The fishermen must live and for them the highest prices must be obtained. They comprise 70 or 80% of our people, they must not remain with a chain around their necks or be left to the mercies of men on the other side in the fish markets. I am interested in the fishermen; I have given the best 10 or 12 years of my life to their interests and with others have tried in this to do the best to their advantage.

We tried to meet the reaction which we knew was inevitable after the war and the people and country have not sustained the losses they would otherwise have met had no effort been made to help out the fishermen. I do not doubt but two millions may be lost on the marketing of the voyage for 1920, but the country has benefited twice that sum paid to fishermen last year owing to regulations. It has not been all loss. Most of the exports up to the end of last year were sold at some profit. The big cut came by lifting the regulations and removing the artificial prop. I would like to appeal to Sir John Crosbie, as we have worked together and know each other's minds, and I want to say that something must be done to nationalize the industry or establish one agency that could gather the fish from all quarters, ship it to market and all share the profits. At the end of the season they could make up their books and pay the shippers in the association their dividends. How can I or any other be expected to get money from the Banks to buy and ship fish to Italy, Portugal, Spain and Greece on consignment? Once even when the times were good I had to pay back 25|— a qtl. as the loss on one cargo that I had an advance on. The export of fish on consignment if persisted in will always be the means of bringing about periodical depression and hard times. If consignments can't be cut out the future is hopeless for the fishermen of this country. Surely as time passes some effort will be made to eradicate this great evil; if not there can be no hope in the future for those who earn their living as fishermen.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have been hearing some discussion on the salt landed at Port Union. Last June the Trade was consulted re future supplies for July and August. No supply was available from Spain or Portugal. No salt had been ordered for July or August supply. We at last got an offer of a cargo from Hamburg at 12|— below Liverpool price. This was accepted; the cargo was for Port Union and St. John's if so required. The Government ordered it and paid for it before it left the other side. The cargo arrived in July. The fishery was almost a blank North; no one wanted salt. There was no hope of selling it under the circumstances; the trade here did not want any. It was stored at Port Union for the Government—very little was sold—as the F. P. U. had purchased large stocks in June and as fish was scarce the stock had not been used. Some salt was sold and an amount of $4,400 paid. The salt will be taken over if desired at the new price for this season when the price of the new salt is established by the Government, which will be done when it arrives next month. There may be considerable loss on the old salt as the new will likely sell at about $2 a hogshead, but the reduced price will be a benefit to the fishermen.

As to the buying of Labrador fish last Fall; everyone in the business knew there was a crisis coming owing to supposed surplus catch. The Exporters invited me to meet them and brought up the matter of providing for purchase of their fish, knowing there was going to be a big surplus on hand. They were not prepared to buy and if they were the Banks would not advance funds. I suggested that they appoint a committee, consider carefully the matter and make recommendations to the Government. The committee was formed, met daily for a week and sent an informal draft to me outlining what had been discussed. I have that memorandum. An effort was made to form a syndicate to purchase the surplus fish, but nothing materialized. An effort was made to arrange to buy through banks, which was also unworkable. The Government felt that it would be a disaster to permit the price of Labrador to fall to $4; 250,000 qtls. had been shipped and the most of it was unsold. Had a $4 cut been made on that fish a million dollars would be lost by such a reduction, as all markets would know of the slump and every shipper would have to sell his highly priced fish at the rate offered for the cheap. Every effort therefore was made to protect the 250,000 qtls. shipped and bought at $8 and $9 per qtl. Every effort had to be made to protect the 100,000 qtls. still in fishermen's hands. 70 vessels arrived and were unable to sell. Two weeks passed and no one would purchase. Political intrigue began its work and men were influenced to hold meeting. The Governor was kept fully informed of the Government's intentions. When it was seen that Labrador fish was unsaleable the Government stepped in and bought 35,000 qtls. from fishermen who had no fish merchant. While this 35,000 qtls. were being purchased the supplying exporters took in about 60,000 quintals, and the congestion was removed and the situation saved. The men who were supplied by firms like Ayre, Steer, Knowling, Rendell, and independent fishermen who fitted out their own schooners were unable to sell, as it was unreasonable to expect that the exporters would purchase fish which they had not outfitted for. These men were in a desperate situation. We decided to buy. We decided to keep the fact secret in order to protect the Colony as far as possible. Had it been known every exporter would have refused to take their dealers' fish and the 100,000 qtls. would have been pushed on the Colony's hands. While Job was buying the 10,000 qtls. he took for the Government, he also took 5,000 qtls. on his own account from his dealers. While Sellars and Murray were buying the cargo for the Wakely they bought and stored 20,000 qtls. on their own account. While Mr. Sellars purchased the Coaker cargo at Port Union, the Trading Co. took 7,000 qtls. on its own account. The Trading Co. purchased 12,000 qtls. Labrador at Port Union outside of the Coaker cargo. The buying of 25,000 qtls. by Job and Sellars meant the buying of over 30,000 qtls. by Job, Sellars and the F. P. U., side by side with what the Government was doing. If I had any influence or could help, it was then it should be used and a way found out of the crisis. The way was found.

You, gentlemen, may think we were wrong. But I am head of the Union and am in the House with eleven of their representatives behind me. Who could they expect to help them at such a time but Coaker and the Government. They could not go to the merchants of Water St., who had their hands full to handle their dealers' fish. In this matter I consulted with His Excellency the Governor and took his advice in many ways. I do not think the men of the North will condemn me because I got clear of their fish for them when there was no one else to buy it from them at a time when disaster faced them and their suppliers. You will notice that Sir M. P. Cashin stated the other day that the right value of the fish was $3. What would have resulted had the fishermen been compelled to sell 100,000 qtls. Labrador at $3 per qtl.?

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Why did you take the money to buy the fish without calling the House together?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—We were up against a crisis. The men came to me in their trouble and we bought only Labrador fish because Shore was in demand and all offering could be sold at a good figure. The merchants reckoned on a catch of 500,000 quintals for Labrador, and the only one course was to do what we considered best. You may think what you like, but when you come to dissect and analyse this step, you will find the men who sent me here to represent them will back me up with more determination than ever before.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I am not disputing that.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I would like to say a word more of the serious situation of the country. We are up against such conditions as no men ever before had to face.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You brought them about.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I am not saying who is responsible. It is no good talking of what has been done; the question now is, what is to be done, and in my opinion the situation financially and politically is as serious as ever a Government had to face. This is no time for thrashing the matter out day after day in this House; the fishermen will soon be coming here for their supplies. Unemployment is increasing daily and something must be done to meet the situation. I understand that in the West and North, supplies are not being given out as the merchants are not in a position to do so, and if nothing is done we will be 25 times worse off by the Fall than we are now. For what I am responsible I am ready to take my medicine; and if there have been errors, they were errors of judgment only and made in an effort to do the best possible for the fishermen and country at a most critical period. I have not been lazy or indolent: I have toiled night and day, and if my work is not acceptable to the people of the country, let them say so. It is up to the House to say if we are to debate this matter day after day and waste valuable time. The Opposition with their many speakers and so much material available, can easily delay practical business till August if they like. What is wanted is action, not talk. Can't we unite and place country first and make an united effort to do the best possible.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Why insult us with such a Speech from the Throne?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:— I was not here when it was prepared. I say again it is time to place country first and party anywhere. The question of the country comes first and all other considerations must follow that. What I want done is that which is best for the country, and I will do all in my power to assist in bringing that about. If we persist in only debating while unemployment is increasing and fishermen are without supplies, we are hastening the day when Confederation will be staring us in the face. I repeat again, it is time to get down to business and do something and help out the country all in our power. Upon the House rests the responsibility, and if nothing is done, great will be the consequence.

HON. MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, I am sure that all were pleased to at last hear from the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in relation to the various matters that have recently been taking up the consideration of the people generally. I cannot say that I congratulate him on his defence of the record of himself and his department. When he arose to address the House, we expected to hear something that would justify the Government and particularly his own department for their conduct of affairs during the last 18 months. But his speech in its emptiness was equal to the Speech from the Throne given out on the opening day and devoid of anything that might give satisfaction to those who have gone through anxiety, loss and suffering since last we met. It is alright for him to say his conduct was prompted by good intentions, but that is not enough for a country and a people that has been beggared and put out of business almost completely. It is not today that he was warned that his policy was a suicidal one. When he introduced his fish regulations last year, I advised him to go slowly, and pointed out that this was the time of readjustment and not one for experiments.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the Hon. gentleman in his opening remarks said that conditions in Europe were responsible for the depression here and the conditions of our local market. He spoke of exchange in European countries and how their money was discounted, but, Sir, such an explanation must not be accepted as either a reasonable or sufficient excuse for the fact that our fish has been a drug on the markets and for the unprecedented conditions with which this country and her people have been faced for the past year. Exchange is, of course, a factor, but when we look back upon the inauguration of these regulations and when we come to regard the initial stages of their working and when we further come to regard the unholy alliance that was formed, we find another, and I say, Sir, the real reason of their failure and the consequent disaster to the trade of the country. When we remember that the one and only Mr. Hawes was made the channel through which all our foreign fish business had to be carried on, and that no business man was allowed to use his own knowledge or judgment in the handling of his affairs in these markets, then we find where the disaster that came upon us had its beginning. The Hon. Minister of Fisheries enforced regulations that made it necessary for every man doing business to go down to his department and give him in detail the information which was their own private business, the giving of which placed them entirely in the hands of the Minister and entirely at the mercy of one who was himself an exporter and consequently a rival in the business.

The principle was wrong from the very first and when a principle is wrong from the beginning, nothing can make it right, nor can anything that is based upon it be right. The thing that doomed the Fish Regulations from their inception was the discriminatory powers that were given to the Minister. Discrimination was rampant throughout, and the Minister of Fisheries could give privileges to those who found favor with him and refuse them to those who did not.

If exchange was against us in Europe, was it also against us in the United States? All are aware that it was not, and yet did not Americans place hundreds of thousands of dollars in the banks here for the purchase of fish and they would not be allowed to purchase or export until they went into the Supreme Court and secured a Mandamus to enable them to do so. We have heard of Mr. Hue having had an opportunity to dispose of ten thousand quintals of fish and perhaps more at a price which would have given the seller a fair profit, a price at any rate that was entirely satisfactory, and when Sir Michael Cashin asked in this House for an explanation of why he would not be allowed to sell, he was told that it was against the law.

Now, Sir, could anybody imagine anything more ridiculous? Like Sir Edward Morris said on one occasion when something in the Audit Act prevented him from doing good for the people, that the Audit Act should be torn up if it meant that the people starve. I say that the law in this case should be torn up also if the people are starving. Is that answer a sufficient explanation for the deplorable conditions that exist today on the West Coast? The Honourable Minister takes five hundred thousand dollars out of the Treasury to purchase fish which he says was in St. John's and for which the fishermen could only get four dollars per quintal, but all the fish purchased out of that five hundred thousand dollars was not in St. John's, because the President's schooner left Port Union with seventy-five hundred quintals of it. Mr. Coaker sold Mr. Sellars seventy-five hundred quintals of fish at nine dollars.

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—At eight dollars and one half.

MR. BENNETT:—Very well. But the Minister no doubt purchased that fish for six or seven dollars.

THE HONOURABLE THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES: I paid eight dollars for it.

MR. BENNETT:—Have you any proof of that to give us? But in any case I will take your word for it. The point is that the price paid by Mr. Sellars was eighty-fifty, while the fish was purchased by others for eight dollars. It has been pointed out that before this money was taken out of the Treasury to be used in purchasing fish, it would have been an easy matter to have called the House together to enact legislation for that purpose. When this was done for the fishermen of the North something should also have been done for the people of the West Coast and if Mr. Cheeseman and his associates knew that this money was being taken and made no protest against the discrimination that was being practised against the districts they represent, then they are not worthy of the name of men to come in here and continue to subscribe to that policy. Is not the man who fishes on the Grand Banks as good as the man who goes to Labrador, or is not the man who fishes in Petty Harbour or around St. John's as good as the man who fishes in the Northern Bays? I tell you, Mr. Speaker, it is a condition of affairs that the people are not going to stand for. The letter read by Sir Michael Cashin from Captain Hollett from Burin, voices the sentiments of the people of the whole West Coast, which has been brought from a condition of smiling prosperity to the verge of bankruptcy and destitution. The Honourable Minister has said that Newfoundland must have experienced these conditions in any case. But Newfoundland during the past twenty years was a country of happiness and prosperity. What better demonstration could we have that the men represented by Messrs. Foote and Cheseman and others in that section experienced an era of great prosperity during all these years, and the fact that from their fishing boats as ordinary fishermen they rose to be successful business men who were able instead of catching fish, to export it themselves, until Mr. Coaker's great reform, the fish regulations, brought them to the terrible condition in which they find themselves to-day. The very rocks are crying out in protest against them. The children on the streets are cursing the regulations. We should never have been brought face to face with what has crippled our trade and left prosperous business houses on the verge of disaster. I am prepared to say that the Honourable Minister of Marine and Fisheries has done great things for the fishermen of this country, and I remember that when the men associated with him took their seats in this House, I thought it a happy augury that the fishermen were at last to have direct representation in the Legislature. I say representation, Sir, but not control, and I think that it was deplorable the Hon. Minister should have attempted to dominate the whole government of the country in the manner in which he has since coming into power. It was most deplorable when he went down to the Treasury and took out the sum of $500,000 of the people's money for the purchase of fish from the fishermen of one particular section, wholly on his own responsibility. I don't think that even the Prime Minister was taken into his confidence and when he did this he established a precedent that was vicious and most unfortunate. If it was right to take this money to purchase fish North, why was it not right to use the same money to purchase it in other sections of the country? And if it was right to purchase fish at all in this way why was it not right to purchase other things in the same way? Why should that money be used to keep the fishermen from starving any more than others who were similarly situated. Surely that money could have been used to better advantage to help tide the country over the frightful situation in which we find ourselves today.

The resolutions before the Chair will, I believe, Mr. Speaker, receive the approbation of the whole House. No time should be lost in removing from our Statute Book an Act legalizing these Regulations which have been the cause of so much havoc to our trade and thereby giving the country a chance to recover itself before it is too late. In supporting the resolutions, I do so with a feeling of gladness that the Hon. Minister has already accepted them in so far as he has expressed his willingness to have the Regulations abolished for all time. As I have said before, Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to detain the House any longer than is necessary. The situation has already been reviewed very thoroughly, but since I last spoke so much light has been thrown upon conditions by questions asked in this House that a worse state than even we had believed possible is revealed. Supporters of the Government in this town are putting up the plea that similar conditions exist elsewhere and it is all due to the war, this is absolutely incorrect, our condition is entirely different. What happened here has happened since the war and not as a result of it. The Cashin Administration was in charge when the war ended and when we went out of power we left a surplus of 3½ million dollars which should have been sufficient, if properly expended, to tide the country over the period of reconstruction and readjustment that was to come. We saw that shrinkage of prices was inevitable, we knew that as a result, our ad valorem duties the revenue must consequently drop and we knew that our purchasing power must go down. Our soldiers were being paid off and the money which was formerly being paid them would no longer be in circulation. In short, we realized that the rainy day was at hand and we left 3½ millions of dollars in gold intact in the treasury in preparation for it. But what do we find today? Every cent of that money has been squandered, it has been thrown to the four winds with no returns for it whatever. That is the charge and you gentlemen are in the dock while public opinion is the jury by which you are being tried. We, the Opposition, are here in the people's interest and every act of yours will have to be laid bare so that you may be judged accordingly. We had an instance in Newfoundland some thirty years ago when the Bank Crash came of certain gentlemen who were appointed the trustees of the share holders and depositors and note holders in face of the whole people. The people gave their money into the care of these gentlemen, but they failed in their trust, and those whom they had betrayed woke up one morning to find themselves beggars. Their money was gone and the Bank itself was bankrupt. It was argued in extenuation of their act that they had taken the money and used it for commercial purposes, that they had put it into their own business and lost and that on that account they should be excused. But the moral law could not excuse the taking by anyone of what was not theirs; there could be no justification for despoiling the widows and the orphans and other innocent victims of their all. The law stepped in and these men were hailed before the bar of justice to answer for their deeds. The same thing applies in this case. The Government are the trustees of the people and the money they have squandered is as much the people's as if it had been placed by them in the bank. Instead of being faithful to the trust reposed in them they have knocked the bottom out of the whole thing. They are like directors of a company who are responsible to the shareholders, the people of the country; and the shareholders' meeting will soon take place, when it will be found that the result of the directorship has been nothing but outrageous failure. The gentlemen on the other side of the House will never dare to look the country in the face again because of their callousness in dealing with public affairs and the absolute indifference they have displayed in regard to the people's interests. It is useless for me to repeat the scandals that have marked their administration—the salt scandal, the sugar scandal, the railway scandal, the shipping scandal, the Lobelia scandal and all the others—the people already know about them and when the time comes they will have the remedy in their own hands.

I do not want to be looked upon in this country as a blue ruinist, and I join with the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries when he says that Newfoundland must be placed first. I never felt more like a Newfoundlanders than I do this session and I do not say that the country is irreparably lost because of what she has gone thru. She may have been run on the rocks and her bows stove in but I feel certain that we shall get her off and I hope that Sir Michael Cashin will be at the wreck when we do. I do not subscribe to the statement that in a few months we will be going to Canada asking to be admitted as a part of the great Dominion. I say that the country can be saved by the right administration but that administration is not in power today. It must be one that has the confidence of the people and if we are to retrieve the leeway that we have made in the past eight or nine months, economy must be practiced and trade must be given a chance to recover itself. There is plenty of money in this country if the right way can be found to bring it into circulation, but our people are not going to invest their money, they are not going to fit out for the fishery while conditions remain as they are to-day and while an antagonistic policy is being pursued towards our customers. We should make every effort to court custom rather than put obstacles in the way of business. It is absurd for people with an article to sell to go out and catch by the throat those in whom they hope to find purchasers. Rather should it be their policy to go out and use every power at their command to persuade those people that what we have to sell is the best and then get their trade. I say Sir, let those men of the West Coast who know how to manage their business do so in their own way.

Let those men on the West Coast like Mr. Samuel Harris and Mr. Cheseman, and all the rest of them, do business in their own way, and in the way they have been used to doing it and see if you don't have a marked change and a new era for Newfoundland generally instead of the dark cloud that has been cast upon the greater portion of this country by the fish regulations. I don't see, however, why we should have to take a too gloomy view of things, but let us take our places as men and stand by our country and bring her to the position that she formerly occupied. If unfortunately we have to go into Canada or elsewhere for assistance we shall go there with clean hands, and as free and independent people. But we won't have to go there. That will be the last ditch and the last resort that I know of, for the intelligent and independent people of Newfoundland, because we have something to-day worth fighting for; something like what Ireland to-day is fighting for and something that we, as independent and free people, are going to have and enjoy, and that is the administration of our own affairs. Once we go to Canada we lose our independence and can never more be called independent subjects of Newfoundland. I am prepared Mr. Speaker, as one who loves his native country, and I am sure all true Newfoundlanders are, to sacrifice almost anything to aid Newfoundland in her present crises, not alone for our own sake, but for the sake of our children as well, and I hope that they will enjoy the freedom that we have to-day all their lives, and, if possible, maintain the integrity and independence of Newfoundland with good, sound, clean government on behalf of a trustworthy people.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, whether I shall speak at any length or not will be easily disposed of if the

Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries will be good enough to answer a question, which I shall put to him, through you. Before putting it I want to assure him and assure the House that it is put after having given it very mature thought for the past hour; it is put with a full consciousness of the ways that sometimes people may think they can dodge issues; it is put to him with the full realisation that we on this side of the House have only one weapon left and the use of that weapon is—as has been so aptly described by the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries himself when he paid us the compliment of having a considerable amount of debating ability amongst us—going to be put into effect according to the answer I get to that question. If the answer is going to be in the affirmative, I shall resume my seat immediately, and I feel sure that the same attitude will be taken by the rest of the Opposition; but if in the negative, I propose to say a few words. We are not here in any other spirit than in the spirit that prompted the Minister to be here and prompted his deliberations and his statements. Those of us who are rearing families here, who want them brought up just as we were brought up here, and who want them to act their part when they come after us in the same spirit as we are trying to act ours, approached this session with the full consciousness of avoiding any ordinary petty or smart-aleck tricks; but because certain proposals came from the Opposition, it must not be taken for granted that a certain attitude must be taken by honorable members on the Government side. In other words I put the position plainly: we have moved in this House—and the proper place for such a motion to come from is from the Opposition—an amendment to the Address in Reply. That amendment exactly spells in words the utterances of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries today. Now previous to his utterances today we had moved an amendment that in the opinion of members of this House the policy of the Fishery Regulations ought to be abandoned and must be abandoned. The Minister has got up in his place and has said, as the "father of the thought" and the one who has been mainly charged with any defects that the Regulations possessed and the one who I always credited with being big enough to act as he did today when he said place the blame on him, if there be any blame. The Minister came in today and told us his finding. He was going to repeal the Regulations, lock, stock and barrel. Now are you, Mr. Minister, are you, or are you not, going to vote for the amendments, yes or no? Is the Minister big enough to tell me that it is his intention personally to vote for this amendment?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I told you that it is our intention to bring in a Bill repealing the Regulations.

MR. HIGGINS:—The trouble is that we have been depending too much on good intentions. I only want one word in answer to my question, yes or no. I want to tell you that my conduct as regards expediting legislation largely depends on your answer.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I am not the Leader of the House.

MR. HIGGINS:—I am asking you as regards your own personal vote. The Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries is the man who said that the Fish Regulations are coming off. Now I want to make myself understood. This matter is not, as the Prime Minister is so fond of thinking, staged. As far as I am concerned, I would ask any gentlemen here, who are outside the Bar of the House, to reserve their applause until the conclusion of this debate, and I would like Mr. Coaker to answer that question.

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—With regard to the position put up by my friend Mr. Higgins, I would like to say, that I have stated here on behalf of the Government that a Bill will be introduced to repeal the Fish Regulations by me. The notice of the Bill is there on my desk now to be placed before the House tonight. There is no necessity for an amendment because the Government has promised to bring in this Bill.

MR. HIGGINS:—I know all about the Bill, but I would like to ask the Minister to say whether he will vote for the amendment or not. Yes or no. I have faith enough in the Hon. Minister to think that whatever way he votes a large number will follow him. Mr. Coaker will bring in a Bill on tomorrow. Well, "live horse and get grass. There is no man on the other side of the House can take objection to the amendment, and I think that any man who has read the English language, even the gentlemen who have been referred to as being capable of making figures speak ungrammatically, will not misunderstand this amendment, which is that the Speech from the Throne be added to by the following words.

Paragraph 1 is an absolute statement of facts, literally and critically correct. Paragraph 2 is: (Reads.)

That is a claim which has been made by the Government, and read by the Chief of the Government this afternoon in his Speech to the fish exporters. Paragraph 3: (Reads)—literally and critically correct.

Now, what is asked in the amendment? It is significant that the words of the local Excellency were at one with the words of His Excellency, who arrived afterwards from Europe. The Governor told us that we should consider whether the policy was in the best interests of the Colony, her commerce and people.

"Be it resolved, therefore, that it is the opinion of the House that this policy is not beneficial to the country." It cannot be beneficial, because if it was the Hon. Minister is too good a Newfoundlander to repeal the Fish Regulations Act. (2) "It is not for the public good." (3) "The uncertainty is bad for trade." This is literally and critically correct. Now what man on the other side of the House will deny that position. Now then there is the amendment proposed to the Address in Reply, and you would think that the Address in Reply was the Government's reply; it is not, it is the reply of this House. Don't think that the Government form the legislature. The Governor opened this House, and there are no parties here as far as the Address in Reply is concerned, and we want to tell you what we think of the Fish Regulations. Now then, I again ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries for an answer to my question, yes or no. Let us all vote together, every man, and let us show the country and the people that we can unite on this question without a dividing line between the Government and the Opposition. If the answer is yes, the session will start in the proper way; if the answer is no, then it will be a question of Government versus Opposition. I ask this question to the Minister as the only man who has risen to give us any information, as the man who is bringing in a Bill to repeal the Regulations. I would ask the Minister yes or no. Then do I take it that you will not vote for the amendment? Then all I can say is that the attitude taken by the Hon. Minister is inconsistent with the attitude he took here a few moments ago. He comes in here and cries "Kamerad." He says "I admit I have made a mistake, but let me have another chance. Forgive all the things that have been commented on here." He asks that in one breath, and in the next he refuses to vote for the amendment because it is an Opposition measure. Does he think that we are such fools on this side of the House, with not a stroke of business done, and the conditions today, not to understand that the Government are raising a party line. He said to the Opposition "we want your help." "Come with us for the sake of our common country," and the man who asked that has not enough pluck, enough courage, to get up and say: "As I have run things as I like in the past, so I will vote now as I like. Do you think that is the way in which this session should be started? As far as I am concerned in this House I have never troubled about how or why a man should talk, or when he should talk; I have always tried to deal with principles, with questions in a big way; but I want to tell the Minister that for the first time he has missed the point. The Opposition could take a certain attitude to facilitate public business without bringing in amendments. Now we will have to go through the whole process. Day by day we will decide the attitude of the Government. Just as surely as the Minister has been forced to bring in a Bill to repeal the Regulations, just so surely will the same power of the Opposition to impress the position upon the Government be exercised until we have abolished the Food Control Board, the War Measures Act, and all other things of a similar nature. This is the kind of thing which arouses public feeling. Why don't the Government members stand up and say, I will vote for the amendment? Give notice of a Bill and the Bill itself are two different things. Why not end the matter right here and now. Why not answer Mr. Holland's letter in the proper way.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Notice of this Bill is an answer to him.

MR. HIGGINS:—A notice of a Bill that may never be introduced. When the Hon. Minister comes here and asks the co-operation of the House he should not start out with this kind of little cheap stunts. Not big enough to say I will vote for the amendment, he says, I will not vote for it because it comes from the Opposition, but I will do the same thing tomorrow which the amendment asks. Isn't that ridiculous? Just so sure as the Government are reading the signs wrongly when through their papers they slander the people because they give evidence of their sentiments, just so surely are they sewing the seeds for their own eternal damnation. Just so surely as people, formerly independent, have to come here day after day because they have no work, they would go cracked if they had nowhere to go—just so surely as it is a vile slander to refer to these people as hooligans, does this kind of conduct bring its own damnation. We knew you would give notice of a Bill. You had to. We knew you would give notice of this Bill when Sir John Crosbie sat down, because it was only a question of time when you would have to. We tell you now, that just as you had to give notice of this Bill, so will you have to give notice of all the other bills, and the quicker you do it, the sooner will the House close. We have been dragging information out by questions. We have found out that twenty-five thousand has been spent here and two hundred and fifty thousand there. Why not let us see just where we are. Don't think that you will keep the Sugar Control, you never will. Don't think you will keep the War Measures Act in force, you never will, and I say here with a full sense of the importance of making my attitude clear to the members on the other side of the House, that the quicker that you put in your notices of bills on the Order Paper, and the quicker that Government by Executive Council is through with, the quicker this House will close. The Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries gives notice of a Bill to repeal the Fish Regulations. All I have to say is, small thanks to you for it. You had to do it, you could not keep on the Fish Regulations because you would lose your men from the West. You say that your people in the North thanked you and hailed you, and well they might, when you gave them a half million dollars of our money for their fish; but the men from the West don't thank you. Ask Mr. Hollett (whose letter was read by the Leader of the Opposition) what he thinks of the Fish Regulations. Mr. Coaker cries "Kamerad," because he had to because his own crowd made him, and now that they have broken you and tamed you a bit, and put a bit in your mouth, I hope that they will use the bit, and haul you up to your knees and see that you don't go down again till these other things are remedied.

It is a proud day for us to see that at least one thing has been accomplished by the Opposition so far. This wild horse has been broken, his Regulations have been a failure, and he has been now taken charge of by the men from the West, but they have to go one step further and then they will be the proper class of men to represent that part of the country. They are not directly responsible to any organization such as some members on the other side of the House, they are men who are themselves typical of the class of men they represent the people of the West Coast. It is up to these four men to stand up and say yes, I will vote for this Amendment. These men on the other side think that we are very anxious to disrupt the Government, but we don't, that would have been easy if we wanted to. The best service we can do is as an Opposition to find out the state of affairs as they are, and try to get the Government to pay the conscience money they owe the country. We want to clean out the stable first and when she is properly cleaned we have a very good horse to put in there. I am very sorry indeed that Mr. Coaker has ended a day which began so well in such a manner. I thought he was taking the chance to save his unfortunate reputation. He brought in this Bill because he was afraid not to, he was afraid he might be ordered out. How times have changed? I never thought to see the day when Mr. Coaker would be afraid to join his vote with the Opposition, that is something which I did not anticipate, and I regret that he said No. I regret that we are looked upon by the Government as an Obstruction Opposition. You will repeal the Regulations because you have to. The ship is dead, the crew is dead, and there remains now but the burial, and that will be in short.

MR. LEWIS:—Mr. Speaker: I rise to make a few observations on the amendment before the House. I must say that I feel rather disappointed at the weak defence put up by the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the Regulations which he claims, of course, he was father of. The Minister began his remarks by claiming that exchange was responsible for the great calamity that has befallen Newfoundland and he claimed that the Fish Regulations would have been alright if they had been carried out in the proper spirit by the people of the country generally and the fish exporters in particular. The fact is that the Minister knew in 1920, when he was enforcing those Regulations and forcing the merchants in Newfoundland all round to pay a certain figure for fish, that it was only in keeping with what he had promised the people north in his election campaign in 1919. He promised that, if elected, the fishermen of the north would receive $12 per quintal for their fish. On that promise the Minister came back to power, put in force those drastic Regulations and used force in carrying them out. He did not have any mandate from the people of this country to enforce the Regulations, but it was because he was flushed with victory over his election and to justify the promise he had made the northern people. At that time people were not much better off than they were in 1920.

To get back to the main point of the argument regarding the Regulations. The Minister forced the purchasers of fish in this country to pay $11, $10 and $8 a quintal for fish, whereas he knew at the time that the purchasers of our fish abroad and the people who were consuming our fish were very poor and he knew that they could not afford to pay eighty-two shillings and six-pence a quintal for Labrador fish. This is one point that the Minister was entirely in error over, and that is one of the notorious wrongs that he committed. Is this not a ridiculous position? The Minister fixed the price, as he had the power, to enable some of his own friends and exporters to put fish into the foreign markets at a profit of from two to three dollars on every quintal; whereas in the past, before the Minister undertook to buy fish and before he knew what a codfish was, merchants in this country exported fish and were fully satisfied with 50 cents profit per quintal. Why the oldest established firms in Newfoundland made money and kept the business of this country running at a margin of 50 cents profit on a quintal of fish. The price of fish could have been much lower in the foreign markets and the fishermen would have received the same prices as they got last fall, if the Minister and some of the exporters had not demanded, through those infamous Regulations, such outrageous profits. It is true, that last year the fishermen had to pay high amounts for their outfits and supplies, and it was necessary for them to get remunerative prices that would be commensurate with their outlays, but $8 a quintal would have sufficed; but to the detriment of Newfoundland and to the fishermen of Newfoundland the highest prices were maintained in the foreign markets, thereby giving the exporters, including the Minister's self, an opportunity of raking in all the profits. Why was not the Minister and his friends satisfied with one dollar profit per qtl. instead of trying to make a fortune in one year? The answer is obvious, because after all it can be easily seen why the Regulations were conceived in the first place, and their enforcement is the cause of our downfall and collapse.

Then the Minister went on to say that he was compelled, in the interest of the north to come up here and purchase thirty-five thousand quintals of fish with Government money—money that really belonged to the people all over this country. I say, without any fear of contradiction, that if it were not for the regulations, that fish would have arrived in St. John's and the greater portion of it would have been consumed in Italy. It was because of the Regulations that Italy was closed to us, notwithstanding all that has been said of the Consorzio. I can prove beyond all doubt that if a reasonable arrangement had been made with the Consorzio that the fish could have been sold in Italy. I hope that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will see that returns will come back for the five hundred thousand dollars that he gave to some of the merchants, who would not have been able to buy the fish that they did, but for the taking of this large amount of money from the Public Treasury of the Colony. Then again look at our American markets closed to us. In the year 1919, when the Minister resurrected the War Measures Act, there were four hundred and fifty thousand dollars in American money placed in our Banks here preparatory to buying our codfish and shipping it to market. It is a matter of indifference where our fish goes, so long as it goes out of Newfoundland and we get paid for it. That fish was not on consignment either, I may tell the Minister. It did not suit the Minister and his friends and admirers of the Regulations, because that fish was to be transhipped from the States to some port in Europe, and he forthwith put his foot on it. The matter was thrashed out in the Supreme Court and a writ of mandamus was granted to the American buyers, who applied for it. What was the result? The Hon. Mr. Coaker, through the medium of the War Measures Act and the Regulations, had the law made so that the American buyers would be shut out, and in consequence the American markets were closed to us and to our Labrador fish ever since. Still I hear his pitiable tale in the House this evening. I deplore hearing such a story from the Hon. Minister, after eighteen months in office—and deplorable and disgusting it is to every man, woman and child in the country—that we are on the rocks and on the verge of insolvency. What brought that insolvency about, if it was not the mismanagement of the Government? I might say that mismanagement is not a strong enough word in denunciation of their conduct of public affairs. The people of this country have been badly deceived by the present Government. Not a greater piece of deception was ever practised on the people of Newfoundland than has been practised by those who are in charge of the Ship of State at the present time. They have squandered money right and left. When all business men and financiers all over the world were economising, the Hon. Mr. Coaker and his colleagues came forward and took the money from the revenue—the people's money—with which to buy fish and salt. When was that ever practised before? The war was over. I say Sir that the revenue of this country should not and cannot be used in such a way, and it goes to show that our very constitution is being demoralized. I question if there were any more than a quorum in the Executive at the time the Minister of Marine and Fisheries undertook to take that five hundred thousand dollars out of the Treasury. And you know, Sir, that the men of Bay de Verde, Hr. Grace and the men of the West Coast had just as much right to a part of that money as the fishermen of the North. I say, Sir, it is wrong in principle, and if it is not nipped in the bud we will have no country in a short time; for the same principle might be applied to the selling of the country, we might go to sleep some night and wake up some fine morning and find ourselves part and parcel of Canada, because seemingly we have nothing to prevent us from being sold, lock, stock and barrel just as Nova Scotia was sold a few years ago to Canada. If any individual or any few individuals can go to the Treasury at will we are not safe. I repeat that this practice is just as wrong in principle as the transferring of the railroad was. In 1893, as is well known, we were faced with the transferring of the railroad. There was a sentiment prevailing all over Newfoundland that spoke in no uncertain manner when that even happened, and I was surprised then why the people did not rise in their might and hurl from power the men who transferred this railroad to Reid, without leave or license, just as much as I am amazed now that the people do not rise in their might and hurl from power those who comprise the present Government. I say, Mr. Speaker, it is a very serious matter and the excuse given to this House this evening by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the plundering of the revenue of this Colony within the past eighteen months is not good enough; nor is his explanation good enough regarding the Fish Regulations, which have been the means, to a large degree, of bringing this country down to a state of depression that has not existed in Newfoundland during the past forty years.

We are told, and on good authority, that pauper relief is being given out all over this country to-day. There is an excuse given in the way of cutting pit props and pulp wood. That is merely given out to enable the people to keep from starvation. I remember in 1898 there was a lot of timber cut to help relieve the people in their distress all over the country, and which later rotted and the Government had to stand to lose $150,000 on account of pauper relief. The same thing might happen to-day with the money that is being distributed all over the country to help the poor and the needy. It is necessary and alright to help the people, but the Government should discharge their duties properly and see that this timber that is being cut now will be sold, and see that the money goes back to the Treasury, and not let the country suffer, as before.

What brought about so much distress all over the Island, is the Fish Regulations, because last summer when the fishermen lost confidence in the Government, they hauled up their boats and said that they were not going to catch any more fish to have it sacrificed. And if it was not for the Regulations we would not have nearly five hundred thousand quintals of fish in the country today unsold, because of the keeping of too high a price in a market where people were too poor to buy. I venture the assertion this evening, without fear of successful contradiction, that the enforcement of the Fish Regulations has done more to injure the trade of Newfoundland than anything else since we had Responsible Government. We were told, and it has been admitted by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that he actually refused to sell ten thousand quintals of fish last fall, through an agent in Montreal, because the price did not measure up to the strict letter of the Regulations. That amount of fish would have meant one hundred thousand dollars to this Colony, and would be a material help to the trade of the Colony. Now, that fish will likely be sold for West India, and at a much smaller figure, because Labrador fish at this date in Newfoundland must be made and properly cured, and now it can only be made West India at best, and will probably fetch three or four dollars a quintal to buyers of fish other than the Government. I presume the Minister holds twenty thousand quintals of that fish purchased by the five hundred thousand dollars. Well that fish will not go more than four dollars a quintal now, so that the country will stand to lose on that transaction, because the Minister admits having refused $55 per cask for fish because the Regulations called for $65. Was it not better to get $55 for them then, perhaps, have it thrown to the guano heap?

The quicker and sooner that these Regulations are removed from the Statute Book, the better for all concerned. We should have independence in this House, and it is up to this House to see that we do not keep on the Statute Book any law that will interfere with the chief and staple industry of this Colony, and not give any one man the authority, such as the Minister had, of purchasing fish for his Northern friends.

As has been explained here, all the fish that was purchased by the Government money was not for the poor fishermen of the North. Mr. Coaker himself made a sale of a cargo for which he received 50 cents more from the Treasury than the fishermen received. Now, why should Mr. Coaker receive more money for his fish than the fishermen got? I say that it is wrong in principle, and if Mr. Coaker or any other Mr. Coaker persists in playing ducks and drakes with the public monies of this Colony, we will soon have no country at all left.

In conclusion I would like to say that the Minister of Marine's intention regarding the Regulations were alright, but that it worked out very wrong. However, as he tells us, he admits that the country is in a bad state, and I, as a Newfoundlander, am prepared to stand and help relieve the situation and help to place Newfoundland on a firm basis once more; and if the country is in that deplorable condition that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries says it is, then it is about time that we should be up and doing, and about time that we should have a new captain and crew put in charge of the Ship of State, men who understand their business; to take her off the rocks and not allow her to make any more lee-way. I don't propose to take up any more of the time of the House, Mr. Speaker, on this subject, but I hope the Minister will see his way clear to take off the Regulations and give us free trade again.

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, In answer to my friend the Member for St. John's East, Mr. Higgins, I would say that the position is this. His amendment was brought in before the Minister of Marine and Fisheries arrived, or rather he arrived the same day. The Government had to decide upon the policy in consultation with him, and the Government decided to repeal the Regulations. The Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, was speaking then, and Sir John Crosbie followed him. Mr. Coaker said that as a Minister of the Crown and on behalf of the Government he would bring in a Bill to repeal the Regulations, and therefore there is no necessity for the amendment; and not only that, but if he did not keep his word, any man on the other side could bring in the Bill. Mr. Higgins put another phase on it. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries on behalf of the Government says that that act will be repealed. Mr. Higgins says "we do not believe you; vote for this amendment and we will believe you." That is a position which I will not and cannot accept. If I thought that—if I promised to bring in a Bill and the men on the other side of the House would not believe me, then I would take that as a vote of want of confidence in me and I would get out. That is the position. As a Minister of the Crown I join with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and to ask me to vote for that amendment is to tell me that you do not believe. I cannot accept that position, and I have no alternative but to vote against the amendment. Nothing can be served by prolonging the argument.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—That is childish.

MR. WARREN:—Mr. Higgins says he does not believe in our intentions.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You must remember that you are the men who closed the House last year, and the day after put the War Measures Act in force.

MR. WARREN:—That may be so, but I have stated my position, and I cannot withdraw from it.

On motion the debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until tomorrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Hon the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes, entitled 'Of the Auditing of Public Accounts.'"

Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal the Act Geo. V. Cap. 25, entitled, 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.'"

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, April 19, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the people of the settlement of Highlands of Bay St. George. This petition has reference to the Department of Agriculture and Mines, regarding an Agricultural Society. The people of that section for a stretch of about 25 miles attend the one Agricultural Society at the Highlands. They are now asking that there be two Agricultural Societies instead of one for the convenience of both sections of this long distance. It is signed by everybody in the settlement, and I hope it will receive the favorable consideration of the Department to which it relates.

Also I beg leave to present a petition from the same settlement regarding a bridge across Highland River. This section is not in direct touch with the railroad, and the coastal boats do not call there. They have to cross this bridge to get to the railroad. Year after year this bridge has been repaired, but it is now in a state of total disrepair. They ask, with a view to economy in the future, that concrete buttresses be put at both ends of the bridge, and that it be supported by concrete pillars. If that had been done years ago it would not have cost nearly as much as has been spent in repairs. They ask for the sum of $2500 for the purpose of this bridge.

I would like, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, to say that the members on this side of the House, and I presume members on the other side also, would like to see some system for keeping check of the petitions that are presented. Petitions are presented; they go to the Department to which they relate, I presume, and eventually they find their way into the newspaper basket. It is not fair to the members who present these petitions, and it is most unfair to the people who send the petitions to their representatives.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I might say that the practice is for the Clerk of the House to gather the petitions together and send them to the Deputy Heads of the various Departments to which they relate. They do not go to the Administrative Heads; the Deputy Heads are responsible for them.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, just a word on that point that has been mentioned by the hon. member for St. George's. It seems to me that if the Prime Minister could see his way clear to issue instructions to the Deputy Heads to inform members as to what happens to the petitions presented by them, it would clear up the matter. In many cases the members are out of town, and have no means of finding out what happens to their petitions.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I would say that in connection with petitions such as those for bridges, roads and the like, they go to the Department of Public Works and are held there until the representative goes to discuss the matter with the Head of the Department. It is then determined whether there are funds belonging to the district which can be used for the purpose of the petition. The same things applies to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and other departments.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Red Island, Placentia Bay. This petition is signed by John Reading and about one hundred other voters. This petition has been presented at least seven times. I have been in this House for the last seven years, and every session I have had the pleasure of presenting this petition. The petition asks that the dredge be sent there to dredge out the harbor. This is one of the most important settlements of the whole district. There are about 100 voters, and last year there were 100 boats, large and small, fishing out of that harbor. Now, Mr. Speaker, even though this is the seventh time this petition has been presented I hope it will get the consideration that it merits.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting the petition that has just been presented by my colleague, Mr. Walsh. It is very important that Red Island Harbor receive attention. The people there are prosecuting the fishery under most hazardous circumstances. There is no safe harbor on the whole Island. It would not take the dredge very long to do the necessary work there to make Red Island a very good harbor. About 15 years ago they managed to get the dredge there for one day. We had a promise last year that the dredge would call there on her way back from Grand Bank, but evidently the Member for Burin had a greater pull than we had. I trust, Sir, that it will not be necessary for the people to present a further petition regarding this very important matter; but that it receive the consideration that it deserves from the Department to which it relates.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have pleasure in giving the petition that has been presented by my hon. colleague my hearty support.

THE HONOURABLE THE PRIME MINISTER:—With regard to question two of to-day's Order Paper, I wish to say that the Auditor General told me this morning with reference to this question that he had written me a letter bearing on the matter and up to the time of leaving to attend the House I had not received it.

Concerning question three of to-day's Order Paper, I beg to state that the amount received by the Treasury for Motor Car Taxes for the calendar year 1920, totalled the sum of $5,690. The exact figure was $5,693.16. It was paid over to the Department of Public Works.

As for question four of to-day's Order Paper, I have to inform the House that the Government did not authorise or despatch either Mr. Devine or Mr. E. Collishaw in connection with the matter to which reference is made in this question.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—We are entitled to more information than that.

THE HONOURABLE THE PRIME MINISTER:—The question asked whether Mr. Devine or Mr. Collishaw proceeded to Washington on behalf of the Government to represent Newfoundland in the fishery situation. I have to say that they were not authorised or despatched by the Government to Washington. Some two or three months ago when the Minister of Finance and Customs was in New York ill. I received a cable from some Newfoundlanders then in New York saying that a deputation was being sent from New York to Washington to look into the matter connected with the duty on fish and other matters in which Newfoundland was interested and enquiring whether Mr. Devine might or might not accompany the deputation.

I cabled back that Mr. Devine might accompany the deputation as one of its members if it was going on its own account. There was no correspondence whatever only the private wire received by me and the reply sent back. These I will be only too glad to table if so requested. Very well I will table them.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—This information seems to be poorly tabled from my point of view. Why did the honourable Minister of Marine and Fisheries send Mr. Devine or Mr. E. Collishaw to Washington to represent us in a vital matter such as a fish transaction. Who is this Collishaw? Have we not got Newfoundlanders with sufficient intelligence to go to Washington to represent us. If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries got authority to do all these things he ought to be here to answer the question. I have no doubt that at least Mr. Collishaw will be paid by the Government for his services in this matter. We should have more information and I as a member of the Opposition demand more information and demand that all correspondence be tabled, the message you sent Mr. Coaker and the reply. This was asked for in this question but it was not tabled.

THE HONOURABLE THE PRIME MINISTER:—No, pardon me. That was not asked for in the question. It reads as follows. (Reads). My answer was that the Government did not authorise or despatch these gentlemen to Washington.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—It seems to me as if two or three are running this Government.

THE HONOURABLE THE PRIME MINISTER:—I enlarged the question and in reply said how I received a wire and telegraphed Mr. Coaker when he was in Washington asking him to look into the matter.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—Mr. Coaker is back here now over a fortnight and if he sent Devine or Collishaw to Washington he ought to know it and be here to answer the question. Will the Minister of Marine and Fisheries be here this afternoon can any one tell me? Can you Mr. Halfyard?

THE HONOURABLE THE MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS: I do not know. I think he will be away.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—I am sorry for that as he is the Government and we will not be able to get any information. In the meantime I think it is better that the information stand over. I protest against Devine or Collishaw proceeding to Washington to discuss the fish situation. There should have been some one belonging to the Government who was capable, the Attorney General or someone else who would be a responsible representative.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I wish to say something with reference to this question. I think the limit has been reached when one Collishaw is sent to Washington, the Capital of the United States of America, to represent Newfoundland in the fish situation, I think the best man in Newfoundland would hardly be capable for that position and duty. Do you not remember when Sir Robert Bond made a study of that to select a special man to represent Newfoundland in the fish situation, and now we are told this evening that Mr. E. Collishaw is now at Washington fiddling with the principal industry of our country. He would not be able to distinguish a codfish from a rabbit. What in the name of common sense does Collishaw know about codfish. This man struck this country a few years ago. He may be an alright man in his way, but what does he know about codfish? And this evening the Prime Minister tells us he is at Washington representing us in a fishery matter.

This is the worst insult Newfoundland was ever subjected to if I know anything about it. I suppose the Government would look with scorn upon Captain John Lewis, but a man like Collishaw is up at Washington now in no less a place than the Capital of the United States of America representing Newfoundland in a fishery matter. No wonder we would be in the mess we are in today. What has Captain John Lewis got to say about this? Now Mr. Speaker I ask your pardon for taking up the time of the House but I will again speak on this matter.

THE HONOURABLE THE PRIME MINISTER:—The Government intend to maintain the Revenue Protective Service on the South and West Coasts this year. The steamer is being prepared for this work and had to be docked, which has delayed her outfitting. The whole West Coast has been without any protection whatever. It was the custom in the past to get a schooner away in January to do this work. The whole of the West Coast fleet has gone for over a week from Grand Bank to St. Pierre to get supplies, to obtain sugar for eight cents per pound not twenty-five cents, and take salt aboard, and this ship which the Government proposes to send, has been lying at Bowring's wharf for some time with the crew walking the street all the time under pay. Are we going to abandon the Custom House? I was surprised about the motor cars and the taxes thereon but you did not tell us about the amount of duty unpaid on motor cars. From Cape Race to Bonne Bay there has been no cutter and the people are doing what they like. There is free trade as far as St. Pierre is concerned. The whole fleet has gone into St. Pierre for their blocks, sails and supplies and on all this no duty had been paid. What is going to happen Newfoundland if this is allowed to go on? How long are we going to stand for this?

HON. PRIME MINISTER: — The following is the reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 10, on Order Paper of April 19th, 1921.

The amount of collections made by Duncan Collins, Sub-Collector on the Labrador Mail Boat during last year was $23,769.00. He was paid as follows:

Salary	$1150.50
Commission	169.50
Travelling Expenses	407.65

HON. PRIME MINISTER: — The following is the reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 13, on Order Paper of April 19th, 1921.

A statement of the quantity and value of the imports of intoxicating liquors by the Controller's Department is in course of preparation, and will be furnished in a few days.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have received the following answer to question 14 of Sir M. P. Cashin:

Clergymen are exempt from taxation under the Income War Tax Act.

I have never received instructions, verbal or otherwise, that clergymen should be exempt from Income Tax, and forms were sent out under the 8th Section of the Act in the same manner as to laymen whose returns had not been sent in, in accordance with the 7th Section of the Act.

JOSEPH O'REILLY,
Assessor.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Reply to question of Mr. Moore No. 11, April 8, 1921:

Mr. Foote's bill for entire services in connection with the purchase of Sudbury Property for the sum of $29,000.00 amounted to the total sum of $336.35. That covered negotiations for purchase in which Mr. Foote saved the Colony many thousand dollars, miscellaneous cash disbursements, professional fees for service, preparation of documents, necessary searches at registry office and competition of title to the property in favor of the Government.

Mr. Foote's bill went to a taxing officer of the Supreme Court for examination in due course and was taxed and allowed in accordance with usual procedure. The amount paid to Mr. Foote was the sum ordered by the Taxing officer, namely the sum of $336.35.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled the following financial statements:

Statement of Current Account of the Government of Newfoundland for the year ended 30th June, 1920.

Statement Public Debt, June 30th., 1920.

Death Duties Account, 1919-20.

Surplus Trust Account, 1919-20.

Balance Sheet of Treasury Accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1920.

Teachers' Pension Fund.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to add a word in support of the amendment now before the House. I hope I will be pardoned, however, if, first of all, in order to refresh the memory of hon. members, I read again the amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I do not intend, I might say in commencing, to unnecessarily detain the business of the House in dealing with these matters that are included in the amendment, especially in view of the announcement made yesterday afternoon by the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I might say, Mr. Speaker, I came to the House with one intention and one only and that is to rise to the occasion which now presents itself and to do all I can to assist, in my own small way, my fellow countrymen to bear the load which is weighing them down. I think you will agree, Sir, that these are decent sentiments, but what do I find on taking my seat here this afternoon? I have to follow the example of the previous speaker, Sir John Crosbie, and denounce an attack which has been made upon me, not in the same dirty rag that he has had cause to complain against, but against the equally filthy Advocate. In that paper are a set of resolution condemning sectarianism and making an unjustifiable and low-down attack on me personally. Now, Mr. Speaker, with that portion of these resolution concerning sectarianism I am not going to deal, but I want to assure the boss of that dirty rag and those associated with him that I am prepared to vindicate myself against those dirty, filthy charges. The closing paragraph of the resolutions in question reads as follows:

"Before closing we cannot desist from expressing our avowed disapproval of the reprehensible conduct of W. J. Walsh on the floors of the House of Assembly, in probing into the private business of the Union Trading Company. We are glad to know that the poisoned arrow failed to accomplish its mission. Would Mr. Walsh dare to enquire into the private affairs of any other company at St. John's? Would his despicable conduct be tolerated by the directors of those companies? Those 'kill Coaker' and 'kill the F.P.U.' cries are wasted on the fishermen of the North. We reiterate our determination to stand by the F. P. U. and our President, the Hon. W. F. Coaker.

"Signed on behalf of Port Rexton Council: James Butler, Chairman; Robert Plowman, Deputy Chairman; Garland Bannister, Secretary; Wm. Thos. Randell, John Stockley, William James Rex, Peter Rex, Sr., Wm. F. Barbour, Robert Rex, Hezekiah Randell, George Bannister, Robert Bannister, Abram Bailey, Robert Rex, Jr., Joseph Mate, Kenneth Ploughman, Benjamin Bailey.

"Port Rexton, April 9th, 1921."

Now, Mr. Speaker, with regard to the matter of my probing into the private affairs of the Union Trading Co., and to my questions having failed in their effect, as I've already stated, I have no desire to pry into the private affairs of any private concern, but I have convinced myself and any man with even a cord eye can see that the Union Trading Co. is not a private corporation, but a concern whose workings affect a very large portion of the people of this country. Why, Sir, out of the thirty-six members of this House, at least eleven of them are the sworn followers of the head of that concern. I came in here and asked if the F.P.U. or any of its subsidiary companies owed money on bonds given the Customs for duty, and I might say that I was glad to find that they did not, according to the answer tabled. But what about the fifty or sixty thousand dollars taken from the Treasury to pay for salt? Are we doing our duty to the people we represent if we allow this to go unchallenged? Is any hon. gentleman either on this or the other side of the House doing its duty in allowing private companies to owe so much money to the country when the country can so ill afford it? I am sorry the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fish-cries is not in here this afternoon. I should like to see him in his seat up beside the Minister of Justice where he should be, but as he is not here I shall say what I have to say anyhow although, no doubt, I shall be told in The Advocate tomorrow that the cowardly, sneaking Walsh attacked Mr. Coaker when he was not in the House to defend himself. Mr. Speaker, I am here as part of the safety valve which controls the business of this House and thereby protects the interests of the people; I am here as one of three representatives of one of the largest and one of the most important fishing districts in the country to fight for what The Advocate has for its motto: 'To every man his own.' To every man his own, indeed. The motto in that paper should be "Unto the F.P.U. all." It is regrettable, Sir, that the Hon. Minister had not the courage or the manliness to support this resolution, instead of being so small as to oppose it because it happened to emanate from this side of the House. But of course the principle is that nothing good can emanate from the Opposition, nothing good can emanate from a man like Cashin. The sentiments expressed in the resolutions are identical with those to be expressed in the Bill which the Hon. Minister will bring down for the repeal of the Regulations, and by supporting the resolutions the Government would have saved all this debate, but still they had not the manliness to support them. I remember when in 1914 a new government came into power and Mr. Coaker for the first time occupied a seat in this House, we were, if my memory serves me right, in committee on an important measure. A gentleman at that time associated with Mr. Coaker and sitting on the Opposition side had pluck enough to cross the floor and vote with the Government because he was convinced that it was the right course to pursue. The gentleman to whom I refer is Mr. John Stone. He had the courage of his convictions and after voting with the Government on that measure he returned to his seat on the Opposition side. He showed that he was not too small to do the right thing and that he was not to be swayed whatever way the wind blew and he was all the more respected for it. I am particularly interested in one or two aspects of these resolutions, and I shall deal with these, Mr. Speaker, from three points of view. It has been said that I supported the Regulations when they passed this House, and the three positions from which I shall deal with the matter are, first, my position then, secondly, my position now, and thirdly, why.

In 1919 when Sir Michael Cashin's Government went down to defeat, we came back here and the two, three or four parties that constituted the Government lined up together and Mr. Coaker intimated that he was going to place on the Statute Book an act to regulate and control the export of codfish. It is well known that what Mr. Coaker said he was going to do was as good as done so far as that party was concerned; he was the whole Government. Sir Michael Cashin realised that we had to make the best of a bad job and that all we could do was to get in as many amendments as possible so that these Regulations would not lean too hard on the people of the country who would be most affected by them. It was a foregone conclusion that Mr. Coaker was the dictator, and that whatever he said was law, so we offered no serious opposition. We were given to understand that we would have an Export Board, but we were not given to understand that this Board would be composed of men like Mr. Collishaw or a man named Brooks or Mr. Geo. M. Barr or a young lawyer named Dunfield. Sir M. P. Cashin apologized to you this afternoon, I think, Sir, for occupying so much of the time of the House in asking questions, but I think I am safe in saying that the country will demand no apology from him for his action in this regard. Rather do they owe him a deep debt of gratitude for turning the searchlight on the deed of the Government and bringing before them the true facts of the misconduct of public affairs the past twelve months. There must be a feeling of shame in the hearts of all Newfoundlanders to learn here this evening that a man named Collishaw is now in the capital of the United States representing this country on important fisheries matters. What an insult to the people to have a fellow who drifted in here from God knows where, who came here as an oil agent and accumulated wealth which it is questionable how he attained, taken by the hand, and by the dictator again of course—the man who should be in his seat in this House this afternoon—and sent to the American capital to transact our business for us. I say, Mr. Speaker, that it is about time for us to shut up shop, to turn the key in the door of this House and hand the whole thing over to Port Union and Mr. Collishaw. And then they will have the audacity to tell you that everything they did was quite alright; they ask for mercy and they hold up their hands and tell you that the country is on the rocks and they practically say, come over Cashin-Crosbie-Bennett and company and lend us a hand and take her out of the wretched condition we have forced her into by incompetency, corruption and dishonesty. It will be remembered that when everything was going along smoothly in this country and when prosperity reigned all over the land there were people who gloried at the name of Coaker and pilloried the names of Cashin, Crosbie, Bennett, Piccott and others who were associated with the Government in those days. I have vivid recollections of how The Advocate used to thunder forth on the ministerial benches of the Government and charge the occupants thereof with all kinds of fancy accusations. They never made any attempt to justify them, nor did they have the manliness to go to their newspaper office and instruct those whom they had hired to do their dirty work to make an open apology. They had not the manliness to stand up in their places in this House and offer an apology for the deliberate misrepresentation that they practised during the days they were in Opposition; but now when they find they have made a mess of things, as a result of which children unborn in this country are going to suffer and thousands of men, women and children in this country are suffering untold misery tonight, they cry "Kamerad."

While I am speaking I hold in my desk the names of 500 people belonging to the District of Placentia and St. Mary's and 490 out of the 500 people who have been bled, beggared and ruined through the incompetency and by the discrimination practised by the present Government. We have here resolutions pouring in from all sections of the Island. This is not the class of resolution that I read from. The Advocate this afternoon and which draws the proverbial red hering across the trail to try and get people to forget for the time being in an endeavour to put class against class and creed against creed and to try and get people to forget that this country was put in such a serious position through the inability and corruption of the present Government.

We have another class of resolution, which, however, differently worded, comes from a class of men who are no different in their avocation to the men in the north. And I believe that there are as good and as fair-minded fishermen to be found in the northern section of the country as there are to be found in any other, except that they allowed themselves to be made tools of by unscrupulous politicians; and I think if I had an opportunity to meet an audience from any district in the north that I would be in a position to justify and vindicate my character from any of those foul charges made against me in the Advocate. Here is a resolution, though, perhaps, I may be charged with discourtesy by reading it to this House. I regret that the Hon. Mr. Foote, member for Burin, and his colleagues, Mr. Cheseman, are not in the House, but I have no doubt that both of these gentlemen will be honest and candid enough to see that this resolution—I understand they have copies of it—goes through the proper channel whereby they may be able to be of some assistance to the Opposition in the forcing of the Government to lift the Regulations. I say that deliberately, because I am convinced, as the great majority of the people throughout the country are convinced, that the whole credit for the lifting of the Fish Regulations is due to the Opposition led by Sir Michael Cashin. The Resolution reads as follows:

Reads Resolution

Now Mr. Speaker, a half million dollars is a large amount of money. It is sufficient money, if handled properly, to be able to eliminate entirely and to prevent the awful stigma that has been placed on our people during the past few months. Five hundred thousand dollars—and I challenge successful contradiction—have been stolen from the "Public Treasury" of this Colony by one individual. Would we as members of the various constituencies, who sent us here to safeguard their interests, be doing our duty if we did not expose this corruption? And I venture to say tonight that there are very many honest, industrious, hard-working and deserving fishermen in Bonavista, Trinity and Notre Dame Bays who did not receive a solitary farthing of that half million. 'I say, Mr. Speaker, that the Prime Minister, the Attorney General, the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, the Minister of Education and the other gentlemen who comprise the Executive Government—and even His Excellency the Governor—should be held responsible for the taking of that money, and if every man here were of my mind they would not allow one measure to go through this House until these men would be called upon to open their own purses and place back in the Treasury the five hundred thousand dollars that was stolen and deliberately stolen by them. Now that is a kind of strong language, but desperate diseases require desperate remedies, and I, in my own way, tho my language may not be as choice and as flowery as we heard sent forth from the other side of the House, want to assure you, sir, that my honesty of purpose cannot be questioned by any member or any individual in this House or outside this House. While I hold a seat in this Chamber I want to see that splendid motto of the Advocate lived up to—"To every man his own," and I want to see it carried out to the strictest letter of the law. As far back as August 1920 when I went through the district of Placentia and St. Mary's I could easily predict what conditions were going to be like if high prices were not paid for our products. On my return to the city I dared to go through the public press, because the House was not open and the press was the only available means of voicing the sentiments within me. I wrote a letter to the Daily News pointing out that if $10 per quintal for talqual was not given—and that was what was promised by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries last session—that conditions would be serious throughout the winter which we have just passed over. I even went to the extent of saying that if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who, at that time, along with members of the Export Board were at variance with other indifferent members of the Board of Trade and others outside the Board of Trade, as there did not seem to be any set policy,—and who had all the machinery at his disposal, who had scores of Agents in the European markets and had all the information that any out reasonable man could have relating to the conditions existing in the foreign markets; and that if there was a deliberate attempt being made by a section of the mercantile community, according to his own statement, to keep the price of fish down although the foreign markets warranted $9 or $10 locally, but owing to political and commercial intrigue he was not able to obtain that price locally, and that he was convinced beyond all shadow of doubt that $10 should be paid for fish locally, I pointed out that he, in my opinion, would be justified in utilising the funds of this Colony, pay for the whole catch, market it, pay the fishermen $10 per quintal for it and any balance he had to put it to the credit of the Colony. Of course I did not expect that my suggestion or any suggestion coming from such a desperate character as Walsh would be seriously considered by the Minister and his associates. Later on when it was first mooted that there was an attempt being made to raid the Treasury of this country by the political boss and his associates I wrote another letter to the press. And I want to state here that any letter that I write to the press is not signed by any non-deplume. I never write unless I think the subject is of sufficient importance and that it may be considered by some of the people, and I always sign any article I write over my own signature. This letter was dated Nov, 23rd last and I crave the indulgence of the House to read it. I do this, because in itself it will be sufficient proof that my attitude here on the 19th of April is not the spontaneous decision of some people who have tread on my corns, but that certain honourable gentlemen who love this splendid educator will not accuse me of taking this attitude in the way I was attacked in the Advocate this evening. This letter appeared in the Evening Telegram and reads thus:

If you will notice, Mr. Speaker, on that date, Nov. 23rd, the people, at least I did not know, and a large section of the Island did not know that the Prime Minister, the Attorney General, the Minister of Education and the Hon. Mr. Foote had given their support and backing in the Executive to Mr. Coaker and Mr. Halfyard and their other associates who are mixed up in those F. P. U. enterprises for the taking of five hundred thousand dollars of our money for the purposes of buying Mr. Coaker's own fish. The resolution that I read here this evening that came from the Burin Board of Trade, dated the 5th of April, and its only supposed im that resolution that a large amount of money had been taken from the Treasury and placed at the disposal of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or some other person for the purchase of Labrador fish. Then there is another resolution from Grand Bank which is practically identical with the Burin one. It is pointed out by the farmers of the Grand Bank resolution that the associations represented therein are non-political. I do not think that any member of this House will question the veracity of that statement. I have the honour to know personally and intimately some of the gentlemen who are associated with that resolution on the West Coast. The name of Mr. Samuel Harris is a household word from Pla-centia to Cape Ray; and there are none of the fishermen at this very moment in Placentia Bay but whose last prayer before they close their eyes in sleep each night is that conditions may right themselves so that the old reliable firms of Samuel Harris, Ltd., of Grand Bank and the Marystown Trading Company may come to their rescue and hold out to them the barrels and the boxes and give them the material they require to carry on their arduous avocation. Mr. Harris is a man, who, in his early days went out in the stormy deep in a small punt. By his ability and energy that punt became a jack. Gradually the jack was succeeded by the fore-and-after. From the fore-and-after he acquired the banker and from the banker to the foreign going vessel. From the ordinary common every day fisherman Mr. Harris rose to be one of the most prominent and influential men in the Dominion. He was one of the largest contributors to the Profits Tax Act in 1919. He did a business that was unsurpassed by any other firm in the Island. I think that he was the largest exporter of codfish in 1910 also. The same might be said of other firms in Grand Bank such as the Buffets, Patten and Forsey, Forward and Tibbo; and the Holletts, Bartletts, Bishops and Inkpens of Burin; and the Moultons and the Smiths and the other business men along the South West Coast, and the Wakleys, and Warehams of Placentia Bay. Those men built up their own businesses; they were not heritages handed down to them. Those men were interfered with by the Regulations to the extent of driving them to the wall. Take the case of Mr. George Penny, of Ramea—a glaring case of discrimination on the part of somebody, and I am going to lay the blame at the door of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. After all he is only one man, and the men who were prepared to sit at the Executive Board and say Amen to his actions will be held just as much responsible by the people of this country as the Minister himself. Mr. Penny loaded a cargo of fish last June and had a market secured for it at a profitable figure. When he applied for a clearance it was refused and the vessel was held up at his wharf for three or four months in the hot summer weather and any man who has any knowledge of such matters can understand what sort of a condition that cargo of fish was in after being held up for so long a time at that particular season of the year. The consequence was, I am informed, and I think I am informed rightly.

The firm of Geo. Penney of Ramea have not yet received one cent for that fish, and all the time that these conditions were being forced upon the people, the Prime Minister and the Attorney General were abroad, and even thought these gentlemen were in a more congenial climate, and probably association with larger men from a financial standpoint, it was their duty to go to the office of the Nfld. Commissioner and find out what was happening in Newfoundland from day to day. I give them credit for having sufficient interest in those men who sent them here to do that, but if they knew that Coaker was running at large here, if the Attorney General knew that the firm of John Smith, Rose, Hugh Cody, and others were being driven to the wall by the mad policy of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries and his associates in the Executive, who were prepared to give him all the rope he wanted, I say that it's nothing to the credit of either of these gentlemen for allowing these conditions to go so far. I have a certain amount of sympathy for the position that the Prime Minister finds himself in, I am not so dense that I cannot appreciate the unfortunate position, and perhaps if the Minister of Marine & Fisheries this House and if the Prime Minister had come from the Polls with sufficient votes without the F. P. U. the dictatorial policy and the resulting conditions might have been avoided. I see the position and I am not unreasonable enough not to give expression to these thoughts, and my feelings from my place in this House, but where I do find fault with the Prime Minister is that he did not see from past experience of the Leader of the Liberal Party, Sir Robert Bond, the inevitable outcome. He was forced in 1913 to associate himself with Mr. Coaker who was then only Mr. Coaker, President of the F.P.U. Bond associated himself with Mr. Coaker and he was sent back by the loyal old Liberals of Twillingate with a large majority. What happened? After that election he never took his seat in this House, and on opening day his colleague Mr. Clift, intimated officially that he had received a communication from Sir Robert Bond resigning his seat in this House as a protest against the actions of Mr. Coaker and his associates. He pointed out that it would be just as consistent for Angus Reid or Bob Reid, Wm. Crawford, or Paddy Lee, the Conductor, to come here in this House representing Reid Nfld. Co., as for Mr. Coaker and Mr. Halfyard and his friends down the line to come here representing the F. P. U., and I am prepared to accept the decision of Sir Robert Bond, and I think that the majority of the people of the country will accept his decision, in preference to the decision of a man who may be styled an ultra Coaker man. With his position to a great extent I sympathise, and I do not wish to individually or personally attack Mr. Coaker or Mr. Jennings, nor any of the other gentlemen on that side of the House, but we are dealing now not with personalities but with an issue, and one upon which the future prosperity and independence of this country must largely stand or fall. What right had Mr. Coaker, Chairman of the Railway Commission, Managing Director of the Companies of the F. P. U., to purchase fish from himself, because it was from himself. He is financially interested in the Trading Co., and there is here a little matter I would like cleared up with regard to the 'President Coaker.' I am surprised, and no doubt a great large majority of the constituents of some of the gentlemen on the other side of the House who are not associated with the F. P. U. will be when they read for the first time of this frightful prostitution of public moneys. In the old days when my friend Sir John Crosbie sold a Marconi Station to the Government, when Sir Edward Morris, was leading the Government, he was abused by the Public Press, and a man was led to believe he sold a piece of wood, and Woodford who was driven from his place in this House by political intrigue and he was not fit to have anything to do with public money because he bought a few splits from the poor people in his district and gave them five or ten cents too much, or because he gave twenty cents a barrel too much for potatoes.

Now we find that three and a half million dollars has been wasted and a half million of that is taken and placed to the credit at the banks of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to purchase fish from the men of the North, and we are supposed to have Responsible Government. Would it not have been the decent thing if an extraordinary position arose of this kind to have the House convened, and bring the matter before the House? No, it was unnecessary because Mr. Coaker, who was the controlling spirit in the Government because of his enormous power to control one-third of the votes of the country. He had promised his people that he would give them ten dollars a quintal for fish. They had been told through the official organ of the F.P.U. and from the platforms of the F. P. U. lodges that Mr. Coaker could make the price of fish what he pleased. Now last autumn Mr. Coaker realised and we all realised that after all the price of fish was regulated by supply and demand. Men came from the North with schooner loads of fish and went to Bowrings and Barrs and Jobs and Crosbies and other places and were told that owing to the interference of the man who introduced the Fish Exportation Act that the particular market for that kind of fish, Italy, was almost destroyed. They went back to their friend and as was only natural, they told him the story. He saw then that conditions were getting serious. He saw then what he saw a few days ago in this House, when Sir Michael Cashin and Sir John Crosbie and the other men on this side of the House arose and demanded that the Fish Exportation Act be abolished; he saw all this and he knew that some means must be found to get him out of the awkward position. He went to his colleagues, all who were in the city, the Prime Minister and Attorney General were not here; he called sufficient together, and it was agreed to by the Government that the pledges made by Mr. Coaker to his men of the North would not be broken, the men in Placentia Bay, Ferryland, St. John's East and West and Port de Grave, had to be bled so that his friends of this section might be able to prosper.

Now then, if that is the true position, and I think it is, although there are men who would use different language, more elegant expressions, as a Newfoundlander I say that the men who permitted that are not doing their duty to the people who sent them here or to the country. When a man comes in here as Leader of the Government or Leader of the Opposition or otherwise, his aim and object should be the betterment of conditions for the people of the country, not for a few of them. Now then, I don't think that there was ever such a thing done before, and the Government have to accept the blame for the misappropriation of funds, especially to such an amount, when we are passing through an era which makes the time of the Bank Crash seem prosperous in comparison with present conditions. The total expenditure then was only two or three million dollars; today the work ingmen of the country, the farmer, miner, fisherman, etc., are called upon to pay forty-six dollars per head. The total expenditure in 1919 was only thirty-six dollars per capita. These are figures in the Manifesto of the present Prime Minister; in 1919 thirty six dollars per capita, today forty-six dollars per capita; in other words the burden of the people has increased during the past eighteen months ten dollars per head, and this is the action of the Liberal Reform Government. I say that the matter is very serious, and nobody inside this House or outside of it, but must realize that the best ability to be had in this country should be got and quickly. While I was here yesterday in my place I was listening to the weak defence of the actions of Mr. Coaker. I had heard he was suffering from ill-health. I am not surprised, because although we all know that there were great blunders made, and we know that we have to pay our part in making up for these blunders; none of us are so unreasonable but we will admit that Mr. Coaker had lots of energy and though he blundered seriously we can sympathize with him; but it is not good enough for a responsible Minister of the Crown to come here and in giving an account of his stewardship to say that his intentions were good. There is an old saying that the road to hell is paved with good intentions, and it is not good enough when such a large portion of our people are driven to the wall, and now nearly the first of May and none of them getting ready for the fishery. My colleagues and myself have at least between us one thousand applications, and that is a large amount. On my desk alone there are at least four hundred letters from good, honest, industrious, energetic fishermen, who never before had to write to their member, to find out where they would get supplies for the fishery, but this is the deplorable condition we are in today, and when one realises the seriousness of these conditions, one can hardly credit the report of the Auditor General in which he tells us that the enormous sum of a half million dollars has been taken from the Treasury and handed over to one section of the Island to be dealt with as a Minister of the Crown saw fit. I do not think that if the Prime Minister, if his constituents made an appointment with him tonight and put before him the fact that they had an enormous amount of fish drums which they could not get clear of, they could not get the proper price, I don't think that he would go to the Council Chamber and ask his associates to vote him a half million dollars to go up to these people and buy up their stock and save the situation politically for himself. I don't think he would do that, but that is what happened with regard to the half million dollars.

talking about this half million dollars, but to me it is very important. At this particular time it would greatly assist the people all over the country to live, whereas only a few were allowed to benefit by it.

And now, Mr. Speaker, I will go further and say publically, although it may be used against me in the future I will say it, that if a similar condition occurred in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's and the people came down here and demanded that money be taken from the public treasury to buy their fish, I would not give it to them, unless every corner of the country shared in the transaction. These are my sentiments, and these are the sentiment of the people who sent me here. There is an old saying "to the victors belong the spoils," and to a certain extent that is true, but it is not true to the extent of half a million dollars. Now that the Attorney General is back in his seat, I would say that I would not like to be in his shoes when he would go back to Fortune Bay and the people would ask him if he was a party to giving the people North that half million dollars. But the chances are he will never go back. He will be afraid to go back.

As I said before, Mr. Speaker, I could speak for two hours more on this subject, without touching another matter. The subject is of supreme importance. Never before was such a blunder, such wholesale discrimination, committed by any Government of Newfoundland; and I blame the Executive Government. I do not blame the private members on the other side. I do not believe they knew anything about it until they came in here. I believe that there are men on the other side who are Britishers enough, who are fair enough, to see the wrong in this transaction, and who will see that it is not repeated. But the Executive Government cannot absolve themselves from the responsibility for this unparalleled blunder. No matter how many flowery speeches are made by the Leader of the Government, no matter how many soothing letters are written by the Attorney General to his constituents, I think this transaction in itself should be enough for the people of the country to rise up in their might and demand from His Excellency the resignation of the Government. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, that the people all over the country will be relieved when they know that the Opposition have succeeded in forcing from the Statute Books the obnoxious Fish Regulations. There is yet other bad legislation that must be removed, but no chance will be taken by the Opposition. That old worn-out War Measures Act will not be allowed to rest. God knows who will want a slice next. Maybe Mr. Collishaw a timber area or some other special consideration. The only consolation that the people have now is that the three million surplus is gone. But, Mr. Speaker, that War Measures Act must go, and the Food Control Board must go. I understand that certain rumbling noises have been heard in certain sections of the inner circles of the Government, and some of them are honest enough to admit that the conditions are serious. I personally do not care who gets the credit for the removal of the Fish Regulations. The people who sent me here will know that no opportunity was lost by me in upholding the interests of the people who sent me here. I say that all this vicious legislation, this obnoxious and ignorant legislation must be wiped out. The men who are squandering the country's money in the United States and other countries as so-called Commissioners, must be called home. This cannot be allowed to continue. It must not be allowed.

Now, Mr. Speaker, getting back to another subject relating to the amendment. When I asked a question in the House the other day, I did so in the interest of all sections of the country. Because I dared to ask a question I was slam-banged, and subjected to all kinds of abuse by the press. Personally I do not care. I am somewhat of the material that Sir John Crosbie says he is made of.

Some people may think that I should not be permitted to speak without a veil. I am not responsible for my personal appearance, but if any person can point out anything wrong with my public conduct, I will immediately hand in my resignation. I have used absolutely no discrimination in my district. Many of my strongest supporters do not kneel at the same altar that I do. They know me, and know that I do not discriminate in any way.

Now with respect to that octopus discrimination which we have in the salt situation. That cargo of salt was brought out here and sold at a loss to the country of $73,000.00, which was paid out of the surplus which Cashin and Company had saved up. The salt was handed over to a firm at its original cost. The firm is not mentioned, but it is stated that the firm owes this country over $61,000.00. This information comes from the highest authority. We have it in the Auditor General's statement. The Hon. Leader of the Opposition was told by the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries that the salt was stored by him, and that some was sold. That is a pretty story. Both of these transactions are sufficient to make every man on that side of the House ashamed of this whole despicable piece of conduct, and so much so that he would never appeal to his constituents again. I assure you, Mr. Speaker, that the hour will come when the Attorney General will not smile at this matter as he is smiling now, and I would advise the Attorney General that if he anticipates taking a trip to his district that he do not go through Placentia and St. Mary's. The Minister of Marine & Fisheries avoided the demonstration which awaited him at Port aux Basques by coming direct by the Kyle. Here we have a direct loss of $16,000.00. I wonder if the Hon. Minister displayed the same ability in buying for the F. P. U. firms that he displayed in this matter. I think not. Three and a half million dollars gone from the public treasury in 18 months. When this amount of money was accrued times were prosperous, and the man at the helm was capable. He knew his course. But now that era of prosperity has passed away, and we are confronted with a condition of affairs to which the bank crash was not parity. I would be glad to congratulate the Hon. members on the other side if I saw any honest attempt on their part to overcome the situation, and to help the country. But when one sees how they throw away $10,000 in one place and $50,000 in another place it is time that we should arise and call a halt. Now the Government comes in here and cries "comrades." They say "we surrender." The Minister of Marine & Fisheries pleads for mercy, and then his filthy rag comes out and tries to fool the men of the north. Then they expect men of ability on this side of the House to go to their assistance. If an attack is made on Sir John Crosbie there is an apology forthcoming immediately. There may be an interesting story that Sir John can tell. I don't happen to know it, Perhaps there may be a reason for staving off these attacks, but when the ugly, unrepresentable Walsh gets up and expresses a sentiment he is ridiculed. Who told him to speak? Did His Excellency tell him what to say?

I want to serve notice now, Mr. Speaker, and I mean it, that the time may come when I will go down to the Advocate office and there is a man down there by the name of Mews. His head is red now, but before I am through with him some other parts will be red also. Then there is the Daily Star. I would suggest that the Prime Minister convey my compliments to these gentlemen also. That may seem a joke and said in a jocular manner, but I mean it. The owners of these papers say they know nothing about it. I am sick of that; fed up with it. So far as the effect politically is concerned I don't know but that I should send them a check if I could afford it. There is no public man who wants to go home and his children say to him "daddy where is the paper"; I have six of them, thank God, and that is what they say to me, and I have to look over the paper first to see if it is fit for them to read. This thing should be stopped.

Mr. Speaker, as it is 6.30 I move the adjournment until to-morrow.

On motion, the Debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the Day were deferred.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled the Public Accounts, 1919-20.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20th, 1921

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move that a Select Committee of this House be appointed with power to send for persons, papers and things, and to take evidence on oath to enquire into the proceedings of the Food Control Board so called, and especially into the purchase of sugar, and contracts for sugar whereby certain persons, firms, and companies were relieved of onerous obligations and heavy losses which they would have incurred, but which were imposed instead upon the taxpayers of the Colony.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in reply to Sir Michael Cashin's question (No. 4) on Order Paper, dated April 21, 1921, tabled the following: Mr. J. H. Scammell, M.H.A., during his recent tour, was not engaged in carrying out any work for the Government or for any department thereof.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—In reply to Sir M. P. Cashin's question, I beg to table the following report of the Auditor General:

Auditor General's Office,
St. John's, Newfoundland.

In reply to Sir Michael Cashin's question, I beg leave to state:

When, last summer, I applied at the Treasury for information as to the payment of $61,000 from the Surplus Trust for a cargo of salt, I was informed that the said cargo was sent down to Port Union and taken delivery of by the F. P. U. Company and the money would be remitted to refund to the Surplus Trust for the amount expended. This information was furnished me orally as there was, so far as I am aware, no Minute of Council authorising the transaction. I was fully convinced from the information thus received that an outright sale had been made of this salt, and in January last, when I wrote my report, I fully believed this to be the case, and, acting on that belief, I reported what I considered to be the fact to the Legislature. Up to the time of the writing of my report no repayment had been made to the Treasury on account of this salt. A few days ago the sum of $4,400.00 was paid into the Treasury on account of this salt.

I need hardly say that, had I not fully believed that there was an outright sale, I would not have used the expression "be repaid by the firm to which it was sold." I have never, in any of my reports, made a statement that I did not honestly believe to be correct.

I respectfully request that this special report be attached to my report under Section 33 (b) of the Audit Act, or, if it is the desire of the House that my reports be printed, then the last mentioned report can be corrected in accordance with the facts.

(Sgd.) F. C. BERTEAU,
C. and A. G.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table the following answer to question of Mr. Bennett of date April 14th:

The Food Board has bought to arrive by this "Rosalind" 1250 barrels of sugar, purchased from Willett & Gra, New York, at 6.84 per pound, F. O. B. New York. Other firms had been asked to quote.

The reason for the Sugar being imported in 1921 is as follows:—

When the Board found that owing to restricted consumption, the Board's stock of Sugar would not be exhausted last year, instead of bringing in the sugar from Canada, and having to pay storage, etc., it sold a certain quantity in Canada, thus obtaining about fifteen cents for sugar which could be imported from the U.S.A., for ten to twelve. This saving enabled the Board to reduce sugar prices last fall. It must be noted that no more sugar has been imported than the stock held by the Food Board last Fall.

The sale in Canada naturally was at a loss accounting for balance shown in Auditor General's Report, so that the sugar now being imported costs every cent of the price at which it is sold. Taking the rate of consumption at that of the winter months the sugar stocks should be finished before the end of June. At the meeting in February, sugar dealers were informed that thirty days' notice would be given of decontrol.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In addition to the answer already tabled in reply to question No. 6 on Order Paper of April 15th, I beg to now table a copy of a letter of today's date from Mr. H. B. Gillis, Superintendent of Mines and Trains of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co.:—

Crosbie Hotel,
St. John's, Nfld.,
April 19th, 1921

Hon. R. A. Squires,
Prime Minister.

Dear Mr. Squires:

In reference your note of today covering item No. 6 on the "Order of the Day" April 15th, the following is submitted.

Previous to your interview in Sydney it was our intention to operate only No. 4 Mine at Wabana. After coming here with you in December and investigating conditions at Wabana it was decided to increase our program to include operating No. 2 Mine three days per week.

Under the original proposal we would have employed 380-400 men each day, or 2280-2400 days per week. Under the present operating schedule

we employ 380-400 men for three days per week, 1140-1200
 Plus 650 men for three days per week 1950-1950.

Total days work per week.. 3090-3150

This is approximately thirty per cent more work than the original program called for.

(a) Operations on an enlarged scale will depend largely on market conditions. The curtailment at Sydney during the past winter, and the consequent decrease in the consumption of ore at the furnaces leaves a large reserve of iron ore in the Sydney stockpiles. The tonnage stocked at Wabana is greater than ever in the history of the mines. The Dominion Company has approximately 725,000 tons; the Scotia company has approximately 400,000 tons.

(b) Some small sales have been arranged and operations will be continued to make up the wastage in stockpiles on account of these sales. If additional ore sales can be arranged or orders for steel obtained work will be pushed vigorously at Bell Island. From present indications it appears that the present forces of the two companies will be maintained.

(c) The Company in view of the uncertain conditions at Wabana have decided to give Port au Port quarries the entire limestone requirements of the Sydney plants for blast furnace flux. This entails closing down its quarries in Cape Breton and employing about 350 men on the West Coast. Under this arrangement there will be approximately as many employees of the Dominion Company in Newfoundland as in normal years, even if Wabana conditions do not improve.

The above outline will, I believe, cover the points raised in question No. 6, but if any further information is necessary I will be glad to supply it. I may say that our Wabana program during the past winter was not justified by the industrial outlook and was followed to prevent hardship among our employees. The work was divided as our management considered most advisable to prevent want; the head of the larger families received as a rule the more days' work each week.

Yours very truly,
 (Sgd.) HUGH B. GILLIS,
 Supt. Mines and Quarries,
 D. I. & S. Co.

M. Walsh asked the Chairman of the Railway Commission:

- (1) What individual member of the Commission furnished the press last August with the report claiming that the portion of the coal areas being opened up by the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., was principally on the Reid Co's land.
- (2) If that statement is correct, what steps have been taken to have these titles corrected.
- (3) If that statement is not correct, what steps have been taken to indemnify the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., for this piece of gross misrepresentation in the public press.

Mr. Walsh asked the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines:

- (1) If a certain Geological Expert by the name of Dowling was procured from Canada last year, and if so for what purpose?
- (2) What areas of the mineral resources of the Colony were visited?
- (3) If any local parties accompanied him, and if so to give names?
- (4) To table the separate reports furnished by the expert containing the expert's signature.
- (5) What were the amount of expenses and to itemize them.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have asked the Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines to prepare the information, and as soon as I receive it I shall table it.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Shipping if the steamer Clyde was taken off her regular route, namely the North Side of Notre Dame Bay, last September and ordered to sail from Port Union to LaScie, and if so why, also how many trips did she make on that route, and is it correct that the instructions issued to the Captain were that she was only to call at ports having Union stores, what was the approximate cost of the number of trips made by this ship on that route, and if the Prospero and Home were, during all that period, serving the same sections and would it not have been to the greater advantage of the Northern Districts if the Clyde had been maintained on her regular route.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In the absence of the Minister of Shipping, I may say that this matter has been referred to the Secretary of the Department of Shipping.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Mr. Michael Power is chief fishery inspector under the Fish Regulations now in force, and if so what compensation he is being paid for his services in that capacity, or what compensation it is proposed to pay him.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table the information.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is correct and has his department ordered a fish inspector to proceed toward Belleoram for the purpose of inspecting fish on the West Coast after notice of a bill was granted to repeal the Fish Regulations.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I understand that information will be tabled on tomorrow.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Prime Minister to procure from the Auditor General and lay on the table of the House a special report explaining and justifying his statement in his general report, that the salt now at Port Union had been sold and that a large sum was due and unpaid thereon by the purchaser.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That matter has been referred to the Auditor General for report.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

- (a) If the cargo of the "President Coaker" was purchased by Joseph Sellars, Esq., from the Union Export Company, Ltd., or the Union Trading Company, Ltd., or directly from individual fishermen, and if the latter, for a statement showing their names, the quantities purchased from each, and the amounts paid them, and at what price per quintal.
- (b) Whether the cargo of the said schooner was paid for by Mr. Sellars in cash, or by cheque, and if the latter, the amount of the cheque and the name of the payee,
- (c) If Mr. Sellars made the charter of the "President Coaker," with whom, when and how, and by whom the rate of freight was arranged, and what are the terms of the charter as to demurrage?
- (d) Has any part of the freight money been paid, and if so how much, by and to whom, and the dates of payment, and by whom is the "President Coaker" owned; if the said vessel is registered in the name of Ellison Collishaw, as owner; whether he is in fact the owner, or merely holds the vessel as security for some person or Company, and if so for whom or what?
- (e) Where the cargo of the said vessel and vessel herself now is?
- (f) Whether any offers for the said cargo have been received, from whom, and how much, and what is now being done with or about the said cargo, and under whose control, outside this Colony, the disposition of the said cargo now is?

- (g) What amounts have been paid out of public moneys to the said Joseph Sellars for fish, and freight and charges thereon, or for other purposes connected therewith, and by whose authority and by whom such payments have been made, with amounts and dates of the payments?
- (h) If other fish than the cargo of the said vessel has been purchased by Mr. Sellars on Government account, and if so from whom, how much, and at what cost, and where the said fish now is, and what charges, if any, are now being incurred thereon.
- (i) For copies of all correspondence and accounts in connection with Purchased by Mr. Sellars on Government account, and the originals or copies of all cheques issued by or to Mr. Sellars connected therewith, and of the charter party of the "President Coaker."
- (j) Whether he personally arranged with Mr. Sellars to buy for the Government, and for the sale of the cargo of the "President Coaker" to Mr. Sellars, and if he personally arranged with Mr. Sellars for the charter of the "President Coaker," and the advance of money on account of freight, and whether in all the transactions between himself and Mr. Sellars, in this connection he acted as Minister and also President of the Union Trading or Union Export Co., and if not to inform the House who did act for the Government and the said Companies, or either of them respectively, in each of the above-mentioned transactions, and to give the answers hereto in writing.

HON THE PRIME MINISTER:-

The reply to this question was tabled yesterday, and the department is now endeavouring to get a list of those who sold fish to Mr. Sellars.

Mr. Fox asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House copies of all cables passing between the Marine and Fisheries Department, the Hon. W. F. Coaker, and for the Advisory Board, and each and all Newfoundland Trade Commissioners abroad since November last, together with a memorandum showing the total cost of said cables and instructions under which they were sent, etc.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have a memorandum from the Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries and which I beg to table, in the absence of the Minister.

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House a statement showing:

- (a) The number and cost in detail of all radiograms, cablegrams and telegrams passing between him and the Marine and Fisheries Department from the time of his departure from the Colony in January until his return last week;
- (b) Of the same between himself and his department or any of its officials;
- (c) Between himself and the Codfish Exportation Board or any of its officials;
- (d) Between himself and the Trade Commissioners or any of the parties purporting to act in the Government's interest and the Fisheries Department, the Codfish Exporters Board or any other persons or organizations, and to accompany this statement with copies.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That information is being prepared.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Martin Gosse, brother of Geo. Gosse,

M.H.A., for Harbor Grace, was employed by the Fisheries Department as an inspector of fish at Dark Tickle, Labrador, last summer; if so, how much was he paid for his services; also if the said Martin Gosse in such capacity inspected fish belonging to the firm of G. & M. Gosse, in which his brother and himself are partners, and if so, how much; also if it is the policy of the Fisheries Department to permit a member of a firm to inspect its own fish and if he considers that certificate of inspection issued under such conditions are of any value whatever.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That information was tabled yesterday.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to lay upon the table of the House an answer to a question of Mr. Walsh on Order Paper of the 19th.

At half past three of the clock a deputation representing the workmen appeared at the Bar of the House, and through their Chairman, Mr. Edward Whitty, presented a petition and resolution, which were presented to Mr. Speaker, who directed the clerk to read it to the House.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I am sure, Sir, that every member of the Legislature sitting on both sides of the House, extends to the representatives of the workingman now at the Bar of this House, a hearty welcome, and not only a hearty welcome but a sincere appreciation of the interest they are taking in the problems affecting the Colony today. Those of us here, members of this House, are representatives of the people, who go to the polls every four years for re-election to office. So the people of this country, the working man and every other man and perchance some day the woman, have the right and I am glad to see them availing themselves of the opportunity, to express their opinions upon the policy and programme of those gentlemen who occupy seats in this chamber. Not only every four years do we go to the polls, but we as legislators are ever desirous of getting in touch with the sentiments of the working man and all others and being at the same time representatives of various districts, we keep in touch with the sympathies of our constituents so that they may be properly represented and their welfare safe-guarded in this chamber. It consequently gives me great pleasure, being the senior representative for St. John's West, to find that the gentlemen present are constituents of mine and to hear their expression of opinion but the deputation means more than that. These gentlemen present at the Bar of the House are the representatives of a large number of working people who are keenly interested in the subject matter of this petition and secondarily although it is not referred to in the petition, directly yet indirectly the question of unemployment is discussed. In extending a warm welcome to those present at the Bar of this chamber, I desire not only to include the working man but also the distinguished presence of a lady as one of the delegation awaiting upon us in connection with this matter. I extend the privileged welcome to this lady because the problems which affect the working man, affect the woman and necessarily the home. The working man is the husband and to get back to the old Anglo-Saxon expression, "the man has bound the home together, and by his efforts and by his chance of remuneration, the woman and the child must necessarily benefit or suffer. So I am glad and proud to see a lady identified with this petition. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will not refer to the recitals but will go to the request directly. First it is asked that the Fishery Regulations be repealed. With regard to the policy of the Government in this connection I will not discuss at the present time. The deputation present is of a non-political character but the Fishery Regulations have been the source of prolonged political debate in this House and therefore I will only refer to the fact that the Cod Fish Exportation Act which was passed during the last session of the legislature and under which the Regulations became law, is to be repealed as will appear from a notice of a Bill for second reading in to-day's order paper. The second part of the request deals with the repeal of the War Measures Act. The War Measures Act should have gone out of force upon the proclamation of peace, but a latter act was passed continuing the War Measures Act for a further period of six months after the proclamation of peace. I propose to give notice of a Bill during the afternoon amending the subsequent act so that the War Measures Act will go out of force immediately. The War Measures Act during the last six months was used for two purposes, and two purposes only. As there has been a considerable appearance of a great lack of employment both in St. John's and in the Outports, it was proposed to give employment, and in so doing it was necessary to invoke the aid of the War Measures Act in this that to cut pulp wood upon Crown land it was absolutely impossible to do so except under this Act and it is the intention of the Government to introduce an Act confirming the action of the Executive Government and thereby making it possible to cut pulp wood and have it exported. The other purpose for which it was used during the past two months was with reference to the seal fishery. An act dealing with the Seal Fishery did not permit steamers to sail except under certain circumstances and on certain dates. This had been necessary because steamers such as the Florizel and the Stephano prosecuted the fishery. These were high powered boats, the like of which we have not to-day participating in the voyage. With the disappearance of such high powered ships it was necessary to make a change in the law dealing with the date of sailing and the Executive Government could only exercise this power under the War Measures Act. It is proposed to introduce a measure amending the sealing law so that the Governor in Council shall have power to deal with this matter without the aid of legislation passed here. The third matter to which reference is made is the abolition of the Food Control Board. It was appointed under an act passed in this legislature in the year 1917. That act was amended so that the constitution of the Board may be enlarged from three members to six. In the year 1920 the constitution was enlarged from three to six members. In its inception the Board consisted of Sir P. T. McGrath as chairman, Mr. George Grimes and Mr. H. LeMessurier together with the other members of that Board. By the Act passed during the last session of the legislature the number of the Board was enlarged to six and the Board as then re-appointed consisted of Mr. Alex. Mews as chairman in place of Sir P. T. McGrath, who was not removed by the Government but who resigned, Mr. H. LeMessurier continues on, Mr. Grimes who had been a former member had left town and he resigned. Mr. Noel was appointed in addition to Mr. McGrath, then President of 'Longshoremen's Union, and the ex-President of the Board of Trade was appointed a member. That was the Control Food Board in existence during the current fiscal year. In December and January last I was asked to look into the sugar control. And I called a meeting at my office at the Court House, and there attended at the meeting a large number of persons interested in the handling of sugar, together with the members of the Control Board. Every man who was handling sugar in lots of ten barrels made it his business to attend.

What was the personnel of the delegation or committee at the meeting I do not remember, but the sugar dealers were well represented. The N. I. W. A. as well as other extensive divers interests were also fully represented. The matter was fully discussed, and it was decided that if the Regulations were taken off the Colony would have to face a substantial loss on sugar account. The meeting was of the unanimous opinion that the attempted policy of the control of the food prices in the declining market could not be satisfactorily handled by the board. It was said that it was hard enough for the business men who devoted so much of their time to the question and got little result even under the best circumstances. The board fully realised that those who handled the sugar question in Canada and in the United States had to adopt certain measures, and every one lost when the big slump came, so they came down to the point whether it would be better to keep on the sugar regulations and work them out so as to prevent any loss to the Colony or as little as possible, or whether it was advisable to remove them, and then the Colony, being confronted with a big loss on the transaction, introduce legislation to recoup the loss. The matter was discussed at considerable length. The decision was this. I might say first that the public were asked by the Government to discuss frankly and wholeheartedly as business men and as representative citizens the sugar question and consequently the welfare of Newfoundland, and give opinions as to the wisest course to pursue at that time. The unanimous decision was this, that in the interests of the Colony and in the interests of the community that the sugar regulations should be maintained. Various arguments why they should be so were advanced. The object of the board was to keep the prices down, which would mean that the individual consumer would just save in proportion to the amount of sugar he consumed and this kept the prices down more so than if another and different policy had been pursued. So if the policy worked out successfully the consumer would save in proportion to the amount of sugar he consumed, and if the policy worked out unsuccessfully the result was that the consumer would bear his loss in proportion to the amount of sugar he consumed. And there have been losses. This could be done in two ways. Either the regulations could be kept on or have the people pay a small tax on sugar so that in any case the loss would be borne in proportion to the amount consumed. But the argument reached the point when the ex-president of the N. I. W. A. took the floor and stated that the best course to follow in the interests of the people he represented and with whom he worked, and with whom he was identified, was to have the operation done with and have it over and have the regulations maintained until they worked themselves out, and it was estimated that would be some time in June. Therefore those who consumed a large quantity would have to bear a large loss and those who consumed a small amount would only have to bear a small loss, while those who consumed none at all would have no loss to bear at all. The decision was not final, however, because I was not sufficiently satisfied owing to the situation developing among the poor which would make it impossible to carry out the programme successfully, so the decision of the members of the board present was that the regulations should come off at any time on a thirty days notice. The reason of this thirty days notice was this: The sugar dealers would have an opportunity to have their sugar stocks distributed through out Newfoundland by the time the regulations were lifted. The sugar dealers were not prepared to carry stocks unless this was complied with, unless they had a guarantee that the regulations would be maintained for a sufficient number of days to enable those who had quantities of sugar to dispose of the same. So it was accordingly decided that a thirty days notice would be given. At the request, Sir, of the gentlemen, if I may also refer to the lady in this instance as a man, who constitute the committee representing the workingmen of the city, the Government has determined that the thirty days' notice shall be given, announcement of which fact I am informed has already been made in the newspapers.

Consequently, Sir, it gives me very great pleasure to inform the committee through you that the entire matter covered in the resolutions that have been so courteously presented to this House this afternoon has not only been considered but has been acted upon.

We are happy, Sir, to find so many representatives of the workingmen of the city gathered together here under the flag that stands for so much and is so dear to all of us. We are glad that they have so well succeeded in laying before this House a plan for dealing with a situation of such vital importance to all, and two points of which have already been carried out. That $50,000 for the Long Bridge is a specific vote for that purpose to work in conjunction with the municipality. It was my intention, with the concurrence of the Minister of Public Works, Mr. Jennings, with whom I did not have the opportunity of discussing this matter before, and he hears it now for the first time, and I trust he will pardon me, to ask the Public Works Department to permit the expenditure of that money jointly by the City Engineer and by the Government Engineer, and to permit that money to be made immediately available for any wages as were found necessary to be paid before the Royal Bank of Canada will be able to finalize its loan proposition. Thus my answer to the first question is that $50,000 is put to the credit of the Department of Public Works, and which I know will have the personal attention of my friend, Mr. Jennings, who I am sure will see that it is judiciously disposed of in the way indicated. The $150,000 will be met, principal and interest, in the way required by the manager of the Royal Bank of Canada and in accordance with the procedure which always has been followed in connection with such guarantees.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Act 6, Geo. V. Cap. 4, entitled, 'An Act to Amend the War Measures Act, 1914.'"

Sir J. C. Crosbie moved, and Hon. the Prime Minister seconded the following resolution, with unanimous consent of the House:

"RESOLVED: That this House desires to place on record an expression of its disapproval of the article which appeared in 'The Daily Star' newspaper of April 19th, under the heading, 'The Book of Habakkuk.'"

This resolution was carried unanimously.

On motion the debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until tomorrow.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, In rising to support the amendment now under discussion, I do so, Sir, for the purpose of putting on record my position in connection with this matter, and my desire to have the Fish Regulations stricken off the Statute Book for all time. They were given a trial far beyond their merits. It was seen from the start that they were going to cause considerable loss, and that they were going to have disastrous results. The predictions that were made, particularly by members of this side of the House, have been fully borne out, and far-reaching and disastrous results have followed the enforcement of the Regulations. I wish to point out that no personal or abusive tactics will be used by me in discussing this matter, and I trust that hon. members on the other side of the House will feel that anything I say does not refer to them individually; but it refers to them collectively; it refers more to members of the Government than to members of the party. The criticisms that I am about to make are based on information which has been tabled in this House since this Legislature met three weeks ago; and I think, Sir, we are fully justified in criticising the members of the Government on their record for the past eighteen months.

Before I go into the thing fully, I would like to refer briefly to the speech which the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries made in this House the day before yesterday. It was published in his official organ, "The Evening Advocate." In reading over the Minister's speech there are several points that struck my notice, and some of them are very applicable to conditions in this country today. I notice, Sir, he says that in France the people changed their Government four times since the war. Well, if conditions in France were anything like the conditions that we are up against here in Newfoundland, I do not wonder at the Frenchmen having changed four times; and the only thing that surprises me is that we have not changed this Government twenty-four times.

Mr. Coaker gets off a lot of hot air in his speech. Whether it is for the purpose of bull-dozing us or whether he thinks that the members on this side of the House and the country generally are not as conversant with public affairs both here as well as in the Old World as he is, I do not know. He asks we very plausibly and very diplomatically were the Regulations to blame for the Norwegian Government dumping all the fish caught by the Norwegians during the years 1917-18-19 upon all our foreign markets last years and given out on consignment and at any price. No, Sir, we do not propose to say that the Regulations were responsible for this; but, Sir, that is what I call blind-folding the devil in the dark. Why did not the Minister tell this House and this country what was responsible for the low price for Norwegian fish? He knows as well as you do, Mr. Speaker, that the Norwegian catch for 1917-18 was not disposed of, he knows that the British Government bought that fish and paid for that fish to keep it from going into German markets. That is why the Norwegian Government dumped their fish and undersold us; but they did not lose anything like what the Minister would try and have us believe. The Minister says that they lost hundreds of thousands of dollars. Well, he is either mistaken or he does not know what he is talking about.

Mr. Coaker goes on to say in his speech that the reason we are suffering in Newfoundland today is because of the way in which the Fishery Regulations were carried out. Yes, he is quite right in that assertion. We are suffering because of the Regulations and are suffering a great deal more because of the way in which the Regulations were carried out. If all one can hear is true, there was rampant discrimination practised in the carrying out of the Regulations. One man could inspect his own fish and have it passed, and another man had better fish turned down; one man could get a permit to ship his fish to the foreign markets, and another had his fish held up for months. Mr. Coaker also says that the Act was not given the necessary power for enforcement. He took good care to have all the power he wanted to have them enforced, and he enforced them until the exporters would not stand for it any longer.

There is one thing in his speech that I must say I agree with to a great extent, and that is the statement that nothing could be accomplished by lifting the Regulations in January last. I agree with that as far as Portugal was concerned, but only as far as Portugal was concerned, because, Sir, the men who advocated the lifting of them in Portugal went against the advice of the men who had staked their all in that market. I made this same statement here last Monday week in speaking on the Speech from the Throne. The men who had fish in Portugal controlled ninety per cent. of the fish there. The Minister and others who owned 90 per cent. of the fish in Portugal begged the individual members of the Government to prohibit the exportation of any more fish to Portugal until the 3rd of April; but no heed was paid by those members of the Government who knew nothing, and cared less, of the conditions that existed in Portugal; and they sacrificed such men and firms like Mr. Samuel Harris, the Marystown Trading Company, Mr. Joseph Sellars and the Union Export Company, who were the people who owned ninety per cent. of the fish that last were sold at a profit. Well if those all-wise people in St. John's lifted the Regulations. I do not know whether they were trying to get back at Mr. Coaker or what was their intention, but evidently Mr. Coaker was knifed. These firms that I referred to had their fish sold, provided there was no other shipments made from this country before the 3rd of April. What happened? Those buyers in Portugal, when the information was flashed over the cables that the Regulations had been lifted—those people who were prepared to pay a high price for our fish—said no, we are not going to buy now at your price, we are going to wait, as there will be lots of fish over here in a little while, and we are going to buy at our own price. The consequence is that four firms dropped hundreds of thousands of dollars over that transaction, and these firms will be considerably hampered from outfitting and supplying fishermen the coming season for the fishery. I would not like to have to face the contingencies that some Hon. members in this House have to face. Some of them will not have the nerve to go back for re-election, because they know what is before them. Mr. Coaker further said in his speech that the Act is utterly valueless at present. Yes, and the Government is making a death-bed repentance by having it repealed at this late date.

Mr. Coaker tells us that most of the exports of codfish up to January last were sold at a profit. Well if most of the exports were sold at a profit, why all this outcry? Why this tale of woe that we have been listening to—Why those rumours of insolvency on Water Street? There is something wrong somewhere. If all the sales of fish made up to the end of January last were made at a profit surely things cannot be so bad with the merchants as one is led to suppose.

Then the Minister of Marine and Fisheries refers to salt again. So far as stocking salt previous to this year is concerned there may be some excuse, but there is no reason why it is necessary for the Government to go into the sale business again this year. Surely after looking over the record of the big muddle made on importations last year, and recognising the fact that there is any amount of salt around the country, and recognising the fact that there is no likelihood of a shortage, what explanation can the Government give for buying five thousand tons of salt recently on the other side. It would be all very well while the war was on, but now the war is over. We want the merchants of the country, to carry on the business of the country and we do not want any interference from the Government. Later on Mr. Coaker went on to say that he did not think the men of the north would condemn him, because, as he says himself, I got clear of their fish for them when disaster faced them. He is quite right. He took jolly good care of his own supporters in the north who had Labrador fish to sell; but what provision did he make for those fishermen north who had shore fish to sell and what provision did he make for those who had shore fish to sell on the West Coast, the South Shore and all the other districts. I want him to forget that when he comes into the House of Assembly that he does not really represent any one constituency alone; he does not represent Twillingate or Bonavista or Trinity, but he represents with the rest of us, the people of Newfoundland. He seems to have lost sight of that fact, that they are all his people. We are members of the House of Parliament of Newfoundland, not members of the House of Parliament of Trinity, Bonavista or Port Union.

Then the Hon. gentleman comes in here with his appeal after what Sir Michael Cashin had told this House. The Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries had stated that we are up against conditions to-day which we never had to face before, to which Sir Michael Cashin replied, you have brought them on yourself. The Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries went on to say, it does not matter who is responsible, it is of no use talking about what has been done, but what is to be done in the future. This is not the time to be thrashing this matter out in the House, the Fishermen will soon be coming here for supplies. Then he goes on to say, for what I am responsible I am ready to take my medicine, but I don't think that the Hon. gentleman can be sincere. He wants us to carry on with the business here. As there was no mention of abolishing the Fish Regulations in the Speech from the Throne, we brought in an Amendment to that Speech to compel the Government to abolish them. When Mr. Higgins was speaking here the other day, he asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries if it was his intention to vote for this Amendment. After the question had been put to him ten or fifteen times, he said No. Does that show that he was sincere in his wish for us to get down to business. We were prepared to put that to the vote at once, but for some reason, best known to himself he refused to vote for that Amendment. This Amendment would have the same effect as the Bill which the Government are going to introduce, then if the Hon. Mr. Coaker was sincere in his statements why did he not vote for it. Why didn't his supporters vote for it. Those men knew that their leader was knifed while he was on the other side over the fish deal with Portugal. Now why don't they insist that the right thing be done in this matter.

Now to get back. I listened with the closest attention to the remarks of the Hon. Minister, the father of the Regulations, the man who had staked his all on them, and I must say that he has been man enough to get up and admit that he has made a mistake, and he has given a pledge to this House that the Regulations will be repealed, and he has given notice of a bill for that purpose, and that bill is now to be tabled. His reply, sir, to the criticisms of several speakers on this side of the House who have been denouncing the policy of the Government for the past three weeks, is not the speech that one would have looked for from him. The weak excuse put forward by him in no way palliates the criminal waste, folly, and extravagance, and lack of statesmanship as shown by the Government now in power. His excuses, his pleas for mercy will not bring back to the people of the country the hundreds of thousands of dollars lost to the country because of the enforcement of the Fish Regulations. We expected him, sir, to put forward some plausible reason, which would account for the conditions now in the country, we expected him to make some pronouncement as to how they were going to get us out of this hole, in which the mad policy of the Government has placed the country, but there is nothing doing. We have waited in vain, Sir, for the Prime Minister to make some statement and give us an outline of his intended policy, if policy he has, and show this House and the people of the country how he expects to avoid the breakers ahead, and in fact all round us. I do not want to be personal in my remarks. For the Hon. the Prime Minister in private life I have the highest respect. He is an educated gentleman, and one who could uphold his position anywhere, but as a politician he is a misfit. He lacks the statesmanship and ability which he thought he had. He fails in leadership, because a man who cannot control cannot lead, and I am sure it has been proven to one and all, that the Prime Minister has had no control, of the Government. He has allowed himself to be dictated to in the interests of certain sections of the country, to the great detriment of other parts of it. With reference to the policy of the great Liberal Reform Party which has been going on since you took office. You have, sir, gone into it with your eyes open. You know at the last session of this House, it was pointed out to you from this side that you were going to jump too fast, that we were going to pass through a very trying time, the aftermath of the War, you would be faced with a greatly depleted purchasing power, a drop of from twenty-three to twelve million dollars, surely it was unnecessary to tell you that with your purchasing power dropped to that extent there must be a falling off in the Revenue, it was impossible to get a revenue like the preceding years. Our predictions on this side of the House, have been verified. Instead of a revenue of twelve million dollars which you anticipate, or perhaps you only anticipated eleven, your revenue to-day or rather on June 30th will not exceed seven million dollars, and when you come to realise that it is necessary to have twelve million dollars to carry on the country a child can see what is before us. With a large falling off in the Revenue, a loss of one hundred and ninety-five thousand dollars on Sugar, a loss on Salt, and a loss of one million or one and a half million dollars on that pet scheme of the Government, the Railway, you can realise where we are and where we are going. You gentlemen who compose that Government, members of the Executive are you not proud of the position you are in to-day? Will you be able to say to your constituents, we have come back to you, judge us on our record? You can imagine what will happen you. They will not say, "Well done good and faithful servant." No, I know what they will say and so do you. Never in the history of the country have conditions been so bad, so appalling as today. You members of the Government, great big men who were going to do wonders came into power eighteen months ago, with everything possible to have in your favour. You came in here with the confidence of the people of Newfoundland, backed by a great big overwhelming vote, you came in here with an overflowing Treasury, a big surplus of $3\frac{1}{2}$ or 4 million dollars which you could draw on. Where is that surplus to-day? I am up here now and I am criticising you but I can sincerely say in my heart of hearts I am sorry for you reformers, sorry for you, because you have the people of the country down on you. It is not local, it is not only in St. John's, but all over the country. You came into power, sir, when the people of the country, were contented, peaceful, prosperous and happy.

You came in as Trustees of that surplus, which I referred to before. If your leader, Sir, had been a politician he would have been more conciliating, but he was a big man at that time he had a country behind him, and he thought he could attack with impunity the men on this side of the House, he thought his Organ could say what they liked about the men here, if they dared to open their mouths. If a man made an error, of grammar he was sneered at. That may be politics but it is not the kind that I want nor the majority of the men on this side or the other side of the House want either. If we opened our mouths we were sneered at. If the Hon. the Prime Minister had adopted different tactics he would have the men on this side of the House standing by him to-day, and helping him to take the country out of the rotten condition that his mad-cap policy has brought it into. Now, Sir what have you reformers done in your eighteen months of office? Can you show one measure beneficial to the country, a measure that will have for its aim and object the betterment of the masses. What have you done for the stimulation of Trade? That was what the country needed what the people were looking for, what they expected from you reformers. What really happened? Whenever it was possible to do the wrong thing you did it every time, with your Fish Regulations, Sugar Regulations, Railway deals, Salt deals. You have proceeded at a head-long gallop to bring this country as low as it is possible for a country to go, and yet recover. I do not say it is hopeless, but we have made a bad start and what we need is harmony and unity, whether that harmony and unity can be acquired by the present Government composed as it is, I have no doubts. Men on both sides of the House realise that we are in a very awkward position, and it will require the best brains and ability of the public men of Newfoundland to deal with it, if we are going to be kept off the rocks. You gentlemen on that side of the House, you have to face a terrible indictment. You are here giving an account of your stewardship, and that stewardship is one that you cannot be very proud of. What has brought about this change in the people? The people are awake, they realize where we are going and whither tending, and they realize the criminal waste, and folly, and extravagance of the Government, are responsible for the conditions we are now up against. There is want all over the country, and I heard Sir Michael Cashin state to-day that there are people starving all over the country. I will tell you of an incident that occurred in my district. While we were here yesterday a telegram was placed on my desk stating that a young man in Placentia Bay had just died of starvation, and want of proper clothing. Isn't that something for the twentieth century? Isn't that a record we ought to be proud of, and that is only one instance. When I spoke here after my return from England, I said that a woman on the West Shore of Placentia Bay had died of starvation last winter, now we have a young man of nineteen years of age who died from the same cause. Look at what happened here today. Hundreds of men and women coming up here and pleading for work. Never since I have been in public life have I seen anything like it, and it should not be. The surplus which you had left to you, you have wasted and you cannot give the people employment because you have no money to carry on the public works. Now, Sir, with reference to the statement made here this afternoon by the Hon. the Prime Minister, that the Fish Regulations were going to be abolished, and the Sugar Regulations would be abolished, and that the War Measures Act would be abandoned or amended, it is quite clear to the men on this side of the House and I think to the people of the country that up to a few days ago the Government had no intention of abolishing the Fish Regulations, or the Sugar Regulations, or the War Measures Act, we come to that conclusion by its omission from the Speech from the Throne. The Prime Minister knew that the people were up in arms over the Fish Regulations and the Sugar Control. Then if it was the intention of the Government to abolish these Regulations, don't you think that they would have taken the first opportunity of telling the people of the country so. The people of the West Coast, and the South Coast were up in arms over these matters, and the people of the North although they were paid for their fish with Government money, many of them were opposed to the Fish Regulations. The reason they were taken off is that the men on this side of the House backed by the people insisted that they be taken off. Your policy, Sir, has been one of strangulation of trade instead of stimulation as we expected. Now,

Sir, as I stated before we are here as representatives of the people, not one section of the country but the whole country as every man in this House should be. We are criticising your extravagance, your failures, and as we made you repeal the Fish Regulations and the Sugar Regulations, so surely will we see to it in future that you carry out a sound and sane policy, and we will keep you from going outside this House and on Executive responsibility wasting the finances of the country. We will see that in future if an extraordinary emergency arises that this House be convened immediately to deal with it, and get proper authority from this legislature for any course of action to be adopted, and not to go away and take over the Railway on Executive responsibility as you did last year a few days after the closing of the House, not to take a half million dollars from the Treasury to purchase Labrador Fish from a certain section of the country, to the detriment of other parts of the island. Now while I am on this matter I would like to refer to a few replies which I received in answer to questions asked. I might say for the information of the men on both sides of the House, that at the last session my colleagues and myself received a pledge from the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that he would erect a Fog Alarm in St. Mary's Bay. The people there for many years have been crying out for a fog alarm. It is only a few years ago a boat was lost, on one of the docks in St. Mary's Bay and if the fog alarm had been there then those men would be alive to-day. The answer I got is as follows: That the Government had decided to erect a fog alarm, but in view of the detrenchment policy the Government feared they would be unable to carry out their pledge.

That is the kind of stuff we have to put up with. A half million dollars can be taken out of the Treasury to buy Labrador fish from a certain section of the country, and we cannot get one or two thousand dollars to put up an aid to navigation, and not alone would that fog alarm be a benefit to St. Mary's Bay, but to every man who follows the sea for a calling, and when the Estimates come in my colleagues and myself will have something to say about this matter.

Another thing, last year we read about a most important thing. There was going to be a directional wireless station erected on the South Coast. I wish the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was here, and he would endorse everything I say about that wireless station. In reply to my question of what the Government intended doing with reference to establishing another directional wireless signal station, the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries informed this House that negotiations were going on, but that nothing definite had been decided. Well, it is time something was decided about this important aid to navigation. Are we to wait for another marine disaster before the Government wakes up and realises the importance of this matter? It was only on our trip down from Sydney that we realized the great value and importance of the wireless directional station. With the assistance of a wireless directional station a ship can come into St. John's even if she has been out in the fog a month. When we were coming down on the "Kyle" we got out of the ice some distance south of St. Pierre, and in a dense fog. We got in touch with the wireless directional station at Canso, and later got in touch with the station at Cape Race. When we heard the horn at Cape Race it was direct ahead, as the captain told us it would be. If there was a directional station on the South Coast no more ships with a wireless outfit would go ashore.

Now just a word for the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. There is no excuse for him whatever. There is every reason why there should be a telegraph office and telephone communication at St. Shott's and Cape Pine. We left the poles there all ready to be used, and we left the money to do the work. Now after eighteen months in office the Minister comes in here and says that the work has not been completed. Then he goes on to say that the people at St. Shott's objected to the line taken to St. Shott's and wanted it to Trepassey instead of Peter's River. Surely, Sir, we do not have to stand for this. I have gone to the Minister several times, but I hope, Sir, that it will not be necessary for me to go again.

Now, Sir, regarding the sugar business, I see the regulations will be lifted the 20th of May. On the 29th February, according to the Auditor General's report, we were out $195,000.00, nearly $200,000.00, and I doubt if the amount is much smaller now. We are going to lose at least $100,000.00. Is not this sufficient evidence that the Government ought to go out of the commission business? I would like to have a statement tabled showing how much the Government has lost on sugar, how much was lost on the amount purchased in Montreal, and the amount of 50 tons bought from a friend in New York.

I have here, Mr. Speaker, the Comptrollers and Auditor General's Report. It is an eye-opener. I believe there are members on the other side of the House and even members of the Executive who have not seen this report yet. They told us last year that there would not be a big supplementary estimate ever brought in again. Now look at this. In the first place there are 65 new appointments and salaries. What do you think of that? Perhaps some of the gentlemen on the other side can tell me who some of the gentlemen are as we come along to them. The Posts and Telegraphs Department shows an expenditure of $107,000. The amount asked for and voted in this connection was $50,000, thus showing an expenditure over the amount voted of $57,000. Then we come to the Department of Marine and Fisheries. This you must remember is only up to the 29th of February. Inspectors' salaries, $32,794.30; general expenses, $8,557. Then there is the lobster propagation. The amount voted was $23,000, and the amount expended was $34,000, an increase of $11,000. If that, gentlemen, is not criminal waste, I don't know what is; $34,000 for a few lobsters, or giving a few fellows a job. Now listen to this, gentlemen. See where your money goes: Furniture for the lunatic asylum, $31,449; furniture for the sanatorium over $48,000. Salaries and motor services for where? over $21,000. Consolidation of the laws over $17,000. Gentlemen, isn't this great? Then there is the coal exploration, pit-prop account, and the airplane account.

I saw here somewhere where we were paying someone to take care of the Carbonear fire hall. What have we got to do with the Carbonear fire hall? That should be paid out of the road grants.

Now, Sir, the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the course of his remarks stated that the Regulations were an artificial prop. But he did not state in what way they were a prop. What has been propped up by him? The Fish Regulations, Sir, have done one thing: they have succeeded in alienating from us our fish markets, and it will be a long time before we get the good-will of those markets again. But the country will be thankful that the Opposition have succeeded in getting the Regulations removed from the Statute Books, and before we are finished we are going to have other obnoxious legislation removed also.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, may I, Sir, once again crave the indulgence of this House for a few minutes. In doing so, Sir, I feel very sad, very sad indeed, that there is an attempt being made to bring about in this country a split between man and man, and he who is guilty of that thing will find that one day it will fall on his own head. I am not referring very much to the Daily Star of today, but to yesterday's. In the editorials of yesterday one Dr. Mosdell, assisted by one Anderson Squires, I have no doubt whatever about that, refer to my threat on that paper, that if I did not get satisfaction by appeal to the owner I would get it in another way. I did not appeal to mob violence to shut up the Star. That could be done by the simpler method of issuing a writ, and I understand that a writ for about $6000.00 has already been issued.

Hid away in a corner of yesterday's Star is an article which is a standing disgrace. An honest attempt was made by the members of the Opposition to help the country, but if any man on this side of the House after the appearance of that article, except Mr. Bennett, co-operated with the Government in any way I would consider that he did not have a drop of good blood in his veins. It is full of blasphemy, and is the vilest stuff that has ever appeared in the public press of this country. This is not good enough from you, Sir, and I am not going to stand here as a Protestant and take it from you, by jingo. I am tired serving notices on you regarding the rotten stuff that has been appearing in this paper, and a man who is Prime Minister of this Colony assisting with a rag of this kind.

It is one of the most disgraceful articles ever written. You may sit with your eyes closed, Mr. Squires, but you know about it and you stand in my sight today as the most condemned man who ever sat in the Premier's chair. Now I will appeal to Mr. Warren and the other Protestant gentlemen opposite. Criticism is alright, but the man who gets down to such depths as to blaspheme the religion to which he belongs is a cur. I would like to have the Hon. Mr. Foote and other members here to hear this article read. Instead of having to deal with such filth, this House should be getting down to business and trying to save the country from ruin. We are faced by a serious problem to-day, the Government cannot save the situation and when such articles as this appear, how can they expect this side to help them. This article is indecent, dirty and low and I don't think there is one member on the other side but will hang his head in shame when he hears it. There is only one place for the writer, jail. The one who sits down and writes such stuff is a cad and a scoundrel. Listen, gentlemen, and tell me or the country afterwards what you think of the man who issues a paper, the mouthpiece of the Government, and which goes forth broadcast to stir up religious bickering and strife. It is written by a hand which is cloaked, but is used to the business.

Gentlemen, how long are you going to stand that kind of thing? How long is Mr. Warren going to stand it? Will it be for any length of time? Is this article intended to try and stir up strife among the city men. If that be so the young Tribune will find they are different from the rest. I am here, as a Protestant to-day, say this is not in the interests of friendly feeling and good-fellowship. It is the deed of a warped mind.

(Continues reading).

"Will drink Protestant rum." Was there ever such a thing written in the history of the country before. Can we stand idle and let it go by? I appeal to all who know right from wrong, is this to be permitted. Every citizen has certain rights that should be respected.

Isn't it lovely Scripture to go forth to the world and broadcast thru the Island. Have we so far forgotten ourselves and fallen so low as not to protest. I won't stand for it even if I have to do the trick myself.

(Continues reading)

I take it as Mr. Warren apparently does and consider it both contemptible and cowardly. He, like myself, realizes these writings must come to a stop.

(Continues reading)

"Smacks were exchanged." I know nothing about them.

(Continues reading)

Oh, gentlemen, isn't this beautiful literature for a man to bring into his house and lay before his children; and the one responsible for it hangs his head in shame.

What beautiful sarcasm on Scripture to those who know what is right. But there is something more serious behind this than some may think. The country is being sacrificed to-day through the stirring up of petty religious feeling. I appeal to the gentlemen opposite to oppose this to the best of their ability. If it continues something is going to happen and no man can tell what. If ever a blasphemous, scurrilous article appeared this is the finish. After reading this I can understand why the Government is gone.

Mr. Speaker, you are in a most unique position to-day to have to sit here under the most scurrilous article ever read in the House, and I am sorry to have been the one to bring it up. Now what do you say Messrs. Winsor, Abbott, Jennings and the rest of you. There are lots of things done by a man in the heat of a political fight in order to gain votes that I hold nothing against him for. But when things have settled down, why should every one opposed to him be subjected to dirty attack and held up to ridicule. Why was this done all through the year in the Star. Has it been done in the Telegram, Advocate or News? No, and the only reason it was carried on in the Star is because the great stock in trade of Robert the Tribune is to make Catholic hate Protestant and Protestant hate Catholic. That's your stock in trade, Sir. I have been appealed to by members of the Government to help them out of the present situation, out of the difficulties into which they have plunged the country. But I would prefer to get out of the House for ever and ever than be here debating writings so despicable that the Prime Minister himself is ashamed of them. I want to say to you, men in the gallery, that while the country is going to the dogs we are kept here dickering over this filth and trash.

Can you expect me or Mr. Bennett or any of the Opposition to help the Government out of its serious situation? They can't get help from me, nor I think from Mr. Bennett. No man should be guilty of allowing such articles to be written. I asked you, Mr. Premier, a few days ago to have them stopped. The people came here today to ask for bread, to have obnoxious regulations lifted, and to the best of your ability you are going to do it. Still you allow this stuff, which takes up so much time in debating, to be published. Why not rise above all this contemptible stuff, say: "I am the young tribune," go up to your office and perform the work which the people expect. But no, your brain is warped. I am as responsible to the people of my district, to the Catholics as well as Protestants, as you are to those of yours, and they want something practical done. Why can't you stop this thing? When I forgot little differences and sat in a chair near you, things were alright, but now I have to stand here and defend myself against charges of the lowest kind. The attack is made that I fought a strike here, but I never did it with the object of hurting the people. What I did was to fight for the power to discharge a man, and that was only fighting for my rights as an employer. That's the fact, and I don't care who knows it. My opponents tried to defeat me in the last election in Port de Grave by influencing the Catholic vote, but they could not do it. If a woman comes to me and asks for charity, I do not question what denomination she belongs to—all churches are alike to me in such a case. If my associates are prepared to stand for it, I am not going to have it, and am ready to stand alone. But they will not allow it to go on. Mr. Squires, can't you help in this matter and do something to save yourself? As sure as you continue these tactics, your crowd will desert you as they do not like your tricks. The fishermen today are asking for supplies, and we want no more of this stuff, which delays the business of the House. You want the hand of fellowship from me, but still we can't do anything because we have to deal with this trash. Why are the South and West Coasts sacrificed while we are doing nothing? Was there ever such an article written before? I realise fully as does the writer that the "hand above" will make him suffer for this. Would to God the Minister of Marine and Fisheries were here to listen to some of my stories, and I can tell you where the Prime Minister would be tomorrow. Men on the other side will agree with me that this is a matter clear of politics, and I believe they will not stand for it any longer. I don't want to go forth to my fellowmen with inflammatory speeches calculated to create the spirit of ill-feeling and spilling of blood, but I ask them to do right. I recall the Government cannot do everything, but the man responsible for this article is a disgrace to the country he was born in. I do not think I feel this situation more keenly than do Mr. Warren and Mr. Foote. For heaven's sake help your leaders to save them from themselves. Look at me, you representatives of the men from the North as well as the West. I am prepared to help in the present crisis, but cannot help feeling that this is the most scurrilous thing ever written. What are we going to do about it? One word I would like to say to Mr. Squires: cut out this stuff. I will have more to say if it is not stopped, as patience will cease to be a virtue. I ask the Attorney General and all others on the opposite side: do you want a fight from me and Mr. Bennett, or assistance? Issue the word, and this House goes no further. I am on my own responsibility today, and I say that nothing more will be done here than I can help, if this trouble is not stopped. I know that the Prime Minister has many troubles, but I will not help him till these attacks cease, or leave the floor till something is done in the matter. Sir M. P. Cashin may be a bull, or I may be a bull, but the Prime Minister has never seen my horns yet. I will stop the business of this House no matter what happens or what the results may be to me. I ask you now, Sir, coolly and calmly, to stop this thing. I say to you, gentlemen in the gallery, that this speech is made with the object of stopping this writing and in order to help the country, and I hope you will go away without any ill-feeling in your minds. I sincerely wish that Mr. Squires will see his mistake. I cannot stop any writings in "The News" or "Telegram," I have no power over them; I am only one man. But I ask you now to cut out this appealing to religion and sectarianism, to take the hand of fellowship and see if we cannot do something to save the country; help the people and quit yourself like a man. If the thing I complain of happens again, the row will begin.

MR. MACDONNELL:—I did not see the article in question at all, but my reason for making a few remarks is this: Any person in politics is apt to be blessed, or cursed, with political god-fathers. In yesterday's "Advocate" I saw that the people had sat in solemn conclave, in Port Rexton, a place I have never visited, discussed my affairs and decided to act in that capacity to me. Their intention was, because of some things I was alleged to have said, to drive me out of public life, as some years ago they did the present Prime Minister. Now, gentlemen, this is the august body which poses as judges of what has been appearing in the papers. I suggest to Messrs. Halfyard, Targett and Guppy to send them a copy of "The Star" at their next meeting and bring this article to their notice and let them pass judgment on the one responsible as they did on us.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I crave the indulgence of the House to follow the last two speakers. Like Mr. MacDonnell, I have not seen the article in question; I may say that I am not a very careful student of the press. I give all my support to Sir John Crosbie in his criticism of this article, as its style is blasphemous and its form such as to tend to the stirring up of strife in the community. All his observations are justified in full by the article as read. I am sorry, however, that he should preface his remarks by the suggestion that I was the writer or knew anything of the article. I don't think he meant just that, but having to denounce it and being indignant and somewhat excited, let himself be led away in his form of expression. I am not responsible for it. I stand up for anything I do. I do not think he intended to convey the impression that I was responsible when he stated so. His reference here is something like that to the $6,000 claim. It has always been in my power to liquidate my claims, and I hope to meet all others. That this claim will be liquidated I have every reason to believe. Beyond looking to my own responsibilities, however, as a creditor of "The Star," my duties end in this direction. My further connection with the paper is due entirely to my personal friendship with the editor and many of the staff. I have known Dr. Mosdell and Mr. St. John for years, and have every faith in their ability to control the paper well. As to the matter that goes in the paper, I know nothing. Sir John Crosbie a few days ago referred to an article in this paper, and I agreed with him that personalities were no part of real politics. Such are a fight among the newspapers only, to make a holiday. Legislation benefits nothing by it, the members are hurt and the reputation of the country abroad is damaged. Go to Boston, New York or London and you will find the papers there ahead of you saying one set of men are great fellows and the other a parcel of rogues. The papers on the other side of politics simply reverse the process and have the first set as rogues and the others as fine men. The result is that all are discredited, while this personal abuse and vicious attack goes forth in the press. Here in the House, however, when such is done, the man guilty generally takes steps not to have his name appear in the Hansard. Everyone who has heard the article in question read, must regret that it should have been published, and particularly do I resent the fact that my name has been treated lightly and joked with in a paper which I have been blamed with controlling. This paper is not a Government one, and may oppose it in a fortnight's time if the owners and directors are so concerned. I do not wish to suggest that the editorial writers will change their opinions over night. Sir John Crosbie must have heard me wrongly the other day.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—My impression was that you ran "The Star" but you say you do not own it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I could as a creditor proceed to wind up its affairs.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—This kind of thing must be stopped, and I am going to move a vote of censure that if these articles are continued all Government printing be taken from "The Star" and all perquisites from the Government to Dr. Mosdell be stopped.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I second the motion, if it amounts to a vote of censure on that article. I entirely agree with the sentiment expressed, and the sooner such writings are stopped the better. I am of the opinion that the country is being damaged by them. Last year this House lost night after night, and this year, too, hours have been spent in debate relating to personal matters. In my own case the dictionary has been pruned for words and expressions to use in connection with me and all my affairs. On my own part I have not used offensive language to anyone in the House. I am prepared to be aggressive but have always made it a point to show courtesy to opponents and not go beyond the point where references were fair or impute imbecility, clownishness, etc., to them.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You brought it on yourself. I can't listen to your hypocritical talk and will not listen to this. You are a political hypocrite of the worst kind

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I was stating that in any debate I had not been personally impudent to anyone here.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That is my feeling: that you are a hypocrite and I won't listen to your bluff. You will have to cart me out of here. You brought it all on yourself.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Ways may be found of getting you out all right. I did not, Mr. Speaker, on any occasion interrupt my honorable friend.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You were too great a coward. But you went to your dirty rag and attacked even my child. Sit down—you can't cure what you have done.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I am not responsible for what appears in "The Star." I concur with Sir John Crosbie that as far as the article in question is concerned it should be condemned.

MR. BENNETT:—I rise, Mr. Speaker, to support the resolution and to briefly express my views in relation to this article. I only heard part of it as read by Sir John Crosbie. I think the House will commend the action of Sir John in bringing this matter up as his doing so has gone far to remedy a state of affairs in this country that for years has been damaging us at home and abroad. We all must live here; we have all a stake in the country and to progress properly we must have common interests. If a wedge is driven between the people and encouragement given from any quarter to the passion and prejudice that has been apparent the last 7 or 8 years a man will not be judged according to his abilities but by the altar at which he worships. I ask you, gentlemen, if I have not always put my face against this cursed sectarianism. I have been associated with members of all denominations; I have been closely identified with Lord Morris, a Catholic, and I will not take second place to any man in the country on this question. I know as much, or more, of this matter than any man in the House as I have been connected with both Catholics and Protestants—and I have always deplored the efforts of some politicians to stir up religious feeling which has ever brought condemnation on the heads of the perpetrators. We are now in a position from which it needs the best of all to free us. This is no time for personal abuse, misrepresentation or blasphemous writing that has nothing but an injurious effect on the people. Let us be Newfoundlanders first, then Catholics or Protestants and we will be doing our duty by the people. We have a country worth fighting for, a country which is a pride to the Empire, a country whose name has been emblazoned high on the roll of honor by the blood of our sons, and are we to disgrace the fame these gallant lads won for us. Let an effort be made to cleanse the Press and make it fit to enter the homes of Newfoundland. Let the Prime Minister, who has influence with the Government press through the patronage on which they largely depend, serve notice on them to-morrow that nothing detrimental, such as the article complained of, is to be published by them. Let the Leader of the Opposition, if necessary, do the same with the other papers. Let the prestige of this House be felt throughout the land and then it will be possible for us to get down to legislation and secure the integrity of Newfoundland. I want no dirty line of ill-feeling and sectarianism while there are important questions to be solved. The present difficulties are so enormous, the responsibilities so great that any man may well shudder to face them. This was demonstrated this very afternoon when the hundreds of unemployed sent 10 or 12 orderly, dignified men to the Bar of this House with their message. It is unfortunate it is true, that this was necessary but we must take things as we find them. Hundreds were outside the building, but there was no dissension, they waited patiently to hear what steps were to be taken to relieve the distress among the people. Is this our response to those who sent us here to cure their troubles to relieve their wants? Must we be compelled to waste our time discussing blasphemous writings such as read here this afternoon. The Prime Minister in seconding the resolution has taken responsibility for this thing and it must be stopped. If that is done we will do everything possible to help the Government in forwarding legislation but we don't want to go to our homes after the House closes and pick up papers that are traducing us and holding us up to scorn before our families. They have even gone so far as to reflect on the physical defects of ourselves or children. Mr. Walsh referred to this kind of thing yesterday. This is not good enough and I appeal to the men of both sides to let this be the last of it and when each goes to his altar let him go, remembering he is a Newfoundlander, and God bless him.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I think the House will be unanimous in passing this resolution. I feel that Sir John Crosbie has done a service in bringing it in and that Hon. Mr. Squires in seconding it has expressed the sentiments of his party. I assure the House that as far as lays in my power this line of abuse and starting of sectarianism will be stopped. It is enough to drive one out of political life and I feel like retiring if it continues. The handling of this article may be a lesson to those who may think they can edit a paper in violation of all rights and proprieties.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I have no use for personal abuse in or out of a paper. When any objectionable article appears in the Star or Advocate I claim it does not represent the Government and the quicker it is stopped the better. I am prepared to vote for the motion and give it my heartiest support. I recognize it is a time that demands all our powers to get over and I took no notice of articles in the press as far as myself was concerned. I see, however, that others take them seriously and it is time for us to go on record and let the Press and public know we do not want it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE then moved the resolution which was carried unanimously as follows:

(Reads Resolution)

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal Cap. 18, 8, Geo. V., entitled 'The Food Control Act, 1917,'" and Acts in amendment thereof.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, April 21st, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Petitions were presented by Mr. Scammel from Horse Island re Coastal Service. From La Scie re Postal Building.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Fox gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Lewis gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Minister of Posts & Telegraphs if any negotiations are in progress between the Government and the Commercial Cable Company with a view to the use of the Port aux Basques Canso Cable, and if so to lay on the table copies of any correspondence or other documents in relation thereto.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries:

- (a) If a cargo of fish was exported from Port Union talqual during the last few months contrary to the act providing for the Standardization of Codfish.
- (b) If this shipment was made by the direct instruction of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries and was justified on the ground that through a defect in the Act the export of fish talqual was not prohibited?
- (c) If this was the reason to lay on the table of the House a copy of the opinion of the law officers of the Crown or other competent authorities responsible for that opinion.
- (d) If no such legal opinion was obtained to state on whose authority the conclusion was reached that the Act permitted the export of codfish talqual.
- (e) By whose authority the necessary permit was issued by the Fisheries Department by virtue of which the officer of Customs at Port Union or Catalina cleared the vessel.
- (f) Of the quantity of fish composing the cargo of the said vessel?
- (g) The name of the said vessel and her destination, and if the cargo had been sold as required by law before she left?
- (h) If so the price for the said cargo?
- (i) If not why a permit was granted to her and if such grant was in defiance of the law?
- (j) And if so the reason for violating or disregarding the law in her case, and to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence and other documents in relation thereto?

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries if Mr. J H Scammell, M.H.A., in his recent tour of the country in the interests of the F. P. U. has been engaged in carrying out any work for the Government or for any department thereof, and if so what was the nature of such services and what payments have been made or are to be made to him in respect thereof.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister what steps he is taking to make good the promise in his Manifesto to the electors issued in October, 1919, wherein he declared that he proposed to undertake a policy which will develop in Newfoundland a healthier, better educated and more prosperous people with improved public services efficiently operated and maintained.

Sir M. P. Cashin drew the attention of Hon. the Prime Minister to the statement made by Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries at the annual convention of the F. P. U. at Port Union last fall against the policy of having departmental officers in the Legislative Council, and ask if it is the intention of the Government to introduce legislation of the character indicated by the Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries at that time which would make such a practice impossible in future.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Minister of Public Works if Mr. John Davey is employed by the Board of Works, how much salary he has received since November 15th, 1919 to date, and a statement of all monies paid for motor cars and cabs by him.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Act 6 Geo. V, Cap. 4, entitled 'An Act to amend the War Measures Act'" was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal, Cap. 18-8, Geo. V., entitled 'The Food Control Act, 1917' and Acts in amendment thereof, was introduced and read a first time, and it was ordered that it be read a second time on tomorrow.

MR. MACDONNELL:—Mr. Speaker, just a word or two on the Amendment before it goes through. I think, Sir, we all remember the position and the circumstances surrounding the Bills regarding the regulation of codfish, the exportation of codfish and standardization of codfish that went through this House last year. We recognized at that time and the country recognized—and we recognized since—that Mr. Coaker, with the backing he had in the government, was able to pass any legislation he wanted to in this House. In fact the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Coaker) intimated to us here that he was going to put through the Regulations whether we liked them or not. The Opposition in this House did not adopt any set policy. Every member of the Opposition did just as he thought was best with regard to any legislation that came up for discussion, and, I think, that the same spirit actuates them at the present session. When I realized that the Regulations were going through I made the best argument I could for my constituents. During the operation of that Act and during last summer, I have to say, in justice to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that when I pointed out to him exceptional cases in my district he gave me special consideration. No matter when I approached him regarding the export of fish to Halifax—very often the fish was being sold for less than the regulated price—after I had showed him the circumstances connected with our trade he did not refuse to give a permit to have the fish shipped. For this I give him credit. But I object to the principle of being put in the position of having to come to ask Mr. Coaker for a permit. I pointed out last year that it was a dangerous practice and a dangerous precedent to hand over our powers as legislators in this House to any man or firm. I forecasted that the Advisory Board could make any regulations they liked, but that they would never represent the whole country and that they would be fraught with disaster. Mr. Coaker took the whole thing to himself, notwithstanding all the danger pointed out to him by the members on this side of the House. He said "it's my Bill, I believe in it, I am sure. I will take full responsibility for it and it's going through." In that he was perfectly sincere. The other day he told the story in plain and unvarnished words of the absolute failure of the whole scheme. He admitted here a few days ago what I forecasted a year ago. I viewed this matter in a somewhat different light, perhaps, than those who spoke before me. The whole policy of the Government last year was based on its fishery laws. It was the one big thing for you; or, as Mr. Coaker characterized it the other day, it was an artificial pron to sustain the trade of the country. The natural law was supply and demand. Therefore, because the Regulations were an artificial pron and because they interfered with the natural working out of things and particularly because the strongest man in the Government came in and admitted that the whole thing was a failure, well then I draw this conclusion that the Government as a whole has failed. When the main spring of a Government's policy is gone the rest does not matter, and, I think, Sir, that I voice the opinion not only of men on both sides of this House, but of the great majority of the people of this country, that when the Government has come to face that it can no longer be of any service to the country. When a Government has come to a stage that it has to abandon its policy that it set out to accomplish and that it comes to a point after having accomplished nothing, I think, Sir, it is time for them to get out. I take Mr. Coaker's statement as a complete abdication on the part of the Government. I am sorry that Mr. Coaker undertook that policy that caused such untold injury to this country. Strange though it may seem, perhaps, after all he is the man who tried to do something and even he kept on doing it when he found it wrong, so there is some sympathy from every member in this Chamber for a man who has tried so much and has failed so miserably. I trust that the Government has a thorough realization by this time of the failure of its policy, because its policy was simply and solely the remedy of fishery matters, for, as has been pointed out in this House, eighty per cent. of the country depends on the fishery. Well, if eighty per cent. depended on your policy, which has failed, do you think, Sir, your Government is doing justice to this country and doing justice to their constituents by remaining in office. Are they behaving themselves as men, honoured by seats in this Legislature, by holding on to power and allowing twenty per cent. of the people to live on the policy on which they embarked.

I have no intention to delay the House unnecessarily, but I should like to see the Amendment voted on in order to get down to business. I appeal to the Government before they drift too far that if they have nothing new to advance and no new policy to enunciate that they will no longer occupy the seats that they do, but will transfer them to those who may be able to take them out of the mess.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Speaker, I have no desire in any way to delay this debate, but merely to place myself on record as being in favor of the Amendment proposed by the Hon. leader of the Opposition. I am sorry that the Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, a few evenings ago, did not allow the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to say that he supported these Resolutions and thus have spared themselves a lot of unnecessary delay.

I think that the Prime Minister has something else to tell with regard to the unemployed of this city. If he has I hope that he tells it as soon as possible, because, I am sure, that all of us, particularly the Opposition, are only too willing and pleased to have those unfortunate people, who approached the Bar of this House yesterday, looked after. As I have already intimated, I have no intention to further prolong the discussion; but to register my unqualified support to the Amendment now before the House.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to take advantage of this opportunity to make a few remarks on the subject matter now before the House. It is not my intention to delay the business of the House by any extended remarks. It is certainly within the knowledge of the members of the House that the question has been thoroughly thrashed out, from one side of the House at least; and all that can be said regarding the policy of the Government, and what the Speech from the Throne did not contain respecting public matters, has been fully ventilated. The Opposition has strong debating power, or to be critically correct, strong talking ability. There is one bench over there that I cannot help referring to. I think it makes no difference who is occupying it, he will talk. There seems to be a kind of infection or germ there that will cause men to talk. I for a number of years, occupied the chair next to that now occupied by Sir John Crosbie and I had to do my part then just the same as the Opposition is doing their part now. I had to talk and talk and read and read so as to keep the thing going until we found out what the Government intended to do. That happened more particularly in the year 1917 when we held up the business of the House for a long while to find out from Sir Edward (now Lord) Morris, who was then Prime Minister whether he intended to go to the polls in the fall of 1917 or not. Very often during our hot talk some unparliamentary things might have been said which for lack of experience on the part of junior members might be excused. An unparliamentary reference used in the heat of debate is excusable, but there is no excuse for anyone who offers a discourteous or insulting remark that is studied. The audience and those particularly opposed to the present Government must be satisfied with the scathing indictment meted out to us. Unfortunately for the country the Opposition in their anxiety to make political capital threw discretion and fair play on one side. They misrepresented the actions of the Government which under present depressing world conditions may be regarded not only as regrettable but injurious to the best interests of the country.

I hate to refer to the Fish Regulations for certainly everybody must have a surfeit of the debate on that question. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries gave his side of the question the other day, but, of course, that is not accepted by those who are prejudiced and will not accept. Mr. Fox this evening tore to shreds, literally, the Speech of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and said that everything we did was meant to deceive the general public. The Hon. gentleman by his extravagant and inflammatory remarks, destroyed his case inasmuch as he overdid the thing, and thus injured his own cause. If I had no other reason for speaking this evening, I should speak in self-defence and because of the not very complimentary manner in which members on the Opposition side of the House referred to F.P.U. men. I am perfectly willing to take my medicine for anything I have done in a public way, but I do not want to be anathemized and misrepresented when I do not deserve it. To get to the point. With regard to myself, personally, it was said by the Leader of the Opposition that I should not occupy the position in the Government that I do because of my relations with the F.P.U. Since 1917, when I was made Minister of Agriculture and Mines by Sir Michael Cashin and Sir John Crosbie, I can honestly say that I do not know any more about the management of that business than any other man in this House to-day. When I took a Ministerial position in the National Government I severed my active business connection with the Trading Company. When I held the position of Minister of Agriculture and Mines one of my friends said to me, why do you want to give up your position with the F.P.U. The Department of Agriculture and Mines is not a very onerous position, there is not much to do, and you can go to the office for a few hours a day and that will be sufficient. This was the opinion of some of my friends.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Who said that to you?

MR. HALFYARD:—There is no need for me to name the person, but it is quite true.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Was it the Minister of Marine and Fisheries?

MR. HALFYARD:—No! it was not the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The business of the Union Trading Co. was moved to Port Union, and therefore I could have no connection with the management of it.

In January, 1918, Sir Edward Mo-

ris left the country. Sir William Lloyd was asked to form a Government, but Mr. Bennett, Mr. Squire and Mr. Gibbs refused seats in the Lloyd Executive. Mr. Woodford was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir Edward Morris. Some person was wanted for Colonial Secretary. I was asked by Sir Michael Cashin and Sir John Crosbie to resign my position as Minister of Agriculture and Mines in favour of Mr. Clift, and accept the position of Colonial Secretary.

I was Secretary of the F.P.U. at that time and my friend Sir Michael and Sir John did not think there was anything of the blackleg about me at that time, when they honoured me with one of the most important positions in the gift of the Government. As Colonial Secretary I certainly was in a position to have a knowledge, not only of one department of the Government, but the whole public business of the Colony. I cannot think that Sir Michael Cashin really meant what he said when he delivered him of this about me: "The Minister of Posts is a shipped man himself. He is Secretary of the F.P.U. and it is not decent for him to hold his present portfolio. He is Secretary of that Corporation and still he has the cheek to come in here and take $5,000 a year from the taxpayers as a salary. He and his like are case hardened and devoid of common decency. In his position he can know what every business man in this country is doing and can take advantage by reading the telegrams that go through his office of every competitor of his Company in the country."

The name of God has been taken in vain very often during this session. Well in the name of God does he and his associates think that I could be guilty of such contemptible conduct? Have I nothing else to do but read telegrams going through the Postal Telegraphs?

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—It has been done.

MR. HALFYARD:—Before I would take advantage of my position to gain a knowledge of any man's business, I would rather cut off my right hand. I would not think of going into the Operating Room to inquire about any messages passing through from any business man or anyone else. I am not supposed to do it, and I could be ordered out by the Superintendent of Telegraphs. I don't suppose he would do that, but if he knew that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs was doing something he should not do, he should bring him to book. I do not think that Sir Michael Cashin, who is a friend of mine personally, would believe me guilty of such contemptible conduct. There is another matter I want to clear up. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has been accused of doing something which as far as my knowledge as Colonial Secretary goes he had nothing whatever to do with and to which no reference should have been made and that is in connection with the cargo of fish that went over on the Escasoni. Sir Michael Cashin said that eight thousand quintals of fish belonging to the F.P.U. went to Rumania on that boat. That is not true. That fish was landed at Greece and sold there. The F.P.U. had no interest in the cargo that went to Rumania. Their interest in it ceased when it reached Greece.

While I was Colonial Secretary, we had a meeting one night at Government House, and Sir Michael Cashin who was then Minister of Finance and Customs, Sir John Crosbie, Mr. Clift and Mr. Lloyd were there. This was a very important matter in connection with the trade of the country, and there was a million and a half dollars in connection with that cargo of fish, for which the merchants wanted credit to their accounts at the banks and nobody knows more about this matter than Sir John Crosbie, who was then Minister of Shipping, or a member of the Tonnage Committee. He was the man who was making a fight for the trade to try and do something, and the matter was brought up and the question asked. What could we do? Can we guarantee the bonds so that credit will be placed to the accounts of those men at the banks, or can we get the Home Government to guarantee them, and we talked about it, and simply dispersed and nothing was decided.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—But if I had agreed to it the country would have read that we had another million and a quarter added to the debt.

MR. HALFYARD:—Quite right. That is so, but it is not because we talked about a thing and came to no decision that you should for political reasons to injure a political opponent, falsely misrepresent the incident. I was in Trinity in 1919, and when the message containing your statement was flashed over the wires I was in a position to contradict it. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries had nothing to do with it.

Referring to the Fish Regulations. We all thought that the Fish Exportation Act passed unanimously, but the Opposition say it did not because it was not put to a vote. Well according to that there is no Bill that passed through this House on which a division has not been asked which can be regarded as having been adopted unanimously. There were dozens of bills passed in the same way as that Bill.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I do not interrupt, Mr. Speaker, but I would like to make it clear, that I have never been in favour of that Fish Exportation Bill, and I protested against it last year.

MR. HALFYARD:—That is correct. The only man who was out of the House at the time the Bill was passed was Sir John Crosbie, who had not supported the Regulations when he was here, and who as far as we knew was not in favour of them, but the Opposition knows the reason the vote went without division, they were afraid of disruption in their own ranks. There were certain men in the Opposition who felt strongly on the matter and thought this Bill would be all right. Therefore the Bill passed unanimously. Now then they say that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries should take the blame for its working out. He says that he should not. There is one thing that I think we should all agree upon, and that is that the Regulations did not get a fair trial. It is not quite fair when you are trying to do a thing to have three or four others trying to tear down the structure as fast as you build it up. The Regulations were fought against from the start and they could not be enforced effectively, therefore without the support of the country and the trade the measure could not meet with full success. When people sold their fish in spite of the Regulations, that caused a weakening and the whole thing slumped. People say that they could have sold their fish at a certain price. When the Regulations called for 80s a quintal they could have got 75s, but if there was not a standard price of eighty they would not be offered seventy-five. As soon as the Regulations were lifted the price went down to thirty shillings a quintal. A merchant on the West Coast told me last September "That he knew the condition of the Oporto markets, that the people there could not pay a big price for fish, and the idea of giving nine, ten and eleven dollars a quintal for fish was madness. The only reason he supplied at all was to accommodate his customers. He had made money in buying and selling fish but he did not expect to make any this year," and further he said, "if I could buy all the fish in Newfoundland for five dollars a quintal he would not touch it." That is what he told me last September. Mr. Fox said that this Act was made in the interests of the merchants. Admitting that for the sake of argument, what is in the interests of the merchants regarding prices is in the interest of the fishermen. Don't think that the fishermen believe that what is in the merchants' favour is against them. They have lost that idea. Nobody in the House can say that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was unmindful of the fishermen when he introduced that Fish Exportation Act. We have been told that our very existence as a country depends upon the fishermen, and if that is so, we must be worse than imbeciles if we vote for any policy disadvantageous to the fishermen. No, Sir, by that Fish Exportation Act the fishermen received a price of two or three dollars more for their fish than if there had been no such Act.

MR. MACDONNELL:—Without wishing to interrupt I would like to ask a question. When the Hon. Minister speaks of the people who were offered seventy-five shillings when the price by the Regulations was eighty and who were not allowed to sell, how is it that when the Regulations were lifted that they did not get more. The reason Sir was that the Regulations were kept on until there was no longer a demand for fish. I would like him to explain that.

MR. HALFYARD:—In reply to Mr. MacDonnell, if there had been no Regulations, the first two or three cargoes going over to the other side would have demanded a fair price, and after that the price would have dropped. As the season advanced our position became worse owing to the rate of exchange. It is not my intention as I said before to delay the House, but we have been told that we have been catering to one section of the country, because of the buying of thirty-five thousand quintals of fish last fall. That happened to come from the north, but it was only an accident. If it had come from the West Coast we would have had to do the same thing. None of my colleagues in the Executive since 1917 can truthfully say that I have used my position to advance the interests of any one section of the country more than another. Take the F.P.U. In 1917 the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had a big project of building a town at Port Union, he wanted a spur line about a mile long to give railway facilities in connection with the various industries. He went to Sir Edward Morris and said he was building a town down there and why could they not get a railway, and I understand that the men who voted for that concession were not the men of the Liberal party, Mr. Clift and Mr. Ellis, but Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosbie and Sir Edward Morris. I do not know that you can point to anything else which may be regarded as a concession to any place north. Take what happened during the past twelve months. It was thought that if Argentia was made a terminus that it could be made a safe winter port, and would avoid the haul over the Topsails during winter, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Chairman of the Railway Commission, caused a railway to be built to Argentia.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I would like to call the Hon. Minister's attention to the fact that he should call Mr. Coaker by his proper name, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

MR. HALFYARD:—Argentia is not north and building that railway gave employment. It has cost up to the present time about two hundred thousand dollars. If that was done down north what would the Opposition say about it? Take Fortune and Grand Bank. It will cost fifty or sixty thousand dollars for a harbour at Fortune, and $150,000 to make a harbour at Grand Bank.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—That was voted in the House.

MR. HALFYARD:—We are treating everyone alike, there is no discrimination. We opened the mine at Branch in St. George's District and it is a source of employment. We did not care what district it was in, and we are hoping that we will get good results from it. We are not as black as we are painted. After all our first consideration is to do something for the betterment of the people no matter what part of the country the people may happen to reside.

Now, Mr. Speaker, to get back to present hour conditions. It is said that present conditions are all brought about by the Fish Regulations; but I want to point out the the Fish Regulations had nothing to do with anything except the codfishery, and the price was kept up to the fishermen, remember that. Mr. Coaker went over to the other side, used every bit of energy he had and all the influence that he could bring to bear to sell the fish. But his plan was frustrated, frustrated by the people who thought more of their own political interests than they did of the welfare of the country. There has been a sectional feeling against the interests of the country because to the country that we have had to run off three bye-elections. Those who would otherwise have come together have been kept apart by them. There would have been an entirely different feeling if the bye-elections could have been avoided. During the last few weeks we have heard a lot about poverty in our outports, but do you not see that but for the price that the people were able to get for their fish because of the actions of the Government there would be much more poverty? And do you know that in the important district of Trinity a very large percentage of the people are not affected by the price of fish this season. Many of those who went fishing did nothing last summer, some of them didn't put out their traps at all. My colleague, Mr. Guppy, didn't put his traps in the water for the summer. Many of the men had to leave and go to Grand Falls and other places, and that applies to the south as well as to the north side of the Bay. It was the worst codfishery in the history of the district; and the same thing applies to the west. This meant less income for the people. They did very well on the fish they caught, they got a very good price in most cases, and now you come in here and blame present conditions on the Regulations. But the trouble was the people did not get the fish. They got a better price than they otherwise would have received with no Regulations. The Hon. Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, gave the prices of the various fish products for the past two years, and he showed how the prices had come down. The products of labor in other directions have come down also. People cannot get the prices for their labor. I am talking now of the depression at the present time, not of the matter of supplying next spring.

I could elaborate on that by reference to that iniquitous thing we did in buying the fish. I might say that when that proposition was first suggested we regarded it as absolutely out of the question. I said we cannot do that.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Why did you not call the House together?

MR. HALFYARD:—You know very well, Sir, that that could not be done. You know that if we started out, and it became known that we were buying fish, we would have to buy all. That was unnecessary. There was a demand for Shore fish, but no demand for Labrador fish. None of the fish had been sold, and where the merchants have lost some money they would have lost many times as much. Indirectly, we have saved the country at least a million dollars.

And then, Mr. Speaker, we hear a lot about the terrible conditions in this country. Why if any of you were to take up an English magazine, the Daily Mirror, or some other magazine, you would soon find that we are in a much better condition than they are in the Old Country. In November it was estimated that there were about a quarter of a million unemployed in England, and in January there were over a million unemployed. What put three million people out of employment in the United States? Was it the Fish Regulations? It is ridiculous to blame the Fish Regulations for the unemployment amongst us.

"The following appears in a recent number of the 'Round Table.'" "Since the last number went to press a remarkable change has come over the industrial situation in the United Kingdom. The depression in trade, of which the first signs appeared in the late summer has deepened into stagnation and we have seen a rapid extension of unemployment and short-time working. At the end of January 1,060,000 were registered unemployed. In addition 450,000 work people were registered as working systematic short time." The question was asked, "Is there any escape from the financial and industrial chaos into which the war has thrown half the world?"

"It is not difficult to see why such questions are being asked. The cessation of demand and the depression in industry follow a period of unique prosperity. After the fitful fever of the war came eighteen months spent in a vain struggle to keep pace with the world's needs. Prices rose, but no price seemed high enough to deter the buyer. Manufactured goods of all kinds were absorbed as readily as though they had been flung into a bottomless pit. Men lost the habit of unemployment, perhaps the temper to endure it. Certainly there were few to warn them of rocks ahead. Politicians, employers, leaders of labor united in what the future historian will regard a wild and universal conspiracy of optimism.

"The economic disturbance is not limited to this country. It is worldwide.

"The United States, the one country in the world which seemed to have emerged from the war wealthier and more powerful than before is passing through every phase of the crisis in which Great Britain is involved.

"It has, or has had very recently, three million unemployed.

"When the malady is universal, any one country must be relatively powerless even to effect its own cure. From South America, the Far East, India, the British Dominions, comes the same story of financial stringency, industrial depression, difficulties of exchange."

Everybody spent money madly, and when the collapse came there was no money and now everybody is realizing where the mistake was made. The Government thought they should accede to the demands of the people for increased salaries to meet the high cost of living. Sir Michael Cashin knows that what I am saying is correct.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You came in under false pretences. What about the promises in your leader's manifesto?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—I do not think that we came in under false pretences. We came in by the wish of a greater majority of the people than has ever been given to any party in Newfoundland. We went out under false pretences in the spring of 1919. There was something either false or deceptive about it, but we came in as a result of our going out. The people of Trinity District stood by me because I stood by my guns. They appreciated me because of my action. The present leader of the Opposition knows what I did on that occasion. I do not think the break was brought about by the leader of the Opposition. We might have been with Sir Michael Cashin to-day only there were influences brought to bear by men who thought that it was foolish to think of getting seats in St. John's with Coaker in the party. Coaker and his crowd were thrown out, and they united with certain other elements. I am finding no fault. Things have worked out alright, and we have no fault to find. Do you think that it was merely the F.P.U. that gave us such a big vote in Trinity District. The Prime Minister was there himself in 1913, and the people said we have to vote for you because of Mr. Squires. They think a lot of the Prime Minister in Trinity District.

MR. MOORE:—What do they think of him now?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—They think more of him now. Our leader is all right. I have the greatest regard for him. He can take his part anywhere. He can play the part of a gentleman, an educated gentleman. He will be a credit to his country wherever he goes, and I admire him for his sterling ability as a speaker and courteous gentleman.

MR. MOORE:—What about Mr. Coaker?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—I did not think Mr. Coaker was so popular until he went down to Port Union. They gave him one of the greatest demonstrations of welcome ever given a public man in the history of the country.

Mr. Speaker, if I go on much longer I will make a speech, and I did not intend doing that. It is interesting to read some of the old Hansards. I was wondering what became of the Temperance Resolutions that were presented in 1915, when we were on the Opposition side, and I came across a speech of Sir Michael Cashin. I didn't think that conditions were so bad in 1915. Sir William Lloyd, who was leader of the Opposition at that time criticized the Government very harshly, and said there would be a deficit of $800,000 at the end of the fiscal year June 30th, 1915. The Minister of Finance then the present leader of the Opposition, who always tried to keep up his end of the plank, in reply to Dr. Lloyd is reported in the Hansard of 1915 as follows:—

“The position of this Colony to-day is no worse than that of any other British Colony in the Empire. Look around you at the depression which is in evidence all over the world—in Canada, in the United States, in England for the last twelve months. Why take Canada the most prosperous country in the world. Last year they had a surplus of $30,000,000, and the Finance Minister in his statement the other day told the House that this year he will have a deficit of $10,000,000. How has that come about? Was not it due to the depression which has been felt in Canada during the present year. This is not the first time we have had deficits in Newfoundland, and we will have them again, but the blue ruin that has been painted here to-night is not going to happen. The truth of the matter is that this Colony is in as good a position as any other Colony in the Empire—is better off than any other Colony. There are people in this House that are prepared to give the Colony a black eye, why should we send out to the world to-night that we will have a deficit of $800,000.00 at the end of June. As I have stated before depression is all around us,—in Canada, America and every where else, but they are not painting blue

"ruin in these Countries. The Minister of Finance of Canada painted "no blue ruin, when he made his statements the other day that he expected a deficit of $10,000,000. He "didn't say that Canada was lost and "gone forever as we have been hearing from the other side of the House. "I am tired and sick of hearing the "story that is being told by the other "side of the House by men who should "have more interest in Newfoundland "than to be speaking in this manner, "and sending the story of blue ruin "broadcast as they are doing."

Well now we find that all the Opposition has been doing since the House opened is preaching "blue ruin", as blue as blue can be, but the condition of the Colony is just as good as the conditions anywhere else, and much better than in most places. But that is the position the Minister of Finance took in 1915, and there was a big deficit. There can be no doubt that the old ship will right herself. This is not the first time, as we can see by those speeches in 1915, that conditions have been bad.

After I read Sir Michael Cashin's speech I was interested in going further. Mr. Morine said in part:—"One of the biggest merchants in the Upper House gave his opinion that fish prices cannot be expected to continue as high as at present. I refer to the Hon. Mr. Harvey. We must provide for a stormy day. I presume Mr. Harvey was speaking the opinion of merchants as a whole, and that he of party politics. It has been a curse was chosen by the Government to make that speech.

"Of late there have been speeches "in the Council on the Labrador fish "prices Bill which I had the pleasure "of introducing. The opinion expressed in these speeches was that the "outlook for Labrador was very poor, "and every merchant said that the out"fit would be smaller this year than "ever before. A certain merchant had "refused supplies to seventy crews "whom he had supplied last year."

Mr. Speaker, from these speeches delivered in this House in 1915, we find that a very gloomy view was taken of the prospects for supplies for the summer fishery. The situation was extremely depressing. There were no fish regulations in 1915. Now when the outlook for the fishery is not as good as we would wish we are told by the Opposition that the Fish Regulations is the cause of all our troubles.

The sane sensible unprejudiced men of Water Street, who are not dependent on the Banks to finance their business so as to make it possible for them to supply for the fishery, will tell you that what they have to consider from a business point of view, is, will it pay to outfit for the fishery this year? It is only natural that the price of fish will proportionally decrease in value with all other commodities, hence the chief reason why merchants are not very anxious to invest in the fishery this year.

We are better off to-day comparatively than most other countries, but we have to sit here and listen to blue ruin speeches by members of the Opposition. I thought last year that we would not have the same thing repeated, but here we are in our second session, and the old party strife is being kept up in every possible way. We find the Honorable members of the Opposition fighting just as strongly as if a general election was being staged to take place next month.

To get down to the amendment to the Address in Reply. In 1913 Mr. Hickman the then member for Bay de Verde District who had a seat on the opposite side of the House, introduced a set of Resolutions dealing with Prohibition. There was at the time much sentiment in favor of Prohibition on both sides of the House, and it was such a question that Sir Edward Morris the shrewd politician that he was, seeing there may be a division in his ranks sized up the situation at once and intimated to the House that he intended to bring in a measure embodying the resolution before the Session closed. The question was debated for a long while by both sides of the House and resulted in a strict party vote, and the resolutions were voted down. The Government voted down these resolutions giving a reason that they intended to introduce a bill embodying them. Here we are asked to vote for the amendment when it is obvious we are bringing in a bill covering everything the amendment calls for, you notice it on the order paper to-day for second reading therefore we are not voting for the amendment and we have a precedent from the Morris Government for not doing so. For these reasons I cannot support the amendment to the Address in Reply.

THE HONOURABLE THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I wish to make a few remarks on the subject before the chair and to use the customary phrase I do not intend to delay the time of the House. I make that statement sincerely but if I could collect all the thoughts that have been running through my mind in connection with matters talked about in this House during the last few weeks, I would delay the House for a considerable time. I do not suppose I shall collect half or one quarter of those thoughts but I would like to make some remarks with reference to statements made by the other side of the House and with reference to the trend of the speeches delivered by them. Yesterday this House passed a vote of censure on an article written in what was supposed to have been a Government paper. That vote was passed unanimously. I think if we passed a vote of censure on unparliamentary language and insults coming from the other side we should have not gone too far. I remember that about eight years ago when I first attended a session of this House, it was under the leadership of Mr. Justice Kent who was then a member for St. John's East. I have to say we were initiated into parliamentary procedure by a gentleman and I think I can say on behalf of the F.P.U., that we have endeavored to follow in his footsteps the example as shown to us when he graced the chair the leader of the Opposition now occupies. He was not a member of the denomination to which I belong but I must say that I have as much respect for that gentleman as I have for any other man in the country. He was honourable and upright in his conduct. He proved himself and acted the man. I cannot say the same of some of the members on the other side. A few of the speeches from the other side have been fairly decent, and I consider Mr. Higgins to have driven his nail fairly well but many of the others hammered the nail on the head till they split the board in pieces and spoiled his work. An argument followed by insult had no effect. The same applies to an article written in a paper. I wish to tell this House something about the junior member for Ferryland, Mr. Moore, who posed before this House as an advocate of economy in the conduct of the public service. Possessing as I do some knowledge of that gentleman in connection with a firm doing business for the Government under various contracts I cannot take the positions he advances as being sincere. It pleased him to resurrect a story I told last year in this House and he certainly finished it up with a very tragical ending. He wanted to leave the impression that because Jennings was Minister of Public Works instead of Mr. Woodford that a woman died at Harbor Main because her husband called at the office of Public Works and could not get a script to procure a bottle of spirits. I know I spoiled Mr. Moore's story by asking where the man got what was inside of him, and I here assert the fact that he had drunk enough spirits before calling at the office to enable me to smell it half across the office is sufficient proof to me that whatever happened to the poor wife was not because the husband could not obtain spirits from some source and I certainly do not hold myself responsible for the tragical ending of Mr. Moore's story. But this by the way. I want to deal with Mr. Moore as an economist in the expenditures of public money.

This is the man who for seven years as a Government contractor never paid a cent duty on material imported for these contracts, and this in spite of the fact that every contract made was to the contrary. I have been assured by the chief officials in the Public Works Department that they never knew a contract drawer excluding duty on material required. During these 7 years this must have amounted to a considerable sum and the only way Mr. Moore could get the rebate was with the connivance of the Minister of Public Works and the consent of the Minister of Finance. Where, oh where was Mr. Cashin then?

This economist also was authorized by the then Minister of Public Works Woodford to import a mangle for the Sanatorium with a 25% profit on the gross cost. There was no consultation between the Superintendent and it appears on other opinion was asked. Mr. Moore, of course, purchased the most costly machine he could get as every $100 it cost meant $25 to him. The machine cost the Department over $6,000 and we had to build a house to put it in costing about a thousand more. The Superintendent of the institution gave as his opinion that a suitable machine for their purpose could be purchased for about $350 and Mr. Moore had no more practical knowledge in connection with the purchase of a machine of that nature than any of the ordinary officials in the Department. No, Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Member does not like this talk but I would advise him to sit still and take his medicine. He evidently made good for himself when he had the chance and is reported to be worth about two hundred thousand dollars to-day.

It is certainly a paying job to get Government contracts under certain conditions, but when such men pose as purists it is going the limit, and, Mr. Speaker, a few matters of this kind go to prove that there is a sprinkling of political hypocrites on the Opposition side of the House.

As late as March this year this gentleman presented another bill to the Dept. of Public Works amounting to between $5,000 and $6,000. Now in respect of presenting bills, Mr. Moore has a perfect right to present a bill to the Public Works Dept. for what he is owed as well as any other Contractor. The bill in question was in connection with a rise in wages induced by a strike of the Plumbers during the summer of 1919. We asked for the correspondence in connection with the whole affair, and found among the rest a minute of Council signed by the late Govt. on November 14/19. (The late Government must have spent a very busy day on that date judging by the numbers of minutes of Council that have come to light since then, as having been signed on Nov. 14th.) This minute of Council granted Mr. Moore an increase in his contract price equal to the wage increase. According to the correspondence that increase amounted to $1.00 per day, and to that amount Mr. Moore was justly entitled, but when he presented his bill he had an increase charged of $1.80 per day, and also dated the increase from the 1st June instead of the 15th July, (which was the date in the Notice from the Plumbers Union) and had straight time for the 18 months without any reduction for holidays. We objected to the increase beginning before the date set by the Plumbers Union, and also called Mr. Moore's attention to the fact that no reduction in the time had been made for holidays; he met our wishes in this respect, but when we called his attention to the 80c per day over and above the increase in the wages, he claimed this was for overhead expenses. Now although an "imbecile" it struck me quite forcibly that Mr. Moore had no right to that 80c per day for overhead expenses, as it was only an increase in wages and not an increase in work that this matter concerned, for that reason we have refused to pay the bill, and it is lying on my desk today. The last letter I received from Mr. Moore in relation to the bill was that he placed the matter in the hands of his Lawyer. Reading between the lines it appears that if the Minister of Public Works did not pay this bill, he would have to appear before the Court. Now I wish to inform the Hon Gentleman and this House that if Mr. Moore wishes to collect that bill for its present amount, he will have to collect it through the Courts or not get it at all. We are ready to pay what is honestly and justly owed him, but why does Mr. Moore, who is so anxious at this time for the welfare of his country, send a bill to the Public Works Dept., for almost double the amount that was legally due him, through which even a so called imbecile could see through at first sight.

There is another Gentleman occupying a seat on the other side of the House, who comes in here blessed with the privilege of education and birth, born with a silver spoon in his mouth, but who uses his abilities to despise and insult the men on this side of the House who have not been as fortunate in those respects, as himself, but I think he outdid himself in a statement that he made to this House to-day and excelled anything that I heard during my eight years experience in this House. I took down the statement as he made it, and with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will read it to the House. "He said while discussing the effect of the Fish Regulations in certain sections of the West Coast that if it had effected St. John's East in the same way, he would have headed a procession to go and tear the heart out of the man who did it." The Gentleman says he did say it and will stand by it. Mr. Speaker, I want to tell this House that in making such a statement he discredited and disgraced himself, as a Newfoundlander, and as a citizen of St. John's, he is a discredit and a disgrace to the party to which he belongs, and a discredit and a disgrace to the seat he occupies in the House, and my advice to him or any other person with such rabid intentions to obtain a Passport and emigrate to Russia at the earliest possible moment. This statement will look pretty bad in black type to-morrow. He was pleased a few days ago while addressing this House, to compare the F.P.U. men to a crowd of imbeciles, who would not know the truth when they heard it, but I want to tell this gentleman that the F.P.U. men whom he had addressed in those insulting terms represent about 90,000 people in this House, and that the fishermen of the North will send us here just as long as they want to, regardless of any opinion that the member for St. John's East may hold, he can go on and antagonize Green Bay, Bonavista Bay and Trinity Bay if he will, but you will find that St. John's will make a sorry showing without the trade coming from those bays.

Mr. Fox:—Coaker said he was going to have the grass growing on the Streets of St. John's.

Minister Public Works:—I am not aware that Mr. Coaker ever made such a statement, but the member for St. John's East is doing more toward that end by his attitude and statements in this House, than any other man in the country that I know of. Now Mr. Speaker, I wish to discuss the abilities of this gentleman from another viewpoint, the viewpoint of the producer. Now what is the value of this remarkable gentleman to his country, has he ever produced a dollars worth toward its wealth, has he ever caught a dollar's worth of fish? Has he ever manufactured a dollars worth of lumber, has he ever dug a dollars worth of vegetables or mineral from the earth? No sir, he is simply a Lawyer going into court and collecting legal fees. Now, Mr. Speaker, I claim that the producer is the back bone of any country, and one of the things of which I feel proud is looking back over my past life, is that I have contributed in my humble way towards the wealth of the country in which I live, in common with other of my fellow members, who I have no doubt possess a record in many cases far beyond my own. For fifty years of my life I have caught fish, built the boat in which the fish was caught, made the traps or the seine used in the taking of the fish, built the shack which I occupied as my home, and placed the products of my labor on the markets of the country in fairly good condition. Now Mr. Speaker, I will ask a question of this House which class can this country afford to do without best, the class represented by the member from St. John's East or the class represented by the F.P.U. The decision certainly is in favor of the latter.

Mr. Fox interrupts.

Mr. JENNINGS:—Sit down and take your medicine like a good little boy. Where would the lawyers collect their fees if there was no one to produce the wealth of the country. I do not wish this House to understand that I despise the legal profession, it is quite necessary to have a few of them around, but when they come to dispise the men on whom this country depends, it is another question. His statement that the Government has spent $500,000 of the country's money in buying fish, is altogether incorrect, as Mr. Halfyard has just proven, but the statement is made from the worst unworthy motives. In order to paint the things in its blackest colors. It looks as if that this little talk of mine is getting inside the skin of the gentleman in question, but what I have said to him is not one quarter what we have had to take from him and his associates.

In regret that in this statements my honorable friend does not play the gentleman. He shoots off at a tangent and says things that I believe in his saner moments he would wish unsaid. I once thought of suggesting that if he selected a coat of arms that he choose as his selection a hatchet and scalping knife as quite in keeping with his attitude at times in this House. I think that the business of this House would be far better conducted if all personalities were left out and a man treated as a gentleman though he may have a rough exterior.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Your advice is cheap.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I don't think you will say though that it is not sincere.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I'm getting doubtful about you.

MR. MACDONNELL:—I would like to rise to a point of order, Mr. Speaker. A few days ago Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Hibbs were cross-firing for half an hour and you did not bring them to order.

HON. MR. SPEAKER:—I did call them to order, sir.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I next propose to make a few remarks on the Fish Regulations. I supported these Regulations because I believed they were necessary to the prosperity of this country.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Because you had no sense.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, I have never pretended that I held a premium on knowledge or common sense, but I have tried to use the learning with which the Almighty provided me for the betterment of my fellowman and not to abuse any privilege in so doing which I may possess. When the leader of the Opposition uses the privilege of this House to make such imputations, he abuses his privileges and shows that he at least is endowed with one particular quality which is best defined by a word which begins with an I. (ignorance.)

I was going on, Mr. Speaker, to refer to my experience as a fisherman. I began at the age of 10 and have gone through most of the phases of the industry as conducted in Newfoundland. Looking back over these years I can easily recall the uncertainty and dissatisfaction existing among the fishermen chiefly owing to the fact that they never knew what the value of their product would be. There was not alone the uncertainty of the catch but the uncertainty of the price which very often was the merest pittance and I can well remember in the fall of 1908 when fish was absolutely unsaleable at any price. To hear some people talk you would think there was never any trouble with Newfoundland fish before the advent of the Fish Regulations. Only the men who were directly concerned in the fisheries knew the difficulties in making ends meet and procuring anything like a decent living from such an uncertain source.

This feeling in the Summer and Fall of 1919 reached a higher crisis probably than ever before. The price of provisions and outfits in 1919 was so high that the puzzle with the fishermen was, "How are we to continue the business and conduct it so as to assure ourselves a living wage?" That was the position and that was the reason the Fish Regulations were introduced and why I supported them. When the Regulations were passed everyone thought they were safeguarded in every respect. It was the work of the Advisory Board and the Exporters Association to submit the best rules possible for the benefit of this country, and if this thing has not been conducted properly, on them let the blame rest. I state the Regulations have not been given a fair test at all. By a certain section of the press they were bitterly opposed and editorials were written day after day till they became a sing-song. On the other hand what no one in Newfoundland could foresee was the amount of fish the Norwegians had to place on the markets abroad, and I don't think it is fair to overlook this tremendous disadvantage. Everyone knew the British Government had bought Norwegian fish for three years and had sold it back to Norway again, but nobody knew that the Norwegians had all this fish on hand and were putting it on the European market and were ready to sacrifice it at any price. This is one of the greatest causes, helped and intensified by the attitude of the Press, why the Regulations did not succeed. However, it was understood that they were not as the laws of the Medes and Persians that could not be changed, but could be taken off if they did not work. I think this, the members of the Government clearly understood, was to be done early in this session and would have been done but for the delay of the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, through causes over which he had no control, in getting home after his visit to the foreign markets. A lot of argument has been produced to show that all the trouble and misery of which we hear so much is due entirely to the Regulations. Now, Mr. Speaker, it is not the Regulations that have left the Lunenburg bankers, with one exception, unable to pay off their crews after the season's work. I have the information from a thoroughly reliable man that only one crew in Lunenburg was paid their wages and that social and church work in that town was practically at a standstill owing to shortage of cash for which this fact was chiefly accountable. Was this due to the Regulations? According to what we have been told they should be better off because we had regulations and they didn't. Again, take the position of the small millowner, was it the regulations that put him on his back. The mills went flat in the district of Twillingate, but that was not due to the regulations. In connection with the buying of the Labrador fish which has been pronounced such a great crime and which Mr. Fox termed a robbery. What about it? I want to say that not one dollar of that money went to Twillingate, but I have no doubt that if the men of that district were here at the time and could not dispose of their cargoes they would have been dealt with the same as the others. You may say it was unconstitutional to buy it, but what was the wisest thing to be done? Was it to leave these men to return to their homes with their fish unsold left in their vessels' holds, with no money and no provisions for themselves and their families for the winter and eventually to face starvation or able-bodied relief, or to buy the fish through the source it was arranged and so enable these men to provide means for their families through the hard winter and spring. I am quite certain what the Leader of the Opposition would have done if he had to deal with it. He would "d— the law" and everything else that was in the way.

Many charges have been made in this House in connection with the Union Trading Company and Mr. Coaker's position as a merchant. The different Companies of the F. P. U. are made up of about 4,000 shareholders, almost all of whom are fishermen, and made what little money they may possess through the fishery. Mr. Coaker's position is Manager of those Companies for which he is paid a certain salary to conduct the business of the different Companies. He is not a merchant in the sense of the term that he is in business making profits for himself. As a matter of fact profits or losses made by the business belong to the different Companies, and not to the manager. Mr. Coaker could resign his position when he chose, leaving the F. P. U. to select another manager. What I state in connection with those matters are perfectly correct in every way. As to the insinuations about the F. P. U. men in the House of Assembly being hirelings in the pay and the pocket of one man, they are absolutely incorrect. I know only two of the F. P. U. men in the House of Assembly who are receiving a salary from any of the F. P. U. Companies. I have been connected with the F.P.U. for about ten years, during six months of that time I was in the service of the Trading Company; the rest of the ten years I have held my own row, and the most of the other F. P. U. men stand in the same position. We come here as independent as any person who occupies a seat in this House, and it is not because we listen to the low down insults and insinuations that we are guilty of the charges made against us. The F.P.U. did not choose their men for the House of Assembly because of their education or oratory, but for their honesty and desire to stand by righteous principles, and they will send their men to the House of Assembly as long as they carry out their wishes in this respect, but when they fail to do so they will turn them down, and I for one, when I fail to carry out the principles and wishes of the men who sent me here, I am willing to accept my defeat.

MR. CASHIN—When you got money enough made.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—

Mr. Speaker, I have no doubt the Leader of the Opposition is measuring me in his own bushel, but I would like to inform him that Twillingate District is a poor place for wrecks. Now to listen to the statements made in this House, you would be under the impression that all the plums were given to the North—what about the District of Ferryland and the Railway which covers that section of the country, a Railway which has been a financial burden to the country, not only in its construction but also in its maintenance, and this was well known before the first sod was turned; but it happened that the present leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, was a member for the District of Ferryland, and held a prominent position in the Morris Administration. He wanted that Railway probably for his own convenience, and I can imagine him going to the Government, and demanding that he get it. I can picture him putting the proposition to his leader, Sir Edward Morris, and in his well known bullying way, saying: Morris, I want that Railway, and you must give me that Railway, I am going to have that Railway, if not I will bust up your Government. And he gets the Railway, no doubt, on those terms, but the country both North and South had to bear the burden of its construction and also its maintenance. What about the Argentinia terminal? A considerable amount of money, so we were told, has been spent there in labor. Would not this amount to Placentia's share of help from Govern- ment funds, as there is no doubt what- ever, a great portion of the outlay was paid in wages to labourers who would feel the benefit of it in helping to provide for the wants of their families.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Say, what about the Port Union Railway.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—

The story has been told in connection with this Railway and it appears that the present leader of the Opposition was one of the strongest supporters toward granting that concession to Port Union, and believed at the time that it was quite justifiable and only right and proper that a business of the proportion which was carried on at Port Union was entitled to a spur line from Catalina. I well remember that last year the leader of the Opposition charged me with being a party to a bargain in this connection, as my price for joining the National Government. I want to state again what I said at the time the charge was made, that I know nothing, what- ever, about any such concession being asked for, and it had no influence whatever on my action in consenting to the National Government. The late Government has been trying to blow their trumpets to the country in relation to the Surplus Funds on hand when they went out of power, to my mind there is no credit, whatever, due to them for having a surplus. It is quite true that during the war this country prospered, prices went up, and revenue increased accordingly. It was simply a question for the Government at the time to collect the revenue and spend it, and it looks to me that it was more of an accident than anything else that a surplus was left, as there did not appear at the time any particular object for which it could be reasonably disposed.

In relation to the Fish Regulations, I believe it was understood by the members of the Government side of the House that they were to be taken off. It was unfortunate that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was not here at the opening of the House, and it was clear to any reasonable man that the Government was not justified in dealing with this matter till he arrived, but I am of the opinion that if Mr. Coaker had been present in this country when the House opened that the leader of the Opposition would have never had the chance to introduce his amendment. I believe the chief object in introducing this amendment was to embarrass the Government, believing this, and knowing that the Government intended to introduce Legislation to the same effect, I am not prepared to vote for the amendment before the Chair.

On motion the debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until tomorrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a Message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled, "An Act to amend the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund Act, 1920," without amendment.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday afternoon next, at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, April 25th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Jamestown in the District of Bonavista asking for telephone communication. I might say, sir, that this petition is very largely signed by the inhabitants of Jamestown and Portland and moreover this is the seventh or eighth time that petitions have been presented from this part of Bonavista Bay on the same subject. I trust that the Government will now be able to see their way clear to grant the prayer of this petition and I ask that it be received and referred to the department to which it relates.

MR. WINDSOR:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the prayer of that petition.

Sir John Crosbie gave notice of questions, 11.

Mr. Moore gave notice of question.

Dr. Jones gave notice of question.

Mr. Sullivan gave notice of question, 1, 2, 3.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on tomorrow move that a Select Committee of three be appointed to confer with a Committee of three from the Great War Veterans' Association in the matter of Pensions and Gratuities to Newfoundland Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Great War and their dependents.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, with your permission I would like to read to the House a set of Resolutions that were sent to me for presentation to the House of Assembly from the Burin Board of Trade. They read as follows:

To the Honourable House of Assembly in Legislative Session convened.

Gentlemen,—

At a meeting of the Burin Board of Trade held at Burin on April 14th, GALLEY—59

1921, the following resolutions were passed:—

THAT WHEREAS there is an Act on the Statute Book entitled "The Codfish Exportation Act" and

WHEREAS the provisions of the Act have acted injuriously on the fish exporters of the South West Coast, and the present deplorable conditions existing are due to the operation of the said Act,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Board of Trade request the repeal of the said act, in all its provisions as pertaining to the Exportation and Standardization of codfish from this country; and

WHEREAS it has come to the knowledge of this Board that in November last the sum of $500,000 was appropriated for the purchase of Labrador fish by the Government, and that this sum was placed at the disposal of certain persons,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Board emphatically protest against the discrimination in trade against one section of the country in favour of the other, and this Board foresee the grave danger of outfitting fishermen for the coming season, in view of the fact that the same discrimination may be used again, and hereby wish to register our protest against the use of public funds of the Colony for individual purposes; and

WHEREAS the present Government has taken advantage of the "War Measures Act" to keep in existence the Food Control Board, and has prohibited the importation of sugar into this Colony to the detriment of trade, and added to the cost of living.

BE IT RESOLVED that this Board request the removal of the restrictions and the abolition of the Food Control Board, in the interests of the country in general; and

WHEREAS we are in possession of facts to show that salt was purchased last year in St. Pierre and elsewhere and taken to St. John's and sold at a loss to the country, and which loss is chargeable to the public funds of the Colony.

BE IT RESOLVED that this Board again protest against such action by the Government, and request the collection of any amounts that may be owing to the Treasury by private individuals on account of salt purchases; and

WHEREAS it has been repeatedly brought to the notice of this Board, through the captains of our foreign-going vessels that the Trade Commissioners appointed by the Government are, firstly, lacking in knowledge of the language of the people with whom they have to deal, and secondly, are lacking in business ability to handle business entrusted to them.

BE IT RESOLVED that we protest against the keeping in office of persons, who are paid from the public funds of the Colony, and from whom we derive no benefit;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to His Excellency the Governor, the Legislative Council, the Leader of the Opposition, S. J. Foote, M.H.A., and J. T. Cheesoman, M.H.A.

Burin Board of Trade,

GEO. A. BARTLETT,

President.

Burin, Nfld., April 15, 1921.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. the Minister of Justice who is the Doctor Killam who appears to have got seven hundred and fifty dollars from the General Contingencies Account under the heading of "Magistrate, Labrador," and for what services he received this money.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In the absence of the Minister of Justice I may say that that information will be available tomorrow.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a copy of the report of Mr. J. M. Forbes on ore taxation, and a detailed statement of the items making up the sum of $1,575.00 which he was paid in relation thereto.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I have asked the Deputy Minister of Finance and Customs to furnish that information.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. the Prime Minister if his attention has been called to the declaration of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. F. Coaker, to the Annual Convention of the F. P. U. opened at Port Union on Thursday, November 27th, 1919, as reported in "The Advocate" of that date, in which the President of the F. P. U. declared that "the expenditure of public departments of the Government for the past ten years will be investigated by competent men and a general clean-up will, I hope, result"; if it is the intention of the Government to carry out such investigation, and if not, why not?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In reply to that question, I might say that my attention to that declaration has not been called by my colleagues, and the matter has not at any time been considered by the Executive Government.

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the quantity of flour, pork, beef, tea, and other foodstuffs, remaining in the stores of the Furness Withy Co., Harvey & Co., and other steamboat premises in this city with duty unpaid; also the names of the importers of the same; the period for which each shipment has lain there; the amount of duty unpaid thereon; and what steps have been taken by the Government to enforce Sections 28 and 29 of the Customs Management Act in regard to the same, and if no steps have been taken, why they have not been taken?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have asked the Deputy Minister of Finance and Customs to prepare a statement, and I judge that it will be ready tomorrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table the information, which is as follows:

Mr. Moore asked the Prime Minister who are the censors of moving pictures, if they are paid any salary, and if so, how much; and to table a statement showing all amounts paid to these parties for services in said capacity from the first of January, 1920, up to date.

The names and salaries of the moving picture censors are as follows:

Name	Salary
W. J. Carroll	$375.00 per annum
T. D. Carew	$250.00 per annum.

Payments made to these gentlemen in respect of services from January 1st, 1920, to March 31st, 1921, are as follows:

W. J. Carroll	$526.53
T. D. Carew (from October, 1920)	$124.98

MR. FOX:—Asked Hon. the Colonial Secretary, or other proper official head:

(a) How many barrels of flour, gallons of molasses and pounds of tea have been issued in the District of Burgeo and LaPoile as Poor Relief, permanent, casual or

- emergency, from March 1st, 1920, to March 31st, 1921.
- (b) Have the Relieving Officer's signed returns of all such Public Charities, covering the period named above, for the said District, tabled, and
- (c) The names of the merchants supplying such flour, molasses and tea, and the prices charged therefor by the said merchants, individually.

MR. LEWIS:—Asked the Hon the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a detailed statement of the expenses for which the Hon. Dr. Campbell appears to have been paid $2,000 "for travelling expenses to Canada," whether there is any foundation for this allegation, and if so what steps the Government is going to take to deal with this matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have called the attention of the Deputy Minister of Finance to that statement and if there are any details they will be furnished to-morrow.

Mr. Lewis asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the table of the House a statement showing for what Dr. Mosdell received the sum of $875.00 on account of General Contingencies in connection with the hand book; and to lay on the table of the House copy of the same.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The Deputy Minister of Finance is going to let the House have a memorandum in reply to that question.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is correct that a number of people in the District of Harbor Grace who sold their fish to Mr. George Gosse, M.H. A. for that district, have been unpaid, and if any of this fish was part of the stock of 66 casks which Mr. Gosse sold to G. M. Barr a few months ago and for which he received cash; and if any of this fish was taken by Mr. Gosse from these people and not paid for, will the Government intervene to see that they are paid; also if a number of men of Bay Roberts sold or put off their fish to Fradsham & Co. Ltd., or were employed by the said Company in its fishing operations on Labrador and remain unpaid for their fish or their services; if Hon. R. A. Squires was a partner, guarantor, creditor or mortgagor of the said Company, and if so what is the relation of Hon. R. A. Squires thereto, and if it is possible for the Fisheries Department or any other department of the Government to secure that these people shall be paid the amounts due them by this firm, and if so will he take steps to see that they are paid, as they are represented to be in great need at the present time.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—As soon as the reply comes it will be tabled.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Prime Minister if the distribution of able bodied relief has been suspended in Harbor Grace proper while same is continued in all the outlying settlements such as Island Cove, Bryant's Cove, and Spaniard's Bay, and what is the reason for the suspension or cutting off of Poor Relief in Harbour Grace proper at the present time; also who is the Relieving Officer in Harbor Grace and if his action has been taken as a result of instructions from the Poor Commissioner here, or on his own account, and if in the latter case, to lay on the table a copy of any report or letter from him justifying this action.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The attention of the Commissioner of Public Charities has been called to that question, but no reply has yet been received.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister if his attention has been called to the declaration of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. F. Coaker, to the Annual Convention of the F. P. U. opened at Port Union on Thursday, November 27th, 1919, as reported in "The Advocate" of that date, in which the President of the F. P. U. declared that more stringent laws should be enacted respecting bribery and corruption at elections, coupled with a charge that "clergymen, as well as fishermen were in some cases open to the influence and intimidation that flow from receiving public grants and special favors."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—With respect to that question, I would say that my attention was not called to an observation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries made on November 27th, 1919. I did not see a copy of the paper to which reference has been made, nor was the matter referred to Council or considered by them at any time.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister who is E. S. Hennebury, who appears to have received a pension of $1,249.98; what department he was connected with, and what salary he received before being pensioned.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table the information.

Mr. E. S. Hennebury was formerly telegraph operator and cable repairer at Beaverton, N.D.B. After being connected with the public service since the year 1868, he was pensioned from the 1st January, 1920, upon an annual allowance of $1,000. Previous to being pensioned his salary was $114.25 per month.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs to lay on the table of the House a statement showing for what the Hon. S. J. Foote was paid the sum of $10,371.12 in relation to an action between the schooner "General Currie" and the s.s. "Portia"; to lay on the table of the House a copy of all correspondence in relation to this matter, and to furnish detailed statement of the items making up this amount.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That information will be forthcoming during the afternoon.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the table of the House a statement showing for what the Food Control Board was paid the sum of twelve hundred dollars; all correspondence and documents in relation thereto, and a statement showing the items making up that amount.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have a memorandum from the Deputy Minister of Finance and Customs who is preparing that information and will have it ready tomorrow.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister if his attention has been called to the declaration of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. F. Coaker, to the Annual Convention of the F. P. U. opened at Port Union on Thursday, November 27th, 1919, as reported in "The Advocate" of that date, namely, "That the Minister of Fisheries has appointed Mr. George Hawes, of Alicante, to be his consulting agent at Europe, as Mr. Hawes is probably the most experienced man procurable, having conducted a big fish business on behalf of the Newfoundland trade in Spain the past ten years which has proven successfully"; and if this is the same Mr. Hawes who was described by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in The Advocate newspaper last week as being a man who was doing irreparable injury to our fishery trade through his practise of handling fish on consignment; and is Mr. Hawes still acting as agent for the Newfoundland Government, and if he is, does the Government propose to continue him in that capacity.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—My attention was not called to the article in question, nor was the matter referred to the Executive Government at any time. I know but only one Mr. Hawes, the fish agent.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I would like to know if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is in the country, and if he is too ill to come back again. I am not going to take this method of answering.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I understand that he has been ill for some days.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—He should be in his place in the House and not have debate going on in this form.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, what the nature of the coal investigation for which the Anglo-American Development Co. was paid $7,347.78 from the Account of General Contingencies, a copy of any report made in relation thereto, and a detailed statement of the items making up this amount.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines is preparing the information and I will have it to-morrow.

Mr. Moore asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the consumption of "splits" during the calendar year 1920 and to show the saving, if any, to the Colony in material and value.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—That information is being prepared.

Mr. Moore asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the total amount paid by the Government Departments for advertising in a book on the Road Commission by Mr. R. Hibbs,

M.H.A. for Fogo, during the last year, and to state what value, if any, the Government expected to receive from advertising in this publication.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table that information: The total amount paid by the Government Departments for advertising in the Road Commission Book, issued last year, was $80.00.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. the Premier if it is the intention of the Government to introduce Bill to repeal:

- (1) The Imports and Exports Restriction Act, 1918, under which the import of sugar was recently prohibited.
- (2) The War Measures Act, 1914.
- (3) The Food Stuffs Act, 1914.
- (4) The Articles of Commerce Act, 1916.
- (5) The Food Control Act, 1917.
- (6) Section 259 of the Customs Act, empowering the Governor in Council to prohibit, amongst other things, the exportation of fish.
- (7) The Fish Regulations Act, 1920.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if any arrangements have been made by him on behalf of the Colony or by the Government by which Mr. George Hawes is to receive any financial compensation for alleged claims by him against the Colony arising out of the operation of the fishery regulations and if any contracts or agreements oral or in writing have been entered into between Mr. Hawes on the one hand and the Minister of Fisheries or any other Minister on behalf of the Government on the other hand with that object in view, and if so to lay on the table of the House a summary of the same.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I would ask that that question remain until to-morrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to lay upon the table of the House a reply to question 11 on Order Paper of the 20th.

1. Yes, to examine the coal areas owned by the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd.

2. Coal deposits near Howley.

3. William Noel, Thos. J. Freeman, P. Furlong, J. M. Forbes, G. Hudson.

4. As the report deals altogether with the deposits on the private property of the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., it is not considered advisable that it should be published.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker: I would like to ask the Prime Minister what has been done in reference to the recommendation made before the Bar of the House last week in relation to the raising of certain money on Government guarantee from the Bank for the unemployed of St. John's? Has any guarantee been given the Municipal Council or has anything been done outside of what we saw in the papers over the expenditure of that fifty thousand dollars that was passed in this House and appropriated last year for the re-building of the Long Bridge? I presume it is alright; but there must be some guarantee given by the Government before they can advance one hundred and fifty thousand dollars more to the Municipal Council. I would like to know the negotiations concluded in this respect?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker: For the information of the House I will relate the circumstances in so far as I have personal knowledge of them. On Saturday of last week I had an interview with Mr. Ryan, City Engineer, and Mr. Mullaly, the Acting Chairman of the City Commission. As it had been represented by a workingman's committee that great poverty existed in St. John's among the different artisans and laboring class of people generally, I asked Mr. Mullaly or Mr. Mullaly asked, me to meet a committee of Council on Monday at noon. I met the Commissioners and the proposition was discussed as follows: Mr. Ryan suggested to have 100 men employed by Wednesday and increase that number by 100 men per day up to Saturday and by Monday of this week to have 500 men employed. But he also pointed out that it was necessary for the Council to telegraph to New York for certain water pipe, without which the work could not progress to any considerable extent; also he said that it would be necessary to make arrangements with the Government to get 1,000 feet of 6 inch water pipe to cope with the new water connection in Water Street West and thus ensure a satisfactory supply of water to the Poor Asylum. On that occasion the City Engineer overlook the fact that it would not be possible to start work until he had possession of the lands the pipes had to go through and in order to do this proper notice had to be given and plans had to be drawn. With the result that on Saturday after noon no further steps were taken, but I understand they were to be taken this morning.

Regarding the fifty thousand dollars for St. John's West in connection with the construction of Long Bridge it is the intention to build a new bridge of steel construction that will be about twice the size of the present one. and the new water main of the city will be laid under the river, because the City Engineer thought the vibration of the bridge might be the cause of injury to the main pipes and the disrupting of seams. Mr. Ryan told me that it is the intention of the Council to put a new main across the Bridge, and the question was being debated as to whether that should be done in conjunction with the bridge or tunnelled in. The work is in the hands of the Government and the City Engineer rather than the Department of Public Works as it was thought that if the Department of Public Works had control, it might give a political significance to the work.

With respect to the loan necessary I went to see the Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and he has communicated with Head Office, who, naturally, decided to take a little time to consider the matter, and the Manager told me this morning that he had received a reply which he considered favourable, but that he was awaiting answers to certain other messages, and he would give me a definite reply to-morrow morning. The Government has given the Canadian Bank of Commerce all the security they require for the loan. On Monday there was a morning session of the Municipal Council and Mr. Ryan, the City Engineer, told the Council that he anticipated that on to-morrow he would have twenty-five men on preparatory work, fifty more on the Parade Ground, and fifteen men in at the Sandpit on Topsail Road, making a total of ninety men, and that by Wednesday he hoped to increase it by fifty more, and so on until all the unemployed were working.

The registration list of unemployed shows a total of four hundred and twenty-two, a number of these being single men, but some of them married men with large families. The Chairman of the Council told me this morning that he would have a conference with the three leaders of the Workmen's Council, and that they would go over the list together, so that the most needy cases might be selected for employment first.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to express my appreciation and I think the appreciation as well of my colleagues of St. John's East, that something is being done to relieve the present situation. There were rumors around town regarding the moneys for this purpose, and I am glad to know that the banks will advance the necessary money to the City Council. I intended to give notice of a resolution in this connection. What we want to do is to look after the people who are hungry and needy, and I hope those in charge of the work, when using discrimination, will use it with mercy, and not turn a man down because he has not a large family. There are many young men today in just as bad circumstances as married men. I hope that the Government will continue in this project and that the necessary money will be forthcoming tomorrow, and that there will be no delay with regard to this work, and I request that the Hon. the Prime Minister see that something tangible be done to employ any man who proves himself worthy of consideration.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I feel sure that the men of St. John's East and West will appreciate the public spirit of Mr. Bennett with regard to this matter. I did not say that the bank had guaranteed the money, but that the Manager had received a satisfactory reply from head office and that he would let me know definitely tomorrow morning. I may say that in discussing this matter with the Council that I told them that if the Canadian Bank of Commerce refused to give this loan, I would submit to the Legislature the necessity of getting a loan for this work.

Mr. Bennet moved and Hon. the Prime Minister seconded the following resolution:

"RESOLVED: That a Select Committee of this House be appointed with power to send for persons, papers and things, and to take evidence on oath to enquire into the proceedings of the 'Food Control Board' so-called, and especially into the purchase of sugar, and contracts for sugar, whereby certain persons, firms and companies were relieved of onerous obligations, and heavy losses which they would have incurred, but which were imposed instead upon the taxpayers of the Colony."

This resolution was carried un-animously.

Notice of Motion

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of moving a Resolution, and, if you will permit me, Sir, I will read it for the benefit of the House, as this matter is a very important one, and I trust that it will receive the consideration that its importance warrants. You will remember, Mr. Speaker, that it was in the early part of last week that I first gave this notice of question. On Thursday last the Prime Minister stated that he was having some enquiries made into the matter and he asked to have it deferred until today. The Resolution is:

"That a Select Committee of this House be appointed with power to send for persons, papers and things, and to take evidence on oath to enquire into the proceedings of the Food Control Board, so called, and especially into the purchase of sugar, and contracts for sugar, whereby certain firms and companies were relieved of onerous obligations, and heavy losses which they would have incurred, but which were imposed instead upon the taxpayers of the Colony."

In moving this Resolution, I desire to impress upon the House that it is not done for any partisan object. This is a question that has been agitating the public mind for a considerable time past, and in view of circumstances that arose recently. Following a question asked the Prime Minister by me, a statement appeared in the Auditor General's Report showing that a loss of between $190,000 and $200,000 was sustained on this article, and that amount not ai-together on sugar handled in Newfoundland at all, but rather on sugar that never reached this country. I submit that that is an important and far-reaching statement, and one that calls for an unusual investigation, not alone in relation to this point, but in relation to the whole work of the Food Control Board since its inception. It is an admitted fact that considerable hardships have been suffered by the people, and considerable losses have been incurred on account of sugar, and it is only right and proper that this House should be in possession of all the facts. I do not in any way impute any wrongdoing to the members of the Food Control Board, as individuals. They are all estimable gentlemen as far as I know; but through some means, either by an error of judgment or bad judgment or bad business tactics or short-sightedness or that they were badly advised, this Colony has been subject to a considerable loss. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think that if a committee of five members of this House, I submit to your decision, were appointed, and on which I think it would be advisable to have a couple of legal gentlemen who are capable of examining under oath, to conduct the fullest investigation, that it would be received by the whole community with acceptance. This question has been agitating the public mind so long that it is about time to have it cleared up. Therefore, I have much pleasure in moving the Resolution.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to second the motion made by my hon. friend, the Member for St. John's West. As has been said by Mr. Bennett, the question of the conducting of an investigation of the Food Control Board is not a partisan one, because the Board comprises a body of representative citizens, who were appointed in accordance with an Act passed in 1917.

A year ago the Board was enlarged, by an Act passed by the Legislature, from three to five or six members. Its former constitution was the Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath, Editor of "The Evening Herald," as Chairman, Mr. Le-Messurier, Assistant Collector of Customs, and Mr. George Grimes. Mr. McGrath resigned and in his stead was appointed Mr. Mews; Mr. Le-Messurier remains a member of the committee; Mr. George Grimes resigned, and in his stead was appointed Mr. McKay, who, I think, was then the immediate ex-President of the Board of Trade. The powers of the Food Control Board were enlarged to include representatives of the 'Longshoremen's Protective Union and the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association, and, if I remember rightly, Mr. McGrath, who at that time was either the then President or ex-President of the L. S. P. U., and Mr. Noel, who was either the then President or ex-President of the N. I. W. A. were appointed additional members of the Board. The Government welcomes the fullest investigation as to the conduct of the Food Control Board, appointed as they were by the Government under an Act passed in 1917. I feel quite certain that the investigation, whatever it discloses as to judgment or business capacity, will evidence to the House and to the country one thing, and that is the untiring efforts on the part of those gentlemen who comprise the Board to do the best they could in accordance with the interests of the whole country. Might I suggest that a committee of three be appointed for a start. Later, if necessary, an enlargement could be made.

MR. BENNETT:—Might I impress upon the House how essential it is to have legal gentlemen on the Committee. If the Government is nominating a legal man, I would suggest Mr. Higgins from this side.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Three representatives would probably be sufficient, and as we go on the enlargement of the committee could be considered.

MR. SPEAKER:—The committee will consist of Hon. S. J. Foote, Chairman, Hon. J. R. Bennett and Hon. Dr. Barnes. The committee will have power to add to their numbers.

Mr. Speaker appointed the committee as follows: Hon. Mr. Foote, Mr. Bennett, Hon. the Minister of Education.

MR. SCAMMELL:—Mr. Speaker: It is not my intention to delay the House in regard to this Amendment, but I consider I should be recreant in my duty to myself, and to the party with which I am associated, if I were to sit in my place and allow this vote to proceed, without replying to some of the insinuations and innuendos that have been thrown across to us from the other side of the House during the course of the debate.

I may say, Sir, that when on opening day I moved the appointment of a select Committee to draft an Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne, I had no idea that the debate on the Address in Reply would take the acrimonious turn which it has taken, or that we would witness such events, such scenes as we have witnessed in this House during the past fortnight. As far as gentlemen on both sides of the House are concerned, I want to make my position clear, and that is, that coming here for the first time, I regret the events which have occurred here since the opening of the Session. I do not propose to lay the blame on any individual member of the House, or any particular body of men, but in my humble opinion the Legislature by these events has been shorn of every ounce of dignity and prestige with which it has been vested from its earliest days.

As I stated here in my maiden speech last year, we expect the Opposition to criticise our efforts and our actions as a Government, but one thing stands out more than anything else during this debate, and it is that despite all the matter with which the Opposition has treated this House, we fail to see in it all one suggestion of constructive criticism. I expected our actions would be criticised, but I also thought that the Opposition where we had failed would be able to point the way, and that we might expect from them some constructive criticism at least. Now, Sir, the speeches of the various members of the Opposition contained nothing of that nature. I will go farther and say that from my experience of the people of the country, I do not think that these speeches reflect any credit upon themselves either as individuals or as a party.

Now, Sir, the first thing with which I must concern myself this afternoon, is what I consider to be a personal insult. The F. P. U. members have been called dupes, imbeciles, ignoramuses by Honourable gentlemen opposite who should and do know better. They have been told that they are unable to take care of themselves and that they are at the beck and call of one man. I would like to crave the indulgence of the House, while I lay my position as a member of the F. P. U. before this House and the country.

I am an F. P. U. man, it is true, but I did not go to Mr. Coaker and beg him to employ me, nor did I ask him to take me into his party. I went to him on his own invitation. I was sent for by Mr. Coaker, and as far as the statement goes that I am dependent upon the F. P. U. for a position, that is absolutely false. I held a good position in this country before perhaps the inception of the F. P. U. and anybody who knows my family will assure you that we have never had to depend upon the Government, the F. P. U. or any other Company or Corporation for our support or well being.

I am as free, Sir, to quit Mr. Coaker tomorrow as I was to go with him, but I should be unfaithful to my district and to the North were I to do such a thing. It is because I know that the F. P. U. has revolutionized conditions North, and has proved to be the greatest benefactor the fishermen North ever had that I stand here today an F. P. U. man. I know the North. I have lived among its people. I know what conditions North were fifteen years ago, and I know what they are to-day. A transformation has been wrought, and our people are in the main prosperous, happy and independent. They are masters of the situation every time. They are neither ignorant, bigoted nor gullable, but their sympathies are not to be alienated from an organization that has done so much for them. It is useless to go North and attempt to destroy this Union. I regret that some Members opposite should have so insultingly referred to this organisation. The one result of this bitter attack will be to cement our ranks and leave us stronger than ever before. The gauntlet has been thrown down to us and we accept the challenge. The man who throws down the gauntlet to fight an organisation such as this really challenges the right of labour to organise.

However the F. P. U. has come to stay and I venture the prediction, Mr. Speaker, that the F. P. U. will be a power North, when some of us here today are no longer known.

Now, to turn again to the debate on the Amendment. The Opposition, as in Duty bound, have lost no opportunity, spared no pains to lay bare the sins of the Government, either real or imagined. But, Mr. Speaker, throughout their attacks there has been one characteristic evasion, and it is that in discussing conditions as we find them in the country today, they have studiously avoided any reference to world conditions generally. And, Mr. Speaker, it is these world conditions, the aftermath of the war, which are largely responsible for many of the difficulties we find ourselves in today. Their causes are not attributable to Newfoundland any more than conditions in other countries are attributable entirely to these countries.

Take Great Britain as an example. Recently there was a debate in the British House of Commons on an Unemployment Bill and the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, in the course of the debate took the position that conditions there were not attributable to Britain entirely, but were the result of world conditions very largely. I have here the report of his speech, and this is what he says:

"The Prime Minister observed that unemployment was suffering which seemed to him inseparable from the trading activities of the world. The question had been treated rather as if it were something attributable to causes which were confined to Great Britain; that was not the case. With the exception of France every country in the world was suffering from unemployment."

And also:

"The present period of unemployment was undoubtedly due to the fact that the War had impoverished the world. Their customers were insolvent, and Europe could not buy. She was bankrupt. She could hardly feed herself. Until Europe started again, until Europe was able to buy, the prospects would remain very serious."

The same is true of us in Newfoundland, only in a greater degree and not at all due to any action of the Government, wise or otherwise.

Now, Sir, in discussing the financial position of the colony, the Opposition has charged us with squandering and dissipating the $4,000,000.00 surplus left in the Treasury by the late Government. They have harped on this to such an extent that it looks very much like an appeal to the galleries rather than an attempt to indulge in honest criticism of our actions. Let us have criticism by all means, but at least let it be fair and honest.

Granting that the $4,000,000.00 was there, why can't the Opposition be honest with themselves and with the country, and tell the country that it took nearly half that surplus to pay debts and bills which they themselves incurred and left unpaid as a legacy to us when they went out of office. That is the true position, Sir, and the sooner the country knows the truth the sooner it will be in a position to place the proper value on the charges of the Opposition against the Government.

Then, there is the charge against us that we took $500,000.00 to buy fish. That was a crime, wasn't it? The Leader of the Opposition says, "yes, it was." Then, all I have to say is, that the man who takes that position is looking at it absolutely from a local point of view. We did no more than the British Government did, when they subsidized the coal miners of England. The market price of coal did not warrant the mine owners in paying the wages compatible with the cost of living. The Government stepped in and subsidized the miners, and it is because that subsidy is now to be removed that we are witnessing this gigantic strike of the miners.

If that fish had not been bought we should have had forty or fifty thousand quintals of Labrador fish with us unsold which would have meant starvation and destitution over large areas north. The Honourable Member of St. John's West, (Mr. Bennett) asks what about the West Coast. I maintain that the purchase of this fish tended to keep prices up on the West Coast, and it also did much to sustain prices of our fish on the other side, and en route. It is said we used the $500,000.00 to buy fish from our own supporters North. That is untrue. Out of the 6,000 shareholders of the F.P.U. I venture to say that not ten sold their fish under this arrangement.

The Leader of the Opposition asks what about the fish on the "President Coaker?" My answer is, that the fish on the "President Coaker" may have been from F.P.U. men or it may not. When a man comes to Port Union to sell fish, if we are prepared to buy we do not ask whether he is an F.P.U. man or not. We treat all alike.

Now, coming on to the Fish Regulations.

Mr. Speaker, I stated here on the opening day that the Regulations had benefitted the fishermen to the extent of between two and three dollars a quintal. I am still of that opinion, and I believe in a very short time we will have some of the very strongest opponents of the Fish Regulations coming to us and asking that they again be put in force. But, notice has been given of a bill to repeal the Regulations, and as at present enforced and constituted they will have to go.

Now just a personal reference in conclusion.

The Honourable Member for St. George's stated that I would not be received very royally in Bonne Bay if I went there now. Well, I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that I admit the people of Bonne Bay are not very demonstrative as a rule, but I want to inform the Honourable Member also that on the day he made that statement I had in my pocket four telegrams, from business men and others of Bonne Bay, assuring me of the support of the people there and on the coast.

I was just in the act of concluding my few remarks on the amendment to the Address in Reply when the Honourable Member for St. George's rose to a point of order. I was about to conclude by saying that I could not find myself in a position to vote for the amendment for the various reasons outlined by Mr. Jennings the other day. The amendment arose out of the fact that there was no intimation in the Speech from the Throne that the Codfish Exportation Act would be repealed. There was no such intimation, there could be no such intimation because the responsible Minister was not in the country. As soon as he arrived notice of a Bill to repeal the Act was given, and therefore I cannot see the consistency of supporting the amendment.

These are my remarks as far as this matter is concerned and I have tried to answer the many criticisms thrown across from the other side in a fair manner and I have tried to conduct myself in such a way as to reflect credit to the Party I am with on this side of the House as well as to the district I have the honor of representing.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Speaker, Mr. Jennings in his able speech of Thursday last, stated that when in Opposition, the then leader of the Opposition, Mr. Kent, now Judge Kent, trained them to obey the rules of debate and to observe and follow along the lines of parliamentary procedure. I am sorry, Sir, that the present Leader of the Opposition has not followed the example of his predecessors. Sir Michael has invariably interrupted the different speakers: he has abused us collectively and individually, he has appealed to the galleries; he has over-ruled the Speaker's decision, and conducted himself in such a manner as to bring discredit upon himself and the party which he now leads.

As a young and "impertinent" (if you please) member of this Assembly, I wish to remind him that most of us, and I believe Newfoundland in general, wish to see this House conducted decently and we are still duty bound to help maintain here that honor and dignity handed down to us from the Mother of Parliaments.

It appears to me that many of my honorable friends opposite are fighting a political campaign rather than taking an interest in discussing the legislation for which this country now hungers. We have been informed several times that we have spent three or four weeks here in session but have not yet accomplished anything. Who is to blame for this state of affairs but the Opposition? They have exhausted themselves in debating the Speech from the Throne, and then framed up an excuse in the shape of an amendment in order to get an opportunity for sending across a second gas attack. Upon reference to past governments, we find that when a Bill covering the demands of an amendment has been presented, the amendment has been immediately withdrawn. In this instance, such is not the case, but the Opposition, who are posing as the saviours of the country, have taken full advantage of an amendment in order to prolong the debate.

Mr. Speaker, is such conduct honest? Is it parliamentary? Is it patriotic? Such conduct at the present time when we should get to business as speedily as possible cannot be pleasing to the intelligent supporters of our friends opposite. We expect and welcome honest criticism. It is essential to good legislation, but we abhor and resent dishonest criticism and personal abuse; and, Sir, I now wish to take this opportunity of hurling back in the faces of those who so ungentlemanly and wantonly insulted us, their insults and their scorn.

Much has been said about the Fishery Regulations. Some, who know the least about them, have said the most. Some of those who scarcely know a codfish from a squid have been ready to enforce their views upon this Assembly as being the only right and proper course to pursue. I think there are but two members of this House who have any practical knowledge of the marketing of fish abroad, and unfortunately these two gentlemen disagree in their ideas. Most of us, however, are aware that the Fishery Regulations were introduced at a time when the markets were exceedingly poor and when gentlemen who had a greater love for party politics than for country used their influence to defeat them. The plea has been put up by some gentlemen opposite that they voted for the Regulations because they knew the Bill would be passed in any case. Is not this a petty excuse, seeing that the same may be said of any Bill which the Government brought forward.

Mr. Coaker (Minister of Marine and Fisheries), in putting the Regulations into effect carried out the wishes of the Exporters' Association and of the Advisory Board, yet, because they have not been wholly successful, the entire blame is laid on the Minister, and despite the fact that Mr. Coaker was spoken of in such glowing terms last year by the majority of the Opposition, he is now, according to the statement of one of the Opposition, a criminal. The Opposition have been trying to impose upon an innocent public the fact that all the depression, all the poverty, all the lack of employment, all the fish now left unsold are due to the Regulations. This, Mr. Speaker, is political camouflage! What about herring? Are they in demand today? Is this due to the Regulations? Sir Michael Cashin stated a few days ago that the seal-skins and oil of last year were not yet disposed of. Is this due to the Regulations? What about the decrease in the value of lumber? Is this due to the Regulations? What about the lack of employment on Bell Island, at Grand Falls, and even at St. John's? Is this due to the Regulations?

The one thing that surprises me is that some member opposite did not have the audacity to try to impress upon the public that the excessive fall of snow in St. John's last winter was due to the Fishery Regulations.

Mr. Speaker, we are in as good a condition as other countries which knew nothing of Regulations. The conditions which we now have to face in common with other countries are not due to the Regulations, but it is our legacy of the Great War.

The F. P. U. Members have been termed hirelings, told that we are controlled body and soul, that we have no independence whatever. I wish to inform the gentlemen who are responsible for these charges that the F. P. U. members are just as independent, just as ready to fight for the right, and just as loyal to the voters who sent them here as any of the members of this Assembly.

Mr. Fox has informed us that he has taken off his coat to fight the F. P. U., or words to that effect. He has thrown out the challenge and we accept that challenge. The conduct of himself and others during this session has been such to bind the F. P. U. stronger than it ever was before.

I venture to predict that he will never be strong enough to tear the heart out of Coaker and that long after he and I have passed into the Beyond, the F. P. U. will remain a living memorial to its founder—"that man Coaker"—who has given and is still giving his ability, his energy, his all, for the uplifting and independence of the toiling masses.

Mr. Speaker, we admire the manner in which our leader, the Premier, has conducted himself during this most contemptible form possible, he has played the part of a gentleman, session. Although attacked in the and we feel sure that when his turn comes, he will do himself justice.

I have much pleasure, Sir, in opposing the Amendment.

A disorder having arisen, Mr. Speaker in consequence, left the Chair at a quarter to five until six o'clock.

On motion the Debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Vinicombe gave Notice of Question.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice, Hon. the Prime Minister moved and Hon. the Minister of Education seconded "That a Select Committee of three of this House be appointed to confer with a Committee of three of the Great War Veterans' Association, the Board of Pensions Commissioners and the Chief Staff Officer of the Department of Militia, in the matter of Pensions and Gratuities to Newfoundland Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Great War and their Dependents."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Mr. Speaker, the notice of motion as printed on the Order Paper is not exactly as I desire to have it. It should read as follows:

“That a Select Committee of three of this House be appointed to confer with a Committee of three of the Great War Veterans' Association, the Board of Pension Commissioners and the Chief Staff Officer of the Department of Militia, in the matter of Pensions and Gratuities to Newfoundland soldiers and sailors who served in the Great War and their Dependents.”

In moving the appointment of this Select Committee I would observe that some days ago I was approached by the G.W.V.A. asking that a Select Committee of three be appointed by the Legislature to look into certain alleged irregularities in connection with certain pensions and gratuity cases. I understand that the G.W.V.A. has appointed or propose to appoint a committee of three, and the Select Committee of the Legislators, together with this committee of three of the G.W.V.A. will form a representative body for a conference with the Board of Pension Commissioners and the Chief Staff Officer of the Department of Militia, so that any alleged irregularities may be satisfactorily investigated. The work of the Board of Pension Commissioners has been exceptionally arduous, and it is not to be expected that every one of the thousands of cases with which they have to deal would be dealt with in a manner satisfactory to everybody. I feel, however, that the Board of Pension Commissioners themselves heartily welcome the presentation to them of any complaint and will be happy to look into any alleged irregularities or injustices which may be supposed to have occurred. So far as the Government is concerned, it regards with pleasure the action of the G.W.V.A. in this connection and I have much pleasure in moving the appointment of a Select Committee.

DR. BARNES:—I have very much pleasure in seconding the motion proposed by the Prime Minister.

This motion was adopted.

Mr. Speaker thereupon appointed the Committee as follows: Mr. Small, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Sullivan.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, to lay on the table of the House:

- (1) A detailed statement showing all cattle purchased by the Agriculture & Mines Department peddree, etc., and cost of same.
- (2) A detailed statement showing the cost of keeping said cattle since arrival to date; how many men are employed at same, and who is in charge.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, to lay on the Table of the House the cost of his trip to Italy; what amounts he has been paid; is it his intention to put in any bill for his services; and on whose authority did he proceed to Italy?

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines to lay on the Table of the House a detailed statement of all monies paid in connection with forest fires during the past twelve months

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Colonial Secretary to lay on the Table of the House a detailed statement of what poor relief has been sent from St. John's since September 1st, 1920, to date, and the names of the firms who have supplied same.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Hon. the Minister of Shipping to lay on the Table of the House what was the total amount paid for the hire of the S. S. Diana last season, also how much was paid per day

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister if any decision has been arrived at by the Government, in connection with a Company to be formed here relative to working the Grand Lake and Humbermouth proposition; and to inform the House what policy they intended to pursue?

(1) Is it correct that this country is going to be asked to guarantee the principal and interest up to $25,000,000 to carry on this work. If that is not correct to inform this House what are the actual facts, and to lay all correspondence in connection with same on the Table of the House.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries if these Fish Inspectors have been employed the past few days, and if so what for; also if Mr. Stephen Bradbury has been sent to the West Coast to inspect fish, and what is the intention of the Government in the future re inspection of fish for the coming season.

Mr. Moore asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a statement of the quantity of liquors of all kinds supplied by the Controller's Department to Messrs. Stafford, druggists, from Nov. 15th, 1919, to March 31st, 1921, and the value of the same, specifying the quantities of the different kinds of liquors, beers, etc. supplied.

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, what is represented by the following two items in the General Contingencies Account:

Smith Traverse, coal boring expenses, $14,261.74.

Smith Traverse, coal boring expenses, $2,835.54.

and to furnish a detailed statement of the said expenditure.

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a statement showing what is represented by the item in the General Contingencies Account, "Daily Star, $600.00," and to furnish a detailed statement of same.

Dr. Jones asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as Chairman of the Railway Commission, if there is in his possession or in that of any Government Department, a report on the coal boring explorations under way near Grand Lake for sometime past, with particular reference to an alleged discovery last fall of a new seam which was represented by Railway Commission in newspapers as being exceedingly important and likely to be able to supply the needs of Grand Falls, if this seam is now being worked, and if so to what extent; and if it is not being worked, why not; and to table also a statement of the expenditure on the said coal boring experiment from the 15th of November, 1919, up to date.

Mr. Sullivan asked Hon. W. F. Coaker, Chairman of Railway Commission to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing:

- (1) The cost of operating the railway from July 1st, 1920 to March 21st, 1921.
- (2) The earnings of the railway from July 1st, 1920 to March 31st, 1921.
- (3) The amount of snow-fighting last season.
- (4) The amount lost in operating the railway and steamers from July 1st, 1920, to March 31, 1921.
- (5) What further amount over revenue will be required to operate the railway and steamers from March 31st, 1921, to June 30th 1921.
- (6) If it is the intention of the Government to continue to operate the railway and steamers under the Commission after June 30th, 1921.
- (7) If it is not their intention to do so, then to inform this House at once what policy they intend to pursue in connection with our inland transportation and coastal problems.

- (8) The amount expended to date improving the terminal at Port au Basques, and the cost of the Argentinia terminal to date.
- (9) To inform the House how many box cars and flat cars have been completed to date, also the price paid for the new locomotives which were imported recently.

Mr. Sullivan asked Hon. W. F. Coaker, Chairman of the Railway Commission, to inform the House what amounts, if any, is still due the Reid-Nfld Co., for repairs to steamers and what claims there are against the Railway Commission in connection with the operation of the railway system and the coastal service.

Mr. Sullivan asked Hon. the Colonial Secretary to inform the House what time it is proposed to hold the arbitration in connection with the land which was taken over for terminal facilities and right of way at Argentinia?

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Minister of Shipping to lay on the Table of the House:

- (1) The exact cost of the S. S. Watchful, also contracts and vouchers for all monies paid out for repairs or to be paid out.
- (2) The exact cost of the S. S. Sebastopol, also contracts and vouchers for all monies paid out for repairs or to be paid out.
- (3) The exact cost of the S. S. Daisy, also contracts and vouchers for all monies paid out for repairs or to be paid out.
- (5) The exact cost of the S. S. Malakoff, also contracts and vouchers for all monies paid out for repair or to be paid out.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Minister of Shipping to lay on the Table of the House a full detailed statement of the $11,000 due by his Department to the Treasury for salt, as stated in the report of the Auditor-General.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance & Customs, to lay on the Table of the House the Revenue for January, February, March, and April, 1920, and the corresponding period for 1921.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines, to inform this House what quantity of pulp wood has been cut on Government account up to date, what the total quantity will likely be; also what amount of wood cut on Government account has been sold to date; if none has been sold, what is the intention of the Government in connection with the matter?

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a report if any has yet been made, on the herring fishery of the West Coast during the past winter showing the quantity and value of herring taken at the various centres of activity there and the quantity and value of the same exported together with a comparative statement of the quantity and value of the exports for the previous years, and to say why there has been such a falling off in the industry and what steps, if any, he is taking to revive it and make it the valuable feature in our fishing industries—that it was in the past.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister if a meeting was held Thursday last between the Government or representatives thereof and the Managers of the Banks in St. John's, what was the purpose of the said meeting; what propositions were put before it by the Government, and what by the Bankers, and what was the outcome of the meeting; and to lay on the Table of the House copies of any correspondence or other documents in relation thereto. Also, if there was a meeting on Friday night last between the Government, or representatives thereof, and merchants, fish exporters or other parties, and if so, what was the object of the same, what propositions were put before the meeting by the Government and what was the outcome of the same? And to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence and other documents in relation thereto.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines:—

- (a) What practical results ensued from the use of the airplanes at Botwood this Spring in assisting our sealing steamers to locate the seals;
- (b) How many trips were made by the airplanes?
- (c) The total period they were in the air and the total mileage they covered, if they got out of sight of land, and if not, why not.
- (d) If they ever reached any areas where seals in large quantities were visible and if so when and what was the result;
- (e) If they were ever in touch by wireless with the sealing steamers;
- (f) If they furnished the sealing steamers with any information of any kind whatever, and
- (g) What was the total cost of this experiment to the Colony?

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance & Customs, if Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines—Hon. Dr. Campbell, in his capacity as Health Officer to the ports of St. John's, actually visits incoming steamers to give them a Health Certificate, as required by law, and if not why not? If in cases where he does not visit the ship he collects the fee for said visit and certificate and if so, why? And to lay on the Table of the House a statement of all the ships actually visited by him from the first of January of this year up to date, endorsed by the certificate of the proper officer certifying the cases in which such visits were made and the cases in which they were not made.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if the six motor cars to which reference has already been made in this House as having been delivered to Importers on temporary permits without duty being paid, have been attached by the Department of Customs as security for the duty thereon; if the advertisement by a City Auctioneer recently, of having cars for sale has reference to these cars; if in the absence of invoices when the cars were brought in a Bill of Sight was tendered or accepted on said cars as is usual in such cases; if in the absence of such Bill of Sight the said cars were sent to the examining store or valued by the Customs' Examining Officer, and duly tendered on his valuation, and if not, why not, and also to ask where these cars are at present, and if the Customs' Department has any deposit or security for the said duty thereon, and if none of these steps were taken why was a different practice followed in regard to these cars than what is usual in other cases?

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing what is represented by the item in the General Contingencies Account—"Newfoundland Fishery Board $746.42"

Sir M. P. Cashin drew the attention of Hon. the Premier, to the statement of the Auditor General, in a report laid upon the Table of this House, by the Premier, and will ask him to obtain further special report from the Auditor General explaining:

- (a) What Treasury Officials or Officials informed him of the facts he reports as to the salt cargo landed at Port Union?
- (b) In what manner money was obtained from the Surplus Trust Fund in the Bank of Montreal, if there was, as far as he knows, no Minutes of Council authorizing the transaction.
- (c) If there was a special warrant signed by the Governor for the issue of the amount expended, as required by the Audit. Act, Sec 335?
- (d) When and by whom and in what form, the sum of $4,400.00 was paid into the Treasury on account of this salt, and if by cheque to attach the cheque or a copy thereof, to the special report?

And further that I will ask the Premier:

- (a) If there is any correspondence or any documents in relation to this matter, of any kind, whatever, and if so to lay copies thereof on the Table of this House especially, of the charter party of the ship which brought the salt to the Colony, and of the correspondence relating to the purchase thereof?
- (b) Whether the purchase or disposition of the salt was known at the time thereof to the Governor-in-Council, or was negotiated by any minister, and if so, by whom, and with what authority.
- (c) If the Government propose to take any proceedings in the Supreme Court to test whether a sale of the salt to the Union Trading Co., Ltd., was or was not made, and to recover the balance due if a sale was made, and if so, when such proceedings will be instituted, and

- (d) If no such proceedings are intended, does the Government accept the position that the salt now at Port Union belongs to the Government, and if so, what costs connected therewith are being incurred, what provisions as to its care and custody are being made, at what rates is it to be sold, and by whom, and how and by whom will the price be collected, and at present current rates, what will be the approximate loss on the transaction in case of such sale on behalf of the Government.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if any arrangements have been made by him on behalf of the Colony or by the Government by which Mr. George Hawes is to receive any financial compensation for alleged claims by him against the Colony arising out of the operation of the fishery regulations and if any contracts or agreements oral or in writing have been entered into between Mr. Hawes on the one hand and the Minister of Fisheries or any other Minister on behalf of the Government on the other hand with that object in view, and if so to lay on the Table of the House a summary of the same.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is correct that a number of people in the District of Harbor Grace who sold their fish to Mr. George Gosse, M.H.A., for that district have been unpaid, and if any of this fish was part of the stock of 66 casks which Mr. Gosse sold to G. M. Barr a few months ago, and for which he received cash; and if any of this fish was taken by Mr. Gosse from these people and not paid for, will the Government intervene to see that they are paid; also if a number of men of Bay Roberts sold or put off their fish to Fradsham & Co., Ltd., or were employed by the said Company in its fishing operations on Labrador and remain unpaid for their fish or their services; if Hon. R. A. Squires was a partner, guarantor, creditor, or mortgagor of the said Company, and if so, what is the relation of Hon. R. A. Squires thereto, and if it is possible for the Fisheries Department or any other Department of the Government to secure that these people shall be paid the amounts due them by this firm, and if so will he take steps to see that they are paid as they are represented to be in great need at the present time.

Mr. MacDonnell asked the Minister of Public Works to furnish a statement showing in detail a complete list of all goods supplied by W. J. Scott, Esq., S.M., when he took up his residence at Curling and at any period since.

Mr. Vinicombe gave notice of question.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I beg to table a reply to questions asked by Mr. Fox and Mr. Walsh.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to table a reply to a question asked by Mr. Fox yesterday.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, on yesterday's Order Paper the following question was asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

Sir M. P. Cashin, to ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is correct that a number of people in the District of Harbor Grace who sold their fish to Mr. George Gosse, M.H.A. for that district, have been unpaid, and if any of this fish was part of the stock of 66 casks which Mr. Gosse sold to G. M. Barr a few months ago and for which he received cash; and if any of this fish was taken by Mr. Gosse from these people and not paid for, will the Government intervene to see that they are paid; also if a number of men of Bay Roberts sold or put off their fish to Fradsham & Co. Ltd., or were employed by the said Company in its fishing operations on Labrador and remain unpaid for their fish or their services; if Hon. R. A. Squires was a partner, guarantor, creditor or mortgagor of the said Company, and if so what is the relation of Hon. R. A. Squires thereto, and if it is possible for the Fisheries Department or any other department of the Government to secure that these people shall be paid the amounts due them by this firm, and if so will he take steps to see that they are paid as they are represented to be in great need at the present time.

The answer was satisfactory inasmuch as Mr. Gosse did not receive any fish from the gentlemen referred to here. Yesterday I did not have in my possession the letter which I just got today and which I shall read to the House. (Reads letter.)

Mr. Bennett asked Hon. the Prime Minister if it is the intention of the Government to introduce bills to repeal:

- (1) The Imports and Exports Restriction Act, 1918, under which the import of sugar was recently prohibited.
- (2) The War Measures Act, 1914.
- (3) The Food Stuffs Act, 1914.
- (4) The Articles of Commerce Act, 1916.
- (5) The Food Control Act, 1917.
- (6) Section 259 of the Customs Act, empowering the Governor in Council to prohibit, amongst other things, the exportation of fish.
- (7) The Fish Standardization Act, 1920.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In answer to the question of the honorable member for St. John's West, I would observe that the Imports and Exports Restriction Act, 1918, was passed by this Legislature at the suggestion of the Imperial authorities. So far as the policy of the Government is concerned, the Act may be immediately repealed, but in view of the circumstances under which it was passed I feel that the Imperial authorities should be consulted before any action is taken.

With respect to the War Measures Act, the Food Control Act, and all other specific war legislation, the policy of the Government is that these Acts should be repealed so far as special powers and responsibilities are vested in the Executive Administration by virtue of them. I think it will be found that some of these Acts do not require any special repealing legislation, as they automatically elapse after the proclamation of peace.

As to Section 259 of the Customs Act, that is not war legislation. It has been the law of the Colony for many years, and in the opinion of the Minister of Finance and Customs is a necessary precaution.

The matter of the Fish Standardization Act is one of policy and is now before the Government for consideration.

HON THE PRIME MINISTER:—

The reply to question of Mr. Bennett, No. 9, on Order Paper of April 26th, 1921, is as follows:

A contract was entered into between the Government and the Smith Travers Company, dated 2nd August, 1919, to drill 3,000 feet at the rate of $6.00 per foot, for the purpose of defining the boundaries of the coal measures in the vicinity of Howley and Sandy Lake, and the existence of coal in this locality. On the completion of this contract, as the Government was advised that while this drilling had resulted in the delimitation of the boundaries of a portion of the area underlain by these measures, further work was necessary in order to arrive at a definite result, a new contract was made on the 5th October, 1920, for the boring of 10,000 additional feet at the same rate, viz., $6.00 per foot.

The following are the details of the two amounts in the General Contingencies Account, namely, $14,201.74 and $2,835.54.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

The reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 24, on Order Paper of April 26th, 1921, is as follows:

The sum of $746.42 paid from the vote for General Contingencies to the Newfoundland Atlantic Fisheries, Ltd. (not Newfoundland Fishery Board as stated in question), was made under the provisions of the Act, Chapter 30 of 1917, entitled "An Act to amend the Act 10, Edward VII. (1910), Chapter 31, entitled 'An Act respecting Cold Storage.' Under the provisions of this Act, authority is given to the Governor in Council for the payment of a bonus not exceeding 1c. per pound on certain kinds of fresh or frozen fish exported. Attached hereto is a copy of the account of the Newfoundland Atlantic Fisheries, Limited, which gives the details making up the above amount paid them in respect of bonus:

(Sgd.) F. C. BERTEAU,

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House the cost of his trip to Italy; what amount he has been paid; is it his intention to put in any bill for his services; and on whose authority did he proceed to Italy?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—
No statement of costs has been prepared. It is not my intention to put in any bill for services. I proceeded to Italy as Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and with that authority. When I was in London I gathered that there was some friction between Newfoundland and Italy because of the fish situation, and I went to Italy to see just what the trouble was, and, if possible, to clear it up.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, may I have the privilege of asking the Prime Minister a question now? After the Prime Minister's return last fall it was rumoured around town that while he was in Italy messages had been shown him by the President of the Consorzio that had been sent to him by people here, and I understand that there were messages from me advising him not to submit to the Fish Regulations. I would like to ask the Prime Minister now if, while on his visit to Mr. Ragnoli he had seen any messages from me regarding the Fish Regulations.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—
When I was in London I found that there was a great "blue ruin" campaign being conducted, to the effect that Newfoundland was in trouble in disposing of her fish. I made an effort to find out the source of this propaganda. I was interviewed by a certain influential financial gentleman. He asked me for my opinion of this rumor that was current in London. I said that it was a matter of party politics,—the Opposition papers say that the country is in a bad financial situation, and the Government papers say that the financial situation is good and that the Fish Regulations are working for the benefit of the country. I told him that I did not ask him to accept my statements, but that I would give him a certified copy of the country's trade for the past year. I took care when leaving Newfoundland to take with me such papers as may be necessary for this purpose. I later was waited on by a strong newspaperman. He said he had received a copy of the Daily News, apparently from the Daily News Office, with the editorial which was particularly damaging to the interests of Newfoundland, blue penciled. He said that had it appeared without the blue pencil marks it would undoubtedly have been used in the regular course, but as it appeared with blue pencil marks he thought there was something peculiar about it. I asked him to show me a copy of the paper, which he did in a few days. Then I was told that there was an organ on foot to buy Newfoundland fish if the Fish Regulations were repealed, and contemporaneous with that I found that it was rumoured that if Italy declined to buy Newfoundland fish other markets would be flooded. Mr. Ragnoli told me that he was of opinion that Newfoundland was fighting her political battles in Italy, and he said that he had been advised that if he would hold off fish at a much smaller price. He said, "Mr. Squires, if you could sell your fish somewhere else and get a shilling more for it that is where you would sell it," and I am bound, in the interests of my country, to buy at the cheapest price it can be obtained." Mr. Ragnoli was wise enough not to tell me who had sent the messages.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that the Prime Minister has seen fit to answer me in that way. He didn't have the common decency, the fairness, to answer my question as I put the question to him. Now, you know there is a time when you feel sad for a man, and I really feel sad for him to-day. He has fallen down in his position. I asked him a straight question, and I want it answered. I asked him whether my name was mentioned.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—No names were mentioned.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—That is what I wanted to know. Now as far as the "Blue ruin" is concerned I have no hesitation in stating in this House what I stated here a year ago that the condition would be another "Black Monday," and the condition to day is worse than "Black Monday." Are we going to stay here without doing anything. With regard to the disturbances in the galleries, I want to say that I am here to state my own opinion. I think this House of Parliament has sunken to its very lowest depths. There was a man in the audience yesterday supposed to be arrested, and he was taken to the lock-up, and there was found on him an order for a bottle of rum from Dr. Campbell. It is better for you in the interests of the country to close up the House and let somebody else come in and run it. I want to say also that one of the door-keepers on the door yesterday was as drunk as any man that came in, and that is the condition that we have to stand for. Now if it is a row they want, they can have it, I can incite it in a very quick time. If I cannot get a hearing I will move that you clear this House. I now move that this man Cullen be cleared from this House. Now I want to know what you are going to do about it.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, to inform this House what quantity of pulp wood has been cut on Government account up to date; what the total quantity will likely be; also what amount of wood cut on Government account has been sold to date; if none has been sold, what is the intention of the Government in connection with the matter?

No pulp wood is being cut on Government account. Permission has been given to parties to cut and sell or export specific qualities of pulp wood, but the Government has no interest in the matter unless and until the parties who obtained this permission notify them by the first June next that they have been unable to dispose of timber cut by them.

As the Government has no interest in this pulp wood at present, no measurement of it has been made for this Department.

No notice has been served on the Government to date as to whether the wood being cut has been sold, or not.

If notice of the failure of the parties cutting to sell their wood is received by the 1st June, the Government is liable for the purchase of the quantity unsold at the rate of $6.00 per cord.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN: — Mr. Speaker: Just a word. Mr. Gosse misunderstood me yesterday when I asked that question. I simply asked it because I was requested to do so. I have the proof here in a letter from his district asking me to take the matter up in the House of Assembly. They stated that they have written Dr. Barnes and that he has not thought it worth his while to answer them. They put him in here as Minister of Education. They went to the Labrador and worked hard and when they came back they couldn't get money for their fish, and now they have to live on Indian Meal and Molasses, and he has not interest enough in the people who elected him to answer that letter. Mr. Gosse contends that he is a very innocent man and that he was roped into politics, but he forgot to tell us that he is a very cute man. Mr. Gosse last year got a tip about the price of fish, but he didn't pass it along to his neighbors. With a show of great independence he gets up and tells us here that he never owed a cent to any man, and that he is a very much wronged man, but I disagree with his statement in view of the manner in which he got rid of his fish last year. He is not as innocent as he pretends to be. He sits there supporting a Government that took a half million dollars out of the public Treasury to buy fish, and he sold his fish to the Government and got part of that money for it. Mr. Coaker without the authority of this House or even the authority of the full Executive took five hundred thousand dollars of the public funds, and he got part of that money. Then we have him calling up to the clouds that he is an honest man. I say he is not an honest man. A man who would take that money in payment for his fish could not be honest. I make the charge here now that it was criminal to take that money from the Treasury, and he is one of criminal gang who took it. Mr. Coaker is to blame for it. In his last agony to get himself out of a nasty hole he took that money without the authority of the Prime Minister or Minister of Justice and placed it to his own account at the Bank of Nova Scotia. Is that honest?

This thing has got to end here and now forever. The whole thing is a scandal and you know it. Take the salt scandal, the fish scandal, and all the other scandals, and then the Hon. member gets up here with an attitude of holy horror, and asserts his independence and honesty in face of this letter from eighteen starving men of his district, who put him and Dr. Barnes in here, the latter Minister of Education at a salary of five thousand dollars a year which he is not energetic enough to go out and earn. That is the position and it is the greatest imposition on Responsible Government since it was known in this country. I have taken every man on the other side of the House individually and put him in his proper position, and I am prepared to do it again. There is not a particle of independence in the honorable member or he would not be sitting where he is.

We do not want the Government. Who in the name of God could wish me any worse evil today than the Government. I would sooner have an infection. The Government is gone, there is no Government. It is absurd to think that we want the Government. We don't. There is no Government to-day, only a crowd of pawns, with no independence of action. You placed heeled in the gallery yesterday, but the Prime Minister overdid it. He ordered them too much stimulant, but no matter who is here or otherwise, while I have a seat here I will stand by my constituents and people of the country. It is disgusting to have to listen to the member for Harbor Grace, Mr. Gosse, and then read this letter from eighteen men who first wrote Dr. Barnes, who had not the decency even to answer them. He proclaimed my name in Harbor Grace. He held me up to ridicule and now I am here to meet him. I can answer him that Dr. Barnes will never be faced with a letter of this kind from Ferryland. That is the position I take in this House. We don't want the Government. It is in a deplorable mess, and there is only one way out of it to go out and say to the people who sent you here that you don't know how to represent them, if not you will be fired out when patience ceases to be a virtue, as it will soon.

What has the Prime Minister done in answer to some questions asked as to where the fishermen will get supplies for the fishery this year? When will we hear the answer in the House? As I said the other day "How long, Oh Lord, How long." Men are coming in here looking for bread. What have you to give them, a stone? Then we come here and the Prime Minister sends hoodlums here to interrupt us, but I serve notice on him, that I don't care who comes here I am going to say what I have to say in criticism of the Government's policy. That is the position and when Mr. Gosse stands up and talks about his independence it is enough to give you the blues. He is not independent, if he were he should go out of the House.

MR. GOSSE:—I am independent, and I did not make any money out of the Government.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN: — Never mind about that, we are here to set the position right and to tell the whole story and compel the Government do their work properly, and that is the reason I read this letter here this evening. Why wouldn't I read it coming as it did from eighteen fishermen who sent him and Dr. Barnes here to look after their interests.

MR. GOSSE:—What had those men to do with me?

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You are trying to evade the issue now. Those men sent you here to look after their interests, and as long as I am here, when I am asked to expose wrong doing, I will do so.

MR. GOSSE:—You are talking rot.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I am not talking rot, if I were you would not feel the sting so thoroughly as you do now. According to the state of excitement you are in now it does not appear as if I were talking rot, I will put you in your place before I am through with you.

MR. GOSSE:—I am in my proper place now.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You are in a sorry place now after selling your fish and taking the people's money in payment for it, the money which you were sent here to safeguard and look after.

It was this letter, Mr. Gosse, that I promised to table for you today, and this was the letter that prompted me to put that question on the Order Paper. It is a matter that concerns your district alone, and it is nothing to me.

MR. GOSSE:—What have these men who were attached to Fradsham & Co. to do with the firm of G. & M. Gosse? I understood from you yesterday and this House also understood that there were eighteen sharemen, who claimed that they had not been paid by G. & M. Gosse.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You misunderstood me if you thought that was what was said.

MR. GOSSE:—You wanted to know if any of the fish which I sold to Barr represented any of the fish which these men were not paid for. Now what possible connection could those men who were attached to Fradsham & Co. have with G. & M. Gosse? I would like, Sir Michael Cashin, to make this point clear, because I never owed a fisherman five cents in my life, nor a farmer, nor a merchant. Never since I was born have I owed any man five cents. If I had any bills I paid them when they came due. It was thoroughly understood here yesterday that Gosse, M.H.A., and G. & M. Gosse, which is the firm, owed eighteen sharemen for their trip. That was the impression given honorable members in this House that eighteen men wrote Sir Michael Cashin saying that Gosse had not paid them for their fish, and I would have been delighted if Sir Michael Cashin could have presented a letter from Bay Roberts, where I have thirty crews, or eighteen sharemen in Harbor Grace who were not paid for their fish by me or my firm, and I understood that I was going to get a letter presented to me by Sir Michael Cashin to that effect, and I am very sorry I did not get it, because I thought I was going to get one in on somebody. I knew that there was nobody in Bay Roberts or Span-iard's Bay or in any corner of the world could say to me that I never paid him what I owed him, therefore when I understood from Sir Michael Cashin yesterday afternoon that I was going to get a letter from eighteen sharemen saying I had not paid them, I was delighted.

Now, I am very sorry that I should be connected with the Fradsham Co., of whom I knew nothing whatever, but it seems that it was a fixed up thing that Gosse should be lined up with the Fradsham Co., who went up to the spout. The firm of G. & M. Gosse is one of the most independent firms in the country today, Sir, and while I stand here in this House of Assembly I don't want any hon. member to bring my private business into this House, and as far as I know it is not right nor parliamentary to do so.

I have been in this House now for three weeks or more, and I have heard the Opposition rake up every business firm from Cape Ray to Cape Race, take the private firms, and tell their financial difficulties in every shape and form. If I were doing business in this country, and I happened to get into financial difficulties, if I were let alone it may be that I could come out of it, but if my business is dragged into politics, is put in the public press, is sent broadcast over the known world, and when it is openly stated that I am insolvent, it gives me no chance, then, Sir, I think that we are going too far, and politics is not what I thought it was at all. I entered into politics and I took the side I thought best for the country, and that was all, but I promise you that when I go out into politics I can fight politics and on political lines, too. I have never, and I would not be so mean and low and contemptible, as to interfere with a man's private business for the sake of political ends. I can live without politics today. I am fifty-six years of age and I never owed a man a cent. I always lived before I went into politics, and I never got five cents from the Government, and I am absolutely independent of any man on either side of the House, and I don't care anything about any man.

Now Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry that my name should ever be brought into the House of Assembly, and into the public press to the effect that I could not pay for the fish I contracted for, where I have always done so. I paid for every quintal I took from my crews last year. In my small way I fitted out thirty crews for the Labrador fishery last year, which was more than lots of men who could better do so, and had more cash than I, would do. I fitted these crews out and the prospects did not look very good, and when they came back, to every one of these I paid eight dollars a quintal for their fish, sharemen, planters, and the servants I paid their wages, and now I come in here as a youngster to try to do some good for the country, and to try to learn something which perhaps I couldn't learn outside and amongst men who have been politicians for thirty or forty years, and I can go into the backwoods and learn more than I can here in the House of Assembly. I have sat here and listened to the speeches of the Opposition, and I must say that I don't give them much credit for their tactics. I realise that the Opposition is badly beaten, and I also realise that the Opposition want the Government, that they want to smash the Government, and if they sit here until Doomsday they will never do it, with their tactics.

DR. JONES:—I have no intention of delaying the House, but I cannot let this opportunity pass by without saying a word or two with regard to the amendment before the chair. We have been accused of unduly delaying the time of the House, but I think any right-thinking person will agree with me that the time which we have spent up to the present has not been wasted, because much desirable information has thereby been elicited which otherwise would have not. We have in that manner disclosed to the public the doings of the Government for the past year, and surely that is our duty here. As far as the Fishery Regulations are concerned, I feel like my friend, Mr. Halfyard, I hate to speak of them for various reasons. He had one particular reason for not so speaking, but I have one quite the opposite. They were brought on by the Government and an attempt made to justify them, but whether they deserve any credit at all, I am not in a position to say. However, from my side of the House the Regulations have been blamed for having caused a great deal of discontent, unlimited disturbance and many financial disasters. In the first place it is my opinion the Government should not have interfered with the trade of the country. The time was inopportune. The Regulations were enforced just as our markets opened to our competitors. They were not impartially put into effect, as is witnessed by the condition of the West Coast. There was no certainty about them, and the exporters did not know from day to day what was ahead. The Prime Minister yesterday said that similar regulations were enforced in other countries to control the trade and various industries, and he referred for an example to the apple growers of the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia. But that industry only concerns a part of the Province of Nova Scotia, and any bad result would not affect the whole of the province. But in this country the regulations affected the whole of it, and if good results were the outcome, the whole of the Colony would benefit, and if bad the same extensive effect would be felt.

I am glad to see that certain members on the other side of the House got up and declared their independence, and I refer to the members representing the F. P. U. I am glad if they are in a position to assert their independence. I am not in a position to discuss the Constitution of the F. P. U., as my knowledge of it is very vague, but I remember that a few years ago a member of the Local Council of that organization in Avondale, after having held a Convention at Bay de Verde, awaited upon me at Avondale, asking me if I would stand as a F. P. U. representative for the District of Harbour Main, and at the time this Council, which consisted of five men, submitted to me the following oath:

"I..... a selected candidate for the Fishermen's Union political party for the District of..... at the next forthcoming elections, solemnly vow and declare that if elected I will be true to my party and the principles and policy of the Fishermen's Union, will never receive a bribe from any source, and will resign my seat when called upon to do so by resolutions of my District Council, so help me God."

There is undoubtedly the substance of what a proposed representative of the F. P. U. has to do, and if the gentlemen on the other side who are F. P. U. men had to take this oath and be controlled by their Councils, I cannot see how they are independent representatives. Imagine placing myself as representative of the F. P. U. and being under the dictation of those five men and having to take such an oath as this one, and, think of it, that at any time I may be recalled by these five men.

Mr. Jennings a few days ago pointed out to the House how dangerous it was to set the North against the South. I agree with him for it will be a sad day for Newfoundland if we are split up into sections along denominational or any other lines. I regret that the Prime Minister did not take Mr. Jennings's advice, and not set about appealing to sections of the country in particular, which is calculated to and intended to do unlimited harm. If the country is split up into, North, South, East or West, or into religious bodies it would be a calamity and render us powerless to do any good for the country as a whole, as we would be wasting our efforts in strife. We cannot look forward with any degree of confidence with regard to any public matter if such were the lines along which we worked. It is time we forgot those things and get down to work and do something for the country's good and if we are to get to do the work for which we are sent here, we must disregard our differences to a large extent. The Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Mr. Coaker said here on Monday, and I am sorry that I was not here to hear his confession, that he is sorry for the errors of his ways, but it is not always wise to forgive because he makes a confession, for something else is necessary. He must be made to do penance, otherwise he will commit the same errors again and relapse quickly. We usually judge a man's sincerity by his frame of mind and judging from Mr. Coaker's notes in the Advocate last week, that regulations framed from the experience of last year are necessary, yet he has confessed the regulations have failed and that he will repeal them, Government interference in the trade of a country is never justifiable except in time of war or great national disturbance. I do not doubt the wisdom of some form of regulations as regards the time and place to make shipments, but when a Government attempts to interfere between a merchant who buys fish and the party to whom he is selling that fish and tries to dictate the price to be paid for it, it goes beyond its legitimate sphere. But this Government has gone beyond the limit. You have played right into the hands of our rivals and you are responsible for the disorganization of the trade. During the past year we have had several forms of Government. First Government by Executive responsibility, next Government without any responsibility, and finally Government through intimidation. The men of the North last year by sheer intimidation forced the Government to buy their fish with the Public Funds. Seeing the effect of mob effort the men of the South quickly learned the lesson and within the past fortnight have forced the Government to promise to withdraw the Codfish Exportation Act, the War Measures Act, and the Food Control Board by force of what is called public opinion but which is really another name for intimidation. It has come to this now that if you want to learn what the Government intends to do about anything you must learn it on the street. We learn that a duty of one and a half cents per pound will be placed on sugar to recoup some of the loss sustained through meddlesome interference on the part of the Food Control Board. It has come to pass that the mob rules, and that is not good enough for this Country. Our people have always been law-abiding and do not want that sort of thing. The very people who have compelled you to yield do not want it either, and they have only contempt for your weakness and lack of courage. This sort of thing should be unheard of amongst us; we should get down to business and I can say for the Opposition that they will help to the extent that your programme is reasonable and good for the country. A lot of information must yet be obtained to learn the real condition of the country; we must see the country's balance sheet; to learn the particulars of the railway deal, and other matters. I have much pleasure Mr.

Speaker in giving this amendment my hearty support.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, as there does not appear to be any other member ready to address the House on this subject, I should like to make reference to a few points which arose in the course of the debate on this matter. It is not my intention to refer at length to the personal discourtesies which have been so frequently directed at me and the other gentlemen of the Government from those on the other side of the House. I feel that the people often, in the heat of debate or under the enthusiasm of the galleries, say things which they do not want to see in print and there will be plenty time for the honorable members to approve of their remarks as published in the Hansard. It is with much regret that I must, however, refer to one matter which has been given so much prominence during this session, that is the pointed discourtesy which has been shown to outport members. I am a bayman and have the natural aspirations, association of ideas and feelings of all those born in the bays of Newfoundland. While the baymen may not usually kick up a fuss over the insults offered them, they nevertheless usually remember them. The city of St. John's is not a city, and its members are not the proper ones to offer discourtesy to the outports. As a representative of St. John's West I deplore the discourtesy shown to them. I was standing by the door of this House a few days ago, asking that room be made for the Speaker to pass and as the Hon. Minister of Public Works, Mr. Jennings, and the Hon. Minister of Shipping, Mr. Cave, went by, the lowest, vilest remarks, couched in corner-boy language were passed, even as to their religion, and insults were hurled at them by those gathered there. I would like to say right here that when the day comes that a representative of the South or North has to be insulted by those in the gallery here, that day spells the downfall of St. John's. Water St. is not paved with St. John's money but with the money from every part of Newfoundland. Take all the great public buildings, this House of Assembly, the Court House, the General Hospital, the Post Office, the Custom House, the Lunatic Asylum and all the others; these are not built with St. John's money but with Newfoundland money. St. John's represents only one-seventh of the people of the country, yet into it is poured a vast amount of money among its large number of public servants and it handles seven-eighths of the revenue. Some imagine that St. John's owns all the freight, all the bags and barrels that are handled here, but 4 of every 5 packages have as their ultimate destination some outport. It is the people of Newfoundland today who are held responsible for the interest on the debt on the city. Last year St. John's was given a special vote of $50,000 out of the funds of the country and only to-day we had to give it a loan of $50,000 to pay for city labour. And still when a man like Mr. Jennings, a man who has built his own boat, caught and cured the fish, passed through every phase in the principal industry of the country and worked up to his present important position by his own ability and integrity and can come in here with such a vigorous speech as his, he is subjected to insult. I deplore the day when such a man was ridiculed about his religion and the fact that he came from an outport as he was when he walked into this room the other day. I would like to say to the people in general in the name of the coopers, shoeworkers, factory hands, laborers and others, don't allow the day to come when the representative of such a wealthy district as Twillingate, is to be insulted here. I do not believe there would be a factory in St. John's to-day as big as a village schoolhouse if it were not for the people of the outports. The plants are not much good today as the outport people are not buying their products; it is on them the factories depend for their operation. The manufacture of all the lines, twines, biscuits, boots, woollens, etc. in St. John's depends on the outport men who come here in their schooners and take these products to their homes at the North or South. I sincerely hope the day will never come when discourtesy will be developed by the men who should be glad to welcome the baymen.

Take the business men along Water Street. Among the leaders are outport men. Take Sir John Crosbie, take Mr. Hickman. Are they not outport men. I do not know where Mr. Barr comes from; but I have never yet heard of anyone refusing his labor either on his wharf or in his office. The Hon. Mr. Coaker comes from St. John's West, the district which I have the honor to represent. He was born and reared on the South Side, but went to live at the North, where by his industry and enterprise he became head of a great organisation which owns a huge premises and does an enormous business. As a Minister of the Crown he has won the esteem that should be accorded him. St. John's, I repeat, the cooper, the laborer, shoeworker, factory hand, fish handler, the man who makes the woollens, all depend upon the outports. Take their support away and St. John's would be little better than a village. My object is to get every dollar and every form of employment I can for the District of St. John's West. But the principal industry on which the country depends is the fishery, and very little fish is caught by the people of St. John's. If the brains of a St. John's man, Hon. Mr. Coaker, did build up the North, his work is a credit to him. St. John's has not insulted the men of the North, but hooligans and heelers did so. I heard the insults myself and will not forget them. As the great Persian poet, Omar Khayyam, has it:

"The moving finger writes, and having written, moves on."

While the things said to the Bayman may not be resented at the moment, it will be later.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as to the attacks made on the Hon. Minister of Public Works re the expenditure for snow-shovelling and relief work in Harbor Main. Despite the fact that an election was on at the time, the number of dollars spent there did not amount to one cent more than was spent through Mr. Bambrick in my own district; it was no greater than was expended in St. Mary's Bay either. Every discourtesy too has been hurled across the floors of this House at my friend, the Hon. Dr. Campbell. I know Dr. Campbell as a courteous and considerate gentleman whenever called upon to perform a public or private service. When any man goes to his surgery for script treatment any other treatment or no treatment whatever, he will find that he is invariably treated with courtesy. He was attacked on the ground that he is not a Newfoundlander, and it was hurled across the House that he was not here "a dog's watch." I know one thing, he is a gentleman, and I would take his word on any proposition before that of Mr. Morine, who is also a foreigner. I am not attacking Mr. Morine because he is a foreigner, for in a sense we are all foreigners. We are all descendants of the Scotch, Irish and English, and beyond an occasional one with a touch of Indian blood, there are no aboriginals in the country. We all stand on our own record and as to what we are prepared to do for the betterment of the country in which we live. All are welcome here and are judged by the record of what they do.

I want to make brief reference as promised, and to put in skeleton form a few remarks, as to the statements made by the Opposition, and I will have an opportunity later to see them in cold type after they have revised them to send out of the country, and to deal with them more fully. As to the sugar situation, I will deal with it again. I know this is an unpopular subject, and I am not standing here to shirk responsibility or to shift the blame, if any there be, to other shoulders, or to deal with whether I was present or not at a meeting of the Control Board. The local Board did far better than the Canadian refiners or the Board in England did for themselves. I want to tell you, gentlemen, that the sugar refiners of Canada, who are the most skilful business men and represent the greatest financial intelligence of that Dominion, lost 17 million dollars in the market collapse in which we lost $150,000. The Board here consisted of Hon. A. W. Mews, Mr. J. J. McKay, ex-President of the Board of Trade, and Messrs. T. Noel, President of the N.I.W.A., and Jas. McGrath, of the 'Longshoremen's Union, who were added to the membership by special Act of the Legislature last year so as to enable the Board to be representative of the people, with Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Customs. They acted on the best obtainable advice, after consultation with the best business brains of Canada, and after all made only the same mistake as they did. If we lost $150,000, the refiners of Canada, with the most expert knowledge of the markets behind them, lost 17 millions.

MR. BENNETT:—What is the com-from this fact the same general advantage to the country and the taxpayer as would be the case had we not our war liability to pay. The war cost Newfoundland something like $16,000,000 and besides this the amount of pensions that must be paid to those who fought on Land or sea and who returned home maimed and injured or to those who became sick while in the service as well as to the dependents of those who lost their lives in the service of the Empire, is half a million dollars per year. Added to these things we have the maintenance of institutions that were established or enlarged during the war when revenues were large and money was plentiful. In the course of the time of which I speak there was built in the western section of the City a wonderful institution from which incalculable benefits have been derived, the Sanitarium; then there are the two wings added to the Lunatic Asylum, a wing to the Fever Hospital and others, all of which, established as they have been for the general welfare of the country, must be maintained and kept in proper order now and on a falling market. We thus find ourselves faced with increased responsibilities of maintenance while we no longer have the advantage of war revenues wherewith to meet them. But Sir, the suggestion that Newfoundland is facing financial ruin is not merely the view taken by a pessimistic mind. It is not the outcome of a fair and impartial consideration of the facts as they really exist, but it is thrown out for deliberate political propaganda purposes with no other object in view than to injure the Colony's credit in the eyes of the outside world. Even if the suggestion were backed up by the merest shadow of truth we should all do the very best that was in our power to cover up the fact and show to the world the best front we can so that we keep our escutcheon unblemished and our stability unquestioned. Looking at the London Times all I can find is that Newfoundland's revenue will be terribly low this year; take up another copy of the Times and the same thing is to be seen and all these stories, politically concocted for the sole purpose of damning Newfoundland, are emanating from Opposition circles. I am in possession of the name of a man who is known to be connected with the Opposition and who sent to the Canadian Press a message, the contents of which are not only grossly wrong but are a reflection on the good name of the country and the people of this City in particular. This message has been circulated throughout Canada, finding its way, through the service to which it was sent, into hundreds of papers all over that country and I hope that in three weeks or thereabout I will be in a position to make public the name of the person who was responsible for sending it. The article in question is as follows: (Reads article)

SIR M. P. CASHIN:— You have no proof of who sent that message.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Sir Michael Cashin says he is prepared to pay for it. No doubt he can, I wish I had one tenth of Sir Michael's wealth.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:— You have no proof of who sent that message.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:— I have already stated that I hope to have permission in three weeks to make the name public. It will be remembered that last year a statement containing utterly false information was sent from this City and later given publication in an Almanac in England. It took me three months to trace the identity of the sender of that information but I succeeded in doing so with the assistance of a detective agency in London.

parative price of sugar between Canada and here?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I do not know the comparative price, but I do know that it bore heavily for some time past on my purse. In England the price of sugar was kept up until recently just as it was done here. In Cuba the export of rice was prohibited till they got rid of their surplus stocks of sugar. In England the Board of Food Control kept the price of bacon at 20c. and ham 6c. higher per pound than the regular market value; lard was 10c. and butter and cheese were also in advance of the market. Why? Because when you are trading on a falling market you must keep up the price or meet with loss. We had to keep up the price or suffer the loss to the revenue and take it out of the pockets of the people. I think that with the fact of the Canadian loss before us, the handling of the situation here is no discredit to us. With the price of bacon kept at 20c. per pound higher than usual, and other commodities also at an advanced rate under the Board of Control in England, what could we be expected to do here. As to the loss or otherwise sustained in the handling of sugar by Messrs. Harvey & Co., that can easily be ascertained, as on motion of Mr. Bennett, which I seconded, the Hon. Mr. Foote, Hon. Dr. Barnes, Minister of Education, and Mr. Bennett have been appointed a commission to look into the accounts of the Food Control Board and see if they can explain where the losses, if such there be, did occur. I would like to explain that Mr. Bennett deferred his motion in this connection a day or two ago so that I could consult with Hon. Mr. Mews, Chairman of the Food Control Board. When I spoke to the latter, he said "Certainly, go ahead; we have not taken advantage of the situation to the value of a two-cent postage stamp." Nothing will give me greater pleasure, Mr. Speaker, than to see the report of this commission, as at present constituted or with an enlarged membership, tabled, and I am perfectly sure that it will show not even the suggestion of dishonesty on the part of any man on that Board.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Why not get down the New York auditors?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—That is not necessary, as there has been no suggestion of corruption.

It will give me great pleasure to meet any of my friends from St. John's West at my office in the daytime, and believe me, I have one or two friends in that district yet, despite all the fuss that has been made over the sugar situation.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as to our financial situation. We today are trading on a falling market. When a pair of boots, for example, cost $10 per pair, with a duty of 45 per cent, they brought in $4.50 to the revenue, but today we get only half that amount as their price is only half the rate paid during the war. It has been stated in my hearing by some of the leading business men that this year 70c. will be as good in purchasing supplies for the fishery as $1.00 was last year. The cost of living is going down, and the figures given out by the trade show that by the autumn 65c. will buy as much provisions for the winter as $1.00 did last year. While this reduction will be an advantage to all in enabling them to run their households much more cheaply, it will be detrimental to the revenue which we derive from an ad valorem duty. While the war is happily over, it is still on in the sense that the toll of money, instead of blood, is being taken to meet our war debts.

Altho prices may be coming down and may continue to have a downward tendency, we cannot hope to derive

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Tel us something about the Colony.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Sir M. P. Cashin wants to know something about the Colony. The point with which I was dealing was the cause of the trade depression from which the country is now suffering and in a large measure it will be found to be the propaganda to which I have referred. It has done incalculable harm to Newfoundland and I have had three letters from Newfoundlanders in the United States deploring the stories of hard times that are being sent from here. I have in my office an article of this kind over the signature of Newfoundlander who should be ashamed to be guilty of such conduct. Even if these things were true they should not be spread broadcast because for example, if a man's next-door neighbor is poor that man does not go around telling the world of his neighbour's poor circumstances. Such an act would scarcely be considered manly.

My friend outside the Bar asks what about the damaging statements, but if he has, then I say that he should be run out of the country like all the others who have been guilty of the same conduct.

Referring again to the general depression in trade, I repeat that altho the war is over we are still paying for it in money just as during the conflict we paid for it in blood, and not only this country but the whole world is paying in money, but thank God we have not been reduced to the condition of stagnation to which other countries have been brought. While I was in Italy I witnessed scenes that made me feel proud that it was not my native land, and again when I was in London I saw evidences of depression and general stagnation of poverty and unrest that I was thankful once more that this was not my native land. On visiting Montreal and New York I was also confronted with the same conditions of poverty and depression of which this country knows practically nothing.

Naturally there will be trade depression for a time, in this country as elsewhere and indeed it is doubtful if we are experiencing this to anything like it is being felt in other countries and in this connection I would like to refer to an article from a Canadian paper dealing with the subject. The article says:

The prices of things in Europe, because of exchange conditions, are so high as to render them altogether inaccessible, in the main, to the average consumer and Canada has lost her best markets for most of her principal products because foreign exchange has made prices prohibitive for the poor who are the largest consumers, and there you have a touch of what this country has experienced with regard to the fish situation. In Italy where before the war the lira was worth twenty cents it is now worth only four or five cents and from this it can be seen what these people must pay to give us anything like an average price for our product. Suppose, for example, that the price of our fish was $10 per quintal, that would be a normal figure for the Italians to pay were their lira worth twenty cents but by the time they had paid four or five liras for every one that would have had to be paid formerly, the quintal of fish that would bring our shippers $10 would cost them $40 or $50. That is, for Newfoundland to get $10 for her fish in London, the Italian buyer must pay forty or fifty dollars in their own money so that it will be readily realized that it is not in the power of these people to buy much of our fish. That, Sir, is part of the solution of the fishery problem. Solve the exchange question and the fishery problem will also be solved.

This brings me to that horrible nightmare, the Fish Regulations of which so much has been said and I want to say at the outset that I do not mean to shirk one iota of the responsibility for them. The policy had my entire approval when it was first adopted and it has my entire approval now. I know that such a state ment does not tend towards popularity that perhaps nine tenths of the people of the country are, and have been, opposed to them, but whether that is so or not, I am prepared to hold to that attitude. Before going further I want to draw the attention of Sir John Crosbie to an incorrect statement made by him in discussing this matter a few days ago. He said that the Speech from the Throne declared the measure to have passed this House unanimously, but that is not so; Sir John could not have read the Speech correctly. The statement was that the Regulations passed the House without a dissenting vote which was strictly correct. To give Sir John his due, he was the one man on the other side who stood four square on the Regulations. He was opposed to them from the start but when the measure was put to a vote he was not in the House and when those opposing it were asked to signify their stand by saying "nay", there were no nays. Sir John was not present and the vote went through without a single dissenting vote.

Now, Sir, I will tell you why I am in favor of Regulations for the export of our codfish; not these particular regulations but any that would be carried out properly and without prejudice, and I may say here that had the Regulations the past year not been under the control of a number of gentlemen on Water St. who had not the leisure to attend to them, the results would have been different from what they were. Undoubtedly the policy behind the regulations was right. Suppose we want to buy a cargo of flour and there were a dozen vessels in port with cargoes sent here on consignment with brokers going around from store to store beseeching business people to buy from them, is it likely that we would pay them prices we now have to pay? But it is well known that before you can get a cargo of flour in Canada or the States you have to pay down your good money for every barrel of it, and it is on just such a sane, sound business basis that we want to place our fish exports if we want to get the best possible results. As things are now, anyone can send any old kind of fish across in any old kind of vessel on consignment and depend on a broker to go about from place to place trying to get some buyer to take it off his hands. Now, can we expect to get good prices for our fish while this sort of thing goes on? Suppose Canada and the United States exported their flour, their beef, their sugar or any of their other numerous products according to this principle, do you think they would get the same good prices that these articles command in the various markets to-day? No, while we continue to export on consignment and pay enormous commissions to brokers we cannot hope to obtain good prices for our fish. Why was it that one business house in this city built up a fortune on cattle during the past few years, why? because all sale made of the cattle imported were made on commission and there was no possibility of loss to the seller because he first sold the cattle and deducted his commission before he paid the shipper for them. He had no losses because if losses did occur they had to be borne by the man who owned them. Go to Portugal, Spain, Italy or any of the other fish buying countries and you will find that the men who have been selling our fish in the past are wealthy and why? If you were to go down on Water St. you would find from the West End to Maggoty Cove there are premises bearing the names of firms who did business there twenty-five years ago, but they are no longer there and, Sir, the explanation is identical with that which accounts for the wealth of the foreign brokers who sold their fish for them on commission. That explanation is to be found in the damnable consignment policy. The Regulations tried to put our fish export trade on a basis that would go far to remedy this evil and it was with this object and no other that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries put them in force, but eternal defamation will attach to the men who, as soon as this House closed, went out and used every disreputable plan at their command to nullify their good effect on the general fish trade of the country. I say, Mr. Speaker, that while there is on the Order Paper an Act for the repeal of the Fish Regulations, the day is not far distant in my opinion when the people will be clamouring to have just such regulations as these enforced to save the trade of the country. As an instance of what can be accomplished by the regulation of exports we need only take the case of Annapolis Valley where at one time the people were almost beggars because of the fact that they had no system in the export of their apple crops. They sold on consignment and were forced to take what they could get but when they introduced their apple regulations things changed immediately for the better and homes that had been reduced to poverty, farms that had so far fallen off as to be practically in disuse became prosperous and flourishing and anyone who passes through that district now as I had the pleasure of doing some little time ago, must admit that it would be difficult to find greater evidences of prosperity anywhere, and all this was due to the change from selling their apples on consignment to the present business-like and properly regulated manner. The same condition of things confronts us to-day as confronted the farmers of Annapolis Valley several years ago and we should look the thing in the face and make up our minds that the sooner we apply the remedy that is in our own hands the better. While I say this I realize that it is by no means a popular pronouncement and that objections, political and otherwise, will be raised by perhaps seven-eighths of the people of the community.

As it is now getting on for 6 o'clock, Mr. Speaker, I shall not detain the House much longer, but there is another matter I should like to refer to before taking my seat. There is an institution in the city known as the Bust Factory. With the matter of who is running this institution I am not at present going to deal but that those connected have been kept pretty constantly employed there is no room for doubt. When we were elected in 1919, the prediction was that we would not find it possible to form a Cabinet, but we did; the next prediction was that we would not close the House but again we did.

While I was on the other side, bets were freely made that I would not be Prime Minister when I came back, and I have in my possession a bet made by a person connected with the Opposition that was written on the back of a Bank of Montreal note. We've heard of the Government being "busted," we've heard time and again that the House wouldn't be opened by us, then that it would not be closed by us, and the last limit that was given for the Government to hold together was ten days. In connection with these things I merely want to say that from my association with those in the Government as Chairman of Council, I have never seen in any government greater indications of union or solidarity. It has been a matter of great regret to me to find those outport men who are my colleagues abused in the manner they have, and I can only say that those responsible for it will have much to regret also. As to the abuse that has been directed to me personally, I consider that, because of its source, an asset rather than anything else. As to the stability and unanimity of the present Government, I can say with perfect confidence that there is not a man in the whole administration, whether he be in the Council or outside of it, who would not take full responsibility for everything that has been done since we came into power.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That is poor satisfaction for the tax-payers.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That is not poor satisfaction for the tax-payers, it is the very best satisfaction to them, and that brings to my mind another point or two on which I had not counted on touching. The first of these is the railroad programme. I might say that I am not personally responsible for any particular wording of any particular minute of council in connection therewith, but the facts are these. The railway had utterly collapsed and the Bank of Montreal would not give the Reid Nfld. Co. one cent more to continue to carry it on. We realised that we could not allow the service to close down in June, as it was the only resource of its kind that the Colony had, so the only thing left to do was to take it over and run it. The best possible was done under the circumstances, and while it may not have been very good, it was at least better than nothing. No one pretends that the members of the Commission were expert railroad men, and altho Mr. Coaker undoubtedly knew more about running a railroad than Mr. H. D. Reid, he did not profess to be perfect in that direction. We were faced with a problem that required immediate solution and the best possible in the Colony's interests was done.

I want also to refer to that wonderful matter of the half million dollars that was taken to purchase fish. I might say that I was out of town when that was done, but if I had been here I would have done the same thing, because I know that it would have been the right thing to do. Not only was the price in the local market likely to fall to a considerable extent, but there were huge quantities of fish on the way across the Atlantic or already arrived in the foreign markets, and if the price here fell to four dollars per quintal before that fish was put into consumption, the price in these markets would take a corresponding drop and enormous losses to the exporters and to the country would have resulted, so that it was imperative that the price should be maintained here at that time at all costs. Then I ask why should St. John's object to the use of this money for the purpose to which it was devoted? The money was spent on fish that was handled here in St. John's thus giving employment that would not have been obtainable had the fish in question not found a market and it will be remembered that the previous government did not object to take half a million dollars of the people's money before the general election with which to buy votes. If Mr. Coaker had wished he could have brought that money to Port Union to spend it instead of spending it here and giving that much extra labor to St. John's. Most of the laboring class of people in St. John's are dependent on the outports for labor. When fish is brought from the outports to St. John's for the St. John's merchants to buy it, the merchants then give the labor to the St. John's man.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That is not true.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That is mostly true. The men who give the St. John's mechanics and the St. John's labourers employment are the St. John's merchants through the outport fishermen who bring their products here; and if you take the outport schooners out of St. John's in the spring, you will have the harbour as barren of trade and the docks as barren of employment as you have them in the month of January.

MR. BENNETT:—That is what you got today.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Exactly. That is why so many insults are being handed out to the outport people. Now with respect to the three hundred thousand dollars that was paid for fish. Why should the Newfoundland people howl about a thing of that sort when the same thing is done in connection with other industries? The Bell Island Transportation Company of St. John's East are the trustees every year under the revenue of the Colony with a guaranteed dividend of five per cent. The Floating and other Docking Companies around the Island get a percentage every year. I am not in a position to say whether or not the Floating Dock has drawn substantially on the revenue within the past year, but I am in possession of correspondence to show me that they get at least $600 last year, which is the difference between what they made and the five per cent. on their capital.

MR. HIGGINS:—The Bell Island Transportation Bill was passed here while the House of Assembly was in session.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Yes. As the Hon. Member for St. John's East says, it was passed while the House of Assembly was in session; and it was passed with the knowledge and concurrence of the whole House so that every outport member who was in St. John's at that time voted unanimously for the measure that was brought before the House by the party that was then in power.

Let me point out, 'Mr. Speaker, that the Norwegian Government had to buy thirty million dollars worth of Norwegian fish to help out the Norwegian fishermen, which fish is now being turned into guano. Instead of the Norwegian Government standing behind their fishermen as we did, they back them to the extent of thirty million dollars. Did not the British Government stand behind their herring catchers and bought eight hundred barrels of herring at fifty-five shillings a barrel and which herring is now thrown on the dump? The British Government, I might say, lost every dollar on that transaction. Well, if the Norwegian Government managed to stand behind their fishermen to the amount I have already stated; if the British Government stood behind their herring catchers, and if the British Government stood behind their coal miners and offered to pay up the difference in the operations of the mines in order to get a decent wage for the miners, surely goodness the Newfoundland Government can be asked to stand behind the Newfoundland fishermen.

I do not feel that I should detain the House at any great length. There is a multitude of matters upon which I should like to dwell, this afternoon, but I shall refrain, as I do not want to deal with them until I view actually in print the observations of the members opposite so that there can be no possible misunderstanding, and I do not want to deal with them until I see their revised speeches published to the country in the official debates. I am glad there is a motion before the House for the adoption of the report of the Committee; there is also an amendment before the House, moved by Sir Michael Cashin, Leader of the Opposition, and seconded by Sir John Crosbie. The amendment is an attack upon the Fish Regulations; the amendment contains the same tenor and the same falsehood and the amendment alleges in effect an absolute failure in connection with the Fish Regulations, but does not attempt to suggest anything other than that the policy was wrong; which policy I believe to be right. Consequently, I propose to vote against the amendment, and I ask those who are supporting me in this House to do likewise.

MR. VINICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the amendment and I do so in all sincerity. I have listened attentively to the remarks of the different speakers on the Government side who have told us and told the country that we, on this side of the House, are not sincere. Well all I can say is that the people outside who represent a greater majority than the few supporters the Government have in the galleries know differently. We have no particular fondness for holding up this House; but, if we allowed business to go through without prying into the public affairs of the country in the way we did, we would not have found out the vast amount of information, which was not contained in the Speech from the Throne, that we have, and the longer we are here the more dirt and scandal we expect to hear about the Government.

I must congratulate the Prime Minister on his appeal here today; but his plea was pitiable because of the "bust office" that had cropped up in the Government. The Prime Minister must have heard the rumour that the Government was going to be "busted" and that is why he started in to run down the people in the district of St. John's West who elected him. He eulogized the people from the north.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Hear, hear, I am one of them.

MR. VINICOMBE:—You did not say that a few years ago when you were driven out of Trinity Bay. You see the sign of the times now in St. John's West and you know you cannot go back there. You want to try and get in with Mr. Coaker, the man who called you the "black rascal." You came here and made out that Mr. Jennings was insulted and you left the impression that he was insulted by some of the followers of Sir Michael's party. Were you in this House yesterday when one of your followers named Hookey called out for three cheers for the Newfoundland disaster as Capt. A. Kean was coming into the House? I think, sir, that expression was a disgrace and unbecoming any civilized man. Now I am going to call a spade a spade. I am somewhat like Mr. Gosse. I am independent, even though I cannot say that I do not owe a cent to any person.

What did the Prime Minister say in his manifesto to the people? Did he not condemn the position of Minister of Marine and Fisheries that is occupied by Mr. Coaker today? You said in your Manifesto. (Reads from Manifesto). Mr. Coaker is Minister of Marine and Fisheries to-day, I repeat, and the Prime Minister is the man that said he should not be holding the position. But that is only one item in which the Prime Minister fell down under, according to the promises made in his Manifesto. He fell down on the question of taxation also. Last year when we had taxation reduced on Bologna Sausage I remarked that the members of the Government would be coming back this spring like Germans from eating Bologna Sausage. No doubt they came back alright like a crowd of whipped Germans.

The mere mention of the Fish Regulations prompts me to recite a passage with apologies from the elegy of Sir Thomas Moore:

"Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note

"As his corpse to the ramparts we hurried,

"Not a fisherman discharged his farewell shot,

"O'er the grave where the Regulations were buried."

When Mr. Coaker arrived on the scene, which was thirteen days after the opening of the House, Mr. Samson, the strongest man of the Government party, got up and asked a question, as did also another member of that party. I must say that the Prime Minister or whoever was directly interested in those questions showed poor courtesy to Mr. Samson, Mr. Jennings or whoever the gentlemen were that asked the questions by not insisting that the answer be forthcoming to these gentlemen.

MR. TARGETT:—Mine was answered. You do not know what you are talking about.

MR. VINICOMBE:—I know; but many are called but few are chosen. My colleague, Mr. Higgins, while talking on the Regulations a few days ago, asked Mr. Coaker if he intended or not to vote for the Amendment that was moved by the Opposition. I do not believe here to-night what the Prime Minister said, namely, that Mr. Coaker was going to take off the Regulations. I believe that it was only after he found that we had brought in an Amendment that he decided to repeal the Regulations, because Mr. Higgins put it to Mr. Coaker straight and asked him for the sake of Newfoundland to bury all differences and to vote on the Amendment as his conscience dictated. I pity Mr. Coaker and I say here now that I really thought Mr. Coaker was sincere when he brought in the Regulations. If the Regulations were right and proper, as the Prime Minister said they were, why repeal them?

I am sure that Mr. Jennings made a good case for himself with the northern people when he told that he had been insulted because he had not received a first class education and because he had to build his own boat, his own house and what not. That came, sir, with very poor grace. If Mr. Jennings continues much longer to tell how he built his boat and his house, the latter will become as famous as "the house that Jack Built." As to his honesty of purpose, the people of Twillingate district will be able to judge, despite what he said about education. Any man who starts in to sign cheques for snow shovelling to the extent of over seven thousand dollars like Mr. Jennings did for the district of Hr. Main is not honest. Imagine $7000 for Hr. Main district while such larger districts like St. John's East and West did not get as much as $300. I hope my friend opposite, who is known as honest John Abbott will never take a ministerial position in the Government because he might fall in like Mr. Jennings did.

The Prime Minister went on to tell us in his speech about the way that insults were hurled at the men of the north. As I stated here a few weeks ago, it is no use for any man or men trying to put St. John's against the north. Before ever Mr. Squires was in St. John's I refer to the time of the sealers' strike, what about the unity that existed then? It is only a politician who has had his day that would try and break this unity. Judging by the speech of the Prime Minister today, he sees his evitable downfall in the district of St. John's West, and he is fishing to get into the bosom of Mr. Coaker.

Speaking of Ad Valorem duty reminds me of the promise you made to the country in your Manifesto in 1919. When you made that statement you were either insincere or incompetent. Surely sir you must have known the depression that was to follow the war. Not so with honest Cashin, however. He told the people candidly that he could not reduce taxation, as it would be impossible then to promise such; but if times turned out alright he would reduce it. It may seem strange to the members of the Government side of the House, but Cashin and his associates would not like to be in charge of the ship of state to-day. I am going to say one thing before this House closes and that is that I am going to get more interested than ever in that "bust office" or "bust factory," referred to by the Prime Minister in his speech. If any "bust" does take place, I can assure the Prime Minister that we will not be looking for that side of the House. We are going to get to that side when we go to the country two and half years time. We have heard a lot about Cashin and graft, but the answers to the questions that we have asked in this House have shown that the present Government have committed the greatest scandals ever perpetrated in Newfoundland. Now Mr. Jennings has fallen into the ways of the politician as well as the rest of his associates. He knows he cannot go to Twillingate district and give an account of his stewardship like he did after last session. Seemingly from the speeches made by the different members opposite they all fell for what Mr. Fox said about the heart of Mr. Coaker. Personally I thought that Mr. Coaker didn't have any heart, at least, I heard that he had lost it. Mr. Jennings fell for it too for the purpose of getting votes in the future, I presume. He said that the northern men will resent such an insult. I know that on the eve of the next election his stock in trade will be what Mr. Fox said about hauling the heart out of Mr. Coaker for doing what he did. Even Mr. Squires and Mr. Hibbs fell for it. No doubt they will all make that their political platform next time. What about the insults hurled at the people of St. John's West today by the Prime Minister? I wonder if he knows about the depression prevailing in St. John's West today? The coopers are the greatest sufferers there and I would like to know what they think about what the outports are doing for them.

Another matter I would like to refer to Mr. Speaker, is a statement that appeared in the 'Daily Star' stating that Vinicombe was Higgin's errand boy, who was going around bringing fellows to the House; but I would be better satisfied to be Higgin's errand boy than to be the Prime Minister's Chief Secretary.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I never invited you.

MR. VINICOMBE:—No, you would be afraid to trust me because you might fear I would find out too much about you. The only man I ever brought into the House is a supporter of the Prime Minister's. He asked me and I brought him in.

Getting back to the Fish Regulations again. On that issue I am something similar in my attitude to my colleague, Mr. Higgins. I am prepared to stand for one common cause—our country—but when the situation was put up to Mr. Coaker he was not big enough to give a straight-forward answer; but inferentially said that because we brought in an Amendment that he was going to bring in a Bill repealing the Regulations. That was the day that he should have proved himself a man—and failed. Then you will say why do we criticize the Speech from the Throne. I think it was Mr. Jennings said that Mr. Higgins had the material and he drove the nail that some of us split the board; but I think that the Regulations split too much fish last year for the benefit of this country. As I take it, Sir, we are all here in the interests of those people who sent us here and to try and do the best we possibly can for the good of the country, but do you think that any people sent us here to read the Speech from the Throne and to let it go through the very next day. No, Sir, I think we would be lacking in our duty if we did such a thing, despite the fact that supporters of the government are saying that we are using hang 'er down tactics. The longer we are holding up the business of the House the more disgusted the men on the other side of the House are getting with themselves.

Another matter, Mr. Speaker, that I would like to draw your attention to is the statement made by Mr. Coaker at his Convention. In telling what the people of the North had accomplished, he said that the Union men were to have charge of three splendid departments.

He was appointed Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Mr. Halfyard, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and Mr. Jennings, Minister of Public Works, also he pointed out that the expenditure of public monies by the public departments of the Government for the last ten years will be investigated by competent men and that he anticipated that a general clean up would result. I hope and trust that when the accounts are brought down here that it will be seen that the money spent during the past year was spent in a competent way; but I am afraid that some of it was squandered in a way that did no credit to the present administration, and that it may prompt those at their next Convention to extend the investigation to twelve years instead of ten, as I believe that it will be more necessary for a clean up for the last two years than for the other ten. Mr. Coaker also stated at his Convention that had the Cashin party been returned to power at the last general election for four years that the House of Assembly might just as well be abolished and the Auditor General dismissed because Cashin had broken all laws with contempt and interfered with the business of the Governor when it suited him. I would like to ask Mr. Coaker if he really meant what he said at his Convention about Sir Michael Cashin? I do not think he did. If he did mean it, well then it was only what Mr. Coaker did himself, because with his Fish Regulations he did not recognize Governor, Prime Minister or anybody else, for he acted in every capacity himself. Evidently Mr. Coaker waited for Mr. Squires whom he knew was going to act as his scapegoat and take all the blame for him; but, as I remarked before, Mr. Squires is fishing now for a seat north from Mr. Coaker, though Mr. Squires did not act likewise when the railway deal was being put through. As it is now half past six Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of the debate until to-morrow.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I would like the Prime Minister and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to take a suggestion I have to offer. I would suggest that all public monies, which shall be voted within a few days, such as main line grants, local grants and marine grants, be sent out immediately. At the present moment—I do not know what the circumstances are like in other districts—I know that these monies would be a welcome guest in the district that I have the honour to represent, as they would go a long way towards relieving distress in that section. Quite recently I have been literally besieged with telegrams and letters from clergymen of various denominations on this same subject matter. Only today both my colleagues and myself were in receipt of three telegrams. I will not mention any names, but one of the telegrams contains four hundred words. Now I would like to have this matter seriously considered both by the Prime Minister and the heads of the different Government departments.

On motion the debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until tomorrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27th, 1991

The House met at three of the clock pursuant to adjournment.

MR. HIBBS:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present from the inhabitants of Fogo asking that a sum of money be granted to erect a Half Way House between Fogo, and Seldom-Come-By. There was one there some years ago but it has blown down, and there is no house there now. I might say that the distance between the two places is ten miles, across bleak country, and several people have lost their lives during the past twenty-five years travelling over that bleak country in snowstorms. On December 28th last year Wm. Snow lost his life in a snow storm on that route. The country is very bleak and there is no protection, and the people are complaining very much of the risk entailed because of the lack of a Half Way House.

The petition is largely signed, and I would ask that it be referred to the Department to which it belongs, and receive the consideration of the Government.

I also wish to present a petition from the inhabitants of Joe Batt's Arm, asking for the sum of one hundred dollars to erect a public road around the Plant. This is a very important centre, and the people are greatly handicapped because of the lack of the good roads, and I would ask that this petition be referred to the Department to which it belongs and receive the consideration of the Government.

MR. WINSOR:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Safe Harbor asking that that place be made a port of call for the Bay Boat or Coastal Boat, not only for the benefit of that settlement, but Till Cove and other settlements. They have no connection with neither the Bay or Coastal Boats, and I ask that this petition be referred to the Department to which it belongs, and be given due consideration.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting the petition presented by my colleague, Mr Winsor.

MR. TARGETT:— Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Hant's Hr. for the sum of sixty dollars to repair roads. I would like to say that this money is very much needed, and I trust that the petition will be referred to the Department to which it belongs, and will receive due consideration.

Mr. Vinicombe asked Hon. the Prime Minister if the manufacturers of the city have made representation to the Government for increased duties or further protection, and if the Government before considering the matter will obtain from them and lay on the table of the House a statement showing the dividends paid by these companies in each of the past ten years, the bonuses paid, or increases in capital of stock made in each of the ten years and the amount of reserve maintained by each of these companies at the present time.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House a report of the work done by Mr. John Davey, for $2,815.00.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if Mr. E. Collishaw imported into this Colony, within the past few months, a number of rifles or guns; if he obtained possession of the same on a free entry or temporary permit, and if so, why; who signed the temporary permit and his reason for doing so; what is the value of the articles imported and the value of the duty, and what steps the Government proposes to take to collect the same.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines:

- (a) If the Government has had any relations, either directly or as associated, with the owners of the sealing steamers with Major Clayton Kennedy in regard to the operation of airships, and what has been the outcome of the same?
- (b) If the said Major Clayton Kennedy secured a contract from the Government or the owners of the sealing steamers, or both, to maintain and work the airships for seal-fishery and survey work, and if so to lay on the table of the House a copy of the same.
- (c) If the said airships were a gift from the British Government to the Colony, and if as part of their equipment there was a motor lorry, and if the same was sold by Major Clayton Kennedy in London, and if so what became of the proceeds?
- (d) Did the Government either directly or as associated with the owners of the sealing steamers pay Major Clayton Kennedy the sum of $2,000 after attachments had been laid on that money by due process of law, and if so what department paid it to him?
- (e) Did the Government either directly or as associated with the owners of the sealing steamers pay the hotel expenses at the Cochran Hotel in St. John's of Capt. Williams and Mr. Tippen on the occasion when they stayed there?
- (f) Did the Government either directly or as associated above, pay to Mr. Skeleton a sum of money due him on his contract with Major Clayton Kennedy, and if so, what sum was paid him, and why?
- (g) Are any members of the party of British mechanics, brought here by Major Clayton Kennedy or others connected with him, still in the city, if so, are they owed any money, and if so, how much?
- (h) If they made representations to the Government for the payment, of the same, or for help otherwise.
- (i) Has any money been paid them, and if not, why not?
- (j) Does the Government owe any money on account of this enterprise, and if so, how much; and does the Government propose to take any steps to assist these men, who came here in good faith, to return to their native country?

Sir M. P. Cashin called the attention of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as Chairman of the Railway Commission, to an official statement of a meeting of the Commission published in the newspapers, September 11th, 1920, wherein the following announcement appears:

"The cutting out of the section across the Topsails during the bad weather was decided upon, and trains will run from St. John's to Millertown Junction, and from Port-aux-Basques to Humbermouth, the necessary equipment and plows to be arranged for at each end before the weather gets bad."

And to ask him the reasons for deviating from this policy and operating the trains across the Topsails during the whole of this winter, and an estimate of the cost of the same, and of the amount that would have been saved to the Colony if the trains had only run to Millertown Junction on the one side and to Humbermouth on the other, and to ask him if the continuance of the cross-country service through the winter months was arranged between himself and Mr. E. Collishaw to facilitate the latter in moving pit props which he had sold to the A. N. D. Co., and why such a heavy expenditure should have been imposed upon the Colony for the benefit of Mr. Collishaw.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the receipts and expenditures each month from July 1st, 1920, to March 31st, of this year, during which period it is understood the railroad was operated by the Railway Commission; and also the receipts and expenditure for the same nine months, 1919-1920, 1918-19, 1917-18, during which periods the railroad was operated by the Reid Co.; also to show in the statement the receipts from passenger traffic, freight traffic, mails and other sources in each month of each of these periods, and a similar statement of expenditures showing the cost of:

- (a) Maintenance of line, building, etc.
- (b) Making and repairs of engines.
- (c) Repairs of cars.
- (d) General expenses.

Sir M. P. Cashin called the attention of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to an official announcement in the issue of his organ—"The Advocate" of Wednesday, December 1st, that on the previous evening, the Railway Commission sat for four hours and dealt with many important matters, among them being that "A General Manager for the railway system had been secured and was to arrive in a few days," and to ask him if such general manager has arrived, if so what is his name, what are his credentials, what salary is he receiving, and for what period has he been engaged, and if he has not arrived why not; also if a gentleman, understood to have been selected for this position arrived here some three or four months ago and departed again after two or three days; if this gentleman came to look over the Railway and allied properties before assuming the position and if he refused to assume the position because he could not secure any guarantee that he would be able to operate the Railway along business-like lines and without interference from inexperienced people like the Minister and others; if he regarded the Railroad as being in a hopeless condition and the Chairman of the Commission and others as unsuited to direct it and if not why he left; and if there is any correspondence between that gentleman and himself or the commission or any member or officer of the Commission, to lay copies of the same on the Table of the House.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines to lay on the Table of the House copy of the reports made by the Canadian Geological Surveyor whose services were obtained by him from the Dominion Government last summer to report upon coal areas on the West Coast and elsewhere, and also a statement of any amounts paid that gentleman for his services and expenses, giving specifically the amount for services, and a detailed statement of his expenses.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture &

Mines, if it is correct that certain, of what are known as the Cleary coal areas on the West Coast are partly on the Reid-Newfoundland Company's lands, and if so how this comes to pass; and to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the report of the surveyor who made this rectification of the line and whether the Government is satisfied that the said rectification is correct.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries what agreement, if any, he has with Mr. Hawes, who has been acting as his representative and the agent of the Colony in certain European markets; and if Mr. Hawes has no agreement with him, what motive is prompting him to undertake the work of looking after the interests of this country in these markets for nothing; also to table statement showing who are Messrs. Hawes & Co., Ltd., who are the shareholders in this firm, its directors, and the number of shares each has, and if any of the gentlemen actively promoting the Fishery Export Regulations have any interest in Hawes & Co., Ltd.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House a report on the water works laying pipes, etc., in connection with the sanatorium, and who is superintending such work, and what amount said superintendent has been paid to date.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—In reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 25, on Order Paper of April 26th, 1921:

(Second portion of question) Copies of Order in Council, correspondence and Charter-Party on file in Department of Colonial Secretary, tabled herewith.

Dept. of Colonial Secretary,
St. John's, Nfld.

April 22, 1921.

Sir,—I have the honour to enclose herewith, certified copy of Minute of the Honourable the Executive Council directing the opening of a credit for the sum of $10,000.00 in the Bank of Montreal, in respect of Messrs. Rolfe & Company, Ltd., for account of the Salinera Espanola Company, Torreveja, for a cargo of salt. I have written the Manager of the Bank here asking him to open the credit. The amount will come from Surplus Trust Fund. Will you kindly take the necessary action.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWS.

Deputy Colonial Secty.
John S. Keating, Esq.,
Deputy Minister of Finance.

COPY OF MINUTE OF COUNCIL:
(Dated April 21, 1921.)

WHEREAS it was necessary to provide for a supply of Salt for fishery purposes;

AND WHEREAS the Minister of Marine and Fisheries when he was in London, arranged with Messrs. Rolfe & Company, Ltd., for a supply of 5,500 tons from the Salinera Espanola Company, Torreveja, at 10 pesetas cash;

It was ordered that there be opened in the Bank of Montreal, a credit of $10,000.00 in favour of Messrs. Rolfe & Company, Ltd., London, against Bill of Lading, the said amount to be taken from the Surplus Trust Fund. The proceeds of the sale of the Salt when received, to be deposited to the credit of the said Trust Fund.

Dept. of Colonial Secretary,
St. John's, Nfld.

Sir,—I have the honour to enclose herewith, certified copy of Minute of the Honourable the Executive Council, directing the opening in your Bank, of a credit for the sum of $10,000.00, in favour of Messrs. Rolfe &

Company, Ltd., London, for account of the Salinera Espanola Company. Torrevieja, payment to be made against Bill of Lading of the amount that will be actually due in respect of the said cargo of Salt.

Will you kindly wire your London Office, intimating that this credit has been established, and asking them to notify Messrs. Rolfe & Company accordingly. Kindly carry out the above this afternoon as the ship is now ready to take in her cargo, and the Government desire to avoid demurrage charges.

I have the honour to be.

Sir.

Your obedient servant,

(Sgd.) ARTHUR MEWS.

Deputy Colonial Secty.

J. A. Paddon, Esq.,

Mgr. Bank of Montreal,

City.

Charter Party Salt

London, 2nd April, 1921.

It is this day mutually agreed between A/S D/S H. Lund; (W. Gilbert) Bergen, owners of the good steamship "Henrik Lund" of the measurement of 2532 tons net, 3903 gross register, classed 100 A I, Lloyd's, and carrying not exceeding 5500 tons cargo, now on passage to Alexandria with cargo, where due to discharge 4/5th April and expected to enter upon this charter-party about 22nd/25th April, 1921, and Ministry of Marine and Fisheries, Newfoundland Government, charterers

(1) That the said ship being tight, staunch and strong, and in every way suitable for the voyage, shall, after discharge of present cargo, sail, and proceed to Torrevieja or so near thereto as she may safely get, always afloat, and there load from the charterers or their agents in the customary manner where and as ordered by them, and which the said charterers bind themselves to ship, a cargo of salt in bulk and/or bags not exceeding 5500 tons, and what she can reasonably stow and carry over and above her tackle, apparel, provisions and furniture, and being so loaded shall forthwith proceed to Saint John's (Newfoundland) and there deliver alongside any wharf, or vessel, or craft or warehouse as ordered, or so near thereto as she may safely get, always afloat, and there deliver the same as customary, where and as directed by the consignees, being paid freight at and after the rate of Twelve Shillings and Sixpence (12/6) British sterling per ton of 2,240 lbs. gross weight delivered.

(2) At Torrevieja shippers to disburse all port charges, including agency, stevedoring, pilotage, winchmen, dues, duties and ordinary gratifications, in consideration of being paid One Shilling and Sixpence (1/6) per ton on the quantity shipped in full, unless if sailing at night-time, in which case extra pilotage if any to be for owners' account. Should steamer enter loading port with any cargo and/or with one or more passengers on board, the owners to be responsible for the payment of any anchorage duty levied by the Spanish Government in consequence, under the Navigation Law of 14th June, 1909, steamer to pay consular fees (if any) at loading port and all expenses appertaining to the vessel at discharging port as customary. Owners agree to indemnify charterers for any claim arising in consequence of any accident to any of the men engaged in loading the steamer, just as if the men or men were directly employed by the owners.

(3) The act of God, perils of the sea, fire on board, in hulk or craft, or on shore, barratry of the master and crew, enemies, pirates and thieves, arrests and restraints of princes, rulers and people, collisions, stranding, and other accidents of navigation excepted even when occasioned by negligence, default, or error of judgment of the pilot, master, mariners, or other servants of the shipowners. Not answerable for any loss or damage arising from explosion, bursting of boilers, breakage of shafts, or any latent defect in the machinery or hull, not resulting from want of due diligence by the owners of the ship, or any of them, or by the ship's husband or manager. The steamer has liberty to tow and be towed, to call at any ports in any order for coal or other supplies, to sail without pilots, to tow and assist vessels in distress, and to deviate for the purpose of saving life or property.

(4) The cargo to be shipped at the average rate of 500 tons per clear working day (weather permitting), Sundays and National and Custom House holidays excepted, and to be discharged at the average rate of 400 tons per like day, always provided that steamer has adequate facilities for loading and discharging at these rates. Strikes of workmen, lock-out, accidents or stoppages at any of the works or salines from which shippers may receive the whole or part of the cargo, epidemics, riots, war, insurrections, quarantine, stoppage of trains, want of trucks, tides, floods, earthquakes, intervention of sanitary, Customs and/or other constituted authorities, or any other cause beyond the personal control of shippers, charterers or consignees which may hinder the loading or discharging of the steamer, always excepted, and in these cases lay-days not to count and demurrage not to accrue.

(5) Lading time to count from 6 a.m. after ship is reported at Custom House and due notice given in writing during usual office hours of the steamer being ready for loading, whether in berth or not, and for discharging from 6 a.m. after ship is in every respect ready in free pratique, as per custom of port, written notice of such readiness being given to consignees during usual office hours. In the event of charterers being able to arrange to load and/or discharge the ship on Sundays or holidays, captain to allow work to be done; such time used not to count, but charterers to pay any extra expense incurred.

(6) Time occupied in loading to be agreed at loading port, and NOT to be reversible with the time occupied in discharging. Demurrage to be paid at and after the rate of One Hundred Pounds (£100) British sterling per day, and pro-rata for parts of a day, payable day by day.

(7) Ship to work day and night if required to do so, and to give use of cranes and/or winches with necessary gear, steam power and hands. Extra expenses in connection with night work to be paid by charterers. Ship to keep steam winches in good working order.

(8) The freight, less advance, if any, to be paid, on right delivery of the cargo, at the current rate of exchange for good and approved Bankers' Bills on London at 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ days' sight without discount or allowance. If required by captain, necessary money for ship's ordinary expenses at port of loading, not exceeding one-third of the freight, to be advanced by charterers' agents on account of freight, subject to 6 per cent., to cover interest, commission and insurance.

(9) The holds to be properly cleaned and made ready for cargo before loading begins, otherwise the charterers not to be bound to commence loading until the holds are in such conditions as not to damage the cargo. Owners to properly line the holds with mats, or whitewash, at their own expense, to the satisfaction of the shippers.

(10) The cargo to be brought to and taken from alongside the ship at merchants' risk and expense, where she can lie always safely afloat. The consignees' stevedores to be employed for discharging, the steamer paying cur rent rate per ton and also providing steam winches, with the requisite steam, gear and winchmen. Stevedores to be under captain's supervision and charterers to be in no way liable for improper stowage.

(11) The captain to call at the office of the agents of the charterers when requested and sign Bills of Lading for the number of tons shipped; weight and quality unknown, freight and all other conditions, including negligence and average clauses (Nos. 3 and 13) in accordance with this Charter-Party, and to endorse on such Bills of Lading freight (if any) received at loading port, or in default charterers not to be responsible for any detention of steamer occasioned by captain's omission to do so. Charterer's responsibility ceases as soon as cargo is loaded and advance of freight (if any) paid, the captain having a lien on cargo for his freight, dead-freight, demurrage, and average.

(12) The captain to apply to and employ charterers, or their nominees, at ports of loading and discharging, for custom house business on the usual terms, say Fifty Dollars ($50) at St. John's, but free of charge at Torrevieja.

(13) Average, if any, to be adjusted in accordance with York/Antwerp Rules. 1890. In case of jettison, the captain to report same to consignees immediately on arrival at port of discharge.

(14) Lay-days not to commence before the 22nd April, and charterers have the option of cancelling this Charter-Party if the steamer is not ready to load on or before the 10th May, 1921.

(15) The vessel not to take any salt other than for charterers' account.

(16) Ship to apply to Salinas de Torrevieja for cargo, and captain to telegraph them (telegraphic address, "Salinas, Torrevieja") and also to 'Salinera, Palmademallorca' the steamer's sailing for loading port, falling to do so the charterers to be allowed one day extra for loading.

(17) Penalty for non-performance of this agreement, proved damages not exceeding estimated amount of freight.

Hon. Prime Minister the Reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 3, on Order Paper of April 27th, 1921 is as follows:

Mr. E. Collishaw has not imported into this Colony within the past few months a number of Rifles or Guns therefore he did not obtain possession of them upon a free entry of temporary permit.

Answer to question No. 1, order paper April 27th, Mr. Vinnicombe:

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The manufacturers of the city made representations to the Government recently, alleging that in view of the decreased cost of foreign articles and the probability of such dumping of cheap foreign goods in Newfoundland which would go into consumption in competition with home-made products, and in view of the fact that they were continuing to pay wages at the same rate as during the War, they should receive certain concessions from the Government in the form of tariff protection or a reduction in duty on the materials which went into the manufacture of their goods.

The whole question is under the consideration of the Government. In the event of any proposition being brought before the House with a view to giving special protection to the manufacturing industries, the private information referred to in this question will be available and may be the subject of discussion in the course of debate; otherwise the information would be of a private nature relating to the financial arrangements of the various companies, and would not be the subject matter of discussion.

Answer to question No. 3.—Sir M. P. Cashin—Order Paper, April 27th:—

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. E. Collishaw has not imported in to this Colony within the past few months any rifles or guns.

Mr. HIBBS:—I suppose like many other members I have to begin by saying that I intend to preface my remarks by stating my intention to be very brief. I notice that some did not keep their word. I am at any rate going to keep my word. I am conscious of the fact that the country does not expect me or any member of this House, no matter on what side he is, to be debating on the address in reply or on any amendments thereto up to the twenty sixth session since the opening of the House and I feel my responsibility in this respect. However it has been the prerogative of the Opposition to speak at some length in this matter but I must congratulate some of them on the very fine effort they put forth and the vim with which they expressed their opinions and I hope with some degree of earnestness. I have to say that I cannot support the amendment before the chair for the following reasons. In the first place, I think it would be very strange and culpably insincere and absolutely unnecessary for me to do so as there is a Bill before the House embodying the substance of the amendment. At the same time in concurrence with many preceding speakers, I feel that the country is passing through an unprecedented period, which has never before been witnessed in the history of this country and I hope we shall never have a recurrence of it again. I do not think that all the argument used by the Opposition has been what it should have been. I like them to criticise the Government and put up a stiff fight and I for one am prepared to take my medicine. I have to say that some of the argument advanced by the other side went a little too far. I deplore the blue ruin propaganda supported by blue ruin speeches. Now we are told that this country is bankrupt and every firm on Water street is on the verge of collapse. I want to ask the honourable gentleman who uttered those statements, in what way they can help Newfoundland by making such remarks? Just imagine the responsibility on the shoulders of those who made those statements. These gentlemen are not thus calculated to do much good for the cause. If a member of firm on Water street doing business, went around and spread broadcast the news of the financial condition of his firm, that it was on the verge of insolvently, what would his partner think of him? The same applies to our country. Do you think it would be better for that firm or not to keep, such news to itself so that they may be able to get credit to finance their business. Why as soon as the outside world would get a hold of such information what will happen the credit of the firm? Of course we are suffering financially and I am aware that the revenue will be two and one half millions short but we must not forget that other countries as well are suffering the same as we are. The Canadian revenue is one hundred and sixty millions short and I do not think that the members of the House of Parliament in Canada are announcing to the world that she is on the verge of bankruptcy. Nor is the Canadian press doing it. It is very poor policy. The general trend of the argument put forward by the other side indicates that they are anxious to help us. We do not want them to come over and help us.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—The only person to help you is God and God alone.

MR. HIBBS:—Yes, Sir Michael, even God wants us to pull together. If I am going to appeal to any one on the other side it is Sir Michael Cashin. But there are some times he is a little too hasty and acts rather out of order. But however we have all got our faults. I think we should get down to business and do some thing practical. You are asking us what are we going to do, and yet the most of the time you are merely holding up the House. Is that sincere? The galleries have been appealed to on more than one occasion by the members opposite and some of them interrupt the gentlemen on this side when they are speaking which is not proper. The Opposition has shown the same enthusiasm as that evidenced in the gallery, and I think it is deplorable that the dignity of this Chamber should be so reflected upon those who know better. But some of them went further and talked directly to the persons in the gallery and then we are told by the members of other side that we are only doing very little. How could it be otherwise? I have sat down in my seat and enjoyed some of the speeches when they were not personal, but there is a limit to every thing. It is not fair if there is a lot of unemployed in this city, when there are many problems to be attacked and solved, and in which we are all interested, for the Opposition to accuse the Government of not attempting to do some thing when especially for a period of three weeks they have been talking against time. Now there is one aspect I would like to call the attention of the House to. And it is this. The other side has pictured blue ruin unlimited, that the firms along Water street are on the verge of insolventy, that the Government is in distress financially, but do they realize that most of the business houses over the country do business with the outside world chiefly on credit, sometimes sixty days or ninety days, and that if the press here and politicians do their utmost to show to the foreign markets that Newfoundland is on the verge of bankruptcy, how is a hundred thousand dollar order going to be treated? It would be certainly turned down. Now I want to say right here it is time that the Opposition cut out this business of insincerity and blue ruinism. If you are earnest do something serious and assisting. Now I wish to refer to a matter which has been discussed very much and that is the Fishery Regulations. Every thing under the sun which has not been successful has been attributed to the fishery regulations. I do not know if the fishery regulations will get the credit for the fine weather we are now enjoying but I suppose the members on the other side will say that the weather is fine because they are on the point of being repealed. The principle of those regulations I claim was good. We did not get the necessary assistance from the men of all shades of politics and I am of the firm opinion that if they were given a fair chance some good would have resulted. I remember that two years ago Sir Michael Cashin very successfully raised a big loan. It was the biggest financial achievement in the history of the country. But I think Sir Michael will remember that the press and all men of the various shades of influence and opinion were behind him and for that reason the loan was raised so successfully as it was. Now in the same courtesy and the same assistance had been given to this fishery scheme the regulations would have worked out advantageously. It was impossible to enforce the regulations from the day they were put on the statute book and finding fault seemed to be the chief hobby of the opponents of the Government. It will be remembered that during the bye-election in St. John's West the Fishery Regulations were the chief plank in the platform of the Opposition. However the Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance and Customs were returned. Around this period the Regulations were pronounced upon very much, yet the Opposition came into this House defeated. However, some of the Opposition supported the Regulations, particularly Mr. Walsh, who was always admired by me because he always worked for the poor and for the widows and orphans. In this respect we are kindred. But the reason, as I said before, for the defeat of them was the lack of unanimity. I remember Mr. Fox, while not going so far as Mr. Walsh, yet he eulogises Mr. Coaker, particularly in connection with this measure. I could not use the language he used at the time, as he is well known to be a great orator. He said that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was the greatest benefactor for the people of our country in the history of Newfoundland. But I am sorry he has so changed his views. I am sorry he has changed so far as to say that the heart should be torn out of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries because of his conduct towards this country. But I venture to say that if Mr. Fox had those statements back he would never have used them. I feel he is sorry for saying that about the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I would like the honorable gentleman to get up here and say to the House that he is very sorry for uttering such words. I wish to say also that I remember that some time ago Sir John C. Crosbie while in company with his political associates after their defeat with his usual big heartedness said "Look here, boys, thank God sincerely that we are defeated because that lot elected has the greatest problem in the history of the country ahead of them." And Sir John was quite right; but I think if he was serious and sincere and wished to be consistent he would not now be making the problem more complicated and always be throwing obstacles in the way. But owing to the shortness of time and as there are others to follow me, I have to leave untouched a lot of important matters which I would like to refer to. I would like to say that the other side has seen fit to throw across the insult that I am a pawn, but I take it that it was said with a serious insinuation. It has been said by the Opposition, from Sir Michael Cashin down to the last man, that we are a pawn, so that I think I should not take it serious. The people of Fogo who sent me here, did not send me here to be a pawn. I have my own opinions, and I am going to hold them when I see fit. I am going to use my intelligence to best advantage to my country and to my district. I want to say as one of the eleven men representing ninety thousand of the people of this country, that North of Baccalieu the people do not want us to slight the finances of this country, and I want this House to understand that the people of the North are big enough and independent enough to get along without discrimination in their favor, and I want to say that I know that I would not be worthy to represent Fogo if I was so small and narrow-minded that to think I represented only the District of Fogo, but I realise that I am one of the thirty-six men representing the people as a whole. I am interested in the South Coast and the West Coast as well as I am interested in the Northern coasts.

It has also pleased Mr. Moore to repeatedly refer to me in connection with the Road Commission. Well the crime he has referred to will be committed by me every three months for the next few years. He sneered at the pamphlet I wrote with regard to road building. Well I call it a booster. Well I would like to say that the brains of one of the greatest road engineers in Canada helped to compile that little booster. It showed the difference between a good road and a bad one. And I wish to particularly mention that I sent copies of it to the Road Board in Ferryland District. I must admit I did get a few ads from the Government, but they only amounted to eighty dollars, and in fact I came out of the proposition twenty-six dollars on the wrong side; but I can assure you the next time I will be on the right side, and if necessary I believe Mr. Moore will give me an advertisement. I am sorry he is not at present in his seat.

It is not good enough for this country to be here in the fifth week of the session only as far as debating the Address in Reply when there are so many serious problems ahead to be discussed; and I hope in the future that the severity of the debate from the opposite side will lessen and more co-operation and unity will be in evidence. We cannot hope to have the business of the House transacted when especially the feelings of those on this side are hurt sometimes when the Leader of the Opposition, with his usual characteristic fight, criticises us. However, I hope after all he did not mean to go to the point of hurting the feelings of those sitting on this side.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker, I can assure you, Sir, it was not my intend to speak on the amendment before the House, but as one who sa down here and listened to the speech of the Prime Minister, the villification and abuse of the people of St. John's, I would be lacking in my duty if I did not reply. I represent St. John's East in this House, Sir, and I represent St. John's West in the Municipal Council. I thought that abuse came with poor grace from the Prime Minister. I think, Sir, he must have had a fight the night before with Mr. Coaker, and he wanted to make good. I want to say for myself that I have never fung any abuse at anybody, and I wish to be very clear on that matter. The Prime Minister said that the Northern members had been insulted as they came in and went out of the House. I want to ask Mr. Jennings if he heard any insulting remarks, if any one referred to his religion.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, I might say that I have not come into this House or passed out of this House at any time during the past week without being insulted.

I heard several remarks about my religion.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker, I want to say that as far as I am concerned I have no use for any man who will cast reflections on another man's religion. A man is a man, and I don't care what religion he professes. I want to say that if any man in that audience casted a reflection on Mr. Jennings' religion, the Prime Minister should know that man. He is pretty well acquainted with the people of St. John's now. He should not have insulted all the people in St. John's because of that. The Prime Minister is a fine speaker and all that, but I think it would be better for himself if he couldn't speak half as well. If I went to Harbor Grace with Mr. Archibald and the people elected me, I would not throw dirt in the eyes of the people of Harbor Grace. A word of cheer should come from your lips, Sir, and not abuse on the people that elected you. I thought it my duty to the people of St. John's that I should express resentment of the vilification by the Prime Minister. Mr. Samson said he congratulated the Leader of the Government. With regard to leaders I don't know where you are, there are so many of them.

MR. SAMSON:—We have but one leader the Prime Minister.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—But you had another leader when the fishermen of the North came up here with their fish and could not dispose of it. They went to see Mr. Coaker, the President of the F. P. U., and Mr. Coaker of the F. P. U. got in touch with Mr. Coaker, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Then Mr. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries got in touch with Mr. Coaker, the Prime Minister of Newfoundland. Then Mr. Coaker, the Prime Minister, called Mr. Shea, Mr. Foote and Mr. Halfyard together and an order was obtained to take a half million dollars from the Treasury of the country to buy the fish that those fishermen had. Mr. Speaker, if you will notice I am addressing you personally. I say "Mr. Speaker" once in a while, and that is more than the Prime Minister did yesterday. You wouldn't know but he was making a speech in the Casino. I think he was a bit excited. There must have been a row in the camp, and he was trying to make good. They say we are talking about the busting camp and everything else. I want to say to the Prime Minister that no one wants to bust the present Government party. He has made his bed, and now let him lie on it. We are going to see that it will not burst, but the only thing that I am sorry for is poor Newfoundland.

I thought, Sir, that I ought to speak after what the Prime Minister said here yesterday. Although I cannot speak as well as the Prime Minister I can speak sincerely, but I do not believe that the Prime Minister is sincere in half he says.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—The crowd now in power said the other Government had no laws with regard to profiteering. That was preached all over the country. They brought in a bill last year and made it criminal for anyone to do anything in the line of profiteering, but I would like to ask them is it a crime to be continually robbing the poor of this country. No, this law they enforced or rather placed on the statute book was mere camouflage. Now I want to say that when I got up here I did not intend to speak so long as I have but when once one gets to his feet many things come to his mind and especially when we have such a Government occupying the seats on the other side. If it was a decent and properly constituted and properly managed many things would necessarily be left unsaid. But there is nothing but corruption and stagnation exhibited on the other side. I have much pleasure in supporting this amendment, but Mr. Coaker and Mr. Squires have fallen down on it. Yet we have a bill on the order paper repealing the Codfish Exportation Act, but I know quite well if this amendment never saw the light of day this bill would have never shown itself. In the remarks of the Prime Minister yesterday it was clearly evident that the Regulations would never have been lifted but for the people on this side of the House, and it is attributable to this side of the House that Bill for their repeal is now on the order paper. Of course the people of the West Coast and the City have in no small degree forced the Government to repeal them. They were playing auction forty-five but they went in the hole, but the people of this country will not have a hole to crawl into soon if things continue as they are now. Mr. Speaker, when this matter comes up again I will have a word or two to say.

MR. SINNOTT:—In rising to support the amendment before the chair I would like to express an outline of my views of the present condition of affairs. The condition of the country today is deplorable and particularly so in my district of Placentia and St. Mary's. In the history of that district never have the people suffered so badly and unfortunately the outlook for the coming years is not too promising at all. And regrettably nothing is being done by the Government to remedy matters. The destitution in Placentia and St. Mary's is unimaginable and all of it is due to the fact that those blameable regulations. Of course the present Government is responsible for the enforcement of those regulations. And the Government has not any time been too friendly towards this district. The district of Placentia and St. Mary's never got one cent of the five hundred thousand dollars spent by the Government in buying fish discriminately. If it was right to buy fifty thousand quintals of fish at eight dollars per quintal in the districts of Placentia and St. Mary's, the district of Burin and then Fortune Bay? But the people in those sections did not want the Government money to buy their fish. They wanted to sell theirs in the right way and through the customary channels. Although it was Mr. Coaker who made the Government purchase the fish it bought yet we are informed that the Government turned down an offer of ten thousand quintals of fish, good Labrador, at ten dollars per quintal, and this is an offer they might never get again. And perhaps we may find the United States soon passing restrictions on our markets which would prove to be a serious matter. For the first time in the history of the country the Government has entered into the commission business. It started on sugar but the public has had to pay twenty-five cents per pound for the very necessary article used by poor and rich alike. And in face of these conditions the Government still refuses to lift the regulations until the deputation the other day awaited the Government here in this chamber, and asked them to do so. The people have suffered tremendous losses on sugar alone. But still the present administration is styled the Reform Government. They were elected to save the country from ruin. To-day the consequence is that the fishermen are without friends and without supplies for the coming fishery, the staple industry of the country is paralyzed, the business houses are bankrupt and the trade of the country is destroyed, and like the unemployed, has never before been witnessed, and all this have taken place in the course of one short year. But I fear still worse things are ahead of us and unless there is some radical change brought about to help matters the present difficulties will be still more complicated and much more felt.

DR. JONES:—I have no intention of delaying the House, but I cannot let this opportunity pass by without saying a word or two with regard to the amendment before the chair. We have been accused of unduly delaying the time of the House, but I think any right thinking person will agree with me that the time which we have spent up to the present has not been wasted because much desirable information has thereby been elicited which otherwise would have not. We have in that manner disclosed to the public the doings of the Government for the past year and surely that is our duty here. As far as the Fishery Regulations are concerned, I feel like my friend Mr. Halfyard, incompetent to speak at any length on them for various reasons. He had one particular reason for not so speaking, but I have one quite the opposite. They were brought on by the Government and whether they deserve any credit at all I am not in a position to say. However from my side of the House the regulations have been blamed for having caused a great deal of discontent, unlimited disaster and many financial break downs.

In the first place, it is my opinion the Government should not have interfered with the trade of the country. The regulations were enforced just as our markets opened. They were not impartially put into effect as witnessed by the condition of the West Coast. There was no certainty about them and the exporters did not know only from day to day what was ahead. The Prime Minister yesterday said that similar regulations were enforced in other countries to control the trade and various industries, and he referred for an example to the apple growers of the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia. But that industry only concerns a part of the Province of Nova Scotia, and any bad to the fact of those blameable regulations of the province. But in this country the regulations affected the whole of it and if good results were the outcome the whole of the Colony would benefit and if bad the same extensive effect would be. I am glad to see that a certain portion of the other side of the House got up and declared their independence, and I refer to the members representing the F. P. U., I am glad most of them were in a position to assert their independence. I am not in a position to discuss the constitution of the F. P. U. My knowledge of it is very vague. I remember that about one year ago the local council of that organisation in Avondale after having held a convention at Bay de Verde awaited upon me at Avondale asking me if I would stand as an F.P.U. representative for the district of Harbor Main, and at the time this council which consisted of five men submitted me the following note, (reads). There is undoubtedly the substance of what a proposed representative of the F. P. U. has to do, and if the gentlemen on the other side who are F. P. U. men had to take this oath and be controlled by the council in question I cannot see how they are independent representatives. Imagine placing myself as representative of the F. P. U., and being under the dictation of those five men and having to take a sort of oath as this one. And think of it at any time I may be recalled by these five men. Mr. Jennings a few days ago pointed out to the House how dangerous it was to set the North against the South. I agree with him, for it would be a sad happening for Newfoundland if we were split up in sections along denominational lines or any other. I regret that the Prime Minister did not take Mr. Jennings' advice and not set about appealing to sections of the country in particular which was purposely intended to do unlimited harm. If the country were split up into North, East, South and West as religious bodies that would be a very bad change and not tending to do any good at all. We cannot look forward with any degree of confidence with regard to any public subject if such were the lines along which we worked. It is time that we get down to work and do some thing for the country's good, and if we are to get down to do the work for which we were sent here we must disregard our differences to large extent. Mr. Coaker has said he is very sorry for the errors of his ways, but it is not always wise to forgive because he makes an open confession. We have to compel him to do penance other wise he will commit the errors just the same. He will relapse very quickly. We usually elicit the frame of a man's mind from the manner of his speech, and Mr. Coaker has said that a change in the form of the regulations were necessary, and still he persists and says that the present regulations are good for the country. I do not doubt but some form of regulations would be good, but we should stop short when we interfere with those men who buy and sell fish. But the Government of Reform has gone beyond the limit. You have played right into the hands of your rivals, and you are responsible for the disorganization of the trade. During the past year we have had 3 forms of Government, first a Government with responsibility, a Government without responsibility and then a Government by intimidation. The people of the South West Coast have been clamoring for the repeal of the regulations and they have won by intimidation. The same has happened with regard to the sugar regulations. But we have been told a duty of one and one half cents is to be imposed to recoup a loss incurred on sugar account. If the Government had intended to do away with the regulations it would have appeared in the speech from the throne. But like the Exportation Act and the Fishery regulations they have or are to be repealed merely by intimidation. It has come to pass that the mob rules. And that is not good enough for this country. The men of the North tried it last Fall and they succeeded, and now why should not the others try it also, That is the way the matter stands, But this sort of thing ought to be unheard of and we should at once get down to business and I think the Opposition will help to the extent that your programme is reasonable and good for the country. A lot of information is yet required of you to show us how the condition of the country is progressing, or if not progressing in what way is it tending, We want to know how the balance sheet is going to be. I have much pleasure Mr. Speaker in giving this amendment my hearty and sincere support.

On motion for the adoption of the report of the Select Committee in reply to the Speech from the Throne, Sir M. P. Cashin moved and Sir J. C. Crosbie seconded the following amendment:

WHEREAS: "The policy of the Regulation of the marketing of the Colony's staple product," referred to by Your Excellency was first put into force in November, 1919, by means of Rules and Regulations made and proclaimed by you, with the advice and consent of your present Executive, and subsequently declared illegal by the Supreme Court, but remade and re-proclaimed under the pretended authority of the War Measures Act;

AND WHEREAS: Your Ministers claim that the aforesaid policy and rules were the sole issue at two bye-elections to this Assembly, held before the first session and were approved thereat by the electors;

AND WHEREAS: The measure under which the so-called Rules and Regulations were made in 1920, and indifferently enforced until quite recently, was introduced into this Assembly as a Government measure;

AND WHEREAS: The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, speaking on behalf of the Government, declared to a Convention of Licensed Exporters, so called, in September, 1920, that "we consider these rules a part of our policy" we will not waver (in their enforcement) until there has been time to test whether they are good or bad, for this season will prove whether they are valuable or valueless" and "if (after trial) it can be shown they are injurious, or not beneficial, we shall say they have been tried and failed, and we will forego any further attempt to control the fixing of the prices of fish for the foreign markets";

AND WHEREAS: As the result of experience gained in 1920, the licensed exporters have unanimously requested the repeal of all the Rules and Regulations, and the Codfish Exportation Board, so called, has recommended the repeal, and they have been repealed accordingly by you;

AND WHEREAS: Your Excellency, speaking for the Government, admits that "the practical application of the policy has met with adventitious as well as inherent difficulties" and has asked us as legislators to consider that policy in the best interests of the Colony, her commerce and people;

BE IT RESOLVED: That we are of opinion:

- (1) That the policy has not been beneficial;
- (2) That any attempt to continue it would be detrimental to the public good;
- (3) That uncertainty will be most hampering to trade;

(4) That while the measure authorising the making of Rules and Regulations remains unrepealed, the suppliers and exporters of the Colony will be disinclined to adventure into the fishing business as fully as they otherwise would, and

(5) That, therefore, in our opinion "The Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" should be immediately repealed.

Whereupon the House divided and there appeared for the amendment: Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox, Mr. Vinicombe, Dr. Jones, Mr. Moore, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Sinnott, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. MacDonnell and Mr. Lewis; and against it: Hon. the Prime Minister, Hon. the Minister of Justice, Hon. the Minister of Finance, Minister of Education, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Hon. Mr. Foote, Minister of Public Works, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Small, Mr. Hibbs, Mr. Gosse, Mr. Targett, Mr. Guppy, Mr. Jones, Mr. Samson, (17), so it passed in the negative.

Whereupon the original motion for adoption of the report was put, when there appeared for it: Hon. the Prime Minister, Hon. Minister of Justice, Hon. the Minister of Finance, Minister of Education, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Hon. Mr. Foote, Minister of Public Works, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Small, Mr. Hibbs, Mr. Gosse, Mr. Targett, Mr. Guppy, Mr. Jones, Mr. Samson, (17); and against it: Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox, Mr. Vinicombe, Dr. Jones, Mr. Moore, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Sinnott, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. MacDonnell, and Mr. Lewis, (13); so it passed in the affirmative and was ordered accordingly.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled: "An Act to Amend Chapter 170 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of Marine Courts of Enquiry.'" .

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled: "An Act to amend the Terra Nova Sulphite Company's Act, 1920."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I proposed to amend this Bill somewhat. Last year legislation was passed ratifying the contract with the Terra Nova Sulphite Co. and allowing the importation free of duty of material used by the Sulphite Co. for the material for their packages. It had been asked by Mr. Sullivan that this concession be cancelled, and it was done, but when the Acts were published this clause somehow was omitted. The Act was published in the original form. I do not know how this mistake occurred, but it is now necessary to re-enact the decision of the House at last session.

MR. BENNETT:—Who is the engaging clerk?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mrs. Earle. To make it clear that we are not interfering with the Act a year after it has been passed, I am drafting a preamble which I will submit to the House covering the matter and which I will now ask the Clerk to read.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled: "An Act to amend the Crown Lands Act, 1918," was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the Bill entitled: "An Act to amend the Law relating to Lotteries" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—

In moving the second reading of this Bill I would like to make an explanation. Up till 1903 lotteries were held freely in connection with church bazaars, educational affairs, etc., but then the power to grant permission for the same was taken from the magistrate, and it was supposed all were prohibited. Sweepstakes, however, on the sealfishery, etc., were held openly, and not only for charitable purposes, but to make money for those who promoted them. Few bazaars were held that some small article was not raffled and few indeed were the events of this kind that did not profit by the same. This is not a party measure, and it is up to the House to support it or not as honorable members think fit. Section 6 is hereby repealed as above. Despite the law, men of St. John's East have been drawing for trap berths, and I hope to see this covered. Numbers of charitable organisations here are assisted by lotteries and no one taking part is demoralised, and I see no reason why such should be restricted. Still I see no reason why any man who gets up a lottery should take half the proceeds for himself should not be prohibited from doing so. In order to keep in touch with the matter, the magistrate has been ordered to give to the Department of Justice the names of those granted permission to hold a lottery. The man who gets up a lottery for the benefit of his own purse alone should be condemned, and in connection with this the law of evidence is to be amended. All persons getting up lotteries will be liable as under the amendment above. Affairs in aid of churches or educational objects are alright, but not the others, and I do not think respectable people will be guilty of offences. If necessary for the prosecution the law ought to be made so that a witness will give evidence to condemn offenders.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, it is about time that this anomalous state of affairs was handled properly. We hear a whole lot of talk from people opposed to these lotteries, and now it seems we are to develop into a crowd of hypocrites through the laws of the country. This amendment is alright and puts the matter on a proper basis insofar as it deals with the cases in which wheels of fortune, etc., are a help. I shall have something later to say on this matter when it reaches committee stage, and now wish to remark that I do not think it wise to give effect to Section 2. I am more than surprised to see it in the Bill, and particularly coming from one whose general make-up is not in line with its tenor. It is not in accordance with the principles of British law and opens up an opportunity for semi-social enthusiasts to get in their work. No man likes to be an informer and to go down to posterity branded with this name. In my own experience I have seen cases where perjury was committed by a witness rather than that he should be counted as an informer. This is said as a result of experience in court work and with full knowledge of the ill effects of this kind of legislation which I intend to condemn later, as I will show when the prohibition measure comes up. This is not a party measure, but we have arrived at a stage where some people are anxious to obtain their ideals without seeing the ill effects on the other side. I am dealing now with the law only, not with prohibition itself or with those sincerely behind the movement. I am dealing with the powers given to men who are not responsible for their conduct in carrying them out. The police force had not lost their name as one of our finest bodies of men with reputations unscathed till this law was introduced. When I condemned them in open court they admitted their guilt in rigging the most contemptible schemes in order to secure a conviction and that the force might benefit by the fines. One even stooped to promising to share the fine with a man whom he got to assist him in securing evidence against another. If loopholes for this sort of thing are made by the law, we are destroying one of the characteristics most valuable in our police force, and I hope and trust this objectionable legislation of Section 2 will not be allowed to go through. We had a case here a little while ago where two recruits were sent out rigged with a yarn about being travellers and through the means of a kindness which was extended to them as such, they managed to bring a charge against the person whose hospitality they had accepted. Now, is that the way we are going to enforce the Prohibition Act? The same thing will apply to the Lottery Act; if we are going to have lotteries, let us have them, but it is no use to make the thing a greater farce than it is already. Look at the amusing incident that occurred in the Speaker's home town recently when that gentleman himself was before court for purchasing a lottery ticket. I am glad to say that you yourself were convicted, Sir, and I am also glad to say that though you were, it resulted from an act that showed your heart was in the right place. The more I consider this matter, the more convinced I feel that we should not bring in legislation to satisfy people who will stay up all night to see people in trouble. This amendment to the Lottery Act will at least have the effect of removing some of the most objectionable features of the Act as it now is, and in supporting the second reading of the Bill, I congratulate the Government on bringing it in and at the same time I ask the consideration of the hon. introducer to the matters to which I have made reference.

MR. FOX (Continued):—This time last year I regarded Mr. Coaker as a man inspired with sincerity, and one who was ever attentive towards the uplifting of the people of Newfoundland generally, but his record for the past year does not entitle me tonight to re-echo that sentiment, and that is why I lay at his doors tonight most of the evil that is rampant in Newfoundland today. I am doing it, because my opinions have consistently altered, but because his record for the past twelve months convinces me that my statements are correct. That is just the position. The Prime Minister may or may not have attempted to divert the attention of the people from the real issue, which is that there is not any antagonism existing between the outports and St. John's, but that there is rather an objection to any one section of the country controlling the destinies of the whole country. And we in St. John's have not that spirit because we are St. John's men no more than the gentlemen opposite have that spirit because they are outport men, but because it has come down to us through British ancestry that we are free men that we do not want to be tied to the yoke. We want to think our course, as we in our own consciences see right to do; and, in particular, we want to see a Government govern us according to British constitution; and Newfoundland tonight is not governed according to British constitution. The thing has been going on for the past eight years, ever since Sir Robert Bond, great man that he was, saw the evil that was facing Newfoundland. Sir Robert Bond, great man that he was, saw the evil that was facing Newfoundland. Sir Robert found himself helpless when it came to the grip of the mighty corporation. We are now reaping the fruits of that position in Newfoundland and the fruits are that we have no longer a Government for the people, by the people and of the people; but we have a Government of twenty men, eleven of whom represent one big corporation, known as the F. P. U. We have the position facing Newfoundland tonight, namely, that Newfoundland is governed through the voice of her representatives in the House of Assembly; but she governed through the dictates of a corporate body, and that is why I for one am going to protest and publicly protest against the continuance of that iniquity—because that is all it is. It is absolutely iniquitous for any corporation to think that, because of its vastness, because of its numerical strength and because it controls so many seats here, that it can stalk through this House and control the destinies of the country of which it represents only a fraction. Have we not got our rights south of Baccalleu as well as people north of Baccalleu have theirs. I would like for F.P.U. members to remember that, if they represent 100,000 people, there are 150,000 whom they do not represent. Of that 150,000 I am one, and I tell you tonight that it is not in accordance with the constitution under which we live to have the destinies of Newfoundland controlled by any corporation or by any group of men, if we are to be governed in freedom and by men who owe no allegiance to anybody, except the whole people of Newfoundland. I object to the principle of allowing any corporation, such as the F.P.U., to take Newfoundland by the throat and telling its people that it must do as they want them to do. That is not good enough and it is not Government. And when I object to that principle I echo the thoughts of thousands of people in this country tonight, and in particular, Sir, I echo the thoughts of the people in my own district, because that big constitutional principle, which should be regarded, if our Government is to govern as it should, has been wantonly and outrageously violated. Freedom of thought and action is what every man should be allowed to exercise. When any men come here bound under pledges to observe the dictum of a corporation I say that they are not representative of that Government of which they are a part. That is my one big objection to the Government tonight, apart from its own record. It is not a Government. It consists of some men and a corporation. Now, as regards the members of that corporation, I have no objections to them as individuals; but I do object to the principle or corporate control of any Government in a country of which I am a part.

Of course, the eulogizing I got in the Government press the past week for taking this stand is almost too insignificant and too ridiculous to take notice of. It is rather amusing, however, to think, perhaps, tonight while I am addressing the Chair what the "Advocate" is thinking about regarding that blood-thirsty villain Fox's speech. According to a late edition of the "Advocate," I am the man who is seeking to tear the heart out of Coaker; and I am the man who is stalking around shouting fee fi fo fum I smell the blood of a Union man, also, after listening to some of the men opposite, particularly Mr. Jennings, one would imagine I was one of the heroes of Jack the Giant Killer. No one but myself was out seeking to dismember Mr. Coaker. It is indeed gratifying that the gentlemen who control the Advocate has seen well to circulate among the northern districts that Fox is seeking to tear the heart out of Coaker, and that that paper have put it up to ninety thousand fishermen north to protect the sacred person of Mr. W. F. Coaker against the terrible blood-thirsty villain, C. J. Fox. I feel that I have been paid a great compliment to think that any man who has been protected against me by a body-guard consisting of not less than ninety thousand men.

MR. HIBBS:—Personally I regard your statement a rash one.

MR. FOX:—When I am finished you may go on. If you want interruptions, I can put you in a place where you have no right to interrupt and, unless you don't care being dealt with without gloves, you may chime in again. Now let me take up the trend of my story again, as I want to say why I set out to fight that principle of corporate control and why my remarks were directed against Mr. Coaker. This is a fight for men, not one for children. Mr. Coaker, whether for good or for evil, is the outstanding figure in the Government, as is well known to the whole country. Now when I seek a man to fight I want to get the biggest figure in sight. I don't go baby-snatching; and the reason I direct the order to Mr. Coaker is because there is not on the other side now a foeman worthy of my own steel. I am looking for the man that is controlling the whole country opposite, whether you like it or not. As regards the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and myself, I might say that there is no personal animosity existing between us, as the Advocate would have it said. As a matter of fact, if that gentleman asked me to do anything for him tomorrow in a personal way, I would be at his command; but I tell you, Sir, that why I oppose him as a public man is because he is the personification of the principle that one small group of men is controlling the freedom of the country that I live in, and while he represents that principle I will fight him; but not personally. Mr. Coaker knows that I am fighting him openly on principle; he knows anything coming from me is not done behind his back, and that is more than he can say of certain gentlemen associated with him in the Government tonight. I have absolutely no personal grudge or no personal feeling against Mr. Coaker whatever; but, his principle, in my opinion, is obnoxious and disadvantageous to the people of Newfoundland generally. I am opposed to the principle enunciated yesterday by the Prime Minister.

The principle is not whether St. John's East or St. John's West is to be antagonistic to the outports or whether the outports are to be antagonistic to St. John's; but it is as to whether the whole country should be controlled by any corporation, be it F. P. U. or the Reid Newfoundland Company, the bugaboo of Mr. Squires and Mr. Coaker before they took charge of the Government, because it must be remembered that all down through the years before the F.P.U. got in the saddle the one thing used as an election kite in Newfoundland was the octopus that was strangling the freedom of Newfoundland. But you forget that now. There is a bigger quarry. It is no longer the Reid Newfoundland Company; but it is one more dangerous, namely, the F. P. U., which is powerful and vast enough to send eleven men to this House who are pledged to do as Mr. Coaker tells them, under pain of summary dismissal.

Every piece of legislation passed for the past eighteen months, since this Government assumed office, has had only one object, and that is the furtherance of the interests of the F. P. U. It has not dealt with the welfare of Newfoundland as a whole, but solely for the F. P. U.; and when you gentlemen opposite saw well to go to the Treasury and take five hundred thousand dollars, you had not in view the betterment of Newfoundland, but you had in view the betterment of the fishermen North who were members of the Union. Therefore, Sir, I raise my protest against you on that score, because you had no right to do that, but that is only one instance of many that I could enumerate showing that this Government—not alone in law but in fact—are the F. P. U. There seems to be no intention on the part of the Government for the betterment of Newfoundland here as hereafter, but the sole desire appears to be the advancement of co-operative interests—the interests of the F. P. U. Let the Prime Minister carry that away with him and deliver it to the people whom he discourteously attacked here yesterday. The Prime Minister not alone paid a discourtesy to the district that elected him and which he represents in this House, but he made an attempt to line up the outports against St. John's. Every member recognises that every district is entitled to fair representation, but no ten should control the Government of Newfoundland. The whole thing is unconstitutional. Again I oppose the principle of an outport district controlling the freedom of St. John's East or St. John's West equally as strong as I oppose the principle of St. John's controlling the outports. I trust that the Prime Minister will take this message away with him this afternoon and see it delivered properly.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words in reply to the junior member for St. John's East, though I do not propose to answer all of the arguments put forward by him. Not being a foeman worthy of his steel, I do not suppose that he will take much notice of my remarks. I think that the thing he laboriously tried to prove was the menace of the F.P.U. corporation to the Government and its control. Now I think that it is generally conceded that the Executive of any Government is really the Government. The personnel of the present Executive Government, consisting of nine men, five of whom belong to St. John's and are living here, namely the Prime Minister, Hon. Dr. Campbell, Hon. G. Shea, Hon. Mr. Warren and Hon. Mr. Brownrigg. This terrible, awful, political menace the F. P. U., has but two representatives on this Executive, viz., Mr. Coaker and Mr. Halfyard. The other two making up the nine men are Dr. Barnes from Harbor Grace and Mr. Foote from Burin. The total representation then on the Executive Council from the F. P. U. is composed of two men. Now, according to Mr. Fox's long explanation today in trying to climb down from an awkward position he put himself in the other day, these two men are controlling the Government, and that is the cause of his extremely hostile attitude to this organisation. Now I must confess that in view of the above situation I am unable to swallow the fanciful story.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, in seconding the motion for an adjournment, I would like to take this opportunity of occupying the attention of the House for a few moments while I refer to a matter, which, in my opinion, is one of the most important matters that could be brought up here. Now that we have spent nearly a month debating upon the general policy of what might be expected from the Government, I would like to see both sides of this House unite, at least for a short period, to try and effect some remedy for the frightful conditions facing this country at present. I hold in my hand four or five telegrams which I received from reputable people in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's. One of the telegrams is signed by a reputable Justice of the Peace in a section of Placentia Bay. It is unfortunate for any man to have to bring before the House and the public the wretched conditions that exist. The telegram points out that there are one hundred families at this very moment in a state of starvation. I have another telegram from a reverend gentleman in another section of my district, pointing out similar conditions. I have another one, containing 140 words, from another clergyman, and so on. My colleagues and myself have received between us about a thousand letters from various parts of the country telling of the terrible conditions that prevail among the poor people. We all realise that we cannot have continued the pauper dole that is being dished out. It is now nearly the first of May when most of our people should get supplies or be in a position to get supplies, if they are going to carry on the fishery. Consequently, it behoves every man in this House to rise to the occasion, and, I predict, that if an invitation is extended in the proper way from the Government to the men on this side, that is if the assistance of the latter is considered worth while, that they would be big enough to rise to the occasion; and I believe also that all the big men are not confined to any particular section of this House. This matter is not only an important one; but it is a sad one and distasteful to commence with. I do not have to get up here and depict the terrible conditions that exist for the sake of advertisement. It is unfortunate for any man to have to do so. I have no doubt but that conditions are even worse than what are represented in the documents that I have already referred to. Therefore, it is the bounden duty of every member of this House to put aside every other issue for the present moment and try and devise some means whereby our people will be able to prosecute the fishery the coming summer. I will have great pleasure in handing these documents to any committee appointed in this House to look into this matter. I feel sure that this matter will elicit, at least, the earnest and sympathetic support of both my colleagues and other members on this side of the House.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, in view of the seriousness of the conditions that exist around the country and which were more particularly brought to our notice from our own district. I would like to point out that as far as I can judge that this relief business has been going on for some considerable time past. On the 25th of January last my colleagues and myself discussed this whole matter so far as our district was concerned. We knew of the circumstances of our district and knew of the destitution that prevailed there, and we knew that there was to be a great deal of public work to be done over there.

On the 25th of January my colleagues and myself wrote a letter to the Prime Minister, and I would like him to refer to that letter now. We wrote this letter, signed by the three members for Placentia and St. Mary's, and made certain suggestions to him. At the time some discussion was on about having pulpwood cut with a Government guarantee behind it. In the district of Placentia and St. Mary's it was possible to cut pulpwood in only two places. We arranged to get a contract in Salmonier, St. Mary's Bay. We tried to get one on the West Shore of Placentia Bay. Contracts were offered to two or three men, but they could not take them, because they had no way of getting the necessary supplies. In our letter to the Prime Minister we told him all this and we brought to his attention what was required in our district. Wherever there were wharves or bridges to be repaired we told him and asked that instead of the Public Commissioner of Charities doling our money to those people, that the control of that money be given to the Chairman of the Road Commission to spend on the public works. No notice was taken of that letter. I know that thousands of dollars of poor relief has been distributed in the outports for which we have got no return whatever, but if the Prime Minister had accepted our suggestion, we would have got a great deal of return for the money spent in this way. It is not too late even yet. I believe that in the next two months that a lot of money will have to be spent on Pooi, Resef, and I think that some work should be done on the roads in return for it. It is too late, unfortunately, to get the necessary timber for marine work, but we can still go ahead with other work. I trust that this matter will receive the consideration of the Government.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to associate myself with my colleagues, Mr. Walsh and Mr. Sullivan, who have preceded me in what they have said with regard to the distressing conditions in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's, and impress up on the Government the necessity of taking some immediate action to cope with these conditions. The people of Placentia and St. Mary's are, and always have been, an independent class of people and they do not want Poor Relief doled out to them through the Commissioner of Public Charities, and I endorse the suggestion of my colleagues that this money be given in a way which will enable them to give some return for it, and still retain their independence. This can be done by giving them work upon the roads through the Chairman of the Road Commission. I trust that the Government will give this matter due consideration, and will see their way clear to accept this suggestion.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Board of Pension Commissioners" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock.

Sir J. C. Crosble gave notice of question.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28th, 1921

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Petitions were presented by:

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Long Harbor, Placentia Bay, asking that telegraph communications be extended to this important settlement. Petitions have been presented on this subject during the past twelve years. Some time ago I presented one signed by His Grace, The Archbishop. The Prime Minister knows about this. No better time than the present time could be found to do this work. People are out of employment, and many of them in absolute want. This very important work could be accomplished and at the same time the people could be supplied with food.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting the petition that has just been presented by my colleague, Mr. Walsh. Long Harbor is one of the best herring centres in Newfoundland, and it is very important that there be telegraph communication so that bankers may be able to get supplies. I might say that Mr. Walsh and I made arrangements some time ago to have telegraph connection made with Long Harbor. One at North Harbor has been opened since this Government took charge, and I hope that this one will be opened as soon as possible.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure also in supporting this petition.

MR. WINSOR:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of St. Brendan's, B. B., asking for the sum of $350.00 for the purpose of repairing a bridge. I beg leave also to present a petition from the same place asking for the sum of $200 for the purpose of repairing a road bank.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have pleasure in supporting the petition presented by my colleague, Mr. Winsor.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of Flat Rock on a subject which at this particular time I would ask the particular attention of the Minister of Public Works. The petition asks for a sum of money to build a road connecting the Main Road at Flat Rock with Seal Cove. Quite a lot of agricultural property could be opened up by the expenditure of a small amount. I support this petition because the people of Flat Rock are among the most industrious fishermen in Newfoundland, but it is quite possible that during the coming season it will be necessary for them to get every thing they can in other ways to augment what they might earn from prosecuting the fishery. I would ask the Hon. Minister to kindly take this matter up and get in touch with the Road Commission.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting this petition. The road referred to leads to good agricultural land. The people are a very industrious class, and if this small amount were spent for the purpose of building this road the people would quickly make the land productive.

CAPT. JONES:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from St. Patrick's asking for a sum of money to repair a wharf. The wharf that is there is a very old one, and as it is the only landing place, it is very necessary that it should be attended to.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to support the petition presented by my colleague, Capt. Jones.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave notice of question.

Mr. Sullivan gave notice of question.

Mr. Higgins gave notice of question.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Profiteering Act, 1920."

Mr. Moore asked Hon. the Prime Minister what expenditure has been made in connection with the laying of a water main from Long Pond, Petty Harbor, to supply the Lunatic Asylum and Government Sanatorium, and what will be the total cost of the completion of this work.

Mr. Vinicombe asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries how it happens that in view of his claim in by-gone years that he could raise the price of codfish, seal fat, and other products of the country, he was unable to obtain for the men engaged in the seal fishery this year a higher figure than four dollars a quintal.

Dr. Jones asked Hon. the Prime Minister if any notification has been given to the Reid Newfoundland Company by the Government with a view to terminating on June 30th next the present arrangement whereby the railroad system is operated by a Commission, and if so, to lay a copy of same on the table of the House, and if not, does the Government intend to give such a notification, seeing that we are now within two months of the expiry of that period.

Mr. Lewis asked Hon. the Prime Minister if, in view of the fact that there is a reduction in the cost of living in other respects, it is the intention of the Government to require that the increase of one cent per mile imposed on railroad traffic last year shall be abrogated as from the first of July next, and if not, why not?

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House a statement showing how much fish was exported from this Colony by the F.P.U., or subsidiary Companies, from the first of July, 1920, up to date, giving the names of the vessels conveying away the same, the quantities on board, their destination and whether the F. P. U. or its subsidiary companles, has made application for permits for further cargoes, and if so, the quantity of fish comprised therein and the destination of the same.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he is taking any steps to organise banks amongst the members of the F. P. U. or others, in view of his claims recently that the banks now doing business here are not sufficiently liberal in their advances to their customers, and if he intends to organise such banks, if he proposes to apply for incorporation of them at the present session of the Legislature.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (as I understand that he made the arrangement for Mr. E. Collishaw to visit Washington when he saw him in New York recently), if Mr. Collishaw has returned to the Colony, and if so, has he made a report of his mission to Washington, and if so, to lay it on the table of the House, and also a statement of any remuneration or expenses, or both, claimed by Mr. Collishaw on account of the said trip.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

- (a) On whose advice or suggestion he and his Advisory Board decided last fall to create a grade of fish known as white nape fish, and to make it the highest grade of fish recognized for export?
- (b) If it was discovered shortly afterwards that this white nape fish was unsuitable for the markets for which it was destined and proved unsaleable?
- (c) If large quantities of this white nape fish is still in the possession of those who caught it, or of parties who advanced them money on account thereof, and
- (d) If, seeing that the Government last November undertook to buy fish from a number of Northern planters and others with public funds, if he (the Minister) will not undertake to recommend to the Government that this white nape should be purchased also, seeing that the people who made the fish in this way did so in response to Government instructions, assuring them of a high price for this article and therefore have a moral claim upon the Government for compensation for the losses.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Hon. the Prime Minister if any written representations were made to His Excellency the Governor by the Acting Prime Minister at the time when it was proposed last November to set apart a sum of $500.00 from the public revenue for the purpose of buying Labrador fish, or if representation to His Excellency the Governor in that regard was made orally, and if any written statement was made to lay a copy of the same on the table of the House.

Dr. Jones asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House the original returns covering the expenditure of $1,675.00 by Barnes and Bursell, and H. K. Bursell, re Topsail wharf during 1920.21.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the table of the House what amount of hire has been paid by the Railway Commission for the s.s. "Diana," and from what date her service began and when ended.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The following is the reply to question of Sir M. P. Cashin, No. 25, on Order Paper of April 26th, 1921. Attached hereto is a statement from the Auditor General with respect to the first four subsections of this question:

Auditor General's Office,
St. John's, Newfoundland,
April 27th, 1921.

In reply to Sir Michael Cashin's question, I beg leave to state:

- (a) The Deputy Minister of Finance

gave me in July last, I think, the information contained in my special report of the 21st instant, and, in justice to him, I wish to say that he said nothing beyond that nor anything that would in any way influence me in the direction of the conclusion at which I arrived. The information I gave is all that I received up to the time of writing my report, save that on several occasions when I asked Mr. Keating if anything had been repaid on this cargo, I received a reply in the negative. If my conclusion was wrong, the blame is entirely mine. I can only repeat that at the time I wrote my report I was honestly convinced that the statement I made was correct.

(b) The payment for the salt was made by a cheque on the Surplus Trust Fund. Mr. Keating was instructed to draw a cheque to cover the cost of the salt. It was paid into the Bank of Montreal to cover the cost of the salt ex s.s. "Tuckahoe." I did not become aware of this payment until after it was made.

(c) There was no special warrant issued in connection with this matter.

(d) The sum of $4,400 was received on the 18th instant in the form of a cheque of the Fishermen's Protective Union. It was deposited in the Bank of Montreal on the same day by the Deputy Finance Minister to the credit of the Surplus Trust Fund.

F. C. BERTEAU,
C. and A. C.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The following is a reply to question of Mr. Bennett, No. 5, on Order Paper of April 11th, 1921:

J. M. HOWLEY, Major,
Paymaster.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The following is the reply to question of Mr. Moore, No. 1, on Order Paper of April 25th, 1921.

Statement regarding cost of water main from Long Pond, Petty Harbor, to supply Lunatic Asylum and Sanitorium:

Expenditure to date	$39,468.46
Total estimated cost for whole work	55,000.00

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The following is the reply to question of Mr. Bennett, No. 2, on Order Paper of April 25th, 1921.

Copy of the Report of Mr. J. M. Forbes with respect to Ore Taxation is tabled herewith. By Order in Council of August 6th, 1920, authority was given for the payment to Mr. Forbes from the Vote for General Contingencies of the sum of $1575.00. This amount was in payment of travelling and board expenses, of which no details are available.

Pursuant to order and on motion of

Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 170 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of Marine Courts of enquiry'" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above, and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Terra Nova Sulphite Company's Act 1920" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above, and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the encouragement of Sheep Farming."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the said bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled, "An Act to amend the Crown Lands Act, 1918."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Law relating to Lotteries."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Before this Bill goes any further, Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the Attorney-General a few questions. I should———this Bill to allow lotteries to go on for charitable purposes and in the securing of trap berths but it seems to me that the latter point has been forgotten. As a matter of fact I think it should be wiped out altogether; I don't see what it is good for. I can't see why a man can't lottery his horse to-morrow if he wants to. This law applies to only some and not to others. If John Smith, of Victoria Village or some other place, can't sell his horse to-morrow he gets up tickets on it the buyers are fined for taking them. I think he should be allowed to do what he likes with his own property and to raffle his cat if he wants to. I ask that the old time seal fishery sweepstakes be allowed as they will be carried on anyhow and are really a long-known pleasure to all. The Lottery Act is a farce and the amendment will only make it more awkward of enforcement. I fully agree with Mr. Higgins that this will make the informer more obnoxious even than before. Wipe it out and let things go on as before it was ever introduced. The whole commercial life of the Colony to-day is really only a lottery. I can buy 5 or ten thousand qtls. of fish and it is only a lottery whether I will be able to sell it or not. Treat all alike and give the people the freedom of action they always had in this respect.

MR. HIGGINS:—I rise Mr. Speaker, to support the sentiments expressed by Sir John Crosbie in this matter. Yesterday, the honorable members will remember, I suggested that this Act be repealed. It is a joke as far as being carried out is concerned, and the worst feature of it all is that it encourages men to degrade themselves and play the hole of informers. Today many people hold the idea that one can run off a sweepstake or lottery on the quiet and pocket the proceeds, taking the position that the one victimized cannot take legal action. I ask the mover of this Bill to give this his fullest consideration and the House to support my view as the very evil which the 2nd Section is supposed to prevent is due entirely to the Act itself and would not be on the Act at all if all were treated squarely. Sir John Crosbie is perfectly right in saying that all business is a lottery; all that happens in this world is but the play of fate. If ever there was a time when we should recognize we are in the hands of the Gods it is now. The fishery is a great adventure. Ninety-nine of every hundred sweepstakes got up are for a good purpose—to help some poor fellow who is up against it, or in the case of one who in trying to carry on works of charity is not located where those about him can give big donations. The object of this Bill seems to be to provide jobs for men who have nothing to do; the Police Force in this city are certainly not overworked, as all are fully aware. This Act, however, would provide the machinery for their operations. The Magistrate would be continually called on and a new department under the Minister of Justice and the Deputy Minister would be needed to keep track of all the lotteries. If John Jones from Spoon Cove comes here and expects to raffie a piece of china at some garden party he will have to be dealt with and kept track of. If he does it without a license some informer may hear of it next day and get him into serious trouble. I think it high time now as the Act has been on the statutes for years and has been proven to be only a joke, to simply say we are going to repeal it. What is the good if it anyway. This is how it works out in actual fact. Under the common and English law we have the remedy for such happenings, but it was never intended to go to such extremes or to ask a struggling clergyman to state before a Magistrate whether he had a guessing competition on a bottle of beans or could buy a ticket on a cushion or other article from some girl. About the only thing we have left coming to us as things are today is the girl and I sincerely hope that she will not be taken from us and that the Act will be repealed altogether.

I support the suggestion of Sir John Crosbie with a great deal of pleasure. I think the thing to do is to bring in a Bill repealing the act altogether. The Bill that we now have under consideration only means that the Act as it stands today is unworkable and can never be applied in such a way as to achieve the results that the framers of the Act had in view. An instance of what is possible to be done as it stands now was furnished in Carbonear when the enemies of the Speaker landed him for buying a ticket in a lottery, a ticket which he bought to help out a poor man. Now if that is the kind of justice; if that is the kind of law we are letting ourselves in for; if that is the kind of duty for which we must maintain our police, then I say that we are letting ourselves in for something that may have very unpleasant consequences. The whole thing is hypocritical in the extreme, and if the crowd outside is hypocritical it is nothing but pharisaical for us to pander to their weakness in this respect. This is not the kind of thing that my hon. friend, Mr. Jennings, agrees with, but the whole thing as it is today is a joke and should be wiped out.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of endorsing to a large extent what has been said by Mr. Higgins with regard to this Bill. I endorse the sentiment that the Lottery Law is a "delusion and a snare," that it is an absolute absurdity, observed in the breach rather than in the observance but at the same time I am not sure that the right thing to do would be to eliminate the Act altogether. Under the provisions of this amendment it will be possible for our people to have free license to promote lotteries for garden parties and other social or charitable affairs of the kind and it is only reasonable that clubs and societies should also have lotteries for similar purposes, while those interested in the seafishery will want to get together and have a little gamble on the result. There is no reason why that should not be allowed, but I should not like to see the door left open for people to come in here from anywhere and start a system of indiscriminate gambling. If the Act were wiped out altogether there would be nothing to prevent such people coming here and setting up a regular Casino or a second Monte Carlo.

MR. HIGGINS:—That would be against the Criminal law.

MR. BENNETT:—Nevertheless, we would be giving people the opportunity to come in here and fleece the people by games of chance such as have been known here before. I am afraid that to act on the suggestion put forward by the previous speakers, we would be defeating the end we have in view. I recognize the hypocrisy of having on our Statute Book an act that is observed only in the breach, but I do not think that we should be well advised to abolish the Act. In the old License Law there was a section that prevented gambling on premises where liquor was sold, and as can be seen, that was done to protect the people against themselves. I think that it is better for us to take the middle course and so amend the Act as to make it workable rather than to take the radical step and abolish it altogether and so leave the door open for all who feel like entering upon indiscriminate gambling. Lotteries are all very well in moderation, but I should be very sorry to see it made possible to carry the practice to extremes. I am prepared to vote for the Bill as it now stands.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, while I quite agree with what has been said by Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Higgins, I am not prepared to take the responsibility of repealing the Act. I brought in this amendment with the object of carrying out the idea suggested by Mr. Bennett, and I think a sufficient remedy for the present situation will be found therein. As I previously pointed out, under the Act as it stands at present, no lottery whatever is allowed. The reason given by Mr. McKay for the Amendment made in 1903 was that some years ago during Christmas and other times it was customary for articles such as turkeys and geese to be lotteried on the wheel of fortune or raffled and it was found that many families suffered in consequence. Geese and turkeys were put up and men who had money in their pockets tried their luck at getting a goose or a turkey for a small sum, but as fortune refused to favor them they kept on trying with the result that they usually returned home with neither the turkey nor the money. Now what happened in this way on a small scale could, if there were no act, happen on a much larger scale. As the Act will now stand, any poor person can, if necessary, lottery anything that he has to dispose of or lotteries can be held for charitable, educational or church purposes by the simple means of going to a magistrate and getting a license. If a man has a horse to dispose of that he cannot sell he can go to a magistrate and get a license to lottery it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Can he go under this Bill?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Yes, the Bill reads:

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—A man lotterying a horse may not be considered charity by the magistrate to whom he applied for the license. He may go to the magistrate in Carbonear and be refused.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—He can then go to the magistrate in Hr. Grace or St. John's. The Act says any magistrate and that is why sub-section B is put in. A magistrate here might give a Hr. Grace man a license to hold a lottery and a prosecution might later be taken against him in Hr. Grace. That is why a record of the licenses issued is to be kept by the Dept. of Justice. As I have said Sir, I am not prepared at the moment and without consideration to repeal the Act, but I think this Bill will meet the case.

MR. HIGGINS:—Just a word Mr. Chairman, before the Bill goes thru. I do not want to press my point. In effort it will be the same, it will go on as usual. However, I appreciate the position of the Hon. Minister and I merely want to suggest that the word "athletics" be inserted in sub-section 3. The Hon. Minister himself is aware that in the past sweepstakes and other games of chance have been instrumental in keeping sports alive in this city. Take the Regatta for example; the different boat clubs have by this means been enabled to place boats on the Lake as they have raised sufficient funds to keep them in proper condition and find equipment for them. The same applies to other sports which are all amateur and bring in little or no money and it has always been found necessary to get up sweepstakes to make it possible for the various clubs to procure the necessary equipment and meet other expenses.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that my point was this; I don't think it is likely that anyone will come here to start a Monte Carlo. There is only one Monte Carlo and that is in France where no doubt those interested will be content to let it remain. My whole idea was merely to get equal rights for all, a thing that cannot be hoped for under this Act as it is now, and my only reason for raising the point was to have the thing made as broad as possible. However, if the legal light of the party, Mr. Higgins, says that it is alright I take off my hat to him, but I still insist that any act that causes as much trouble as this is likely to cause should be entirely wiped out.

DR. JONES:—Mr. Chairman, might I ask if the word "magistrate" in this Bill covers Justices of the Peace?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—As it stands there, it does not.

MR. WALSH:—In my opinion it is not the man who will not issue a license who is going to cause trouble so much as the man who would issue it to a friend while refusing it to others in his particular district, or another point is that there may be a large section where there are say three clergymen of different denominations who would want licenses to hold lotteries for church purposes and the Magistrate, if he were a Catholic for example, might be only too anxious to give a license to his own clergyman. The Bill reads:

Now I think that it may be hard to remedy that but as I read it, I see this section bristling with difficulties and loopholes by means of which discrimination could be practised. I cast no reflection, of course, on the framer of the Bill. With regard to the whole subject, I endorse the contention of Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Higgins that the whole thing is a farce. Life itself is nothing but a gamble; our very seats in this House are a gamble, so is the fishery and in fact every thing connected with our daily lives. It is unfortunate that the whole House could not be unanimous in having that Act stricken from the Statue Book.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Chairman, I find myself in rather an awkward position with regard to this matter, but looking at it from the standpoint of a layman, the arguments advanced by some of the hon. gentlemen on the other side do not impress one with the weight of their logic. If every law was repealed because it was broken, then we would be doing nothing else, as a matter of fact, it would but be reasonable to look for the repeal of the Ten Commandments.

MR. BENNETT:—These are not broken deliberately.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I am afraid I cannot agree with my honorable friend. I supposed at the time when this Act was introduced, there was very good reason for bringing it in. I have, it is true, no personal experience of gambling nor of lotteries, and must therefore take my information from those who say it is a farce. The reason why this change is being made, as I understand it, is to make it possible to get convictions under the Act, a thing that I am told was next to impossible before. The funny position I find is that some of our people seem to stand higher morally than others.

However, it is not impossible that if the amendment does not work out as expected something else can be done at a later session, possibly next year. I rose to my feet for the specific purpose of referring to sub-section A of section 3 of the Bill. I think I can understand that the honorable introducer of the amendment desires to be liberal but I fear that if any magistrate is empowered to issue licenses for any place it is going to lead to very grave difficulties. For example there may be a very small section of a large community desirous of having a lottery and the majority of the people may be against it and altho the magistrate refused the license, that small section could send to another district and secure the license thus making friction inevitable. Even if 95% of the people of the place were opposed to a lottery, the other 5% could send away and get a license in defiance of the popular wish. I just want to make my position clear on that point.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I am rather glad to hear my friend, Mr. Jennings, on this matter, as he and I are very close together on some things. He says that he has no personal experience in lotteries, but surely he knows all about drawing for trap berths, and if that is not the greatest lottery of all, I don't know what it is. The hypocrisy in this thing does not appeal to me. I have seen men at a temperance lecture who wouldn't touch a drop of liquor while anybody could see them, but nevertheless they went straight from the lecture and had their drinks. As for the Ten Commandments, they were broken before we came on the scene, and they will be again after we are gone. A few years ago it was considered wrong to dance or to go to a theatre, but now it is only a matter for your own convenience. Times are becoming more modern now, and people are coming more and more to rely on their own consciences as to what is right and what is wrong.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, in rising to make a few observations on this Act, I would say that I am fully in accord with the views of Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Higgins. This bill, to my mind, is on a par with some of the bills that are now adorning our Statute Book, such as the Prohibition Bill, for instance; and it is on a par with what is known as the Blue Law that exists in the United States at present. To give one a knowledge of how this bill works out, I have to say that I have had the advantage over my friend, Mr. Jennings, in that I participated in sealing sweepstakes, belonging to St. John's promoters, as I went through my own district, but, unfortunately, I was not lucky enough to win a prize. The Lottery Bill will be like the Prohibition Bill—more honored in the breach than in the observance. Further, Sir, I want to say that anything decent in ethics, morality or religion does not want the support of a Statute Law, as anything decent in either of these branches has the moral support of the majority of the people and that is sufficient, because anything not decent in ethics, morality or religion will not live by it, backed up by any Statute Law of any country in the world, provided you can get legislators hypocritical enough to do so. I wonder what the people of the country, the great mass of the people whom we represent, would say—although I know that there are a number of people in the country who have not or would not take a ticket in a sweepstake—if we, as legislators, passed a law prohibiting the public from taking part in lotteries and privileging ourselves, because I am certain that all of us in this House today, whether through short-sightedness or by accident, have participated in them? Now that is the actual state of affairs. If we take tickets ourselves, have we the unmitigated gall to deprive the rest of the country from doing likewise? If we do as we please, can we sit down here with sad faces and decide not to allow our neighbor to do as we did? I can understand a man who never did take a sweepstake or who never did play a game of cards supporting this Bill absolutely and voting for every section of the Bill; but I have nothing but supreme contempt for the man who exercises his own free will and who dictates to the rest of the country and says that they cannot exercise their free will and cannot enjoy the same personal freedom as he does. Personally, Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to all matters of this kind on principle. Remember that there are countries and states in the world that have people equally as intelligent as ours and people whose history can go back much farther than ours. Not only did they tolerate lotteries, but they have organised state lotteries, which have been found to work out well and without any sad results. I am of opinion that the further consideration be deferred, if possible, as it may be deemed advisable to have another Bill introduced by somebody in this House to have the Lottery Act wiped off the Statute Book altogether. There is no compulsion on the populace of Newfoundland to take part in a game of chance. Nobody forces a man to take a ticket. He exercises his own free will. Because twenty-five or thirty people in a settlement wish to have a lottery amongst themselves, there is no reason to suppose that the rest of the people will be contaminated thereby. There is no reason at all for thinking that you can interfere with the natural law of things or with the natural propensities of the people. The state interference suggested in this Bill I am vigorously and uncompromisingly opposed to. State interference has been found the world over to be unworkable. On that question I shall have something more to say when we come to another Bill this afternoon. Cranks, who were pillars before the state, were known to have found legislators foolish enough to carry the whims and the theories of those cranks into execution. If we allow any such policy, which is not sincere, to be practised here and which the people of this country do not want, I say it would be better to have it dropped at the outset. What we want to do is something that will restore the confidence of the people in us in this House.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, like Sir John Crosbie and other previous speakers I would wish to have a word or two to say on this matter. I, for one, do not agree with having a Lottery Act on our Statute Book at all, because I believe it is only a farce in its entirety. There is not a man in this country but who knows that this Bill, if enforced, will never be carried out. I think I can remember the year the Lottery Act was first introduced in this House; it passed the Legislature by a very small majority. I think that the introducer of this Bill now, the Hon. Minister of Justice, who was a sitting member at that time, also remembers the occasion. When the Act was introduced years ago, nobody ever thought that it was going to become law; but it did, and after it was carried the legislators of that time were severely criticized; it was the talk of the town for years after and even up to the present time it is a public eyesore. Now, Sir, just to show the House that this thing is a farce I might relate that the Inspector General of Police, Mr. Hutchings, in the early part of this year, issued a Proclamation, which was published in the daily papers, bringing the public to order and cautioning people against taking part in sweepstakes. Being an athletic enthusiast, I visited the Prince's Rink last winter to witness a hockey match. While there I was asked by a member of an athletic club to take a ticket on the number of goals to be scored. I replied it was against the law to do so; but I noticed that one of the first names that the young man had on his book was that of the Inspector General, who was down for two tickets. I think, Mr. Chairman, that this will suffice to show that the whole thing is a huge farce; and I say that it does not become us, as representatives of the different constituencies throughout the Island, to come here and make laws telling the people what they must and must not do against their own free wills, because I do not think that the rights and liberties of the people should be taken away by mock legislation.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I support the contention of Sir John Crosbie, namely, that the Act should be taken off the Statute Book altogether and because, in the first place, it only got there by an accident. Further I think it would be wise if the Hon. Minister of Justice adopted the suggestion of Mr. MacDonnell and consider the deferring of the Bill.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman: I do not think that anything will be accomplished by deferring the Bill, because I think it is good enough now to meet the situation and because there is nothing to prevent any other member from bringing in another Bill at the next session.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Or this session.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I am not sure whether it would be right in practice to have another Bill brought in at this session. With respect to Mr. Vinnicombe's statement regarding the Inspector General, I would say that from what I know of the Inspector General I doubt if he put his name on the sweepstake list himself.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Well, Sir, I am not in the habit of making statements that are untrue. To substantiate my statement I might say that I was approached by a member of the Feildian hockey team and asked to take a ticket. I told the young man that it was against the law and that he was likely to get himself into trouble, if caught. On opening his sweepstake book he showed me the name of C. H. Hutchings for two tickets. Further, the hockeyist told me he owed Mr. Hutchings fifty cents, and Mr. Hutchings told him to put him down for 2 tickets in next sweep.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—In that case I take back what I have said though I am very much surprised.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I have no doubt that he is not the only one of that type, although he is quite right, for he knows himself it is a farce and he didn't mind treating it so.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I would like to ask the Minister of Justice if he participated in any lottery this year.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I always did until this year. If the Proclamation had no other effect this year, it kept me from going into sweepstakes.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman: I would like to see the Lottery Act repealed altogether, but I suppose, under the circumstances, it is better to have a half loaf when you cannot get a whole one. Might I suggest to the Minister in the point I raised yesterday, the striking out of the words in the old Lottery Act having reference to the giving part of fines to informers. The practice of giving half of fines to informers has a tendency of turning a section of our community into modern Judas Escarlots. Under the original Act anybody who sustains a prosecution is entitled to half the fine and the other half goes to the department of Customs. I think that if we, as legislators, are going to undertake the job of making laws that will well compensate informers, there will be the tendency of demoralizing the whole community. Personally I do not see any serious harm to the community by allowing sweepstakes to go on, rather does it afford amusement.

I would again ask the Minister to consider the point that I raised.

HON. THE SPEAKER:—Mr. Chairman: I think that it is due the whole House that I should make some explanation because of my connection with the law on the Statute Book at the present time. In view of the circumstances today, I think I would like to be in a position to give the Bill now before the chair the six months hoist in order to give the Act now on the Statute Book greater power, and, perhaps, to have some greater penalty imposed on those who broke it. As to the giving discretionary powers to Magistrates in the enforcement of that Act, I might say that I would never be a party to placing discretionary powers within the province of any Magistrate. Some months ago a man who was trying to get rid of a pony asked me to take a ticket in a lottery, which was used for the disposal. He had a book and some tickets. I said you are breaking the law my man, I said I will give you the 50c., but I don't want your tickets or your pony. My name evidently appeared on the man's book with the names of the others, and I was summoned before His Worship at Carbonear. I told the story of my connections with the transaction, but the Magistrate apparently did not exercise any discretionary powers in my case, but fined me two dollars like the others, and costs. I think you will find also that a great many of the Acts on the Statute Book are being violated time and again. In my own home town of Carbonear there is a Proclamation issued by the Magistrate every spring and fall prohibiting goats and pigs and other animals roaming at large on the public highways. Still, despite the law, one cannot go up or down town even in a vehicle without endangering yourself as all sorts of animals are continually roaming the streets. If the enforcement of one law is left at the discretion of a Magistrate and it is violated in that way that I have cited, then I say it is time to take away such discretionary power. In the light of the discrimination that is likely to be displayed and in the light of the trouble that may be caused by this Bill, owing to Magistrates in many cases refusing to issue licenses—and as there is a fraternal feeling existing between the Minister of Justice and the Magistrates—and because of the fact that some Magistrates will not give permits because they are against the lottery law, I take exception and would be pleased to give the Bill the six months hoist.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr Chairman: I am prepared to accept the amendment made by the Hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Fox. I was glad to hear the explanation of

His Honour the Speaker about the occurrence in Carbonear. I must say that I got a shock when I first saw the list of prosecutions that came from the Magistrate of Carbonear, and I took the earliest opportunity to write to the Speaker, advising him to pay the fine so that we would not have an opportunity of seeing him shovelling snow during the winter around Government House grounds.

MR. JONES:—I take it that the Minister does not intend to include Justices of the Peace in that section that I have already referred to.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—We do not intend.

MR. JONES:—I would merely say in reply that, as far as myself and the people are concerned, that it matters nothing to us whether the Act is or is not enforced any how; but I serve notice on the Minister that no licenses will be applied for in my district, but the lotteries will go on just the same.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the Board of Pension Commissioners."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, may I ask the Prime Minister what the constitution of the present Board is, and if Major Parsons is still a member of that Board?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

Yes, Major Parsons is still a member of the Pensions Board. The arrangement made was that, as he was in his new position as Superintendent of the Lunatic Asylum, that he should receive a stipulated sum only as Pension Commissioner instead of the full salary, as ordinarily voted, and that he should remain as Honorary Secretary of the Board. His services were eminently satisfactory. There was another arrangement made whereby Mr. Oake, his acting secretary, should have a slight increase of one or two hundred dollars. This means a saving of $1200 on Major Parsons' salary as well as getting Mr. Oake to give more of his time specifically to secretarial work so that Major Parsons will be able to spend a couple of hours a day in the department and in that way work in conjunction with his duties at the Lunatic Asylum, and thus give both institutions the value of his experience. Consequently, the whole arrangement means a total net reduction of one thousand dollars.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, I am very glad to hear that Major Parsons is retained in this respect, because I have good reason to know that the work performed by him has been of the highest value. Of course, we do know exactly what the material effect will be on the administration of affairs at the Lunatic Asylum, particularly when the new wing is opened; but I suppose he will be able to devote more time than to the Asylum as the work of the Pensions Committee will be gradually smaller as time goes on. Indeed, I am very glad to know that Major Parsons is still attached to that Board. I presume Mr. Clift is the Chairman.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—He has already been formally appointed Chairman by Minute of Council.

MR. BENNETT:—I have no objection to this Bill.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the Bill entitled, "An Act with respect to Delinquent Children" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole tomorrow.

HON. THE MINISTER JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill, I may say that it has been introduced at the request of three reverend gentlemen, Rev. Hemmeon, Rev. Dr. Jones, and Rev. Dr. Greive, who have been working for some time past with a view to making things a little easier for the children of the country. The first part of the Bill is practically a copy of the English Act, the Childrens' Charter. The first fifteen sections are modelled on the English Act, and the latter part on the Ontario Act. The main object of this Bill is to provide that when it is necessary for children to be tried for some offence that they shall not be tried and handled the same as adults who commit offences, that they shall not be tried in the ordinary Court House, but privately in some way to be specified in the Act. I don't know that I can say much more, but when we go into Committee on this Bill, Hon. members will be able to express their opinions on the various sections as they arise.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to discuss this Bill just now, but as I understand that it is at the second reading, that we admit the principle of the Bill, I would like to make a few remarks. The Hon. Minister of Justice has said that the first fifteen sections are taken from the English Bill. I think that when we examine closely the working out of the English Bill, the very fact that this Bill is modelled on the English Act will be an all-sufficient reason for its rejection in this House. I have been reading up some of the statistics with regard to this English Bill, and I find that the Act provides for Probation Officers or Cruelty Men among the poor people. That is the kind of official we are going to bring in here, who because of their activities in the Old Country were the cause of the working men and women coming together and organising themselves into what was known as the Mothers' Defence League. This was forced upon the people as far back as 1919, and it spread from London right through the whole of England, and last year had considerable prominence in Scotland. That some provision be made for delinquent and neglected children I quite agree, but I think that there should be no other official than the police constable. The Charter of this League announced that they would fight against the militarism of these officials. We heard a lot of talk five or six years ago about the danger of militarism, and the same legislators who decided to make war upon Germany because of their policy of militarism, think it desirable to have this same principle encouraged in England. I wish to give notice that in the committee stage of this Bill, that as far as I can I will fight this provision to the limit, and endeavour to show to the members of this House the danger of this legislation. In the propaganda of this League, they say that the poor people are up in arms because of the impertinence of the drawing room class who take it upon themselves to dictate to people who are up against what they shall or shall not do with their children, and how they shall conduct their homes. Now, just imagine introducing this principle into this country at a time which everybody will concede is a time of stress and privation for people of all classes. Then consider how much more active than usual those officials would be, the cost of living driving working people to look for increased wages; increased wages leads to increased prices, and that leads to the fact that working men and women have to neglect their homes through no fault of their own. I submit that we are in this position as a Government that we are responsible for having brought about those conditions to a large extent, for putting the people of this country in the position they are into today, and now we ape the policy of the British Government in penalising the victims we have made ourselves. That is a statement of the case. We have been told here in this House, and we are glad of it, that this is a crimeless country, that there is no great work for our police force. Why then bring in a set of busy-bodies who can break into a man's house with all the rights of a policeman with a search warrant and dictate to him how he shall run his own household. We are seriously asked to do that. I doubt if there are many people in this country today in the medical profession who are capable of telling us what is the cause of delinquent children. This is a point which has caused a lot of discussion in England among specialists as to what is the cause of a child being mentally deficient. I do not know anyone in this House, with the exception of my friend, Dr. Jones, who is competent in any way to judge legislation of that kind. It does not follow that because the parents of the child are mentally deficient that the child must be so, nor is the antithesis correct. We have to go very slowly, if there is such a thing as cruelty, we have the law to have it prevented and the official punished. We don't want a host of spies and informers buzzing around like mosquitoes interfering with the people of the country. The people will not stand for this kind of thing. Take a recent case in Fife-shire, Scotland. Forms were sent out to the parents of the children to sign and certify that because of poverty or ill-health they could not look out for their children, as they had always done previously. The parents indignantly refused to have anything to do with such forms and decided to fight against this interference and to keep their children away from school altogether, and two or three thousand were kept away from school in consequence. A Bill like that, if we did not have the absolute failure of the English bill as an example, might pass as harmless, but if we with our eyes open and knowing the facts of the working out of that bill in England allow this to go through, we are taking a great responsibility upon our shoulders; we have no right to sew the seeds of dissension and trouble. It is the people with the smug faces who make trouble when they try to impose their fads and fancies upon the working people of the country. We have no right to impose upon the people something they don't want, and that is what we do when we make it law. We have had experience in this House before of turning over to outsiders to boards or commissions, the rights of this House as legislators and it should not happen again.

I will go more fully into this matter tomorrow. In the meantime I would ask every member to make himself acquainted with the working out of that act in England before we vote upon it.

THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND

FISHERIES:—If the conditions are as stated by Mr. MacDonnell, the only solution is to arrange to have the Bill rescinded and not brought forward any further.

MR. FOX:—Might I ask that the Bill be deferred till tomorrow.

HON. THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I may say that personally I know very little of the conditions referred to by Mr. MacDonnell. I was asked to bring in the Bill by the three gentlemen I referred to previously. In view of what has been stated, I think it right that the second reading should be deferred, and I ask Mr. Fox to move the adjournment of the debate until tomorrow.

MR. FOX:—I move the adjournment of the debate until tomorrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, this Bill is to provide for the High Commissioner. It does not state any fixed salary to be paid him, but it is similar to the Canadian Act. The 2nd section is the same as the Canadian Act. I am bringing it in at the request of the present High Commissioner. He asked me to introduce this last year, but I forgot to do so. He thinks that the Legislature should provide for the standing High Commissioner.

MR. BENNETT:—The High Commissioner is supposed to make an annual report, is he not?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I have received no report for the past year, although there is really supposed to be one sent in.

MR. FOX:—I would like to draw the attention of the Minister of Justice to the fact that while the Bill deals with the salaries of minor officials, it does not deal with a salary for the High Commissioner. Might I ask that that be put in tomorrow.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:— It was not intended that any salary be fixed.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled, "An Act to confirm an agreement between the Government and The Dominion Iron & Steel Company, Ltd., and the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, Ltd." was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— With respect to the second reading of this Bill, I suggest that as probably members will wish to debate this Bill we proceed with the second reading and have the debate in the committee stage of the Bill.

MR. HIGGINS:—I think it would be better to leave the second reading until tomorrow as we would like the opportunity to discuss it amongst ourselves.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I merely wish to have the formal 2nd reading and have the debate in the committee stage.

MR. HIGGINS:—I think that that will be alright.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I move the second reading of this Bill.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber for Special Purposes" was read a second time, and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Mr. Speaker, I beg to table a copy of the contract entered into by the Government in the Agriculture and Mines Department. The Government has guaranteed to take over such wood cut as is passed by Government surveyors as suitable for tide ways, and notice of the liability of the Government must be given before the 30th of June. This Bill is for the purpose of confirming arrangement made under the War Measures Act of 1914 and 1916, to permit the export of pulp wood cut and place upon it an export tax of one dollar per cord. This was made necessary because of the lack of employment caused by the partial failure of the fisheries, particularly in St. Barbe Twillinga'e, Bonavista, Placentia and sections of Burgeo and La Poile. I move the second reading of this Bill.

MR. SCAMMELL:— Mr. Speaker. Before this Bill, (The Exportation of Pulpwood) passes to the second reading I should like to avail of the opportunity of setting forth my reasons for supporting it.

Early last summer I was made aware of the fact that the Fishery in the White Bay and on the Treaty Shore looked likely to prove an absolute failure. We were faced with the problem of what to do for the people to keep them from starving during the winter months. If no employment could be procured, then we were faced with the alternative of administering poor relief on a tremendous scale.

I brought the position to the attention of the Government, and pressed for a solution.

I state this because at the time the Opposition papers were stating that I was not interesting myself in the matter. Eventually, the Government decided to allow the cutting of Pulpwood for export, and agreements were entered into.

In my district contracts were made for something like 16000 cords, which meant an expenditures of $64,000.00 in supplies. That tided the people over the winter, and relieved the distress which otherwise would have prevailed, because, taking the coast into consideration it would have been a very difficult matter to have distributed relief adequately or efficiently.

The loading and shipping of this Pulpwood during the Spring will mean the expenditure of another $24,000.00 and help the people over the dull months immediately preceeding the fishery.

I have much pleasure therefore, Mr. Speaker, in supporting the Bill.

Pursuant to order and on motion of, Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Bill entitled "An Act to repeal 10-11 Geo. V. Cap 25, entitled 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish'" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word in the second reading of the Act. I am not called upon to say much now, but I will make more lengthy remarks in the committee stage. Sir John Crosbie, so Mr. Halfyard has informed me, referred to a message I received from Italy. I received a message from Lt.-Col. Bernard to the effect that Italy was not buying any fish, and would not be buying any for a considerable time. The Government took the matter up with the British Ambassador, and has not taken it up with the Colonial Office. Any pressure that we can bring to bear on the Italians will be influenced in our behalf.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Hon. Minister what he intends to do about the Standardization Act.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—It is not the intention of the Government to repeal that Act, but they will not be enforced the coming season because there is no money to enforce it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Are the inspectors to be called back? Here is a chance for the Government to save some money at a time when it is badly needed. The inspectors should be called back without delay.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Is it the intention to remove the exportation tax?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—It is not the intention to remove the exportation tax because the Government needs the money. Some of the Commissioners have done good work and should be kept on, and the money has to be found to pay them. It is probably this year that the Government will put aside twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars for this purpose.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Isn't thirty cents a quintal too much to charge on fish today? It is a great hardship on the fishermen. That is over seven per cent. I sold fish today for a poor man, and got $2½ for good Brazilian fish. If some of the Commissioners are good they are all good, and if one is bad they are all bad.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, I think I agree with Sir Michael on this question. In view of the hardship on the fishermen this exportation tax should be repealed. The merchant is not going to pay this tax out of his own pocket, it is the fishermen who are going to pay it. I can appreciate the attitude of wanting the revenue, but there must be due consideration to the fisherman. The commissioners are all alike to me no matter who they are. I understand there is a commissioner in the West Indies. That is money thrown away. The same thing is true of Oporto and Malaga. These are the little things that we can cut off, that will bring in the revenue. In a meeting the other day the Board of Trade took the attitude that the Commissioners were no longer needed.

The Remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday next, May 2nd, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, April 13th, 1921.

The House opened at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of Salmon Cove for the sum of $500 to complete a public wharf, and ask that it is referred to the Minister of Public Works for his consideration.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I beg leave to present a petition, signed by about 150 people of Fox Harbor, P.B., on the subject of a road. This is an important settlement, there is no steam communication and the people have to depend entirely on the railway. For many years they have been trying to get communication with the railway at Ville Marie and a further sum of $2,000 is needed to complete it. I ask that the petition be referred to the department to which it relates and I believe the Minister of Public Works will support it.

MR. WALSH:—I beg to support the petition.

MR. SINNOTT:—I also beg to support it.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The reply to question of Mr. Bennett, No. 5, on Order Paper of April 13th, 1921, is as follows:

Most of the information required in this question was furnished in the reply to question of Mr. Higgins, No. 22, on Order Paper of April 5th, which was tabled on the 11th instanc-copy of which is attached hereto. The additional information now required is in course of preparation.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The reply to question of Mr. Lewis, No. 7, on Order Paper of April 13th, 1921, is as follows:

Charles Hynes is tidewaiter at Kelligrews and was appointed 28th February, 1920. He receives as salary $750.00 per year. He receives no commission; as Kelligrews is a transfer office for Bell Island, the officer is subject to the Sub-Collector at Bell Island; whatever business is done goes through the Bell Island office. He has been supplied with a uniform, it is the regular practise to supply tidewaiters with such. Mr. Hynes succeeded Mr. Frank Tilley.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Minister of Justice to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the names of the legal men inside the Colony and outside who at present hold retainers in connection with the Labrador Boundary, the amount paid them on account for their services, and if it is intended to employ any other lawyers in this work, and if so, who are they?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I beg to table the information.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the names of the parties from whom Messrs. Job Bros., G. M. Barr, and Joseph Sellars bought fish on Government account last fall, the quantity purchased from each person and the amount paid therefor, and whether in each case it was in cash or part cash, and in the latter event, what proportion was paid in cash and what in truck; also a statement showing the expenses per quintal which increased the quantities purchased by Joseph Sellars by one dollar a quintal over that purchased by Messrs Job Brothers and Mr. Barr.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—The information is being prepared.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity as Chairman of the Railway Commission, if the Government or the Railway Commission is a participant in the present venture of the steamer Sagona at the seal fishery, and if so whether altogether or on joint account with the Reid Company, and in the latter case to what extent, and whether, seeing that the Sagona's catch was insufficient to make the venture a paying one, the Government or the Railway Commission lose anything by the venture, and if so how much?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, in answer to the hon. gentleman I might say that the Sagona in the present venture at the seal fishery had no connection whatever with the Railway Commission nor was the Railway Commission in any way responsible for any loss that might have been incurred. I am tabling a letter from Mr. Hall which will fully explain the matter.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The reply to that question requires the preparing of some statistics which will take a day or two.

Mr. Higgins asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing:

- (a) The cost of all repairs to the house occupied by District Inspector Sheppard, Harbor Grace, since November, 1919, and to whom any amounts were paid.
- (b) The cost of all repairs to the Goalers' residence, Harbor Grace, and to the Court House at that place since November, 1919, and to whom any amounts were paid.
- (c) The cost of coats, hats and boots, supplied the Volunteer Fire Brigade, Harbor Grace, with the names of the parties supplying the same, and the amounts paid the different parties.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I beg to table the reply.

Mr. Higgins asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he recently purchased five thousand tons of salt for the Government in Europe; where and from whom and at what price the said salt was purchased; where is the salt to be delivered, at St. John's or Port Union; and to table copy of the telegraphic and other correspondence between the Prime Minister and himself in relation to the purchase of the same.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I beg to table the reply.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE asked the Hon. Minister of Shipping

- (1) What insurance is on the hull of the S. S. Portia; what rate of premium and who did the insurance?
- (2) What insurance is on the hull of the S. S. Prospero, what rate of premium, and who did the insurance?
- (3) What insurance was on the hull of the S. S. Watchful on the voyage from England, and what premium; what amount is at present on said hull, and who did the insurance?
- (4) What insurance was on the hull of the S. S. Daisy on the voyage from England, what premium, what is at present on said hull, and who did the insurance?
- (5) What insurance was on the hull of the S. S. Senef on the voyage from England or United States, and what amount is now on hull, and premiums paid; who did the insurance?
- (6) What insurance was on the hull of the Sebastopol on the voyage from England or United States, and what premium was paid. What amount is now on hull, and premium paid, and who did the insurance?

- (7) What insurance was on the hull of the Malekoff on voyage from England or United States, and what rate of premium; what amount is at present on said hull, and rate of premium, and who did the insurance?

HON. MINISTER OF SHIPPING:—Mr. Speaker, in reply to that question I beg to say that the insurance on the Portia is £32,000.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—I'd like to have the reply tabled in writing.

Sir John C. Crosbie asked the Hon. Minister of Shipping:

- (1) Who supplied the s.s. Prospero with groceries, provisions, etc., and to lay on the table of the House the said accounts.
- (2) Who supplied the s.s. Portia with groceries, provisions, etc., and to lay on the table of the House the said accounts.

HON. MINISTER OF SHIPPING:—The hon. gentleman will understand that my department is very busy just now and it would entail considerable work to have these accounts copied, while it would scarcely be safe to let the vouchers go out of our hands without having copies of them. If it would suit the hon. member's convenience to call at my office, I should be glad to give him access to the accounts.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE:—The only objection to that is that other members might want to see them.

Sir John C. Crosbie asked the Hon. Minister of Public Works what the cargo of anthracite coal imported by the "Herbert Warren" last fall, on Government account, cost? Please lay full detailed statements on the table of the House.

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS:—In tabling the reply to that question, I would like to say that at the time that cargo of coal was purchased it was almost impossible to get this kind of coal, and as it was a serious matter to run the risk of having the Government institutions without fuel, and as this opportunity was then offering, we felt that the chance should not be lost.

Sir John C. Crosbie asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries at what date Captain Gosse was paid for the thirty-six casks of Labrador codfish.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to inform the hon. gentleman that this reply will be ready tomorrow.

MR. LEWIS asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if the steamer "Senef" is being employed to freight to Harbor Grace seals which are the property of the crews of certain of the sealing steamers, and if so, has the ship been hired for the purpose and at what rate, or is she being donated by the Government or the Fisheries Department for the benefit of these people, and if so, what is the estimated cost per day of her maintenance.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—There is no steamer employed to convey seals to Harbour Grace.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Yesterday I outlined the railway situation as it appeared to me. and I hope within the next few weeks to hear from the Government side of the House in reference to this matter. But it is hard to get away from the fish business, as I told you yesterday, hard to get away from that half million dollars. I was twitted in one of the papers a few days ago about a shipment of fish from this country while I was a member of the late Government. That shipment of fish went out from here by a ship called the "Escasoni"; that shipment of fish was valued at something like

$1,250,000. I shall tell the story myself of that "Escasoni" shipment. The merchants of Water Street owned that fish, the merchants of Water Street purchased that fish, they speculated and purchased that fish, and intended to make money on it. Fish was away up in the air at the time, three years ago. After purchasing that fish they sold it on the other side in the Mediterranean. They chartered the "Escasoni" and she took across something like 40,000 quintals of fish. When the fish got over there it was thrown up. The fish was ordered on up to Greece and from Greece on to Rumania. Every cod's tail in that ship was owned by Water Street. The F. P. U. had 8,000 quintals of fish in that ship. They denied having 8,000 quintals of fish in that ship because they had sold it to somebody else and put it on board like Mr. Gosse sold his fish to Barr. But, just the same, the eight thousand quintals of fish belonged to the F. P. U. originally. That fish was taken up to Rumania. It was two or three months on the passage. Arrangements were made with Mr. Hepburn, of the firm of Baine Johnstone and Company to go over and look after it at the end. He went over there and he went up on that ship to Rumania, and when he got to Rumania with that fish the fish was rotten, the pickle was running out of it. They were pumping the pickle out going up the Mediterranean and when they got to Rumania, it is very easy to imagine what the fish was like in a hot climate. Mr. Hepburn sold the fish under very backward conditions, but not for cash. He sold for bonds. The Newfoundland merchants would have to take bonds for that fish. That news was sent over the cables to Newfoundland. The Government was approached on the matter, as nearly every merchant on Water Street had a little fish in that ship. The Government were approached to know if they would guarantee those bonds, if the merchants of Water Street would take the Rumanian bonds. Then the Government, being approached, refused to do it. The British Government then was tackled. They refused to guarantee the Rumanian Bonds. After they refused, the owners of that fish on Water Street came back on the Government again, and the Government of that day were called to Government House with Sir William Lloyd as leader of the Government, to discuss the matter. I was the Finance Minister at the time and when I went to Government House I did not know what I was going up for. When I got up there the proposition was put before me: were we as a Government prepared to guarantee to the merchants of Water Street the Rumanian bonds for the fish purchased by Rumania. If so the merchants would be in this position, so far as the Banks were concerned, that they were prepared to advance them in any way with a Government guarantee behind them. We discussed the matter at Government House. Mr. Coaker wasn't there, no, but here's the reason Mr. Coaker wasn't there, he was at Port Union for three or four months sulking.

MR. HALFYARD:—He wasn't in the country.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I beg your pardon. He was at Port Union for four months, never came near the Executive Board, and the reason he didn't was that he couldn't have his own way; he was turned down, and that's the reason he didn't come to the Executive Board. He was in Port Union sulking at the time and Dr. Lloyd—Sir William Lloyd of today as we know him—was the man who was made Premier by him, and he was sent to Government House to get that guarantee on Rumanian bonds, but I am proud to say that I am the man who turned Coaker down and turned Coaker down and turned the whole thing down. You were there as Mr. Coaker's Secretary and you were there as Colonial Secretary. You were up at Government House as Secretary of the F. P. U. and Colonial Secretary of the Colony looking for a guarantee for those Rumanian bonds.

MR. HALFYARD—It is not correct.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Well you know what I am saying is correct. Go over and ask the Governor. I am going to dinner tonight at Government House and if you are going I will be happy to ask him in your presence.

I was the Finance Minister at the time. What was my answer? The Hon. W. J. Ellis was there, Mr. Cliff was there, Sir William Lloyd was there, you were there, Sir John Crosbie was there. Sir John Crosbie is here now and when I sit down he will get up and tell you that I am the man who turned down those Bonds.

MR. HALFYARD:—I hope he tells the truth.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—He can't tell anything else. He is remarkable for telling the truth, and the truth is better in this House. But here's what I am going to tell this House. I was asked to guarantee that million and a quarter Rumanian bonds. If I had put my pen to paper as Finance Minister that night or the next day, what was I doing? I ask you now what would I be doing? Give us an honest answer now.

MR. HALFYARD:—Do you want a reply?

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Yes.

What would I be doing if I put my name to that guarantee?

MR. HALFYARD:—Without question you would be doing a very heroic thing. You would want to be a very wise man to do it.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—None of your trimming. Would I not be putting this Colony in this position that I would have to go out as Minister of Finance of the Colony and pay the Merchants on Water Street the money for those Rumanian bonds that are down in the Bank to-day no good. Isn't that the position? Now, Mr. Halfyard isn't it true that I would have had to hand out a million and a quarter dollars to pay merchants on Water street who speculated their own money and when they lost it wanted the Government to pay them. Isn't that the position I would have been in? Don't you know that Water street is owed today by Rumanian one million and a quarter dollars. What would I be doing?

MR. HALFYARD:—You would make an awful mistake.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—But you were wanting me to do it. You say now that I would have made an awful mistake, but, thank God, I had sense enough not to make the awful mistake then. I can tell the country to-day that when I was Minister of Finance I safeguarded its interests jealously and you and your associates since have tried your best in every direction to bring a blush to my cheek for the way in which I managed it, but you can't do it. In twenty minutes I can make the whole of you blush. Now you brought this on yourself. The Department that you are head of to-day is owed fifty or sixty thousand dollars from a certain source. Did you collect it? No, Sir, you did not collect it? Do you know how to collect it? Get up and tell me that and I will sit down. You are owed, or this country is owed, seventy or eighty thousand dollars to-day in that Department, and you are chief of that Department, but you don't know the first thing about it, you don't know where to begin, you don't know who to appeal to, and there is not a man in your Government knows how to go out and get at that money. That's a broad statement for me to make, but you know that it is correct. Haven't you sense enough to know that this country is in need of every dollar it can get to-day. With sixty thousand dollars you could go out and double the pauper's dole that you are paying to-day. You are chief of that Department and if my statements cannot bring a blush to your cheeks there is no blush in you. You can't get up and tell me how you can collect that money.

MR. HALFYARD:—When I get an opportunity, I will tell you.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I give you the opportunity now while these gentlemen are listening.

MR. HALFYARD:—I won't now.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—No because you can't. You are not attending to your business. You are secretary of a large corporation; how can you look after a vast Department like the Posts and Telegraphs. You are only human. You are trying to do both, but you can't. This $60,000 is increasing at the rate of two or three thousand dollars a month, and you don't know the first thing about it; worse than that, there is no man on the other side knows any more than you do. Now, don't you think it would pay that Government to have me come over there and collect that money. Sure, and not alone that, but I saved a million and a quarter dollars to the country by not signing for those Rumanian bonds. We left Government House and we never talk Rumanian bonds after because you would have been minus M. P. Cashin and you could not afford at that time to be minus M.P. Cashin.

Nw I am going to tell you another little story. That eighty thousand dollars I have told you about. Do you know what happened the other day? I asked a question here as to when the interest on our British bonds was sent to the Old Country and at what period within the last three months of the year was exchange lowest. I got an answer back saying that they knew nothing about the exchange, but that the money was paid on the 20th of December. That would be ten days before it was due. Well, here's what you could have done. Do you, as Postmaster-General of the Colony, know that there is such a thing as exchange at the present time, that between here and the Old Country in the month of October the pound was down to \$3.34 in New York, it was down to something like \$3.47 or \$3.48 here. You could have gone to that Surplus and taken the \$500,000 that you paid for fish and sent it to England in October; £95,000, I think, was the interest, somewhere around £100,000. You could have sent that at the rate of \$3.35 or \$3.40 early in October to the Old Country and you could have six per cent. compounded on that monthly up to the end of the year. But at the end of the year, when you sent over your money, exchange was up to between four and four-twenty. You had to send it on December 20th, because it was due at the end of the year to the bond holders in England, and if you knew your business you would have sent it three months previous to that. You would have had it over that at six per cent., you would have had \$4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$ over there for \$3.40, and you would have made \$60,000. You knew nothing about that? How many men on the other side do know? Did Mr. Gosse? Did Mr. Winsor? Did you, Mr. Jennings? No, you were saving on splits. Down in the Finance Department you were paying out thousands and thousands of dollars while you were squeezing the lifeblood out of the Topsall man and the Kelli-grews man who come in to sell you a few splits. Now that's the Government that is representing Newfoundland today. But this is what is going on, Mr. Speaker. The Post Office, as I have already stated, is owed \$80,000, and the \$60,000 in the Finance Department would make \$140,000, and the \$200,000 that you hold in bonds given by your supporters and duties that you didn't collect, would be nearly half a million dollars. Don't you think it would pay the Government to have me at a salary of \$50,000 a year? It is too much to say, Mr. Speaker, that we are running for the rocks. Never since Responsible Government has Newfoundland been cursed with a Government like the present Government. The proof is all around. The simplest school child can see it. Take the Manifesto of last year, take up the Speech from the Throne today, then think of the revenue that we left after us when you came into power, think of the surplus you had when you came into power, and then think of yourself with only a revenue of three or four million dollars today. You are short two millions now and you are short \$300,000 in bonds. The Auditor-General's Report here tells us that you closed your books in October last with \$60,000 in bonds due. When I asked the names of those bond holders here the other day, it was no etiquette to tell me. But the Minister of Marine and Fisheries comes down a few days after and asks a question about bonds that were due while we were in power and gives us the name of the party. It was etiquette for him to tell that party's name, but it was not etiquette to tell the names of the men who helped you get into power, who are allowed to go down to the Treasury and pass on goods and sell them to the poor man with forty percent. gain on them that they have never paid. There is not a Government department today but is being robbed of thousands and thousands of dollars. Take the Auditor-General's Report. Take the Estimates when they will come down and see the evidence, see the enormous number of officials you have tacked on to the Civil Service, thousands and thousands of dollars going out to people whose names you have to twist your tongue three times to pronounce. We never heard of them before, all new men brought into the service.

Then, this Government is run principally by two or three men who are heads of a large corporation business of this Colony. I cannot get away from that, ruining the whole business of this Colony. As I have told you before, before this House closes the Fish Regulations must come off. The country is in a terrible condition, north, south, east and west. These Regulations must come off, because they are a scandal of the worst kind. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, chief of the greatest corporation we have in the country, uses the private information of each and every individual in the fish business in this country for his own ends. Are we not a patient people to stand it so long?

Next on my list is aeroplanes. Now, it is not necessary for me to occupy the time of the House to talk on aeroplanes this evening. Didn't we all read a report last year that the Prime Minister was in England and that he had arranged with the British Government to send out to this country a number of aeroplanes to forward the sealing fishery of the country. We all thought it was only necessary, when we read this report, to get ready in the Spring of the year, that aeroplanes would be flying around up in the Heavens pointing out the whitecoats to Abram Kean down below and to Billy Winsor and others. Thousands and thousands of dollars have been spent on aeroplanes. These arrangements were made by the Prime Minister when he was over in Sunny France, where he was clear of the fogs and ice of Newfoundland. He forgot that the aeroplanes had to come to Newfoundland and go down to Green Bay in March with the wind to the North-west, when you couldn't put your nose outside of a cap, let alone your eyes. Then we read in the public press of England, and of Canada, that a revolution was going to take place in the seal fishery of Newfoundland, aeroplanes were to be sent out, but what has happened? The story of the aeroplanes most likely will be told before this House closes. Another thirty or forty thousand dollars gone in that direction nothing less. Still we keep on.

We have asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the number of Trade Commissioners that we have abroad. Do you know, sir, that we are paying over $100,000 to-day to Trade Commissioners. Some of them are spending as high as twelve thousand dollars a year. May I ask the Prime Minister to tell the House if these Commissioners have been recalled. We cannot pay them, we have no more money to pay them, the Government has no money to pay its debts. You can't pay the interest on your money on the 30th of June next if you pay your bills in the meantime.

What is your position to-day, Mr. Prime Minister! If you take your financial statement and go abroad to look for a loan what kind of a story would you concoct? You would have to tell that your purchasing power is gone, you have no industry only the seal fishery and the cod fishery, that we are practically carrying all our eggs in the one basket. The fishermen can't live on five dollars for fish paying fourteen dollars for flour. You told in your Manifesto last year that the per capita tax of this Colony was $36 per head. To-day what is it? Didn't you put ten dollars more on each head last year? To-day it is $46. You were going to make it 26 when you wanted votes.

I wonder what are you receiving from the tax. Have you forgotten like Mr. Halfyard has forgotten to collect the money due the Post Office, to collect it? Are they paying anything? Why haven't you collected the quarter of a million dollars off the Nova Scotia Steel Company? I collected it off the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, and I was collecting it off the Nova Scotia Steel Company when I left. I suppose you haven't taken that matter up yet. It is only a quarter of a million dollars. They were making twelve million dollars yearly out of Newfoundland and they owed Newfoundland a profit tax. We compromised with the Dominion Iron and Steel and we took a quarter of a million, we would have taken the same from the Nova Scotia people. You are in power nearly a year and a half and you haven't done anything. Why don't you go around to the different Departments and weed them out? There is not a Department in the Civil Service to-day but is a disgrace to the Civil Service, a disgrace, mark that down. Snow shovelling $8,000 in Harbour Main. Where did you get that money. Did it come through your Department, Mr. Chairman of the Board of Works? I asked you last year about two or three hundred dollars in your District and you promptly got up and told me that I took money from Green Bay the previous year that was voted in this House. Now if you are the honest good man you say you are you will tell us. You have the same fashion as the other members on your side, you hold the paper over your face.

You are a political hypocrite, a man who preaches one doctrine and then turns around and practises another. You handed out $8,000 for snow shovelling in Harbour Main, the people's money. For what? To keep you in power, that's why you handed it out. Where is your work to-day? Can you find it? If you went to Harbour Main to-day would you find eight hundred dollars worth of work? It is gone, the snow is gone, the roads are there and it will take another eight thousand dollars to repair them in order to carry traffic.

We heard something about a German indemnity. All very well. That's a case of live horse till you get grass. I hope we will get an indemnity, we are entitled to it, because we have paid the price for it. The only hope you have to hold out to the people is the indemnity you will receive from Germany.

What about the State Bank? We heard a lot of talk in the papers during the past six or twelve months about a State Bank being established in Newfoundland. Now let us see where we are. I am sorry another gentleman from the other side of the House is not here. I would like to have a word or two with him, the little shipped man who got off his speech on opening day, but he is also a schoolmaster and knows something about gathering money around this Island. I will postpone what I have to say to him as he is not here. I will talk to him about the State Bank later on.

Where are we with regard to ship-building in this country? That was one of the things that was promised last year. What is going to happen in that direction? How many millions of dollars is Newfoundland going to lose, Mr. Speaker, in that direction. I am not going to discuss it this evening as the Minister is not here.

Coal and oil boring. Didn't we hear a lot last year about Coal and oil boring. We passed a Loan Bill for half million dollars for that purpose. Where are we today? We have no report before us. They were going to have trucks over the roads brought up to the Railway track last Winter. They were going to mine that coal and they were going to supply St. John's, and they were going to supply the coastal boats. We haven't heard a word about that in the Speech from the Throne. They are ashamed to tell the story, ashamed to tell the story of what is going on down there, thousands of dollars being spent and no return. I would like to find out from the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, how much it cost per ton to mine the coal they have taken from the mine, and how much of it has been mined during the Winter.

What about copper mines? We have been told that a great industry is to take place in regard to copper, the great starting place will be on the West Coast, and great operations are to take place in Bay of Islands. Nothing at all about what is going to happen during the next six months, only one or two things that will never materialize. As to coal mines, they pop up every now and again at a certain season of the year.

Last year we were treated in this House to a Housing scheme. Now what has happened the housing scheme. Nothing in the Speech from the Throne this year about it. Will the Prime Minister or the Minister of Justice tell us anything about it? Here's what happened the housing scheme. A certain amount of money was given by philanthropic citizens here last year to buy houses. They went to work and built the houses and they proclaimed to the country that they could build a certain number at a certain figure, but what happened? The houses cost double the money and the people who advanced the money are going to sell out the houses. Is that the position? The houses that were supposed to be built for a thousand or twelve hundred dollars cost over two thousand, some of them up to twenty-five hundred I understand. How many poor working people can buy a house that cost nearly three thousand dollars to build? Some of the philanthropists are now going to sell the houses at auction to get their money back. How many longshoremen are living in those houses on Freshwater Road? How many men from Harvey's or Job's or Bowring's? I go further, how many clerks have you in the houses? You built those houses for people who can't afford to pay for them.

Proclamation of Lands. How many of you remember that proclamation last year? A young soldier is attached to the Agriculture and Mines Department at a salary of $3700 a year. Now I don't begrudge it to him in one way but in another I do. I hope he will get up and tell us what has resulted from the proclamation that was issued by your Government last year granting so much land to the soldier and sailor from the Agriculture and Mines Department. How many soldiers partook of the offer? How many took over the land and started farming and building houses? How many went to the West Coast, how many took over the lovely fertile land North, how many are in the interior of the country along the railway? I would like that young fine-looking Commissioner to get up and tell us. I am not criticising your job. You have $3700 a year. You did one good act. You are entitled to your job. You are only entitled to it because you went and fought for Newfoundland while others who remained at home received more money than you are now receiving. Therefore I bow to you you are in your proper place.

Before closing my remarks, I wish to go back to a little matter. The other day in this House I moved a resolution condemning certain references to His Excellency the Governor in "The Dally Star." I was attacked by that paper immediately after. It is not necessary for me to read any of the articles, but I want to tell the Prime Minister that he contradicted a statement I made in this House that he was the owner of "The Star." He told me he wasn't the owner of that "Star," but that he was a creditor of that "Star," so I took the trouble to find out who the owners of that "Star" were by going to the Registry Office. I just tell this for what it is worth, and to just show how the Prime Minister can talk here. Down at the Registry Office "The Star" is registered in the names of three men. The capital is ten dollars each, thirty dollars, that is the capital of the great big "Star." But ten dollars is sufficient to carry out the law. I stated in this House that "The Star" is owned and controlled by the Prime Minister. Now I prove it. It may not be the proof that is necessary, but it will serve the purpose of showing to the country that the Prime Minister is the man who is handling "The Star" and handling all the filth and dirt in that paper. None of it can go in without his permission, and there is no man in this country he lavishes more of this dirt on than myself. I tell him right here that he is the owner of that "Star," he is a creditor of that "Star," in fact that "Sar" owes him so much that he owns "The Star." "The Star" is not owned by the three individuals in whose names it is registered, these are only three men he is using for a purpose, just the same as Mr. Coaker is using other gentlemen in this House. The Prime Minister is the man who owns "The Star," he is responsible for that insult to the Governor. The Prime Minister is the man who pays the bills of "The Star" and pays the employees at his office weekly. He is the same man who quibbled in the Woodford affidavit and would not allow counsel, he is the man who splits hairs on every occasion, and then he had the cheek to come in here and tell me that he wasn't owners of "The Star."

Now, Mr. Speaker, to come back to the amendment to the Address in Reply. I moved that amendment a few days ago in all earnestness. I moved that amendment for the welfare of Newfoundland. I moved that amendment because we, as fishermen of this Colony, received proof positive that the Regulations have served to put Newfoundland in the unfortunate position she is in today. I look upon it as my duty, as a member of the House of Assembly, to see that those Regulations are removed from the Statute Book of the Colony. There is no fisherman in the country who is not crying out in a loud voice to have those Regulations removed, to give free trade once more to Newfoundland; give each and every fisherman in the Island who is independent enough to export his own fish a chance to do so; abolish the coercion that you have been practising for the past twelve months. The amendment that I propose will help mend the situation that we are in today, because no matter what is done the fish on hand is going to interfere with the sale of the new catch when the new catch comes in. I ask each and every member in this House, every true Newfoundlander, to forget that he is here for pay and that he has an obligation to perform. You must not turn down that amendment. If you do turn it down then we will take other means to see that it is passed. An enraged people will come in here and make it pass. Do you mean to say that people are going to put up this year with what they had to put up with last year, export fish under the supervision of W. F. Coaker and the Fish Regulations No. You must vote for that amendment. You may quibble and say, "oh, we will bring in another Bill that will serve the purpose better." That amendment I propose fills the position, and I ask you as men to bury all differences and remember what we owe to this country. Remember the many families that are tonight destitute. Forget your own interests and go like men and vote for the amendment. I ask you to vote as one man on the other side of the House for it. When these Regulations passed this House they were tried in the law courts, and it was found they could not be put in force. Mr. Hickman took a case into the Supreme Court and a decision was given against them. Then the War Measures Act was dug up and those Regulations were put into force. The Minister held a pistol to the heads of every exporter in Newfoundland, and today the country is demanding that those Regulations be removed, so therefore it is your duty.

I have much pleasure in proposing this amendment.

Mr. Speaker adjourned the House until tomorrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, April 15th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. MacDonnell gave notice of question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Presenting Petitions.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I rise with your permission to present a petition from the residents of that section of St. John's East in the vicinity of Escasoni to which I would draw particular attention. It will be remembered that some days ago a question was asked as to whether it was the intention of the Government to use Escasoni as a small-pox hospital instead of that destroyed at Signal Hill and in reply to that question, I find that it is. Now Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the position the Government finds itself in with regard to this hospital, but on the other hand it must not be lost sight of that, to establish it in this place would seriously affect the whole of the Escasoni section of St. John's East. This petition draws attention to the fact that the proposed hospital would be right in the heart of a large and important farming section and that it will mean if the project is carried out that the sale of milk from these farms will be seriously affected and with all deference to the opinion of the Public Health Officer, I am strongly of the opinion that in justice to the surrounding people, it ought not to be done. Medical authorities tell us that milk is one of the greatest purveyors of disease.

If you put that small-pox hospital in there you will injure the people of that district, who are mostly farmers. Even though the proposition may be sound from a health standpoint, and certified by a Medical man their customers will not buy their milk. In view of those facts, I would ask the Government to consider the petition. I do not think it would be right to have an institution of that character put in such a location, where it would injure the people of the neighbourhood. It is not because a certain medical authority says it is alright that it should be foisted upon the people when they object to it. The Government has land more suitable for the erection of such an institution, down by the Fever Hospital, or in some place other than a farming and residential section. This location as far as I know is a very swampy piece of ground and one which is calculated to breed disease. I think it is the worst possible place for the erection of a small-pox hospital. I would like to say to the Government that I invite their consideration of this petition—because it is signed by over two hundred people, and all of them directly concerned in it. Justice Johnson is one of the men who signed it. I am not ignoring the fact that there is a building there already and it would save money to convert it into a small-pox hospital, but I think it is better to make this sacrifice, than to put it there. I ask that this petition be referred to the Prime Minister's Department, and that it be given the early attention of the Government. I hope that the Government will see its way clear to grant this petition.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the amount of fees paid the Quarantine Officers for the port from December 31st, 1913, to date; the duties of said officer, the name of the officer performing these duties, and the fee collected from each ship for the duties so performed.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I have drawn the attention of the Deputy Minister to this question and the answer will be tabled tomorrow.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Minister of Justice if, as indicated by the report of the Comptroller and Auditor-General under section 33 (b) of the Audit Act, 1899, the salaries of the Judges and Registrar of the Supreme Court were increased by the sum of a thousand dollars each after the close of the last session of the Legislature; if so to state why this increase was not made while the Legislature was in session; and to lay on the Table of the House a copy of all correspondence in relation to the said increase.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—In answer to that question I might say that these salaries were increased after the passing of the Estimates last year. It was the intention of the Government to place the Judges' salaries on a par with those of the judges of the Dominion of Canada, and as these were not ready at the time of the tabling of the Estimates the increases could not be made till after the closing of the House.

MR. BENNETT:—Were the salaries of the Canadian judges also increased last year?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—They were, but we did not put ours up to the same standard. That would have meant an increase of $2,000 where as the increases made here were of $1,000.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In reply to question No. 5, (Sir M. P. Cashin): The honorable member is in error in addressing the first portion of this question to the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The first portion of the question to which I refer is as follows:

"To ask the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Mr. Collishaw was commissioned by the Government recently to proceed to Canada and the United States to raise a loan for the Colony or to initiate preliminary negotiations therefor, and if so, what remuneration is he to receive for his services, and to lay upon the table of the House a copy of all correspondence, if any, in relation to the said arrangement."

This portion of the question relates to the Department of Finance and Customs. So that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition may not have to go to the trouble of directing this question to the proper department, I, on behalf of the Minister of Finance and Customs, who unfortunately is still too ill to attend the House, beg to say that Mr. Collishaw has not been commissioned by the Government to proceed to Canada and the United States or any other place, either to raise a loan for the Colony or to initiate preliminary negotiations therefor, or to undertake any other work in connection therewith.

As to the second portion of the question, which is correctly addressed to Hon. Mr. Coaker in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, I have in his absence to say that Mr. Collishaw has not been authorised to purchase anything for the Railway Commission.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The reply to question of Mr. Walsh, No. 8, Order Paper April 13th, is as follows:

Statement of amounts expended during last year in connection with fire fighting.

(a) Vicinity of St. John's..	$ 3,606.20
(b) In Ferryland District..	9,279.55
(c) At Blaketown and vicinity	1,255.00
(d) At Port Blandford and vicinity	287.29
(e) Elsewhere	35,972.56

This does not include the wages of the regularly employed fire wardens.

SIR, M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, when the House adjourned yesterday afternoon I was dealing with the Labrador Boundary Question. After the sitting opened yesterday an answer was tabled to one of my questions that not alone alarmed me, but also the whole House, and which, when known, will alarm the whole country. It was that no less than eight lawyers are engaged in that work. I cannot use the word work in the proper sense because we, as old politicians, know this Labrador Boundary Question is not work. It is only an excuse for certain lawyers, or as

I named them yesterday whether in Parliamentary language or not, certain vultures to suck more of the life blood out of the country. How, I ask, can the Minister of Justice attempt to justify the payments tabled here yesterday? We look to him for the exercise of reason and prudence in connection with this matter, but colossal extravagance has been practised. I said yesterday, and I repeat today, that all the essential work in connection with that question had been done by the late M. W. Furlong, but now we find that one firm alone has received $10,000 and that the Minister himself and his colleague, the Premier, have had twenty-five hundred dollars apiece besides, and also I understand another twenty-five hundred dollars each for their expenses while on their trip to England last year; and, of course, this is only the beginning of the matter. Countless thousands more will have to be paid before the question is settled. It looks as if this Labrador Boundary is going to cost Newfoundland a quarter million dollars, and it is this matter that figures prominently in the Speech from the Throne at a time when our people are looking for a livelihood. It is estimated that this question has already cost us nearly another quarter million dollars, so that the territory, if we ever secure it, will want to be really valuable if it is to be worth anything like that we will have paid to lawyers to argue the case for us; and this last expenditure has been made at a time and under conditions when everything pointed to the need for retrenchment and economy. And this is the Government that boasted before the election that it was going to practise economies and reduce the public expenditure! Instead of doing so every excuse has been seized upon to squander and throw away the public revenue, until the expenditures of our day, which the present Government condemned as disgraceful, are now shown to have been only trifling as compared with the money being paid out at present. We were all criticised and accused of every crime and the record of each family for seven generations was turned up by the Government press to vilify us. Now, however, the House is opened, the Government are on trial before the Legislature and the country, and we want to know what is to be done. Hundreds of people are going about starving and looking for work. What industry amongst us is paying to-day? Where is the Minister of Marine and Fisheries? He has charge of the fishery interests of this country, has a big fish business of his own and dominates the Government's policy in regard to fishery questions. Mr. Cheeseman can't sell a quintal of fish without his permission now, nor can Mr. Gosse. I could not sell a cargo of fish last March without his permission. I was in Montreal a year ago and could have sold four thousand and quintals to a firm there at a profit of a dollar or more a quintal. I got in touch with people here and practically closed for the cargo, but then I was ordered to go down and lay my cards on the table for the Fisheries Department, tell Mr. Coaker who the firm was, how much I was getting for the fish, where I was going to ship it, and who was going to handle it after it reached its destination. I decided to do it and the deal fell through. The country lost the sale and our people are that much poorer to-day. I asked the Minister a question yesterday, a very awkward question for him though it looks quite simple to many when it was read out. I asked him to table the correspondence between his Department and one of his agents, Mr. Hue, whom he sent to Montreal last Fall at the expense of the Colony, as a Trade Commissioner. Mr. Hue went to Montreal and after getting about with the fish people there, wired the Department here saying he could sell 10,000 quintals of Labrador fish at eight cents a pound. He got a reply saying "try for nine cents and if you can get it the F.P.U., will fill the order." Mr. Hue tried in vain. Why, because fish was on the down grade and nothing came of it, but here is the important part. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, representing the whole of Newfoundland, kept that information to himself and no other fish trader in this Colony was informed that Mr. Hue could make this sale at the figure in question. I have asked for all the information regarding that transaction to be tabled here, and I noticed that when I did so it made some people on the other side very uncomfortable.

That is a sample of where we are today. Our whole fish business, as Mr. Cheeseman well knows, is dominated by one man and that is Mr. Coaker; the biggest fish merchant in Newfoundland cannot export a cod's tail today without permission of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, without going down and making a sworn statement to the Department, laying bare all business transactions and revealing his private affairs, and when he does so he runs the risk that somebody else, Mr. Coaker or some member of the Advisory Board, will cut under him and make the sale and take the business away from him. I am making this charge here and now that Mr. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and one of the largest exporters, has held back the fish of other merchants from time to time and said "no, you shall not ship that fish, you must get a better price," and then in the meantime Mr. Coaker has gone to work and loaded vessels at Port Union and elsewhere, and when he was ready, has sent these vessels away to the markets where these merchants were trading, and has sold his own fish in these markets under the prices he refused to allow the merchants to make sales at. I ask the Minister of Justice if this is a square deal. I ask the Minister to take the case of one man in his own district, Mr. Penney, who last year loaded a cargo of fish in June for Europe. Every fisherman knows what it means to put young fish aboard a vessel in June and keep it there two or three months. That cargo was held back by the order of Mr. Coaker for over three months and then it was allowed to go forward. The fish is in Europe yet unsold and unlikely to sell, because when it reached its destination it was in bad condition and no order could be got for it. Mr. Penney could have sold his fish but was refused a permit because the price was not high enough for Mr. Coaker, but friends of Mr. Coaker on the Advisory Board sold their fish to the same people. In the name of common sense and fair play, are we as legislators going to stand for this sort of thing any longer? Personally I am not, and I serve notice on the Prime Minister now, as the Minister of Fisheries is not here, that these Fishery Regulations must come off. There is no longer any justification for maintaining them. It is publicly known that Mr. Coaker sold six cargoes of fish in Portugal recently while eight or ten vessels belonging to merchants on Water Street and on the West Coast were in the same port waiting for their turn to come. But Mr. Coaker went in and undersold them because he was Minister of Marine and Fisheries and could do as he liked. Will Mr. Gosse stand for a continuance of that? Will Mr. Cheeseman? There is nobody else across the floor I can put the question to as Mr. Archibald is not there. The other members are merely shipped men, not representatives of the people of this country at all. I notice that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs smiles at me. He is a shipped man himself. He is Secretary of the F. P. U., and it is not decent for him to hold his present portfolio. He is Secretary of that corporation and still has the cheek to come in here and take $5,000 a year from the taxpayers as a salary. He and his like are case hardened and devoid of common decency. In his position he can know what every business man in this country is doing, can take advantage by reading the telegrams that go through his office of every competitor of his company in the country. Then take Mr. Barnes, a very good man in his way but not the man to represent our fishermen. An educated man, but what is the good of his education to our people? He has never spoken here and has never given evidence that he has any interest whatever in the people or their affairs or any concern except to draw his salary and make the most he can out of the time he is in the House. Then take Mr. Foote, representing one of the largest fishing centres in the country, backed by the most independent class of men we have in Newfoundland today. Mr. Foote is independent as far as money is concerned, but as far as his will and his actions are concerned he is a misfit. Then take Capt. Winsor. He is a paid servant of the F. P. U., runs a Union Store for Mr. Coaker, and then comes into this House, and isn't it natural that he must do as he is told. Then take the others, schoolmasters, tradesmen, or others who were getting two or three hundred dollars a year for their own jobs and have had an increase in the sessional pay to a thousand dollars, with the result that they are better off than ever they were before. Then take Mr. Cheeseman, a young man with a good prospect before him, with an industrious independent father who made his money at the fishery, and I hope his son follows in his footsteps. Yet he has to go to Mr. Coaker and tell him who he is going to sell his fish to. Mr. Coaker put Mr. Cheeseman on the Advisory Board and Mr. Cheeseman then went back to Burin, remained there all summer, and allowed Mr. Coaker to do as he liked. Mr. Gosse's case, I need hardly recount. He found himself last fall with fish he could not sell, and he went down to Mr. Coaker who arranged to take over his fish at eight dollars a quintal while hundreds of men in his own district could not sell a cod's tail, the men who put him in the House of Assembly.

MR. GOSSE:—I will answer that. I didn't sell that fish to the Government. I sold it to Barr. I knew nothing about the Government purchasing fish at the time. It is not my business to know whose money it is.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Thank you, but I don't think you realize where you are. Forty-eight hours ago in this House information was tabled showing that $500,000 was taken from the Treasury, part of the Surplus, and given to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to buy Labrador fish with. They arranged for part of that money to be given to Mr. Barr, part to Mr. Sellars, and part to Mr. Job. When Mr. Gosse came over to sell his fish and asked the Minister of Fisheries to whom he would sell it, the Minister sent him to Mr. Barr, who bought his fish, and surely Mr. Gosse is not going to argue here that he did not know what money it was that was taken to buy his fish.

MR. GOSSE:—I am not allowed to know.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Well, Mr. Gosse I am sorry for you. You may think that you can get away with that sort of explanation, but I don't think it will go down with the House or with your constituents. You appear on the record as having been paid for your fish with this money and it is a poor time to come in now and contend that you did not know whose money it was. The people in Harbor Grace will find that as hard to swallow as the poor relief that is being doled out to them now to keep body and soul together. Here is a statement showing the amount of food allowed by the Government for relief of poor in the District of Harbor Grace:—

For 1 person, 6 lbs. of flour, and quarter-pint molasses.

For 2 persons, 11 lbs. of flour, and half-pint molasses.

For 3 persons, 16 lbs. of flour, three quarts molasses.

For 4 persons, 20 lbs. of flour, one gallon molasses.

For 5 persons, 23 lbs. of flour, one gallon and a quarter of molasses.

For 6 persons (just imagine 6 in family) 26 lbs. of flour, 1½ gallons molasses.

For 7 in family, 29 lbs. of flour, 2 gallons molasses.

For 8 in family, 30 lbs. flour, 2 gallons molasses

For 10 in family, 34 lbs. of flour 2¼ gallons molasses. (They won't make much out of that).

For 11 in family, 36 lbs. of flour, 2½ gallons molasses.

For 12 in family, 38 lbs of flour, 3 gallons molasses.

For 13 in family, (some large families in your District, Sir,) 40 lbs. of flour and 3 gallons molasses.

For 14 in family, 41 lbs. flour and 3 and one-eight gallons molasses.

Now you sold your fish to Barr. Some of these people have fish to sell and can't sell it, and you admit in this House, as a representative for a District like Harbor Grace, a Colleague of Hon. Dr. Barnes, that you didn't know from what source that money came that you got paid for that fish. Now how many people of the same intelligence as yourself will put it down to that. Who will believe that story of yours? Didn't you know that Labrador fish was falling when you went to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and asked if you could dispose of your fish; and didn't he send you to Mr. Barr and Mr. Barr took your fish and gave you an order on the Marine and Fisheries Department.

CAPT. GOSSE—No sir.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Who did you get your cheque on?

CAPT. GOSSE:—Mr. Barr.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—No, Sir, you would not take Mr. Barr's cheque. There are not a dozen people in Newfoundland today who would take his cheque, but you knew you were getting your pick from that half million dollars handed out to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

CAPT. GOSSE:—My cheque was not from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries at all. My cheque was got from Mr. Barr.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—But did you notice if that cheque was countersigned by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries?

CAPT. GOSSE:—No, I did not.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Did you notice if it was on the Bank of Montreal? No, you did not. Well, that gives us an idea of what you know about what is going on at the present time. You can't tell us this evening what is going to happen the fishermen of Conception Bay the coming summer. Is there any alteration today from the scale of poor relief that I have read here? You are just back from the District of Harbor Grace. Is there anything after happening in Hr. Grace? Are the men left Hr. Grace? Have they gone to Bell Island? Don't you know work is stopped on Bell Island? Tell us how many hundreds of people are hungry today in the District of Harbor Grace, hungry, living from hand to mouth, bringing a few pounds of flour in a pillow slip or a clean bag and a pint or quarter of molasses in a kettle, and then, you as a representative come over here and sit down and prepare to vote for the Fish Regulations that helped to put this country in the condition that it is in today. Do you call yourself a fisherman or a fisherman's son? It is enough to make the old fisherman turn in his grave.

CAPT. GOSSE:—I am not the only one who voted for the Fish Regulations.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—No, you are not, but we want to convert you. All the rest of your colleagues voted for them as well as yourself, and most of them voted for the same reason, because it paid you to do it. Their sessional pay was increased, they got departmental offices or salaries or other pickings, and they would have voted for anything else as well as the Fish Regulations. Now, as a result, you have made the country nearly bankrupt. Here's what you have got to get back to. I take these figures from the Auditor General's Report:

Year	Revenue
1913-14	$3,600,000
1914-15	3,950,000
1915-16	4,600,000
1916-17	5,200,000
1917-18	6,500,000
1918-19	9,500,000
1919-20	10,600,000

You came in last year and you asked for eleven millions. Now here's the expenditure:

Year	Expenditure
1913-14	$3,920,000
1914-15	4,890,000
1915-16	4,111,000
1916-17	4,555,000
1917-18	5,370,000
1918-19	6,760,000
1919-20	9,247,000

Last year you asked for eleven millions, you can't get it. You are going to be three million dollars short.

I ask the Minister of Education which year you are going to ask to get back to. You must go back, sure, unless you have some other plan up your sleeves, unless you are going to look for Confederation or look for money from the Old Country. You will have to go back. You can't get up now with all the education you have and prove to me you are going to get it. I pick you as the right man to do it. You are the Minister of Education in Newfoundland today. I have asked the best authorities in Newfoundland today their opinion on this country as it is at the present moment. No person seems to be able to know. Perhaps you can tell us which of those years you are going to take. Are you going back to 1914? Can you go back? If you go back to 1914 you go back to a revenue of $3,600,000. You can't go back to that. Why? Because your interest account is two millions and a quarter. Are you going back to 1914-15? The revenue was $3,950,000. Take 1915-16, $4,600,000. Can you go back to that? You have two and a quarter to pay for interest on your fifty million dollar debt. You can't go back now. What are you going to do? You can't go back to 1917 with the tariff as it is today. What are you going to do? That's what I want to know. It is not in the Speech from the Throne. Nothing in that, not a word about anything only the Labrador Boundary and two or three insignificant things and a prayer at the foot that God may guide us. Well, I hope that God may guide us. That's the Speech from the Throne, as near as I can get to it. Now I would like, Mr. Speaker, to hear the Minister of Education in this House. I haven't heard him yet. He is here now two years and we haven't heard him yet. He is one of the best educated men in the country and I am the worst, still you can't get a word out of him. Now I want to get back again, Mr.

Speaker, to the figures I have already quoted. I claim that we are on the down grade, that the total value of our export of codfish as already stated to this House, was about twenty-two millions in 1919-20. Now this year it is about five or six millions. There are still half a million quintals here that you can't sell. After leaving the cod fishery, what is the position as far as the herring fishery is concerned? You know, Mr. Speaker, probably more about fish than anybody in this House or in this country because you have had a lot of experience lately that some of us hadn't. You visited Norway, one of the principal fishing centres in the world, and you must, no doubt, have a lot of information, and I hope you will hand it out to the House some day before the session closes.

The following figures refer to our herring fishery:

Year	No. Brls.	Total Value	Average Per Brl.
1913-14 ...	135,962	$ 469,546	$ 3.45
1914-15 ...	147,136	551,000	3.74
1915-16 ...	241,587	1,076,144	4.43
1916-17 ...	189,743	2,087,897	9.50
1918-19 ...	212,360	2,585,534	11.94
1919-20 ...	143,122	1,235,864	8.63

I would like to know how many barrels of herring we had in Green Bay last year. The Hon. Mr. Jennings ought to be able to furnish that information right off. We had no fishery in Green Bay at all last year, had we, Mr. Jennings?

MR. JENNINGS:—No.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Well, two years previous to that you had a fishery there worth nearly a million dollars. What happened it, Mr. Speaker? That's what I want to come to. Our herring fishery last year did not amount to any more than 40,000 barrels of herring and price amounts to only about two or three dollars a barrel. Now the herring fishery, that we hear nothing at all about from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was one day in this country worth two millions and a half dollars. Why is it we never hear a word from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries about herring? Why, because he is not interested, he is not doing any herring business, he is only interested in the cod fishery, that's the reason why. Today the herring fishery is gone. The herring fisheries at Bay of Islands, Bay St George, Bonne Bay, Fortune Bay, Placentia Bay are things of the past. Two years ago it was worth two and a half million dollars. Today we haven't a cent in that direction. Add that to the fifteen or twenty millions you are short on codfish. What does the Minister of Justice know about herring? What about it in his District? There was a herring industry there two years ago, nearly sufficient to support that Bay. Today it is gone. What is there instead? Today in that Bay I believe the people are starving with the herring at their doors.

Now we come to the cod oil. These are only small things. Cod oil today is selling at ninety dollars, cod oil that two years or even twelve months ago sold at $350 per tun. Today it is down to $90. It is down to seventy cents a gallon. That is the nominal figure in The Trade Review. Herring, Scotch packed, that was exported from Newfoundland to New York and sold at thirty-two dollars a barrel, cannot be sold today for seven dollars a barrel. Salmon that was selling for thirty-five dollars per tierce in 1919 cannot be sold today for twenty dollars, can't even get an offer. Lobster that sold previous to the war for thirty dollars a case today fetch only four dollars per case. How many men can go into the lobster fishery according to those prices, how many go into the cod oil business, how many men go into the herring fishery, how many men have money invested and going to invest it in that source? Still up to now eighty per cent. have been in the cod fishery, for farming in Newfoundland does not amount to much, as you know.

Now we come along to the Seal Fishery. Where are we on the seal fishery. Last year we heard a lot of bawling about the seal fishery and how Mr. Coaker kept the price up to eight and ten dollars. To-day the catch will be in the vicinity of 100,000 seals. The position you are in is that the seal oil of last year is still here, the sealskins of last year are still here. The merchants cannot to-day pay any more than four dollars, not even four dollars. There is not a merchant on Water Street to-day who has a vessel bringing in a load that will pay the bread box; that's the position as far as the seal fishery is concerned. We have heard a lot about the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in connection with the price for fish and the price for fat and the price for herring was what he made it. Two days ago we had a great cry in his paper that following on his return from abroad the price of fat went up thirty-six cents. It was quoted at $4.36, and that he would take the fat over to Harbor Grace. Now here's what happened about that. The men weighed their fat and took their share and it was put on board of a Government boat called the "Senef" or the "Daisy," costing this colony two or three hundred dollars a day, and taken to Harbor Grace free, and they call that an increase of thirty-six cents a quintal—a boat that's costing the taxpayers sixty cents to bring it over there. The seals then are increased in price, I thank you! That is the statement. I may be wrong. I hope I am, but that's the statement. The fat cannot be put on board the ship, taken to Harbor Grace and landed and the ship brought back here at the price coal is to-day, for thirty-six cents. A flare-up in the paper when Mr. Coaker arrived said "thirty-six cents more being paid for fat," thirty-six cents more paid by the taxpayers, by the men who paid $500,000 for the Labrador fish. The same thing applies, and still we are standing for it. Now I would like to know the reason why the Minister is not here to-day. I have quite a lot to say but I am not going to say it until I get him here in this House. I was accused here the other day of saying things in his absence that I would not say before his face. Well what I want to say to him in reference to one or two matters may sound a little harsh and I want to have that gentleman looking at my face when I do say them.

Now, take the pulp and paper business. The pulp and paper business, Mr. Speaker, is the only redemption that Newfoundland had for the past four or five months. Only we happened to have that industry going in Newfoundland employing 5,000 people last winter, what would be the conditions in this country to-day? Five thousand men must be present at least six or seven or perhaps eight thousand families, and that number of families would have to be fed on the same scale as the people of Harbor Grace are being fed to-day. God was good to us in that direction.

Now about the mining industry. I would like to know from the Prime Minister and from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries where are we as far as mining in this country is concerned to-day. What is the agreement between the Government of to-day and the Dominion Iron and Steel and the Nova Scotia Steel Companies. Have they made any arrangement? It was publicly pronounced by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries at a convention of his people at Catalina, just after the election was over that the export on ore in future from Newfoundland would be nothing less than one dollar per ton. Now we had a visit last spring from the President of the D. I. S. Co., and from the President of the N. S. S. and C. Co., and one or two directors of each company. Arrangements, I understand, have been made with the Government, an agreement being entered into the terms of which have not been made known to this House yet. A question has been asked about the same but we haven't received an answer as yet. Well do you put on that dollar? Do you put on half a dollar? We hear nothing about it in the Speech from the Throne. Why was not that important item placed in the Speech from the Throne? You don't want to tell anything about it. Nothing about the Railroad in the Speech from the Throne. Oh, no! that will be fixed up after the House closes. Nothing about the half million dollars taken from the Treasury, in the Speech from the Throne. Nothing about money taken for salt. In the olden days all those things were put in the Speech from the Throne. It was handed down as a programme to the House. To-day we have no information. We are only pulling it out of the Government like you pull a tooth. We asked for a public account to be tabled ten days ago and we haven't got them yet. Why?

MR. FOX:—The Railway 'Scheme'—It is desirable to give a subject a title as nearly accurate as possible; and I do not think that I can denominate more fittingly this unsavoury transaction of an unsavoury government than to call it the Railway 'Scheme.' A scheme it was in all truth, a scheme put through without the knowledge of the people, without their consent, and by a half a dozen men who arrogated to themselves the exercise of rights that vest in the House of Assembly only; and a scheme that has resulted in adding two and a half million dollars to the Colony's expenses—a loss of two and a half million dollars because we will never get it back.

Here is the story. A few days after the House of Assembly closed last year, that is on August 5th, as the House closed the last week in July the following minute was passed by the Executive Council:—

"Whereas the Reid Newfoundland Company have intimated to the Government that they are unable to continue the operation of the Reid Railway system throughout the country;

"And whereas it is in the public interests that the railway system should be operated and that railroad facilities be improved;

"The Deputy Colonial Secretary is authorized to forward to the Reid Newfoundland Company the following letter which has been drafted by His Majesty's Attorney General, the Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C., and approved by the Executive Council:

August 5th, 1920"

The letter referred to set out certain terms and conditions under which a railway commission was to be appointed consisting of three appointees of the Government and three of the Reid Newfoundland Co. which was to take over and operate the railway for one year ending June 30th, 1921. These conditions were subsequently amended under Minute of Council dated August 13th and thereafter the position was as follows:—

- (1) The commission was to operate the railway and steamship service from July 20th, 1920, to June 30th, 1921.
- (2) The Government was to be responsible for all loss on the operation of the railway exceeding $100,000 and the Reid Newfoundland Co. responsible for any loss in connection with the steamers.
- (3) Renovation and construction work was to be done materials for which were to be paid for by the Government, but the cost of doing the work to be borne by the Reid Newfoundland Co.

- (4) The Government was to provide certain rolling stock and build certain terminals at St. John's and Port aux Basques, the cost of this to be charged against the Reid Newfoundland Co. at 6 per cent. plus the cost of raising the money and was to be set off against any claim the company might have against the Government under existing contracts.
- (5) The arrangement was to be without prejudice to the rights of either party under existing contracts.

Many features of this railway scheme call for notice, but in the time at my disposal I may refer only to those that call for special comment; and the first thing that strikes me about the whole transaction is its absolute illegality. It is unconstitutional in most respects, but it is illegal in every respect. Here was a railway contract which had been solemnly entered into on behalf of the people of Newfoundland with the Reid Newfoundland Co. as contractors thereunder, which contract had been ratified by the House of Assembly and an Act to that effect placed on our Statute Book, virtually torn up by a Government acting on executive responsibility only. That contract was to continue for 50 years from 1901 so that last year at the time of its abrogation it had still 31 years to run. It called for the operation of the entire railway system of the country by the contractors—the Reid Newfoundland Co.—who were given certain concessions, had certain duties imposed upon them, and were subjected to severe penalties if they did not carry out their obligations thereunder. The entire cost of operation was to be borne by the company and the Government had nothing to do except to see that the contractors having their rights under the contract protected, faithfully and properly discharged their obligations to the people of Newfoundland. The question of the railway policy of the Government created a lot of discussion at last year's session of the House of Assembly. The seriousness of the situation was pointed out to the Government; question after question was asked them as to what they intended to do. They refused to say what their intentions in the premises were, but towards the end of the session we had the unedifying spectacle of the Prime Minister of this Colony coming down to the House and launching a most bitter and abusive personal attack on the Reid Newfoundland Co. and in particular its then President, Mr. H. D. Reid; and then having done that, having exposed his own pitiable weakness of public business giving the most positive proof of his weakness in controlling the Government of which he boasted he was leader, by stating in effect that he had been forced by his Cabinet to bring down a bill authorizing the raising of a loan for railway purposes.

That Act authorised the raising of 1,000,000 to be applied to the improvement of the railway system of the Colony. The improvements as contemplated were the building of terminals, purchasing additional rolling stock representing on or about $650,000, and spending the balance of $350,000 upon renovating the road bed. It did not refer to or authorize taking over the railway or railway extension of any kind. There was not the slightest reference made to the intention of the Government to assume control of the railway, nor to build branch lines. However, there were grave suspicions abroad that there was some scheme in contemplation and negotiations in progress which the Government was desirous of keeping from the knowledge of the people until the House of Assembly closed, and these suspicions are now verified, because we find that a few days after the House closed last year this Minute of Council to which I have referred was passed under which the control and management not alone of the entire railway system but of the subsidiary steamer service as well was assumed by the Government, and thereby the taxpayers of this country were saddled with an expenditure that will by the 30th of June next total two and a half million dollars, according to the Government's own estimates. A railway commission was then appointed and as was to be expected Mr. W. F. Coaker immediately assumed charge of it. Without any legal warrant for its existence that commission proceeded at once and took over the running of the entire railway and steamship service of the country, undertook the building of branch lines and the appropriation of private lands for railway purposes and incurred expenditures running into some millions of dollars and chargeable to this Colony—and all without even the shadow of authorisation from the Legislature of the country. How the Government is going to reconcile this infamous act of theirs I fail to see. If the condition of the railway was such that it required immediate attention, the seriousness of the situation could not have become so suddenly apparent that the situation could not have been handled while the House was in session last year, and if was as urgent as the Government would wish to make out, in view of its paramount importance, the involved nature of the interests concerned, the fact that it would probably entail tremendous cost to this Colony, why did not the Government call a special session of the House to deal with the matter? Why did they deliberately keep the whole thing secret and shroud it in such mystery while the House was in session? Why did they not lay the plans before the public when the public had the opportunity of passing upon them through the voice of their representatives? Why was nothing done until the House was closed and the voice of the people silenced for the time being? Why did the Executive Council take upon themselves the powers that vested only in the Legislature? Does it not all prove that not alone was the Government avoiding taking the people into its confidence; not alone was it desirous of having the whole thing done quietly and secretly and behind the doors of a Council Chamber when the whole business should have been transacted on the floors of the House of Assembly, but that it was fearful that the natural indignation with which such a project would be viewed by the public of this Colony would result in upsetting such nicely laid plans and prevent such nefarious purposes from being carried into effect. From the constitutional viewpoint nothing ever happened in the history of this country more calculated to destroy the very fabric of our constitution. From the public viewpoint no greater act of treachery was ever perpetrated against the interests of the people. From the moral viewpoint no more unconscientious transaction was ever put through; and from the legal viewpoint no more unwarranted and unjustifiable step was ever taken by men who were sworn to protect the laws of the country. All losses over $100,000 were to be borne by the Government. Did not these executive councillors know what that would entail on the people of Newfoundland; weren't they acquainted with the experience of other countries where public utilities such as railways have been taken under Government control. Did they not know of the tremendous losses that always resulted under Government management of that kind; and if they did not know why did not they inform themselves on the subject? The result of Government ownership or management of public services of the kind in question is apparent on both sides of the Atlantic and points to this fact that under it not alone is it impossible to operate at a profit, but it is impossible to save loss. Canada and the States lost millions while their government's were in control of their railway systems; and if through stupidity or ignorance the ministers here who put through this railway deal were unacquainted with these facts they had the report of the Reid Newfoundland Co. itself on the previous year's operations which was to the effect that that company dropped $500,000 in operating the railway. If that private corporation, whose very existence depended upon the profits it derived from its enterprise, lost a half million dollars, it was almost certain that if the Government took charge the amount, it would lose would be fabulous and away in excess of that sum.

It must also be remembered that when that deficit was incurred by the Reid Nfld. Co. freights were at a premium, the railway was incapable of carrying all the traffic that offered, there was not sufficient rolling stock to meet the demands of the trade,—in other words under the best of conditions the Company lost half a million dollars in operation. And then we had a Government taking over that railway at a time when depression was beginning to be felt everywhere, when freights were dropping, when there was hardly enough traffic going over the road to warrant its being open, and agreeing to be responsible for all expenses over $100,000—in the face of the Company's own experience and the knowledge that bad times were coming. When even taking it for granted that there would be no greater deficit than the year previous, the Government was bound to lose $400,000. Did not the magnitude of that sum have any effect upon the minds of the Government? Was not that sufficient to deter them from tampering with the matter at all except upon a mandate from the people? But instead of its costing the country "only" $400,000, the actual cost at the end of June next will be two and a half million dollars—on the Government's own estimate. And to think that colossal expenditure was undertaken without taking the people into the fullest confidence—without informing them as to the actual situation—without letting them know what was going on—without consulting them in any way with all the facts before them—without giving them a chance through the House of Assembly of voicing an opinion of the matter! The whole thing rushed through on Executive Responsibility behind the backs of the people! And why was the name of the Minister of Justice so carefully inserted in that Minute of Council of August 5th? He was two days out on his way to England when that Minute was passed. Even supposing he did draft the letter referred to in the Minute—and there is no doubt that he did—it was most unusual to have that fact advertised on the face of the Minute unless there was some special reason for it. Is it not evident that some of his tried and trusted colleagues wanted to take care that he had no loop-hole through which to escape the responsibility that was bound to attach everyone who had anything to do with the disgraceful transaction and were determined to see that he as well as they would bear his share of the onus and opprobrium that would be the portion of all those implicated in the matter?

If there was anything necessary to finish this country altogether, to kill its hopes present and to come, to ruin its credit at home and abroad, and to keep its people from ever rising from the despair and despondency in which they are now plunged, it was this Railway "Scheme" put through by the Squires-Coaker Government. Ulleral is a word hardly strong enough to apply to it! Unconstitutional is altogether too mild! Viciously dishonest and disgraceful may more fittingly describe it. It was a combination of all four, and the most abominably outrageous transaction that a Government here or elsewhere could be guilty of. It is sufficient not alone to forever kill the men who put it through, in the estimation of the people, but enough to warrant the people rising up and hurling from power the men responsible for it and stripping from them all vestiges of the authority they have so abused.

And how has all this come about, and what is the inference to be drawn from it? It is the result of the violation of the fundamental principle of constitutional Government which requires that the body politic to function properly should be free and unfettered; which co-ordinates unity of action with independence of thought; which requires that the representatives of the people should be at liberty to freely express their own decisions—and not decisions ready-made for them; which taboos control and gives the greatest liberty to individual initiative and effort; and finally which imposes on every man who takes a seat in Parliament the solemn obligation to serve the whole people and not one particular class or section. In a word it is the result of Coaker Control and corruption Control—because Mr. Coaker, President of the Fishermen's Protective Union, head of all its subsidiary Companies, Member of His Majesty's Executive Council, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Chairman of the Advisory Board controlling Newfoundland's staple industry, Chairman of the Commission operating Newfoundland's Railway and Steamship Services, Autocrat-in-Chief of all Newfoundland with ten members of the F. P. U. behind him in the House of Assembly, holds Mr. Squires and his followers in the hollow of his hand and with the power to make or break the Government sways its policy and shapes the destinies of this country to suit the purposes of the vast corporation that sent him and his followers to the House under pledges to do as their Union tells them to do, and to serve not the people of Newfoundland as a whole, but the corporation that owns them, first last and always. And it means corruption, because whenever the will of the many is subjugated to the will of the few, whenever the interests of the whole are sacrificed to the interests of a class or section, whenever general rights are made subservient to sectional rights, and whenever influence is strong enough to place the resources of a country at the mercy of a faction powerful enough to exert it and unscrupulous enough to wield it to the furtherance of its own purposes but to the prejudice of the country as a whole, there we have corruption. And is not that the story of the Coaker domination of this Government from the beginning, and will not that be the story to the end. But what about the members of the F. P. U. as a whole?

Do they not recognize that every advantage they gain at the sacrifice of the interests of the general public of this Colony is but temporary and must ultimately result in their own disadvantage? Do not they recognise that they cannot benefit at the expense of the people of Newfoundland, without they themselves suffering eventually? Do they not recognise that any Government controlled in their interests is bound to work disastrously for the country of which they are only a part, and that therefore if the country suffers they must suffer likewise? Do they not see that every time their political leaders are faithless in their allegiance to the country they are faithless in their obligations to them as citizens of that country—even though their action was prompted by the dictates of the organisation of which they are members? Are they blind to all this, and if so when will the scales fall from their eyes? In connection with this review of the present political situation I am reminded of the saying of a well-known philosopher—I think it is Humbolt—to the effect “That the greatest happiness on earth is to be born an imbecile, because an imbecile never understands the truth.” I do not wish to impute mental incapacity to the members of the F.P.U. or to any of my honorable friends opposite, nor do I wish to cast any reflections upon them personally or otherwise, but in view of the present condition of political affairs, I would like to transpose that quotation and alter it to read thus: “The greatest political happiness in Newfoundland today is to be born an F. P. U. man, because an F. P. U. man never understands the truth.” I see my honorable friend the Prime Minister evince a sudden interest in the reporters’ box. I shall therefore expect tomorrow to see glaring headlines in his and the Government’s other paper to the effect that I insulted the members of the F. P. U. Well it is not my intention to insult that organisation individually or collectively, nor have I done so. To avoid all doubt I shall repeat my words so that the Prime Minister may take a verbatim report: “In connection with this review of the present political situation I am reminded of the saying of a well-known philosopher—I think it is Humbolt—to the effect: “That the greatest happiness on earth is to be born an imbecile, because an imbecile never understands the truth.” I do not wish to impute mental incapacity to the members of the F. P. U. or to any of my honorable friends opposite, nor do I wish to cast any reflections upon them personally or otherwise, but in view of the present conditions of political affairs, I would like to transpose that quotation and alter it to read thus: “The greatest political happiness in Newfoundland today is to be born an F. P. U. man, because an F. P. U. man never politically understands the truth.” I trust Mr. Squires has taken that down correctly.

* But is there nothing else to be gleaned from the story I have attempted to tell? Yes, the pitiable weakness and incapacity of the nominal Leader of the Government, Hon. R. A. Squires, who allowed all these acts of public outrage to be committed and such an indelible stain to attach to the record of an administration he boastfully pointed to as his own. If he was not strong enough to control Mr. Coaker, and it is evident that he was not, why did he not seek assistance outside the ranks of his (?) Government? If necessary why did he not appeal to the people when the necessity of keeping his more powerful ally in check arose? He did not do it because he had too many self interests to serve. He had ability but he has sacrificed it. He had talents but he has prostituted them to serve nefarious purposes. He had friends, but he has lost them. He had an opportunity, a glorious opportunity that any man of youth and vigor would have gladly seized, but he has let it slip by. And to-day he stands before the public with his promises broken, his pledges unkept, his prestige gone, and the interests of the people he was sworn to protect sacrificed to satisfy the insatiable lust for power of the men who gave him the Crown and took away the Sceptre.

Sic gloria transit mundi."

On motion the debate on the Address in Reply was adjourned until to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday, the 18th inst., at three of the clock in the afternoon.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 2nd, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled Report of Department of Agriculture & Mines for Year ending December 31st, 1920.

Mr. Moore gave notice of question.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave notice of question.

Mr. Sinnott gave notice of question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Profiteering Act, 1920," was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time on tomorrow.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on tomorrow move that supply be granted to His Majesty.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on Thursday move the House into Committee of the Whole on Supply.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The following is a reply to question of Mr. Higgins, No. 11, on Order Paper of May 2nd, 1921.

(1) The Government has not yet received any amount of Prize Money due Newfoundland Reservists.

(2) There is no correspondence concerning the non receipt of Prize Money. The Government will receive such payment in due course, but it is not known how soon the Admiralty will make remittance.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The following is a reply to question of Sir J. C. Crosbie, No. 7, on Order Paper May 2nd, 1921:

Statement of payments made by the Treasury Department in respect of s.s. "Watchful"

Cost £15,000 @ $422.60....	$63,390.00
Cost of cable transfer.....	2.85

No payments were made by the Treasury Department in respect of the steamers "Senet," "Daisy" and "Malakoff".

MR. SULLIVAN:—I wish to call the attention of the Chairman of the Railway Commission to the fact that the answers handed me today in reply to the questions asked by me on April 26th, are most unsatisfactory. It shows the very lax way in which this Railway Commission is carried out. One of them says that we have been unable to get the figures covering the periods referred to in the question asked on April the 26th. Now that is ridiculous. There is no reason whatever for handing in answers such as those. Surely the books are fixed up every month and then the accounts should be complete. In answer to numbers six and seven they say the matter is under consideration. Now this information is not good enough for this House, and I intend to keep after it till I get the proper information.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—I would like to draw the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the fact that one of the answers to my question is all together unsatisfactory. The answer is to my question of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries of date April the 19th, numbered fifteen. I asked the particulars of the fish cargo of the President Coaker namely, 7,500 quintals. I asked for the charter party, the amount paid per quintal, the freight paid President Coaker for bringing the cargo across. I also asked who was in charge of the loading of the vessel on behalf of the Government, to whom it was consigned, where it is at the present time, whether sold or unsold, the price paid the fishermen for it and the amount paid for it by Joseph Sellars. If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries does not very soon give us this information I shall have to resort to other steps to get the desired information.

This cargo of 7,500 quintals was owned by the taxpayers of this country and they paid nine dollars per quintal for it totalling something like $67,500. We want to know if five dollars per quintal were paid the owners of the President Coaker for freighting the cargo across which is double the current price to-day. Well now if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries does not table this information by tomorrow I will take other steps to have it so tabled. It is public property and the people's money from the public treasury paid for it and you know all about the Minute of Council and it was handed you by the Auditor General merely for the purpose of buying the Labrador fish here in St. John's. I asked whether the fish taken by the President Coaker was purchased at Port Union, whether it was re-loaded and if so whether a different price paid for it, how much paid the fishermen of the country and how much was paid for it when it was sold to Sellars. We have to get this information. To prove that you are trying to wink this out of sight you have tabled the account sales so to speak of the Jane Wakeley. Here you give day and date and from whom it was purchased and you go on to say, (reads). Apparently everything is very satisfactory with regard to the Jane Wakeley but when we turn over to President Coaker there is no date given whatever (reads). Then we are told that it was sold to Sellars at eight and one half dollars and Sellars received this price from the 500,000 and he paid it back to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I take it that it was first sold to the F. P. U. then sold back to J. Sellars at $8.50 and we want all this information. We want to know the amount of the cheque paid by Sellars to the F.P.U. or some other company. I asked you what steps were taken by you to pay for this fish which is drifting around the Mediterranean, who was in charge of it and you were not prepared to tell us. I hereby serve notice on the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that if he does not give full particulars of this matter I am going to move this House to appoint a commission to acquire the desired information.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—In reply to the leader of the Opposition I suppose he does not want to be unfair and unreasonable. All the desired information has already been tabled. If you will look up the information you will find that you have already got all the necessary particulars.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—I asked for the name of the owners of the President Coaker and to whom the cheque was paid and how much that was.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I have given all the information I have in my possession. The cheque is not in the possession of the government. As you know the charter party was attached to the Bill of sale. You have no justification for saying that five dollars therefore were paid for freight. The other evening when we were discussing this matter you said that half of the freight was paid in advance and now you come in and say a different story.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—No, I said that half of the freight was paid when the vessel sailed and the other half when the vessel arrived on the other side. When the cargo arrived over there it was not sold but put in cold storage and is unsold at present. No demurrage was paid to the President Coaker. All this information was given you and the dates can be got if you so wish. The fish was not taken out of the store. I bought a cargo and lost twenty five thousand dollars on it and I did not put it into the government so as not to lose on it. That shows now what a government bite I was. The cargo of the President Coaker consisted of choice fish. The fish was first culled and we charged it to our account. The fish was sold to Sellers at $8.50. This covered the cost of labour. I am not quibbling when I say this. I do not think you consider how you are annoying the House by asking for further information when the questions you have asked have been fully answered in every particular. With regard to Mr. Sullivan's question I have to say that I handed the question to Mr. Hall and that is his reply. I told him the fullest information possible and he told me that it is very difficult to get a railway account finalized. The account is finalized up to January but no further because the accounts are scattered all over various countries.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—With reference to Mr. Sullivan's question number fourteen on order paper of April 26th, I have to say that the government is ready to proceed at once with the arbitrations but the delay is due to the fact that some of the land or owners have not appointed their arbitrators. I also beg to lay upon the table of the House the answer to question number five of April the 13th.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—I will give the Minister of Marine and Fisheries another chance to answer this question relative to the President Coaker. It is not good enough for this country to have him get up here and say I am tormenting and worrying him. You have brought the worry on yourself. It is not my business if you take five hundred thousand dollars and squander it on buying fish mostly from your own supporters. I want a statement with regard to that five hundred thousand dollars and I am going to get it.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—You have got it.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Only with regard to part of it. Where is the rest?

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It has not been spent. It is to the credit of the Department in the bank of Nova Scotia.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—If that is the case why should the Prime Minister be running around trying to raise a loan of nine hundred and fifty thousand dollars from the Royal Bank of Canada and why should we have men all over the Island, all fishermen perishing because they cannot sell their fish? No you want to spend it on the side yourself because you have strings to pull down

North. Do you know there are hundreds of poor men around this city begging for bread? Then you get up and say I ought not to worry you. Well I am going to worry you. I am going to keep after that money. Did you to start with put the whole sum in the bank of Nova Scotia and was it left there at your disposal.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—It might have been transferred.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—If you had a minute of council authorising you to have it in one bank you could not transfer it to another. Cannot you utilise that sum in buying the fish of the poor starving men around here to-day. Do you know that good fish is being sacrificed down in the harbour to day at two dollars per quintal. Here it is the first of May and there is no sign of the fishermen getting supplies for the fishery. Last year the Minister of Marine and Fisheries said it was not time to open the House of Assembly as a great quantity of fish down in the harbor had to be disposed of immediately. Then he got clear of all his own fish but prevented all others in the fish business from selling theirs. Are you big enough to get up here and explain yourself and I ask the Prime Minister to get up and explain himself. We are here now five weeks firing hot shot at the government and after ordering you all to sit still in your seats the Prime Minister gets up to reply to our argument and he uses the same speech he pulled off at Long Pond during the Harbor Main election and here we are nearing the first of June with our country bankrupt the people starving and no policy coming from the Government. What are you going to do? You have no life buoy on board your ship. The Prime Minister got up here and styled the manager of the Royal Bank here a Shylock. I'm in a position to state that he is no Shylock and whe-

I was looking for a loan the greatest assistance was given me by the Royal Bank of Canada and no men worked harder in connection therewith than Sir Vincent Meredith and Mr. Neil of the Royal Bank of Canada. No wonder why you did not succeed in raising a loan from the Royal Bank. Why the school children are alarmed at your conduct. Just think of it you have gone so far as to get up here and say I should not be tormenting you. That we should not annoy you about the President Coaker. No I am in a position to say that the President Coaker is not owned by you but it is chartered from one Collishaw and the money you have been using in paying for the charter of that vessel and for the fish she carried the money which was only intended to be used for the purpose of buying fish here in St. John's to relieve the situation. I guess the money you used in buying the fish from the F. P. U. men got you out of queer street. You have turned your back on the Western fishermen. No wonder why you sigh. There are hundreds of fishermen offering their fish at two dollars per quintal and then even they cannot get that for it many of them with only one barrel of flour in their homes. The position of the country is the worst in the history of the country. The department of which you are the responsible head you have prostituted for the past eighteen months. You cannot expect the people of the country to have confidence in you after such conduct. You know about the story of Mr. Penny on the West Coast. You ruined him. You sold your own fish, but what happened his. You used your position as head of the largest industrial department in the country to do that dirty trick. You as a minister of the Crown have prostituted that Ministry and then you get up here and express surprise why we should be bothering you. It is enough to make a man lose his temper. What are you doing about the fish that you purchased and left down in the stores in this city? Of course your friends are making a good thing out of it in storage and you are not troubling yourself any more about it. Is it not my duty to torment you with questions under all these circumstances? Did you not turn the searchlight on every act of the Morris government when I occupied a seat on that side of the House? I have in my desk a speech which you made at a Union conference denouncing Sir Edward Morris and I will read it for you within the next forty-eight hours. Now this is May 2nd and you have been in power eighteen months. You are discredited in the eyes of the people; you have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. You have made no pronouncement as to what your policy is going to be. The Prime Minister has made no pronouncement nor has anybody else on that side of the House. They are all dummies and not by the affliction of God, but by your affliction; they are afraid to open their mouths. There is $150,000 now down in the bank to the credit of your department, money that belongs to the colony and I have no hesitation in saying that the Prime Minister did not know anything about it because if he did he would not have been running about from one bank to another trying to get a loan for the City last week. If he has this big surplus of $200,000 which the Auditor General mentions in his report as being still misspent, why didn't he go down to the Bank of Montreal and get the money? He knew very well that he could not do it, Sir, that is the reason. The money was not there and it was because of the bungling of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that it was not there. He took over the Railway and all the responsibilities that went with it in the absence of the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice and now he wants to run away from the trouble that he has created and leave some one else to take it, but an enraged people have their eyes on you Sir, and you will not get off as easily as you imagine. This country was never in such a condition as it is to-day. We have heard it likened to the Bank Crash, but that was no thing as compared with what we have to face now. The revenue at that time did not exceed $200,000 and the expenditure was about the same but you have added two and a half million dollars to your estimates in the past year and your supplemental supply will amount to another three quarters of a million, and still you go on calling yourselves a government. The Auditor General is simply holding enough to pay the interest on what the country owes and then, forsooth, we are asked not to torment you with questions. Now, get busy on that $150,000 and if you can't find men to buy fish from, I'll send you enough before six o'clock to-morrow evening to use up every cent of it. There are men right along Ferryland district who have been unable to sell their fish and the whole shore is destitute as a result. You know how it is to-day from Cape Race to St. John's which includes some six or seven thousand people. The big firm of Goodridge is gone and those who were able to get their supplies there in the spring to carry on the summer's fishery are no longer able to do so and the same conditions exist thruout Placentia and St. Mary's Bays and still on to Fortune Bay, the district of the Minister of Justice. The cry of destitution is heard on every hand and the relieving officer is at large, then I am told I should not torment the Minister of Fisheries with questions. Your torment has not yet begun. You have been weighed and found wanting and now you must take the consequences. I shall have more to say to you on another occasion.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

First reading of Bill, "An Act to amend the Profiteering Act."

NOTICE OF QUESTION.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if any reports have been received from the codfish inspectors who for months past have been working under authority of his department in this port and elsewhere around the coast inspecting fish for export, which describe the condition of the fish and the results of the so-called policy of standardization, and if so, to lay on the table of the House, copy of same, and if not whether any instructions were issued to these officials to make such reports, and if not why not, and if such instructions were issued, to lay on the table of the House a copy of the same, and to say why they were not acted upon?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I beg to table the information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, how many men could have been employed in the Reid machine shops the past winter in the construction of six locomotives imported from Philadelphia if the construction had been undertaken here, and what amount of money would have been paid them; and to lay on the table of the House a statement in detail of the reasons why the policy of building the locomotives here was not undertaken.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—In reply to that I might say that I have no information.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—If the Hon. Minister will permit me, I might say that a report covering that question was tabled in the House some days ago over the signature of the Government Engineer.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if, in the event of the passing of the Act now before the House for the Repeal of the Fish Regulations, the agreement between George Hawes and certain fish exporters in this Colony made on the 2nd of October, 1919, will continue to receive endorsement or approval of facilities for the carrying it out from the Government of this Colony, and if exporters, not parties to that agreement can be assured that this will not operate to their prejudice hereafter?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I beg to table the information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if it is intended to undertake this year a revision of the tariff, if the said revision is to be in the interests of the manufacturers only, and if the Government will undertake to provide that the representations of the working classes generally may be recorded as well as those of the manufacturers.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—In reply to that question Mr. Speaker, I might say that it is not the intention of the government to have any general revision of the tariff this year. The manufacturers have asked for protection for home industries by means of a protective tariff and the matter is before the Government now, but no decision has been arrived at.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the table of the House a copy of a report made by Mr. J. A. Powell, General Superintendent, to the Commission at its meeting on September 10th, 1920, dealing with the ballasting of the track, snow fencing, and general repairs to bridges, trestles, and culverts.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I beg to table the information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Prime Minister what further steps, if any, the Government proposes to take with a view to assisting the fishermen of the country in obtaining supplies to enable them to prosecute that industry during the coming summer, and if, in the event of any action being taken, it is intended that the fishermen generally shall benefit by any such arrangement that is made, or will such be confined, as in the matter of purchasing Labrador fish last fall, to members of the F. P. U. and members of the House of Assembly like the Hon. member for Harbor Grace, Mr. Gosse.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The matter is under the daily consideration of the Government and I can assure the Hon. Gentleman that there will be no discrimination in anything that might be done. The $150,000 to which the Hon. member has referred was placed to the credit of the Treasury in December last when the purchase of fish was stopped.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Who am I to believe now? The Minister of Fisheries said that it had been placed to the credit of his department.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The balance is under control of the Auditor General and is in the Bank of Montreal.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Is it or is it not under the control of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries?

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as Chairman of the Railway Commission:—

- (a) When the terminal at Argentina is expected to be ready for operation?
 (b) Is it the intention of the Commission to take the Portia off the present route and make Argentina the terminal for sail steamer?

- (c) If such is the intention of the Railway Commission, what arrangements are being made for Trepassey, St. Mary's and the Coast into Placentia?

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—It is under the auspices of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—That's splitting hairs.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—That is English.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries signed a cheque for the amount, would it be honored? Why does not the Prime Minister see to it that it is not possible for him to do that if he thinks fit.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Because as Prime Minister I have confidence in my Minister of Marine and Fisheries and I know that he would not be guilty of a dishonest act.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Other people have different ideas on the matter.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE asked the Hon. Prime Minister in the absence of the Minister of Finance and Customs to lay on the table of the House the amounts paid from the Treasury for S. S. Watchful, S.S. Senef, S.S. Daisy and S.S. Malakoff and amount of exchange paid on purchase of the said steamers.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I beg to table the information.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE asked the Minister of Shipping to lay on the table of the House the day book, journal and ledger of the S.S. Watchful, S.S. Sebastapol, S.S. Daisy, S.S. Senef and S. S. Malakoff and that all entries be made up to the 25th April, and if not entered up to that date, why it has not been done?

HON. MINISTER OF SHIPPING.—The Auditor General is now working on that and it shall be tabled as soon as ready.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, what steps are being taken to promote the building of hotels through the country to which end the Commission turned its attention in September last as according to an official report of a meeting of the Commission held on September the 10th, 1920.

MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the information.

MR. SULLIVAN asked Hon the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to inform this House what price the Government intends to charge the fishermen for the government salt now on the way here and the price at which the government salt now in stock in Newfoundland will be sold at?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table that information.

MR. HIGGINS asked Hon. the Prime Minister:

- (1) If the Government has yet received any amount of Prize Money due Newfoundland Reservists?
- (2) If nothing has been received is there any correspondence to be tabled on the subject, or does the Government anticipate receiving any such payment and if so when?

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The Government has not yet received any money due Newfoundland Reservists. The answer to the second part is that there is no such correspondence. The Government does not anticipate receiving such payment as soon as the Admiralty, which cannot be expedited in its work by the Newfoundland Government, is ready to forward it.

Third reading of Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the encouragement of Sheep Farming."

Third reading of Bill entitled, "An Act to amend the Crown Lands Act, 1918."

Third reading of Bill entitled, "An Act to amend the law relating to Lotteries."

Third reading of Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the Board of Pension Commissioners."

Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled, "An Act respecting the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom."

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Is Sir Edgar Bowring resigning?

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I have received nothing directly from Sir Edgar but His Excellency the Governor has received a communication from him intimating his intention to resign on June 30th. On receipt of this information I cabled Sir Edgar asking him to reconsider his decision but up to the present I have received no reply.

Second reading of Bill entitled, "An Act for the Protection of Neglected and Delinquent Children."

On motion of the Hon. Minister of Justice this Bill was referred to a Select Committee.

Second reading of Bill entitled, "An Act for the protection of Neglected, Dependent and Delinquent Children."

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that this Bill be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Minister of Justice, Mr. Cheeseman, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Higgins and Mr. MacDonnell.

Second reading of Bill entitled, "An Act to Amend the War Measures Act, 1914."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, at the last sitting of the House I moved the Second Reading of this Bill, but the motion was deferred at the request of the Hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Fox. The operative powers of the Act of 1916 vested specific war prerogatives and there are two ways by which it can be repealed; first, either by the changing of the section of the 1916 Act and bringing it back to the 1914 Act, which would terminate the powers of the Governor in Council on the declaration of peace by Proclamation in the Royal Gazette, or secondly, by the expressed repeal of the section. The Bill, as drafted, is in a form which provides for the issue of the Proclamation. In view, however, of the fact that there may be a substantial delay in securing the consent of the Imperial authorities for issuing the Proclamation, as there may arise some possible objections which Newfoundland might be identified with, we might consider the alternative of an express repeal. In view of the fact that the Second Reading is really the policy of the Government rather than the formal adoption of the Bill, I am sure my Hon. friend, Mr. Fox, from a legal standpoint, has a thorough understanding of the position.

MR. FOX.—Mr. Speaker, I agree with the principle of the amendment to the War Measures Act, under the Bill, as at present framed, as outlined by the Prime Minister, it brings us back to the 1914 Act absolutely, and it will then require to have the Proclamation of the cessation of war published before the provisions of the 1914 Act are to be rendered effective. I see the point of the Prime Minister, because in Committee that specific section might be repealed. I shall have an opportunity, when the House goes into Committee on this Bill, of taking this matter up further.

MR. HIGGINS.—Might I ask the Minister of Justice if a Proclamation has yet been issued by Great Britain declaring peace with Germany?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I understand she has. In England they did not have a War Measures Act like we did. They had a Defence of the Realms Act and Regulations were made under it and repealed from time to time, as occasion required. I do not know whether or not that Act has been repealed, but I know that there are no further powers under it. My impression that a Proclamation has been issued in England declaring peace with Germany.

MR. HIGGINS.—It is absurd that, if Proclamations have been issued in England and Canada, we are still at war with Germany.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—Great Britain is still at war with Turkey, because peace was signed but it was not ratified. Our big opponents in the late war were Austria and Germany. I know that the War Measures Act in Canada, either by Proclamation or Legislation, is gone.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the Chairman of the Railway Commission to the fact that the latter part of my question of April 26th, asking what prices were paid for new locomotives recently imported, has not been answered.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I will have it prepared.

MR. SULLIVAN gave notice of question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN gave notice of question.

Second reading of Bill entitled, "An Act to repeal Cap. 18-8, Geo. V., entitled, "The Food Control Act, 1917," and acts in amendment thereof.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to withdraw that Bill, as I find that in a subsequent Act passed in 1920 there was a provision empowering the Governor-in-Council to appoint a date for the expiration of that Act. That has been done by the Governor-in-Council and a Proclamation will be issued to make this special legislation unnecessary.

MR. FOX.—I would like to know whether or not it is the intention of the Government to issue that Proclamation immediately.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Yes, on Tuesday of next week. All matters other than sugar will be dealt with. I think the 20th of May is the date on which the control of the price of sugar ends. The arrangement was thirty days' notice, as already given in the press.

MR. MACDONNELL.—Mr. Speaker, in seconding the motion for an adjournment, I would like, with your permission, Sir, to make a few remarks on a subject of considerable interest to the country generally and in particular to the district that I have the honour to represent. I would like to see what the Government are doing with regard to the development of the West Coast. I think that it is a great pity that before the plans are laid definitely before the Government that a scheme of this kind should be knocked. I think that the critics, whatever their intentions or their motives were, might have, at least, waited until the matter came before the Government. I might say that if the proposition whether reasonable or unreasonable, comes up in this House for discussion, I for one am going to support it to the limit, because I think that the development of the West Coast has been delayed long enough. The opportunity is now afforded the people of the West Coast so that the natural resources of our district may be developed. I think that it is more than a pity, it is a shame, that the petty jealousies of individuals should be brought to bear for the purpose of killing a movement of that kind. I wish for the Government to go ahead with this matter as speedily as possible as soon as they get something definite from the promoters of this Company to lay before this House. I trust that the members of this House will view this matter in a non-partisan light and apart from politics and I hope that there will be men in this House of broad enough vision to see the advantages which must accrue in the future from a development of this kind. I think that now more than ever is there a need for the opening up of this country. I understand that if arrangements can be finalized the promoters of this project expect to give employment to thousands of men, starting from July of this year.

I hope that there will be no unnecessary delay on the part of the Government in bringing in this matter, and I hope that there will be a cessation of criticism, at least, until we get the measure before this House.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the encouragement of Sheep Farming," was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Crown Lands Act, 1918," was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Law relating to Lotteries," was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Board of Pension Commissioners" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom."

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

The Chairman of the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the Bill entitled "An Act for the Protection of Neglected, Dependent and Delinquent Children" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Select Committee of the House consisting of Hon. the Minister of Justice, Mr. Cheeseman, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Higgins, Mr. MacDonnell.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the War Measures Act, 1914," was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

MR. SULLIVAN gave Notice of Question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN gave Notice of Question.

On motion the amendment to the Food Control Act was withdrawn from the Order Paper.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, May 3rd.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from 176 of the residents of Southern Hr. and other places in Placentia Bay, praying for a small railway station at Southern Hr. Crossing. The people there have no steamboat facilities, their only means of communication is with the railway which is three or four miles away. The people get off the train there at all hours of the night, there is no place as a shelter or in which to put freight, passengers have to endure much hardship and it would be a boon to them if the Government would see that a small station is erected there. The petition is largely signed by people from Hr. Buffet, Haystack, Red Island, Bar Haven and other places. Men returning from fishing could leave their boats at Southern Hr. and get home from there but they could not leave them at Arnold's Cove which is not a suitable harbor. The station therefore would prove a great convenience to them as well as others.

MR. WALSH.—I wish to support the petition. Mr. Speaker, Southern Hr. is an important settlement and the people there are put to much inconvenience in not having at least a shelter at the railway. At present the people are compelled to go to La Manche while the distance to the Crossing is only three or four miles. An elaborate station is not needed but the people ask that they be given at least a shelter for the hours while they are waiting for connection with the train. As there is no telegraph there they never know when the trains are due. I think this is a most opportune time for the erection of the station as it would give work and eliminate the necessity of people looking to the Commissioner of Public Charities for help.

MR. SINNOTT.—I wish to heartily support the petition, as the railway station is badly needed in the section mentioned.

MR. SMALL.—I beg to present a largely signed petition from the residents of Channel and Port aux Basques praying that the export duty on fresh codfish and salmon be removed.

MR. WALSH.—I beg to present a petition from the residents of St. Shotts, Trepassey Bay, for telegraph connection. This matter has already come up here this session and the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs gave assurance that the arrangements made by the late Government would be carried out and the line erected but there seems to have been some misunderstanding and it has not been done to date. It is unnecessary for me to point out why this petition should be granted as the Minister of Posts must have considerable correspondence on the matter in his office and in consideration of his promise to attend to it right away I will merely hand in the petition and ask that it be referred to the department to which it relates.

MR. SULLIVAN.—I have great pleasure in supporting this petition. I asked a few days ago why this had not been done. When the late Government went out of power they were ready to do it, the money had been voted for the purpose and the poles cut. But for some reason—the members of the district were not consulted—it was decided to alter the route of the line.

It was decided by Mr. Stott, the then Superintendent, to run it from Peter's River to St. Shott's. The poles are still lying along the line and it would be a waste of money to alter the route. I hope this connection will be installed soon in view of the fact that there is a lighthouse at Cape Pine which is a very dangerous locality. It should be pushed to this light house, as in the case of wrecks it might be the means of saving life. I hope the attention of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs will be given this matter and that the line will be completed at an early date.

MR. TARGETT.—I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of Hant's Hr. for $250 for a breakwater. This is highly necessary in the interests of the fishermen and I trust the Government will deal promptly in the matter.

MR. MOORE gave Notice of Question.

MR. LEWIS gave Notice of Question.

DR. JONES gave Notice of Question.

MR. VINNICOMBE gave Notice of Question.

MR. BENNETT gave Notice of Question.

MR. SINNOTT gave Notice of Question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN gave Notice of Question.

MR. WALSH gave Notice of Question.

HON. THE MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill to amend Chapter 163 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery."

MR. VINICOMBE.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out to the Minister the very poor condition of the roads in St. John's East and to suggest to him, that when making up his estimates, that he consider a proportionate share for that district. Now we have heard a great deal of talk about Mr. Main and how that district was lost on the government in the recent bye-election. The Minister of Public Works has admitted that virtually all of the operations of the road making machinery has been confined to that district, so that we have at last arrived at a solution of the problem as to how the election was lost there.

HON. MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS.—No.

MR. VINICOMBE.—But I want to say Mr. Minister that if you bring that machinery to work in St. John's East that it won't effect us politically. Last year the collecting of taxes was taken away from the City Council and put in the hands of the Road Board. I think that that money should be divided up properly in each district. It is not right for Mr. Hibbs, the member for Fogo, to build a road to his own home in Kelligrews. It is unfair, Mr. Speaker, to have all this machinery on the Topsail Road all the time and I hope that St. John's East will be thought of this summer.

MR. MOORE asked the Prime Minister:

- (a) If the sum of five hundred dollars, paid Dr. H. M. Mosdell in connection with the publication of a pamphlet or book on Newfoundland, was for the book itself or for his services in compiling the same?
- (b) In either case is this amount all he is to receive?
- (c) And if the payment is not for the book what will the book cost the Colony, for how many copies will the Colony become responsible, and when will a copy of the book be laid on the table?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The total charges for the preparation and editing of the book, including work incidental to the preparation of such able cuts, were $750.00. Of this the sum of $500.00 has been paid and $250.00 is still due.

When the order for this book was given a considerable time ago the intention was to supply a large number of copies to the High Commissioners' Office, the various Trade Commissioners, tourist bureaus and agencies and leading railway centres. There had been large demands made for some booklet dealing with Newfoundland. The book issued by the Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath "Newfoundland in 1911" could not be satisfactorily used because of its date, and the supply was practically exhausted. It was consequently decided to publish a cheap, paper-covered book, such as could be freely circulated. The original decision was to procure 10,000. The program which the government had in that connection could not be carried out with a smaller issue than 10,000, which was the number which would be required for the years during which the book might be circulated without the necessity or revision. In December last the original issue of 10,000 was cut to 5,000 for the purpose of economy, as the government felt that under the circumstances the colony should make a sacrifice in its program for advertising its resources and inducements to tourist traffic. For the same reason the expenses which the Colony had been carrying for many years for advertising in the foreign press was ordered to be materially reduced. The repeal of the Codfish Exportation Act, which Act includes the provisions authorising the appointment of Trade Commissioners, will probably result in a further reduction of the issue. I am very sorry that the government feels it necessary to make this reduction and that our financial circumstances are not such as to justify us in carrying out the original program of having 10,000 copies circulated. The book issued by Sir Patrick McGrath was a splendid asset for the country. The book previously completed by Judge Prowse was also a splendid advertisement for the Island. I feel myself that even under present conditions the publication of the full issue might be well justified in results, and nothing short of the imperative necessity for rigid economy and the sacrifice of beneficial services which for economy's sake must be curtailed have led the government to the conclusion that this program of advertising should not be further pursued in the immediate present.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Is the book printed yet?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I will table a copy at the end of the week.

MR. WALSH asked Hon the Colonial Secretary to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing:

- a) The names and addresses of all men in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's who are receiving the old age pension?
- (b) The names and addresses of all men in the said district whose pension have been cancelled though they are still living?
- (c) The names and addresses of all applicants for the old age pension who have not received the said pension, giving date of all such applications?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It will take a couple of days, at least, to get the information prepared. I will table it as soon as I receive it.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, the following:

- (1) Do the Government intend to drop the vote for the Model Farm from
- (2) Do the Government intend to distribute seed potatoes this spring the estimates this year?

to those who cannot afford to buy them?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—

Mr. Speaker, the answer to the first part of the question is that we have no Model Farm; there is a Stock Farm and the estimates for which are being reduced this year. With respect to the distribution of seed potatoes, I would say that this is a matter which has to be handled, under the authority of the Public Charities Department. In cases where people are in destitute circumstances and need seed potatoes to help them out for planting in the spring, that matter will be taken up by the Charities Department and provision made through that channel and by arrangement with the Agriculture and Mines Department.

MR. W ALSH.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Prime Minister if he has any knowledge of potatoes having been sent out already and if any has been asked for by any particular person of any particular section of the country.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—An application was made by Mr. Sullivan, member for Placentia and St. Mary's. That matter is under the consideration of the Government and I think the request will be granted; but it has not been finalized up to the present.

MR. WALSH.—I might say before departing from this question that the reply is not satisfactory, at least, to me. I don't think that the Government should further stigmatize the people of any section of this country by placing in the hands of Relieving Officers the distribution of potatoes. There could be some other way in which it could be done. I remember to my certain knowledge twenty-five or thirty years ago, when I lived in the district of Twillingate, assistance was rendered poor people other than through the Department of Public Charities.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—

That is the Department through which all such moneys have to be paid; not through the Department of Agriculture and Mines.

MR. WALSH.—I want to avail of this opportunity to protest against any further stigmatizing of the people through this system of pauper dole. People applying to me from my own district do not ask for pauper relief; they only ask for a loan. Now I would suggest that the Department of Agriculture and Mines deal directly with the people through the Agriculture Boards. We have in every settlement in Placentia as well as other districts Agriculture Societies with paid secretaries. Now I would suggest that the Government give those secretaries charge of the distribution of potatoes and not have people go on their hands and knees to a Relieving Officer begging a few pounds of potato seed. Last year when I voted against the Government providing fifty thousand dollars for a Model Farm, I pointed out that I thought it ridiculous to hand over to Doctor Campbell, who had no right to it and who had to give no account of his stewardship to this or any other House, that money for expenditure. I protested then and I protest now. It was in the best kind of a spirit that I put this question on the Order Paper in the first place. It was not to get up and occupy the time of the House unnecessarily, but it was in consideration of the evasive reply given by the Prime Minister and in consideration of what we are to hope when the matter is going to be handed over to the Relieving Officers to deal with the situation. It must be remembered that Placentia and St. Mary's is not the only district that is looking for assistance from the Government, although we have heard that a great deal of destitution exists in that district. I know other districts, East, West, North and South in this Island looking for poor relief for their people, and what I intend to look for is that there will be no further stigmatism of the people but to get the Government to rise to the occasion and help the people out in their present crisis. They do not ask for charity, as I said before, they only ask for a loan; and for goodness sake make arrangements with the Department of Agriculture and Mines to vote fifty thousand dollars, not for a Model Farm and not to send Dr. Campbell to Toronto to attend a cattle show and to bring down horses here with ribbons tied around them, with which to buy potatoes and all the other seeds necessary so as the people of the country will be able to cultivate their lands, thus enabling people to rear their own vegetables and be better prepared to face the hard times when next fall comes around again, as already I see looming on the horizon a picture of the hard times that are in store for our people six months hence, unless something unusual happens. I hope that this suggestion will be taken note of by the Prime Minister, who represents the Minister of Agriculture and Mines in this House, unfortunately. The Department of Agriculture and Mines is one of the most important departments in the public service and it should be properly represented here. I am surprised that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was always an advocate of the principle that each and every department in the Civil Service should be represented by its Head in this House, has not shown his consistency or sincerity in this connection, and, I am surprised that he was prepared last year to allow Dr. Campbell to go back to his native home in Canada with fifty thousand dollars of our money to be handled as the doctor wished, and I am surprised now that he does not rise to the occasion. Then again we have Mr. LeGrow, the member for Bay de Verde, who is drawing a substantial salary in the Agriculture and Mines Department. Why not give him charge of the distribution of seeds, and, if necessary, have him go out and travel and let him go and visit the different districts where people are looking for this assistance. He is well paid to do the work. It is a terrible state of affairs to see the honest, hard-working people of the country go on their knees and beg to a fellow like Campbell for charity, and I want to again enter my strongest protest against the further stigmatizing of our people through pauper dole. The whole matter is one that we should have no reason for discussing here at all and it is a disgrace to us as individuals. It is now the third of May and we are coming here day after day talking about the sending out of pauper relief to our honest, industrious, hard-working and intelligent people—people who made this country so that we could sit in this House and enjoy a thousand dollars a session, and some members enjoy over ten thousand in salaries. In their homes, these people, who are better men than we are, are without, perhaps, butter to put on their bread. There will be no vote passed in this House while I am here, supposing I have to stand on my feet for a week and if my lungs hold out, that will allow Campbell or any other man like him, the spending of the public money as he wishes. It is a serious matter so far as all the members on both sides of the House are concerned. I think we have had enough of this dilly-dallying and camouflaging on the part of the Government, if the intention is to get this House closed. And I would also like to point out that there was no justification for the answer given by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries yesterday evening when Sir Michael Cashin was discussing a public question of great importance. Indeed, the Minister said he doesn't want to be worried. Of course he doesn't, and I do not suppose that Mr. Squires and the several other gentlemen who are holding positions of large emolument in the Government, want to be worried either; but the poor honest fishermen, belonging to the East, West, North and South of the country is worrying about where he is going to get the wherewithal so as his innocent children can be saved from destruction. There have been cases in this Island where good honest men went down to premature graves, because of the interference of the present Government which deprived these men of the legitimate means that they always had at their disposal to make a decent living. I did not intend this evening, Sir, to speak at any length on this question of the distribution of seeds, although it is of far more importance than a Model Farm. A Model Farm is not a dollar's worth of good, only to, perhaps, a few high class, high grade cattle people of this city. What in the name of God is the good of a Model Farm to the men in St. Barbe or Bay de Verde districts or to the men in Placentia or to the men in any other district? But I will tell you what is good to all of them. It is good for them to know where they can get three or four barrels of seed potatoes to put in the ground so as they are assured that themselves and their families will not have to go to the Prince Edward Island dealer and pay him four, five or ten dollars a barrel for potatoes in November next.

Before taking my seat I want to ask the Leader of the House and his associates to make some arrangement that would meet the situation along the lines I have indicated. I for one am prepared to vote fifty thousand dollars for the purchase of seeds, if I am assured that the money will be spent in the best interests, not only of Placentia and St. Mary's but of St. John's East and West and all the other districts. I am just as much prepared to give my support to the people represented by Mr. Coaker as I am to my own. Although, perhaps, Mr. Coaker and his associates, representing the northern districts, may not think so and may not admit it, I have the information that conditions are not as rosy north as they would wish people to believe. I hope that my suggestion will be considered and I hope that something will be done along the lines I have mentioned; also I hope that other members will have better suggestions to make, and I have no doubt but that they have, and if made in sincerity and honesty, I do not care who the suggestion comes from, it will have my strongest support.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Speaker, I regret that I was absent during the remarks of my colleague. I do not know what the answer to his question is.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—This debate is out of order, Mr. Speaker, and I will now call your attention to it. If we are to go ahead with any business, we must confine ourselves to question and answer. I am glad, however, to give my friend the answer. To the first part of the question the answer is that there is no Model Farm. There is a Stock Farm.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—There shouldn't be one.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The vote is not being stricken out this year, but is being reduced. My answer to part (2) of the question is that the Government proposes to assist in connection with the distribution of seed potatoes in cases of extreme need. This is the explanation that my Hon. friend, Mr. Walsh, did not see the force of. The distribution of potatoes is to be handled through the Department of Agriculture and Mines, but bills in connection with this matter will be transferred from the Agriculture and Mines Department and ultimately paid out of the general vote under the head of Public Charities. As seeds will be distributed and will not be paid for, it would be impossible to handle the matter directly through the Agriculture and Mines Department where they have a regular accounting system and where they handle a considerable amount of seed for their own regular customers, which include some prominent farmers in and around St. John's, so that any seed that they would have to give in the way referred to by the Hon. member for Placentia would be paid for by the Department of Public Charities.

MR. SULLIVAN.—I wish to thank the Prime Minister for the explanation. The reason for my asking was that I was informed, Mr. Speaker, that the Prime Minister made some mention of a letter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Yes. In answer to a question of Mr. Walsh, who asked if any arrangements had already been made with the Government by any one for seed, I stated that I had received a communication from you requesting seed for your district and that the matter was under the consideration of the Government.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Fearing that a wrong impression might be created, I wish to say that the letter I wrote to the Prime Minister was written in the third person on behalf of my colleagues and myself. I asked, that, if there was being any potato seed sent to any districts where the people were not able to buy their own, to consider our own district and to have them sent through the Chairman of the Road Board.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In my letter of acknowledgment you will notice that I mentioned it was through the Agriculture and Mines Department, not the Public Charities.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Your letter is rather confusing, and there appears to be some error about it. I was afraid that there would be an impression that my district wanted poor relief in connection with these potatoes; although I have been informed that 150 barrels of potatoes have been applied for by Mr. Cheeseman for Burin district.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It there are any requests from Burin district or any other district, they will be considered on the same basis as those from Placentia district.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I have heard this discussion, but I am not quite clear on it. I would like to know if there are any seed sent out yet to any district?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am not prepared to say there was none. The Public Charities Department and the Agriculture and Mines Department have their orders and they will attend to any necessary cases as brought before them. As to any particular district having received any up to the present, I cannot tell you, but I will find out and let you know.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Will you let me know to-morrow?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I do not know about to-morrow, but within a reasonable time. Any time you ask a verbal question you will get a verbal answer.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I will ask what I like. That is what I am here for, and while I am here I am going to demand that right and also to have my questions answered. It is no use throwing back-answers, because a Prime Minister is supposed to have a certain amount of dignity and you should try and maintain that dignity.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—What about your dignity?

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You ought to know better than to take lessons from me.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am not going to take them either.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—And there are lessons in your book that I would not like to take either.

MR. WALSH.—I am not quite satisfied with the explanation given by the Prime Minister.

HON. THE SPEAKER.—The Hon. gentleman is distinctly out of order. The House is debating on a question on the order paper.

MR. WALSH.—I am not debating it. I want to dispose of the question. I have listened to other members here ask dozens of questions and debate on them, but when I get up I am considered out of order.

HON. THE SPEAKER.—I have extended to the Hon. member the privilege of a reasonable time for debating it.

MR. WALSH.—Just a short reference, if allowed to continue, with regard to a letter written by my colleague, Mr. Sullivan. I had no knowledge of the letter until this afternoon and with it I find no fault, but I am not responsible for a letter written by somebody else of which I knew nothing about. Again I want to remind the Leader of the House, who represents the Minister of Agriculture and Mines here, that we have scattered all over the Island hundreds of Agricultural Societies. Here's a report here of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, signed by the different Secretaries. Why in the name of common sense are you giving the distribution of seeds to the charge of Road Boards and Relieving Officers when you have these paid secretaries who can do the work more satisfactorily for the people? I protest again against the stigmatizing further of the people by having to go to Relieving Officers to look for poor relief, and I would suggest in all honesty, that the matter be handled by the Agriculture and Mines Department. Let the Department get in touch with the people throughout the different sections and let the Agricultural Societies make their recommendations through the Minister. There is nothing unreasonable or unfair about that. Let the Societies in the outports loan the seeds in the spring to the people who could return the potatoes in the fall when they gather their harvest. By this arrangement there would not be a dollar lost to the taxpayers of this country. That is the point I wanted to make.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—In reply to question No. 5 Order Paper May 3rd, I may say that there is not at present any intention of taking the Portia off her present route, and if it is done it will not be done through the Railway Commission but through the Government. It is expected that the terminal at Argentia will be completed during the spring.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Education if any steps have been taken by him to establish continuation schools, night schools, and the other auxiliary education services as outlined in the Premier's Manifesto, and in the Minister's speech to the Legislature last year, and if not, why not; also if he has made any report on the work of his Department since its foundation last year, and if so to lay a copy of the same on the Table of the House.

MR. SINNOTT asked Hon the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission:

- (a) The names and addresses of all men in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's who are receiving the Old Age Pension?
- (b) The names and addresses of all men in the said district whose pension has been cancelled though they are still living?

- (d) The names and addresses of all applicants for the Old Age Pension who have not received the said pension, giving date of all such applications?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—In reply to this question No. 7 Order Paper May 3rd, I beg to table the information asked for.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, if on the failure of the Royal Bank to advance a sum of $150,000 to the City Council by way of a loan, he made any efforts to obtain this amount from any other Bank or Banks in this City, if so, what was the result of his overtures and if he failed to obtain the money what were the reasons given by the Banks for their failure to make such loan?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if any representations have been made to the Imperial Authorities with a view to the removal of the warship "Briton" from her present position to any other berth in the harbor of St. John's, and to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence and papers in relation thereto?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the amount of Customs Revenue for St. John's for the ten months ending April 30th, and for the same ten months in the last fiscal year, and for the like period in the previous fiscal year, also similar statements of the total revenue for these ten months in cash of the three fiscal years.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a copy of all communications received by him from the Imperial Authorities with reference to the proposed Conference in London in June of this year, and of any replies by him in relation thereto?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister:

- (a) If any arrangement has been made between the Commercial Cable Company and the Government with reference to the Company transacting cable and telegraph business in the Colony.
- (b) If he is aware that this Company has, during the past few days been delivering cable messages from abroad to parties in this City?
- (c) If this is being done with the Government's knowledge, and if not, does the Government propose to take any steps to prevent what is apparently a violation of the law by this Company?
- (d) The names and addresses of all applicants for the Old Age Pension who have not received the said pension, giving date of all such applications?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In reply to this question No. 8 Order Paper May 3rd, I may say that I have received no authority from the St. John's Municipal Council to act as their financial agent in such a matter. Mr. Mullaly arranged with the Manager to come here and meet me with regard to the loan. Mr. Dubien took the position that unless the entire amount of past obligations of the city amounting to three hundred and twenty thousand dollars together with this hundred and fifty thousand dollars were paid by the Government to the Royal Bank of Canada before December 31st, that they would not advance this hundred and fifty thousand dollars to the Council. The Bank of Canada carries the account of the Municipal Council. I presume that the Municipal Council considered the question of their own bank refusing to grant them a reasonable loan and got in touch with other banks, but that is a matter for their consideration and decision. I got in touch with other banks not on behalf of the Council, but to ascertain for myself as to whether other banks would be prepared to give them this advance in event of the Council transferring its account. Various banks have communicated with Head Offices but up to date I have received no reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I take it then that the Prime Minister has not communicated with the Bank of Canada on behalf of the Council.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I had an interview with the Manager of the Bank of Canada at the request of the Council and I have already told this House what transpired at that interview.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I take it that it is not true that the Prime Minister attended a meeting of the Council and told them to go ahead with the work as it would be alright about the money.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I told the Council that if they could not get the money from any banker I would bring resolutions into this House for the purpose of providing the necessary amount.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Then the Prime Minister was not in communication with the Manager of the Bank of Canada.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—As I have already said I had an interview with the Manager of the Bank of Canada and he told me that unless the Government would pay the past debt of three hundred and twenty thousand dollars and this hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the 31st of December that they would not make the advance to the Council.

PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker.—I am glad that Mr. Bennett has spoken on this matter because it gives me the opportunity for stating that the government has decided upon the consolidation of the city debt, and legislation to that effect will be brought before the House.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN to ask the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER—In reply to this question No. 9 Order Paper, May 3rd I have referred that matter to Colonel Rendell.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN to ask the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER—In reply to this question No. 10 Order Paper, May 3rd, I may say that I have communicated with the Deputy Minister of Finance of Customs and he is having the figures prepared.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN to ask the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER—In reply to this question No. 11 Order Paper, May 3rd, I may say that there has been no correspondence between myself and the Imperial Authorities with regard to the matter referred to.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN to ask the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER—In reply to this question No. 12 Order Paper, May 3rd, I may say that no arrangements have been made between the Commercial Cable Co., and the Government. Some time ago I was told that the Cable Co. were delivering messages. The legal question as to their rights and liabilities was referred to the Attorney General who was requested to look into the matter.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Would the Attorney General be able to give us the information asked for.

THE MIN. OF JUSTICE—I am not in a position to express an opinion now.

MR. SULLIVAN to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

MR. COAKER—I will get the information asked for as soon as possible.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN to ask the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER—In reply to this question No. 14 Order Paper, May 3rd, that information will be ready in a day or two.

MR. SULLIVAN—I would like to ask the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for an answer to my question No. 9 of yesterday's Order Paper.

THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—The cost of the Engine landed is thirty thousand dollars.

THE PRIME MINISTER—I have just received an answer to question No. 10 relating to the Department of Finance and Customs and answer.

Third reading of Bill entitled An Act respecting High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I would like to draw the attention of the Prime Minister to Para. 3 of the Bill. Why leave it to the Governor-in-Council if there is going to be a High Commissioner with a salary the House is now open and the resignation of Sir Edgar Bowring is in the hands of the Government, and if there is going to be an appointment there is no reason why the House should not be informed of it now.

THE PRIME MINISTER—There is no immediate intention of appointing a High Commissioner. I have cabled Sir Edgar Bowring asking him to reconsider his resignation. I am hoping for a favourable reply.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Are you or are you not going to vote a salary for that position?

THE PRIME MINISTER—The government has the matter under consideration.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—If you cannot get a man to take the position on the same terms as Sir Edgar Bowring will you make a new appointment? or will you abolish it altogether.

THE PRIME MINISTER—It has not been decided to abolish the office.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Now is the time to settle the matter and not after the House closes.

Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled An Act to confirm an agreement between the Government and the Dominion Iron and Steel Co., Ltd. and the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., Ltd.

THE PRIME MINISTER—I move that this order be deferred. There is under consideration a proposition to include within the contract a proposition for the erection and operation of a cottage hospital. I would like this matter deferred until that proposition has been more fully developed.

MR. BENNETT—Before this thing is disposed of I would like to draw attention to the fact that the procedure is irregular. It is not customary to bring in a Bill to confirm a contract but to bring in Resolutions.

THE PRIME MINISTER—That would apply if the Government were giving them certain financial concessions but we are not doing so, and therefore it is unnecessary under the rites of the House.

MR. SULLIVAN—You are giving them rebates as you will see in Sec. 4.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—No rebates are being given. The arrangement is that certain machinery for the installation of new operations may be imported into the Colony free of duty. I am advised that that does not bring the Bill within the provisions of the rules of the House requiring resolutions. It is, however, a matter of no practical importance as to whether this contract starts in the resolution stage or in the form of a bill as at present, but while this practice is entirely correct in accordance with the rules of the House, I am entirely satisfied with the proposition, if the Opposition desires to make it, that this contract be considered in the first instance in the resolution form rather than in the form of a Bill. In any event, the Order will be deferred until I am in a position to fully consider the proposition for the erection and maintenance of a cottage hospital.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker. I don't want to take up the time of the House unnecessarily but it appears to me that we have arrived at a crucial time in the affairs of the Municipal Council. It must be appreciated that the Council have no right to raise money on their own account and therefore they are in a most unenviable position. There is a very pressing need for money at the present time to pay for city works, and to relieve the unemployed of the city, and the time has come when something must be done to adjust this matter. It must be appreciated as the Prime Minister will know that in years past the Council have been receiving loans on Government guarantee both the principal and the interest, but that was merely a matter of form because the Council has always paid the interest in full since the debt was consolidated at one million four hundred thousand dollars and from that time on the interest has been paid semi-annually. To carry on the necessary works they have had to raise loans and the way possible to do that was thru the banks on Government guarantee. Now the Bank naturally want a settlement of that debt of three hundred and twenty thousand dollars and I submit that something should be done to consolidate this debt with the debt of the city. It will require Legislation, and it will be necessary to bring in a bill to enable the Government to issue Debentures to meet this debt of the Council. The city is able to meet its obligations, it is not taxed as much as other cities and no bank would refuse a loan to the city of St. John's if they were only responsible to themselves, but it is unfortunate that the banks that have done the banking for the city have turned this proposition down. It puts the city in a bad position. I therefore submit that we consider the advisability of consolidation this three hundred and twenty thousand dollars into the debt of the city, and then the Council will be able to go ahead with the work that they are engaged in. I throw out this suggestion to try and help in the present position. The fifty thousand already voted will only last a limited time, and we have to spend more unless we are going to let the people starve and I don't think that will be permitted.

MR. SULLIVAN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the Table of the House a detailed statement showing in what way your counter claim of $51,887.57 against the Reid Nfld. Company, is arrived at, as stated by you in your reply to my question No. 13 on Order Paper, April 26th, 1921.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs to table the account of Contingencies etc.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom," was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal 10-11 Geo. V, Cap. 25, entitled 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.'"

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

THE MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES.

I do not want to occupy the time of the House with this matter. It has been discussed for days during this session. I want to say that this Bill as it stands would have to be amended to have the effect which it was intended to have. The surprising thing about this Act is that many firms have been able to get clear of their fish contrary to the Regulations and they have suffered no penalty. I have here a letter which will explain some of the difficulties of this matter. A. E. Hickman & Co., writing to a New York firm under date October 30th., 1920, states:—

If you are open for Labrador fish in casks of 560 lbs. please telegraph for our quotations. We will undertake to ship without asking you to give a Bond to the Government. We will not confine our sales to the Government fixed prices.

They intimated that they would sell fish contrary to the Regulations. Last December we found that fish had been cleared from Newfoundland and sent to Italy contrary to the Regulations. When the Advisory Board was asked to clear those cargoes the Board received the assurance of the shippers that the law would be upheld.

Two such cargoes were cleared by A. E. Hickman & Co., and the guarantee given by Mr. Hickman to the Board reads as follows:—

“Mar. 19th., 1920.

To Minister Marine & Fisheries.

Sir,—

Referring to S. V. Florence Swyers now ready to sail for Malaga, we have instruct Hawes & Co., our Spanish Agents, not to send vessel beyond Spain without consent of the Advisory Board.

Yours truly,

A. E. Hickman & Co. Ltd.,
per A. E. H.

Nov. 18th., 1920.,

Minister Marine & Fisheries.

Dear Sir,—

Referring to S. V. Roy Bruce now ready to sail for Malaga, we have instructed Hawes & Co., our Spanish Agents, not to send vessel beyond Spain without consent of the Advisory Board.

Yours truly,

A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd.,
per A. E. H.

These vessels were sent beyond Spain and went to Italy. The Advisory Board was not consulted. That firm forfeited its honor and respect for its written agreement when it deliberately destroyed the law and sold those cargoes about 25s. below the fixed price. Last fall there was some trouble with the “JUNE”. We called the attention of the shippers to the report current in town, and the owners again intimated that the fish had been sold according to regulation prices and conditions. Here is what Baine Johnston wrote us on October 1st.

Our schooner “JUNE” has been loaded for some time waiting instructions to sail. Will you please send us a permit for her to sail direct to Patras. Her cargo is not sold under the regulation price.

This cargo was stated to have been sold at a price not under that fixed by the regulations. It was not sold. We brought the matter to the attention of the shippers after we heard that the cargo had not been sold and the reply again asserted that a sale had been made.

Oct. 8th., 1920.

Minister Marine & Fisheries.

“The information referred to in yours of to-day’s date re “JUNE” cargo not having been sold prior to clearance is entirely erroneous and the statements made in ours of the 1st instant are absolutely correct.

We have the honour etc,

Baine Johnston & Co., per J. C. Hepburn.

The facts received later proved that the “JUNE” was not sold prior to clearance or even many days after arrival and the cargo was consigned. This breach of the rules started the trouble in Greece.

The “RUTH” was cleared for Malaga for instructions. She was ordered to Greece without reference to the Board and her cargo was consigned although the owners had intimated that the cargo had been sold outright.

There was no power to punish except to cancel the license.

A Member of the House has stated that he shipped fish and got around the regulations but he would not say how.

As it is now, the Act is useless for the regulation of the exportation of codfish. Many amendments would be required to make it workable. Accordingly the Government decided to repeal the Act.

In my opinion, unless some steps are taken within a year in some way that will be effective, we are going to be confronted with conditions of affairs in the foreign markets regarding the sale of fish that will be worse than anything we have ever seen; moreover, exportation will be in the hands of five or six shippers, while three-fourths of the smaller exporters will be driven out of business.

An organization on a large scale is being established in Europe, and in the future, the exportation of fish will be only by a few firms, and, in my opinion, Newfoundland fishermen will never get the benefits that they ought to get from their labors if this menace is not throttled and controlled. When the fishermen wake up to the situation that will face them and the country a year hence they will realize that there must be some legislation. While in London, I made a suggestion to the Colonial Office to convene a conference in London of all the great codfish exporting countries to prevent cutting competition and to establish regular control. I believe that arrangements could be made with Iceland and Norway. I found that where Newfoundland fish was selling for sixty shillings, Iceland fish was selling at five shillings less, and when the regulations were lifted, and the price of Newfoundland fish went down, the Iceland fish dropped in proportion and kept five shillings under ours. There should be some arrangement entered into regarding the assignment of markets to particular fish exporting countries. As far as the fishermen are concerned, they have not spoken the last word regarding the control of codfish exports. Satisfactory results cannot be obtained from the present Act. It can be done by one Association that will control all exporters, the exporters to pool their interests and divide profits yearly in proportion to exports.

I desire to state that as long as I have breath to speak and as long as I hold a Seat in this House of Assembly, or address a public meeting, I shall advocate legislation that will control exports and will thus benefit the fishermen by getting the largest price possible for their fish. The present Bill is not satisfactory, but that is no reason why something effective cannot be enacted. The Act has been broken deliberately, causing great injury and upsetting the object sought to be attained, and as the trade consider it defective, I have no other course open but to ask for its repeal. If the power to punish effectively were conceded with some other changes it might be more workable, but I am not prepared to recommend such changes in the face of the treatment accorded the Regulations by the trade after I left for England in the New Year. I considered it essential to the country's best interests that a solution be found either as suggested by pooling the exports, or by nationalizing the purchase and export of codfish. It can be done. It must be done before the business is placed on a safe and sound basis. I have tried sincerely to apply a remedy; that remedy failed because of political intrigue and a divided trade. For these reasons the Act will be repealed, and the responsibility must rest with the exporters and those opposed for political reasons.

I would just say a word with regard to what Sir John Crosbie has said in connection with outright sale of fish. If I felt convinced that he was serious in his remarks on this subject, and that he would seriously consider the proposition he suggests, I would say to the fishermen with every confidence this year that they would get eight and perhaps nine dollars a quintal for their fish. I can see sunshine ahead if this could be carried out, but at the same time he should not cast on me all the responsibility for such an undertaking. I have, I think done my part in trying to get our staple industry on a firm and safe basis, I did what I thought to be the best in the general interests of the country, and seeing that the country now blames the Regulations for all that has happened, it is, in my opinion, hardly fair to expect me to come in here again with another measure, no matter how desirable it may be, and take the full burden of the responsibility upon my shoulders. I am firmly convinced that unless we can evolve some means of establishing outright sales, Newfoundland is going to be up against serious conditions for the next four or five years. For us to permit the consignment policy to continue unrestricted, cannot but be disastrous and no greater proof of this could be found than is furnished by the instance referred to by Sir John Crosbie where he sold outright and received for his cargo something like 79s. while for a cargo that I sold on consignment at the same time I got 52s. and Mr. Hawes handled both cargoes at the same time of the year. That meant a tremendous difference, and it goes to show the advantage of outright sales.

Unfortunately, at that time, it was difficult, indeed almost impossible to make outright sales, but the reason why Sir John Crosbie did so well was because he was then a big man on the street: He was Minister of Shipping, and in all probability, Hawes was afraid of him and wished to get in his good graces. There was not another firm in the country who obtained such an offer, and I can say, without fear of contradiction, that the cargo I sold was worth every cent as much as his, and while he received payment immediately, I got payment for mine eight months afterwards. If we cannot get out of shipping on consignment, we are going to be up against trouble. As Sir John Crosbie has said, Hawes is spreading his wings and is now getting a firm hold on Greece where he erecting large cold storage plants, and that means that any business from this country which he can get there, will be consignment business. The thing to do is to break that menace and if something is done towards that end it will mean that fish will be at least $2.00 a quintal higher the coming season. Why not Sir John Crosbie introduce a resolution to have outright sales made law? If he proposes it, I will second it, and in this way, we can assure a brighter outlook for 1921.

Sir John Crosbie: The same old story, Mr. Chairman. Give me your brains and I will work out the scheme, but, in this case, I am not going to do it. With regard to what the Hon. Minister said about the myself and Mr. Hawes. He said at that time I made the outright sale, I was Minister of Shipping, but it was only a few days afterwards that he himself was Minister of Marine & Fisheries, and surely must have had as much influence at I had as Minister of Shipping. Moreover, it was he, with Mr. Hawes and Mr. Job who grew up the Regulations when the latter two went down to Port Union.

Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries.

The first time Mr. Hawes visited Port Union was on the day of the General Election.

Sir John Crosbie: A very good day he picked to go. He couldn't get me and he went after you, and you fell for him. He winged the right bird. Mr. Hawes was trying to combine all the merchants on Water Street.

I sat at six or seven of the meetings and when Mr. Job came in with some of the Regulations already drawn up, I asked him who drew them up, he said that it had been done by Mr. Hawes, Mr. Coaker and himself. That's the time you were in the hands of the Philistines. I never signed Mr. Hawes's agreement first nor last.

Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries.

It is claimed you did.

Sir John Crosbie: I signed a letter saying that if the terms of the agreement were satisfactory to me, I would consider it, then you came into town and held 2 or 3 meetings at which I was not asked to be present. I was left out because I was on the Opposition and was considered dangerous. I might tell what was going on. I knew all about those meetings nevertheless, and I can tell you now the very house they were held in. Then after the Regulations were formulated and put into force, Mr. Hawes rang me up, it was on Friday. I remember the day very well. He asked me for an appointment and I told him he could see me at the office. He brought the agreement and sat down opposite me at my desk. "Sir John, he said, everything is done, and I want you to sign this agreement." I said "would you allow me the extreme pleasure of reading it first?" "There is not much in it" he said, "but you may read it if you wish to." When I had looked it over, I said "that's a nice agreement." I have seen only one other like it, and that was one I made with a Spaniard. It was so much to my own advantage that I was ashamed to ask him to sign it, and when I asked the opinion of a legal gentleman on it afterwards, he said it was just as well for me to have taken the Spaniard. I said "Mr. Hawes if you think you can buy me for 4 years, you'd better change your ideas. You simply can't do it." Hawes doesn't like me any too well since, that, but I think he admires me none the less just the same, and he would say to-day that Crosbie is the brightest man of the bunch. The whole thing was nothing more or less than a deal to get the whole trade into Hawes's grip. And I want to tell you, that you signed that agreement, knowing well that you were doing wrong, and if you had it back after you signed it, you would have acted differently. I want to tell you what Mr. Hawes said: "Coaker wanted to know if Crosbie had signed the agreement." He was going away on Sunday and he rang me up again. I wished him Bon Voyage but told him that the agreement had no interest for me. Now, what I want to know is, if the fact of being Minister of Shipping at the time of which the Hon. Minister speaks, why did not the Minister himself have the same influence when he was Minister of Fisheries, Chairman of the Railway Commission, Chairman of the Advisory Board and all the other things that he was as well as being recognized as one of the biggest factors in the export business, and why again did he allow himself to be caught in the Hawes net.

Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries.

You had experience of Hawes before and you knew him for what he was, but, I did not.

Sir John Crosbie: Well now that you do know him, let us hope that you will do something to protect this country against the Hawes menace, and keep him from getting control of every cargo that is sent out of here.

Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries.

Do you intend to help me prevent his doing it?

Sir John Crosbie: Yes, that is one thing that you and I agree upon. I want to say again that if you develop some concrete plan and bring it to me, I will give it my hearty approval, and do the best I can to see it carried out for the sake of the District I represent, in this House, the people of which, earn their living largely on Labrador.

Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries.

Mr. Chairman I just want to explain the difference that would exist between a policy such as Sir John Crosbie suggests, and the Regulations which we are now about to repeal. In the case of the Regulations, it is true that outright sales were insisted on, but the price was also fixed below which no fish could be sold, but his idea is that outright sales be enforced, which simply means that no fish could go from here unless it was already sold, what the price received might be, would make no difference. Why, if we send our vessels to Barbados for Molasses, we have to ask what the price will be, and then before it is taken out of the vessel, the money must be paid into the bank, but our fish goes there without any price being fixed on it, and we are paid whatever the brokers like to give us, months after it discharged, and for the past few months, we have been receiving as little as $1.18 for fish going there. It will thus be seen that there is all the difference in the world between outright sales only, and the old Regulations. What caused the big trouble with the latter, was that we fixed the price at which fish should sell in the different markets and there is a vast difference between that, and insisting that the fish must be sold before it is allowed to go forward. We must have something to protect the industry, but of course if a man wants to sell at 40s. or 50s. that is his business. What we tried to prevent by the Regulations, was cutting prices, but it proved impossible to do even that because the Regulations were in many cases ignored altogether because of our inability to punish for breaches of the Rules. Now, sir, if we cannot be assured of getting good money for our fish, how can we go to the Banks and ask them to make advances. That is what happened Harris and others. They sold on consignment and being unable to realize on the fish, that they had sent out, they were refused further advances by the Banks. It was consignments that killed these people and our exporters of past generations, and it was consignments that built up Hawes' business in Spain and now enables him to extend his activities to Greece where he is now building big cold storage plants. He will say to five of six of his friends here "I will look after your fish and get you the best price obtainable," and they will send cargoes on consignment feeling sure they will be protected at the expense of the smaller shippers, and therefore he will have nothing to do with outright sales, because he is making big money on the consignment system. Greece is the best market we have for Labrador fish; Greece has been the salvation of the shipper of Labrador fish. I made $30,000 on an outright sale of a cargo of fish sent to Greece, and lost $25,000 on another in a different market I shipped on consignment. Consignments mean that the trade has no solid foundation, because there is no money guaranteed, and all risks are the shippers. If you know just what you are getting for your fish, there is a certain confidence that is otherwise absent, and if we cannot establish that confidence, we are lost. We must make sure that Hawes does not get his grip on our fish the coming season. He is now worth $2,000,000, chiefly made from Newfoundland consigned fish. He of course sends a share of the profits back to the men whom he left in on the ground floor; the men who are his particular friends, and whose fish takes precedence over all other.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker, before this bill passes through the committee stage I would like to have a few more words to say regarding it. I do not think that anything could have a greater effect than the fall of the Minister himself. His fall this afternoon is absolute and pitiable. The fisherman's road was going to be golden, but unfortunately it is dross. The bill may have some good points about it, but the way it was handled and carried out absolutely ruined the fish business of Newfoundland of 1920. I tried to point out to the Hon. Minister last year that gradually he was drifting into the hands of the philistines. If the fishery regulations had not been enforced and certain exporters had been satisfied with reasonable profits we would not be in the hole that we are in to-day. It was greediness that did it. They were not satisfied with 5 cents a quintal profit. I could handle 15,000 quintals Shore fish and I could handle Labrador fish, and in some cases I got more than the regulation prices for my fish, but the Hon. Minister didn't handle it for me. I knew how to handle my fish, but in the case of the regulations some people took too much on them, and they fell by the way side. The bill, as passed here last year, was not honest. No man should try to fill the dual position that the Hon. Minister tried to fill last year. He could not be an exporter himself and deal honestly with the other exporters who entrusted information to him. It was entirely too much to expect of the Minister. Every man is going to look out for himself first, and I for one did not expect the Hon. Minister to favour me in preference to himself. But I am glad, Sir, that you have come in here and repealed the regulations. You are not like the Prime Minister who had the nerve to come in here and say that he still favored the regulations, but he went down to the Board of Trade and lifted them, when the Hon. Minister was away. You would not do it when he was here. You placed the Hon. Minister in a very hard position, but he did the very best he could do. I told him he was drifting into the hands of the Philistines, and his own brothers in the Executive turned him down when he was not here to protect himself. When the Prime Minister said he was in favour of the Regulations he was appealing to the F. P. U.

The Prime Minister in his speech the other day referred to other articles. There is one thing that you have got to remember about fish. It is a perishable article, and if the catch for one season is not marketed you have the new overlapping the old. You will find that this year is going to be worse than 1920. The Hon. the Prime Minister told us a story the other day about sugar in Canada. He said there was a lot of money lost. But what did the Government lose? The refiners put it up to the Government, and the Government refused to finance the refiners. The refiners lost $17,000,000.00 and the Government lost nothing. It takes the present Government of Newfoundland to throw away money on sugar when someone has it on his hands and can't get rid of it. We have been told that the low price of our fish is due to the Exchange condition. That is not true. It is sold for sterling money, and the exchange situation would have absolutely no bearing in the price of our fish, unless, of course, it is sent on consignment.

My private opinion about the fish business is that it is the main factor of Newfoundland's industries, and it has got to be handled with a great deal of care and attention. The fisherman has got to make a good quality in order to get a good price. It is just the same with a barrel of "Five Roses," but it cannot be done by legislation. I will pay more for good fish than I will pay for poor fish. It depends on the fisherman himself, and all the regulations and all the inspectors that you want to put on will not make good fish. And if the fisherman does not make good fish he is the one who is going to suffer. I am personally just as much interested in the fish business as the Minister or any other man. I want to see something done. The Hon. Minister is absolutely right in some things. If you will remember the Hon. Minister had a great opinion of Mr. George Hawes last year, but I don't think he has any opinion now.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I have an opinion, a very bad one.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You see the Minister is willing to be honest. Mr. Hawes handled fish for me once. At that time I got 20 shillings a quintal more than the Minister got. I do not want to harp on the fact that the Hon. Minister has a poor opinion of Mr. Hawes, but I do not understand the Minister when he wrote that article in the Advocate. He must have had a great change of heart since then. (reads article.)

There you are I told you before you were in the hands of the Philistines.
THE HON. MIN. OF MARINE &

FISHERIES—You have not proven that from what you have just read.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Yes, you have said Hawes was a great man. Well you have said that like most of us he looked out for himself. Yes you are correct in changing your opinions. I am glad you are trying to get rid of him and you are up against a hard proposition in doing so but there is one thing to which I want to take exception to this afternoon and that is during the debate here the Prime Minister said he believed in the regulations and that he would back the regulations and still this is the very man who removed them in your absence. During my short while here this afternoon I have heard a lot of debate but what sincerity is there to it? I want to tell the House and the country at large that I have promised to take delivery of ten thousand drums from the coopers of St. John's to help them out by removing their stock and let them have further employment. All this is due to the regulations as owing to their enforcement the coopers have not been able to get rid of their stock. What has been said about the Susu is correct. I want to tell this House and the whole country at large that I have not once asked the unions to rescue their wages. Nor do I now ask them to rescue them. I did not know a thing about this strike until Monday morning when I went down to my wharf and found that Mr. MacDonald and two other heads whom I have employed all the winter to do nothing had left without a word to me about the matter. There had been no question about wages whatever but I wanted the Susu loaded and she was loaded and she will be loaded again under similar circumstances. There is no reason why the Minister of Marine and Fisheries could do the same thing and pay the union wages and if the government were willing to pay the union rates I cannot see why the Portia did not sail. I want to tell the men of St. John's that I for one always want to see them paid the wages they demand and I will never object to them. But I crave the right to run my own premises. If you were prepared to pay the rates asked there is no reason why they were not allowed to work and thereby have the Portia sail on her way to the West Coast. I would not have referred to this matter at all but for the remark from the gallery that I was a scab. I want that gentleman to understand my position and I was prepared yesterday morning and will be prepared to-morrow morning to employ a lot of men and men aggregating about fifty could go to work to-morrow on my premises if the question of wages was not interfered with. Now I wish to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he has had any word from Colonel Bernard about the Consorzio?

THE HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—Yes. The message is to the effect that the Italian government has consented to let our fish enter.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Thank God for that. We are getting nearer to something decent again, and I presume we shall be allowed to sell our cargoes again as of old. I have a message also about the Consorzio, in fact the message is from the Consorzio. I think it is a great pity we ever fell like we did in allowing that man Hawe to cat for us and I think when the Prime Minister got his photo taken between Hawes and Rasnoli the whole thing was finished. Still the Prime Minister believes in the regulations and he would still back them. I understand from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that already all the inspectors have been paid off and I take it there is no intention whatever to have any inspectors this year I want the news of this relief to go out to the fishermen of this country and I am sure the fishermen will welcome the getting back to the old way. But I want to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries another question because the fishermen may still find themselves in a box and the question is whether there is any intention of standardizing the fish this year in the merchants' stores?

THE HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—No.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—That is another relief. So every man will be allowed to take care of his own property. That is very nice. We are getting back to normal. This colony will save a lot of money when there is no need of paying those numerous inspectors, but the fishermen will put up a better article than ever when their products were inspected because I want to tell this House that last season the inspectors did not know their business as they were never outside the heads, and I never wanted an inspector to inspect my fish as I have bought my twenty years experience dearly trying hard to realise what the markets wanted, and I was forced to register the brand of my fish, and if the merchants had been allowed to ship their own choice of fish they would never had been any complaints if the quality had been what they represented it to be. I have been told in this House to day that I am blue ruinist. When I see a stone wall I know it is not made of wood, and for the past twelve months I have been studying the position of Newfoundland and to-day's position is due to the regulations and because I depict her situation exactly as I think it to be I am termed a blue ruinist. And again there is one thing the gentleman on the other side of the House ought to regret and that is that after the Prime Minister has seen it his duty to remove the regulations he still says he would back them to the last. But so far as being termed a blue ruinist I want to tell this House and I do not care who hears it or where it goes, that you have only seen the shadow of darkness as yet, you have not entered into the real dark situation which is hanging over your heads. So I am a blue ruinist because I tell the truth I always believe in telling the truth because it will appear in the end. I do not believe in telling white lies. I suppose if you Mr. Halfyard were walking straight for a pit and I told you about it you would term me a blue ruinist. I am trying hard to keep you out of it.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF POSTS—Why do you not let us know your ideas if you are so anxious to help us out in the situation?

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE—If I gave you my ideas they would appear in the Star and Advocate to-morrow as yours. I am not going to give them to you. You and I only have different opinions on right and wrong. A year ago you had all those ideas but you and your government have forgotten all about them since. And to-day the country is bankrupt. The other day the Prime Minister got up here and said how he was arranging for a loan of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars to be used by the Municipal Council and when the question was asked him he said he had in raising the loan and as a rejoinder he called the Bank of Canada a bunch of Shylocks. What better answer than that do you want in reply to your question whether or not I am a blue ruinist? It is not what we are going to do about it, it is what are you and your government going to do about it? You are the government not we. Some insinuations have been flung across the floor that we wanted the government. Why we would not touch it with a forty foot pole. I do not want to get into it and let those insinuations be flung across again to me. Since those insinuations have been flung across I have ceased to desire to become a part of the government and I want to be on this side alone, even tho I am the only one over here.

Then you ask why do we not save you from yourselves. It is only about eighteen months ago when R. A. Squires laid before us his manifesto and therein he painted us as the worst crowd of crooks in the history of the country, but to-day he says why do we not save you from yourselves. And you ask for the ideas we have in our heads. Of what is that the proof of? I know that nothing you can do will save us. Why do you not suggest something yourselves and then if we view the suggestion favorably we will assist you. Do what you may I want to tell the men of the country that dark days such as they have never seen and such as their children will never see again are ahead of them. I am responsible for what I am saying and I know the Minister of Marine and Fisheries knows only too well what I am saying is true. He knows you cannot solve the problems ahead of you. When the Prime Minister was looking for the support of the country he said he would practise economy and if he had done so, Newfoundland would not be so bad off as she is to-day. Let me read to you something touching on this matter. Take the railroad problem on which matter the Prime Minister tried to explain himself and try as he may the best he could say was as follows (reads). Is not that frightful and the best proof of that frightfulness is that the country is loser to the amount of the sum of two and one half millions of dollars, and the worst of it is that we have got to keep the railroad. The rottenness of it has come down on you with a vengeance. When you were taking over the railroad you were going to put the Reids in their proper place. But the result is that you are handling the Reids in a far worse manner than did Sir Patrick McGrath, Sir Michael Cashin and A. B. Morine, and you have been caught badly, but unfortunate for the country. To-day the railroad is run by the Commission and hundreds of concessions have been given the Reids. The railroad will be even worse in June and still you have dumped out two and one half millions of dollars of the people's money on this rotten railroad. What Sir Wm. Lloyd and Mr. Coaker tried to prevent with regard to the Reids you during the last session made it easy for the Reids to acquire. You gave them liberty to take all the lands they needed and many other concessions as well. That bill introduced by you paved the way. Now we see a big head line in the Advocate about this wonderful proposition about to be inaugurated when five thousand men will be employed here shortly and we understand the Humber mouth lands taken from us under this bill are the nucleus of the enterprise, al because the country was not protected. And I say it without fear or contradiction that the government is not capable of handling the situation. You have fallen down on your duty, and you have wrongfully given the Reids rights which should never have been given. Now it just struck me that I am not the only scab around here as I see the papers are not running because the printers are seeking some trifling concession. I wish also to remark that I have been trying to get some information from the Department of Agriculture and Mines, in otehr word, from Dr. Campbell. It resembles drawing out a tooth without chloroform. I guess when this information is properly tabled there will be another scandal laid at the feet of the government. I have nothing against this Dr. Campbell because he was born in Nova Scotia. I have no fault to find with him, but I do say this that two years ago Mr. Coaker told the F. P. U., after a convention held in that December, that the head of that department ought to have a seat in this House. If he were in his seat opposite I expect we would get some satisfaction.

The Railway, may I ask the Hon. leader, the Chairman of the Railway Commission, not the Prime Minister has any policy in this connection been discussed as to the future. What are you going to do after the 30th of June. We have been here 5 weeks now, and I would be glad if you would tell me what your ideas are about it.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISH-ERIES.—We will have a debate on the railway question later and will deal with it in all its phases.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—We have been here 5 weeks—you and I for three at least, and it is time your policy was handed down as this is too serious a matter to be let drift. It is something like the Fish Regulations and needs to be moved out of existence.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISH-ERIES.—What—the railway.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—No—the Commission. We want that put out of business and everything in connection with the operation of the road got down to normal again. If you can't run it, say so, and let the Reid Nfld. Co. take control of it. If competent men were in charge of affairs that would be done. But instead of doing that we find the country saddled as a result of the government's bungling with a debt of two and a half millions that they are unable to find. I would like to know if the Executive, not the ordinary members, are awake at all. What are they doing every night? Are you going to do anything to try and solve this problem which is of such a serious nature? No attempt is being made to arrive at a solution—is this state of affairs to continue and we be allowed to drift helplessly over the embankment of ruin. What is your idea in regard to the coastal service, the railway policy and in connection with the future. I do not want to be kept here all the summer.

MR. HIBBS—It is time you realized that yourself and kept to the discussion of the Fish Regulations.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—So you've woke up at last. It was your master who brought up the Fish Regulations.

MR. HIBBS.—You will please address me as the master of the House. I am the chairman and I do not want this House ridiculed.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I am addressing you alright. Do you want me to address the audience.

MR. HIBBS—I will call on the Speaker.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Call him and let him give me the answers to the questions I've been asking.

MR. HIBBS—Keep to the subject of debate. You are dealing with an act to repeal the Fish Regulations.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Has the railway nothing to do with fish? Isn't cask fish brought in over the railroad. Wasn't it brought in here last year. It was—and you know the demurrage on it was something frightful. The amount of money which was taken from the fishermen to pay demurrage on the cars would be a surprise to you. The Fish Regulations have caused all the trouble that we are up against to-day. The situation would be in proper order if there had been no regulations, and if the railway were run properly the fish brought here would be in right condition. As it is to-day we have to get great quantities of coal here from Sydney to haul fish over the railroad. Talk about fish—you Mr. Chairman, ought to be sick of it. I wonder if the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries through you, would tell me what next year's prices will be.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I hope about $10.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You are living in hope and will die in fear of it.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—We had it last year.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You did for some but you have a whole lot of trouble coming to you yet over it.

I am sorry to have to talk so much about fish but what can I do. A question has been asked here as to the fish inspectors on the other side being withdrawn.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—The commissioners have been ordered to return at the 30th of June.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I hardly know what to call them, inspectors or commissioners, but I am glad you have done that sir. But still, can't you get them back by the 30th of May and save all their expenses for the month of June. I think they should be notified to return at once. I know you are like me now, anxious to save the money.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—If it was not for the want of money we would not recall them.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I see—but the Prime Minister says everything is alright and Mr. Coaker says we want the money. Where are we and whither tending. One minute we got lots of money and the next minute we have to call me n home because of the want of it. It's simply awful. Now let us have a look at this outlay of $500,000 in connection with fish. You will admit, Mr. Coaker that the giving out of this was due to the Regulations.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—I will not argue the point.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You know, sir, that if our business men had been allowed to sell their fish through New York as they had always done, there would have been no need of this $500,000.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—We could not sell it twice.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You did not know who was to eat it, whether it was Greeks or Turks, or Egyptians. If the New York buyer was willing to offer $55 a cask for fish why was he blocked by being asked to put up an exorbitant bond before he could do business. You told us a year ago that your one idea was the protection of the fishermen. What odds was it to you what was paid the shipper here as long as the fisherman got his $7 or $8 a qtl. If the shipment of the Labrador fish had been allowed last year there would not be such quantities of it lying in the country to-day belonging to the fishermen and others. Members on the other side of the House have absolutely stated that this money was used to help the Northern men—I will not say Union men alone—and I would like to know why Geo. Harris did not get any of it. Mr. Targett, when I referred to this case before, was coming up to my office to see his letter asking for help, but I regret to say I have no recollection of his coming.

MR. TARGETT.—There is no Geo. Harris in my district.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I am not sure if his name is George or Sam, but do you know the man Harris who was engaged with Mr. Dan O'Neil of Bay de Verde last year.

MR. TARGETT.—I was up to your office twice but could not get to see you.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Why didn't you hand in your name, Mr. Targett.

MR. TARGETT.—I am only Targett and not used to such formalities. You were not there.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I am addressing you as Mr. Targett because of the order of the Chairman. Anyhow, I will be only too pleased to meet you to-morrow morning at 10.30 and introduce you to the fish belonging to Harris and others which is still lying in my store where I allowed them to place it when they could not sell it. If you will give $2 a qtl. for it, I will add $4 and then let the government give the men another $2. The reason I am speaking about Harris' fish is because he is a good F. P. U. man and marked his ballot for you in the election and you should do something to protect him.

MR. TARGETT—I don't care a snap of my finger whether any man voted for me or not. I will do all I can for all alike. The men of Trinity Bay vote according to their conscience and are not to be bribed.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—That is beautifully said if I could only take it seriously.

MR. TARGETT—It is the truth.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Is it true that in one section of your district there were two operators and when the election was on one let only your men into the office to hear the news and kept the others out.

MR. TARGETT.—That is not true.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Did you ever take an oath in connection with the Union.

MR. TARGETT—That is my own business. I always do my best to help all or any of my constituents.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Alright then; come up to my premises to-morrow where their fish is stored and help them to get clear of it. I will be surprised if you do.

MR. TARGETT.—I will come up and that won't be the only surprise you will get

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—These men I speak of had their fish at my wharf for a week while they were trying to sell it and after beating the streets always came back and said they could not see the Minister of Fisheries. That fish remains in my store and I advanced them $4 a quintal on it. I give you the liberty now sir, to come up and pay these men as they are writing to me constantly for assistance. Fish Regulations will go down in history and will be remembered by our children's children as the greatest curse ever perpetrated on the country. Business men who should be giving out supplies to-day are out of business because of the incapacity and evil advice of the Advisory Board. Mr. Coaker knows as well as I do that if he had come behind the door and taken my advice we would never have touched the point of insolvency that we have reached at present. Mr. Coaker does not contradict me as he knows I am right. The regulations brought disaster not only to the West Coast but to the cooper, laborer and truckman of St. John's East and West and even to the men of Paradise who make hoops as they were unable to sell them. We will never get over, never survive it, and whoever is in charge of this colony in the next 12 months will not be able to take her out of the water as it is too deep to raise her. The only way to save her is by the best brains being united and doing their utmost for New foundland. I came here a few evenings ago with the best intentions of doing my best for my country, but I can't get up to ask a question without the man called the Prime Minister flying at me across the House. I do not take much notice of him, but I want to serve notice right here and now that I will do nothing to help him, no; not till he "goes west" and I will never be united with him for the good of the country. He may be too smart a man for men but I reiterate for the information of the country that you have yet only seen the shadow of the darkness. It is only the shadow as yet but even before we are out of this House you may realize that far worse is to come. You can take my name and send it across to England, to Canada or wherever you like for this. That is my opinion backed up by the leading men of Water Street. Even in the terrible depression of the Bank Crash you could find men to give supplies for the fishery, but the names of those who are doing so to-day can be counted on 3 fingers. Men are saying to-day we will pay anything for a little in advance and only a few days ago one man offered at a Water St. premises $200 for $100 credit, but was refused. If Mr. Targett or the others want to hear the worst, I am unable to describe it. I am pleased to hear the Regulations are gone and also the inspectors, and am pleased to hear the Commissioners are to go the 30th of June but yet we have been here five weeks and nobody knows if the Government have any policy to offer for the future or not. The Executive do not know, neither do the others but they sit there and listen to the evasions of their leaders every day. The time will come when your policy will be demanded and if it is not given out to the people the responsibility will rest with you. It was said a few days ago by the Minister of Public Works that the F. P. U. did not control the Executive but I would like to point out that the Executive would not last 10 minutes if the F. P. U. wanted to vote them out. That is the power of the F. P. U. there and in this House, they are a united body bound to support each other. When the support passes away the government walks out of the House. You, Mr. Jennings, are as responsible as the Executive though you may not attend their meetings, because you have backed their policy. Mr. Small, and the others who by their support allowed us to be brought to the hopeless situation in which we are to-day, are equally responsible with the Executive members because you should have stood up and said the people are suffering through you and I will clear out. You saw the difficulties of the people you represent, but yet you entered no protest. Now sir, I have considerable still to say in connection with the Fish Regulations. I have only touched on the fringe of it yet. I am going over them again from A to Z, and give their real history, pointing out the failures, who were ruined by them and what happened generally to the people and Newfoundland itself. As it is now 6.30 I beg to move the adjournment of the House till to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the day were deferred.

The Prime Minister announced that His Excellency the Governor, would receive the Address in Reply at half past eleven to-morrow morning.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow morning at eleven of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 4th.

The House met at eleven of the clock in the forenoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that in accordance with the intimation received, His Excellency the Governor would receive the Address in Reply presently.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker and the House proceeded to Government House, and being returned to the Assembly Room, Mr. Speaker informed the House that His Excellency had received the Address of Thanks, and had been pleased to reply thereto as follows:

Government House.
St. John's, Newfoundland.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly.

I thank you for your Address in Reply to the Speech, with which your present Session was opened.

C. ALEXANDER HARRIS,
Governor.

May 4th, 1921.

Mr. Speaker then left the Chair until a quarter past three of the clock.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

MR. ABBOTT.—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Bonavista on the subject of a well. The petition asks that the sum of fifty dollars be granted to have this public well attended to. I may say in connection with this matter that water is very scarce in Bonavista and the people suffer great inconvenience in consequence. I trust that the Government will therefore see its way clear to grant this small sum for such an important matter.

I have another petition, Mr. Speaker, from another section of Bonavista town, asking for the sum of $150.00 for the purpose of clearing the boulders from a beach known as Ford's Beach and otherwise improving it so as to make it accessible to fishermen who desire to use it for fishery purposes. In presenting these petitions I ask that they be referred to the department to which they relate, and that petitioners' requests be acceded to in both cases.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from a very great number of the women of Newfoundland on the subject of the franchise. With your permission, Sir, I will read the petition. (Reads Petition.)

Mr. Speaker, during the short time that I have had the petitions in my possession I had not the time to count the signatures appended to them but the ladies who handed them to me for presentation to the House inform me that the actual number of signatures is 7,485, most of them are those of women but in many cases they are also endorsed by men. I have no doubt that had there been more time, the number of signatures would have been very much larger, but there are still more to arrive and these are exclusive of those obtained last year.

For the information of the House and hon. gentlemen I will specify the places from which these petitions have come. With the exception of my own district and that of the hon. member for Burgeo and LaPoile, I believe every district in the Island is represented in the number. Those from St. John's, both East and West, are very largely signed, not only in the City itself but in the outlying places as well. The petitions are from the following places:

ST. JOHN'S CITY EAST AND WEST.

ST. GEORGE'S—Sandy Point, Curling, Petries, Corner Brook.

TRINITY—Port Union, W. and M., Foster's Point, Clarenville, Belleview, Green's Hr., Whitbourne, Catalina, Little Catalina.

Petty Hr., Old Perlican (large), Western Bay, Western Bay W. (large), Ochre Pit Cove, Bell Island (large), Carbonear, Noggin Cove (Fogo), Burnt Cove, Herring Neck, Georges' Brook, Milton, Traytown, Bonavista, Grand Falls, Bay Bulls, Trepassey, Ferryland, Little Bay Islands, Lewisporte, Laurencetown, Exploits Three Arms, Nipper's Hr., Placentia, Petit Forte, Scund Island, Burin, Great Burin, Grand Bank, Fortune, Brigus, Holyrood, Burgoyne's Cove, Flat Islands B.B.), Hr. Grace (large), Trout River (large), Bonne Bay, Norris' Point, Griquet, Griquet Bay, Sunnyside, Bay Bulls Arm, Southside (St. J.)

From this it will be seen by hon. members that the women have gained a strong foothold all over the Island.

I desire, Mr. Speaker, to say in presenting these petitions that while I present them, I keep an open mind as to the advisability of introducing a Bill this session. I have stated this to the ladies who entrusted me with the presentation and they understand that. As to the right of women to have the franchise, there is no need to enlarge on that phase of the subject because it was gone into fully last year when similar petitions were presented but the signatures here show that the cause is gaining strength daily and it is only a matter of time when there will be sufficient signatures to commend the matter to the consideration of the House. I have only to add in moving these petitions that they be received and referred to the department to which they relate; also, I am requested to ask that the petitions themselves be returned to the ladies who presented them. They have their own reasons for this. After petitions have been received by the House I think the usual custom is for petitions to remain in the custody of the House, but I do not think that any great harm will accrue from acceding to the request of the ladies, and I ask that the petitions be returned after they have served their usefulness here.

MR. HIGGINS.—Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the petitions presented by the Hon. Minister of Justice. I do so for the reasons that I explained at the last session. Just as I intimated then so do I now say, that, as far as I am personally concerned, the matter is of no importance to me whether the petitions were signed by one or by one hundred thousand persons; because, as the Minister of Justice has aptly put it, it is only a question of time when the matter of votes for women will become a reality. That being so, it is a question of dealing with the principle involved. Now the principle is either right or it is wrong; either it is good or it is bad; either it is an advantage to the community or it is not. Personally, I can offer no objection to the request for the right for women to exercise their franchise and there is no just or no valid reason why they should be denied that right. According to my viewpoint the situation is this: Woman, apart from her war record altogether (it would be quite unnecessary to mention her splendid work in the great world war, rather, as a matter of fact, would it be detracting from the merits of the petitions) has established her place in the world to entitle her to equal rights of the man of to-day. The State, after all, is simply the home at large. The average person may feel like saying that women should not have a vote for the reason that the place for a woman is in her home. But surely the home is the home at large in the community. Woman has proven herself to be a prominent factor in every social and moral movement and her activities in these circles for the uplifting of the community is well known. Women are equally as good and equally as important as men in the administration of public affairs in the community, and I think it ill becomes us as men to assume that we possess all the administrative ability. Take this House of Assembly, for instance. Has any man got the effrontery to say that, if 30 women had been elected to the House of Assembly two years ago, they would not have done just as well as the present Government has done for the past couple of years. However, I say, so that my remarks may not be taken as levelling a charge at the Government, that I am quite satisfied that, if I abandoned my place in this House to-morrow, it could be filled equally as well and equally as good by a woman; consequently, I subscribe to the principle, after giving it a deal of thought, deliberation and consideration, that equal rights should be granted. It is just as well for us to recognize this demand,—this demand of right. What woman asks for is not a privilege; nor is it something that we men might be inclined to think that we have in our own keeping and which we will or will not give; but it is a right. I do not see to-day what process of reasoning would prompt me to undertake any other course than to stand by woman franchise, irrespective of what might happen when next I go before the electorate. I am satisfied that this is a matter of absolute right and I can give no intelligent answer to any woman or to any man to-day as to why a woman should not have a vote. The day is gone when women are to be looked upon as possessed of less intelligence than men. Sixty years ago this agitation for women suffrage first started in the Old Country. The pioneer worker in this movement was John Stuart Mill. He started the agitation particularly among the English speaking people. It took a long time to have the right for women recognized, but eventually, through the untiring efforts of this champion, it becomes an established fact. It has been acknowledged as right now practically all over the world. At the outset this idea of the franchise for women was looked upon as a kind of radical and novel thought, and in fact right down to the present day conditions have not changed in some sections. Time there was when we were prone to look upon women as an object, purely something to be used by man for his comfort, to be kept, more or less, as a servile subject. We find that in all the walks of life women have acquitted themselves not inferior to men. In matters of administration of commercial, business or professional calling; in matters of thought or of action, women have at all times throughout the whole universe proven themselves as capable as men. In our own country they have shown themselves—and if we are candid to ourselves we will admit it—as being in very many respects our superiors. We as men have to admit that the greatest counsellor that man can have is an intelligent wife, and, after all, she is the one in which he puts his trust; she is the one whose advice is listened to more attentively and more eagerly than that of the average man. Conditions have advanced in the country to-day and it is just as well for us to make up our minds to meet the situation. We in Newfoundland to-day should be trying to keep pace with other places in all the forms of legislation. We are to-day practically the only English speaking people where women are still kept without the franchise. Personally, as I said before, I have given a good deal of thought to the matter and to-morrow I would vote for a Bill giving equal rights to women in all respects. We have outgrown the day when man was lord and master. The home is of a co-equal status and by the man and woman working together in our own families; similarly is the family at large in the community of a co-equal status, and men and women in the daily affairs of life are going hand in hand in movements for the public good.

I support the petitions for the reasons I have indicated, not that they happen to contain the names of any ladies in the district that I represent; rather would I support them if they came from all other districts except my own on equally strong grounds and with equally strong convictions. The position before us has reached the stage when we have to recognize that this Woman Suffrage movement is no longer a matter of begging a favour; it is no longer a matter for women to be asking something that men think they have the right to dispose of, as by an array or circumstances we men seem to arrogate to ourselves all the power of depriving women of their right, but it is a matter that women should be given their just rights. I do trust that the Minister of Justice, who introduced these petitions, will be able to see that, despite the difficult times ahead of us, an opportunity will be found to bring in a Bill dealing with this important matter. I will go further and say that a solution of those difficulties in the matter of economy particularly, and in other matters in which to-day the State is more directly interested in this country than ever before, will be arrived. I think that the day is far gone for some of us men to be thinking that we have got all the business brains of the world, and I think we should be only too glad to enlist the support of all people of thought and ability to help us to grapple with the economic and other difficulties that are confronting us. Women have their proportionate share of intelligence and of executive ability. It is not all confined to men. I am compelled to recognize that. Experience has shown that women maintained those high ideals in the days of the American War. Consequently, when woman was able to take her place in the savage aspect of life with man and later when it developed that she was found to be equal to man in all the walks of life, and in some respects his superior, and because she has shown herself to be, at least, on the same footing with man physically, intellectually, morally and socially, I subscribe to the prayer of the petitions and I hope the day is not far distant when, by virtue of the age of this Colony and by reason of the fact that this Colony is no longer going to retain the old fossilized notion of long ago, woman will be given her right and what no man has a right to keep from her.

MR. MACDONNELL.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a few remarks, not so much to express an opinion on the relative merits or demerits of the question, but to comment somewhat upon how the matter was brought about. To my mind this is going to mean a drastic change in the constitution of the country. It is a matter that, if ever there was a necessity for a referendum, I think this is one of the cases where a referendum is absolutely necessary. This bill will affect the voting power of the country and consequently affects the constitution. I might say that I was surprised when the Minister of Justice enumerated my own district among the others where petitions came from, because those responsible did not do me the courtesy of mentioning the matter to me. So far as I am personally aware of, there is only one petition from the district of St. George's and which petition I will present to the House, and in my attitude here I will be guided by the views and the sentiments of the people of St. George's on the question. For the present I prefer to follow the lines laid down by the Minister of Justice, namely, of keeping an open mind on the question. I do not intend to commit myself like my colleague, Mr. Higgins, or, in some respects, to talk about things in advance as he spoke about them, because if, for no other reason, he is better qualified to talk about the idea of the home and the authority of the home, than I am. Mr. Higgins told us in advance that if we had a woman Government on that side of the House for the past two years that things might have been better. That may be so, my opinion is that it would be desirable to have an Opposition composed of women from the point of view of obstruction, such an opposition would be sure to have the last word. I should like to know if it is the intention to bring in a Bill this year. If it is, I can get the Minister of Justice to let me have the number of localities in my district that petitions came from, so that I can find out if there is sufficient interest in the movement and so that I can get some idea of the sentiment of the people.

MR. MOORE.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a few observations on the subject matter now before the Chair. When petitions were brought in here last year, and a Bill introduced by Mr. Fox, member for St. John's East, in relation to this very important matter, I gave both petitions and Bill my utmost concurrence. At that time some hon. gentleman on the other side of the House thought fit to move that the measure be given the six months hoist, and, unfortunately, his motion was carried. Now I see no reason whatever why I should alter my opinion to-day. The ladies of Newfoundland do not ask for any special favour or any special privilege; but equal rights with men. Consequently, I am prepared to stand by the women in their fight for their just rights and I have but to say "God bless them in their work and I hope they will succeed." They have my heartiest support.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to have to add a few words in regard to these petitions, and I want to say to the House and to the country at large that I am fully in accord with the petitions, as I would like to see the ladies given a right to vote. I understand from the remarks of the Attorney General that he is in sympathy with this movement. That being so I would suggest to him that a Bill be brought in and have an expression of opinion on it and decide whether women shall or shall not have the right to vote, then, if hon. members feel that they cannot pass that Bill, adopt the suggestion given by Mr. MacDonnell,—have a referendum. I do not think it is fair to have these ladies coming in here year after year with petitions and immediately after have them thrown aside for another six months or so. I take it that they demand better treatment than that, and I repeat the suggestion that a Bill be brought in giving the matter a fair test. I do not intend to enlarge upon what my hon. friend, Mr. Higgins, has said, suffice it to say that the granting of women the right to vote is absolutely what other countries are doing, and I want to say again to the ladies, to this House and to the country generally that I am perfectly in accord with the movement and that I am prepared to support Women's Suffrage.

MR. FOX.—Mr. Speaker, before the motion for the petition is put, I might say that I did not have the advantage of listening to the remarks of the Hon. Minister of Justice. Might I ask the Minister whether or not it is the intention of the Government or of any member of his party to bring in a Bill this year?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I do not know what the opinion of the Government is as a Government.

MR. FOX.—Is it your own personal intention to bring in a Bill?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—No.

MR. FOX.—I regret that very much and I do not think that there was any necessity for presenting this petition. On merit there should not have been any necessity. It is merely prolonging the agony for these people who are demanding something that is not a favour, but merely a right entitling them to vote. For the present I will refer to what happened last year. There was no justification whatever for the position taken by the Government then, and the matter was not forced as it might have been for one reason and one reason only, namely, that it was promised privately, and, more or less, publicly—and I have an idea that the Minister of Justice is not without implication in the matter—that a Bill would be presented this year. I think that the ladies who are behind this movement recognized that, if the Bill failed last year that it was certainly going to be presented and passed this year by this House. If that was the decision then why go back upon it? The arguments in favour of the measure need no comment from me. My hon. friend, Mr. Mac-Donnell, stated that he was not prepared to discuss the merits and demerits of the measure. Well in my opinion there is no need to discuss them. There is no reason why the women of Newfoundland should be kept from voting any more than the women all over the rest of the British Empire should be kept from voting. To-day all over the Empire, with a few exceptions I think, women are allowed to exercise the franchise and we are refusing them the right to do so. We are occupying that exceptional position of refusing this right. Australia, New Zealand, Canada and England, all have conceded that right. Last year the Government said that they would be in a position to deal with it this year. In other words, the Government was going to give it in one breath and in another they fall down under it. The matter is too serious to be trifled with, because trifled with is what is being done. I do not think that it requires any great courage on the part of the Government to decide whether they shall or shall not pass this measure this year. The measure was voted down by the Government, as a whole, last year; the only party that supported it was the Opposition, and I am sure that the Opposition, as a whole, would support a Bill if it was brought in this year. I understood and my impression was that the Government was sincere in their promise last year—because they certainly gave out the promise—that a Bill would be brought down this session. If the Bill had been passed last year there would be no necessity for bringing in this petition this year. I do not think that that speaks well for the sincerity of the Government. It is a Government matter because it was turned down by a Government vote. I understood from the Minister of Justice last year that it was the intention to bring in a Bill this year. If I remember rightly, in conversation with the Minister of Justice, he put me under the impression that if the Bill did not get Government assent last year that he would support it this year, and I am sorry that he has seen well to change his mind. After looking around among the Government ranks, personally I thought that the Minister was sincere in this matter. In recognition of the war services performed by the women and looking at the matter from a more broader viewpoint, I do not think that we should withhold from them for one single day this concession that they ask for. From every viewpoint I think it will be found that they are entitled to vote; and if you look around in every section of the electorate at present, I do not think from the standpoint of experience or executive ability that women are in any apologetic position whatever. I think they can justly claim as much privileges as men in this dominion, because they have shown themselves equal to any situation that might arise in the national affairs of the country. I ask that the Government forget any party feeling in this matter and I ask that they justify the position that they took last year; because I see no earthly reason for a referendum. The attention of the electorate will never be concentrated on it; it will always assume a political guise. From the passage of the Reform Bill in England, I think it will be conceded on all sides that the Women's Suffrage Bill began a political reform in the world. We cannot blink it out of sight. It is coming and why not this Government pass it and have done with it. It would have come last year with better grace, but it would be still better that a Bill be passed this year than to have it forced upon the Government later. I think it a shame that women should be treated with in this fashion and I regret that the matter should be discussed from a party viewpoint. Last year this matter was not alone treated disrespectfully in this House, but was treated contemptuously by certain parties would I could enumerate, but I would be delaying the House by doing so. I want to point out that, in looking at this matter from a broad and national viewpoint, instead of getting the women to give reasons why they should be given the right to vote, I think the Government should be put upon their defence and to show the reasons why they should not give it to them. That is the position. These people should not have to come here on bended knee as if begging a favour, they are not begging, it is their right they ask for, and you should have to show to these people an adequate reason why they should not get this right. I appeal to Mr. Warren, the Minister of Justice, and to the Government as a whole, to carry out the promises that they made to the women last year, and I ask each member of the Government to seriously reconsider the situation and try to bring a measure before this House to fulfil the promises that they made last year to the women of the country, to perform their duty as I regard it and give to the women the right they are demanding, it is not a favour they are asking but a right and the Government have no right to withhold it from them.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker. I trust Sir, that the statement made by Mr. Warren when he presented this petition this evening, to the effect that these petitions would be handed back to the ladies at their request, will be the termination of this movement. The fact of having before us to-day a petition signed by seven thousand women of the country warrants this Legislature's taking careful and serious consideration of this very important question, and I rise for the purpose of endorsing the remarks made by my colleagues on this side of the House, and I think some steps should be taken towards bringing about a realisation of this petition. The women of Newfoundland stand second to none in the British Empire. In every other part of the Empire to-day Woman Suffrage is on the Statute Book. It has been in Canada for some years, since the early part of the War. As to experience in the working out of that enactment I have little knowledge, but I sympathise with the contentions put forward by Mr. Higgins of woman's power in the Home, and as he says the Home Land is the home of the common people and women should be given a chance to influence its government. This question is one that calls for great consideration, and of course while it would be impossible for any member to commit himself to support a measure that might have undesirable features it is the duty of the government to take some steps to perfect a measure that will meet the requirements of the petitioners. This country is peculiarly situated with a far flung coast line of hundreds of miles with many sparsely populated localities, because of its geographical make up and this measure would greatly effect its voting power, but surely this Legislature composed as it is of representatives for all parts of the country have enough intelligence to sit here and frame a measure that will be acceptable to the country and the women. I therefore wish to say that on general principles I give the petition my support, and trust that the time is not far distant when a Bill will be introduced to bring about the desire of the ladies of Newfoundland and to put them on an equal footing with the men, their more favoured brethren, I regret that I have not with me a petition sent to me by some of the Electors of St. John's West. I didn't know these petitions were being presented this afternoon. This is the only one I have received or my colleagues either, and it was signed by twelve or fourteen people, but I understand that among the papers in the hands of the Minister of Justice are petitions from my constituents in St. John's West, and I will be glad to digest them, and see the movement as it affects my own constituents.

I regret that any political shadow has been introduced into this matter. The Minister of Justice introduced and presented this petition not as a representative of the Government, but as a representative of his own constituency and because he was asked to do so. Any member opposite would have done the same thing or any member on this side though we might not be able to do it with the same grace as he did, and when opportunity offers I shall present to the House the petition sent to me a few days ago, to which I have already referred. This is not a party measure and there is no party line or division. As to whether the government does or does not support the petition is a matter upon which I cannot express an opinion. With the general principle of it we all agree, and with Mr. Bennett I feel that the practical application of it may be satisfactorily worked.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr Speaker. I desire to confirm the observations which I made on this matter last year. The first point was brought out just now by Mr. Higgins. The principle of this may be right or wrong, and with him I agree that the principle is right. The second point is the application of a measure of that sort to Newfoundland, and with Mr. Bennett I agree it is a matter for careful consideration in view of local conditions, and while I do not go as far as Mr. MacDonnell in his statement that a Referendum is necessary, nevertheless he is correct when he suggests the possibility of this Bill making a great change in the administration, re-distribution of seats, etc.

When I was in London last year I took up the matter with some ladies, Suffrage for women and its resulting conditions in England, and I consulted a London Barrister and got him to draft for me of the existing Legislation in that connection in England, also in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. It appeals to me as a proposition quite feasible, not only just and fair but quite feasible having regard to local conditions, that men and women in the matter of voting should be on an equal basis. Women have to bear their share of public taxation in an indirect sense, she has to bear her share of responsibility of the community not perhaps in the same way as a man but indirectly to an equal extent. She has to bear a greater share of Home responsibility than man and upon the home to a greater extent than even depends the life, morality, industry and success of the community. I feel therefore, that a measure giving women an opportunity to take her part in public affairs may be of major benefit to the community as a home. The principle I feel everyone concedes, and the working out I think can be made quite successful.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Lewis gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sinnott gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted, and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series—entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery' was introduced and read a first time, and it was ordered that it be read a second time on to-morrow.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines, if it is the intention of the government to purchase any more live stock, and if so, what appropriations will be set aside for this purpose.

MR. LEWIS asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the number of firms supplying oil to Lighthouses in this Dominion—also stating price paid for same.

MR. LEWIS asked Hon. the Prime Minister, if Mr. E. Collishaw has been commissioned or is to be commissioned by the government to visit Canada and the United States with a view to the disposal of stock of pit props cut during the past winter by various parties under the government's agreement or guarantee to pay for the same at the rate of six dollars per cord, and if so to lay on the table of the House a copy of all correspondence between the government and Mr. Collishaw in relation to this matter.

DR. JONES asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if any amounts have been paid to any members of the staff of the Postal and Telegraphs in this city since the first of July last, and if so to state for what purposes, and to lay on the Table of the House a statement giving the names of the officials who have received such extra compensation, and the amounts paid to them for the ten months from July the 1st, up to April 30th.

MR. VINICOMBE asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to lay on the Table of the House a statement giving an estimate as exact as possible of the losses caused to the coopers and other workmen of this city the past eighteen months through the crippling of the staple industry of this Country by the Fish Regulations which are now being repealed.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the quantity of codfish in the colony at the present time, according to the statistics kept by his department, specifying as closely as possible the quantities of the different grades for the different markets—(a) Greece, (b) Italy, (c) Spain, (d) Portugal, (e) Brazil, (f) West Indies, setting out specially the quantity of Labrador fish particularising the quantity remaining of the stock purchased on account of the government last fall, and if he can give any idea where and when and at what figure this Labrador fish is likely to be disposed of, or whether he is making any arrangements with the farmers in this country for the purchase of the same for fertilizer?

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs what is the position of Mr. Samuel Bradbury in his department, when he was appointed, what salary he draws, and what qualifications he possesses for the work he is engaged to perform?

MR. SINNOTT asked the Minister of Public Works if Mr. Samuel Churchill, Deputy Superintendent of Public Works, is now absent from this Colony on any mission for the government if so, what is the nature of the same, and what allowance, if any, has been made him in connection with the same?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was the Minister of the Crown, who instructed the Deputy Minister of Finance to draw a cheque to obtain from the funds of the Colony the money to pay for the cargo of salt brought by the S.S. "Tuckahoe" to Port Union last year and why no Order-in-Council was obtained to authorise this payment being made. Also to state what protection if any, exists if this practice is to be permitted, to prevent a dishonest Minister from securing possession of the entire credit balance of the Colony and misapplying it for his own purposes, and if the government proposes to take any steps to amend the Audit Act, so as to prevent a repetition of this irregularity and possibly disastrous consequences to the country in the future?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs

- (a) What is the total amount of the temporary loan obtained by the government after the close of the last Session, from the Bank of Montreal?
- (b) How much if any, of this sum remains at the present time?
- (c) To table a statement showing all payments made out of this amount to date, to whom such payments were made and the purpose of such payment.
- (d) Will a further loan be required in the near future?
- (e) If so, when and to what amount?
- (f) Is it proposed to obtain such a loan from the Bank of Montreal in the form of a temporary advance, or is it intended to introduce a Loan Bill?
- (g) In the latter case why—has no attempt been made to put on the market the Loan authorized last session?
- (h) If conditions have been unfavorable for floating that Loan, what is the prospect of floating an additional loan now?
- (i) Is it the intention of the Government to attempt to obtain a Loan from the Imperial Authorities, and is it proposed to agree to a suspension of the Constitution of this Colony, in order to obtain the same, and if not, what steps does the government propose to take to prevent the bankruptcy in the near future?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he is aware that there is a flagrant violation of the Prohibition Act at the present time, both in the city and in many outports, if it is a matter of common report that the principal parties associated with this movement are strong supporters of the present government, and claim to have assurances that no prosecutions will be initiated against them; if there is any warrant for this report, and if not, what steps does the Government propose to take to enforce the law? If the Prime Minister is aware that smuggling on a widespread scale is being practised on different parts of the coast, and if it is the intention to employ any of the government steamers now lying idle in this port at a heavy expense, in enforcing the Revenue and Liquor Laws?

MR. WALSH asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for a detailed statement showing how many extra hands were employed by the Marine and Fisheries department, since November the 15th 1919, to date, giving names of each person employed, the amount of salary paid each, and the nature of their work.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for an itemized account showing the cost for all repairs made to his Department since November the 15th, 1919, to date. Also the amount of furniture installed and cost of same.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for a detailed statement showing all monies paid by his department to E. G. Stone, from July 15th, 1919 to date.

DR. JONES—Might I be permitted to say a word or so in connection with this matter of the epidemic in Placentia Bay. I had a conversation with Dr. Chishold and he told me that the people there are suffering from malnutrition and if they are not properly treated and promptly they will be put out of business for some months at least. This matter is of great urgency. Dr. Chisholm told me that he was going to approach the government on the matter. I ask that Dr. Chisholm's report be acted upon immediately because if it is not the people around that section may be put out of business permanently. It is essential to have them recover to have the proper foods immediately shipped to those points in question. No better man than Dr. Chisholm could handle the job.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—May I ask the Minister of Shipping where the Daisy is?

THE HON. MIN. OF SHIPPING.—She will be at Placentia to-morrow morning.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER—The government appreciates very much the attitude taken by the Opposition in connection with this matter. Under the circumstances perhaps the House will permit me to relate the facts. I have to say that the department of public charities has for some time past been receiving reports from the various Relieving Officers and they have been instructed to investigate and handle the situation and it has been done with satisfaction. With respect to Placentia Bay the Relieving Officer is Mr. Leonard and he has got in touch with the department of Public Charities and both himself and the Commissioner of Charities and Magistrate Sullivan have been in communication and it was decided to send sufficient supplies of flour, tea, sugar and molasses to relieve the distress in that neighbourhood. A little while ago a report came in from various sections and Dr. Chisholm was ordered to attend to matter but up to three o'clock this afternoon the report had not been received from him. I have had the privilege of an interview with two prominent residents of that district in conjunction with Mr. Leonard who has come into town to get direct information from the Department of Public Charities. He stated that a supply of potatoes is required and with a slight addition of other necessities they were quite sufficient. It was also decided that instead of the Poor Relief Officers handling the stuff it was thought advisable to have them dispensed through Mr. Leonard thru the Road Boards so that those receiving supplies would have a chance of working it out in the ordinary course. This has been tried in other constituencies and it worked satisfactorily so that those getting relief were not under compliment to the government. The suggestion as to getting reports from the various sections is an admirable one and very much appreciated. The reports we have been receiving have been very efficient and complete as the Relieving Officers in question are very experienced. Mr. Leonard has been doing the work for a very long time and gives the utmost satisfaction. I think the sum of seven thousand dollars has been sent the various sections covering quantities of flour, sugar, tea and molasses. I could not get the exact figures from the Relieving Officer but will have them by to-morrow at noon. Dr. Chisholm has not yet handed in his report, but he is to be sent back to look after the necessary cases. The suggestion that the patients be brought on to the hospital is not now necessary to be followed as the doctor will be able to look after them in their homes.

MR. FOX—Does not the honorable leader of the government think out it advisable that immediate relief be forwarded without waiting upon other developments in this matter?

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Relieving Officer has been in town and I had a conference with him in conjunction with Father Fyme and Magistrate Sullivan and it was decided that the Relieving Officer look into the matter.

MR. FOX—If the reports of the members for this district are as serious as they purport to be the matter should be given attention right away, and I think the suggestion of the leader of the Opposition and Sir John Crosbie that the ship should be sent to-morrow morning should be acted upon. I understand from Dr. Jones that it is not so much the necessity for medical attendance as it is for food. If they are well fed there will be no need for medical attendance.

MR. SULLIVAN—I might say that with regard to the reports that they can not be overestimated.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I think it is a pity to overlook the opportunity of recalling the steamer. In fact food could be sent by train. There is more than one place to be reached and if you recall the steamer and place Mr. Dee in charge you cannot make any mistake.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER—With reference to question one I have to say that it is not the intention of the government to purchase any more live stock and that there will be no appropriation for that purpose. I beg to lay upon the table of the House the reply to question two. As to question three I must say that Collishaw has not been commissioned nor has the matter been considered by the government at all. As to question four the answer is in state of preparation. As to question seven I will take a memo in accordance with Mr. Bennett's request to-morrow.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER—I beg to table the reply to number five. As to question six the department is trying to secure the information and will furnish it as soon as possible. As to the ninth question the matter has been called to the attention of the Auditor General and he has been asked for a report. As for question ten, the total amount of the temporary loan obtained from the Bank of Montreal was one million and one half under last year's loan bill at five per annum. As to A. & B. one million and one quarter went to the railway commission and one quarter of a million to the Surplus Trust account. As to D.E.F.G.H.I. it is the intention of the government to submit a loan bill during the present session. As to E. it is impossible for me at this moment to state the amount. Some time ago as to the floating of loan in London it was very satisfactory as to the price of the bonds but owing to the state of the Exchange it was not so satisfactory. The government has no intention to obtain loan from the Imperial Authorities, and I regret that a question of this sort should have been asked in this form as it will go abroad to our detriment. With reference to question eleven, I am not aware of any flagrant violations of the Prohibition Act either in the city or the outports, but as there may seem to be some semblance of truth in this matter I have asked the Inspector General to furnish me with a report. I have heard no report whatever that those connected with any violations if any are strong supporters of the government. I am not aware that smuggling is being practised, but as it suggests some truth I have asked the assistant collector of Customs to let me have a report on that matter.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—That part of the question dealing with smuggling you cannot answer. I guess you do not know that West of Cape Race there is no protection for the revenue service. You cannot make a statement with regard to what smuggling is going on. Perhaps you do not know that many vessels have a few months ago gone into St. Pierre and got all their supplies and there was no one from the Customs to look after our interests. Therefore you cannot answer that part of the question.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—It will take some time to prepare the answers to questions 13 and 14. I have received a reply to question ten, on order paper of April 28th, I table the original document and I will be glad that it is safeguarded.

I intended to go ahead with the third and fourth items on the Order Paper but as my honourable friend Sir John Crosbie has requested that they be deferred in the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries I consent but I would like permission tho' to say a few words with regard to fishery regulations. I feel sure that Sir John did not intend to leave the House under any misunderstanding with regard to the matter dealing with the removal of the fishery regulations to which he referred to yesterday and in that connection I think that in justice to him and in justice to myself I should inform the House of the actual facts. Sir John used words to the effect that in the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the executive council has discredited the fishery programme and caused the removal of the fishery regulations. That is the statement that came from Sir John but I feel sure that he did not intend to leave any such impression on the House or elsewhere because the truth of the matter is entirely different. Shortly before the Minister of Marine and Fisheries left town the Codfish Exportation Board held under view certain changes with regard to the European markets. It is not true that the Governor in Council annulled any rules, promulgated any regulations modified or cancelled any scheme coming from the Board. Anything done by the Executive Government was done on the instruction of the Board. The day the Minister of Marine and Fisheries left town he sent a set of resolutions to the government showing how the board were contemplating certain changes. These changes were forwarded by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the Committee in Council that day and they were considered the same evening. But in view of the fact that those changes sent up by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries were not signed by the secretary of the Board they could not be accepted and dealt with by the Executive Council. In other words until the decision of the Board was properly communicated to the Committee in Council it could not be considered. Because the Minister was leaving town by steamer that day he did not sign them and they were sent back to have the office formalities complied with. The members of the board then held a meeting and endorsed the change. It was not unanimously signed as the whole number of the members were not capable of being present owing to the fact that some of them were out of town. But when the record was properly completed and the decision properly brought before the Committee in Council then only did the matter come up for the consideration of the Committee. But I wish it to be understood that the decision was the decision of the exporters of fish. A meeting then was called for to take place in the Board of Trade Council Chamber under the presidency of the Governor and every one interested in the subject was invited to attend and voice his opinions. The records of the Board was communicated to that body of representative persons and Sir John Crosbie was not there as he was sitting outside the large Council with Mr. Collishaw and he said he did not intend to go in and at that meeting the communication of the Board was approved so that out the statement that the regulations were removed without the knowledge of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is entirely incorrect. I feel that this explanation will relieve any misapprehension which may have been the result of Sir John's statement which perhaps was made on the account of a lack of knowledge of the facts. Owing to the printers' strike it has been impossible to get that bill printed and the same thing applies to the other agenda. I hope to have the bill to-morrow so I move that the balance of the order paper be deferred to to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, May 5th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. SAMSON.—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Friday's Bay, asking for a sum of three hundred and fifty dollars for the purpose of repairing a wharf there; also I have a petition to present from the inhabitants of Little Bay, asking that the sum of two hundred dollars be allocated to repair the roads leading from Patrick's Cove to the Church of England Cemetery.

MR. SCAMMELL.—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from St. Anthony East on the subject of a breakwater. I would ask that it be received and referred to the department to which it is related.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay upon the table of the House replies to questions Nos. 6 and 7, of April 27th, asked by Sir Michael Cashin; and to question No. 11 of April 28th, asked by Sir John Crosbie.

MR. HIGGINS.—Mr. Speaker, through the courtesy of the Prime Minister, I wish to present a petition from the inhabitants of Bauline, requesting a special grant for the purpose of making a road suitable for motor trucks to go into Bauline. In supporting this petition, I would like to point out to the Minister of Public Works, into whose department this petition will be committed, that it would be a most beneficial act if some arrangement was made to divert some of the road grant to that purpose.

Bauline is peculiarly situated. The telephone connection which was put there some time ago has proved of great service. Lying as it does down along the coast of the seashore it is impossible for anything like a motor truck to get within three-quarters of a mile of the stages. In Bauline we have some of the best fish killers on the shore. It is a settlement which through the industry of the fishermen is perhaps per capita one of the best in the district of St. John's East. Previously there the people had been bringing their fish to town by boat and they can only bring it in small loads, and the motor truck will prove there to be of as much benefit as it is to Pouch Cove, which settlement was in the same position a few years ago. It established a communication with town and is a great aid in getting supplies to the people there. I can vouch from personal knowledge of the place that the allocation of this small amount towards this road will have beneficial results. The Minister of Public Works will find out from Road Inspector Parsons if he wished that it will not take much for blasting operations. I support the petition and ask that it be given the consideration of the Government.

MR. VINICOMBE—I wish to support the petition presented by Mr. Higgins. I assure you that it is a petition which should receive due consideration. The difficulty of the fishermen there has been that because they could not get a motor truck there they have had to load their fish in quarter loads and bring it up here, thereby entailing a lot of extra labour and loss of time. I hope that the Government will see its way clear to grant this amount asked for in the petition.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House all cablegrams, letters and other correspondence from the Trade Commissioner, Col. Bernard, in Italy, since taking up his position there, in order that the House and the Country may have an opportunity of learning the quarters from which this Country suffered competition in respect to its fisheries, the nature and extent of this competition and the ruinous consequences of the fishery policy altogether.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if his attention has been called to a tabular statement published in the Daily News of March 21st, past, showing a comparative statement of the shipments of dry codfish to Brazil for the first three months in each of the past eleven years, and to ask him if he has any explanation to offer for the very marked reduction in the shipments from Newfoundland to that country for the first three months of the present year.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Education (1) Why it is that the good things to come in Education, as promised last year are now, as they were then, merely under consideration by the Government; (2) Does he honestly believe that it is more desirable to continue the top-heavy educational administration, in these times of stress, than to use the money devoted to those salaries, for the purpose of carrying out some part of the promised educational programme of last year?

MR. MOORE asked the Minister of Public Works how much money has so far been spent on the laying of the new water service from Petty Harbor ponds to the Sanatorium and Lunatic Asylum, (a) for labour, (b) for pipes and how much more will be required to complete the undertaking, (c) for labor and (d) for pipes?

MR. LEWIS asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in view of his statement yesterday, that all the Trade Commissioners now on service abroad are to be required to return here by June 30th, to lay on the Table a statement of all amounts paid in connection with this service from the appointment of the first of these Commissioners up to the 30th of April, and an estimate of the amount required to pay salaries, travelling and other expenses back to this Colony, and any other amounts required in connection therewith up to the 30th of June next, and also to say if it is intended to abandon all votes and terminate all expenditures in connection with this service after that date?

MR. SINNOTT asked Hon. the Prime Minister, if his attention has been called to an article reprinted by the Advocate last week from the "Boston Transcript" purporting to be an interview with Messrs. J. M. Devine and E. Collishaw while at Washington, in regard to our fisheries, and if the declarations attributed to them represent the views of the Government, especially in regard to the matter of Prohibition, inasmuch as they are quoted as authority for the view that the present Prohibition Act is to be repealed or modified in such a way that Newfoundland will become a resort where foreign tourists can obtain liquor in unlimited quantities and does the Prime Minister consider that to picture Newfoundland in this guise is calculated to redound to the credit of the country?

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a statement, showing to what extent the Colony is obligated by Statute to pay interest on the Capital Stock of Shipbuilding Companies in this country, the time when such obligation began in each case and the time when it will end, the amounts if any, paid towards such guarantee of interest for the financial years, 1918, 1920 and what shipbuilding construction is in progress at the present time in the different concerns for which the Colony has assumed this obligation.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if any parties acting as agents of Insurance Companies in this Colony and required by law to deposit securities with his Department for the protection of those insured have been granted permission by himself or by the Government to withdraw any of these securities from the custody of his Department and if so why, and if in that event it is intended to require them to deposit any other securities for the protection of the insured, and if so to what extent.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, what is the cost to the Colony of the publication of the Annual Report of the Department, how many copies of the Report have been published, and what has been the cost of same, and to lay on the Table of the House the bill for the same, and to say, whether in view of the severe financial depression, at the present time, the publication of this Report could not have been abandoned without any serious drawbacks resulting.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister what progress has been made by himself and the Municipal Council in the matter of obtaining a loan of $150,000.00, which loan was refused by the Royal Bank, and if it is the intention of the Government to take any other steps to secure this money for the City.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister what legal advisers were obtained by the Government to ask for it in the drafting of the contract with the Dominion and Nova Scotia Steel Companies now before this House, and what payment was made to them, or is to be made to them for their services in that capacity.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing what amounts were paid as mail subsidies during the Calendar Year 1920 to the following steamers: (a) "Portia," (b) "Prospero," (c) "Kyle," (d) "Meigle," (e) All other steamers engaged in the carriage of mails during that period, and to say the routes or services for which the sums, if any, were paid them.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, whether any decision has yet been reached in the matter of operating a daily cross-country train service during this summer and autumn, and if so what is the decision, also if it is intended to operate such a service, when will it begin, what steamers will be employed on the Cabot Strait route and will the inauguration of such a service curtail the number of locomotives and rolling stock available for other purposes, and generally to set out the reasons influencing the Commission in this matter.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission if his attention has been drawn to a letter in the Evening Telegram of Monday last, signed W. L. Butler, and making very serious charges against the management of the railway system, whether he is aware that Mr. Butler is a certificated locomotive-engineer, of many years experience, whether he considers Mr. Butler's charges sufficiently well founded to order an enquiry into them, and if not, why not and whether he will lay on the Table of the House a report from the Government Engineer, dealing with these accusations of Mr. Butler.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE asked the Minister of Shipping to lay on the Table of the House, the cost of repairs to S.S. "Watchful," S.S. "Seneif," S.S. "Sebastopol," and the S.S. "Malakoff" in detail since their arrival in this country, and who did repairs, and if any contracts were made for said work and the cost of each ship in detail.

MR. MOORE gave Notice of Question.

MR. VINICOMBE gave Notice of Question.

MR. MACDONNELL gave Notice of Question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN gave Notice of Question.

MR. BENNETT gave Notice of Question.

MR. SULLIVAN.—I would like to ask the Prime Minister if anything has been done about the matter under discussion yesterday in connection with Placentia Bay.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—On yesterday Mr. Leonard the Relieving Officer, and the Rev. Fr. Fyde had an interview with me and arrangements were made under which Mr. Jerry Dee now at Placentia was telegraphed to look after the situation in co-operation with the Relieving Officer. Early this morning arrangements were made to send out five barrels of pork and one hundred and fifty on this morning's train. This morning I saw Dr. Campbell and asked him to get in touch with Lady Harris in connection with her nursing scheme and ask her if it were possible to get two nurses to go there to-morrow and look into the medical end of it. Just before lunch I received a letter from Mr. R. H. Devine forwarding some correspondence and intimating the supplies required, and I left instructions for

Mr. Mews to look after the matter during my absence. I feel that the situation is being dealt with in the best possible way.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—With reference to a question asked by Sir John Crosbie regarding the pedigree of cattle, I have just received a communication from the Secretary of the Agricultural Board, and I beg to table it. With respect to question of Sir Michael Cashin No. 8, Order Paper, April 27th, I beg to table information. With regard to question No. 3, Order Paper April 20th, Mr. MacDonnell, I might say, no authority was given Mr. Collishaw and he received no commission in that connection.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—I would like to draw the attention of the House to the fact that there are fifty questions unanswered on Order Papers since the opening of the House as follows:

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Owing to a delay in preparation of the figures in the Estimates, I will not be able to table them before Monday next.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I will get a reply to question No. 1 as soon as possible.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table reply to question No. 2.

DR. BARNES.—I would like to say that the matters referred in Mr. MacDonnell's question to have gone beyond the stage of being under the consideration of the Government, they are now under the consideration of the Department, and are receiving the best possible attention. With regard to the 2nd part of the question I may say that I think it is in the best interest of Education for those officials to take up their work and I hope they will do so.

MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—The information asked for in question 4, has been given Mr. Fox.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the information asked for in question 5.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I have not seen the article referred to in question 6 but Mr. Devine and Mr. Collishaw have no authority to express the opinion of the Government on Prohibition or Tourist License.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table reply to question No. 7.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In reply to question 8 I may say that Life Insurance Companies have to furnish securities, but the securities may be withdrawn if they can furnish other securities of a satisfactory nature to take their place.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I have asked the Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines to furnish me with the figures asked for in question 9.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Question 10 was answered a couple of days ago in reply to some observations of Mr. Bennett. The Royal Bank of Canada would not give the loan unless the Government could deal with the matter this year, and I pointed out that a loan bill for this three hundred and twenty thousand dollars and the hundred and fifty thousand will be brought in.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I beg to say in reply to question 11 that no legal advisers were retained by the Government but the work was done by the Deputy Minister of Justice, Mr. Summers, and Sjr William Lloyd. No amount has been paid to these gentlemen, and no bill has been received from them.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Question 12 is one that will require some preparation and it will be available on to-morrow.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table reply to question 13 and 14.

MINISTER OF SHIPPING.—In reply to question 15 I may say that the information will be available on to-morrow.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I will furnish the information asked for by Mr. Moore. I was searching around this morning for a copy of the information I gave Mr. Fox but I couldn't find it.

MR. MOORE.—What I want to know is this. There was fifty-five thousand dollars voted and there is thirty-nine thousand spent. I do not know how far you have gone with this matter and I would like to know what it will cost to complete the job.

MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—I will get the information.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal 10-11 Geo. V., Cap. 25, entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish."

MR. SPEAKER left the Chair.

MR. SAMSON took the Chair of Committee.

MR. LEWIS.—Mr. Speaker, I beg to ask Mr. Coaker if it is his intention to abandon the export tax.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It is the intention to reduce the amount.

MR. LEWIS.—I crave the indulgence of the House while I make a few remarks on this Bill. We are very pleased to have this Bill come before the House, in as much as the abandonment of the Fish Regulations is a blessing in disguise to Newfoundland. A great deal has been said about these Regulations during the past year and more will have to be said in the years to come, and to my mind the years 1920 and 1921 will go down in the history of Newfoundland to be spoken of by the children in years to come. It was very interesting to hear the Minister of Marine and Fisheries a few days ago when addressing the House, make the statement that he still believed in the Regulations, and giving us his assurance that when the proper time arrives it will be his most earnest wish that the Fish Regulations would again come into force in Newfoundland but in a more restricted form, that is to say that notwithstanding that last year Mr. Coaker was monarch of all he surveyed in this country he is not satisfied, not satisfied with putting a large number of business to the mat, he won't be satisfied till he puts every one there and will not allow any man to dispose of his produce as he desires to. He took for his point the fact certain gentlemen in this town broke through the Regulations and went in quickly and sold their fish, against the best wishes of the Advisory Board, he was dissatisfied because he could not imprison these gentlemen or take from them all that they owned in this country, but if we have in this House in 1922 a Bill passed giving the Minister more power than he had last year, then I think it will be time to abolish this House altogether, because from what we can see to-day and what this country has experienced in having large number of vessels tied up in St. John's and a resulting loss of a considerable amount to the owners, the longshoremen, truckmen, etc., he did as much harm last year as it will take a considerable time to rectify. When we take the short shipments to Brazil, Mr. Coaker may tell us it is due to other reasons, but if it is why did it not happen before and why is it that the men from Halifax and Lunenburg are able to market their fish when we have ours tied up here waiting for something to turn up. Look at the loss to the coopers, longshoremen, truckmen and all the other men of the country. Then again go to Europe and the great drop in prices. Of course a great deal has been said about the Consorzio in Italy, but why Italy kept up this combine and would not allow our fish to go there was because of the Fish Regulations and the Agent we sent there, Mr. Hawes. He was not allowed to sell fish under a certain price to the Italians. Spain was waiting for fish and when the Spaniard's saw that we could not get our fish into Italy they said to themselves we can get Newfoundland fish for a song. Our fish was dumped into Spain and sold there at ruinous prices to the merchants of this country, and what do we find to-day. Only three days ago Newfoundland was informed that the Consorzio has been abandoned, we have orders from Italy for fish at 65 shillings a quintal. Now if it pays to-day to sell fish at 65 shillings a quintal, it should have paid last fall to sell at seventy shillings, and I can say here with authority that one hundred and fifty thousand quintals would have been disposed of since last November at seventy shillings a quintal with a very decent profit to the shippers and our Labrador fish could have been disposed of but that did not suit Mr. Coaker. Now at some future date he wants to bring in a more stringent bill and have it passed and I have no doubt he will not have much trouble in passing it because the Government will support it. The Prime Minister in his remarks a few days ago approved of the Fish Regulations.

THE PRIME MINISTER—I approved of the policy of the Fish Regulations.

MR. LEWIS—The policy of the Regulations and the Regulations themselves when boiled down into the one pot are the same thing, and when we come back to the West Coast and see the mark the Regulations have left there we will have enough of them for all time to come. We can go to Conception Bay and there find hundreds of quintals of fish in the stores unsaleable. In Spaniard's Bay there is one gentleman with two hundred quintals of Shore Fish prepared with the greatest care last year, No. 1 Fish worth one dollar more than the ordinary cure and what happened is that he has two hundred quintals of fish on his hands unsaleable, and you know Mr. Gosse that some of your own dealers still hold part of their fish in their stores in Spaniard's Bay.

MR. GOSSE—You are absolutely wrong there is no man in Spaniard's Bay with his fish on his hands.

MR. LEWIS—We shall see if I am wrong. Anyhow you cannot deny that there is ten thousand quintals of fish unsold in Conception Bay. This is unprecedented. If I remember rightly Mr. Coaker's Organ the Advocate advised the people last year not to be in a hurry to sell their fish, that this Spring shore fish would be at its highest and would demand ten or twelve dollars a quintal. If I am wrong about Spaniard's Bay I am sure I am not wrong about that. Mr. Coaker thought at the time I don't know whether he still thinks it, but I say here that it is a good thing to have the Fish Regulations done away with. I might tell Mr. Coaker that the Mercantile people of the country are watching this Bill, and that they will govern themselves accordingly, and if this Bill had not come in that we would have little or no supplies for the Fishery this year, but when it is passed they will come forward and supply for the Fishery which as you know is absolutely necessary for Newfoundland as she is to-day more or less pauperised.

We have here the members for Placentia and St. Mary's asking for Poor Relief for that district which is unprecedented since 1869, and then we have the assurance of Mr. Coaker that when the proper time comes he will introduce another Bill to enforce Fish Regulations. If he wants to bring about a worse state of conditions in this country than we have already let him do so. But I think that Mr. Coaker will be honest enough once this Bill passes into oblivion to let it stay there, he will not again bring in a Bill to enforce Fish Regulations in this country. Take Penny of Rameo, as an example of the Fish Regulations and that should be sufficient for us as a lesson against interfering with business men in this way. The Regulations have ruined him absolutely. Take Geo. Harris or the Marystown Trading Co., who have lost one half million dollars. The sent one cargo to Oporto which sold there at one dollar a quintal which cost them fifteen dollars a quintal. Other vessels could enter Oporto and have little delay in disposing of their fish, but Harris and Co. had to wait outside and finally had to leave their fish at New Harbor and let it go to Dun. It is not so much the loss to Harris and Co. that matters, because they can come out of it. These gentlemen even if they do go insolvent never go to the poor house, but it is the loss to the Fishermen of Placentia Bay that matters. That company has four hundred boats depending upon them for supplies this summer. Another branch of this firm in Change Islands is in the same position, and it is due to the Regulations, and I say that I am one on this side who is going to give this Bill before the House now my hearty support, and not take the attitude that the gentlemen opposite took to the Amendment brought in by the Opposition. They did not see their way clear to vote for that Amendment, but I am going to support this Bill to the limit, and I hope it is the last we shall see of a Fish Regulations Bill before this House unless times change very much and we might have our fish business nationalized.

I saw in this morning's News that Iceland steam trawlers were coming

ing to hear the Minister of Marine and Fisheries a few days ago when addressing the House, make the statement that he still believed in the Regulations, and giving us his assurance that when the proper time arrives it will be his most earnest wish that the Fish Regulations would again come into force in Newfoundland but in a more restricted form, that is to say that notwithstanding that last year Mr. Coaker was monarch of all he surveyed in this country he is not satisfied, not satisfied with putting a large number of business to the mat, he won't be satisfied till he puts every one there and will not allow any man to dispose of his produce as he desires to. The Prime Minister in his remarks a few days ago approved of the Fish Regulations.

THE PRIME MINISTER—I approved of the policy of the Fish Regulations.

MR. LEWIS—The policy of the Regulations and the Regulations themselves when boiled down into the one pot are the same thing, and when we come back to the West Coast and see the mark the Regulations have left there we will have enough of them for all time to come. We can go to Con-to Newfoundland using our banks. We have already fifty French Trawlers and now we will have fifty Iceland steam trawlers, and the people here who cannot afford steam trawlers will have to go out of business unless this government or the Canadian Government can come to some arrangement with the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. not to supply those trawlers with coal I would suggest to the Minister of Justice to consider this matter and if Sydney is left open to those people, and they are able to catch fish at our doors it is an opportune time for us to protect ourselves and see that there be some restriction put upon these trawlers in going to Sydney and getting coal. That is necessary if we are to be a fishing country and I don't see how we can be anything else. If we don't Newfoundland is going to fail and it looks to me as if she will fail in 1921.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker. After my speech of a few days ago I had not anticipated that I would have much further to say, but I find that I am forced again to more or less review the whole situation with regard to Fish Regulations and their effect on the country to-day. Last evening I asked the adjournment of the debate on this Bill feeling that I was not justified in going ahead with my speech when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was not here. When I moved that this Bill should stand over I made the statement that I thought the Regulations were taken off shortly after Mr. Coaker left the country, and expressly against the wish of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I reiterate that statement in the presence of Mr. Coaker, and I would like to ask him if it is correct.

THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—You are right in a way.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Coaker says I am right and I agree with him that at that time if the Regulations had been kept on some good may have been derived from them. Now I am going to call your attention to another matter that is on my mind. I did not intend to until I heard those voices in the gallery. The man who interrupted me here yesterday is one Robert Avery who with his son is employed by the Minister of Public Works. Now if this thing is going to continue, if it is the desire of the Prime Minister to have this, I hope he will let me know and we will accommodate him. If you Sir do not assert your position in this House and if the speakers on this side are going to be interrupted this House will have to adjourn for the afternoon I now serve notice on these chaps employed by the government to interrupt the speakers on this side. I state my case and I ask you Sir if there is any more of it to remove these gentlemen paid by the government to sit in the gallery. Now I ask the gentlemen who are supporters of the Opposition to give every man a fair chance. You have more right here than Robert Avery or his son who are paid officials of the government, and if I am forced to I will have this adjourned and this matter will be settled for once and all. I will not put up with any more interruptions. I think notice has been served fully and if it should occur again I have something interesting to read of a meeting which took place in the Star office. Amongst the twelve Apostles there was a Judas, and there was probably a Judas at that meeting also. Now Sir, I want to deal with the Fish Regulations and the Bill before this House. I have no soft soap for the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, I have no soft soap for the Prime Minister nor for any man on the other side of the House. What I want to prove to the country is that the statement I made here twelve months ago is correct, and the Fish Regulations as the Bill was passed here last Session have brought this country to a state of absolute collapse. I do not care to go all over the West Coast again, and it has been said in this House that the Opposition had no right to bring a man's private business into the House. I will now tell George Penny's story under his own signature, the story of the Edith Cavelle. I shall read a letter appearing in this evening's Telegram and it is the worst frightfulness I have yet heard of. It is the worst castigation your Ministry has got since you have got in power. If what Mr. Penny states is correct he stands to lose seventy thousand dollars owing to the regulations and not a blush appears on the face of any one, (reads letter). I have heard a great deal about the Edith Cavell's cargo before. I hear that Mr. Penny had been treated pretty bad but I never dreamt that it was really as I heard it. It is preposterous. I do not believe that Trotsky in Russia could attempt anything like this. This statement coming under the signature of Mr. Penny is the worst charge yet heard in this country. No wonder the residents of Rammea cannot get supplies and with their finger in their mouth are looking for some one to help them. All of this is entirely due to the regulations. Many firms have been put out of existence by what is known as government control and yet we are told that the regulations are correct. Because of the regulations many were forced into a hole and not allowed to sell their cargoes of fish with a good profit. Now I would like to come round to that famous place called Marystown. I heard one of the serious discussions yesterday on the conditions existing in Placentia Bay. I stated to the government that it was not possible to realize the condition of affairs existing there. Yesterday I said I was not going to lay the blame for everything on the government and the regulations, but I am of the opinion to-day that if the regulations had not been passed last year not one ounce of able bodied relief would be required to-day, and I will prove that in a few words. Take the case of the West Coast schooners being loaded by Harris of the Marystown Trading Company and then sailing to Oporto but they were only allowed to enter the harbor of Leixoes and were kept there until the fish became dung and was then given to the Portuguese farmers to be used as fertilizer and then the Prime Minister tells us the regulations were good, but I do not think he was serious.

This Marystown Trading Company took hundreds of quintals of fish from the fishermen of Placentia Bay and promised to pay for it in January, February and March and the result is that the fishermen of that district are today owed for sixty thousand quintals of fish and instead of living on their own money they are receiving able bodied relief from the government. All due to the regulations. The government did not take our advice and numerous merchants have been driven to the wall as the result of their enforcement and of course the fishermen suffer even worse. They were so headstrong and determined to place the yoke of depression on the country that they ignored our advice. Let me now come round to Hermitage Bay, and the same conditions exist there and also in Fortune Bay. The people not paid for their fish. Let me cite one case of a man who sold his fish to the Marystown Trading Company, putting him in credit to the amount of thirteen hundred dollars and a few days ago he went to that Company, and asked for a barrel of flour and he was told he had to pay cash for it. And notwithstanding this big credit this man today is in the state of poverty all due to the fishery regulations. I understand that one man never received one dollar for thirty five hundred quintals of fish he sold. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries knows that every statement I have made is correct. But this cargo of the General Bobs is only one of many and do you think we can sit still here in golden silence without expressing our opinions on the matter. What effect had the regulations on St. John's? Why, go to the Municipal Council office and you will find coopers, mechanics and others looking for work. The coopers could not sell a drum in this city last year, and I have my store filled with them, because I had to help them out. Yet we are told the regulations are good. To-day the coopers will sell their drums for anything. Still we are told that it was a good thing that such a Bill as those authorising the regulations to enforce upon a free and independent people was the right thing to have done. Then I come to the district of Port de Grave which I have the honour to represent and the fishermen there have had to hold their fish and to-day they are receiving able bodied relief owing to the cursed regulations. I know of what I am talking. If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will come to that district I will introduce him to the conditions existing there. Then when you find the result there owing to the fact that they could not sell their fish you will feel as I feel that the regulations were a serious mistake. I now want to take you on to Spaniard's Bay in the district of Harbour Grace. I have some information here in my possession which may be interesting to Mr. Gosse. This man asks me to store on my premises for the coming summer his fish which he has been unable to sell. And his name was one time mentioned as being a member of this House. He could get no one to buy his fish and he had a considerable quantity of it. Did you Mr. Gosse ask Moses Young to sell his fish to you? Go down to that place called Lower Island Cove and you will find the same thing. The people there are receiving able bodied relief. The relieving officer will easily prove it to you if you question my word. All again due to the fact that the people's fish could not be sold. If you Mr. Gosse tried to buy it, I say go over again and see if they will not sell

If they do not grant them pauper's relief. You ought not then be part and parcel to doing out the people's money in pauper's relief if they will not sell their fish. Conception Bay stands in the same position as Placentia Bay and down in Spaniard's Bay there are not twenty families not receiving able bodied relief. They did not have the pull with Mr. Coaker that is the trouble. I am speaking in a fair minded manner and I can truthfully say I never supported the regulations. I saw the trouble coming in the distance and I knew that it was utterly impossible to escape it. I told the Minister of Marine and Fisheries he was on the wrong road and he was in the hands of Philistines and he knows I was correct. White naped fish. The Minister knows that no one would take that kind of fish. The white naped Labrador was a farce. When the blackness of the fish was washed away and it had lost its originality not one could be persuaded it came from Newfoundland. I remember I was in Liverpool on the 18th of August last year I was brought down to a gentleman's fish store there and he said there were one hundred of fish brought over from Newfoundland, and I asked him where did the fish come from. And he said he did not like it as he could not sell it. The reason was the blackness had been washed off and the fish lost their originality. I shipped some of this fish across last year, and it was the only fish that did not come to the quality required and I was asked not to send any more of it. I do not know much about the shore white naped fish. I only saw out of thirty thousand quintals about thirty quintals of white naped shore fish. Nobody paid any attention to it. These are some of the things the fishermen of the North are complaining of. The fishermen sent down this kind of fish having been told they would get one dollar more for it than for any other kind but when they come to get paid for it they found it was thrown in with the rest and they had all their trouble for nothing. The white napes are like the regulations a nuisance. Let me travel into Trinity Bay. But I must first refer to Bay de Verde. I am sorry the Minister of Shipping is not here now. In that district numerous men are receiving able bodied relief all because of the regulations. Those men down there who three years ago were well to do now have to hang their heads in shame. In Bay de Verde proper where the men are industrious and enterprising they cannot get supplies not even a barrel of flour. They cannot do anything as they have lost their all. The merchants down there cannot supply until some merchant here help them out. They cannot help themselves. Now we come to Bay de Verde. First there is Grate's Cove, which never received one dollar of poor relief until to-day when they are seeking all the relief they can get. Why? Because of the regulations. Then you come to Old Perlican where not one is ready for the fishery and they have no intention of prosecuting the voyage at all. Then we come to Caplin Cove where they are not going to supply at all. Only one man has been shipped down there. All the men of Lower Island Cove have gone to Port au Port to get work as there will be no fishery there as no supplies can be gotten. A few months back down on the North Shore all the fish was going to be bought because the votes were wanted but the promises were quickly forgotten. To-day although they have lots of fish to sell they are receiving able bodied relief. The men of that place were usually well to do as they came here and got plenty of work but now there is not enough for men of the city. All the same conditions prevail in Trinity Bay. All the men there with schooners and motor boats cannot get any supplies. There was not a country in the world two years ago with the same population as Newfoundland that was in the same position. We stood unique and could face years of bad business. But one year of Fish Regulations took all we had, and more, and to-day the mercantile men are like the small outport business men—they are unable to do supplying and collapse is at our door. Let me take you now to Bonavista Bay which the Minister of Marine and Fisheries knows so well. He knows the state of chaos that exists and that the men of the North side of the Bay cannot come here to St. John's and obtain supplies. Relief is being given out at Wesleyville to an extent unknown for 20 years. At other points where the men have their boats, nets and everything else ready they cannot prosecute the fishery because they cannot get supplies. Why? Simply because the men who formerly conducted their own business and shipped their fish across, have met their Waterloo and have no money to carry on supplying as in the past. It is all due to the notorious regulations. I do not know much of Green Bay but I do know this, as I am absolutely cognizant of the fact, that the small merchant has met his Waterloo and can no more do supplying than the man in Bonavista Bay. He met it through the regulations, and the herring business no doubt helped somewhat, but the regulations were the greatest factor in taking his business out of his hands and putting it into those of men who know nothing about it. There is one thing I do not fear to express and it is this: I honestly believe that Mr. Coaker did it all, with the best of intentions. In my own mind I am sure he thought he could carry out the proposition. But when he saw that he was wrong he had a right to call the regulations off. If he was a big man he would have taken them off the first day of last October and not be doing it to-day as it was written on the wall, it was a sign all over Water St. that if they were continued after Oct. 1st. there could be nothing but disaster. We have been told they would have worked if there had not been some people to oppose them. That is as untrue as it can be. The regulations were already doomed, they were dying from the day they were passed in this House as it was utterly impossible to beat one of the greatest things in the world—the law of supply and demand, which big men if they were such, should have seen. The Hon. Minister of Marine, Mr. Coaker, sees the weak spot in the regulations, he sees that it is impossible to carry them out, and he comes in here with the Bill to remove them from the Statutes. He has played the part of a man and I give him credit for doing that when he realized it was impossible to carry on. He had not the heart to say he believed in them as the Prime Minister said he did.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I believe in the regulations but the way they were operated was horrible.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—As chairman of the Advisory Board, Mr. Coaker, you should be ashamed to have operated them that way. I am glad Mr. Squires has been converted to my ideas.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I do not believe in the way the regulations were worked last year.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Alright—and if we have not agreed on anything in the session already, we do so now and can make our bows to each other.

But, Mr. Coaker, you have taken them off too late. You have removed the standardization, the inspectors and the commissioners and I trust you will now try to make up what we have lost. I appreciate your act in coming in here and admitting the flat failure by the Advisory Board during the last 12 months. I would like to ask the Hon. Minister a few questions, as this is one thing on which we agree as shown by his recent remarks. I never believed in Mr. Hawes and it was an unfortunate day when the Minister fell by the roadside with him. It was not unfortunate for me but it was for the country and him, as Mr. Hawes took the pound of flesh off him as he did off the others. If I had been on the Advisory Board I would not have allowed him to do it. Now, Sir, I say I cannot go gack on the broad principles that were bred in me and I want to state, in the House or out of it, that outright sales are the best and in my experience I have made it a rule that when I put up my goods I was paid for it.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—You are a Coaker man now.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—No. I know I taught you that principle but you have not learned the lessons. You put the taxes on Portugal, Italy, Greece and New York but left Spain open for him to get the drop on you. If you had taken my lessons to heart you would never have allowed Mr. Hawes to do that but would have put Spain on the same list and made them pay the same as the others. I will tell you of one man from Trinity Bay whom I helped out of trouble with a cargo. He was in great difficulty but I went to the Court House with him and rather than see him go astray paid him $58,000 and took the fish. We sent it across but the sale was cancelled. You, Sir, had also loaded a vessel in Trinity Bay.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It was loaded at Fogo.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Alright, Fogo will do. During the time it was on the way across, Hawes and I negotiated for the cargo. My vessel arrived one day before yours. Now this will show the result of greed. Hawes said to me, "give me the cargo and I will get you a good price for it." I said that's very nice of you. He said, "I will give you $2/6 for it outright but if you will let me sell it on consignment I will get you 95/--." I told him to take it outright and get the others on consignment. The result was that I got my hard money. No doubt Hawes himself told you the story. He probably put the same proposition to you and you fell for it as you were anxious to get a few dollars more. Of course I would not be so ambitious, simply because I was afraid I would not get it. The two cargoes went in and were sold. I sold outright and I tell you now that I got $2/6 and you got 52/-- on your consignment.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—You might have got it but he put it over on the others.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You were looking for the last stick in the ditch. I am heart and soul with you to-day in favoring outright sales as it is the only way in which we can handle our business.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I agree with you.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—We want the brightest minds we have to fill the bill and the only way we can deal with the situation is by the brightest brains taking hold of the situation and showing no favors to any concerned. If none had been shown under the regulations the results would have been different. The trouble was with the Advisory Board, and if they had been as fair to the public as to themselves, and not so selfish, the disaster would not be so great. This statement can go out to them now. You, Mr. Minister of Marine, and I have got down to the same line of thought in some respects but how you were influenced to let Spain be an open market has been a mystery to me. You handled Oporto, Italy, Greece and Brazil under control and the only reason I can see as to Spain is that Hawes demanded of the Advisory Board that it should be free and it was done.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—The reason was that it was looked upon as a dumping ground for fish not saleable in the other markets as they had cold storage there.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—That is what it was alright. But even if they had cold storage there were we justified in leaving Spain out of control of the regulations.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I agree that it should have been under control.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—The men on the Board then were Mr. Hawes' best friends and he had everything his own way. The only thing I fear is that the same will be done in Greece where outright sales were made and that Hawes will upset the appercart there for every firm doing business with Labrador fish. And you, Mr. Minister, will be as much upset with your Trading Co., etc., as the others, by Hawes getting a hold on Greece.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I quite agree with you.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—He has got a hold on Italy, a hold that none can understand, and he has an army of men employed to take charge of this country's fish, as you and I know. I always sold in Oporto cash against documents in London but to-day this cannot be done. This is due to the way in which the Advisory Board handled them so as to bring disaster on the country. Now you and I, Mr. Minister, agree that something should be done to help the country over this trying situation, to aid the fishermen, coopers, laborers and others who are out of employment and to keep the streets free of those who are walking around. This is a most delicate question. Am I right.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—You are.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Now I want you, Mr. Minister, with the aid of the Government to devise some scheme to beat that crowd and when you are ready I am prepared to come in and cut the corners of it and string it out. I do not intend to prolong the discussion further this afternoon but I hope I have left some ideas in the mind of the Minister. He knows of the collapse which threaten us and as I told you just now he should try to devise some scheme to get us out of our troubles. If he will do something to tide us over our difficulties, to help his fellow countrymen in distress, I will do all I can to help him. I say that something must be done to save the fisheries of Newfoundland. I blame the Fish Regulations for the state of the country to-day and I know that I am right. I am trying to get something into your mind, Mr. Minister, as there is no one else in the Government who has the energy or understands the position enough to do anything, and I hope you will go to the Executive with something that they can take hold of. I am trying to give you something to lay before the Executive that will be beneficial to the country. I will not tell to the House how the situation can be remedied, as my brains would be stolen and the Advocate and Star would be out to-morrow saying this is what the Government is doing. Now, Mr. Minister, how do you propose to handle Hawes?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—You have already told us; by outright sales.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—But do you know how to do it without getting every business man in the country upset.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—No, I do not.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—But I do;

still I can't tell you here as the Star and Advocate would give the Government the credit.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It can't be published as they cannot get the papers out at present.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—No, they are up against a demand for a 44 hour week or they would be out. But I had no more to do with this situation, or the strike of 'Longshoremen than the Minister of Shipping who paid the men the Union rate of wages on the Portia.

The only reason the Minister agreed to pay what the 'Longshoremen wanted was because they were a larger body than the poor unfortunate printers. I have got away from the Fish Regulations, Mr. Chairman and I apologize. I still say that something has got to be done to save the Colony from absolute bankruptcy and what is more it has to be done through the medium of our main industry, the codfishery. It will take the brightest mind we have to-day to devise some scheme whereby we can do this and after that scheme has been thought out perhaps we can get the lawyers to draft something that will meet the situation. Prices for our fish must be in some way stabilized and supplies for the coming season must be got out and I would advise the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if there is a man in his Government or if there is a man in the country equal to the occasion, to get him. You must get together and discuss this thing in all its phases and then formulate some concrete plan which, however, must have as its basis the principle of outright sales for fish. That is the goal which you must keep before you; outright sales must be the crux of the entire situation, and as I opposed the Fish Regulations when they came before this House last year, just so strongly will I support anything that will have for its object the establishing of outright sales now. How it is going to be done I do not know but done it must be if the Colony is to be saved. I want to say to the Hon. the Prime Minister that as he himself said, he took full responsibility for these Regulations which was perfectly right, but the time is now come when he and his brother executives must take matters more seriously and not alone be prepared to take their share of responsibility after the thing has been done but they must interest themselves in evolving something concrete to meet the demands of the time and I ask him this evening to get his Government together without loss of time and see that this is done.

MR. MACDONNELL.—Mr. Chairman, I thought a few days ago when the Amendment was brought in by the Leader of the Opposition that it was a pity those who believed in the repeal of the Regulations did not vote for it, but I am not convinced that it was a good thing they did not do so because the consideration of the Bill since its introduction has brought forth many things of interest in connection with the question which we did not know before. I don't know if it has been the same with other members, but what has struck me most forcibly was the contradictory nature of the opinions expressed by members on both sides of the House irrespective of whether they were Government or Opposition. I said in the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that I thought when he took full responsibility for the Regulations as he did, and charged himself with seeing them worked out that he was very venturesome, and I think it will be admitted that when he stood up here in his place and admitted his failure to realize the aim he had in view, it was one of the finest things ever seen in this House. I understand that on that occasion that from the first the Regulations were looked upon as but an artificial prop by means of which the markets could be sustained temporarily, and when he said that I thought that he was expressing the opinion of all the members on the other side, but when the Prime Minister said that in his opinion the Regulations were right—

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I said I believed the policy was right.

MR. MACDONNELL.—When the Prime Minister said that the policy, which the Minister of Fisheries described as an artificial prop, was a sound one, where are we? If I believed that the Regulations were right, then I should certainly not vote for their discontinuance because an accident prevented their proper and successful working out and when the Prime Minister takes such an attitude it is difficult to see the logic of his position; indeed most of us are left completely at sea. Surely, Mr. Chairman, we are not going to have the spectacle in this House of persons believing in one thing and voting for another.

It seems to be the concensus of opinion amongst those best qualified to judge that the best way to market our fish is according to the natural direction of supply and demand. If the Regulations were an artificial prop, as the Minister of Fisheries said they were, then how is it that Sir John Crosbie now suggests still other regulations to control the export of our fish and the Minister agrees with him? Are we to have more artificial props; are we to have further interference with the Colony's trade? I for one will want to be shown good reason for such legislation before I will support. I think, Sir, that we have had enough of artificial props in the past to do us for some time. I think, too, that the opinion of all right thinking men is that the Government, having got the fishermen in the hole and having ruined many business houses, should now seriously set themselves to consider some means of getting them out of the difficulty but let them take care that in formulating regulations now to remedy the evils brought about by those of the past, they do not make matters still worse.

I did not intend, Mr. Chairman, to have anything to say on this matter until I heard still further regulations spoken of. It is the consensus of opinion amongst business men that it is not desirable there should be any further interference with trade in any way and that is why they are slow in supplying for the fishery this spring. They are waiting to see what this House is going to do and I do not think that anything of the kind should be considered for a moment. There was more than a hint in this House this afternoon that further regulations were likely to be considered but it should not be forgotten that the fight that was waged against those that we are now about to repeal was based on the contention that they were against free trade and that argument is just as strong to-day as it ever was. I voted for them last year after the Minister of Fisheries had agreed to put in a protective clause safeguarding the interests of my district, and Mr. Chairman, in this connection I want to say that I always found him willing to do anything in his power to enable the people of that District to carry on their trade with Canada and the United States without interference. I am glad to be in a position to be able to do that but on the other hand I am sorry to be in the position to have to ask as a favor that which is mine by right. I am clear and straight on this matter. I think there should be no more regulations of any sort and I will oppose any measure that may be brought in which will mean interference with free trade. Now, Mr. Speaker, I know nothing whatever of the marketing of fish but there are certain economic theories in which I believe and it is from these that I speak. There are men in this House to whom we can safely entrust the practical side of the question but as to the economical aspect of it I think it is only fair for any man to state his position and I am still of the opinion that any buyer who pays the price that is asked of him has a perfect right to sell where and how he can get the best returns for what he has to place on the market. If he is prevented from doing this, is it not reasonable for him to refuse to buy at all. Another point is that which has to do with the Italian market. Is it not correct that because of the Regulations and the friction which resulted therefrom between this country and the Consorzio, the best marketing time in that country was lost to us and that consequently 100,000 quintals of Labrador fish which would otherwise have gone into consumption was not disposed of? Was it not, therefore, the logical consequence that subsequent fish shipments that would ordinarily be destined for the Italian market began to become congested and the sale of practically 200,000 quintals lost? I hope the honorable minister will clear up that point. My sole idea in making these few remarks is to ask him to keep awake to the fact that Regulations again after our bitter experience of the past would be absolutely inexcusable. It was all very well for the Minister of Fisheries to come in here last year with Regulations and tell the House that he had given them close study and that he had estimated and felt convinced of the good results that would accrue from their enforcement. I have no doubt that he was serious in what he professed to believe, but what I cannot hold with him in is that he did not have them cancelled immediately it was seen that the result must be disastrous instead of beneficial. He saw this not later than September and he should have abolished them then. This year, however, the position is an entirely different one and there is no explanation that any hon. member could give for again voting for Regulations, not the old Regulations but new ones under the same guise. While I support the Bill now before the House, I trust that the hon. minister will be content to allow trade to continue without further interference.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Mr. Chairman, I just want to explain the difference that would exist between a policy such as Sir John Crosbie suggests and the Regulations which we are now about to repeal. In the case of the Regulations it is true that outright sales were insisted on but the price was also fixed below which no fish could be sold, but his idea is that outright sales be enforced, which simply means that no fish could go from here unless it was already sold, what the price received might be would make no difference. Why, if we send our vessels to Barbados for molasses we have to ask what the price will be and then before it is taken out of the vessel the money must be paid into the bank, but our fish goes there without any price being fixed on it and we are paid whatever the brokers like to give us, months after it is discharged, and for the past few months we have been receiving only $1.18 for fish going there. It will thus be seen that there is all the difference in the world between outright sales only and the old Regulations. What caused the big trouble with the latter was that we fixed the price at which fish should sell in the different markets and there is a vast difference between that and insisting that the fish must be sold before it is allowed to go forward. We must have something to protect the industry, but of course if a man wants to sell at forty shillings or fifty shillings, that is his business. What we tried to prevent by the Regulations was cutting prices but it proved impossible to do even that because the Regulations were in many cases ignored altogether. Now Sir, if we cannot be assured of getting good money for our fish, how can we go to the banks and ask them to make advances. That is what happened Harris and others who failed. They sold on consignment and being unable to realize on the fish that they had sent out, they were refused money by the banks. It was consignments that killed these people and it was consignments that built up Hawse's business in Spain and now enables him to extend his activities to Greece where he is now building big cold storage plants. He will say to five or six of his friends here "I will look after your fish and get you the best price obtainable" and they will send cargoes on consignment and therefore he will have nothing to do with outright sales. Greece is the best market we have for Labrador fish; Greece has been the salvation of the shipper of Labrador fish. I made $30,000 on a cargo of fish sent to Greece, but of course I lost $25,000 on another in a different market. Consignments mean that the trade has no foundation because there is no money guaranteed. If you know just what you are getting for your fish, there is a certain confidence that is otherwise absent, and if we cannot establish that confidence, we are lost. We must make sure that Hawse does not get his grip on our fish the coming season. He is now worth $2,000,000, made off Newfoundland cargoes for the most part and that is not all, he sends a share of the profits back here to the men whom he let in on the ground floor, the men who are his particular friends and whose fish takes precedence over all the others. If I send a cargo of fish to be sold thru him, mine is put in the store while other cargoes are immediately put into consumption and Mr. Hawes says you can take 90s. while others get 110s. the latter being for those particular friends. We know just what is going on and when you hear Sir John Crosbie and myself discussing these matters, you have men who know what they are talking about. I realize that if we were to introduce such a measure as that suggested, we would have the biggest men on Water Street getting together to oppose it just as they set out last year to smash the Regulations, but nevertheless, if we could enforce it we would be protecting at least three fourths of the business people of the country.

MR. MACDONNELL—Mr. Chairman, I thank the honorable minister for his explanation. That explanation has been fruitful in many ways, not the least notable of which is that it confirms, even though after such a long time, the suspicion that there was in reality such a thing as a ground floor in connection with the Regulations. Another thing to be considered is that if the salvation of the country lies in outright sales, and if conditions in Spain and Greece are as has been stated, how does this knowledge improve our situation; how are those large exporters going to avoid selling as Mr. Hawes says they must?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Mr. Hawes does not control the whole of these markets.

MR. MACDONNELL—But have you not a two-years contract with him?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Yes but I have given him notice of my intention to cancel it.

MR. MACDONNELL—Then a law permitting the cancellation of that agreement is to be brought in. Mr. Chairman, I think that bears out the stand we on this side of the House took last year, and the confirmation comes from no less a person than the Minister of Marine and Fisheries himself, that it is a dangerous precedent to place so much power in the hands of one man, whether he be Mr. Hawes or anyone else. I am glad the honourable Minister has seen the error of his ways and I trust that he will be as energetic now in opposing the schemes of Mr. Hawes as he was last year in lauding him for his virtues. We all know that Mr. Coaker was the main spring of the mechanism that worked our down-fall last year and as without that mainspring the mechanism is useless, let us hope that things will be different in the future and that immediate steps will be taken to ensure the interests of at least three fourths of the people of the country will be looked after.

MR. LEWIS—Mr. Chairman, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries says that he is strongly convinced of the efficiency of outright sales, but he should not forget that Mr. Hawes is a very powerful man in Spain. He controls all the cold storage plants there and if he gets up against us in that market we are likely to be confronted with difficulties not unlike those which we had to face in Italy the past year. From what I know, he controls practically all the purchases in Spain and now he is extending his activities and his influence to Greece and if he takes a firm stand against our fish he can make it very awkward for us in both these markets. Outright sales are all right but on the other hand if we antagonise the markets we are placing ourselves in a delicate position. It is true that Sir John Crosbie might have made outright sales, but all exporters cannot do the same. A grave mistake was made last year and if we again attempt to interfere with the export trade by legislation this year, another mistake might be made and one that may have equally as disastrous results. I thoroughly agree with Mr. MacDonnell in the contention that we should have free trade. If a man is free to ask as he thinks fit and fails, then he has only himself to blame but if restrictions are placed upon him he cannot be blamed if he refuses to take the risk of what these restrictions may mean to his business. I trust that the hon. minister will consider well these circumstances before committing this House to any legislation enforcing a policy of outright sales and that he will bear in mind the fact that Mr. Hawes is a powerful factor in Spain, Italy and Portugal as he will likewise be in a very short time in Greece.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—

Just a word Mr. Chairman, with regard to Spain. About 300,000 quintals of fish goes there and of this amount Hawes handles some 200,000 quintals. The other larger importers are Lazo and Campos. The latter formerly took about 100,000 quintals of our fish, but when Hawes went there he took much of that business from Campos. During the last eighteen months, however, a great deal of it has come back. Before Mr. Hawes did much business in Spain, there were thirty or so importers there and most of these bought outright, paying thru London but now you can't get an offer on these terms. Norway which was in the past a strong competitor of ours in that market is now practically out of running. From information to hand it seems that the row between that country and Spain has ended in Norway's defeat and the Spaniard's have placed an additional 12 pesetas import tax on Norwegian fish which will mean their almost entire exclusion from the Spanish market. This means to us that we will now be able to sell our fish in Bilbao and Barcelona which formerly bought largely of the Norwegian product, and we should in future find it possible to market an extra 200,000 quintals of fish in Spain.

Another thing I want to point out is that Spain is not the same as Italy. Hawes might be powerful there but so long as there are other importers he cannot control the whole market. Italy on the other hand could only be reached thru one man. I agree with Capt. Lewis that anything we may propose to do must be given serious consideration but in the meantime it must be borne in mind that the failure of the Regulations was attributable to one or two causes and that had we worked together for the common interest the outcome would have been very different.

The Opposition press did all in its power to defeat the object we had in view by encouraging those outside not to buy our fish and the foreign markets had their eyes open and acted accordingly. Regulations such as we had last year are not desirable again, but we can have regulations enforcing outright sales. I saw an account sales to-day of fish that went to Spain last year and for which the shipper received only three dollars a quintal. A good price was paid for it in the first instance, something like $0 or 90 pesetas, but the expenses were so enormous that three dollars was all the man that owned it could get for it. It simply meant that the fellow to whom it was consigned actually took the fish. Now this kind of thing must not be allowed to continue and I see no other hope for it than to enforce outright sales unless we nationalise our fishery and cut politics out of the question altogether. In that way every man would get a good price for his fish and I believe that if the government controlled all exports, we would always come out with a very fair average. In my experience on exporting I have found that you will make a profit on fish shipped up to December and meet a loss on that shipped after January. If we sent just sufficient quantities and no more that could be remedied.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Pro-fiteering Act, 1920" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Speaker, a few days ago I drew the attention of the Prime Minister to the fact that the income tax was being collected from clergymen and the Prime Minister promised to bring the matter before the Assessor and have the practice discontinued, but I find that forms and requests for payment are still being sent out to them.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—I am obliged to Sir Michael for making me aware of that fact and I shall have it attended to at once. It was the intention to bring in a Bill in the Budget stage to amend the Act in this respect.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE tabled correspondence between the government and the Commercial Cable Co.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Speaker, this is a serious matter. I was quite serious when I told the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs that he could collect fifty or sixty thousand dollars from this company, and I think that by this time it is nearer $200,000. The Anglo American Company owes his department to-day at least $160,000 or $150,000. The proposition was twenty and two for all business in and out of the colony. Surely if the Commercial Company can take care of two hemispheres they can take care of us. If you are going to allow them to come in here and pay only for landing the cable then you are not doing your duty. That is all they are paying for; they do not pay for the business they do. They lost their case last year and had to pay you $180,000 and now they come in here and do business and you are not able to collect the tax from them.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—The leader of the Opposition has taken it upon himself to make certain hints with regard to this cable tax. My knowledge of the matter is this: One of the first things undertaken by the National Government on taking charge was to try and collect the Cable taxes. Sir M. P. Cashin thought that pressure should be brought to bear and thereupon it was determined that six months' notice be given them to pay up but there was not a written agreement by which we could force them to pay this amount of which Sir Michael speaks. He tried to do it himself and failed.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—There was a letter. ..

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—If there is we cannot find it. If we could find that agreement we would have no trouble in collecting it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—I bet I could collect it in forty-eight hours. It was brought to your notice last year that this money could be collected and you laughed at it and now you are trying to put the blame on me.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—You didn't know how to collect it yourself. You didn't know it was worth anything to us; you just continued on with the Anglo.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Did you know why we got no revenue. No, but we got it till the cable across the Gulf was dropped. Go on and give us the information if you can. You can't, and you got none at all from the Anglo yet.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—(Reads article).

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Who wrote that?

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—It is the opinion of a man who knew what he was talking about. I do not know who it was.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—The man who wrote that was crazy, and I would not use it if I were you. Here you are, getting up and reading a thing like that and yet you don't even tell us who the author of it is.

MR. HIGGINS—I will tell you about the Anglo.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—Please allow me to proceed. The writer of that article was an operator. He says in one part of it here that his chief stood behind him.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—Is it the Liquor Controller?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—He must have had a script.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—This is no laughing matter. It was the most colossal blunder to cut the connections with the Commercial Company.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—You know nothing at all about it.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPH—You could not collect the tax—the 20 and 2 you have been talking about. You got notice verbally that the agreement would terminate in 1917, but you could not collect it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—I couldn't, because it was not collectable.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—You made the greatest blunder in the history of any administration.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Sit down—you are foolish to read and depend on an article written by an irresponsible individual.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-

GRAPHS—You can get knowledge by talking to some understrapper of the Anglo who will tell you that you can do this and that. I am trying to show you where you made the big mistake and you are not big enough to admit it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—You brought all this criticism on yourself. I will have you removed from this House if you do not get that $80,000. A few days ago it was said that there were imbeciles in the House and now you are proving it by your conduct. You should have been arrested and kept out of the House if only for your own benefit. You know they refused to pay the tax. If they had not been compelled to pay, the Anglo would have refused and could have gone back over their accounts for years and demanded the return of what they had already paid. But we took the case to the Supreme Court and won. Then it was brought to the Privy Council where it was delayed a year and a half. You got back the tax and then the Anglo had to pay up. If the Commercial Co. had won that case you would have been deprived of all the taxes. We had to give 6 months' notice to the Commercial Co. to clear out. They did so and we grounded the cable at Port aux Basques and there it is to this day. The Anglo made us an offer of 20 and 2.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELE-GRAPHS—Have you anything in writing to show to that effect?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—No, but I got it down in my memory which is better and you can get the money if you will be humble enough to let me tell you how. Of if you like, Mr. Geo. W. Le-Mesurier can tell you. By your blundering you are depriving the colony of $200,000 a year. You don't know what you are able to get or how to go about it and yet you get up here and read such an article as you did a few moments ago. I drew the attention of Mr. Coaker to this matter last year, not in debate but in a social way after closing, and said some $60,000 was still outstanding. He promised to look into it but evidently forgot it. You can make that contract yet if you know how.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS—I dare say that it could be done conditionally and I have no doubt but the Commercial Co. would agree if it would be beneficial to them. You, Sir M. P. Cashin failed to collect it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—It was not due till the end of the fiscal year.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS—It was due 18 months, six months longer than the fiscal year. You say you couldn't collect the taxes; then why did you discontinue their business. You had to pounce on them and that is where the mistake was made. Mr. Saunders or whoever the local superintendent is may think you can make arrangements whereby you will get the 20 and 2 with the Anglo. If you can't do it with the Commercial but can with the Anglo I think it should be done.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—I think I know something about this cable business and I regret that Hon. Mr. Halfyard should be the one to foul his own nest. As I take it Sir M. P. Cashin is only giving him advice in a friendly way, and I lied the way in which the Attorney General suggested that the matter not be discussed, he feeling it a nice thing to be told how to get $80,000. There is no question as to the need of it to-day. The whole thing was done under the National Government who decided on their course and that was an arrangement with the Anglo. I know the amount is due us and can be collected. I myself, saw Sir Thos. Shaughnessy in Canada and Mr. Robinson was also sent and we all thought the only thing to do was to force the Commercial Co. But Mr. Stott, the superintendent, was afraid of theirs and did not favor it. I can tell the whole story from A to Z and I don't think Mr. Halfyard, that you know anything at all about it.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPH—That is the trouble; the Postmaster General was not consulted.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You were in the government, you were a responsible minister, but you gave them a law unto themselves in providing a committee to deal with the matter. Why don't you go down and ask Rt. Hon. Sir Wm. Lloyd about it; he will be able to tell you alright.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPH—He knows nothing of it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—I'm sorry if he has lost his memory. I am also sorry for Mr. Halfyard. Sir M. P. Cashin only addressed him in a friendly way and he should take the advice as the Attorney-General suggested at the close of Sir Michael's remarks.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—I wish to move the adjournment of the House, Mr. Speaker. The discussion for the last three quarters of an hour has been out of order.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, May 6th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

MR. LEGROW.—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the Naval Reserve men with regard to Prize Money, and I ask that this petition be referred to the Department to which it belongs and be given due consideration.

MR. WINSOR.—I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Squid Tickle asking for two hundred dollars to build a bridge, and two hundred and fifty dollars to repair a road. I also wish to present a petition from Happy Adventure asking for three hundred and fifty dollars for a road. I ask that these petitions be referred to the department to which they belong and that they receive the consideration of the Government.

MR. ABBOTT.—I wish to support the petition presented by my colleague, Mr. Winsor.

MR. SCAMMELL.—I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Fleur de Lys asking for postal communication and a telegraph office. I support the petition and ask that it be referred to the department to which it belongs and that it receive the consideration of the Government.

MR. ABBOTT.—I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of St. Brendan's asking for the sum of five hundred dollars to build a road from Shalloway Cove to the Catholic Church, and another petition from Shalloway Cove asking for five hundred dollars to repair a road there. This petition is largely signed and I ask that it be given the consideration of the Government.

MR. WINSOR.—I wish to support the petition presented by Mr. Abbott.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN gave notice of question.

MR. HIGGINS gave notice of question.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I will get a reply to question No. 1 on the Order Paper to-morrow.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—The reply to question 2 will be prepared as quickly as possible.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I have not seen the article in the Western Star and referred to in question 3 and the matter has not come before Minute of Council so far. I asked Dr.

Campbell about the matter and he has not seen the article in question.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I may say that no instructions have been issued with regard to Standardization, but it is understood that it is not enforced and shippers are now shipping fish in their own way.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—With regard to question 5 the reply has already been given in answer to another question.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—There has been no answer to question about salt landed at Port Union, and we asked about the President Coaker's cargo and received no answer. I will allow this matter to stand over until Monday and then if they are not answered I will take other means to have them answered. We won't put up with evasive answers.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if in conformity with his pledge at the last session of the House that Captain Fenn, Captain English and Mr. Collins (Marconi Superintendent) would be appointed a commission in connection with aids to navigation, especially along the Southern Shore and vicinity of Cape Race, if these gentlemen were so appointed; if so, did they proceed with their investigation and make a report thereon, and if they did to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the said report, together with a statement of what action, if any, the Government proposes to take to give effect to their recommendation?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Mr. Speaker, in reply to that question I would like to say that no report has been sent in. They had to investigate the conditions on the Southern Shore. Captain English was in charge of the Commission. The Commission was appointed last summer.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Have you any idea, Sir, when the Commission will send in a report. You will remember we talked this matter over when we were coming down on the Kyle, and saw the great necessity of something being done.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I don't know when they will send in a report.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a copy of all reports received from relieving officers in the various districts throughout the country from the first day of January to date; a report, if any, from the Commissioner of Public Charities on the same subject, and to say what, if any action the Government is taking or proposes to take for the relief of the people to prevent some of them from dying of starvation which seems now almost inevitable.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I have had that question referred to the Commissioner of Public Charities, and will have an answer in a day or two.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the table of the House copy of the report made by Dr. Chisholm on his recent visit to Placentia Bay to investigate reports as to destitution in that area, and to state what action the Government has taken or proposes to take in regard thereto?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, the report of Dr. Chisholm has not yet come to my desk. I have asked the Commissioner of Public Charities to see if a report has been made and to have it forwarded to me. With regard to the second part of the question, I might say that the "Daisy" has been held up at Placentia so as to take supplies which have been sent out by train.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister with reference to his statement yesterday in reply to a previous question that all the loan of one million and a half dollars obtained from the Bank of Montreal has been expended, how much money is owed at present on account of the railway undertakings to which this sum was applied, and if in addition to this amount now due the Government plans undertaking any commitments which will further increase this liability?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The amount of the loan was one million and a half. Of that amount one million and a quarter were placed to the credit of the Railroad Commission account, and the remaining quarter of a million was repaid to the Surplus Trust account. I have asked Mr. Hall, the Secretary of the Commission to let me have a statement of the expenditure. It will have to be a rough estimate, and it probably can be had by Monday.

MR. BENNETT—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, if it is correct that the Commission owes the Reid Newfoundland Company at the present time the sum of one million dollars or thereabouts, and if not how much, and to give a statement of the main items making up the total whatever it is; also if the Commission owes business people in the city and elsewhere for supplies and otherwise, a sum of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or thereabouts, and if not how much, and to give a list of the principal sums making up this amount and what they represent; also to state what steps the Commission or the Government is taking to liquidate these obligations?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—In reply, Mr. Speaker, I beg to state that the only amount the Commission owes the Reid Newfoundland Co. was paid here the other day. I know of no other amounts. Instructions have been given to hold over that amount of $51,000.00.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—To ask the Hon. Min. of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House the following information:

- (1) If A. H. Salter of the Royal Stores, is employed by the Department
- (2) What salary is he paid.
- (3) What are his duties.
- (4) What are his hours of employment?

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker, the Hon. Minister has given me the answer to that question.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to Repeal 10-11 Geo. V., Cap. 25, entitled 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.'"

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Targett took the Chair of Committee.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Chairman, before this bill passes through the committee stage I crave your indulgence, Sir, to make a few observations on the only important piece of legislation that the government has introduced so far. When one recalls the amount of attention given to this question by the whole business and fishing population of the country, and that the bill which was passed last year has created a revolution in the commercial and industrial life of Newfoundland it should receive the full consideration of this House, when the matter was put through this House, in spite of words of caution from this side of the House to go slowly on a measure of this kind the words fell on unheeding ears. If the harsard were referred to it would be found that I had the necessity of warning the Hon. Minister to go slowly on a measure that was revolutionary in character. There was not a member of this House at the time who realized the result of the passing of that bill. The government was full of rejoicing. There was a great blowing of trumpets. It was a great jubilee, and as aftermath of that great measure we have to-day a bill with a single paragraph of one line and a half as a pin that will prick that bubble. This relates to the bill that was brought in here last year with great pomp. I do not charge the Hon. Minister with insincerity. I believe he was sincere. I believe he thought the bill would be for the best interests of the Colony. He was optimistic to a fault, but it was the greatest curse that has ever come upon this country. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries is a dreamer. He dreamed a dream; but unlike the dreamer we read of in the Bible or hear of in our churches, his dream did not materialize. Joseph of old, dreamt that all his brethren made obeisance and bowed down in submission to him, and often they had sold him. He became a great power in the land of Egypt, and we read, that when famine overtook the land of his fathers, his brethren went down to the land of Egypt to procure food and provendor to keep them alive, and after much fear and misgivings owing to the peculiar treatment they received at the hands of the great Governor or Ruler (who was none other than their brother Joseph) they returned home with well filled sacks and each man's money was found in the mouth of his sack. How different is our experience with William our modern dresser. He dreamt alright that his brethren made obeisance to him; but when famine and want came over the land, he was found unprovided for and his people had to return to the land of their fathers with empty bags and bands. So much for the collapse of the Fish Regulation dream of the Hon. W. F. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

I will be pardoned if I make reference to a few remarks made by the Prime Minister the other day in his speech on the Address in Reply. He made a statement which if put under the magnifying glass would be found to be absolutely empty, and hold out absolutely no encouragement to the people of the country. He did not rise to the importance of the position which he occupies. He would be expected to hold out something more tangible to a hungry people. If I am right he said he assumed all responsibility for the Fish Regulations. He assumed the same responsibility as the Minister who introduced the Bill last session. One cannot think of his doing otherwise, but there can be no doubt that the Prime Minister was grinding his own axe when he made that statement. He is very anxious to get in strong with the Union, knowing that that is his only chance when the time comes for him to again to appeal to the country.

It is a common report that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is very much exercised over the attitude of his colleagues in this instance and the Prime Minister has an axe to grind though on that occasion and it represents his feeling towards Mr. Coaker and his colleagues. His object was the consolidation of the factions on the other side and I understand he was very successful because the next day I heard that the honourable members pledged their allegiance to the Prime Minister. I remember Sir Robert Bond and Lord Morris had a difference in this house and Morris crossed over to this side and I remember Lord Morris bringing in on that occasions resolutions dealing with two or three crews of ships which met disaster at the sealing voyage. The crews were here walking around and they had no money or bread except what they received through the charity of the people of St. John's. Some of the members present will remember these crews sleeping at the Railway station, Mechanics Hall and other places. Morris came in as a member of the Opposition and moved a resolution that the government take immediate steps to care for the men. But they were voted down. I got up in my place here altho I was on the government side of the House as the senior government representative of St. John's West and readily appreciated the stand taken by Sir Edward Morris and gave the Resolutions my hearty support. The government was fairly and honestly asked to do something for the men some of whom are to-day supporters of the Coaker representatives here, but they gave the resolutions a deaf ear, but thank God I was decent and independent enough to vote for them and while I am here I will never turn a deaf ear to an appeal made on behalf of the fishermen or sealers or any men of this country when they are in distress. I was then told to get out of the party and so I did, but I was back on that side of the House before the others knew where they were to. On the following election those men were turned out. I was told by Bond on that occasion that my attitude was unexpected and I said in reply that the members of his party had very poor faith in themselves when they had to make an open confession that they were loyal, and that when I was loyal I did not have to confess it. I voted according to my conscience. But to return to the Prime Minister. Having espoused the mantel thrown off by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and seeing that the government factions were crumbling he tried to cement them together, and has evidently succeeded. I very much appreciate the way in which the Minister of Marine and Fisheries confessed before the House that the Act covering the exportation of codfish was a failure and that he was going to introduce an act to repeal it. It takes a strong man to make such an admission he has made a life study of this work and he has failed and he is big enough to confess he has made a big mistake. I regret to learn that the honorable Minister is not in good health and it is possible had no such an event happened his activities may have circumscribed more than they did. He was unable to grapple with his many duties owing to his falling health. The Prime Minister has very cleverly accomplished his object. He said he was in favour of the regulations and said they were the only redemption for the country, and yet a bill is brought in to wipe them off the Statute Book for ever. Inconsistency personified. He did not take that position for any other reason than for political expediency. His conscience played no part whatever. On that day he was a little astray in his figures and he was prompted by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He was talking about the five hundred thousand dollars appropriation for the buying of fish and he being prompted by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries said the Norwegian government appropriated thirty millions for the same purpose. I am prepared to accept that statement because the loan was based on a well defined policy and the whole of Norway benefited. The matter was given serious consideration and there was an ample justification. That was a matter subscribed to by the whole people because it was a national matter benefitting every one and no one in particular. With regard to our appropriation of five hundred thousand only certain sections of the country got the benefit on account of the discriminate conduct of those in charge. Any one with any spar of honour and honesty with him must necessarily proclaim against such conduct. If the proper measure had been introduced a measure that would not help one man while another would be starving it would have received the support I am sure of every man on this side, if the contingency warranted it. But when a measure such as this one helping one section of the country while the other section was let starve, I say how can you justify yourselves in so doing. What was done in Norway was done in a proper manner, while it was done in an improper manner here in Newfoundland. The case is altogether different. The Prime Minister also talked about his visit to Italy. I feel he ought to have had on his return material for an excellent address to this House on the subject of our fish markets. But I am sorry we were very much disappointed. I remember when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries returned here after one of his visits abroad he gave us an enlightening speech on the handling of our fish products on the other side, and I learned more about the subject then than I have on all other occasions put together. The Prime Minister has had the same opportunity, but he did not avail of it. He did not tell us about the Consorzio and what we should do in the matter. His speech was mere bunkum and nothing else. He had an opportunity to make himself acquainted with the problems which unfortunately had a very far reaching and detrimental effect on the people of Newfoundland, but the people have got little information from the Prime Minister about the matter. In his speech he talked about the exchange being a big factor in the matter but he merely blinded the issue. Exchange had nothing to do with it. Our fish was sold on sterling exchange. His speech resembled a drowning man grasping at a straw. Merchants here could have sold their fish to people in the United States and made two dollars in addition to the other profit on account of the exchange and surely that was in our favour. When you got an offer from Montreal to buy ten thousand quintals of fish the exchange had nothing to do with that and not owing in the least to the exchange there is now a tremendous quantity of fish here in St. John's which should have been eaten long ago. The Prime Minister also referred in his speech to bust shops. I can tell him there are no bust shops over here. As far as I know the members of this side have not in either thought, word or deed endeavoured to break the government. The time is not ripe for such an event. You shall have to sizzle a little longer. And when the remedy comes it will come from the people of this country. You have returned from the electorate after making your promises and regretfully you have notoriously failed in your attempt to fulfill them, and you are not attractive company for anybody of men. I do not think the gentlemen on this side would be well advised if they wished to be in the position of the gentlemen of the other side. What Newfoundland is going to do will shortly come from the people and I say that she cannot go on like this for much longer. Never in the history of the country has the present condition been paralleled. We have one man representing four ministries. The Prime Minister is head of the departments of the Prime Minister, the Colonial Secretary, of the Agriculture and Mines and of the Finance and Customs. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries represents his department, he is Chairman of the Railway Commission, he is President of the F. P. U. and many other companies. It is not possible for a human to fulfill all those jobs at the same time. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has broken down and I warn the Prime Minister to safeguard his health above all things. In the Speech from the Throne we were told that the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice will be going to London in June, the latter to attend to the Labrador Boundary case, and the Premier the Imperial Conference. Who is then going to look after the country in their absence as Mr. Coaker is ill. Now that is the situation the country has to face for the coming year. Mr. Higgins said the other day the women would run the government better than you are running it and he was right. Then the other day you were going to have a secret session. For what? There has been enough of secrecy. What ever the Opposition does it is done in the light of day and we are prepared to assist the government if their programme is beneficial to the country. But it is essential to have a strong man in charge of the country's affairs, a man of experience and in whom the people will have confidence. Not alone is bread lacking at present, but confidence is lacking. It is imperative to maintain our country along proper lines and then our homes are all right. The banks have no confidence in the merchant and vice versa and the same applies between the fishermen and the merchants. A man is as much responsible to his country as he is to his children, because his country is his home. I believe our country can be brought back as a Newfoundlander I want my country to remain with and then pass to my children. What Newfoundlander does not? When one is away he wants to return to see the old rocks out of sentiment for our homeland. Do you not remember when Sir Chas. Fox Bennett and his followers defeated the Confederates. But I hope things will not go as far as that. But if we do find ourselves beyond recall let us put our house in order, wash our faces clean and act as an independent and upright people and not a bankrupt race. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries told us that still there is one quarter of a million quintals of fish unmarketed. What a great benefit it would be that amount of value in money was in circulation here now. It would help our merchants along, and tide them over the present difficulties. The merchants find it difficult to get advances from the Banks, but some are prepared to advance supplies to a limited extent. We all belong to a common brotherhood and we must sink our differences and pull together for the common good. I now understand that some nineteen thousand quintals of fish have to be placed in cold storage as no sale can be found. Seven thousand and five hundred quintals are to be stored on the other side. But I would like you have some expert examine this fish before it is stored. The storage is going to cost two dollars per quintal at least, and when you sell it I do hope you will receive twelve dollars per quintal for it. But you ought to make sure first that it is prime number one fish because it is better to use it as fertiliser than have it completely lost in the end when it will have cost two dollars per quintal for storage. But I think the Minister of Marine will do the right thing because I know him probably longer than any other man on the other side. We were religiously brought up together under Archdeacon Botwood and he made a fine job of him if not of me. I sat with him in the executive council of the national government, and I want to say I found him a reasonable man. Of course he was then sitting with such men as Cashin and Crosbie and others. He was well looked after, and if he had the same associates to-day this blunder would never have occurred. On your shoulders nowever, the responsibility lies and on those of the Prime Minister as he has assumed the mantle which the Minister has thrown off. I know it is desirable to have some regulations as to the quantities of fish to go to the markets so that too much will not go to any one market at one time, and thereby avoid any glutting such as happened in the past. But no man should be interfered with in the carrying of his legitimate trade. When you say to a man how he has to sell and when, and that he must not sell, to so and so, you are doing a very wrong thing. The death knell has been sounded when you interfered with the law of supply and demand. Of course at times there are trusts to be defeated, trusts who hoard stocks and then try and exact from the public unwarrantable prices. As you know there has been disastrous results in the United States from the operations of big monopolies. Professor Robinson who is an expert on cold storage and agriculture said that he was sorry he introduced cold storage because it was a curse in as much as it interfered with legitimate trade. So through the medium trust it has been found hundreds of thousands of carcasses of beef, mutton, pork and meats of all kinds and eggs with various other foods kept in cold storage till the prices were forced high and then the public were fleeced, showing cold storage as not an unmixed blessing. I have much pleasure therefore in voting for this Bill because it closes a chapter which has caused this country more financial losses more lack of employment, and more hungry men and women than this country has ever before known. All due to the unlawful interference with trade. Many are the men who at all times earned sufficient to keep their families in comfort who are to-day walking the street with nothing to do, and on the verge of poverty and want. They have not got the wherewithal to get the necessaries of life and with the limiting of the regulations I hope work will come and the depression existing will be considerably lessened. We must save our country. We have to realise that we represent a common country whether you sit on this side of the House or on that side and Newfoundland's future interests should receive our first and undivided consideration.

MR. WALSH—After listening this afternoon and yesterday to the two magnificent addresses of my two honourable friends, Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Bennett, I presume it will be easily appreciated by you how difficult it is for me to discuss this subject after these two gentlemen have so exhaustively dealt with it. However, I would like to add my little wreath to the coffin enclosing those regulations which are gone for ever more. Usually there is a tinge of sadness in attending a funeral, but in this case we feel glad to be able to do so, and I am sure every member of this House is glad that this ceremony is now almost completed in that the last part of the regulations are confined to Mother Earth. And I might say here that I am glad that my suspicions of yesterday were unfounded when I thought I smelt a rat when a suggestion was made by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to introduce another act to unlawfully interfere with legitimate trade. I did not hear or catch owing to my defective hearing the reply of the Minister to the main question asked by Sir John Crosbie, but upon enquiry I was told by one of my colleagues that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries did not desire to introduce any such legislation, and I am sorry, very sorry that the Minister did not earlier discover the disaster that was sure to come in the wake of those cursed regulations. I have been before accused of making a dead set on certain individuals in this House when debating, but I want to say here that I am addressing the Minister in his official capacity as Minister of Marine and Fisheries as I have always addressed him, and I cannot lose this opportunity of again reminding the Minister that he is responsible for those regulations, and if they had been removed months ago when he was advised accordingly this awful calamity would have been diverted, and the country saved from ruin which those regulations have brought upon it unnecessarily. And the most regrettable feature of those regulations is that various parts of the country suffered more than they should because they were not carried out indiscriminately as is evidenced by the letter read yesterday by Sir John Crosbie which was written in the Evening Telegram by Mr. Penny of Ramea. The people on the South West and West coasts were robbed right and left by the government, and I think if Mr. Penny had published that letter last autumn I believe sufficient hostility would have shown against the Regulations, that the people would combine in a big crowd and march down to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and make it impossible for him to carry on those regulations, another hour when such good and enterprising business men such as George Penny who is one of the biggest exporters of fish on the South West Coast, were practically ruined for life after years of industry. Mr. Penny sold a cargo of fish in July last which should have netted sixty thousand dollars under ordinary conditions or rather he tried to sell this cargo but the Minister of Marine and Fisheries replied to his application saying that he could not sell and later one of the Advisory Board, Mr. Barr, asked Penny to sell the fish to him for fifty four thousand, and he did and to-day that gentleman cannot pay fifty-four cents, let alone say fifty four thousand and the result is that Mr. Penny is ruined for the remainder of his days. Now that is what happened the good old firm of Penny. but the same happened to Moulton, Buffett, Harris and Inkpen and others all belonging to the South West Coast, but in other parts of the Island the same treatment was not meted out, and the reason is already known. But there are other parts of the Island besides the South West coast which also suffered to the same deplorable degree. Now it is not my intention to labour this question very far. I have already had a word or two with regard to this matter, but as this subject is of such vast importance I think I cannot let this opportunity pass without availing myself of it to say a word or two further. Now it is common knowledge that on account of the peculiar conditions existing on the South Coast that the people there have been dependent on the American markets and it is common knowledge that American firms sent down three or four hundred thousand dollars to purchase fish from us, and it is also common knowledge that the people of Placentia and St. Mary's Bay are dependent upon American markets yet the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and his associates saw fit to issue an ultimatum to those American Fish Firms, so that they were not allowed to ship their fish with the result that the large sum of three or four hundred thousand dollars was sent back to America to the American banks and it is doubtful if it will ever return here and this is another instance of the scandalous way in which those regulations were carried out. They were so carried out that those in charge tried and accomplished the construction of monopolies and you all know without competition the people cannot get good prices for their products. There is one part of the remarks of Mr. Bennett's that I have to disagree with and that is his reference to cold storage in that it was a curse. I would agree with him if he had said that cold storage was a curse to any other country but our own as we are so peculiarly situated, especially on the South West Coast where it is impossible to get the required weather to make the class of fish put up down there for the different markets and just west of us we have one hundred and twenty million people starving for fresh fish. No cold storage is good for all of us any way. I would like to see some capitalists but not the government who have hundreds of millions of dollars ready to invest to get busy, and invest them in the erection of cold storage plants and supply those people.

May I suggest to my honourable friend the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, whom I know do know quite a bit about the fishing industry of the country and whom I know, having discovered that he made a fatal blunder in connection with the fishery regulations, will display his activities in some other directions to try and make good—that before he vacates the department that he now occupies that he would get busy and try and interest some outside capitalists to come in and view for themselves the conditions and possibilities here with regard to the erection of cold storage plants. I want once more, and I hope for the last time, to enter my strongest protest against the manipulation of that half million dollars. That is, in my opinion, one of the most serious blunders and one of the most criminal actions that was ever committed by any administration, and why I protest against it so vigorously is because of the fact that on the South West Coast and in Placentia and St. Mary's Bays there are at this very moment thousands of quintals of fish lying in the stores and stages of the people and those very same people have to be stigmatized because of the unfortunate position that they find themselves in to-day in not being able to buy food. This is the reason that I want to again protest against this action of Mr. Coaker and his associates. During the past week in this House members got up debating the wretched conditions that existed in Placentia and St. Mary's Bays and other places. These conditions would not have existed if the legitimate trade of the people had not been interfered with by the present Government who brought these conditions about, and if those people had got what was their rights such conditions would not exist to-day. Equal rights to all is what the members for Bonavista and other northern districts proclaim and represent, but if that principle had been carried out the men of Placentia and St. Mary's Bays would have had a chance to dispose of some of their fish, and, if they got that chance, perhaps, members would not have to get up in this House and appeal to the Leader of the Government and his associates to send out to Placentia or any other Bay, poor relief and whilst referring to that matter I want to avail of this opportunity to extend my thanks to the Leader of the Government for his courtesy to my colleagues and myself and also to thank him on behalf of those unfortunate suffering people for the way in which he treated the recommendations that were given him with regard to this matter. And may I suggest, with your permission, Sir, from my place in this House, that Mr. Dee, who I understand is the gentleman who is gone on that steamer with relief and medical assistance to the people of the Western Shore, be instructed to call at the other sections of Placentia Bay where the conditions of the people are very gloomy. The people around Sound Island and vicinity and up around Baine Harbour the circumstances of the people are poor indeed. On behalf of my colleagues, I ask the Prime Minister to consider this request and I hope that he will give serious thought to the matter. Perhaps the most important matter affecting the fishery at the present time is lack of supplies. There are people in Placentia Bay, especially on the West Coast, who are solely depending on the Marystown Trading Company for supplies, which is now practically gone out of business. The Marystown Trading Company grew up with those people. A great number of those people formerly came to St. John's and got their supplies from the city and went to the Marystown Trading Company at Marystown and it was because of the good treatment that they received from Mr. Harris and his associates, they finally withdrew from St. John's and dealt solely at Marystown. Now those fishermen are in the unfortunate position that as the Marystown Trading Company have closed their doors, they are not able to get the necessary articles they require to prosecute the fishery. The same happens in another part of Placentia Bay where the firm of Thomas Wakely & Sons did a large business at Hr. Buffett and Haystack. Owing to the unfortunate loss they sustained last year, they find that they are not able to supply this year. Kemp at Placentia is in a similar position. At the present moment there is, at least, from my district in this city 100 men seeking supplies and cannot get one dollar's worth. Since this House opened this afternoon my colleagues and myself have been called out on two or three occasions to interview men who came here from various parts of my district. They told us that they had travelled from one end of Water Street to the other and could not get any supplies. Now this is a serious condition of affairs. While ready and willing to thank the Government and the Prime Minister for the way in which they treated our constituents in the matter of relief, I would like to point out that this kind of thing cannot go on. It is a drag on the revenue and the people who receive it do not want it if they can get work and the work they want is what they are best used to—at the fishery. Grand Falls is overcrowded with men and Limeville on the West Coast and all other individual centres is overcrowded and, as long as Newfoundland is Newfoundland, it is just as well for us to make up our minds once and for always that the codfishery of the Colony is going to remain the staple industry. Therefore, it behooves the Government and it is the bounden duty of the Opposition to try and devise some scheme whereby those people will be able to go to work. If those men are deprived from prosecuting the fishery this year, where is the money going to come from to pay my sessional pay for next session, Mr. Speaker, and your sessional pay and the Ministerial salaries and all the other salaries of the Civil Service. The only possible hope that I see, and I think it will be agreed to by individual members generally in this House, to bring about a solution of the serious problem facing us in regard to supplies for the fishery, is by having a secret session, although my Hon. friend, Mr. Bennett, did not take kindly to that idea. When I suggested a meeting of that nature a few days ago in this House I did not mean a secret session in this House of Assembly. What I meant was for both sides to meet anywhere outside this House—Kelligrews, Topsail or anywhere you might name—and discuss the matter in a friendly way. It would be almost impossible for both sides to meet here where the chairs and desks are charged and surcharged, because a man may get up and make a friendly remark and something may prick him and the whole thing may end in a fight before very long. But I say that conditions are getting so serious in all the districts that something ought to be done quickly. It is now nearly the middle of May; formerly boats operating on the Cape St. Mary's grounds would have two or three trips made by the middle of May. As I said at the beginning, I had no intention of making any lengthy remarks, as I thought the ground was so well covered by previous speakers and as I understand that the Leader of the Opposition and other members on this side of the House are going to have a word or two to say; but before taking my seat I want to make one more appeal to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as he is the most conversant with the matter of fishery supplies and I would ask him to try and get the Government and Opposition together on this matter, if he feels it is wise to do so, but I wish to assure him personally that any suggestion that he has to make or any suggestion that the Government has to make in the direction mentioned will have my strongest support. I might say that I have discussed the matter at a meeting of the Opposition and I found that it is the desire of every one of them to come to the rescue to try and devise some means so as our fishermen can prosecute the fishery the coming season. Do not leave it for another week or even another day, but act this afternoon. I believe that, if the government and the Opposition went into this thing wholeheartedly and honestly, each bearing its proportion part of the responsibility and without any desire of blaming in particular, that some good would be done for those much deserving people whom I have so often referred to.

MR. VINNICOMBE—Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the Bill before the House, but I must say that my support is not whole-hearted. If the members on the government side had to be manly enough to vote for the amendment that was brought in a few days ago when the fish regulations were under discussion, there would be no necessity for this bill. The government side did not have backbone enough to vote for the Amendment because it came from the Opposition; nor did they look to the welfare of the country in casting their vote. We have been accused of hang 'er down tactics and all sorts of things on this side of the House, but when the public were clamouring for a repeal of the fish regulations, we were responsible for having them repealed, while the government side thought fit to vote against it. Still we are asked by one government member and another to unite for the good of the country, well when we started to unite you threw us down. Now I agree to support this Bill because of what that bill means for the country and its people; but any other bill coming from the government side—well, I think, I will give it considerable thought before voting for it. As a matter of fact the men on the government side are so incompetent that any bill they do bring in here should necessitate the donning of our thinking caps on this side to see whether we are doing right or wrong in voting for it. Mr. Coaker is not a fisherman, never was, but is proclaimed the fishermen's friend and he turned out to be their friend too, especially since he got in the Executive. Dr. Barnes is Minister of Education. His knowledge of fish is confined to the caplin's school. Men like Mr. Foote, Mr. Brownrigg and Mr. Warren know nothing about the subject and whatever Mr. Coaker says about fish, whether right or wrong, the Prime Minister says alright to, even though he knows it to be wrong, fearing that Mr. Coaker might take his crown away from him, so that Mr. Squires has to cater to Mr. Coaker. As Mr. Bennett said, when Mr. Coaker was in the Executive with him and with a good man over him he was as nice as pie. You could handle him any way; but, Sir, the present government and the Prime Minister had all they could do to handle him when he cut loose.

When Sir John Crosbie was talking the other day on this Codfish Bill, the Chairman brought him to order because he spoke on railway matters, well I contend that any man in this House can talk on all matters all over this Island, even on education, and he won't get away from the subject because the whole country is a 'cod' and made so by the present government. I want to say, Sir, that some of us are not alone here to day to fight for the repealing of the fish regulations, but we are here to have something more tangible done for the district of St. John's East. We hear no talk here about poverty in that district. The people are bearing their burdens, with out murmurs. They are not letting their poverty be known. To-day in that district are some farmers and fishermen who have not a potato to put in the ground. Men who used always have provisions made for their seed potatoes have them all eaten up, owing to the hard times within the past six or nine months. I think that some employment should be given those people this summer and I think that the government should raise a loan, if they have not got the money in the Treasury already, to provide work for those people. I am told that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has $140,000 left. Well I think we might ask him for part of that. I do not think it would be wise to keep it where it is, because, if you do, it may get like the fish and you will probably have to put it in cold storage. The Prime Minister said in his Manifesto to the people that he would do everything in his power to keep the wolf from the door and that he would devise some sort of scheme whereby the poor man and the poor woman, who, through the hand of fate, were deprived of incomes, except what could scarcely keep body and soul together, would be able to live properly. No doubt the Prime Minister got up a scheme alright. There were a few poor people in the country before he got in power, but within the past 18 months there are thousands more, and those who were poor before have been made poorer still. I do not know what the hand of fate had to do with it, but I know what the hand of incompetent men had to do with it. There was a time when Mr. Jennings was in Opposition and when he always advocated that there should be pensions for old and aged women as well as for men; also that he was going to have the pension of the latter increased when he got in the government. He used to tell about the poor women whom he met in the streets. But he has not fulfilled his promise yet, after being eighteen months in the government, and I am afraid he never will. I think that the poor worn out women will have to wait until the women get a vote, and I don't think that Mr. Jennings will ever give them that right if he can help it. But he took good care to help himself from the Treasury since he became a member of the government. I was going to say that I have a certain amount of regard for Mr. Coaker, but, perhaps, I am treading on dangerous ground by saying so, because it will likely make the Prime Minister feel uncomfortable. I believe that if Mr. Coaker was with the right kind of men and kept in his place that he would make an ideal public man, because I believe that he is more or less sincere in everything he undertakes. It was pitiable to look at him, but he was man enough to throw up his hands, after the failure of the fish regulations, and say "blame me for it; I did it all." I must say it was a corporal work of mercy. The Prime Minister never assisted him in his troubles, but to serve his own political ends he got up here and praised Mr. Coaker. The F. P. U. and F. P. U. members and forgot the constituents that he represents in the West End of St. John's. But at that time there was talk of a "bust". I don't know where it was going to be, but this I do know that the "bust" was not going to take place on this side because we are contented over here and I hope that you are as happy over there, though, I doubt it. Dr. Barnes is smiling. Well I know he is happy—and why wouldn't he—drawing his enormous salary. If I were on that side I would be like King Henry, I would never smile again, after helping to put the country in the state it is in after eighteen months of office.

I got up here this afternoon to say that I support the Bill before the House and it is only that I am a true Newfoundlander that I do so, but I wonder if the same could be said of members of the Government. I think that the condition of this country today was brought on solely by the fish regulations; but I don't think that four million dollars left by Sir Michael Cashin when he left office was all thrown away on the fish regulations. The Prime Minister does not seem to come in for any blame whatever. I asked Mr. Samson the question the other day as to who was his boss and he replied that Mr. Squires was. Only then I found out correctly as I always thought up to that time that Mr. Coaker was his boss. That being so, Mr. Squires really had charge of the spending and squandering of that four million dollars and other public moneys as well. When Sir M. P. Cashin was thrown out—one cannot call it anything else but thrown out—of the Government by deception, lies and slander has not the Prime Minister allowed public moneys to be thrown out here, there and everywhere ever since. Enough proof of that statement is the sugar question and the "Food Control Board" not the Food Control Board which was brought about by the Prime Minister. Even the Speaker is talking about the free trip abroad that he had to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and the Minister is telling the Speaker, I suppose, of his visit to European countries where he saw the people lying about the streets in their tattered clothes and in a state of poverty and starvation.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES

MR. VINICOMBE.—Well that shows the incompetent men that you were when you charged those poor people such a high price for our fish. I understand that there is also to be Standardization of fish Bill to be brought in this session, well I am not going to vote for it, even if I think it is good, because of your incompetence.

Before taking my seat I would like to say that it is time that we were up and doing in this House with a view to enabling the fishermen of the country to get supplies to carry on the fishery this year. It is time for the Government to see what can be done for the poor fishermen and the poor laborer of the country as well. There are coopers in St. John's to-day in distress caused by the fish regulations preventing them from selling their products within the past year. These people were always independent before the regulations were enforced, and, who, if they could sell their stocks to-day, would be independent again.

Every available inch of space in the cooperage is taken up with stock for which the coopers are unable to find a market. Now Mr. Chairman, I do not like to see the Minister of Fisheries talking while we are asking him if he is going to do something to help the people; I would ask him if he is going to raise a loan for this purpose.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—Will you support me in that if I do?

MR. VINICOMBE—Yes, I would support anything that I thought was for the benefit of the people of my district. I know of clergymen in St. John's East who are daily receiving appeals for help and why not open up a road to Flatrock or Pouch Cove that would give these people some way to earn a few dollars. A petition was sent in a few days ago from Pouch Cove and Flatrock asking for the money to open up work on this road; it would at least help them to buy a barrel of flour which they are now unable to get. A man came to me not long ago for a barrel of flour and he told me that altho he was ashamed to say it he had been forced to eat his seed potatoes. This has been so in more than one case, and another man asked me if I could guarantee him a couple of barrel of potatoes to put in the ground. I told him I would see that he got them. The firm of Bowring Bros. who always did an extensive business in Flatrock are no longer supplying and these people are at a loss to know where they are going to get supplies for the summer. While we have been sitting here for two months doing nothing some plan should have been devised to give out work to relieve the distress which is now so general. The Prime Minister in his Manifesto talks about the hand of Fate, but God knows it is not the hand of Fate that has been responsible for the times that are now upon us; it is the hand of incompetent men. I bet Mr. Penney has seen the result of these times in his district of Carbonear.

HON. THE SPEAKER—Not at all.

MR. VINICOMBE—How much poor relief has had to be given to your district, Mr. Archibald?

MR. ARCHIBALD—There has been no special relief for Hr. Grace.

MR. VINICOMBE—But there has been relief nevertheless?

MR. ARCHIBALD—A little.

MR. VINICOMBE—I thought so. Now I ask is it not time for us to do something to relieve the sufferings that people are undergoing because of lack of employment. It is all very well for the Prime Minister to talk about the hand of fate, but the hand of incompetence is responsible for a whole lot more. The members of the government who at one time professed such concern for the poor fisherman have fallen from grace but I never thought Mr. Jennings would fall and I am surprised that he does not try to do something.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—If you would stop talking for a while we would be able to do something.

MR. VINICOMBE—It is all very well for you to tell me to stop talking, but that is only camouflage. You've had time enough if you wanted to do anything. You can go right to work now and we will give you till Sunday for that matter. It is the corporal works of mercy any way and the better the day the better the deed. You might think I am joking, but I was never more in earnest in my life because when we see people with distress in their faces looking for something to do to keep themselves and their families alive. It is no joking matter. We are told that Mr. Coaker is going to resign and I would be long sorry to see that. Besides I do not see how that could help matters. It is better for him to hold on for another two or three years and do the best in that time because he will not have the opportunity of doing it after that and there could be no better proof of this fact than the Prime Minister's speech a few days ago. Well, Mr. Chairman, all I have to say is that I rise to support the Bill before the Chair. I am sorry the hon. gentlemen on the other side did not join with us when we brought in the amendment. I can see what a dread the Prime Minister has over him. He doesn't know where he is. He said that the Fish Regulations was a good measure, but if he believes this why take them off. I want to make an appeal to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice and Mr. Coaker to do something before the House meets again to deal with the situation that confronts us with regard to the distress existing in and around the city and throughout the country. As I stated before, Bowring Bros. are doing nothing for the men who always depended on them for their supplies and here are we wasting time in here taking a section off this Act and putting a section on that. When Mr. Coaker was man enough to come in and acknowledge his faults it is a pity he does not now try to do something to atone for them. I believe that if he had good men to advise him he would be different. He was all right when he was in the National Government with men who knew their business, but now he has nobody to whom he can look for assistance or advice. Now Mr. Chairman, I am not going to further delay the House. Mr. Jennings said that if we on this side of the House would stop talking something would be done. If he will undertake to do something to help the fishermen, the whole Opposition will stop talking.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Will the hon. member guarantee that?

MR. VINICOMBE—Yes.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Then if the hon. member carries out his part of the contract, we will carry out ours.

MR. VINICOMBE—We can't trust you on that side of the House.

HON. MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS.—

The Prime Minister has given his word
HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I will promise that something is going to be done.

MR. VINICOMBE—I knew the Min. of Fisheries was your real leader, Mr. Jennings. Would it be too much to ask the Hon. Minister what time something will be done. Will it be soon Sir?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Yes.

MR. VINICOMBE—Before taking my seat, Mr. Chairman, I would ask that no Bill be brought in this session to further interfere with our fisheries or with the trade of the Country.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Chairman, notwithstanding the interjection thrown across the House by the Minister of Public Works to the effect that we on this side are talking too much and thus taking up the time of the House, I rise to make a few remarks on the Bill before the Chair. I cannot think that the suggestion made by the hon. minister was made in all seriousness as I have always taken him to be a man of his word. He said if we on this side stopped talking that the Government would go ahead and do something, but all I ask hon. gentlemen to do is to look at the Order Paper to-day and see if there is anything on it in the way of legislation the passage of which is being delayed. There is nothing on the Order Paper from day to day; we have not had more than one or two night sessions since the House met and the House has been adjourned from Thursday till Monday. Does that look as if the people on this side of the House want to hang her down? If on the other hand the Minister is sincere in his remarks, I apologize but I fear he is not and therefore, I shall proceed with my remarks.

One difference which is very noticeable this year is that in the deportment of the members on the left of the Speaker as compared with the previous session. Last year they were at the zenith of their power; they came in here with a large majority; a large surplus left by their predecessors in office was at their disposal and for them the land was flowing with milk and honey. To-day gloom and despair are depicted on their faces and after all, is it any wonder that they should look like they do. Everything they have touched has gone against them; they see the handwriting on the wall and they realize that their doom is sealed. I would ask the hon. gentlemen to whom I refer, I would ask them individually not to be offended at anything I might say. With regard to the Fish Regulations, there was never in the history of the Colony a measure placed on the Statute Book that has become more familiar to the public and it is doubtful if there was ever one that has gained such unpopularity. That Bill was brought in here with all the pomp and power and glory of the Government and now the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has to come in and admit its failure. He says that he does not agree with the way in which the Bill was carried out but if it was not who was to blame? I supported it because he assured us that it would not be put in force unless the necessity for it arose and when he went over to the other side and came back and put the measure in force, it was thought that his experience in the markets had taught him that the necessity had arrived. In my remarks on the Bill when it was introduced last year I said that in enforcing these Regulations there should be a certain amount of give and take, but the result has proved that it was all give and no take. I heard the statement made here this afternoon that there are 250,000 qtls. of fish remaining in Newfoundland unsold and in all probability, if it was all estimated we would find that there are more like 350,000 qtls. here, and I contend that if it were not for the Regulations we would not have a single quintal out of this on our hands to-day. I am not saying this without knowing what I am talking about. The South West Coast was held up and men like Penney and others who have been ruined, were not allowed to export their fish when they wanted to; if they had been permitted to do their business in the way they thought best, at least 100,000 quintals of fish from that section would have been put into consumption that never was marketed. Take again the case of the Iceland fish that was sold in Italy. If it had not been for the Regulations 260,000 quintals of our fish would have gone into that market. I see the Minister of Fisheries taking notes and he will probably tell us that there is not 100,000 qtls. of fish left on the West Coast but that is not what I mean. Perhaps he will also tell us that we did not lose a market for 200,000 quintals in Italy. I was told by an exporter of Conception Bay that if they got the prices for their fish set by the Regulations it would nett them five dollars a quintal profit but if they had been allowed to have their own way they would have been satisfied to take four dollars; three dollars; two dollars or even fifty cents to be able to dispose of their fish. If we had free trade last year, the Italians would have paid a better price for our fish than they paid the Icelanders and we would have sold that much fish which now remains in the country. Now, Sir, look at conditions all over the country to-day. Appeals for food are coming in from all quarters and the people find themselves unable to purchase the bare necessities of life. The reason of this is not because they are not independent; it is true that they are not able to buy their supplies now because for example, the Marystown Trading Co. has been placed in the position that they have twenty-five hundred quintals of fish taken from the dealers out around Placentia and St. Mary's Bays for which they have not been able to pay them. What happened was this: The dealers turned in their fish and up to the present the money has not been paid for it. It was stated by Sir John Crocshie yesterday that men who had $1,200 on the Company's books were unable to get supplies. The same thing applies to the larger number of small merchants and all this misery is not the result of any action of the people themselves but the direct result of the Regulations. A great mistake was made when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries did not take the advice of people whose experience warranted their opinions being taken seriously. The country is now in a desperate plight and the loss of revenue will be so great that it will be years before the country can again be put on a paying basis. At least two and a half million dollars will have been lost to the Colony in revenue while between sugar purchases and fish purchases and other bungling, the expenditure will show an increase of another two and a half millions over last year. You will have to go in for a very severe retrenchment policy. We hear on the street that it is the intention to cut the salaries of the civil servants but that, Mr. Chairman, should be the last resort. Cut the salaries of the members of the House of Assembly or if any reduction in salaries is to take place, I hope you will have a sliding scale and I hope too that you won't cut the salaries of men who are getting less than a thousand dollars a year.

I have received a message from the people of Bar Haven, in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's since coming into the House, asking why the telegraph office has been taken away from them. Perhaps this is the first step in the retrenchment policy that the Government has to enter upon, but I want to serve notice that in matters of this kind no partiality must be shown. If you are going to cut out telegraph offices in Placentia Bay, you must cut them out in every other place of equal population. The message reads as follows. (Reads Message.)

Those men are very much in earnest over this matter. If this administration has to go on I trust that the Government will see that fair play is shown and that every district of a similar population to Placentia and St. Mary's will be treated on the same lines. With reference to the remark made by the member for St. John's East, Mr. Vinnicombe, in connection with the resignation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, I would say that we would be very sorry to see him resign, as we would miss him very much indeed in this House. I trust that, if he has any intention of resigning from his ministerial position, he is not going to give up his seat in this Assembly. Mr. Coaker has made the amende honorable here. He has come in and pleaded guilty. When the regulations did not turn out as he wished, he had the courage of his convictions and was honest enough to admit their failure. I am sorry that they did not turn out as he anticipated; and I am sorry for the Government which is now in an awkward position financially. But there is a ray of hope, and might I suggest to the Government and to the individual members of the Government to follow the example of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and to get up and state here that you are sorry that your legislation did not turn out as you expected, that results have not been what you expected, that you are sorry for your mistakes and that you are prepared to get out now and give more competent men charge of the administration of the public affairs of the country. I do not anticipate that you will do that, but I will make this statement now, that, if you men in the Government are prepared to resign and let the burden come on other shoulders, I will promise you that within twenty-four hours $150,000 would be at the disposal of the Municipal Council for the purpose of giving the men in St. John's work and that $5,000,000 would be raised in England at 5 per cent. because the financial people on the other side of the water have the utmost confidence in the men, who, up to eighteen months ago, conducted the public affairs of Newfoundland.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Mr. Chairman, I beg to move that the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Second Reading of Bill entitled "Of the Auditing of Public Accounts."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, the Auditor General has asked for this Bill so that rules and regulations may be made by him from time to time and to place in his hands a little more definite authority and power in the matter of accounts and the execution of cheques payable out of surplus trust accounts.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—It is about time.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Hon Leader of the Opposition says it is about time. Well I might say for his information that this does not affect any act of the present administration for the past year or so. However, it is desirable that further authority should be vested in the Auditor General so that he can make rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, in order that his department can carry on its work in a more efficient and business-like manner. The only change in the Act, as it is already, is a verbal change because of the retirement of the Postmaster General and the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is included within the scope of the ordinary minister. The accounts of the Shipping Department will not come under the Audit Act but will be included in the Customs Act, as the Shipping Department will be going out of existence. In 1905 these Acts were consolidated and this Bill repeals section 28 of Chapter 23, as follows:

'The Minister of Finance and Customs, the Assistant Collector and all Ministers, deputies of Ministers, officers, clerks or persons charged with the receipt of moneys, except the Minister of Shipping, shall cause the gross revenues of their several de"partments or offices to be paid at "such times and under such Regulations as the Minister of Finance and "Customs prescribes from time to "time to an account to be called 'The "Newfoundland Exchequer Account,' "at such bank or banks as are deter- "mined by the Minister of Finance and "Customs, and daily accounts of such "moneys so deposited shall be rend- "ered to the Comptroller and Auditor "General in such form as the Treasury "Board provides: Provided that such "sums as may be required to pay com- "mission on the sale of revenue and "postage stamps, and other reimburse- "ments of a like kind for which no "vote of the Legislature is taken, may "under an Order-in-Council be deduct- "ed from such gross revenues and "shall be allowed by the Comptroller "and Auditor General, on production "to him of a proper certificate or "voucher satisfactory to the Comptrol- "ler and Auditor General."

I propose to get for Committee stage, so that the matter may be fully discussed, a report on the main points from the Auditor General and which report, I understand, the Auditor General has already prepared.

MR. BENNETT.—It strikes me at a cursory glance that, under the first section, the Auditor General cannot put in force these rules and regulations until he has first received the approval of the Governor in Council.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is the same as prescribed under the original Act for the carrying on of the Audit Act.

MR. BENNETT.—And should not these rules and regulations be approved of first by the House of Assembly?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is the present law of the Colony.

MR. BENNETT.—My conception of the position of the Auditor General is that this official stand in a unique position and he should be untrammelled by any influence, either Governor in Council or any other authority.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—So he is.

MR. HIGGINS.—The only apparent noticeable alteration made to section (1) is that the "Governor in Council" substitutes the words "Treasury Board."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Treasury Board practically consists of the Governor in Council: namely, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Minister of Finance and Customs and I think one other.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, this Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes, entitled 'Of the Auditing of Public Accounts'," was read a second time, and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

MR. MOORE gave Notice of Question.

DR. JONES gave Notice of Question.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE gave Notice of Question.

MR. LEWIS Gave Notice of Question.

MR. SULLIVAN gave Notice of Question.

MR. WALSH gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday afternoon at three of the clock.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, in moving that the House on its rising do adjourn until Monday next at three o'clock, I desire to call the attention of the House to a statement made in the editorial columns of this afternoon's issue of the Evening

Telegram newspaper. The editorial refers to Beaumont Hamel, which it rightly describes as a sacred field made holy by the blood of Newfoundland's sons shed there on that fatal day of July 1st, 1916. The subject under discussion in the editorial is the purchase of Beaumont Hamel battlefield by the Newfoundland Government. The editorial reads as follows:

"It would have been much better if the Government had bought the ground for Newfoundland out of general revenue, leaving it to popular subscription to erect a fitting monument, and to look after the upkeep and beautifying of the cemetery."

That is exactly what the Newfoundland Government did. In March, 1921, the Newfoundland Government, through the Department of Militia, transferred to the credit of Lieut.-Col., then Major, Nangle, at the Bank of Montreal, Paris, the sum of $15,000, for the purchase of the Beaumont Hamel area, the cost of which was estimated at approximately $10,000, and the purchase of certain other sites for the erection of other Newfoundland war memorials. The Newfoundland Government has also arranged for the War Memorial itself, and that amount is also being paid for out of public funds through the Department of Militia. Up to the present the Government has arranged only for the purchase of the area and the erection of the War Memorial, which, as is well known, is intended to be the caribou monument designed by Mr. Basil Gotto. A portion of the funds for the monument has also been already forwarded.

No arrangements have yet been completed by the Government for the laying out of the Beaumont Hamel battlefield. I would like to see a fund of $25,000 raised by public subscription for that purpose. I understand that a sum of money has already been raised by direct subscription by some ladies who are interested, and I am sure there will be a ready response throughout the whole Island of Newfoundland to any general movement which may be undertaken to secure funds for the beautifying of this historic battlefield; this piece of Newfoundland in France, this burial ground of so many of our heroic dead.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 9th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. SULLIVAN—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the people of Haricott asking for the sum of $300 for the purpose of making a breakwater so that the road to Salmonier can be maintained. It is very important that this matter be attended to. This is the only means of communication between Haricott and Salmonier, and the road cannot be kept there without a breakwater.

MR. WALSH—I beg to support that petition.

MR. SINNOTT—I give the petition my hearty support.

MR. WALSH—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Upshell, asking for the sum of $1000 to complete a railway connecting road. This road was begun a few years ago, and the sum of $500 was spent, but that amount was not sufficient. This petition is very largely signed by all the prominent men of the community. I have another petition from Little Harbour on the same subject. This petition is also largely signed.

I have also a petition from Famish Cove on the subject of a bridge. This bridge forms a connection between two banks of a river. It is now in a falling down condition as it has not been attended to for a number of years. The petition ask for the sum of only $200 for this very necessary work. I have a petition from Sound Island asking that some change be made in the Relieving Officer'ship. At present the Relieving Officer resides at Harbor Buñett. Although he is a very capable man it is impossible for him to keep in touch with all the places in his jurisdiction. The petition asks that Mr. William Mitchell be appointed Relieving Officer for the outlying islands. The salary would be very small, and the service very great. I have a petition from the people of Branch asking for a sum of money for the completion of a breakwater. My colleague asked for $2000 last year for this purpose, but it was found that the amount was not sufficient. Branch is a very important settlement and the people are depending entirely on fishing for their livelihood. If a couple of hundred dollars could be found for this purpose it could not possibly be spent to greater advantage, and where the people would appreciate it more. There is another petition from Patrick's Cove asking for the sum of $150 to complete a road to a fishing settlement. The very least this House could do would be to grant this modest request. The road is absolutely essential to the fishermen of that community.

I have just one more petition. This is from Pack's Harbor, asking for telegraph communication. I think the communication could be made with less than a mile of telegraph wires, and the benefit to the people would be very great.

I have pleasure in asking that these petitions be referred to the department to which they relate and that they be given the consideration which they merit.

MR. SULLIVAN—I support the prayer of this petition and as we go through the estimates I will have more to say about this petition and with regard to the Postal Telegraph extension.

MR. SINNOTT—I give the petition presented by my colleague my hearty support.

MR. MACDONNELL—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition handed me through the courtesy of the Minister of Shipping re the Humbermouth-Battle Harbor Steamship service. The petition is largely signed including signatures from a large section of Bay of Islands. In connection with this service I have to say that it has not been very satisfactory. The request is that the government take up this year the proposition of putting a larger steamer as regards passengers and freight on this service. It is the intention of the government to give us the Glencoe for a few trips, but it is the petitioners' wish that the Sebastapool not be employed permanently as she is too small, and I am sure the petition will recommend itself to the Minister of Shipping, the executive and the government in general, I have much pleasure in supporting the prayer of this petition as it is one which certainly deserves the careful consideration of the government.

MR. SCAMMELL—I have much pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in supporting the prayer of the petition presented by the honourable member for St. George's and I would like to say that I have been interesting myself in the subject matter of this petition, and I understand it is the intention of the government to give the area in question better consideration, and better accommodation than it has had for the past year. I hope during the Session to have something more to say about this service and therefore I defer my remarks for the present.

Sir Michael Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sinnott gave Notice of Question.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I can believe the anxiety of the honourable member by answering that question right away by saying that Mr Collishaw did not receive any authority whatever either recently or earlier and there is no intention on the part of the government to appoint him as an agent with reference to matter referred to.

MR. WALSH—Gave notice of question.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—If the honourable member will be good enough to give us time to prepare this answer and have it removed from the order paper he will receive a more detailed statement.

MR. WALSH—Yes, certainly.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—I would like to call the attention of the Minister of Board of Works to my questions, re A. H. Salter.

THE MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I have that answer; it is the answer to one on Order Paper, May 6.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I would like to draw the attention of the Prime Minister to question 9, May 4th. This is a simple question.

THE PRIME MINISTER—I have asked the Auditor General for this information and hope to table it very shortly.

MR. BENNETT—I would like to call the attention of the Prime Minister to question four April 12th., relative to the Economy Commission.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I have called the attention of the Deputy Minister of Finance, and it will be soon tabled.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—If I am not out of order Sir, I would like to say a few words re A. H. Salter. I am so astounded that I am really shocked to know that an accountant down at the Royal Stores should receive from the Board of Works the sum of $1080 per annum. The gentleman in question is a servant of the Royal Stores and has to go and come when he is called. I want more information on this matter. Mr. Minister. When if so, was this salary voted or where did it come from? Do you know that there are many soldiers' families starving to-day for want of work. So this is the price of his support. I have more to say later on, and I feel sure that the members of your party are just as much surprised as I am when they are told that Salter receives $1080 per annum for work which you and Mr. Harris should do.

THE HON. THE MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—A more detailed statement of the duties and services Mr. Salter has performed and which could not be performed by either myself or Mr. Harris will show an improvement on that statement.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Surely there must be some one around town who can do this work. I have never heard of such a thing. He is paid $1080 to go and come when he likes and gives what orders he likes.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question. Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move for the appointment of a Select Committee of this House (with five Members) to enquire and report upon the appropriation and expenditure of Public Money in 1920—for the purchase of Fish and Salt, and into all matters concerning the charter of vessels, the hiring of stores, the purchase and sale of Fish and Salt, and the whereabouts of the said Fish and Salt, and the control and management thereof; with power to employ Counsel to take evidence on oath, and send for all persons, papers and things necessary to the said Enquiry with an instruction to the said Committee to hold an enquiry in public and to have the evidence taken stenographically, and to publish the same from day to-day in the newspapers of the city.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I beg to table the reply to that question

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Called the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the fact that in the issue of his organ, "The Daily Advocate" of April 24th, 1920, he published a statement or address to the electors of Bonavista district with reference to Saw Mills in that district and the demand for licenses and the introduction of motor saving outfits, and to ask what action if any, he has taken to prevent the "wholesale destruction that would clean out the timber resources from the water front in four or five years," to which he referred in that communication.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if the government intends to contribute any amount next year towards repeating the experiment of using airplanes in connection with the seal fishery?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture & Mines to lay on the Table of the House (a) A statement showing the number of Saw Mills operating in this country during the fiscal year 1920, or the Calendar Year 1920, if statistics are available for the latter period; (b) distinguishing between the mills which pay stumpage or other tax and those which do not; (c) stating how many mills have not paid these or other taxes or fees which they are required by law to pay, the reasons why they have not paid, and the amount unpaid; (d) and to indicate what action, if any, the Government proposes to take in collecting unpaid fees of this kind, in view of the colony's great need of funds at the present time?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if he can make any estimate of the quantity of salt required for fishery needs of this colony, during the present year; if he is aware of what quantity of salt has been ordered by the merchants to help meet these needs, what quantity has been ordered by the government, and what action is it intended to take to obtain the balance.

MR. HIGGINS—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House a detailed statement of the amount of printed matter imported into this colony during the years 1919, 1920, and to the end of April 1921, and the duty paid thereon; also the names of the business concerns who have imported the same.

MR. HIGGINS—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House, a detailed statement of printed matter imported into this Colony for use in that department, also if any officer of that department has received a Commission or rebate on same; also if enquiry has ever been made why same could not be done in this country; if not, why?

MR. HIGGINS—Asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to lay on the Table of the House a statement of the value of the printed matter imported for use in his department, during the years 1919, 1920, and to April 30th, 1921; also if any officer in his department is receiving a Commission or rebate on same; if any enquiries have been made whether this work cannot be done by the Printers of the city, if not, why?

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER—On behalf of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, I have to say in reply to question two, that last summer a contract was entered into the sealing owners and one Major Clayton Kennedy for the rendering to two year's service re the sealing fishery project. The Government were to pay half of the cost, but in no case exceeding fifteen thousand dollars. Kennedy fell down on his contract and it was cancelled and during the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries another arrangement was made with Major Cotton under which the sealing fishery was to be patrolled for this year only the cost to the colony to be less than fifteen thousand. The money paid under the first contract amounted to twelve thousand dollars, but it was paid back and then it was placed to the credit of the surplus trust account and the total cost of the latter contract will not exceed fifteen thousand dollars.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—As to question three I have asked for the preparation of this information. The same applies to question five. The answers to questions six and seven will be soon tabled.

THE HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I beg to table the reply to question four.

MR. MOORE—To ask hon. the Prime Minister if Mr. Blackstead, here recently in connection with the proposed contract for an enterprise on the West Coast, is any connection of Mr. Christopher Hannevig, who established a shipbuilding plant at Harbor Grace, or has been associated with Mr. Hannevig in any of his enterprises; if the said Christopher Hannevig is now bankrupt and if Mr. Blackstead was concerned in such bankruptcy?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I regret exceedingly that any person should use his position as a member of this House in the way Mr. Moore has done, namely, to place on the Order Paper a question so worded as to suggest a deliberate intent on the part of Mr. Moore to injure the financial standing and general reputation of any gentleman who should visit this country for the purpose of interesting himself in commercial enterprises here. Such a question, so worded, is a discredit to the honourable member, is a discredit to the seat which he occupies in this House, and a serious reflection upon the courtesy and dignity of this Legislature. This House will appreciate the fact that if a visit to Newfoundland in connection with business matters of a man of high financial standing and repute is to open up an attack of this nature, then no financial man of any standing or repute would have anything whatever to do with Newfoundland. By this question the member for Ferryland is attempting in an underhand manner to strike a blow at negotiations which may be of untold advantage to the island of Newfoundland in general and the W. Coast of the island in particular, and to say that the action of the honourable member in placing a question so worded upon the order paper is discourteous and contemptible and that it reflects upon his personal character, his position as a legislator, and upon this Legislature itself, is putting my views upon this matter very mildly. With respect to Mr. Christopher Hannevig, I would say that I have no knowledge whatever as to whether Mr. Blackstead was or was not in any way identified with the operations of Mr. Hannevig at Harbor Grace. I do know that Mr. Hannevig expended large sums of money in Harbor Grace and in St. John's, that these expenditures represented a substantial revenue to the country and hundreds of thousands of dollars in the pockets of the workmen of the colony. I am also aware that Mr. Hannevig's venture at Harbor Grace has been wound up, but I understand that that was due to the fact that Mr. Hannevig was not successful in large ventures which he had undertaken in other parts of the world, and that while the Harbor Grace proposition was one which, standing on its own, may have been splendidly successful, yet the collapse of Mr. Hannevig's mercantile enterprises in other countries necessarily brought this Newfoundland enterprise down with them. The people of Newfoundland appreciate the fact that Mr. Hannevig came to this country and expended large amounts of money here through which the revenues of the colony and the people of the colony largely benefited, and we all regret that his business ventures elsewhere did not work out satisfactorily, with the result that his Newfoundland enterprise became hopelessly involved and ultimately failed.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—In the absence of Mr. Moore on his behalf I have to say that I do not agree with the Prime Minister in so eulogizing the firm of Hannevig. Do you not remember when the war was on that we spent thousands of dollars watching this Hannevig, and for a long time it was thought that Hannevig was under the direction of the German government, and it is too bad to injure a gentleman of this calibre.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER—That is without foundation, in fact.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—It is six of one and a half dozen of the other. I was in the government of the day and I do not hesitate to say that this gentleman was an improvement to this country, but when we trace them we find out that Mr. Moore was in keeping with the rules of this House when he asked this question in the manner set out. This gentleman is one of those parties who are ever afflicting this country. He is one of the pests that come here, look around and run away again. I have been thirty years in this House and the same class of man arrive here in the spring and go away again in the fall, and nothing is to be seen of them. I fully agree with Mr. Moore. What about one Wilson who hung up this House for weeks. He had a map showing a hundred vessels in use because of his wonderful enterprise. We were in the House here six weeks. Mr. Morine was on this side of the House and the present Lord Morris and others were on the other, endeavouring to bring in an industry. But what happened? The Prime Minister didn't refer to it this afternoon. We had a Mr. Blackman here a few years ago and the name Blackman is getting pretty close to Blackstead. In the absence of Mr. Moore who asked the question, I am not prepared to accept the Prime Minister's statement.

MR. MACDONNELL—I was not here when the matter came up or I would have objected. If Mr. Moore has any knowledge in relation to this question a duty devolves on him to make expression of it to the public. The suggestion of Hannevig's insolvency makes this all the more important as he is associated with Mr. Blackstedt. As the representative of St. George's, the district directly concerned, I wish to disassociate myself from anything in connection with knocking the project till it is discussed on its merits. At present the members have no knowledge of the scheme.

MR. MOORE—To ask the Minister of Public Works if it is correct that Mr. W. H. Rennie, recently appointed Secretary to the Board of Governors of the General Hospital, has made a requisition for furniture for his office amounting to nearly fifteen hundred dollars, and if it is the intention of the Department to authorize the procuring of this material, or if a sufficient quantity for his use cannot be obtained from any of the departments created during the war and now in process of being extinguished?

HON. MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table the reply.

MR. JONES—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister of W. H. Greenwood, described as a London financier and who arrived here recently in connection with a proposed enterprise on the West Coast, is the same Greenwood who has been connected for the past year or two with the Reid Newfoundland Co. and certain enterprises associated therewith; if he is at present a director of the stock broking firm in London in which members of the Reid Newfoundland Company are principal shareholders; if he is the same W. H. Greenwood who wrote an article on Hon. W. F. Coaker in the Canadian Courier which was reprinted in the "Advocate" of this city of April 9, 1920, the heading of which is "A Country Where Fishermen Run The Show" if Mr. Greenwood is correct in stating that Mr. Coaker can count eighteen members in a House of thirty-six and Mr. Squires six more; if there is any combination or agreement between Mr. Coaker and Mr. Greenwood in regard to this West Coast enterprise by which the F. P. U. is to derive financial advantages from the venture going thru, and what is the financial standing of Mr. Greenwood to justify his being described as a London capitalist.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—This question is allied to No. 8 of Mr. Moore and my criticism of that I ask to be repeated. Mr. Greenwood was I believe, identified with the formation of a banking trust company in London with which the Reids are connected. I do not know if he is a member of any stock firm. I do not know if he wrote the article referred to; I did not see it. He is here as secretary to Mr. Blackstedt. I feel that this and question 8 are both aimed at discrediting this project which has not yet been definitely laid before the House.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House what amount of orders has been sent to the Royal Stores and Martin Hardware Royal Stores, from Nov. 15th, 1919 up to April 30th, 1921, from his Department.

MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table the reply.

MR. LEWIS asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Mr. Collishaw during his recent visit to Canada and the United States sold $25,000 worth of bonds of the F. P. U. to the companies mining iron on Bell Island; also if he sold $20,000 worth of lumber belonging to himself (Mr. Collishaw) to the same Companies for use in Bell Island; if he secured these sales by undertaking that the proposed contract for an ore tax now before the House would be put through the Legislature unchanged; if Mr. Collishaw was authorized to give any such pledge or undertaking, and if not does the Government propose to take any action in the matter.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the reply.

MR. SULLIVAN asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to inform this House whose authority the telegraph office at Bar Haven is to be closed up and telephone installed instead (2) If such is done on account of retrenchment and if so will all districts be treated alike with regards to Telegraph and Telephone offices changes, (3) Why were the members of the district not notified of proposed change at Bar Haven?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In the absence of the Minister of Posts I wish to say the information will be prepared for to-morrow.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he will reconsider his decision of a few days ago, and make provision in his estimates for the erection of a Fog Alarm at Pt. Le Haye, thereby keeping his promise of last year?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND

FISHERIES.—I am sorry I cannot put it in this session but if any amount is voted for fog alarms later on I will put it in the estimates.

MR. WALSH.—May I ask that the next fog alarm built be at Pt. La Haye.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Yes.

House went into Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled, "An Act to Repeal 10-11 Geo. V., Cap. 25, entitled "An Act to regulate the Exportation of Codfish."

MR. FOX.—I think, Mr. Speaker, that in passing a few remarks in connection with this Bill, I will take the opportunity to refer to the interesting comment of the Prime Minister as to the form of certain questions put to the Government by the Opposition. As to the merits or demerits of the matters themselves I will not enter but will deal with the form only. He thinks that as framed these questions suggest financial incompetency. His strictures in this regard may be correct. But I deeply regret his shortness of memory in forgetting the time when in his position as Prime Minister he levelled a similar, or even more serious charge, against one of the most prominent men in the community, Mr. H. D. Reid. As to comparison between Mr. Reid and the others referred to I will not enter. Mr. Reid has done as much in connection with the Reid Nfld. Co. as any other. He has built up a huge organization, employing large numbers; he has done something tangible for Newfoundland but the Prime Minister apparently forgets that last year he rose in this House and stated Mr. Reid was as the others are now. Not only did he accuse him of financial incompetency, but of actual unfitness and allowed the statement to go broadcast to the world. He said he was absolutely incapable of conducting his own business. His hypocrisy is disgusting. And yet he holds up his hands in holy horror when others use their position to insinuate anything against men in business life outside the Colony. I am prepared to concede anything in reason or to censure any allegations that may be indecent or improper, but I decidedly am not prepared to support a man who will do one thing to-day and something entirely different to-morrow; a man who uses his position to scandalize one who has carried on huge operations here, has reared his family and has been under the eyes of all in all his transactions since ever his father came here. He gets up here and asks Newfoundland and all the world in general to accept the reference to the Opposition as a despicable crowd. If I had not been in this House last year and did not know of his charges I might take his statement at face value. But having this knowledge I have heard his remarks with disgust and chagrin and I for one am not prepared to receive them. In dealing with this Bill I will not have much to say though a whole lot, nevertheless, may be. I am prepared to speed on its way an unwelcome visitor that for some time has occupied a few pages of the Statute books, a law that has turned out to be a danger and a mepace to the whole community. The Act itself was alright in some respects. It had the approbation of the two main factors interested in its operation—the fishermen, it may be said, represented by the F. P. U. under the leadership of Mr. Coaker, on the one hand and the Board of Trade, representing the merchants or exporting trade on the other. While this Act permitted some restraint of trade, it also made provision for fair play and did not exercise control to the prejudice of the business of the country. But it was thrown to the winds after it had passed the House. No explanation whatever was given. Why was this legislation which was brought in to being to regulate the trade, thrown overboard and the iniquitous War Measures Act used in its seat. The months of July, August and September, the most important in connection with the marketing of our codfish, were allowed to pass but export was not controlled by the Act as passed but by the War Measures Act of 1914 that ought to have been dead two years ago; that ought to have been abolished and which was only intended from the first to be used for a special purpose. We have not yet got any explanation of the glaring indecency in this regard. The War Measures Act had no application except to when the country was in a state of war, and gave unlimited power to the Government and the placing of that power which might be exercised by unscrupulous men to the furthering only of their own ends. It was used instead of that which, through their representatives, had been passed by the voice of the people. Still there was no explanation when the Board of Trade rose up and loudly complained of the serious state of affairs arising from the use of this measure by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and those associated with him. They asked, and the country at large asked, why this was done but it was all in vain and no criticism can be too severe or talk too long to use in dealing with this question. If we want a scandal to condemn the regime of the present Government we have it here. When people talk of the criticism of the Opposition, let them remember that these scandals would have never been disclosed but for the questioning of the Opposition. We would be derelict in our duty if we did not spend our time, ourselves and our energies in probing the iniquitous doings of the Government during the last year and a half. There is every justification for everything we have done and for even going further as we intend to. It makes one tired to hear all the talk of obstruction. We are only doing what the people are not in the position to do for themselves. I have spoken plainly and criticised the Government severely but the time has come to call a spade a spade and it positively infuriates me when I consider the record of the past eighteen months, a record of maladministration that has brought us to the very verge of ruin. I demand an explanation of why they have been derelict in their duty to Newfoundland; why they have disgraced themselves by the most reprehensible conduct and even stooped to the pilfering of the public funds to suit their own purposes. Let us enumerate the scandals connected with the Fish Regulations Act, which we are now bidding farewell to; the scandal in connection with the purchase of the salt cargo now at Port Union, the scandal of sugar control and the scandal in the conduct of the administration generally. Run through the whole list and see what position we find ourselves in. Their whole history of power is nothing but scandal after scandal. It makes one mad to look at the state of affairs at the present day; mad to think of the kind of constitution that allows such glaring misconduct to go on. Someone certainly is to blame but if we had a proper Government these scandals would not have occurred. They came to power through misrepresentation and deception; they came with a programme of reducing taxation and purifying public life but their tenure of office will be written down in the history of this country and of all the globe as one which violated all the decent principles of Government. When I spoke previously of the apathy of the representatives of the West Coast I meant every word of what I said. When I am on the floors of this House I no longer represent one section of the country. I would do nothing for St. John's East that would be detrimental to the rest of Newfoundland but I would be derelict to those who sent me here if I were to stand on this floor and see injustice done my district. Their turn was served when they were elected and they are prepared to see the West Coast crucified by the illegal carrying out of regulations that was strangling the business on which that section and all of Newfoundland depends. There is no red blood in the veins of these representatives. Where is their independence? Were they tied to the chariot wheels of their party. Were they so dependent on their positions that they could see their districts pilloried and undermined and the land, once so smiling and prosperous, turned into a desert waste. From Cape Ray all along the shore to Placentia, a section whose people are among the most industrious in the Island, destitution and hunger now stalk through the land. They were elected to office with the greatest majorities on record and they would have been only showing ordinary justice to the people who returned them if they had said, "No, we will not stand for this nefarious legislation; we will not see you suffer." The regulations would never have been carried out if these men had been of the same breed as we are in St. John's East. You can take that, gentlemen, it is the truth. If the same had happened here the representatives of St. John's East and West would want to know what was going on. You should be heartily ashamed of yourselves and should feel compassion commensurate with the sufferings of the people who sent you here. The member for Burin was asked why he allowed the injustice to go on and he replied that if the people's shipments were delayed they had been instructed to telegraph him. When he further saw other sections than that which he represented being strangled in business, why did he not say "I am going to protest." But no—there was not a word; they took it all lying down. I would not mind so much, as they are bound to suffer later, but it is their total indifference to the interests of their constituents that merits censure.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Mr. Chairman. In reply to the honorable member for St. John's east Mr. Fox, I would say that he made some very serious insinuations in his address this afternoon. He occupied the time and attention of this House for over an hour and made a wonderful impression, as he thought, dealing with a baseless charge; what kind of a splurge would he have made, if he had a definite charge to lay against me. If he was manly, he would have asked to have that charge investigated but he prefers to come in and insinuate wrong doing in a way that is unworthy of him.

MR. FOX—I can—

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I am speaking now. He said that this $500,000 was all spent by me for the benefit of Port Union, and that I was always doing something to try and bolster up the F. F. U., the people of Port Union and the people of the North generally. I say in reply that that statement is absolutely incorrect and that there is no foundation whatever for it. The honourable member for St. John's East knows that the statement is incorrect and he knew it when he made it. He knows very well that the government allocation for fish was something like $350,000, which was spent to purchase thirty five thousand quintals, and he knows that out of that large quantity only seven thousand five hundred quintals were taken at Port Union, the rest being taken at St. John's. He knows all that by the records of the House already. I will go further and tell him that, since we took office in this government, not a penny of any public monies whatever, in any way or in any shape or form, has gone into the pockets of the F. P. U. or into the pockets of any Companies associated with the F. P. U. at Port Union. We have been listening for the last six weeks to baseless insinuations and lying charges coming from the opposite side of the House concerning the F. P. U. and the transactions of the government for the past eighteen months. I must say that in all my experience in this Assembly for the past ten years I have not, at any time, ever heard such grossly unfounded charges as have been thrown across the floors of this House by members of the present Opposition. I sat on that side of the House for six years and I got Sir Edward Morris, the then Leader of the government, to do many a good thing for us, but I throw out the challenge this evening that I never once made an insinuation or a charge in any way, if I did not have some foundation in fact behind it. Several gentlemen, who were colleagues of Sir Edward Morris at that time, are at present members of the Opposition here and they are at liberty to contradict my statement if they think it is untrue. What have the F. P. U. done since it was created twelve years ago? It has done everything in its power to help Newfoundland; it has helped fishermen all over the country to dispose of their products at higher prices than they were getting before, thereby helping out the country generally. Ever since I became a member of the Opposition—when the Morris government was in power—the F.P.U. kept the price of fish up all round. They even kept it up for men in St. John's as well as for fishermen outside of St. John's. Let me go further and tell Mr. Fox this. No matter what number of insinuations are cast across the floors of this Chamber they are all directed against me. They are not intended for any one else in this House. The idea is to try and take away the power that I hold in the North, but the more you oppose me and the greater your number of insinuations are the greater and the stronger you make me throughout the entire North. I have not had an easy time of it since the F. P. U. came into existence and particularly since I came into public life. Others have assailed me just as savagely and just as unwarrantedly as you have, but failed in their objective. When the F. P. U. first began to spread itself and look for representation for the fishermen in the House of Assembly, persons, who were reckoned to be the smartest and cleverest in the country were opposed to this Union; the government in power at that time was opposed to it and Water Street as a whole was opposed to it, with the result that I stand here to-day, as you see, the strongest factor in the country. If any of you gentlemen opposite want to know how unshakeable my position is in the North all you got to do is to come there—now if you like—and oppose me. Now the effect of your slanders and insinuations and the campaign of vilification and abuse in your newspapers carried on against me will be to go to the West Coast and establish there what I did North, and I intend to do that next month. I intend to go on the West Coast this year and buy as much fish as I can, and I expect to achieve as much success with my mission on the West Coast as I did North. With regard to the insinuation made by Mr. Fox as to the taking of the public moneys to buy salt. That salt was purchased by the Government across the water because there were no supplies to come in. The trade was not in a position to buy it and there was no salt in sight for July or August of last year. The Government situation and if the hon. member for St. John's East does not contend that I am an imbecile I know something of the salt question. No salt could be got anywhere at the time, it seemed, and after searching practically the world for a supply we at last found some at Hamburg. The salt was paid for by the Minister of Finance and Customs before it left on the other side. This salt was intended for the trade but when it arrived the trade did not want it. The people North did not want it, as they had sufficient to carry them through the entire season because the catch of fish North, as is well known, was something like four hundred thousand quintals short. When the merchants here refused to take delivery of the salt when it arrived it had to go somewhere to be stored or either had to remain in the holds of the steamer. I then offered to store the salt at Port Union and keep it as long as it was necessary, without any charge whatever. If I had stored the salt in St. John's, it would have cost 10 cents per hoghead per month and I would have been pronounced the greatest fool and imbecile that ever had charge of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. We took the salt and stored it at Port Union as the Government ordered. If the fishery had to be anything near normal last year there would not have been a pound of salt left and salt would have been sold at the current price here, but because I dared to store it—and it had to be stored—all kinds of charges are hurled at me. Do you mean to say that we did not want cheap salt and did you mean to put another burden on the people by not having any cheap salt here this year. Then my hon. friends on the other side see fit to hand out attacks without any justification for them. I know your policy. It is not to destroy the Squires Government, but it is to destroy Coaker and the F. P. U. That is your aim and your ambition. I am prepared to fight the North now against the Opposition, and the West Coast in twelve months time.

Take the fish that was bought by the Government last year. If that fish had not been sold at that time, what would have been the result in St. John's? Instead of $8 and $10 per quintal being paid for it, it would not have fetched more than $3 or $4 like the rest of the fish was bought for in St. John's. There is one thing about the whole situation and that is that most of the men who talked against the fish regulations talked about something they knew nothing at all about. The only man in the Opposition ranks who knew anything worth while about them was Sir John Crosbie, because it takes an exporter of fish of considerable experience to know properly about the regulations. I don't propose to contend that the Regulations were perfect in every detail because there can be nothing done faultlessly, but the regulations were based solely upon recommendations of the Exporters, who met in solemn conclave and resolutions and recommendations were made and sent to the Advisory Board. There was not one section of the Regulations that was not asked for by the Exporters along Water Street. The prices they fixed in the foreign markets are the prices they fixed; not what I fixed. Then those prices were afterwards fixed by the Board which consisted of all Exporters. When these men approved of the regulations they were passed over by me to the Governor in Council for approval. These men who comprised the Advisory Board were men who knew their business. They were not lawyers or dry goods men; but fish exporters. If a man came to me to discuss legal business would not I refer him to a lawyer. Well then what in the name of Heavens does a lawyer know about exporting fish. Let the country realize this fact that had not that thirty-five thousand quintals of fish been purchased when it had last year that the people who sold it would have lost all the Labrador fish that was in four dollars a quintal on it, because Europe and on the way to Europe, amounting to about two hundred and fifty thousand quintals, which had been purchased at $8—then there was high prices for insurance and high freight rates—fell in price about $4 in the foreign markets. Thus will be seen the wisdom of the Government in buying that 35,000 and saving that money for the fishermen. In addition to that we had six hundred thousand quintals of shore fish and if the price of Labrador came down in the foreign markets it brought down the price of the other. As to the suggestion of bringing the House together last fall when this happened, my own opinion is that the whole thing would have amounted to this. It would be sent broadcast to the world that Newfoundland had to buy 35,000 quintals of fish conditions were so congested here, with the result that people in the foreign markets would not buy at all. We saved the situation. We helped nearly every man who had a quintal of fish to sell as well as as those who bought. And then you criticize the effect of the regulations on the price of fish. Do you know, and you ought to know already from the observations made in this House, that there would not have been last year about six dollars for shore and five dollars for Labrador, if there were no regulations. The fact is that the price for shore fish was increased from six to ten dollars per quintal and the price for Labrador was increased from five to eight dollars per quintal, through the regulations, which is proof that the country got four or five million dollars which it would not have got had not the regulations been in force. And then the Opposition will come in and say that we made the merchants pay for the fish and that they have not got back their money yet and cannot get it back. If that is so, the fault is their own for taking off the regulations.

When I was in Portugal I got an offer to buy all the fish that was then in Portugal afloat on the water—fish that no one would buy I was told. It was an outright sale, cash down, that I arranged for. I communicated the matter here and I was informed in writing that the Water Street exporters had held meetings on the matter but that they did not believe that such a thing was possible in the face of the circumstances that they knew to prevail in Portugal. What happened? The fish intended for Portugal since that day has not realized twenty shillings a quintal whereas it could have been sold by me for fifty shillings cash down. In other words, every quintal of fish intended for Portugal this year might have been sold and would have enabled every fisherman to get seven dollars a quintal for shore fish this year. An arrangement was made to sell all the fish for Portugal for 1921 at a price that we fixed, not the price that Portugal was pleased to put upon it but at our price. Do you know that Water Street could not be got to back up that suggestion, despite the good terms of cash down before the delivery of the fish. The reason is that they feared they would likely offend some of their customers to whom they were used to consigning fish. I know that there are some men in this House who cannot believe that the business men along Water Street were so dense and so lacked of ability as not to be able to view intelligently the proposition I had offered them. I had everything in black and white for them, everything was covered in Portugal and still they went back on it.

But that was not the worst feature of it. All that fish that was in Portugal and which I had arranged to sell at fifty shillings—and forty the lowest—was afterwards sold for twenty-two.

When the regulations came off in January last exporters of fish here were selling in Liverpool at sixty shillings: that is, for Labrador fish. It was not very long, however, when the same quality of fish sold for forty shillings and went as low as thirty. When I went over to Liverpool last winter I was told there that Iceland was selling fish, Labrador make, for fifty shillings, which was five shillings less than us at that time. The reason Iceland did this was because we did not keep on the regulations. However, in spite of their underselling us in price we sold a great quantity of our fish, it being required by the markets. When we came down to thirty Iceland lowered to twenty-five. As the fish fell in price they always went five shillings less than us.

What happened in Spain on the first of January last? We were getting sixty shillings on the average for Labrador and eighty for shore fish. Shortly after when the regulations came off Labrador fish was sold as low as thirty shillings and a lot of men did not get that for it and all high graded Spanish shore fish came down proportionately. In Greece we were selling fish at the beginning of this year at seventy-five shillings and just as the regulations came off the price fell to fifty. To-day that same fish is being sold in Greece for forty-five. In Brazil the price of fish in the early part of January last was ninety shillings per drum. To-day it is fifty and forty. If the regulations had been kept on they would be paying us ninety shillings a quintal, cash down; whereas with the regulations removed they are paying fifty and forty, and wait for probably six months for payment and no end to all the claims on the exporters. I believe that the taking off of the regulations spells ruin for the country. If they were in force to-day Portugal would not be paying thirty shillings for our fish, but sixty or sixty-five, as the consumption there is about the same as it was before.

All this fuss about the failure of the regulations can be summed up in one word almost, namely, the want of co-operation in the Trade and the want of unity between the Government and the Opposition. Had the Opposition and their newspapers ceased their destructive criticisms and had three or four men of Water Street allowed the regulations to continue Italy would have bought last October her usual supply of Newfoundland fish. But your newspapers teemed with abuse of the regulations and of me and the result was that Italy waited her time and until Ragnoli would get the fish at the price he wished. But for this Italy would have bought one hundred and fifty thousand quintals last fall and that would have saved the whole situation in every foreign market. Your bogey cry then was that the regulations killed every one and that is your same cry now. If the regulations had been kept on as regards Italy last fall it would have meant incalculable benefits for Newfoundland this year. If no good was meant by putting on the regulations in the first place, blame the exporters themselves. They were drafted by the men in my department. My department was not the Advisory Board. It was men along Water St. that comprised the Advisory Board and some of the political friends of the Opposition. Any mistakes you can bring home to me or my department no one will admit them more readily than I.

Before closing I would like to point out that no attempt made by any man or men in this House and no opposition that I get in this House will tend to remove me from the place I hold in the districts of the North. I am prepared to go to the country now and fight you in the North, and if you will give one year more I will fight you in the West. What better proof does this House want of the sincerity of the men on the Opposition side than the number of questions asked by them in this House this afternoon. Is there any justification for such a thing and are they asked in the sole interests of the country? I say that they are not.

Take that Humber River proposition against which asperations and insinuations have been cast by men of the Opposition as well as by their newspapers. If we get four hundred tons of paper daily, which is anticipated by the promoters, as a output from this paper mill, it will be the means of giving employment to four or five hundred men. This mill would be about one-third larger than the Grand Falls mill and would be one of the greatest things that any body of men or any Assembly could legislate upon and pass on behalf of Newfoundland. But you struck at those men who promoted that scheme in the same way with your poisoned arrow as you did at us. Those promoters are stirring business men. They come here to start an industry that will be of benefit to the country generally and for so doing are insinuated against and slandered by men, who use their positions and privileges here, to ask questions imputing that those men are not as good as they ought to be. Is that fair? Is it right? Is there anything we can do to induce capitalists to come here and start an industry equal to the one at Grand Falls? That should be the question uppermost in our minds. Up there in that Grand Lake area there is three hundred horse power. It is running away and apparently of no use. Why should that be allowed to run away without any benefit coming to this country when it could be turned into the largest coal mine that exists in British North America, or it might be used to give power to Bell Island or to give power to Green Bay for the purpose of smelting copper ore or it might be used for turning timber into paper. I know that while I sat in Opposition that I continually advocated openly and fearlessly for things that could be done by the then Government for the benefit of the country. And I will say this that while the Morris Government was in power that I received more concessions for the F. P. U. than I have received since I became a member of the present Government eighteen months ago. Many of the Bills that were put on the Statute Book by the Morris Government were brought about through the exertions of the F. P. U. members. The Morris Government listened to our appeals because they knew they were not made in the interest of party politics. Sir Edward (now Lord) Morris often told me that he was always delighted to hear any suggestions that came from us. We always made suggestions to keep the price of fish up, but I do not hear of any such suggestions now from the present Opposition. All one can hear now is this despicable Government led by Squires and Coaker and the wonderful crimes they have committed by taking over the railway, for instance. Do you know that had we not taken over the railway that it would not have been operating for some time past?

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Why did you not do it when the House was open?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Because if we had done so the House would have remained open for three or four months longer. Further, the condition of the Reids was not known then.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Sure it would.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—But when the House was closed we had not decided to take over the railway.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—The Prime Minister showed it in his speech last session.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—No agreement was ever finalized.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Do you want to hear it, the story?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I heard it the other day. The Reid Newfoundland Company's steamers were held here in June last and the Company refused to let them go on their regular routes because they were unable to do it. We took over the railway which was practically of no use then, with the result that to-day the road-bed is in as good a condition as it has been for the past ten years. We spent $250,000 on it. This expenditure had to be made to ensure the safety of those who travelled by it. We also built a terminus for handling freight at Port aux Basques. This terminus had been asked for many years before but no one seemed to have sufficient courage to go ahead with it. Then again we all know that Placentia was asking for a safe harbour. The pier belonging to the Reid Company was carried away by storms and the only alternative we had was to give a safe harbour at Argentia, which is alongside, that may be of some benefit to the people of the West Coast.

We did it, we had to do it or there would be no way only to waste more money in Placentia. Look at the Opposition we met with in the opening of our coal mines. Every Newfoundlander wanted to see our coal mines worked. We were all told that coal abounded in the country, we have been trying to find out. We tried to see if there could be anything to be done in that connection. We have a twelve foot seam one hundred and twenty feet deep, and having that are we justified in paying fifteen dollars a ton for coal at Sydney when we can produce it ourselves at five or six dollars a ton and at the same time give employment to the people of the country. Is there anything unreasonable in having the courage to open a coal mine, which no other Government attempted to do. I have spoken before about the position of the country. Is it possible that there are men on the other side of the House who cannot put country first at a time like this. I do not mind your criticisms about the policy of the Government, that is your duty, but you are up against conditions in this country which never had to be faced before. You had no such conditions in 1917 when you had the Government. Is it possible that if we could forget our political differences in 1917 and I risked my political future when I did it, that you cannot do so now. I held out the hand of welcome to the Government and we put our heads together and got the country through. Many a time during the period of 1917 and 1918 we did not know what would happen on the morrow, but we forgot everything but country and we pulled her through and pulled her through well. Now we are facing the reconstruction period. We must recognise that if the world wasted billions of dollars as it did during the war that the bill must be paid. We paid it in our blood during the war, but now that the war is over we must pay it in dollars and cents. The whole world is crippled because of the effects of the war. In England they say we cannot exist as a Government unless we are a Coalition Party, and in Canada the same. If there was ever a time since we got responsible Government ninety years ago that we must remember nothing but country it is now. If you will do your best and if you don't want to associate with the Government, if you will put up no undue opposition to our proposals, we can present proposals that will help the situation considerably. You have Sir John Crosbie making that statement that one of the solutions is to insist on outright sales for our fish in the fall. He knows what he is talking about. I know the value of his words. They are written on my heart. I know that if we can get a dollar and a half more a quintal for fish that it will mean three and a half million dollars more to the trade of the country. He knows and I do that there is a chance of the Newfoundland business of exporting fish falling into a great monopoly, if we compel everybody to sell fish in St. John's. He knows as I do that you are going straight up against a wall in the exportation of your fish by the men who have not put up three or four hundred thousand dollars to buy fish and then send it to the markets are the ones who do not know it. Take Capt. Abraham Kean last fall he went into this business but he lost his money and it was his own fault.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—What did Mr. Grieve tell you? I suppose he knew what he was talking about.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—He didn't know any more than other men. I tell you that if Sir John Crosbie and I were in the one Government that we would have Fish Regulations. The only thing we can do is to nationalize our fish. That is a good thing but look at the fight that will be necessary to get it. If I were as strong as I was five years ago I would tackle the question, and I would convert the country to the nationalization of our fish. Let the men on the other side believe that.

Where are the firms of Tessier, John Duder, Stewarts? Go down the town and take all the firms except Bowrings and Harveys that have been handling fish for fifty years and they are all killed by exporting their fish, when there were no Regulations and having to take what the men on the other side chose to pay them for it, and as long as we have fish shipped by consignment we will have these conditions in the country every seven or eight years. Do you think that the young men of the outports will remain fishermen if they have those conditions facing them. They are educated men now and they will not put up with what their fathers put up with, and if they cannot get a decent living as fishermen in this country they will leave the country and our future as a fishing country is gone. Three years ago fish was fifteen dollars a quintal, last year it was ten, this year it will be six dollars for Shore Fish and four and a half or five dollars for Labrador Fish. Under these conditions the old men of course will have to remain but the young men from eighteen to twenty-five will not. On some cargoes of fish money is made and on others lost. There is money made on the first cargoes of fish and lost in the latter part of the season. The best way is for the Exporters to sell the fish in one body at a price not lower than a certain amount, let it go to the market through a Commission appointed for that purpose. Then you will get the same price first and last and let the profits of that fish be divided between the men who exported it. Who will achieve this in the face of the treatment which I have received? I have always done my best for the fishermen of the country. What sane man in the future will undertake such a problem as Nationalization. No other man would have tried to do what I did last year. Having the fishermen behind me I succeeded in getting the measure through which I thought and they thought would be beneficial, and which would have been if it had been given a fair trial. In the face of the treatment I have received will I tackle this problem? My life is too short. I am worn out as it is. I would tackle it if I had the strength I had five years ago. In a year or two I will probably disappear from public life, but when I go they will be glad to have anotehr Coaker to take my place. Now I am sorry that I have taken up so much time and if I have said anything offensive to Mr. Fox I want to ask him to overlook it.

MR. FOX.—Mr. Speaker, I agree with what Mr. Coaker says about saying a thing in the heat of the moment. There is nothing personal in the matter and I would like to disabuse his mind of a wrong impression. He says that the fight of the Opposition is not against Squires but against Coaker and the F. P. U. He is wrong. I do not know whether it is the drop of Irish blood in me but I am again the Government. If the F. P. U. was the Government I would be against it. I do not single out any portion of the Government. As a Government you have a record you ought to be ashamed of and on that record you will be judged and punished. Towards the F. P. U. as a Commercial enterprise I have no animosity, but as a political factor which controls the Government I fight it. The Minister said that our attacks only serve to strengthen his position in the North. Well, if that is so he ought to be delighted. I have no doubt that he is very strong in the North and why shouldn't he be, and if he continues to do as he has done during the past eighteen months, I feel sure that he will be impregnable there. Why shouldn't he when he is feeding those people at the expense of the rest of the country.

Now Mr. Coaker says that that salt to the amount of seventy-five thousand dollars was not an outright sale. Then either he is wrong or the Attorney General is wrong. The Auditor General's report says it was. The men who purchased that salt had not enough business ability to sell at a profit or save a loss and they sold to the F. P. U. for sixty-one thousand dollars and lost fourteen thousand dollars. This is what the Auditor General's report says. Which is wrong? Suppose it was as Mr. Coaker said it was he had no right to touch one cent of the public money. If you want to know the crime in that salt deal it lies in the fact that you used money you had no right to touch. If you were in England you would be dismissed from office for that action. No money should be expended unless it is voted in this House. Now here is the Auditor General's reply to Sir Michael Cashin's question. Either he is right and Mr. Coaker wrong or vice versa. Is the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars of so little importance to a destitute country that you can attempt to explain away the situation by saying the whole thing is wrong and should not inquire into it. Is that the way to justify the public confidence? You had not even the justification you had for taking the half million dollars to buy fish. We don't know upon what authority the Deputy Minister of Finance and Customs he had no right to do so. You are only the trustees of the public money and you have to handle it as such. If you were ordinary trustees you would be put in jail for this action. That is where the crime is in the refutation of that contract of sale and in throwing back upon the hands of the government, and the government will be lucky if they do not lose sixty-one thousand dollars on it. The Minister was wrong when he said that I stated that the half million dollars taken to buy fish was expended in Port Union. I did not say that, what I said was that it was expended to buy the Fish of the members of the F. P. U. whether they all reside at Port Union or not I don't know or care. That does not interfere with the principle of the thing. That money was taken without justification or right and used to buy fish from the F. P. U. or their supporters, and if it was done for any organisation of a similar nature in my own district it would be just as wrong. The F. P. U. is only an illustration. If any section of the country is benefitted at the expense of other sections then that is wrong no matter what section it is, and let me tell Mr. Coaker that although the F. P. U. benefitted it was only temporarily because no one section of the country can receive any lasting benefit to the detriment of the country in general. The idea that I have any personal opposition to the F. P. U. is a ridiculous one. It is only because it controls the government that I oppose it. Mr. Coaker talks of my insinuations. I asked him a question some time ago now will he answer it? Is it not true that he undersold two cargoes of fish last year in Oporto that when the price was seventy shillings he sold at fifty-five.

MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES—No it is not true.

MR. FOX—The Board of Trade says that you undersold your Regulations and if it is not true why don't you take some action about it?

MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—Mr. Speaker. If you know anything about fish you will know that in Oporto they have been buying fish all faults. Two men came to me last year and said to me we are shipping two cargoes of fish No. 1, but we would like to have it put on our Bill of label All Faults, and we gave them that privilege and shipped their fish for them. Sir John Crosbie can tell you that your fish may be all No. 1, and it may sell All Faults. This expression means that they will take the cargo as it stands. There was an insinuation that I sold fish at Oporto last year while other men could not do so. The Regulations called for outright sales. Every broker was trying to sell fish for Newfoundland. No man had to sell fish through the Department as long as it was sold outright. I had a right to sell my fish as well as other firms and I sold outright sales. The reason I sold so easily is that the Fish coming from the North has a splendid reputation there. When it comes from the West Coast they think it is different fish, bank fish in particular, but the Northern fish is easy to sell. If I had two cargoes since I came here I could have sold it, but I could not sell West Coast fish. They say do not give us that fish if you have any better. I tell you Hodges and Joe Lond or I should say Mr. Lond could sell their fish easily because of its reputation. Port Union has a good reputation. If I have a cargo to sell they get in touch with me and come to terms because they think it is good fish, but I sold no fish through the department. Some men could not get outright sales and these men came to me and asked if we would sell it for them They were granted that privilege. I sold my fish because I know those people over there. I was there two years in succession and they have confidence in me.

MR. FOX—I think the Hon. gentleman has touched the crux of the whole matter. You remember the old saying "You cannot serve God and mammon." But here we have a gentleman engaged in a private business and controlling the entire business of the country of the same nature. How can he serve both. He can't do it, and he is doing his reputation a lasting injury by attempting to hold down two jobs. You know there are very few of us who are willing to give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt. When a Cashin supporter's fish was held up on the West Coast, and he is caused to lose heavily as a result people are inclined to think that there has been some unfair dealing. There is a nigger in the wood-pile somewhere. If the rumours are incorrect why does not the Hon. gentleman go down to the Board of Trade and deny them. It is no use in your going to the Exportation Board. That board represents only about one-third of the exporters of the country.

The hon. gentleman is attempting to serve two masters. He is attempting to serve the country, and he is attempting to serve his own private company in competition with the business of the country. I want him to regard that fact seriously. I want him to come out and disabuse the public mind of the rumors that are going around. I admire the Hon. gentleman's energy; I admire his indomitability, but the more energetic, the more influential, the more indomitable the greater is the danger to public interest. The bigger the man, the greater for good or for evil. I wish I had half his ability and half his energy. While in his present position the hon. gentleman has got to remember that there is such a thing as an F. P. U. while he is Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He has got to remember that if he does not work in the interest of his private corporation his political position and influence are most unsafe. The record of the government during the past eighteen months indicates that the party that has come off second best has been Newfoundland.

The hon. Minister states that the reason the Regulations failed was the opposition from the merchants. So there is evidently opposition to the Regulations besides that of the lawyers. The Hon. Minister bows to the opinion of Sir John Crosbie, but there was no greater opponent of the Regulation than Sir John Crosbie. The Hon. Minister says that when he make a mistake he is willing to acknowledge it. That is a good point in his favour, but when he makes a mistake that means the downfall of the country we cannot say to him "go and sin no more." The mistake is too serious and we have to be sure that he is not in a position to make the mistake and admit the Minister's courage in coming in here and admitting his mistake, but the people who are responsible for such a mistake cannot continue to conduct the affairs of the country. You have proved yourselves incompetent and inexperienced. Why there are shops on Middle Street selling essence of vanilla that were here a long time ago with you in charge. You have fired away hundreds of thousands of dollars without any consideration whatever. No mistake that you have made has cost less than half million. How can you expect men to cooperate with you? The country has absolutely no confidence in you. You have failed in your administration. Why not call a dissolution and go to the country. Never mind talking about a national government. That is merely dust thrown in the eyes of the people. The time for soft speaking has gone; the time for co-operation has gone. The next thing we should have is a re-shuffle of seats. I am prepared to stay in the Opposition, and you should be prepared to stay in your seats. The Hon. Minister talks about going West. If this government goes on for another year there will be no West to go to. I can imagine the torch-light procession when the Hon. members go back to the West Coast. If you had a sense of decency you would give up your seats and go to the country. Go back to the people you have wronged. Must the condition that at present exists continue? If it does God help Newfoundland. The country seems to be under a blight. The land that was to flow with milk and honey according to the prophecies of a year ago has become a land of destitution. I wish the hon. Minister could forget there was such a thing as politics, and go back to Port Union and enshrine himself in the hearts of the people. Long ago he was regarded as the uncrowned king of the North I do not want to think of him as a political opponent, not as a political autocrat, but as the uncrowned king of the North. Rid yourself, Sir, of politics and political ambitions. Free Newfoundland of the stranglers hold, and I will do my best to co-operate in the administration of the affairs of the country. But if you stay in politics and continue to maintain your stranglehold, you will have no more bitter opponent than I will be.

It was moved and seconded that the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Cap. 170 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of Marine Courts of Enquiry'" without amendment.

Sir J. C. Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, May 10th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. TARGETT—I beg leave Mr. Speaker, to present a petition from the inhabitants of Hant's Harbor asking that the sum of five hundred dollars be granted for the repair of the main line which is very badly in need of repair. The petition is signed by one hundred and sixty persons and I give the prayer of the petition my hearty support and that it be referred to the department to which it relates.

MR. WINSOR—I ask leave Mr. Speaker to present a petition from the residents of Newtown in the district of Bonavista requesting that the motor boat service between Newtown and Gambo be made permanent and that a better boat be put on the service. By this means the people are able to connect with the trains at Gambo. I give the petition my hearty support and ask that it be referred to the department to which it relates.

MR. ABBOTT—I give this petition my hearty support.

MR. ABBOTT—I ask leave to present a petition from the residents of Bonavista asking that the sum of five hundreds dollars be allocated to cut away an embankment at ———Cove. Something like forty boats fish out of this Cove and under present circumstances it is impossible for them to prosecute the fishery from this Cove. They therefore ask for the above amount and I give the petition my hearty support and ask that it be handed to the department to which it relates.

MR. WINSOR—I support the petition.

Sir Michael Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Sir John Crosbie gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I beg to answer the question asked by Mr. Higgins on yesterday's order paper. And in reply I would say that no printed matter was imported for use in the department of Finance and no officer or official received any commission or rebate on same. As to question five which asks for particulars extending over a period of three years and which will require some time to prepare I hope to be soon in a position to table.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I wish to call the attention of the Prime Minister to the fact that question 9 of May 4th., is still unanswered.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I have asked the Auditor General to give me an answer but no reply has yet come to my desk. I may receive it during the afternoon.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted Sir M. P. Cashin moved "for the appointment of a Select Committee of 'this House (with five members) to enquire into and report upon the appropriation and expenditures of public money in 1920, for the purchase of Fish and Salt and into all matters concerning the charter of vessels, the hiring of stores, the purchase and sale of fish and salt, and the whereabouts of said fish and salt, and the control and management thereof; with power to employ counsel, take evidence on oath and send for all persons, papers and things necessary to the said enquiry, with an instruction to the said Committee to hold an enquiry in Public and to have the evidence taken stenographically and to publish the same from day to day in the newspapers of this City."

This motion was seconded by Mr. Bennett.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I beg to move that this Select Committee be appointed. The reasons for this appointment are not necessary to be told to the House as the matter has been thrashed out since the House opened. As we all know enormous amount of money has been taken from the Treasury and the information asked for with reference to this sum has not been forthcoming and I am therefore compelled to take this step to have the necessary information given to this House and to the public. We have asked for the particulars of the taking of this sum of five hundred thousand dollars from the Treasury but we have not yet got them in the whole only in part. We have been told different answers to this question and we do not know whom to believe. We are in duty bound to insist on the acquisition of this information. But I wish to bring it to the notice of the gentlemen on the other side that they have brought this on themselves and if they have clean hands there is no reason why they should be afraid to court an enquiry into this matter. The same applies to the salt question. The member for the department tells us one story and the Auditor General another and we do not know whom to believe. We discovered in the report of the Auditor General that the cargo of salt was sold to a firm and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries said that it was stored and not sold to a firm and I think it is only fair to the department in charge if there is an enquiry re this salt. It is only fair to those responsible and for this reason and for no other motive do I ask that this Select Committee be appointed to enquire into the matter.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The motion before the Chair reads as follows:

I cannot accept the motion as it is not at all necessary under the circumstances

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Legislation is being brought in during the Session, legislation will be introduced in a day or two having the House go into Committee of the Whole on Supply, then there will be Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means, and the Surplus Trust Account will be before the House, then we all shall have opportunities to discuss every detail of the motion involved. If my honourable friend desires a very careful scrutiny on behalf of the public then the public shall have it through the reporter's box of this House. There will be several opportunities to discuss matters of supply, matters of finance and the surplus trust account especially on the occasions associated with the committee stage of the House. The Government welcomes every just criticism in this connection, it welcomes every question in this connection, it welcomes all the publicity which is obtainable when the House is in Committee of the Whole with regard to the policy of the government in the detailed management of all these matters. The government welcomes the opportunities the country shall have through the medium of the reporter's box and the official reports of learning of every detail, of learning of the policy and the business transactions of the government. There is no one who more welcomes a just clear concise discussion during the Committee stage of the House than the Minister of Marine and Fisheries himself, and there will be a multitude of opportunities between now and the time the House closes to have this matter fully discussed. With respect to the general matter of the question asked I have to say that practically every question from the other side of the House has been answered very fully and promptly, having regard to the nature of the question asked. The number of questions remaining unanswered to-day amount to only a few considering the hundreds of questions asked during the last few weeks. The leader of the Opposition will fully realise that of the numerous questions asked that very few remain unanswered according to parliamentary practice. Having regard to previous occasions in this House, I am of the opinion that the multitude of questions asked have been answered very fully and promptly having regard to the nature of the question. I am sure that the numerous questions put by the members on the other side have been answered more carefully and more promptly answered than they have been during the last ten years. Not long ago Sir, when my honourable friend was a member of the government one hundred and sixty questions remained outstanding and unanswered at the end of the session. I consequently cannot concur with the motion before the Chair, which has been so courteously worded and put by the leader of the Opposition which is intended to suggest a vote of a want of confidence in the government or in the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. If he desired to have an enquiry into this matter then during the Committee stage of this House there will be the fullest opportunity and facility according to parliamentary practice and procedure. So far as I can see the motion of the honourable outlines no specific charge and as there will at a later date be an opportunity for the honourable member to secure any information he may desire I consequently cannot support the motion.

MR. HIGGINS—I did not anticipate taking part in the discussion relative to the motion before the House. I heard a motion, and when I say I heard of it, I mean I heard like the other members on this side of the House in a private capacity for the first time yesterday afternoon. I am surprised at the announcement of the Prime Minister, and, to put my opinions mildly, to come in here and hear such a reply is certainly a matter of absolute astonishment to me. I did not think it possible that such an answer would be uttered by the leader of the House. A member of this House makes a motion that a select committee be appointed to enquire into a matter of public importance. The matter in question has not alone been the subject of comment in this House but it has been a subject of comment in the public press of the country, and it is a matter that touches upon the taking out of the Treasury of a large amount of money in an unusual way, in an improper and illegal way and contrary to all precedents, and then the leader of this House gets up and says that this motion will not be acceded to because it is a vote of want of confidence in the government. Surely the Prime Minister could not have seriously thought of the implication arising from the answer, of the conclusions that would have been drawn from it, namely that there may be a direct charge against some Minister of the Crown. There is no charge against any one, and I say if there is any charge against any minister of the Crown, then it becomes our bounden duty no matter on what side we sit, in the interests of the member, in the interests of the government and in the interests of this House to have that matter fully and properly disposed of. If it be true, and I do not for one moment suggest that it is true, that everything is clean and nothing is wrong then why not appoint this commission. Why are you afraid? Has it got down to this, that each member of the House is tabbed and you are told because you sit on this or that side of the House the vote whether an enquiry will be held or not is given according to the seat you occupy? You have heard a lot of talk about a suggestion that some one is guilty, but I do not know the member he refers to. Yet during the past twenty-four hours it has been said that there is a great necessity to get a proper union of minds. How is it possible to get together and expect co-operation when immediately when a thing of this sort is asked by a member of this House in the words of the Prime Minister in an inoffensive way and with words not even suggesting any charge whatever the Prime Minister makes an announcement such as he did? The honourable leader of the Opposition merely moved that five members be appointed to go and get the facts and the papers and documents and the necessary witnesses and give the story to the country. You are making a mistake when you turn and say that this motion must be voted down because it emanates from the Opposition. I am sorry that you yourselves admit that there is something too rotten to be touched. You are afraid to have it exposed. I have neither heard it said, or suggested from this side that something unprecedented, irregular or improper has been transacted by the government. It is no matter whether the Committee comes from this side of the House or is wholly composed of your own members so long as this matter is disposed, but for the Prime Minister to make the utterance he did is unworthy of him as leader of this House, unworthy of him as a lawyer, and I am sorry to have to say it because he knows better than to say in reply that this can be exhaustively dealt with during debate here in this chamber. He says the matter can be thrashed out in debate, but the chances are one hundred to one that the true inwardness of the story will never be brought to light. It is the privilege of the country to know the story. Is it fair to come in here and is it decent for you because you have a majority, because you are the government, to sit down in your seats with closed mouths and let us talk. I cannot believe that the members of the other side, and especially the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, have come to this stage and are going to support the suggestion of the Prime Minister. No I believe it is the spontaneous thought of the Prime Minister when he draws a red herring across the matter. The passage of this motion will help this House to transact its business more expeditiously and close the House earlier. There is no logic whatever in the state ment of the Prime Minister, and we on this side of the House will only find ourselves in the humorous position that it is our bounded duty to enter into a lot of argument and discussion which we never contemplated, all because you refuse to accede to the simple motion before the Chair. This will surely convey to the country at large the impression that something is being kept clear of being stirred up, and it is the natural duty to fall upon us to take the line which we never thought of taking, a stand wherein we are forced to believe that there is something peculiar, that some one is afraid of the lime light. The leader of the House himself has suggested that the motion imputes wrong doing to some member of the Crown. Presumably he refers to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Not a man in this House since the opening of the debates has suggested wrongdoing of a personal nature, wrongdoing for personal gain. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has often courted enquiries into his conduct. His language has always suggested that course. He has more than once wished the searchlight to be turned on him because he is not afraid of the enquiry.

And yet we now hear "Cut off the glare; stand aside and let us get back in the dark." Is that to be the policy now that this committee is asked for? Do honourable gentlemen think that they are to come in here and act according to the dictates of the Leader of this House without consulting at all their own feelings in the matter? If the conduct of the government was all that it should be why do you funk this committee; why fear that the facts be laid bare? I never thought that the day would come when honourable gentlemen in this House would funk an investigation into matters involving such a huge expenditure as that which we now seek to have examined into. This House is the seat of all law; it is above all courts; it is the one institution in the land that must stand for the rights of the people, then surely honorable members opposite, surely the Leader of the government himself is not serious, surely he is not going to refuse an investigation when wrong doing is imputed to a minister of the Crown and when so much is at stake. Someone said a day or two ago that if a petty larceny is committed there is no hesitation in finding the perpetrator and giving him six months in jail; if a man's house is burnt, an enquiry is immediately held, but now we are told that altho a minister goes down and takes three quarters of a million dollars irregularly and improperly, the transaction ought not be enquired into. Does the Prime Minister think that the people are fools all the time? Does he think that if the people are suffering because of the depression that exists they do not remember who caused it? We hear a lot of talk about the times in other countries, but I want to tell you that in no other country under the British flag would there be the slightest hesitation in holding an enquiry such as is asked for here. How can the government expect the people to have the slightest faith in them if they go on the policy that there should be no enquiry into this matter because wrong doing is imputed. That is the greatest reason why an enquiry should be held and if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is the man I think he is he will be the first to support the motion. No man whose record is clean would shirk any enquiry into his actions and it is because I have faith in the hon. Minister, and because I believe that he is able to satisfactorily explain his personal position in this matter, that I expect from him a different answer from that given by the leader of the government, namely that to appoint this select committee would be paramount to a vote of want of confidence. Want of confidence in what? The committee could consist of a majority of government members, or for that matter it could be composed of all government members so far as we on this side are concerned, and such a committee can do no more than get the facts and, moreover, by virtue of its very composition it would be a government committee. I repeat that this committee can only get the facts and report on them. And we to take it then that the facts are such as if taken under these circumstances the people concerned would be placed in a really serious position; is it suggested that if that method were employed, the story would after all be different from what I had thought it would be? Is there really something in these transactions that if they were to be enquired into the results would be unpleasant for the minds behind them? How can any hon. gentleman allow himself to be placed in the humiliating position of having to go back to the people who sent him here and say to them "I could not vote for the appointment of a committee to enquire into these matters because it would set in motion machinery which would bring to light facts which are better kept out of sight. If we can keep our mouths closed everything is alright, but if they get to work things may be discovered that would make it awkward for those whom we are pledged to obey without question." Is that the position hon. gentlemen opposite are going to take? Is it the position that this House cannot investigate matters of such momentousness as this because it would make it unpleasant for some of its members? Honourable gentlemen opposite, don't for the sake of the children who are to come after you turn down this committee; compose it how you like, but don't turn it down, for to do so would be an open request for us on this side to look upon you as wrong doers whose actions cannot bear the light of day.

Don't let us approach this serious business by telling us straight that you've done something that you don't mind us talking about in the House, but which you dare not have enquired into outside. Don't, for the sake of those who are to come after you, have yourselves looked upon as men who are licked into shape for party exigencies. Don't, for the sake of the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries himself, refuse to support this motion. The Prime Minister would not, on more mature consideration, I feel sure, give such an answer as he has given, that for a committee, composed entirely of members of the government and not influenced by any force outside the House, to be appointed to enquire into matters of such far reaching importance, would amount to a vote of want of confidence. If you vote against it you are writing yourselves down as men who voted in this way because the dictate came from the leader of the party. I suggested a moment ago that no man who is innocent cares what methods are employed to enquire into his conduct. I go further than that now, and I say that the man who supports a motion that would tend to create the impression that he had done something wrong a man who supports a motion not to enquire into his actions when such an enquiry is asked for or even suggested, leaves the impression in the minds of every thousand that there is something which he is ashamed of. If the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries will take it from me in all honesty, as from one who has at all times tried to play the game in that way with him he ought to welcome this committee; he ought to seek the enquiry; he ought to demand it. If I were in his place I would resent the suggestion that there was anything I was ashamed of. I would not care if it was a commission such as has been spoken of here, it would make no difference where they came from, I would say go ahead and appoint your commission and get all the facts you can, and I would put it to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries not to allow himself to become an object of suspicion, not to deliberately give people the impression that there is that in his actions of which he has to be ashamed. The very worst that could be said would be to condemn the method of handling this matter. If the hon. Minister does not support the motion we can only assume that he has indeed been guilty of some personal wrongdoing, and from any evidence in my possession shouldn't suggest or even think him so guilty. Therefore, I appeal to him for his own sake and to every hon. minister who has his interest at heart not to let this opportunity pass. I would say again finally that this is a matter in which the Committee could do no more than get the facts, it cannot affect the Minister in any way and if this is so, why hesitate. If you do not have this motion carried, believe me, you will find that the people will come to the decision that "there is something rotten in the state of Denmark."

MR. MACDONNELL—Mr. Chairman, I would like to have a word to say before the motion is put. I also am disappointed that the government should have treated this matter the way they have. It will be remembered that yesterday afternoon the hon. minister, himself expressed the desire to have the fullest investigation. He said in reply to the hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Fox, why not have an investigation into the fact instead of making insinuations. Now Sir, could that have been merely bluff? It could not have been because notice had already been given of the motion now before the Chair when he made that statement. Are we then to have the spectacle in this House of a barefaced and abject back down for that is what his declining to-day to have an investigation amounts to. As far as I can see, there is only one construction that I can place on his action. Sir John Crosbie has said that people may draw the conclusion that there has been some wrong doing, but I go further than that and say that no right thinking person can draw any other conclusion. The hon. minister has said that fish and salt are things that should be kept clear of politics and yet the Prime Minister now wants to make party politics out of these same matters. What is the explanation? I say that someone either inside or outside of this House is afraid of the truth. It has happened in this country before that gentlemen standing high in the councils of the government were forced to vacate their positions because of conduct that was not as serious as that suggested here, and it may happen again now if the whole truth is brought to light. You may knife this motion today; you may kill it now but remember that killing the motion does not kill the cause for the motion and there are many ways in which pressure can be brought to bear to have an investigation held. You have now been given the chance to court an enquiry, you may decline to take advantage of it, but do not be lured into the false security of thinking that it will end there. I do not know what is the practice in this House that corresponds to an impeachment in the House of Commons, but whatever it is we would have something very near an impeachment in this case if that practice were carried out. I cannot see any sense in the position and the only conclusion that can be arrived at is that there are facts in connection with the transaction which, were they to become known, would place the Prime Minister and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the position where the Governor could tell them to get out and if this is so are they such fools as to imagine that by warding off the evil day he will obliterate the matter altogether. The motion has been introduced properly and put forward in a manly and straightforward way and it will never be dropped until the whole matter has been sifted to the bottom and the entire fact made known and then those whose actions have not been what they should have been must take the consequences.

MR. MOORE—Mr. Speaker. Before you put the motion I would like to ask the Minister of Justice or the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the interest of the country at large if they have not one word of explanation to make before this vote is cast, or will they sit down and let it be cast. If that is what you intend to do then God help you and God help the country.

MR. VINICOMBE—I rise to support the motion before the Chair and in doing so, I would like to say that I think it is a motion which should have been put here two or three weeks ago, to stop the public from talking about the affairs of the government. I was surprised when Sir John Crosbie sat down, that the Minister of Marine & Fisheries did not rise and say that he feared no inquiry that could take place. We have to take it that the Prime Minister spoke for him when he said that there would be no Select Committee appointed for this purpose. I think it is time for the country to know of these matters. We have heard all about what the Prime Minister said in his Manifesto regarding the different departments of the government. He said that Mr. Coaker's position should be held by a man who had no interest in the exportation of fish from the country, and then he places one of the largest exporters of the country in that position. If he was above suspicion why did he get up and refuse to have a Select Committee appointed? I am surprised that Mr. Coaker did not get up and say I will court inquiry, because I have the opinion of Mr. Coaker that even if he did do wrong that he would wriggle through, like the Prime Minister got out of the Woodford Affidavit. That is why I say that you were backward in not getting up, because if there are any tricks to be done the government will do them, but they can't do the business of the country. Now I am sorry that this thing did not go thru. We have been told that we have been hanging up this House for six weeks, and I say in all sincerity, as one who loves his country, that we should hang it up until October or November, because we have a crowd of incompetent men in the Executive government, and that would keep them from doing any material harm like they did last year. It is the duty of the House for this reason to hold up the House until October, but fortunately perhaps there is no more money fo. blunders to be made with. Now I hope that Mr. Coaker will get up and support this motion of a Select Committee as I do with my whole heart, and soul.

Whereupon the House divided and there appeared for the motion:—Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox, Mr. Vinicombe, Dr. Jones, Mr. Moore, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Sinnott, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. MacDonnell, Mr. Lewis (13); and against it—Prime Minister, Minister of Justice, Minister of Marine & Fisheries, Minister of Education, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Minister of Public Works, Mr. LeGrow, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Small, Mr. Hibbs, Mr. Gosse, Mr. Scammell, Mr. Targett, Mr. Guppy, Mr. Jones, Mr. Sasmon—(17).

so it passed in the negative, and was ordered accordingly.

MR. FOX.—Mr. Chairman, certain learned gentlemen of the Government have decided to vote down the motion for a select committee to be appointed for the purpose of enquiring into the matters of the purchase of fish and salt out of the public funds. Unlike previous speakers, I am not at all surprised that they should have so decided, rather does this but confirm my previous opinion, it only buttresses my idea of what the Governments' action in this instance would be as indicated by their record for the past year and a half. We all know the history of their broken promises and pledges unredemmed; the whole country has been nauseated by the statements of the Leader of the Government of all that was going to be done to purify politics; they thought that there was no party possessed of honor or morals but themselves and all were tired hearing of the rejuvenation that was to be wrought in public life. They slandered their predecessors to gain favor with the electorate even though the previous administration had included in its ranks many who now sit on the other side. The Prime Minister himself was a part of the administration that was so slandered by his own party in 1919 and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was a part of the National Government. Do what they will these gentlemen cannot disassociate themselves from that administration but instead of having taken their share of the credit or the blame for all that had been done, there was nothing too bad for them to say about those who now sit on this side and nothing too good for them to say about themselves. The whole thing was pure sham and rank hypocrisy and now you have taken power unto yourselves and used it to further your own private ends. You had laws placed on the Statute book which you immediately disregarded and when charges of wrong-doing are brought against you, you exclaim with one breath "we are innocent" and with the next you deny this House the right to enquire into your actions in connection with a matter that concerns the whole country.

You have done as you had no right to do. Mr. Coaker to-day as the man in charge of the Fish Regulations in the country for the past year stand in the position that he is surrounded with suspicion, and whether or not the charges which have been made are true there have been charges made in connection with that half million dollars which you had no right to touch, there are rumours rife that all is not as it should be, that cheques have been drawn and paid to the account of the man in charge of these Regulations. Water Street is flooded with suspicions of that character, and Mr. Coaker owes it to himself to refute them. If he has done nothing wrong he need have no fear of an enquiry, but if he has he has every reason to refuse to vote for this motion, and the only conclusion I can reach is that you do not want an investigation into your record in this connection as subject to this motion. The men on the Government side hold up their hands in holy horror at the wicked Opposition for suggesting that they are not paragons of virtue and ask vengeance upon a crowd of men so lost to self-respect as to suggest such a thing. Well now from what has been disclosed during the past six weeks there is every justification for the Oppositions' asking for this inquiry. There have been nothing but scandals since you came into office. You have been proved incompetent but I say that you are worse than that, that you have been dishonest in the discharge of your public duties. Are we going to have an investigation of that sort stifled? Now where are the men who boasted of their independence a few days ago? If your party is right you need have no fear, but if you think your leader have done wrong then as independent conscientious men it's your duty to see that we have an investigation and say if we find our leaders have done wrong we will disassociate ourselves from them forever. Now prove the independence and honesty of purpose that you want attributed to you and which is believed in by very few. There is one statement made from this side of the House which I object to on principle and that is regarding the personnel of the Committee, namely that you can choose five men from the Government ranks. I am not very strong on Biblical history, but I believe that there was a city of Sodom and Gomorra and Lot was told to go and find ten good men there and if he could the city would be saved, but he could not and the city was destroyed. This Liberal Reform Government is Sodom and Gomorra of Newfoundland, and any man who engages to find five good men among you is undertaking some task, and as a consequence of this the country will be destroyed and you with it. If any hon. gentleman would get up and say yes we will support this motion I would alter my opinion, but you sit there and no man has courage to do this to prove his sincerity or assert his independence. Then certain gentlemen are surprised that the motion is about to be turned down. I can only come to one conclusion and that is that if the Minister allows this to be turned down he has something to hide. Ever since you have assumed office you are not fit to associate with, because no man can touch tar and remain unsoiled and the same applies to you. It is impossible to associate with men who have outraged every principle of decent government for the past year and a half who have seen fit to go down and take half a million dollars of the public money and use it for one section of the country, who have used their public offices for their private interests, who now refuse the public something that is their's by right, an inquiry into what they have done with public moneys they had no right to touch. The public are your masters and to them you will have to account. Through the voices of the Opposition and the public press they demand an investigation of certain matters, and that right you are denying them, the people who sent you here, and why? Because you know you have done wrong and you cannot face the clear light of an impartial investigation, but remember you are only postponing the evil day, but be it long or short, the time will come when upon your heads will be visited the sins of your administration. Why this motion means merely that an impartial Committee be appointed to investigate certain matters that the public want to know about. Grave suspicions are afloat in connection with those matters and the public want that inquiry to find out whether you have done right or wrong, how that money was spent, and you refuse to grant that right, and yet you boast of your independence and protest before high Heaven that you are the personification of everything good and pure in public life. Hypocrisy never went further, it could not go further. A lot of indignation has been expressed in the Government ranks during the past few weeks, because insinuations have been made that they are not independent, that they must jump when their leaders say so, and get down when their leaders tell them to. Your action with regard to this motion puts you in the position not only of men accused of certain charges but found guilty of them. Farewell now to your boast of independence and purity of motive. I personally have no doubt that the suspicions abroad are correct, that if an investigation be held by an impartial Committee that you will be found guilty of the charges laid against you, and I am not at all surprised that you have shirked the issue. The Prime Minister said that this motion is equivalent to a vote of want of confidence in the government. You are the only people who have any confidence in yourselves. The public has none, because you have violated the pledges you made them. You stand in the position to-day of a discredited Government, a body of men who have proven themselves incompetent and incapable, and if rumour is correct, dishonest in the administration of public affairs.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House what Orders have been sent to the Royal Stores Furniture and Clothing Departments from Nov. 15th, 1919, to April 30th, 1921, from his department?

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table that information.

MR. BENNETT asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House a statement giving the amount of money spent on that section of the South Side Road from the Gorton-Pew Company's premises to Fort Amherst from March 1st, 1920, to present date, giving details of work performed, the names of all persons employed with particulars of amounts paid to each, and if a proper division of the work is allotted to residents without regard to political affiliation, also to state if work at present performed is essential, having regard to financial conditions at the present time.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—The answer to that question is being prepared.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if people who undertook the cutting of pit props as relief work the past winter were given in any case such articles as tinned meats, canned fruits, dried fruits and accordeons as part of the payment for cutting pit props near Newman's Sound during the past few months, and if these articles were given with the approval of the Government, and if not does the Government propose to take any steps to prevent this practise being continued; also if it is the case that the Government has been charged with the distribution of 370 barrels of flour, 70 barrels of meat and other fruits in proportion as well as a number of accordeons which were distributed in a section where there were only three families reported to be in need, and if so who is the mill owner who distributed this material and what quantity of pit props was furnished as the equivalent for this distribution?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Leader of the Opposition is aware that no pit props are being cut by the Government. We have not issued supplies for this purpose to anyone. This information has already been tabled but I will again table the whole lot.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Before we get away from this matter do I not understand that pit props were given for the benefit of the people in the Northern and Western Bays last year. Certain people were given contracts provided they would employ poor people.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—Certain people who wanted to cut pit props said we are not prepared to cut unless the Government will give certain guarantees. The Government guaranteed that provided they were notified of liability before the thirtieth of June they would purchase such as were pronounced suitable by Government surveyors for Tidal Waves. These people got their own supplies. The Government guaranteed no credit, but merely entered into that contract.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—The Government promised those people if they did not make a success financially that they would take the pit props off their hands. Was there no representation made by members of this House to the Government for the cutting of pit props in the Northern and Western Bays? Did not members intercede with the Government to allow pit props to be cut and exported from the Colony, with the understanding that the men who contracted with the Government would give employment to the poor and not the rich people.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is quite correct.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—The Government knew that there was destitution in the Northern and Western Bays and that the poor could be relieved by the cutting of pit props, and they gave the contract provided the poor were employed. That is what I am after.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is not what was asked.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Well I put the question now. Pit props were given last year to certain individuals instead of poor relief, and as gentlemen on the other side can bear me out we made representation to the Government to this effect and the Government gave contracts to planters to cut pit props but they had to give employment to the poor, and the Government guaranteed a price. Is not that what I was after?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No. If you want to ask me a reasonable question like that, that is a different matter. My answer to your question is that the Government had nothing to do with these accordeons, etc.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—What I want to say is that the planters in the North did not employ the poor man because there is no poor man. I knew what you would say but what I want to point out is that the men in the North were handed out thousands of dollars.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Good for them.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—The reason you say good for them is because it means your existence. If they did not you were gone. You got up here and made an exhibition of yourself in this connection the other day. Here is how the relief was made in the North. Salvage, do you know where that is? This gentleman is taking notice, he says as follows: (Reads letter.)

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—What is his name?

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I am not going to tell you his name. That is for you to find out. You should have an Inspector down there to look after matters.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he did not at the F. P. U. Convention at Port Union, in November 1919, declare his intention of imposing a tax on the Steel Companies operating at Bell Island of a dollar a ton or of an amount which would realize for the Colony the sum of a million dollars a year, and if so how it is that the proposed contract with these Companies does not embody any such provision and if this failure to do so was a result of any special arrangement with the Companies in the interests of the F. P. U.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs if a person named Dugald White, holds an appointment as Customs House Officer at Port Union, or acts in that capacity, and if so what salary he is paid for such services; also if it is the case that the same Dugald White is a regular employee of the F. P. U., at Port Union and spends virtually all his time in the service of that concern, if in his capacity as Custom House Officer he is supposed to protect the interests of the Customs' Department in Port Union, and if the Government is satisfied that he can serve two masters—the F. P. U. and the Colony; also a statement of the amounts collected by the said Dugald White in his capacity as Customs House Officer from the 15th of November 1919, up to date.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House the original log of the dredge "Priestman" of her work during the year 1920, together with a statement of the amount which her operations cost this Colony, and also of what amount, if any, was paid in return for such work by any private concern or concerns whose property was improved by her work during the year.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if he has read the letter in the "Telegram" of last Thursday signed by Mr. Penny of Ramea, in which the writer claims that his firm has lost the value of a cargo of fish through the refusal of the Minister of Marine and his Department to grant him facilities for the sale of the same last year and if it is the intention of the Government to compensate Mr. Penny for his loss and if not why not, and again, if not wherein does this matter differ from the case of the constituents of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries whose catch was bought with public money last November.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE asked the Hon. Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House if this $1,060 to A. H. Salter is over and above the amount of $250 voted him last session?

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Colonial Secretary, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if the Old Age Pensions for the quarter ending the 31st of March last, have yet been paid and if not why not?

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

MR. SULLIVAN gave Notice of Question.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 11th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Gave notice that he would on to-morrow move that an Address of this House be presented to His Excellency, the Governor-in-Council praying that he will be pleased to appoint the three Judges of the Supreme Court, a Commission under the provisions of Chapter 21, Consolidated Statutes (1916) entitled "Of Enquiries Concerning Public Matters" to enquire and report concerning the appropriation and expenditure of public money in 1920, for Fish and Salt, and particularly into the purchase, shipment and disposition of the cargo of the "President Coaker" and all matters relating thereto, and into the purchase sale, custody, and control of the salt cargo stored at Port Union: and praying that until the said Commission shall report the Hon. W. F. Coaker, who holds the dual and irreconcilable positions of representative of both buyer and seller in these transactions, shall be suspended from his office as Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in which he controls the evidence and sources of information essential to the protection of the interests of the colony.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked the Hon the Prime Minister if Mr. H. R. Brooks a Director of Job Bros., in this city, has been acting as adviser to the government in connection with labor troubles here, with proposals for reduction in the salaries of the Civil Servants, and with regard to measures for breaking strikes or in any other way, and if so to state in what matters he has been in consultation with the government, what advices he has given the government, and if he is receiving any remuneration for his services and if so how much.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—I can answer that question right away, in the negative.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay upon the table of the House a statement showing the Revenue of the St. John's Municipal Council for the year 1920; also a statement of the Expenditure and a Balance Sheet for the year 1920; also statements showing the estimated revenue and estimated expenditure for 1921.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister in the absence of

Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, if a person describing himself as Colonel J. H. Riley, has made any overtures to the government with regard to the operating of mining areas at York Harbor, Bay of Islands, and if the government has given him any concessions in regard thereto, and if so to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing who Colonel Riley is, what is his standing, and what is the nature of the concessions, if any given by the government.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In reply I wish to state that Colonel Riley has not made any overtures to the government with regard to the operating of mining areas at York Hr. Bay of Islands; also that the government has not given him any concessions in regard thereto.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if his department has any information as to how much of last year's catch of fish is at present in cold storage or otherwise stored in ports in Europe; and if so, to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the quantity in each port at date of last advices, and if he has no such information can he obtain it; and if not, what is the value of the Statistical Department which he claims organized some time ago in connection with his department?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—I beg to table the reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked hon. the Prime Minister if, in addition to the correspondence in relation to the Commercial Cable Company doing business in this colony, tabled last week by the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, any other correspondence or negotiations took place with him (the Premier) or any member of the government, either orally or in writing in relation to this matter, and if so to lay on the Table copies of all such correspondence and a statement of the nature of any oral negotiations; also if the government permits the Commercial Cable Company to operate in this colony, will not the other Cable Companies and the Reid Newfoundland Company, which operate a telegraph system, have the same right, and if they do operate and some future government should decide to enforce the law which prevents them operating, will they have an action for damages against the colony, and, in view of these contingencies, does not the government think the wisest policy to adopt a definite course of action in regard to this matter in accordance with the law already on the Statute Book?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—There has been no correspondence or negotiations with myself or the government or with any member of the government individually, either orally or in writing in relation to the matter referred to in the question other than the correspondence already tabled.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—But they are doing business in the meantime and are you going to allow them to continue to do business before the matter is definitely settled.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—They are going ahead, without prejudice, during the time as is necessary for the Attorney General to look into the legal position.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—But don't you think that there should be no delay. The matter is of vast importance and I think that we cannot move fast enough in having it immediately investigated.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—During the next few days the time of the Attorney General will be profitably employed ascertaining the legal aspect of the case.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he is aware that the coopers of this city have been among the most serious sufferers by the fishery policy enforced by the government the past eighteen months: if he (the Prime Minister) did not promise the coopers and laborers and other workers, especially of the district of St. John's West, that under his administration they would have plenty of work and good wages, if he can say that they are in the enjoyment of plenty of work or good wages at the present time, and what steps he proposes to take to see that these promises are made good?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am not aware that the coopers of this city have suffered seriously by the fishery policy of the government during the past eighteen months.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You are the only one in the city who have not heard it.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Speaker, with your permission, I would like to say a word or two in regard to the reply of the Prime Minister. Surely he could not be sincere when he made that reply. He must be aware of the fact that thousands of dollars worth of coopers stocks would have been used, if no fish regulations were in force.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is a matter of argument.

MR. BENNETT.—No, but it is a matter of absolute fact. As I stated in this House in the early days of this session, I was in Halifax some time in February last when two large ships loaded for Brazil somewhere between twelve and fifteen thousand drums of fish. That fish was Nova Scotia fish, packed in drums made by Nova Scotia coopers and which would have been made by the coopers in the West End of St. John's, but for the Regulations which have been so often spoken about and criticised. Hence I think that the reply of the Prime Minister to that question is not decent, because as a member representing that district he must have known that the hardships thrust upon those people through lack of employment were caused by the fishery policy of the government in St. John's West as well as in other parts of the country. It is no use for the Prime Minister to burke the question. He should have admitted that the inauguration of the fish regulations was responsible and entirely responsible for the putting off of the coopers of St. John's West and the labourers as well, and, in fact, every workman employed in connection with the exporting of fish. I think it is a deplorable situation, Mr. Speaker, and the government are entirely responsible for it. They have taken the work out of the country and especially out of the district of St. John's West.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker. I feel that I am out of order as much as my honourable friend was and that on a later occasion I will have an opportunity of discussing this matter at greater length. I have the idea that the operation of the Newfoundland Fish Regulations has not been responsible for the lack of employment to any large extent, particularly in view of the fact that 75,000 quintals of the Lunenburg catch of fish is not yet marketed, and that while we had 500,000 quintals of codfish this time last year unmarketed we now have 250,000 quintals, but these are all matters we will have an opportunity of dealing with later in the ordinary course.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Mr. F. Collishaw is employed by his Department in any capacity, or has been commissioned by his department to undertake any sale of fish outside this colony, and if so to lay on the Table of the House all correspondence in relation to the same.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I beg to table the reply.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—Asked Hon. the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House what orders has been sent from his department to the Woolen Mills, owned by the Royal Stores, from Nov. 15th, 1919 to April 30th 1921.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—I beg to table the reply.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—Asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House what orders has been sent from his department to Royal Stores Grocery Department from Nov. 15th, 1919, to April 30th, 1921.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—None whatever.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—Asked the Min of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House all orders sent from his department to Jethro Penny, employed by the Royal Stores or the Woolen Mills owned by the Royal Stores from Nov. 15th, 1919, to April 30th, 1921.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—None whatever.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the member for Carbonear made a visit to Prime Minister to say if the Hon. Norway last year and if so for what purpose; to state the time the trip occupied and the amount paid the hon. member (a) as compensation and (b) for travelling expenses; and to lay on the table of the House a copy of the hon. member's report on his mission.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The hon. member for Carbonear paid a visit to Norway last year for the purpose of studying their various fishery methods; the trip occupied between three and four months and he had been paid nothing as compensation; the amount of his travelling expenses was approximately $2,500, which information was tabled some time ago; I understand that the hon. member has a report finished in connection with his mission and will table it in due course.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Prime Minister if it is the intention of the Government to introduce legislation at this session to carry into effect recommendations of the Commission appointed some months ago to inquire into the working of the Prohibition Act.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No report has as yet been received from the Commission and until that report is in the hands of the Government it is impossible for the Government to make any definite pronouncement with the respect to the matter referred to in the question.

MR. BENNETT.—May I ask if that Commission is still sitting or how does the matter stand?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Some weeks ago I wrote Sir William Lloyd, chairman of the Commission, as I informed the House at that time, asking him when the report would be ready. He replied that he would let me know the following day or the day after. I saw him and understood from him that the Commission had completed its work of taking evidence and was settling down in an efficient and business like fashion to make carefully prepared report and that it would be tabled very soon after.

MR. SULLIVAN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the table of this House a detailed statement of the expenditure of $250,000 on the road bed of the railway as stated by him in his speech in this House yesterday:

- (a) Amount of ballast distributed and cost of same.
- (b) The mileage over which ballast was distributed.
- (c) The number of new ties laid down and cost of same.
- (d) The mileage over which new ties were placed.
- (e) The amount spent on drainage.
- (f) The amount spent on new rails and fish plates.

(g) The amount spent in snow fencing, if any?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—The answer is being prepared.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE asked the Minister of Public Works to inform this House by what authority Mr. A. H. Salter was paid $1,080, if by Minute of Council, then to lay on the table of the House a copy of such minute.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—There is a Minute of Council and I hope to table a copy before the session closes this afternoon.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I beg to table a further memo. in reply to question 4 of Order Paper, 12th of May; also the following reply to question 5 of Order Paper of May 10th. In the year 1908 Mr. Dugald White was appointed as Tidewaiter at Catalina. He is not a Sub-Collector and therefore does not account for revenue receipts. His salary is $489.50. The Government have not been informed as to whether he is an employee of the F. P. U. at Port Union or any other Company and whether he is or is not I do not know.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Does Mr. Coaker know?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I did not ask him.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I would like to call attention to question 9 of Order Paper of the 4th. I am waiting for an answer to that question.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Minister who gave those orders was the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, acting under orders from the Government. The salt was purchased by the Newfoundland Government and was agreed to be held in trust by the Union Trading Company at Port Union. When the Government permitted the salt to be held in trust, they took a receipt signed by W. F. Coaker. (Reads Receipt). That was sent in the form of a letter addressed to the Minister of Finance and Customs. The cheque for the salt was signed by the Deputy Minister of Finance, and under the authority of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was acting with the concurrence and authority of the Executive Council. It went through the Bank of Montreal in the regular way.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Was the order given in writing or verbally?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I cannot tell you that, but the transaction was perfectly regular and straight from a business standpoint.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled, "An Act to Repeal 10-11 Geo. V, Cap. 25, entitled 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.'"

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I would like to add a word or two about the Bill before the Chair. I have not taken any large part in the debate the past week, but simply listened to what was being said, but now I desire to offer some observations. There are so many important matters before the House that one scarcely knows where to begin because each has its special appeal of interest to the country at the present time. Before touching on the Fishery Regulations or the Bill before the House I would like to say something of the charges made this evening by Sir John Crosbie. We all know and the country knows likewise that many extraordinary things have happened during the past twelve months. Among the most amazing of these was the taking of a sum of $500,000 by the Minister of Fisheries to purchase Labrador fish from people of the Northern Districts, mostly from his own constituents. Last November a rumor gained currency about town that something of this kind was to be done and many schooners were in port from the North with Labrador fish aboard and found the merchants would not buy it at what was known as the current price. Then these schooner owners held a public meeting in one of our city halls and demanded that the Minister of Fisheries take measures to make good the declaration previously made by the Minister of Fisheries that Labrador fish was worth eight dollars a quintal and that he was prepared to pay that. After the meeting, at which the subject was fully ventilated, the owners of that fish besought the merchants again to purchase it from them, but without avail, and meanwhile the Minister of Fisheries held another meeting in the same hall when he tried to set his side of the matter before these people and others interested. The owners of the fish insisted that he do something on their behalf and then came the report that he proposed to buy the fish with public money taken from the Colony's surplus in the Bank of Montreal. Most people scoffed at the idea it was so opposed to all practical business principles, and the commercial community in the main refused to credit it. Something, however, had apparently occurred, because the fish was bought, the men went home, and quiet reigned again. All attempts by the Board of Trade in correspondence subsequently published by individual merchants at meetings of the fish owners, and in other ways, to obtain any reliable information as to what had taken place, proved fruitless, because the Government and the merchants involved in this discreditable transaction refused to give any information whatever. Not till after the House opened and we put questions on the Order Paper did the country realize that all these rumors were based on realities and that three or four merchants in alliance with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, himself one of the largest exporters of fish in Newfoundland, had got this money, the money of the taxpayers, that bought this fish at prices which no merchant would pay himself and that the country would likely be saddled with a tremendous loss on the transaction. An attempt has been made to justify this proceeding on the ground that a national emergency existed, and it was on this plea that the money was taken from the Public Treasury and we heard the Minister this afternoon rebuke us for raising this question here and argue that such would not be done in England. But I take leave to tell him that it is beyond belief that any member of the British Government could be guilty of the transaction of which he stands accused here this afternoon or would be allowed to retain his position for twenty-four hours after such a charge was formulated against him. Does anyone familiar with conditions in British public life imagine for a moment that a man could be as the Minister is at one and the same time, head of so important a Department as the Fisheries Department, and also head of one of the largest fish trading concerns in the country, and occupy the wholly impossible position of selling his own fish on the one hand, to himself as Minister on the other hand, and then use according to the charge now made, an outside party as a make-believe to camouflage this transaction. Could any man believe a member of the British Cabinet would do such a thing or that the Bank of England would give him money under such conditions? I maintain that the thing is unbelievable with regard to the Old Country and that the Minister credits us with very little knowledge when he expresses surprise that Sir John Crosbie should assert here that his action as a Minister was in any way irregular.

Yesterday we had a motion for a Select Committee on this matter, and, to the surprise of those of us who sit on this side of the House and even more to the surprise of the country, the Prime Minister resisted that motion, called upon his party to vote against it, and declared that its passage would be a vote of want of confidence in the Government. This was, in my mind, an extraordinary position to take. It had no precedent in this country except the precedent of the charges against himself a year ago, and I need not say it had no precedent in any other country, because everywhere else in the British Dominions, when charges like this are made, an inquiry is immediately granted. When the Premier yesterday refused to accept our motion and to agree to a Select Committee, he passed a verdict of guilty on the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the opinion of every right thinking man in this country. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as we know to our cost, was practically alone in the control of the government the past summer. The Prime Minister was away for nearly five months, God only knows for what, neither we nor his followers, nor the country, have ever been able to learn or ever will learn. The Minister of Justice was abroad for a similar period, and Mr. Coaker took charge here at home. We forced an admission of this from the Premier this afternoon. The Minister was not alone in charge of his own department, but also of the Customs House, and issued orders for cheques to be made out for drawing public monies from the bank without any order-in-council or other warrant for doing so. Then he was also Acting Premier and ran the Colonial Secretary's department in the same way. In addition to all this he was Presdent of the F. P. U., one of the largest fish exporting firms in the country, and when this "national emergency" as he terms it arose last Fall, when all other resources were gone, he went, without making any representation to his colleagues, I mean his colleagues in the Assembly, took charge of everything, induced the Governor to sign a warrant to enable him, as Acting Premier, to take half a million dollars out of the Bank and then gave this money to two or three people on Water Street to buy fish, including his own fish, and now he asks the House to accept his statement that there was nothing improper in this. Why did he not, if it was a national emergency, called the House together. What is the House here for? Why does the country elect thirty-six men every four years? Instead of that gentleman, filling all these positions and with a lot of fish on his hands of his own and a lot of people clamoring to him to buy fish from them or to sell their fish for them, induced his few colleagues in the Executive to concur with him in doing what was never done before and ought never be done again, that is, take half a million dollars of our money to buy fish from private people without any idea of when or how or where or at what price this fish could be sold again. Who of the Executive were here at the time I do not know. As far as I can figure out they were Mr. Halfyard, the Vice-President of the F. P. U., and as much interested in this transaction as Mr. Coaker himself; Mr. Samuel Foote, and Mr. George Shea who is not responsible to this House, and these three, with maybe one or two others, got together, discussed the public meetings that were being held and the agitation that was in progress, and said "well, we must do something about it, the price of fish is down, the merchants won't buy, the people are clamoring for us to make good our promises that we would see they got the best price, and the only way that appears to exist of our giving them this price is to take half a million dollars from the Treasury, and start in to buy their fish." That is the position as I see it. By what process the Governor was induced to agree to this proposition I do not know. No report has been tabled here, nor I suppose will there. Yet there never was greater reason for such than there is in this case. The country looks upon the Governor as the safety valve and the reasons which induced the Governor to move in this matter ought to be put on the records of this House, together with a statement of the results to serve as an example for all future Governors of a pitfall that they should avoid. You may ask why and I will tell you. It is because this fish as an article of commerce is worth to-day not four dollars a quintal, and the only justification the Minister could advance to this House a few days ago to justify this transaction, was that certain cargoes were now on the way across the Atlantic, that others arrived in Europe, and that messages were sent across the cables that fish had gone down in Newfoundland and that these cargoes would then have to be sacrificed. Now, even if that is true, which I doubt, why should the owners of this fish not have taken their medicine as well as the rest of the people in the country who own the money that was taken to buy this fish. No fair treatment was given the country as a whole. Discrimination was practised and that money was handed out to a chosen few and not to the general public. Still a bluff is put up in this House when a charge is made about wrong doing. We were told recently, when the first statement about this fish was brought down, that the cargo of the "President Coaker" was taken out of schooners then in Port Union. Now it appears that some of it was taken from the F. P. U. where it had been for some weeks, no months. Then we were told that the fish had been bought by Mr. Joseph Sellars, but Mr. Sellars is going about town to-day saying that he had nothing to do with it and that he can tell an entirely different story of the whole transaction. I am not developing this matter because of any hostility towards the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I have nothing against him politically, but it is our duty as representatives in this House to probe this matter to the bottom, and if the Minister's hands are clean it is his place to court an inquiry instead of using his influence with the men who sit beside him on the other side to help whitewash him, because that is what it seems to mean. The whole thing is a transaction that reflects no credit on the Minister or on his pretensions in this House. He took this money and paid for his own fish with it. He took it for fish that was here in St. John's and applied it to his own private business. He chartered the President Coaker, supposedly to Joseph Sellars and at a price far above that ruling for the freighting of fish at the time. He was asked to table in this House the charter party made out between the F. P. U and Mr. Sellars. This charter party would show the amount he was getting, or the owner of the "President Coaker" was getting for the freight for taking that fish across. The Minister came into this House and told us he had no charter party and there was none to be found though he did admit he thought there was one aboard the vessel. Such an excuse is not good enough for this House. No business man would enter into a transaction on that basis and we are prepared to believe that the Minister did so. Then, again, we ask who represented the Government in loading the "President

Coaker" with the 7,500 quintals she is said to have taken on board. We could get no answer. We asked who can swear that there was 7,500 quintals put on board and we can get no answer. We asked what was the quality of the fish and there was similar silence. Now, Sir, all these things need probing, and the Minister has put himself in a wrong position by voting against the motion for an inquiry. If he was innocent he should have welcomed an inquiry and when he resists it there is only one conclusion possible, and that is that there is something to hide. The Premier told us yesterday that we could debate this matter when the Estimates were on and that all these questions would be answered but that is no way to deal with a matter of this kind. We don't want to debate the question here, we want it investigated on oath and all the facts brought out. We offered to taken a committee of five chosen from the other side of the House, provided the inquiry would be made on oath. That offer was refused and we were asked to accept instead a proposition to discuss this in the House where we would have no means of getting at the bottom of whatever there is irregular in the transaction. I say the searchlight should be turned on you and everybody else connected with it as it has been turned on others. I am glad it was turned on me for one. The Government tried to get evidences of wrong doing on the part of myself and my associates in the last Ministry, and auditors were brought here from New York to investigate our work. For that you paid $10,500 of the public money, and the only result is that the document stands as a certificate of character for myself and my hon. friend, Sir John Crosbie. Now you resist an attempt to have an inquiry into the conduct of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on charges that he used his position for his own advancement, that he improperly applied public moneys for the benefit of the organization of which he is President, and the Government majority would like to vote down this proposition if it could.

And now to go back to the Fish Regulations. When the House opened and the Speech from the Throne was read, the Minister of Fisheries was not here. We waited for him to come back and when he did arrive an amendment was brought in by the Opposition calling for the removal of all the Fish Regulations. The Government came in and told us it had decided to remove the Regulations and refused to accept our amendment on that ground. The Government was not big enough to accept the amendment and vote for it, but now it is taking weeks to try and get through a Bill of two lines to remove this famous enactment which a year ago we were told was going to transform the industries of the country. We are thus a unit in this House for the removal of the Regulations, but the Opposition cannot permit them to come off without telling the country the damage that has been done by ever allowing them to be put on. These fishery regulations have ruined the country and the people know it. And then, after all the debating and criticism of the Regulations, the Amendment, and the Speech from the Throne, the Prime Minister renders the situation more absurd than ever by a declaration that he is in favor of the Fish Regulations that are going to be taken off and that the Minister of Fisheries is also a believer in them, and that they and their colleagues consider that they are a measure in the right direction. Yet they are going to remove them after one year's trial because they have played such havoc with the trade of the country that nobody will stand for their being continued on the Statute Book any longer. I ask both these hon. gentlemen why in the name of common sense do they take these off now if they believe they are of value, and I ask the Premier why he took off the Regulations from certain markets in January immediately after the Minister of Fisheries left here if he believes in the Regulations. We all know the reason for this statement of the Premiers' now. We all know that he is without any following in this House and is kept in office merely by the support he gets from the Minister of Fisheries and the F. P. U. members, from the man who boasted the other day that he had this following in the House and intended to retain hold of it. The Premier is playing for that support and for that alone. No man of principle or spirit or pluck would assume the ignominious position assumed by the Prime Minister in this matter.

Then the Prime Minister told us he was convinced the Regulations could be worked effectively, but this is absurd. The law of Supply and Demand as we now see cannot be disregarded and we are powerless against the whole world. To-day this country is trying to get the price of flour down although the farmers of the West are trying to keep it up. In the same way the consumers in Europe are trying to force down the price of our fish which they need in the same way as we need flour. It is impossible for us to get cheap flour only because there is competition in this commodity from other parts of the world against the stocks held by the Western farmers, and in the same way our fish has to come down in price because the French and the Norwegians and all our other competitors are selling it for a lower figure than we are. Our experience of the past eighteen months has proved conclusively, if our previous experience hadn't already done so, that we cannot fix a price for fish here in Newfoundland and dictate it to the whole world. The Minister of Fisheries tried to justify his position yesterday by claiming that certain firms trading in fish here had gone out of business, but as against that there is the fact that the Bowrings, the Bairds, the Baine Johnstones, the Ryans, and other firms have been continuously in this business for 60 or 70 years at least and others of them for more than a century and have weathered all the storms of that period and are as prosperous to-day as ever. The Minister of Fisheries also claimed that no harm had resulted from his Regulations, but if he will read the letter from Penney & Co., of Ramea, about the cargo they loaded last June and for which they had a firm offer at a paying price when they loaded it, he will find a different condition from what he asserts. That fish was held back at the Minister's orders. It didn't reach market for some months, and when it did it had to be sold at a very reduced price, and even at that the owner of the fish has not yet been paid. It is also suggested that somebody whispered something to the President of the F. P. U. about prices that could be got and that he used this information improperly and sold his own fish below Penney's price and left Penney with fish on his hands that had been loaded for market months before the Coaker fish. Still the Premier gets up and tells us that he believes in the fish regulations because the Minister of Fisheries believes in them; whereas the truth is that the Premier really means to say, "I believe in what Mr. Coaker believes, if I don't I will have to get off this side of the House." To consolidate himself in that position he then went on to plead for the support of what he called the Baymen. He said he was a Bayman. Well, I am a Bayman but I am not prepared to play for the support of this House in that fashion. I hope that while I will have a seat I will use what little intelligence God gave me in the direction that will best serve the country's interests, and not sit down and follow men who are acting like the present leaders on the other side of the House, simply to hold office and position. The Premiers' contemptible plight at present is no worse than that of the gentlemen who sit opposite and represent the Western Districts, men who were supported at the last general election by business people of the type of Penneys of Ramea and now have seen their constituents sacrificed without lifting a finger or raising a voice to prevent them. Is that the way to look after the interests of the export merchants and planters who have been trying to build up this country? Is that the treatment to give the Harris's of Burin, the Buffetts of Grand Bank, the Penneys of Ramea, and all the other men of that stamp along our Southwest coast? I cannot see how a sane man such as I take the Premier to be, could make the statement in this House that he believes in the Fish Regulations, after the proofs he and everybody else has had of what ruin these Regulations have brought about, and equally I cannot see how men representing Districts that have been brought to beggary by these Regulations can support the Government and the policy that caused this disaster to the country in general and their constituents in particular. What are the Premier, these members, and the other members across the floor, preparing to do for our fishermen who need supplies this year? There are over 20,000 fishermen in this country without the wherewithal to go fishing this summer. No more than two or three merchants on Water Street will issue supplies against twenty or thirty last year, and now it is nearly the first of June and no steps are being taken to relieve the situation. We rise this House every afternoon at 6.30 after putting in two or three hours of debate, but no legislation has been submitted to us yet, though six or seven weeks in session, to conserve the interests of the people or make their economic future sure. Petitions are being introduced here every day for poor relief. Steps are being taken to give able bodied pauper relief on a wholesale scale, but measures of that kind cannot accomplish anything and some large programme has to be taken in hand and dealt with. You may quiet the situation in St. John's for a time by giving out work on the city roads and otherwise, but the conditions in the outports are very much more serious, and some practical measures of a permanent character will have to be devised. The financial prosperity of the country has been destroyed. Nothing has come into this country for the past six months in the way of receipts of permanent character. I heard a gentleman on Water Street a few days ago state that the only money coming in here now is what is paid in life insurance on the deaths of those who pass away, fire insurance on property that is destroyed, and marine insurance on vessels that have been lost at sea, but that not a dollar is coming in for the produce sent out from this country, as nothing that we handle—fish, oil, skins, herring, salmon, lobsters—is being marketed at a profit to-day.

That is the situation as I see it, sir. This country, one of the most prosperous in the world when we laid down the reins of office eighteen months ago, has been reduced in that short period to a condition of collapse only equalled by some of the hopelessly bankrupt countries of Central Europe. Everything that the hands of the men now in power has touched in the past year and a half has been blighted and ruined. Our fisheries, the mainstay of our people, have been wrecked in such a fashion that it will take years to restore them. Our manufacturing industries have been crippled as a consequence of the impoverishment of our people through the destruction of our fisheries. Every other industry in the country is suffering in the same way. The splendid Surplus in cash which we had piled up and put away safely has been dissipated and squandered without anything whatever to show for it, and to-day the country is virtually bankrupt, drifting on the rocks rudderless and dismasted without a single man on the Government benches showing an atom of capacity to try and bring her safely to shore, and this, sir, is the result of eighteen months of Liberal-Reform Government. Surely there never was a greater farce in the history of any country than for the men now in power to describe themselves as Liberals and reformers and patriots and statesmen, a crew whose political bankruptcy is now admitted by even their best supporters.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively, "An Act to amend the Terra Nova Sulphite Company Act, 1920" and "An Act to amend the Crown Lands Act 1918" without amendment.

MR. SULLIVAN gave Notice of Question.

MR. WALSH gave Notice of Question.

MR. MOORE gave Notice of Question.

MR. SINNOTT gave Notice of Question.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, May 12, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sullivan gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move the following Resolution.

RESOLVED—That a Select Committee of this House to consist of three Members be appointed to take the evidence of Medical Practitioners of the City of St. John's, and others, on the question of the suitability of the Escasoni Site on Portugal Cove Road for a Small-pox hospital.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker. Before any petitions are presented and with your permission, Sir, I would ask for the attention of the House for a few moments while I refer to a matter, which has already been brought up in this House, but has now reached a very serious and acute stage. Between 10.30 and 11.30 a.m. to-day 20 men, belonging to St. Mary's Bay and who had just returned from Grand Falls, called on me at my office. I questioned those men and after finding out certain things I promised to lay their case before the House this afternoon. The name of the man who acted as spokesman for the rest and presented their case was Gus White, whom I asked the following question: (Q) What is your name? (A) Gus White; (Q) Where from? (A) Pt. LeHaye, St. Mary's; (Q) How many men are with you? (A) Twenty; (Q) Where did you come from now? (A) Grand Falls; (Q) How long did you work there? (A) Personally I worked there for about 3 years; (Q) At what? (A) As a grinder; (Q) Are all these men with you family men? (A) All are married with large families except three; (Q) How long did they work at Grand Falls? (A) Some of them 3 years and some of them not a year at all; (Q) How did you get to St. John's? (A) We came over the railroad, eighteen of the men were given free passes by Magistrate Fitzgerald, I being one of the two who did not get a free pass; (Q) Do L understand that you are all here stranded, but have tickets for home? (A) Yes, but we do not want to go home, because most of the men have to walk a distance of 45 miles from the train to their homes, also because there is nothing at home for us to do and we want to try and get supplies in St. John's for the fishery or to get employment here and we ask you to bring this matter before the House of Assembly. Mr. Sullivan and Walsh were present to-day when those unfortunate men presented their case, which was really pitiable. Those seventeen family men had an average of five children to look after. They are prepared to go home if there is work for them to do, but as they are unable to get supplies for the fishery they are prepared to go to work here. They say they cannot go home for the sake of their children, as they have nothing whatever to give their children. They suggested that if some way was devised whereby they could get supplies they would go home and go fishing. On account of the position of the Marystown Trading Co., and other merchants they are not able to get supplies where they used to get them before and they want to know what we can do for them. I promised them that I would acquaint the government of their circumstances and I ask now on their behalf what can be done or what are we going to do about it? Remember, Mr. Speaker, this is only a small proportion of what we are going to meet within the next ten days or so. I think that something should be done and done quickly, because if nothing is done, well, from the story I heard from these men to-day in my office, personally I fear the result of what is going to happen. I am informed that at present there are two thousand men in Grand Falls, Millertown, Badger and other places around there out of employment. The government are sending some of the men home on passes, but it is no use in sending home the 20 men that I have just mentioned, if they claim that they cannot go home and see their children starving. I want to know if the government or his party or the Executive Council have any scheme in sight to try and cope with this condition of affairs. If there is, I would like for you to tell us so that we may have an opportunity of dealing with these men with a view to helping them out the coming season. We must do this Sir. The responsibility is not mine. The responsibility rests upon the government of the day; but in all honesty I am prepared to do anything whatever to assist or relieve the condition which is about to take place here within the next few days. We have had the labor troubles in St. John's and the Prime Minister and the government have endeavoured to find labour for the people in the West End and I have no doubt that they have done their best in providing help in that connection; but we have the other side of the situation now, we have the people of Conception Bay, Placentia Bay and of all the other bays, whom we represent in this House crying for some assistance in the way of labor or supplies for the fishery. The Prime Minister very courteously told me yesterday that the government were endeavouring to find some plan which possibly might relieve the situation. I take it from his remarks that certain monies were to be given out in connection with road grants, but the expenditure of a half a million dollars all over this country will not carry us through the serious crisis that is facing us. Now the 20 men whose case I presented this afternoon have asked for some concrete answer from the government as to what they intend to do to assist them. I would like to pass over to the Prime Minister a list of those men so that he can read them for himself.

This is only a small instalment of what is going to come. Let me say in all fairness to the government that I have a certain amount of sympathy for them in the position they stand in to-day, but they should try and evolve some scheme which will suffice to carry us over this critical period. If the government is not able to do anything they should say so, but I do hope and trust that, on behalf of those men of Placentia Bay, Conception Bay, St. Mary's Bay, Southern Shore, Burin, Fortune, Burgeo and La Poile, something will be done, and that before this House goes into session again that the Prime Minister will make a statement as to what the intention of the government is and what they intend doing within the next few days in endeavouring to give all for the assistance possible. I am not criticizing at all now. I am appealing for something concrete to give those people in order to get employment for them, or to enable them to carry on the fishery as heretofore. You, Sir, as well as I know that if there is no fish caught and no employment to give to the laboring classes that Newfoundland cannot proceed very far. A loan to us from any country would be utterly useless, if we cannot find labor or cannot give supplies to start the fishery. What is wanted and what the people generally are craving for and what we must try and find is labor at once. If you, Sir, had been with me at 9 o'clock this morning on my premises you would have seen 120 laborers looking for work. I put on 25 of the men whom I knew were needy and whose children were in want. That condition not alone exists on my room, but exists on every other mercantile room in St. John's. In fact in St. John's this day, May 12th, a few years ago you would hear nothing but the clang of the hammer; but to-day there is absolute silence. I want the government to lay before this House within the next four or five days some plan which will either tend to start employment or start the fishery and get the wheels of progress once more going. I have endeavoured to lay this case as clearly as I can before the House and I have endeavoured to plead for those people and plead for my country. I am honest enough now Sir, to say to the Prime Minister that I know the difficulties confronting the government, and I know the troubles they have to face; but we got to realise that something must be done and the quicker the better both for the government and for the people of this country.

MR. WALSH—Mr. Speaker. On behalf of these gentlemen who interviewed Sir John Crosbie this morning, I want to thank him most sincerely for the service he has rendered them here, and not alone on their behalf do I thank him but on behalf of the thousands of others belonging to other constituencies who are similarly situated. This is not the first time that this matter has been brought before this House. It is not only to-day that Sir John Crosbie and others, myself, included, could see those conditions. A month ago we saw them and we pointed out that they would be multiplied as time went on. Unfortunately, with centres like Grand Falls closed down the situation has become more acute. I advocated some three weeks ago for a meeting of both sides of the House whereby the matter could be discussed and some concrete proposal entered into. Now I would ask the Prime Minister and his associates in all seriousness if there is any intention whatever of expecting the operation of, or to take seriously the proposition, which has been discussed through the public press, on the West Coast, or if Blackstead and Company have any intention of opening up an industry that would give employment to five thousand men. If such is the case, I think that the government should immediately place their cards on the table of this House; but, perhaps, it is a 'cod' like all the other 'cods' that we have been treated to by this and other governments. The Bell Island proposition has been on the Order Paper of this House for the past few weeks and deferred from day to-day. Over at Bell Island the men are being laid off the same as they are at Grand Falls. Is it the intention of the government to alleviate the sufferings of those people who have been laid off at Bell Island by discussing that agreement? Surely the Bell Island proposition is of such importance as to take first place on the Order Paper and the very day that the matter was first introduced in this House it should have been discussed and disposed of so that our working people could be employed again on the Island. I want to say that the people of Placentia and St. Mary's are in a very unfortunate position, but, though that district has been so well advertised in this House, I would stake my sent here that there has been less pauper relief sent to that district during the past six or eight months than to any other district of its size in the country. The people there are not the kind of people who look for pauper relief; all they ask for is work, and no better proof of that is the fact that these men, referred to by Sir John Crosbie, left their homes at their own expense to go to Grand Falls where they were not sure of employment, and some of them had to borrow the wherewithal to pay their passages to Grand Falls. The unfortunate result was that a strike took place at Grand Falls, the plant closed down and these men had to go and seek free passes, because all the money they had was spent in board etc., to bring them to St. John's where they now are, looking for work, because the getting of supplies for the fishery is an impossibility. This morning I met one of my constituents who had $250 in his pocket with which to pay on $600 worth of supplies. He had two traps, a trap boat and all the necessary utensils for the operation of his two traps. He went to different firms on Water Street this morning and offered to pay the $250 for an additional worth $350 worth of supplies, but nobody would give them to him.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES
—Send him to me and I will give it.

MR. WALSH—Thanks very much, I will be delighted to bring the man to the Minister to-morrow morning. I trust that this discussion this evening will not end here. Something concrete must be done, or else we will go on further dragging down the people by additional pauper relief. Those people are not consumers; they are producers. The people are losing confidence and in some sections of the Island to-night there are people who have reached a stage that they do not care what happens. It appears that Water Street have no confidence in the producers of the country. Surely when a business man, an importer and an exporter of this country's products, refuses to grant supplies there must be something rotten in the "State of Denmark." I hope that the appeal of Sir John Crosbie will get the serious consideration of the Executive Government and I hope that these unfortunate men who are now walking the streets of St. John's will be enabled to earn an honest living, as in the past, and be able to pay dollar for dollar. They do not want anything for nothing. They are prepared to pay 100 cents to the dollar as they always did. Several weeks ago Sir John Crosbie, on behalf of the Opposition, would assist the government in any way possible in this present emergency. Surely that offer should be welcomed by the government. We can come here and vote on matters of policy; but surely there are some common ground and some common policy by which all can bury their differences for the time being and assist the serious situation that is facing the country at this very moment.

MR. SULLIVAN—Mr. Speaker. I want to thank Sir John Crosbie for bringing this very serious matter before the House and I would like to say that I fully endorse all that has been said by Sir John as well as by my colleague, Mr. Walsh; and now I have a few words to say on my own behalf. I was surprised this morning when I went up to see Sir John Crosbie and found so many of my constituents on his wharf. There were 32 there and they had an appointment with Sir John. I went to hear their story, and if you could hear it, Sir, you would be moved to pity. Some of them got good voyages of fish, and ought to have had enough to carry them through the winter and fit them out for fishing again; but it was late when they got their fish down here last fall and some of it was sacrificed at $4 a quintal. I am not going to discuss this whole fish matter again, but there is a reason for all this poverty amongst those people. Many of them have large families, and they are too proud to beg. Now the situation is become more serious. You have heard that Mr. Gus. White told Sir John Crosbie that the whole of Grand Falls had closed down. The strike has now spread to Millertown and Botwood, and it will add at least 10,000 people to the army of unemployed of Newfoundland. It is going to be a serious menace to the country. From information which I have I know that there will be at least 500 men in here looking for supplies during the next three weeks. The people are not looking for charity. They want work, and it is up to us to get together and do something for them. It is a very bad policy to be giving out able-bodied relief, and it is not only the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, but it is the whole country. Only since I came in here this afternoon I have received a letter from Mr. J. R. Rodway of Baine Harbor. Here is the letter: (Reads letter).

There are people here now with lobsters caught, but they can't get anything to put them in. Something must be done, and done quickly, to relieve the people who are starving all over the country.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker, with your permission I would like to say a word regarding this matter. When the labour situation of St. John's was before the House my colleagues on this side of the House expressed the entire sympathy with the situation and did all in their power to help out the situation. I therefore take this opportunity of reciprocating. Many people have come to the verge of starvation thru no fault of their own. I have heard the Prime Minister say that he has conferences with the merchants and with the Bank Managers, and for all we know they have been absolutely futile. Now, Sir, I think it is time the Prime Minister had a conference with this House. The members of this House represent the people of the entire country, and it is absolutely essential that the government should make some pronouncement otherwise conditions will arise that will be beyond their control and beyond the control of the constituted authority of Newfoundland. Let us wake up to the seriousness of the situation. To-day you have Water street the mainspring of Newfoundland, practically broken. It is quite true that the banks have been absolutely unsympathetic, and unfortunately we have no control over the banks. I appreciate the fact that something has been done here in the city to relieve the distress, and that a large sum of money for that purpose was acquired the other day, but even that will be inadequate if something more is not done. The Bank has advanced $150,000 on the guarantee of the government, but the city of St. John's is as good a security for that amount as there is on this side of the Atlantic. The total city debt at the present time is only $2,000,000, while the debt of the city of Halifax is $30,000,000. Without the government guarantee it would be a gilt-edged security. The reason the government guarantee is necessary is because there is nothing in the city charter to give the city the authority to raise money on its own account. It is gilt-edge security because the city of St. John's is capable of paying a much larger revenue than she is paying to-day. I therefore sympathize with the members of the other districts that have no such means of helping themselves. The situation is very serious, and we members of the Opposition are willing to sit down and do our best to help the government. I sincerely trust that something will be done by the government regarding this matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr Speaker. I desire to make an effort to approach this matter in the same business-like and concise manner in which Sir John Crosbie referred to it a while ago. I am pleased to be able to-day to submit another programme, in addition to that which has already been submitted for relieving the distress in the city. The government has secured the sum of $500,000 which will be handled through the department of Public Works. The idea is to enable the fishermen to earn sufficient money to assist them in fitting out for the fishery. What the people want is an opportunity to earn between $25 and $50 which will help them over the present time and enable them to get some supplies. With that in view the sum of $500,000 has been immediately secured and will be available by Saturday. This, it is hoped, will carry them along for the present time. The arrangement that has been made in securing this amount is much more satisfactory than the arrangement the city had to make with the Royal Bank. The Grand Falls strike has greatly aggravated the situation, and how far there will be need for something else I do not now know. I think that the programme that has been arranged for immediate assistance is one that will meet with the good feeling of the whole House.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Mr. Speaker, with your permission, Sir, I want to thank the Leader of the government that consideration has been given to this matter, and that something has been done. You will realize that I sounded this warning four weeks ago. I said that in a short while the men would be looking for supplies, and I say now that very shortly the merchants or someone else will be called on to provide supplies to the extent of $2,000,000. I assure the leader of the government that everything will be done by this side of the House to distribute that, though a small amount, as well as possible. I saw this situation a year ago. The district that I have the honour to represent has been completely forsaken. The men saw no hope of getting supplies and they have given up the idea of going fishing. The great firm of Goodridge and Sons, which was in every settlement on the Southern Shore for the last 75 years, is in liquidation. But the half million dollars that the Prime Minister has spoken of will not relieve the situation. The amount of flour needed in the small district of Ferryland to relieve the situation is about 6,000 barrels, and that will only carry them for about six weeks. But I endorse all that has been said, and appreciate what has been done. We have got to make up our minds that the fishery is abandoned. Take the situation in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. In many places where as high as 25 boats operated there are this year two and three boats operating. That is the general situation. The St. Mary's Bay fishermen are looked upon by the American bankers as the best fishermen in Newfoundland. The schooner of Grand Bank and Fortune are no more. Now there is no place for the men to look for employment. Grand Falls is closed down, the fishery is given up. Quite a number of men have gone to Lunenburg, but there is practically nothing doing there this year. The situation is mighty serious. I appreciate the position that the Prime Minister finds himself in, and I for one will not cause trouble if the government is serious. It cannot be solved in a day or two, but we cannot act too quickly. I brought this matter to the attention of the House when it opened, but I am glad that at last the government has realized what it is up against.

MR. SINNOTT—Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Sir John Crosbie for the interest he has taken in the district of Placentia. The people are in a bad situation, but through no fault of theirs. I presume the reason why the situation is worse there than in most other places is because they do not go to the ice. I am very pleased to hear from the Prime Minister that something is being done.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Prime Minister for his explanation, and I want to assure him I am in full sympathy with the programme. Even if my political opinion has wharped my mind the stories of those Placentia Bay men this morning got me, and especially the stories of their children. The very best advantage must be got out of this amount. For every dollar we ought to have a dollars worth of work I quite appreciate the fact that the Minister of Public Works will be honest with the money, but may I ask that it be dealt with in an absolutely non-partisan way. It is advisable that the matter be put in the hands of the clergy of every district who would co-operate with the chairmen of the various road boards. I throw out this suggestion in all seriousness, I thank you, Sir, for your explanation.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Mr. Speaker, seeing that the Public Works Department will be responsible for a certain amount of this money I want to see that the greatest possible good is obtained. I have in mind the following line of co-operation. First, that a circular letter be sent out stating that consideration must first be given to the needy cases. Second, I want to get all the information possible from the members of the various districts, and third, I want to get the clergy to co-operate with the road boards.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—Mr. Speaker, I might say I will be glad to receive recommendations for marine works from the various districts that ought to be attended to.

I would like for each member to make out a memorandum and hand it to me.

CAPT. LEWIS—Mr. Speaker, I have listened attentively to all that has been said regarding the great need of the fishermen. Not alone is the need great in Placentia and St. Mary's district, but all over the country, and it is our business to see that the fishery is carried on or we will have no revenue. I consider the half million dollars that the Prime Minister has referred to as being a very small part of what is necessary for getting the fishermen ready for the fishery this year. It is going out more in the way of relief than for the purpose of getting supplies. I say that this policy is abominable. The bottom is out of the country. There is a much better way than that to get at it. The idea of putting fishermen to work on roads when they should be getting ready for the fishery is foolish. It would take the manhood that has been born in them out of them. Mr. Speaker, it is the first time in the history of Newfoundland that we are supposed to have a fishermen's government. Why do you not stand up for the fishermen. We have a Minister of Marine and Fisheries who endorses a policy of building roads and marine works when the people ought to be going fishing. Take or borrow a million dollars and get supplies to let the people go and catch fish. We are told to-day that Grand Falls has closed down. Now what are we going to eat if we don't catch codfish. Rise to the occasion Mr. Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Get a million or two million dollars if necessary upon the security of the country and get supplies for the fishermen. We have already had enough waste during the past few months. Don't waste another half million. Let the fishermen go fishing. That is what they want to do this time of the year.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Speaker I

désire now in accordance with the notice I gave yesterday, to move an address to His Excellency the Governor in regard to the matter of the cargo of fish shipped by the "President Coaker," and into the matter of the cargo of salt brought to this country some months ago by the S.S. "Tuckahoe" and landed at Port Union. As you are aware, sir, I moved a day or two ago for a Select Committee of five members to inquire into this whole matter. That motion was as follows:

"That a Select Committee of this House be appointed with five members of engine into and report upon the appropriation and expenditure of public money in 1920, for the purchase of fish and salt and into all matters concerning the charter of vessels, the hiring of stores, the purchase and sale of fish and salt, and the whereabouts of said fish and salt, and the control and management thereof; with power to employ counsel, take evidence on oath and send for all persons, papers and things necessary to the said enquiry, with an instruction to the said Committee to hold an enquiry in public and to have the evidence taken stenographically and to publish the same from day to day in the newspapers of this city."

That motion was rejected by a party vote, the Prime Minister having taken the position that to grant such a Committee would be equivalent to a Want of Confidence Vote in the Minister and in the Government and that the matters could be discussed in Committee on the Estimates, an contention which I maintain had no validity. However, our motion was rejected and I then intimated to the Government that they had not heard the last of the matter but that we would take other steps to secure this information.

It is not necessary for me to go into lengthy detail in regard to these subjects as they have already been discussed somewhat exhaustively, but I feel it is only right that I should go over the principal features of the two transactions. Everybody knows that last November there was considerable discontent throughout the country over the prices of fish and especially by Northern people with regard to the low price offering for Labrador fish and indeed the difficulty of making any sale whatever for this quality. As a result of that condition a public meeting was called by a number of schooner owners from the Northern Bays who invited their fellow fishermen from all parts of the country then in St. John's to join with them in formulating certain demands upon the Government which were briefly, that the Government would make good pledges given at the General Election and afterwards by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that he would keep the price of fish up to as high figures as prevailed the previous year. At that public meeting, which was largely attended, resolutions were passed along these lines and a committee was appointed to wait on the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to demand from him that he make good these promises. The Committee did this, and according to the newspaper reports he assured them that if they could not sell their fish about town he would arrange to buy their fish. At the same time he called a counter public meeting at which I think you, sir, were one of the speakers, when he endeavored to put his side of the case before the fishermen and others who attended, but I do not think with much success, as he was subjected to frequent interruptions, and when the regular speakers, who included yourself, the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and others, have finished, the dissatisfied ones took the platform and attempted to hold a counter meeting, and the hall had to be cleared by the police. Evidently as a result of the strong feeling exhibited by the fishermen, the Minister of Fisheries and his colleagues in the Executive decided that they would take from the Public Treasury half a million dollars to buy the stocks of Labrador fish then unsold, and they undertook to justify this proceeding on the ground that the situation created by the non-receipt of this fish was a national emergency. I maintain, sir, that if such was the case, it was the duty of the Government to call this House together. That is what we are elected for, and that is what we are here to-day for,—to appropriate moneys and look after the public interests of this Colony. We were not called together, no publicity was given to this proceeding, but without any warrant, except the fact that they controlled the machinery of the Government, four or five people did an unheard of thing—an unheard of thing in the records of the British Colonies. They took half a million dollars of public money to buy fish from a few friends of their own, and they concealed this fact from the Legislature, from the business community, and from the country at large, until after the opening of this House they were forced to admit that this step had been taken. You will recall, sir, and every member of the House also, that attempts were made at meetings of the fish exporters and in every other way, to get at the truth of this transaction, and that not alone the Government but that two or three business men who were parties in what I call this crime, joined in the conspiracy of silence and took every possible step to prevent the facts getting to the public. The rest of the fish exporters and others were naturally indignant that the Government had done this thing, and moreover that two or three people who had been fetching and carrying for the Minister of Fisheries on his Advisory Board, had been given all this money instead of an opportunity being afforded for every exporter to get a share of the money. This money was taken from the Surplus Trust Fund in the Bank of Montreal and placed to the credit of the Fisheries Department with instructions, we are told by the Minute of Council, that the same was to be checked out under the signature of the Minister or his Deputy or in the absence of either, that of the Deputy Colonial Secretary. Many dealers in codfish asked members of the Government and their supporters in this House, if it was true that this thing had been done, but they all denied it. A more dishonest and discreditable proceeding was never attempted by any administration in any country. I doubt if in any other country under the British flag would such a proceeding have been attempted and got away with. Not till this House met, as I said, did we obtain a revelation of this fact. Even then we were not told the whole story and we have been trying ever since to get it, but when we got on ground that was dangerous for the Minister no further information was given, and we are now forced to the step which we are proposing to-day, a step which we feel that as members of this House and representatives of the people we must take. We are not pursuing the Minister of Fisheries personally or any other member of this House, but we are asking for full information about the purchase of this fish, the prices paid for it, the charter parties in connection with the sending of vessels with that fish across the Atlantic, and all the surrounding circumstances in connection with the matter. Our Resolution for a Select Committee was in quite accord with the practise of Parliament. Already the Prime Minister has accepted a resolution for a Select Committee to investigate the workings of the Food Control Board, especially in regard to the purchase and sale of sugar. Why, then, should he refuse a Select Committee to investigate this transaction in codfish. I fail to see how one could be a reflection on the Government, or a vote of Want of Confidence in the Government and the other not be the same, or why he could concede one Committee and refuse the other. The only conclusion one can come to under these circumstances is that there is something discreditable about this transaction in fish, something that the Government does not want exposed, something which, if it is brought to light, is going to shatter public confidence in certain members of the Government, and perhaps terminate very speedily their presence as Ministers in the present Administration. We want to know what truth there is in the rumors that a Minister of the Crown used his position for the benefit of the Company of which he is President, and the more the Government resist these motions, the stronger will be the suspicion in the minds of the country that this is what is really at the bottom of the case, and that is what the Government is trying to prevent being exposed. We want to know, in the first place, who sold the cargo of fish loaded in the "President Coaker." Was it the Minister, acting in his capacity of President of the F. P. U., or was it somebody else. Then we want to know to whom was that fish sold. Was it to Mr. Sellars, who according to rumor denies that it was sold to him and asserts that he merely allowed his name to be used, or was it sold to the Minister in his capacity as President of the F. P. U. We also want to find out who was the charterer of the vessel and what freight was paid on the fish. Was it the ordinary freight or a special rate? We likewise want to know whether the price paid for the fish was eight dollars, which is the same price as was paid for the fish taken in by Mr. Job and Mr. Barr, or was it $8.50, or was it $9.00, and if the latter who shared the fifty cents or the dollar a quintal paid for this fish over and above the fish taken by Job and Barr and who got the money.

Then we come to the salt transaction. The Auditor General stated in his Report that $77,000 was taken from the Surplus Trust Fund to pay for a cargo of salt which cargo he said had been purchased by a firm in the country, but that this firm still owed $61,000 on account of this cargo, though he had been assured, he explained, that it would be paid in due course. Now we want to know what firm bought that cargo, if any firm did, and why it wasn't paid for, and what foundation is there for the counter-statement of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in this House last week that this salt was not purchased by his Company but was merely stored on behalf of the Government, and that presumably it was being sold on the Government's account and the money turned into the Treasury. Then we want to know how much of the salt was actually sold, when it was sold, and what was received for it, and why a sum of $4,400 on account of that salt was only handed in to the Government a few days ago, more than two weeks after we first asked questions about this transaction. We want to know all these things because they relate to a situation that is either right or wrong. If they are right and if the Minister's hands are clean, then the whole country will know it, but if his hands are not clean then it is time that the facts should be made known and he be subjected to the proper punishment. I hope he will show to the country that his hands are clean as far as both these undertakings are concerned, and I trust that after the time for reflection he has had in the past two days he will realize that if he refuses—for when I say he refuses I mean the Government, as everybody knows that he is the Government—then only one construction can be placed by the country on that fact and it is that the Minister is afraid to have this matter investigated. As for me, sir, the only course left for me as leader of His Majesty's Opposition in this House, and for my colleagues who sit around me, is to take the course we take this afternoon, to move for an address to His Excellency the Governor asking that this whole matter be investigated, and in moving that address I would point out that I am divorcing the subject from party politics or any partisanship whatever when I ask for the judges of the Supreme Court to be appointed to hold this inquiry. I do this because the Court is above suspicion, and if the Ministers' hands are clean, the Courts' declaration to that effect will command the confidence of the entire community.

I will not deal further with this subject just now, Mr. Speaker, because it may be necessary for me to speak further upon it at a later date, but I wish it clearly understood again that I am not pursuing the Minister personally or anybody else in the House. I am only trying to do what is right by the country and that is why I ask for this investigation. I think the Minister would be wise in his own interests if he stated now, or had the Premier state on his behalf, that he would favor this inquiry without our having to force this matter to the Governor. If this proposal is rejected this afternoon then it will be for the public at large to take further measures to satisfy themselves whether the affairs of this country are being conducted honestly and honorably, or whether people in high places are making use of their positions dishonorably and dishonestly and prostituting their positions for private gain. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries is in the dual position to Mr. Penney, of Ramea, and then after weeks or months to make him two offers, one from a fellow member of the Minister's on the Advisory Board and one from the Minister himself offering this man ten shillings less than he had first been paid for his fish, but which the Minister refused permission to sell for. This man did not accept the offer. Finally he got a permit to ship his fish. He sent it across to Europe. he is not yet paid for it, and he now asks if the government is going to pay him $60,000 for the cargo of fish which the Minister would not allow him to sell last year. That is an other matter which a commission of Inquiry will ventilate and satisfy the country as to the truth or falsity of these statements and the extent to which the Advisory Board in connection with last year's fishery problem was utilized by private individuals for their own advantage. Another circumstance of the same kind is the charge freely made and not disputed as far as I am aware, that when cargoes of fish exported by people not on the Advisory Board or in the ring that controls this matter, reached their destination in foreign markets, they were held back by the trade agents of this colony from being sold, and cargoes shipped and owned by members of the Advisory Board allowed to get into the market ahead of them and be sold first though not arriving until after these.

One could speak for hours on this very important subject, but I feel that I have said enough. In moving this address and supporting it as earnestly as I know how, I shall have done my duty as a representative. If those on the other side of the House are for justice and the truth then they should support this Resolution. If they feel there is something to hide, their refusal to support this motion will confirm that suspicion. Every honorable gentleman opposite, from the Minister of Justice, whose special function it is to see the laws carried out, down to the youngest member amongst you, have a duty to perform, and I now leave it to them to do so, hoping they will not be like dumb driven cattle sitting silently there refusing to say a word in support of what they know is right and just. I therefore move the following address to His Excellency the Governor:

St. John's, May 12th, 1921.

To His Excellency, Sir C. A. Harris,
K.C.M.G., Governor.

May It Please Your Excellency:

The House of Assembly, in Legislative Session convened, humbly presents the following facts:—

(1) That in the Autumn of 1920,

Your Excellency-in-Council, by Minute of Council, appropriated the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, for the purchase of certain Labrador Fish then in the disposition and control of fishermen, at certain fixed prices, and the said appropriation was placed under the control of the Hon. W. F. Coaker, Minister of Marine & Fisheries;

(2) That a portion of the said money was used in the purchase and shipment of the cargo of the vessel named the "President Coaker," and in paying freight, and that the said fish was shipped to market, on account of the colony and is yet unsold;

(3) That this House has been informed that the said cargo was not purchased directly from fishermen, but from the Union Trading Co., Ltd., or Union Export Co., Ltd., at a price above the authorized rate;

(4) That the Hon. W. F. Coaker is President of both the said Companies; that the vessel, the "President Coaker", belongs to one of the Companies controlled by him; and that the purchase and sale of the said cargo, and the charter of the said vessel, was wholly made and arranged by him in his dual capacities, as Minister and as President and controller of said Companies;

(5) That the transactions in relation to the said purchase, charter and shipment, including the payment for the said fish and freight, was made by the said W. F. Coaker, as Minister to himself as President, and colorably only in the name of another person, and that the full particulars requested in this House in relation thereto have not been produced or satisfactorily accounted;

(6) That a large sum of money was taken from the Consolidated Revenue Fund in 1920, without so far as the House is aware, the authority of a Minute of Council, and by whose pretended authority the House is at present unaware, and a cargo of salt purchased by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries;

(7) That the said salt cargo was stored by order of the said Minister in the premises of the Union Companies at Port Union, from which quantities of salt have been taken from time to time by or for the said Companies, and that the said salt has been at no time and is now under the immediate control of any reliable agent of the government;

(8) That the Auditor-General has reported to this House in reliance upon the statements made to him by treasury officials, that the said salt cargo was sold to the Union Trading Co. Ltd., but that the Hon. W. F. Coaker has denied the fact of the said sale, and asserted that the salt at Port Union belongs to the Colony;

- (9) That since this matter of the salt cargo has been mooted in this House, a sum of money has been paid by the Union Trading Co. Ltd for salt, admittedly taken from the said cargo by the said Company, the acceptance of which money may be asserted to be a waiver of the legal rights of the Colony in establishing that a sale of the said cargo as a whole was made to the said Union Trading Co., Ltd.;
- (10) That the occupancy by a Member of the Executive Council of the dual positions of Minister of the Department having to do with the said purchase of fish and salt—and of President of Companies selling to and buying from the said Companies, and disputing liability to the Colony for large sums of money, is inconsistent with public interests.

Wherefore this House respectfully requests:

- (a) That Your Excellency, shall be pleased to cause a Commission to issue to the three Judges of the Supreme Court, under the provisions of the said Chapter Relating to Enquiries Concerning Public Matters, directing them to enquire and report concerning all the transactions connected with the said purchase, sale, disposition, custody and whereabouts of the said salt and
- (b) That until the said report shall be received, the Hon. W. F. Coaker, shall be suspended from his Office of Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in which he has the custody and control of the said fish and salt, and of essential evidence concerning the said matters,

And this House, as in duty bound, will ever pray, etc.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker, since I arrived at this House this afternoon

I got an opportunity for the first time of seeing the memorial submitted to the House by the leader of the Opposition Sir Michael Cashin. I think Sir, it was a pity that notice of motion given by Sir Michael Cashin, when he subsequently moved that a select committee be appointed to enquire into the alleged appropriation of certain of the public funds of the Colony thru the medium of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was turned down. The leader of the Opposition in making his address on that occasion I think it will be conceded by every one, stated the case in a moderate, impartial, honest and straightforward manner. He stated as we have again heard him say this afternoon, that it was not personal animus against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or his desire to injure or affect the Minister in any way, but rather to bring him to task for certain actions of his which were irregular and improper. And it is in such a spirit I desire to approach the subject. The other day I seconded the motion but I did not make any comments on the matter, and I hope the honourable members opposite will accept my statement, that I am not making any charge of a personal character against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, but I do say that his public conduct has placed him in the position in which he has been very much adversely criticized by the right thinking people of this country. His actions in relation to the taking of the five hundred thousand dollars of the public funds of Newfoundland and devoting that to the purchase of fish from certain people in this colony who come from certain specific sections of the Country cannot in the least be justified on the ground that precedent allows it. I have on a previous occasion endeavoured to prove that no precedent in the history of this country or any other which is possible of citation, can be brought forward to justify what happened last year. It was contended that the Norwegian Parliament voted thirty million dollars for the purchase of fish. Well I accept that statement, but not because it was justifiable for that country to do that that it was equally justifiable for Newfoundland. That deduction does logically follow. Circumstances arose in Norway which made it necessary for the Parliament there to protect the main industry and they justified what otherwise would have been wrong doing but I submit that we are not doing it in a legal and proper manner. What the Norwegian parliament did was legal and it was indiscriminatory because the whole people of Norway got the benefit of that appropriation, but that is not our case where certain sections only derived the benefit accruing from the appropriation of the five hundred thousand dollars.

Certain sections of the country were absolutely ignored. Different members have admitted that they were totally unaware of the transaction till they sat here in the House. Some of them thought the whole thing was a bubble and the criticism of the Opposition only tactics adopted to embarrass the government. I simply can not understand how they, with their constituents ruined, could condone such conduct as that perpetrated. It is absolutely non-understandable. They are men of independent means and should have stood up in their places and faced the situation on the floors of the House instead of running into holes and corners and saying: "I did not know it was like this, I think I will cross the floor." No man representing a West Coast district should have sat here and condoned such an infamous transaction. It was discriminatory in the highest degree. One section of the country was bolstered up, but the other ruined and then we are told "we had to save the fishermen." By all means save the fishermen. Take the money if you like for supplies, take 2 or 3 millions, but do not supply only one section. If you supply one, supply them all. Treat all fairly. The men of the West Coast have to pay their proportion of that $350,000 that was unjustly taken and spent and what have they got for it. Nothing—but empty boxes and barrels. The Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries occupies a position in this House and in the country to-day that is an impossible one. It is wholly indecent that he, the head of a department which has such power and influence where the opportunities to control our principal products are concerned, should occupy such a position while at the same time he is a large exporter himself. It is absolute tyranny because of the power in his hands and he has been an absolute monarch for the last 18 months in his department. To err is human, and to say the least he has erred in his whole fishery policy and the proof is here, for he has admitted in the floors of this House that he has failed. He found his regulations unworkable. The Opposition have been endeavoring since the opening of the House to put the probe in the wound and to heal the sore. We have asked time and again for information from different departments to throw light on certain transactions and in some cases we have been given the information. But in connection with this matter we have not been given all and half the truth is worse than a lie. If we are to get only half it were better we got none at all. I am sorry that the Prime Minister immediately after the introduction of this motion got up to oppose it. He couldn't have given the matter serious consideration or he would never have taken the stand he did. There was no charge against Hon. Mr. Coaker personally. It is against his department and ministerial position. Charges were made against his Advisory Board and here was the opportunity for him to defend his actions. All know what a Select Committee means; the placing in the hands of the Hon. Speaker the selection of 5 or 7 members to enquire into the subject. My friend Mr Higgins, even suggested the appointment of 5 men from the government side of the House. That was a challenge that none could refuse. We were prepared to have these 5 and abide by their finding. We are not prejudiced in the matter, nor do we wish to place the Minister of Marine in an improper position. But unfortunately for the government, they refused this offer, and where there was suspicion and doubt before and where there were some people with an open mind, there is only one conclusion to arrive at now, and that is there is something to conceal. If there is something to conceal, due only to errors, I promise he won't be sent to the place where he and his associates threatened to send us in the early days of their power. I believe he will not reach that place, but that he will have extenuating circumstances to offer in explanation of his conduct. The opportunity is here now an opportunity he will never have again, to bring on the investigation, to get the sworn evidence and to show up every phase of the whole transaction so fully that it will be done and over with once and for all. This subject has been a fetich with both sides since the House opened. Day after day we have heard nothing but fish. Mr. Coaker, salt and the "President Coaker's" cargo and now I am sick of it. Let us have an end to it; send it out to a tribunal that full confidence is reposed in by all the people in the country. I trust the Prime Minister will see his way clear to do this and not look upon it as a vote of want of confidence in the government. It is no such thing. I remember some years ago certain parties were involved in enquiries, when men on that side of the House charged those on this with serious offences. Hon. Mr. Coaker was then on the aggressive and Sir Michael Cashin on the defensive. The latter courted the fullest enquiry and publicity and came through unscathed. What is sauce for Cashin is sauce for Coaker. The Hon. Minister of Marine finds himself in the position to-day of having a large section of the country suspicious of him that something has occurred that should not have. Besides the suspicion of his having taken money for the benefit of only one section of the country, charges are heard as to certain companies with which he is identified. It is a vicious principle when Mr. Coaker, Minister of Marine, is allowed to deal in the fish business with Mr. Coaker, fish exporter. He hired the "President Coaker" arranged about her cargo and sailing and it was Coaker all through the transaction. This is an intolerable situation and one that can not longer be submitted to. Talk off receiving emolument from the government. Everyone knows that any person taking an office of emolument has to go back to the country for re-election, every member taking a position as a commissioner etc., has to resign his seat. The Constitution is so jealous of the reputation and character of those occupying ministerial seats that everything is done to safeguard them. But how do we know that the Minister of Marine is not bringing grist to his own mill. He is in an impossible position to-day. As to the charges preferred against him, I will not say whether I believe them or not. Time will tell and his innocence or guilt will be proven. I hope to see him out of the situation with clean hands. Personally I would be sorry to see him condemned. If he has committed an error of judgment, he should let the country know. If he has done wrong through not giving sufficient thought to the matters with which he was connected he should let us know; let the searchlight of enquiry be turned on his actions and all the incidents referred to, and he himself, will be the better satisfied when the verdict is brought in. As to the cargo of salt that has been so much discussed. I said before that the statement of the Auditor-General in connection with the same was a surprise to the whole country. He imported salt to the value of $77,000; it arrived here in due time and by the report of the Auditor General it was sold to a certain firm for $61,000. Right in the first place this meant a loss to Newfoundland of $1600. When enquiries were made as to where it had gone and who was the firm that had purchased it, it was discovered to have gone to Port Union. Hon. Mr. Coaker after being charged with taking and storing it, admitted that he had used some of it though it was not his, but the government's. That only came to light when the matter was ventilated in the House. He says too that there is some at Port Union yet. I do not know how much. It is not under the care of the Fisheries Dept., but of Mr. Coaker. Nobody knows who tallies out, say 100 tons to some fisherman; we have to take his statement at face value. He hands it out to himself and says he paid $4,400 for it. But how do we know whether he did or not. I do know however, that no sane business man would leave it there to be taken out at the purchasers' own price and according to their own measure. These matters are of the gravest importance and require that they be given the utmost research and have the searchlight thrown fully on them. It is regrettable that the first effort of the Opposition in this direction was not met in the spirit suggested. The Commission could now be half thru their work; the whole matter could be settled by Saturday night, and then the House could go on with its work. This holding back of information is useless and the lame attempt of the Prime Minister to make out these matters can be attended to when the Estimates come up for discussion, is merely camouflage. By what manner of means can we get the necessary out side evidence then. Are we going to summon private citizens to the Bar of this House when their evidence could be got better by Commission? The evidence of those interested here in the House will be accepted with doubt and with very little weight. The Estimates will offer no opportunity for the investigation. One thing must be done, and done before these matters are lost sight of; a commission must be appointed to deal with them and let us have the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution, moved by the leader of the Opposition.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I rise, Mr. Speaker, to support the motion put by the Leader of the Opposition and seconded by my friend, Mr. Bennett, and in doing so I am sorry indeed that the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as I told him a few days ago, should have decided to vote down the motion then before the House and be here to-day faced with a higher tribunal than I then suggested. While I say higher, it will be looked on as the highest in the country that any man can get before, this tribunal which is suggested in the motion before the chair. I regret that he did not take my advice when I said to have a Select Committee. I hope he understands that I have no personal feeling against him in this matter and am acting in no way beyond my duty to the people of Newfoundland whom I represent, and endeavouring to lay before the country the history of what happened during the last 18 months. That is my position; I am not dealing personally with the Hon. Minister of Marine but on behalf of my constituents and the people of all other parts of Newfoundland. Take the position of the Leader of the Opposition. He sent request after request, day after day, but the information for which he asked was not produced. There must be some reason for hiding it. If there is no reason, why is it not given as asked for by the Leader of the Opposition. Why is it not tabled in this House? Why is it locked away in some cupboard or drawer? If there is no skeleton in the cupboard, lay the whole thing on the table and let us all take a look at it. Yesterday when I was dealing with this matter I charged that Mr. Jos. Sellars—I had been told by Capt. Kean that Sellars had told him, and I know myself that he told others—had nothing to do with the "President Coaker's cargo in any shape or form. The Hon. Minister of Marine has stated here that Mr. Sellars had received cheques for his part in the transaction. I am stating what I know to be correct, what Sellars told Kean and others, that he received none and was not interested in the matter. If it is correct that the Minister of Marine had in his Department cheques returned from Mr. Sellars and others made out for him, I cannot see the justification for keeping them concealed. If he has any that were issued to him or if he received any back, I say the Hon. Minister of Marine should lay them on the table of the House right now. Let us clean up this thing; let us have these cheques and remove all doubts in the matter. If we cannot have the cheques, let us have the enquiry. We cannot have it too quickly. I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Marine, as he has stated here that he had the cheques to lay them on the table now.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I beg your pardon, Mr. Speaker, if I am interrupting. I have those cheques in my possession and can lay them on the table in a few moments.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I think when he lays them on the table, the cat will be out of the bag. We've been at this now a week and we've got it at last and will now prove conclusively that there was something wrong in the transaction.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—There is nothing that we desire to cover up.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—There is nothing you may desire to hide. Will it be long before you table the cheques, sir. I expect that when we get these cheques we will have still more conclusive proof that there is something wrong about the whole transaction.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The cheques are as follows: One dated Nov. 27th, 1920, payable to Joseph Sellars, Esq., or order for the sum of $67,500.00 and signed by Arthur Mews, Deputy Colonial Secretary and H. V. Hutchings, Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries. It is endorsed by Mr. Sellars in his own handwriting and was paid at the Bank of Nova Scotia the same day. The next one is dated Nov. 26th, 1920 and is drawn in favor of Joseph Sellars, Esq., or order for the sum of $82,675.00 and is also signed by Arthur Mews, Deputy Colonial Secretary and H. V. Hutchings, Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries, endorsed by Mr. Sellars. The third cheque is dated Dec. 10th, 1920 and drawn in favor of Joseph Sellars per A. H. Murray, for the sum of $3,781.11 and signed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Mr. Coaker and Mr. Hutchings, the Deputy Minister and is endorsed in the handwriting of Mr. Murray.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—May I ask if there are any other papers in connection with the President Coaker's cargo.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—These are the cheques for which you asked.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Yes, but I want to know if there are any bills of lading or other documents of that kind.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Not up to the present time.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Well I expected that the cat or rather the mouse would fall right into the trap and so he did. For a whole week I have been trying to get at the bottom of this thing and now I am firmly convinced that there is something crooked about it. I am going to make a statement now about the President Coaker transaction and I fear no contradiction from anyone of what I am about to say. Here is the story. This morning I had occasion to call at Mr. Joseph Sellars's office and while there I took the opportunity of enquiring from him what his connection with the President Coaker's cargo had been. He told me in the presence of a witness that he had no interest whatever in the cargo but that on Nov. 26th last a cheque for the sum of $82,675.00 had been sent him from the Marine and Fisheries Dept. with a request to deposit it to his account and to give the Minister of Marine and Fisheries his cheque drawn in favor of the Union Trading Co. for $82,675.00. Now, Sir, do you wonder why the Leader of the Opposition wanted an enquiry into the transaction? Now do you see why there was such a reluctance to have a committee appointed?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—You are welcome to see the facts.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—But we had a mighty hard job to get them and now that we have got them, something more than a Select Committee is going to be appointed to enquire into them. Just imagine, Sir, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries occupying the position he does in this House, getting up here and telling us that Mr. Sellars bought the President Coaker's cargo. I say that Mr. Sellars did not buy it but the Minister of Marine and Fisheries sent Mr. Sellars his cheque and received Mr. Sellars's cheque in return for the identical amount so as to cover up his own tracks and hide behind somebody else. Can you beat that? No Sir, that has never been beaten in the history of this country. Then you wonder why we are asking for a committee to investigate this matter. I advised you, to save you from your friends, to make a clear statement of your part in the transaction. I appealed to you, and I had the proof in my possession when I did so, to stand up in your place like a man and tell the whole story and so avoid all this debate and discussion. If you were not trying to hide behind Mr. Sellars, why did you send him a cheque with a request for him to send you his for the same amount in return? If there was not some ulterior motive actuating you why did you do it? Would it not have been better for you to have written out the cheque in the first place in favor of the Union Trading Co., while it would undoubtedly have been irregular and improper, I cannot see that it would have been any great crime. But the half of it has not yet been related. What arrangements have been made for getting that money back; does the Prime Minister know if any arrangements have been made for receiving these funds, that is if you ever seen a cent of it again?

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I know quite a lot.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—But you don't know it all.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Which balance you probably know.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I know more than you think I do. The President Coaker's cargo is now landing in Italy and you will never see a cent for it. I say that this investigation should take place and it will be a standing disgrace to the country if you go out of this House without seeing that it does take place. It is not what the people deserve. They are clamoring for it and although you may vote the motion down, let me tell you that you will not attend the June conference till this matter has been cleared up, and if all on this side of the House are as determined as I am, it will be fully investigated. I suppose when the Prime Minister produced these cheques he thought that the whole thing would be over but I want to tell him that the trouble is only just beginning. I remember when I myself was arraigned before this House, when I was petitioned and protested against, but my position then was as that of a prince as compared with the Minister's position now. I do not mean to say that Mr. Coaker deliberately stole this money but I am going to say that if Mr. Coaker's department is to be judged by this cheque, then goodness knows how much money is gone. According to this official statement furnished by the Minister of Fisheries the amounts which were to be paid are as follows: half the freight $9,760.00, export tax $2,250.00, insurance $6,325.00 and the cost of the fish at 8.50 per quintal, $63,750.00. Now add that up and you will find that it amounts to $82,585.00, and yet you send a cheque for $82,625.00. If that's the kind of addition that is done in your department then the Lord knows how much money is gone. Now I suppose we ought to have a committee to check this up. If this is a sample of what the auditing in the department is, we ought to send for these New York chaps again.

"I did not have anything to do with the President Coaker's cargo, I sold it to Mr. Sellars," says the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Yes, and you gave him your cheque and he gave you his for the same amount in return. If that is not the latest way to buy fish! You can swap cheques and then go home and have your supper for nothing. Oh no, Sir, you don't want to have a committee appointed to enquire into the President Coaker's cargo and I am sorry to see you misled; I am sorry to see you gone that way. You could have done the thing openly and above board; you could have signed the cheque in favor of the F. P. U. and as I have already said, there would have been no great crime in it, but when you try to hide behind another man's back, you have gone astray. Where is the Bill of lading of the "President Coaker?"

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It is attached to the other documents in Genoa.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Is there not a copy of the Bill of Lading?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I only saw one.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—But if you gave the Bank of Nova Scotia the original Bill of Lading in the first place, they would have a copy of it. Sir Michael Cashin has been asking for this for the past ten days and cannot get it. There must have been 3 copies of the Bill of Lading and surely they did not all go forward to Genoa. I suppose they were like the cheques they were lost for the time being. I wonder who has them at Genoa, Ragnoli? I say, Sir, that a copy of the Bill of Lading should have been laid upon the table of this House days ago; but like the cheques there seems to be no record of anything kept. As it is now after half past six, Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of the debate.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is the intention of his Department to employ the services of Mr. George Hawes to advise the Department during this year as to conditions in European markets, and if not who does he propose to employ for that purpose?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND

FISHERIES.—I beg to table the reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if a printed circular originating in Oporto and addressed to him with the prefix 'Your Excellency' pretending to be a statement of Oporto fish exporters with reference to the Newfoundland trade, but which was repudiated by the recognized codfish exporters there in a statement published in the newspapers of this city on April 15, and certified by Mr. Hanover Grant, British vice-consul at Oporto to be fabricated in the office of the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner at Oporto. Mr. S. K. Smith, or with his connivance; also if the Minister during his visit to Oporto was a party to this transaction or knows anything about it; if it was fabricated in the office of the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner was any public money paid for its composition and printing and if so how much; and in that case does the Minister consider that this was a creditable transaction for an official of the Colony to be engaged in, and if the Minister does not believe that it was fabricated in the office of the Trade Commissioner or with his connivance, can he suggest any reason why any parties should undertake to fabricate such a communication and represent it as coming from a body of commercial men who had nothing whatever to do with it?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is correct that members of the Codfish Exportation Board, commonly known as the Advisory Board, manipulated sales of fish in the foreign markets from time to time in their own interests, so that they were able to get rid of cargoes to the disadvantage of ordinary exporters, and whether these members of the Advisory Board utilized the private information coming to that Board to assist them in accomplishing these objects; and if so, will he lay on the Table of the House a statement of the cases in which this occurred and the names of the members of the Advisory Board who thus misused their positions?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the reply.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Mr. H. V. Simms, who left here some weeks ago to visit Canada, United States and Europe, has been despatched by his Department on any official business or has been commissioned to undertake any business for the Department during the course of his trip and if so to state the nature of the undertaking committed to him and to give an approximate estimate of the cost which such work will be to this colony.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—The answers to question 4 are being prepared and will probably be tabled to-morrow.

MR. SULLIVAN asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of this House a statement of all orders, and amount of same, sent from his Department to the firm of Hon. John Anderson, and if no orders have been sent, why discriminate against such a well-known supporter of the Government?

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table the information.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs, is it correct that one Jas. J. McGrath of St. John's, formerly a Fish Inspector, has been lately employed by the Custom Department and is now attached to the South Coast revenue service?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Yes, Mr. James J. McGrath has recently been appointed in the Customs.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Why was James McGrath shifted from Fish Inspector to the Custom House where people are already falling over each other. This is not economy.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The appointment was necessary on the S.S. Daisy.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—If it was necessary, why not give it to some returned soldier?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The position is not new. It was a vacant position.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Who was the man who was there last year?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I don't know.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Well I do.

MR. WALSH asked the Minister of Public Works if the 1921 grants for Roads and Bridges have been sent out to the different Road Boards and Commissioners as promised in this House some ten days ago?

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table the information.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs:

- (a) For a detailed statement showing the name and address of all applicants for the Old Age Pension, whose applications are on file in Mr. Woods' office and who have not yet received said pensions.
- (b) Is it the intention of the Government to vote a sufficient amount, the present session, to give all applicants who are qualified, this pension?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—As soon as I get that information I will table it.

MR. SINNOTT asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of this House a statement showing all orders sent from his Department to Steer Bros., and amount of same. If no orders have been sent, why not?

MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—I beg to table the information.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, May 13th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled 'An Act to amend the Election Act, 1913.'

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Lewis gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister it was resolved that a Select Committee of this House, to consist of five members, be appointed to take the evidence of the Medical Practitioners of the city of St. John's and others on the question of the suitability of the Escasoni site on Portugal Cove Road for a Smallpox Hospital.

Mr. Speaker appointed the following Committee—Hon. the Minister of Justice, Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Hon. the Minister of Education, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Some days ago a petition was presented with regard to the Hospital that the government decided to erect at Escasoni, on the advice of the practitioners of the city. They claimed it was an admirable site for such a building. Mr. Higgins put the position to the House that this petition against this project is largely signed by Justice Johnson and others, and it has been decided to select a Committee of three to take the evidence of the practitioners, and general opinion in that connection. We have been advised that it is an admirable site, and that it can in no way have detrimental effects on the neighbourhood. On the other hand Mr. Higgins voices a contrary opinion, and I would like to have the matter investigated before a decision is arrived at. I would suggest that the Committee be appointed by the Hon. Speaker before the close of the House this afternoon or on tomorrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines, (a) how many barrels of seed potatoes have been imported by the Department since the first of January last and how many have been purchased in the colony (b) what has been the average price paid for imported potatoes and what for local potatoes, (c) what distribution has been made of imported potatoes and of local potatoes showing the localities to which each has been sent and the quantity of each; (d) and what quantities are yet to be imported and what quantity it is proposed to buy locally and where and in what quantities will the same be distributed?

THE PRIME MINISTER—There have been no potatoes imported since 1st of January last year, but seventeen hundred barrels have been purchased in the Colony. I cannot give the price at the moment but it was the market price at the day of purchase. There has been no distribution of imported potatoes, and the local have been sent to the various localities by the government through the department of Agriculture and Mines. As to the quantities to be imported there are some farmers who desire special seeds. These will not be imported at the expense of the government, but will be purchased by the Department of Agriculture and Mines and delivered to these people at cost. It is impossible to estimate the quantity to be distributed but there have been requisitions from various districts, and the department of Agriculture and Mines will supply them.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked the hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House, a statement giving the details of the sum of $1,170.93, received by the Fisheries Department, on account of dredging work performed for private concerns as shown in his reply on May 10th, to my question respecting the operations of the dredge; also to say if there are any amounts outstanding and yet to be collected for such private work, and if so to state the amount and the parties from whom such is due.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES—That statement is being prepared and it will be ready.

MR. MACDONNELL—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to furnish a list of the lighthouses erected this year, as provided for in the estimates of last year.

HON. MR. COAKER—The answer to this question is being prepared.

MR. WALSH—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if Mr. Edward Whelan who was last year employed as Customs Officer on the South Coast Revenue Service is still in the Customs Service, if not why not?

THE PRIME MINISTER—I have asked the Assistant Collector to let me have the information in this connection. I have no personal knowledge of it.

MR. BENNETT—Asked Hon. the Minister of Justice, the names of the lawyers who drafted the agreement between the government and the Bell Island Companies, which is now the subject of a Bill before this House stating who represented the colony and the companies respectively?

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—In reply to that question I would say that the lawyers engaged in this matter were Mr. Summers and Sir William Lloyd for the government, and Mr. E. M. MacDonald for the Companies.

MR. BENNETT—Have they been paid any fees?

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—No.

MR. SULLIVAN—Asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of this House a statement showing (a) The number of bedsteads purchased within the last twelve months for the Poor House (b) from whom purchased, (c) price paid for same, (d) If mattresses are included in price mentioned, (e) if not to give price of bedsteads and mattresses separately.

MIN. PUBLIC WORKS—In reply to that I may say that the information is being prepared.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, what steps his department is taking to assist the people of the Southern districts who have stocks of fish on their hands at present, or who are unable to obtain supplies for the fishery this year, owing to financial embarrassment of the firm which ordinarily supply them, but which through the operation of the Fishery Regulations are now unable to do so, also if the members for Burin, Fortune Bay, and Burgeo districts have made any representations to his department with a view to securing assistance for those people, and if not will the Minister now take the matter into consideration, and say what action if any, the government proposes to take, and if the government proposes to take no action, why not?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—

In reply I beg to say that no action has been taken.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—There are a lot of men with fish on their hands who cannot sell it. Could not some arrangement be made with the people who own stores on the Water Front, to have that fish stored there? There are lots of twenty-five and forty quintals.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—Does the leader of the Opposition suggest that we secure a store for that purpose.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Yes that is my suggestion.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—I might say for the information of the Hon. Min. that we are storing some of this fish, but there are a lot of people that way and there may be some way of fixing it up, if the matter is thought over seriously and quickly.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES—Could you give me any idea of the quantity. Would there be a thousand and quintals?

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—There may be more than that. I think there will be a lot of Labrador fish.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Justice if it is the intention of the Government, at the present session to introduce any enactment with regard to common carriers which would give greater protection to business people, as recommended by the Board of Trade on several occasions, and if not, why not?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—In reply I beg to say that no recommendations from the Board of Trade or any other source have reached me. This is the first I heard of it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if his Department has yet compiled a complete statement showing the total catch of fish during the calendar year 1920, and if so to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the Department's figures respecting:

- (a) Bank Fishery.
- (b) Shore Fishery.
- (c) Labrador Fishery.
- (d) With the catch of each quality for the different Districts as far as possible and also to indicate wherein the Minister's estimate made last September and submitted to a meeting of Fish Exporters, differs from the actual figures now supplied by his Department.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I do not know whether the first information is yet prepared, but the second part I know is being prepared.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is the intention of his Department to continue during the present year the army of so-called Fishery Inspectors, sent out last year, and if so what services they are to perform in view of the Minister's declaration last week that while the standardization law will be retained on the Statute Book it will not be enforced, and also if the Minister has received any representation from the Board of Trade with a view to recognizing certificates of inspection issued by the Board with regard to fish cargoes being exported from this Colony, and if so what is his attitude with regard to such a proposal?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—There will be no Fish Inspectors this year.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Minister of Education, if Mr. P. G. Butler, principal of Springdale Street School, St. John's under Church of England Board of Education, is one of the persons sent abroad by his Department for the purpose of perfecting their educational training in order to make them eligible for position under the new system about to be inaugurated by the Hon. Minister for the promotion of higher education in Newfoundland, and if so, to state whether Mr. Butler is, during his absence, drawing his customary salary from the Church of England Educational Grant for St. John's in addition to whatever other emolument he may be receiving from the Department of Education?

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION.—I beg to say that Mr. Butler did not attend an institution abroad in the interest of the Board of Education but upon his own initiative. I have ascertained from the Secretary of the Board of Education that Mr. Butler is not receiving any salary.

Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries tabled the Annual Report of his Department for year 1920.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Auditor General has objected to sending out the moneys for the Road Grants unless the vote is before the House, and it is only this vote that I want discussed this afternoon. The balance of the Estimates will not be discussed until next week so that the Opposition will have the week end to peruse them. Owing to the Printers' strike there has been a delay in the Estimates and we are not tabling them in the artistic form we would like. It will be noticed that there is no mention of reduction of salaries of Civil Servants in these Estimates. It is the intention to bring in a specific Bill for this purpose.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It will be noticed that the total for roads is $125,000.00 less than last year. The courtesy of passing that road grant this afternoon will enable the Auditor General to open up a new account, and will furnish the proper authority for sending this money throughout the country.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Speaker. I have no desire to hamper the passing of this vote, but it opens up our new estimates and the expenditure for the entire year. A great deal of concern is abroad as to how the country's expenses are going to be met this year. It was thought that the budget and the estimates should be tabled together. We are in a situation now where we have to cut our garment according to our cloth. The Prime Minister has stated here this afternoon that he intends making a reduction in the salaries of Civil Servants, but the question arises also whether we should not make a reduction in our road expenditures. The people of the entire country will have to curtail in the whole of their living until we get back to normal conditions. The Department of Public Works is a department that spends a large sum of money. I don't suppose there is a department where there is more money wasted, and it has always been that way. Our method of spending road money is absolutely wasteful. We don't get adequate returns for the money we spend. The Governments have always depended for a great deal of support through the handling of the road grants. I know that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was very strong on this point. He inaugurated a system of local road boards so as to have the money spent in an economical way. I believe his intentions were serious, but I doubt if there has been any improvement. It is very difficult to get the people to realize that this is just as important as keeping their homes and farms in good condition at the least possible expense. They have to pay this money that is wasted.

I do not wish to hamper the Government because I know the necessity of something being done quickly so as to get some money in circulation amongst the people. This is confirmed by the action of the Government this afternoon in asking for this authority for the distribution of this money. If we can afford it let us do it, but if we cannot afford it we should not pay it. That is my reason for stating that I would like to see a copy of the Budget, in other words the Ways and Means tabled. I would like to see where the money is coming from. It is not good enough for the Government to come in here and make comparisons and show the votes of other years. Last year was abnormal. No man in business is thinking or planning as he did last year. Economy must be practised in every possible direction, and above all we cannot afford to be wasteful in our expenditure of road moneys. I say that by all means we should give the road boards all the money we can afford to give them to relieve the distress, but we should not run into it blindly. There is only one way that we can meet the present emergency and that is by the strictest economy. The earning power of the people is going to be cut into, and that means a corresponding reduction in revenue. We are not going to have any business profits tax this year. In every direction the revenue of this country is going to be so curtailed that it will only be by the most far-reaching economy that we will be able at all to maintain our financial independence.

I would suggest that the matter be left over until Monday. When we once open the door we might go on from one vote to another until we find that we have bitten more than we can chew. The condition is not so pressing that time cannot be given the members to think this matter over and look over the estimates so as to be able to discuss them intelligently. We all know that the most important legislation brought into the House is the Ways and Means bill. Members of the Government I am sure will understand my position, and will consent to have this vote stand over until Monday at any rate.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I do not think it would be decent to take the vote in globo. It is time the Auditor General woke up and his report for the past twelve months does not require any consideration from us. He has asked you to get an authority to send out the road vote and he intimates that by voting on it immediately matters would be facilitated. I may say that the Minister of Public Works may for the next four days or so go on with the preliminary work and make arrangements for when the vote would be passed and it will be put through in the course of a few days. By voting on it this evening his step would not be quickened. When you take thirty or forty cents per capita all over the Island then it is not an important matter so far as the Road Grant is concerned. The whole thing does not involve more than two hundred thousand dollars and that amount per capita will not relieve the distress prevailing. The summer season is now well with us and the time for the repairing of the roads is now past. So I think it is better for the Prime Minister to rise the Committee and give the Opposition time to consider the matter.

MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—I would like to say a few words with reference to remarks of Sir Michael Cashin. Now for the past week the Department has been doing every possible thing as to the preliminary steps and in fact for the past two weeks we have been doing everything possible to get the grants ready and we have been anxiously waiting the time when this matter will be placed at the disposal of the Department. With the exception of the twenty per cent. increase in the main grant, the vote is the same that has been passed for the past thirty years.

The total amount would I believe considerably relieve the distress in some sections of the country. I think it is only right and proper that those grants be put through in a hurry. I expect that it would take three weeks after the vote is passed to have them sent out. For the past three weeks the department has been receiving from the Road Boards various reports as to damage to bridges, etc., and it is yet impossible to do anything and I thought I might say these few words before the Committee rises.

I do not think it would take long once do not think it would take long once it is passed to get the money to the Road Boards. In fact a telegram could be sent saying that the money was going. That would be sufficient for all intents and purposes. I think a few days delay would be all right as the Opposition would, like that amount of time to consider the matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I quite agree with Mr. Bennett that usually the notice of the Estimates is given on say a Friday and they are not gone through until the following Monday. But this matter was brought so suddenly before the House because of the pressure brought to bear on the Department of Public Works with regard to the desirability of sending out the Road Grants, but if it is the desire of the Opposition to have the matter deferred I am quite satisfied.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Mr. Chairman, before the Committee rises I would like to say that I entirely agree with Mr. Bennett that it would be all right from all points of view to let this matter stand over for a little while. Like my friend Sir Michael Cashin. I think the delay would be serious. The only trouble once the vote is passed is the sending out of a cheque in an envelope. It only means thirty cents per capita. May I ask the Prime Minister if he is going to get the whole five thousand dollars?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That amount has been arranged for and may be got from the Bank of Montreal to-morrow. I intend to give notice this afternoon of the introduction of a Bill on to-morrow and Ways and Means on Thursday.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I do not agree with the Minister of Public Works because I do not think the delay with reference to this vote will be any way serious and it would facilitate the Opposition considerably if it was let stand over for a little while.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—May I ask the Prime Minister, if this five hundred thousand is a temporary loan from the Bank of Montreal and is it going to be distributed among the different Road Boards and what programme is going to be arranged?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It will be divided among the different districts per capita and the Departments of the Marine and Fisheries and Public Works will confer the respective representatives of each as to the handling of the money.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I hope it will not be sent out in the same manner as it was last year. It was sent out to the heelers of our opponents and the principal instructions were given by the Prime Minister. Now if that is the policy of the distributon it is just as well to cancel it right away.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That custom Sir Michael is evenly balanced.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion the debate on the Address to His Excellency the Governor, was postponed until to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to Renew 10-11 Geo. V. Cap. 25, entitled 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish'."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Last evening you will remember, I was on this matter re the President Coaker. Now I would like to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries how this discrepancy between the amounts as the individual cheques indicate and the amounts of them according to the official report. The cheque given to Sellars is for $82,675 and according to the official report it should be $82,575.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES.—There is a mistake of one hundred dollars.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The insurance was not made up accurately and the one hundred dollars arose with reference to that calculation.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Now is that the way the matter is being run. May I ask again the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if his accounts have been audited by the Auditor General.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I understand he has gone through the accounts and he found the mistake. And the $100 has been returned to the Department. It was deducted from the next payment for freight.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—May I ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he will table the cheque of the last one paid for freight and also a statement showing the deduction of the one hundred dollars.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I will bring it up.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—There is $6,225 charged in the official statement for insurance. Who did that insurance?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Some by Dale and some by Barr so far as I know. The Union Trading Company did the insurance.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Now that is worse. Could not the stub of the certificates issued by Dale be produced in the House?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I expect I could get them.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I would like them to be placed on the table of the House. You will remember you tabled a statement showing that the cargo of the President Coaker was sold to J. Sellars. We asked for information claiming that it was not Sellar's cargo and he had nothing to do with it but we received none. Yesterday you tabled two cheques which are signed by your department in favor of J. Sellars but Sellars denies having seen them and it appears that there was only a mere exchange of cheques and the Prime Minister with a flourish of trumpets produced these two cheques and if the Prime Minister has known me as well as he does to-day he would not have tried this trick on me. He does not know why I know so much about the case and if he did he would certainly think it would be dangerous for him to interfere. Now there is no more conclusive proof that the President Coaker's cargo is not owned by Sellars than these facts exhibited this evening. Sellars had nothing to with the insurance. Yes it is beginning do you not think, that he had nothing to do with it whatever. Now that is the reason that the other day when the previous motion was before the Chair that I appealed to you through our friendship that you have an enquiry and bring the matter to the public eye. Now I am satisfied that something more serious is going to become of this matter and I say this because I know what I am saying is correct. It is more correct to-day than ever. I believe that you in your soul will admit that Sellars had no more to do with the cargo of the President Coaker than the mere exchange of cheques. I think if these cheques had been produced here before the whole matter would have been cleared up much quicker. And you say the Bill of Lading was in the name of the Government. I would like to ask you again if there is any possibility of tracing that Bill of Lading? The other day when I asked you for it you said the cargo had been bought by Sellars. Now if these cheques had been produced and the matter had been cleared up so that you would be placed in a position of righteousness it would have been gratifying to all concerned but to-day I think I am right and you are wrong. I asserted yesterday when the Prime Minister produced these two cheques to the House with his chest stuck out and a smile on his face that I was not satisfied with the information and there was a cheque held by someone else and now I am determined that this matter will be ventilated and brought to the public mind. The Little Princess was loaded alongside the Jean Wakely but there is nothing showing the discrepancy arising with reference to this cargo. There is some reason as to this. The same fish from the same fishermen was put into both of these vessels. Why was the President Coaker allowed to take fish from the stores of the F. P. U.? I think everyone should have been treated along the same lines. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has now tried to place the blame on Sellars and this motion before the Chair is one which gives us the opportunity to have this matter cleared up and if it is their intention to vote it down I say I cannot understand it and I cannot understand why you are not satisfied to have the atmosphere cleared. I do not understand about the prices paid for the Jean Wakely's cargo. Some of it fetched nine dollars per quintal and some eight dollars. The same applies to fish of the President Coaker. The Minister has to explain this. I asked you yesterday for a copy of the people who sold the fish and the amount which had been taken from the Union Stores. I endeavoured to trace this information to-day but failed so will you kindly let me have it. In this cheque business and this insurance business there is something which you do not want the public to see. So that is the reason why the Government is going to vote it down. I am rather astounded that the Prime Minister should be away at the present moment, but I can understand it if 600 hungry men are outside the building. I hope it will not be the same during the discussion of the matter of the "President Coaker." The two leaders of the House are lost. The real leader of the House is lost.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Would you like to have me in his place; I know you lay your confidence in me more than in any other man in the country. I would wish to have a word to say now of these cheques in connection with the "President Coaker." We have three now, dated Nov. 10th, Nov.

27th and Dec. 6th, and we intend to produce the fourth. These will tell the tale. This is a serious matter but as I thought the enquiries would be over before this and they did not take place, I will tell you of it now. You Mr. Speaker, should get the members to take notice. On Nov. 26th, under the Marine and Fisheries account, the Bank of Nova Scotia paid Mr. Jos. Sellars $82,675. That was passed by an employee of the Marine and Fisheries Department to Mr. Joseph Sellars on the afternoon of Nov. 26th, or the morning of the 27th, and when that cheque was passed to him, this other dated Nov. 27th for $82,675 and signed by Mr. Sellars was paid back to the Union Trading Co. The two cheques were exactly alike. One was given by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and the others was handed back by Mr. Sellars and yet I am told there is nothing wrong. You can't get away from it. I offer to bet that if the Prime Minister held this cheque yesterday the same as I do, he would never have read it out. This is a sorrowful moment for him. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has backed up the case. As I said before, this is conclusive evidence. Mr. Sellars only swapped his cheque with you, sir. I do not like the idea, sir, of standing here and bringing attention to such questions as you brought up a year ago when you tried to take every spark of character from me. You realize now, sir, that you are up against an even more serious charge than you preferred against me. I tell you here and now, sir, that if this enquiry does not take place, if the skeleton is not taken out of the cupboard and the cards laid on the table, something is certainly going to happen. This matter will be taken, if necessary outside the House, and it will be taken up whether the Government wants it or not. You never dreamt when in the early stages of your career you wrote to the Governor about me that you would become an even greater sinner. But history repeats itself—especially when the Bank of Montreal or the Bank of Nova Scotia keeps the records. The facts are here, sir, right in these cheques. May I ask the Hon. Minister of Marine if it is the intention of the Government to vote on this motion. I am prepared to stop now and give you a chance, because there is a great deal more to come out of this case than any of you may imagine. Here is a cargo of fish insured by the Government with freight and all totaling $95,000 and when Fonseca in Italy gets his touch cut out of it, not even this cheque here will be left for us. When I asked the Hon. Minister of Marine yesterday where the money had gone he could not tell us. Why does he not tell us where it has gone? Has it gone to Fonseca.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It is in the hands of the Trade Commissioner.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—After Mr. Bernard leaves who is going to look after it. Here is $95,000 dangling about, being tossed about like dice, and nobody to look after it.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It's no use to tell you differently.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You won't tell us anyhow but I am rather inclined to think you will be left there. I tell you now your cargo of fish will not be sold for the next 12 months.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Some of it is sold now.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—At what price, may I ask sir.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—We are getting a very good price for it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Now isn't that something terrible, gentlemen.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND

FISHERIES.—I said to sell it at 45/--.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—What do you anticipate the loss is going to be to the Colony. You think there is only 10/-- a qtl. lost on it. That will show a loss of 3,500 pounds but I say there will be a loss of 7,000 pounds or more on the "President Coaker's" cargo, because of the bungling in handling it. That is what it has cost the Colony. I will go further and say that the "Jean Wakely" and the "Little Princess" cargoes turned out differently, as they were handled by men of business ability, but this one, the "President Coaker" was not. I charged before that $19,000 freight was paid. The Hon. Minister of Marine tells us that the other half was paid and I ask him now, when was the balance paid.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—Some time in March.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Would that cheque be available, sir.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It might be at Port Union.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You mean to say it might be issued at Port Union and held there.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It may be in the Fisheries Department.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—The cheques themselves are not half as important as the date you paid them. Now I ask you fairly why you will not have the investigation.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I would like to have it.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Good for you. You are the man behind the gun and if you tell the Prime Minister that you court it you will have it. If the Prime Minister refuses, I believe the little Attorney General will agree but I do not want to put him in the awkward position of asking him. If you do not want to put it now as a vote of want of confidence in the Government we are perfectly agreeable. Come over on this side of the House and vote and then you will see the Hon. Mr. Warren coming with you and the Hon. Dr. Barnes coming next. We can fix it now if you want it. This must be cleared up. I understand we are not going to stop at this as if the motion is not carried through and we get something to tell the people who are clamoring for the truth, some who are not members at all will tell us to go to the country and have it investigated fully. I am tired of pleading with you, sir, to have this enquiry in justice to yourself; a clergyman could not have been treated more gently, sir, than you have been. Have this Commission appointed and the enquiry held before this House for your own sake and the sake of those who are supporting you here. Get up and say we will have no more of this "President Coaker" affair, and as you say it, whisper to Hon. Mr. Halfyard to vote with you when the motion comes up and I will draw off. We will then have the atmosphere clear in a few days. These cheques, however, will be needed and I will take care of them for a few days. When Mr. Sellars makes such a statement as he has, something must happen as the public will take it up clear of this House. I have nothing further now to say on this matter except that when the vote comes on, you be on this side of the House. You can't do anything else, sir, in justice to yourself and the country than come over on this side and vote with me.

MR. MACDONNELL—I would like, Mr. Speaker, to say a word or two on this matter. The situation which confronts the House at the present time justifies the position which we took last year when we questioned the propriety of Hon. Mr. Coaker, holding two positions at the same time; the danger of a Minister of the Crown acting in a dual capacity. We were assured, however, that our fears on this score were groundless; that he was too big not to faithfully discharge his public duties and that there was no collusion between him and the Prime Minister. Some were slow to believe the charges against him. I was of the same impression till yesterday; I was a disbeliever too, and was not slow to express my views in that regard and the hope that he could give an explanation that would clear the whole matter up. But now I am no longer in doubt—we have ample proof that when the Hon. Minister carried out this transaction he knew that he was doing wrong. There is no need of bringing in a third party in order to camouflage it—he knew clearly that when President Coaker of the Union Trading Co. approached the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries he was looking to someone that would help him without demur. I make the definite charge here that he did wrong and that he knew it when he made that sale of fish. That is admitted and every member has now to judge how that transaction has affected the Minister personally and the House collectively. I have no doubt but the members of the Executive were accessories to the fact and that it was done with their connivance though the others might not know, and I am convinced that those on this side of the House were not aware of the details till yesterday. But there is where the similarity in the position of members ends. It is still possible, however, by any man voting down this motion to identify himself with this infamous transaction and by so doing he takes as much of the blame as the Minister or Marine who was responsible for the first action. That is the first view to be taken of this question. I am prepared to hear anything in the way of explanation and to see the reflections cast on those involved cleared up; but this is not a question of bringing up whether Mr. Sellars is right or wrong, but of what we are going to do now, that we know that this wrong has been committed. Is the name of the Minister of Marine sufficiently strong in the government to buy him a clear title. I have no desire to say harsh things of a man who is down. I have great respect for the old motto "Ne mortuis nil nisi bonum" but I often substitute the word "bunkum" for bonum. I can see now that Hon. Mr. Coaker is politically dead. If you believe in his innocence then stand by him all the time. But are we to believe that you knew of this infamous transaction before we did. If so, you are party to the absolute deception of those who are trying to explain the question away. This was the shadiest transaction ever carried out by a member of this House and anyone that votes down this motion becomes identified with it. Everyone doing so writes himself down as party to the deception and does so with his eyes open. You gentlemen on the other side must remember that there are traditions attached to this House and that during the last few years such amendments have been made to the Placeman's Act that those traditions have gradually ceased to stand out with the same clearness and distinction as heretofore.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled

"An Act to amend the Profiteering Act 1920."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker: I should like to make a few observations before this Act passes. I think that some commentary should be made with respect to the administration of affairs in relation to the Food Control Board, that have been in existence during the past twelve or fifteen months. It is not my purpose to refer to that section of their duties which relates to the handling of sugar, because that matter is now before a Select Committee of this House and is being dealt with in such a manner, and I hope that the finding of that Committee will be such, that the utmost information will be given to the House and to the country at large as to the operations of that Board during its tenure of office. It is quite proper that there should be a Board, as contemplated under this Act. It is desirable in every possible way that we should have a Board, properly constituted by proper individuals. The desirability of having a Board was very evident during the past two years to prevent the extraordinary amount of profiteering that has taken place in the country, and it looks to me like locking the stable door when the horse is gone by coming in to-day to introduce a bill to amend the Act in relation to profiteering. Unfortunately, in this country when a Bill of this kind is put into operation there is very little attention paid to the fitness or ability of those who are to constitute the Board and who are to carry out the special duties that they are called upon to perform, and it would be absolutely futile for us to pass this Bill if the government do not intend to put into operation machinery to prevent a repetition of extortion, which has brought about the hardships that the working classes of this country have been called upon to bear, and to prevent the further excess profits on the part of those dealing in commercial commodities. To-day the prices of foodstuffs are on the down grade, for which we are all thankful. We hear of big reductions in prices that existed in the foreign markets. We hear of butter having been reduced from 15c. to 20c. a pound in the Canadian markets and in conformity with that we find in our own city a reduction in butter of two or three cents a pound. I consider that when the price of goods, especially of foodstuffs, is reduced in the foreign markets, they should be reduced pro ratio in this market. I contend that it is a one-sided bargain that business men have with the consumers, because if the price of flour advances in the foreign market to-day one or two dollars a barrel immediately the price goes up in the local market accordingly; but if the price in the foreign market drops one or two dollars we get a reduction of twenty-five or perhaps fifty cents. Now I say what applies in the one case should apply in the other. We are paying higher prices to-day for foodstuffs than the people are paying in any other country in the whole British Empire. Canada, the great producing country of North America, is re-establishing herself in the commerce of the world and is getting back to pre-war conditions and is coming down in the prices of her products. I will ask any sane man to-night to compare the prices of foodstuffs, with the exception of one or two articles, and he will see that we are paying from fifty to one hundred per cent. more for them here than what is paid for them in Canada, exclusive of freight charges, etc. The answer we get from business men in this country is that indeed they must first get clear of the foodstuffs that they bought at the high prices before we get the advantage of the reductions; but when the boot was on the other foot and they had stocks here that they bought at the cheap prices they held them until they sold them at greatly increased prices and made handsome profits. Consequently these people should be forced by some machinery of the government to give advantages to the consumers when prices are reduced. There is a necessity for some intelligent and efficient operative to regulate the prices of foodstuffs in this country, but if the government is not sincere in this matter and unless it does not intend to grapple with the problem in an intelligent and business-like way, it is just as well to throw the Bill to the wind. At present the Act respecting profiteering is not as effective as the Lotteries Bill, which we amended in this House the other day. We heard nothing at all about the activities of the Control Board, except as regards sugar and the history of that will be tabled in this House when the Committee appointed to investigate their transactions finalize their work. But there are other commodities that we have heard nothing about. I know that in Halifax to-day fresh beef is sold for 13 and 14 cents a pound while in St. John's we are paying 45 and 50 cents for it. Now there is something radically wrong about such a condition as this, because the difference between here and Halifax is only one or two cents a pound duty, and we are paying 300 per cent. more than we should be paying for this very necessary article of food. Therefore, I desire to impress upon the government that a Board should be appointed to make rules and regulations to go into effective operation to enable persons appointed on the Board to go to business houses and compare the prices of goods and compel the proprietors to sell at a reasonable profit so that those people who to-day are devoid of money and looking for work can make what they do earn go to the utmost extent. This is a very important matter and deserves the attention of all thinking men. Men should be appointed on that Board to go around like Police Inspectors. They should be on the job every day to protect the people until such time as we get back to a reasonable position and normal prices once more.

I, therefore, make those observations with the very best intentions, because I think that it is our first duty to protect the people and see that they get a square deal.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair. The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this Report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

A committee representing the unemployed appeared at the Bar of the House and presented a petition on the subject of unemployment:

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr Chairman: I am glad my friends brought this matter up, although out of order, so that I can read to the House the correspondence which has taken place this afternoon. After coming into the House this afternoon I was handed this letter by an official of the City Council: (Reads letter)

My reply to that letter is as follows: (Reads letter.)

In other words here is a road in St. John's that needs repairs and the Municipal Council are asking the electoral district of St. John's West to repair it, a road for which everybody who lives in St. John's, is paying taxes. This road was built by the Municipality twenty years ago at great expense and has been maintained ever since. With respect to the overture asking to provide $15,000 out of the road grant of the electoral district of St. John's West for the purpose of repairing their own roads, I think that this is a piece of impudence on the part of the Council; for it would be just as reasonable to repair Carter's Hill out of the district road money of St. John's West or to ask Mr. Higgins to repair the roads in his district out of the government road grant. The arrangements in relation to the loan of $150,000 are completed. Mr. Mul-laly, Deputy Mayor, and I came here a few evenings ago and while one newspaper said I was afraid to stand fire. I drafted for him the necessary resolution for the Council to pass. They passed it and the matter came before the Executive Council. The resolution was confirmed and the necessary warrant was issued arranging for the St. John's Municipal Council to have to their credit in the Bank $150,000 which loan I am introducing a Bill to cover. The Council have all the funds they need to go ahead with. There is no question as to whether they got the $150,000. They got it on the understanding that they would take up immediately the matter of placing the men at present out of work. What has happened is that the City Commissioners have fallen down on their jobs. If they have no work to go ahead with they do not need the $150,000. So far as this other offer was concerned, if the Council were prepared to appropriate out of their loan of $150,000 five or ten thousand dollars for repairs and re-construction which means the putting up of a fine concrete embankment, I was prepared as senior representative of St. John's West to arrange with the surveyors of the Department of Agriculture and Mines and to get the government engineer, if the City Engineer was too busy, to have this work immediately undertaken under efficient management, but that the work would be carried on entirely at the expense of the Municipal Council.

The actual position is that the St. John's Municipal Council is not going to get a five dollar bill out of gov ernment road money. I am speaking as the senior representative for the electoral district of St. John's West. If the Council will give us fifteen or twenty-five thousand dollars out of the money that we are providing for them we are prepared to put through the work on their behalf, but the money has got to come out of the $150,000. Apparently, what the Council wants is to get the $150,000 and throw over the work on the government and at government expense besides.

MR. VINNICOMBE—Mr. Chairman. As one of the City Commissioners, I think this is out of order. I heard the Prime Minister say that they fell down on their job. Well my opinion is that he fell down on his job, because last winter the Municipal Council saw depression ahead and they asked the government to give them a loan of eighty or one hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of laying pipes through the city of St. John's. When we asked the Bank for a loan they refused. That was in February. In March we asked you if some arrangements could be made whereby the Bank could be paid.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—The negotiations were with your Mayor, Mr. Gosling. Go ask him about it.

MR. VINNICOMBE—We got no reply.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Your Mayor got a reply.

MR. VINNICOMBE—You said the Council fell down on their job.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Yes and I repeat it.

MR. VINNICOMBE—When the people in St. John's West were hungry you did not see far enough ahead; but we did, and the work that you threw over on the Municipal Council to do you should be doing to-day. Have not the Municipal Council dealt fairly with you? Did you not come to us and ask us to give out employment by opening up a field on the back of the city? We did so. Instead of going ahead and building the Long Bridge you said that you wanted to spread out the money and the work. You knew the work on that Bridge was to be done, and if you had gone on with it then there would be no men idle to-day. The people of St. John's to-day are not getting the benefit of the labour, and there are men employed who are not able to give a day's returns in work, through starvation and through no fault of their own. Does the Prime Minister think that we were going to be dictated to by him as to how we should spend our money or does he mean to suggest that we should spend it in keeping up Mr. Charlie Ayre's wall around his home. We wanted to see value for the money. We are doing as much as we can out of the $50,000 that we got. We have to go thru property where we have to give 30 days notice. I was abused by those men at the Bar of the House at a special meeting of the Council this evening. They said they had a letter from you and that everything was arranged. The Secretary of the Council said we have not got the $150,000 yet. He said it may be in the Bank, but we have no notification of it. I said wire to the Bank, as those men are blaming us.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—If you are not prepared to go and spend the $150,000 we are not prepared to give it to you.

MR. VINNICOMBE—You do not imagine we are going to throw out the money for charity. We would be poor representatives if we did that. I was going to say that I asked the Deputy Mayor to telephone the Bank and he refused. The workmen's committee then went to find out for themselves and the message they got was that the Bank was still waiting for the Minute of Council from you.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Have you not got $30,000 left out of the $50,000 to go ahead with.

MR. VINNICOMBE—$150,000 was the amount you stated. I always proved a friend to the working man and I am not going to try and fool him now. With regard to what you wanted done with the $30,000, I will resign from the Council before I will squander money like that. You are not going to dictate to me to build a road where no one lives. The Municipal Council have not fallen down on their job, but you have.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Chairman: We have been told by the member for St. John's East, Mr. Vinicombe, that to expend money for the repairs of the South Side Road would be squandering money and that he for one would resign before doing so. I also understand from him that the loan the Council asked for last winter was eighty thousand and not $150,000. My honourable friend was present when the proposition was made, and that instead of $80,000 it should be made $150,000 to provide for extras and to enable the Council to give a large amount of labour at the present time. The mathematics of my Hon. friend are a bit slack. $150,000 plus $50,000 makes $200,000 and when you pay back $50,000 you still have $150,000 left. If you do not want that $150,000 and if $100,000 is all you want, nothing will give me greater pleasure than to reduce your loan, and I will deal with the other $50,000.

MR. VINICOMBE—What about the fifty in which we took you out of a hole to spread the work.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—The whole trouble is that the City Council have not alone fallen down on their jobs, but are incompetent and incapable as well. I am able to evolve a scheme in twenty-four hours to help out the unemployed better than the City Commissioners could get in two years. If the Council do not want the $150,000 I propose to get a better organized equipment to do the same work for $50,000, that the Council tried to do for $150,000. The unfortunate part of it is that I thought that my friend opposite and his associated were competent, otherwise I would not have had to face a bunch of men who took a fortnight to get 500 men to work. This whole discussion is entirely out of order. The fact is that the Municipal Council wants to get the government to spend the road money for the electoral district of St. John's West. I will be glad to confer with my colleagues in connection with this matter, but personally I am opposed to an appropriation of this kind, because the matter is one for the Council to assume entire responsibility for.

MR. BENNETT—I crave the indulgence of the House for a few moments while I draw the Prime Minister's attention to certain facts in relation to statements that he has made this afternoon. I happened to know something about that South Side Road, although being the junior member for St. John's West. I know more about the South Side Road and about the district of St. John's West than the Prime Minister and his crowd will ever know. The history of that road is that when the railway was brought into St. John's West the South Side road was diverted and brought on the back of the house occupied by Mr. Nicholas Cousens through a marsh. That was the original South Side Road West. The Government improperly built the road, because to secure it they only put a load of starigans on it. I was not in the Government or did not represent the district of St. John's West at that time, but those conditions have been an eyesore to me ever since I have been in the district. The road is unsuitable, especially for vehicular traffic, and is used entirely as a road of pleasure. But the position is this that the Municipal Council do not get a dollar of taxation from that section of the town. They never had sufficient money to meet an emergency in a matter of that kind. The Prime Minister is not sincere in the statement that he (the Prime Minister) was not going to be a party to the appropriation of any Government funds for the benefit of the City Council. I am in this fortunate position that I asked the Minister of Public Works the following question a couple of days ago: (Reads question). I am also in the happy position to produce the evidence showing what each man got. Here are the pay sheets I got from the Minister of Public Works in relation to that very small section of the South Side East extending from the Gorton Pew Co.'s premises to Fort Amherst. There is not a poor man in that section of the town. (Reads from returns what each man got.) The total amount is $350.00 that was spent a week ago and spent by the Department of Public Works and charged up to the electoral district of St. John's West. Where is the consistency on the part of the Prime Minister to get up and make a statement that he was not going to be a party to spending Government money on the South Side Road West and he was a party to spending it on the South Side Road East. And everyone of the men who was employed was a staunch supporter of the Prime Minister. When I represented that district in the Government I say, without fear of successful contradiction, that I never made any such distinction, nor did I ever influence the Road Inspector in regard to any man's political affiliations. It made no difference to me what a man's opinion was in politics. He was entitled to it and entitled to his share of the public moneys that were spent in his locality. Whenever any work was done down there before in my time in the Government men were employed whether they supported Bennett or not. But it seems that times have changed, things have altered and ways are different, and that any man who supported Bennett at the last election, between Gunner's Cove and Fort Amherst, cannot get work, even if starving. It appears that if you did not vote for Squires you cannot get any work from the Department of Public Works.

The only thing I think I can do in this emergency is to advocate what was so aptly put by Mrs. Julia Salter Earle. This is no time for red tape. Put the men to work no matter who spends the money, whether the Municipal Council or the Government. Appoint a Committee of this House, if you will, to arrange for the employment of these people and satisfy them. Do not let us have a repetition of the story told by Mrs. Earle this afternoon. You may talk about the sincerity of the Government and talk about the sincerity of the Municipal Council. I do not care and it is a matter of indifference to me whether the Council or the Government exists. If we are men at all let us do something to relieve the situation. I am tired of pleading for it. I tried to make the Government realise the seriousness of the situation; and then we find the spectacle about the sending up of $50,000. Nero fiddled while Rome burned; and Squires is fiddling while the people in St. John's West are starving.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Chairman, I want to add a word or two to this debate. As has been properly said by Mr. Bennett, the Government is fiddling while the people in St. John's West are starving. It is a pitiable sight to see the Prime Minister trying to explain with a multitude of figures what happened between the Municipal Council and the Government of the day. I now state here to this House of Assembly that not alone are the people of St. John's starving, but that the people all over the country are on the verge of starvation. We are now here over six weeks and almost every day listening to appeals coming in from various parts of the country for relief. Up to now the Government have not started. Now if we do not move in the name of our common interests and our common country, why not appeal to outsiders to come in and feed the hungry. There are 1,000 men outside the Bar of the House and 5,000 children home starving and the Prime Minister is here trying to explain a difference of $15,000 existing between the Government and the Council. Even if there is no work for the men to do give them the money anyhow. I promise you men to-night that if you are not satisfactorily relieved by Tuesday next come to this House and by the good God that made me I will see that you will be relieved. Take that message home with you to-night. I am not here for anything else but to see fair play and right. If you are the men that we think you are and which I know you are, and if you are in need, as represented here this evening, then do not go one day further than Tuesday next. I do not care whether the next house that I live in is Government House or the penitentiary. Take this as my message; if you are still starving by Tuesday next, without the Government moving, come here. It is up to the Government to get busy. Their stomachs are full; but the people who are waiting for relief have empty stomachs. The day of retribution has arrived and now the Government has either got to get down to work or get out.

MR. HIGGINS.—Mr. Chairman, might I suggest to the Prime Minister that the Government discuss this matter fully to-morrow morning, and I want to assure him, on behalf of my two colleagues, Mr. Vinnicombe and Mr. Fox, that any form of action that the Government adopts we will support, we care not what it is so long as it will enable those people outside to go to work and relieve their families.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I promised to meet the Committee at the Municipal Council to-morrow at 11 a.m.

MR. VINNICOMBE.—Why not include the representatives of St. John's East and West?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I will confer with the Deputy Mayor and the members for St. John's East and West to-morrow morning. I hope my hon. friend is aware that the Surveyors of the Crown Lands Office and the West End Road Inspector were inspecting that road at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Mr. Chairman, this thing has reached a more acute stage than I imagined a little while ago, and if the story told by Mrs. Earle is true matters are very serious indeed. May I suggest to the Leader of the Government to meet the Opposition to-morrow morning and try and devise some plan to save the situation. I have no party politics in this matter and I am sorry that the Prime Minister said that party politics were being used.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—May I ask Sir John Crosbie to consider the suggestion I made a few moments ago, namely, that the representatives of St. John's East and West meet the Deputy Mayor.

MR. FOX.—To-morrow is Saturday and the Banks will close at noon, your meeting will be at eleven o'clock, so that I do not think you will have time. Why not meet at eight o'clock to-night. Do not waste a single moment longer than is necessary. To-morrow may not suit, as described here this afternoon. Every moment is valuable and why waste any more time discussing the matter. I make the suggestion now that the Committee that the Prime Minister has in mind meet here at 8 o'clock to-night so that some scheme can be formulated by to-morrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Committee can meet after the House rises.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—There seems to be a diversity of opinion regarding this $150,000. I take it that although your Minute of Council is gone to the Bank the money is not there for the Council.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—This is not a question of money. Out of the $50,000 that I left them the Council have a credit balance of $30,000. They intended to send $15,000 of that to the Board of Works department, but no amount has reached there yet from the Council.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—What I am anxious to know about is this. Supposing that the Council do not want to spend that money, I don't think you can force them to do it. I presume we can allocate certain moneys for relief work.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We have $500,000, as arranged yesterday.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—If the Minute of Council will give you that at the Bank of Montreal, I think we should make up our minds within the next twenty-four hours so that the unemployed can go to work Monday morning.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I think that the suggestion of Mr. Fox to meet after the House rises is the most commendable one.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I do not want to see a repetition of this thing in this House so I would ask you men to retire to your homes. I am anxious to see you to work, but I want to see it done in a right and proper way. If satisfactory arrangements are made by to-morrow, you will be able to go to work on Monday morning. You have the word of Sir Michael Cashin, who told you that if everything is not satisfactory for you by Tuesday next that he will stand by you. Well I take the same position as he does, though I hope it will not be necessary to have you gentlemen before the Bar of the House again. I trust that a way out of the difficulty will be seen to-night, so I would ask you gentlemen, who comprise the deputation of workmen, to advise your brothers outside to go to their homes and not cause any trouble.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting a Loan for Requirements of the Colony and certain obligations of the St. John's Municipal Council.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on Thursday next the 19th inst., move the House into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 16th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Speaker: I desire to say a few words as to the present condition of affairs in this country. We are in a position to-day that we were never in before in the history of Newfoundland. There is nobody supplying on Water Street while the fishermen from the North did not get a chance to come here yet, and from reports to hand they are in as bad a predicament North as the people are in the South and West. Well if that is so, and it is so, there is but one thing left for us to do and that is to face it. But how are we going to do it? I would suggest that we meet the Board of Trade, which is comprised principally of the merchants of Water Street and the biggest planters around the Island, and see if they can see their way clear to bring about a solution of the difficulty. We got to get down to business. It is no use of winking at it. We have been winking at it long enough. We are now nearing the first of June and fishermen of the Westward should be fishing. Fish have struck in to the Westward and some boats have arrived home from the grounds with good catches. There are thousands of people in this Island to-night actually starving and what are we going to do about it. I have letters from people who have gone to bed without their supper and each of those people with seven and eight children. These people were good independent fishermen, in the past and always had full and plenty, but they are not now among the few who are in want, but they are among the hundreds and the thousands. Take Ferryland district where the fishermen were supplied last year by Goodridge and Sons, the French firm at Cape Broyle and by Bowring Brothers. The whole thing is closed down now to the people there and there has been nothing moving for the past six months. We all know what happened to the firm of Goodridge's, whose going out of business has been a big loss to the fishermen of the Southern Shore. Similar happenings have taken place in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. Take the Marys-town Trading Company. They are so embarrassed financially that they can not give any supplies either. On behalf of the Opposition, who are prepared to do all that is possible for them to do, I suggest that a move be made by the government to ask the Board of Trade to meet them and hear the views of the planters and merchants on the matter; and even while that is going on people are starving to death. The government have a steamer or two available at present. There is no reason why a steamer could not take a thousand barrels of flour along with other provisions and make a tour of the South and West Coasts, find out where destitution prevails and give relief as the steamer goes by. As far as potatoes is concerned the majority of the people have no seeds in the ground yet. People have lived on potatoes and fish and potatoes and herring in the past, but if the potato crop is neglected and there is a bad fishery this year and if prices are anything like what they are at present, where are we in the Fall of the year. It is just as well for us to look at this thing square in the face. Other districts are in the same position as Ferryland district and I think we should move and do something and move very quickly.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker. I am sure the government appreciates the suggestion of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition in connection with the distress that exists in various sections of the country. If the leader of the Opposition will now name two or three other Opposition members, representing Opposition constituencies, to act in conjunction with himself, I shall be glad to arrange a meeting of a Committee of Council to discuss the matter. The two or three Opposition members are to be nominated by Sir Michael Cashin himself to take the matter up with the Executive administration so that an opportunity will be afforded of thrashing it out fully with a view to formulating some satisfactory scheme for the relieving of this distress. In so far as reports have come to the government from various sections of the country they have been met—I think the leader of the Opposition will agree—liberally, and with reasonable despatch and efficiency. Respecting the district of Placentia, as soon as the matter was brought before the government by the members for the district, the response was one of liberality and promptitude, and Mr. Dee was instructed, as suggested by Sir Michael Cashin, not merely to take with him supplies for any particular place but he was instructed by telegraph by myself to call at the various places and report by telegraph from time to time as to the needs of any particular locality specifically, as, I am informed, the situation in the outports is growing more aggravating every day.

I am sure the government will be very happy indeed to confer on this matter with the Hon. leader of the Opposition and the other gentlemen opposite whom he may select.

SIR JOHN CROSSBIE—Mr. Speaker. I wish to concur in the suggestion of the leader of the Opposition, and I want to personally thank the Prime Minister for his attention to it. I feel that there will be some solution to this problem, if we pass the hand across and get down to business. To-day I received several messages from a district that I am not interested in. Mr. Abbott, member for Bonavista, has told me that his colleague, Mr. Winsor attended to this matter to-day and arranged to get the stuff sent out. That is quite satisfactory to me and I shall telegraph those people accordingly.

I might say that I am quite in accord with the appointment of a Select Committee of the House to deal with this distress that is existing all over the Island. Regarding the position of the mercantile community. I do not think the merchants seem to know what to do and apparently somebody else besides the merchants has got to start this going. If the Opposition met the Executive Council I think possibly something might be done. I had an opportunity since Friday last of visiting Port de Grave, my own constituency, and I might say that there is a great deal of unrest there, unrest that is due in a large measure as to what is going to happen within the next few days—where to find labour. Every man one would meet was asking “where are we going to get labour”? Bell Island and every other such avenue of employment is gone. I know the difficulties confronting the government. The task is not an easy one. Through the courtesy of the Minister of Public Works whom I asked about certain things I arranged over there certain matters. I do not think there will be any trouble around Brigus or Cupids in the matter of able-bodied relief, if we can get any work started to give the men employment. The same applies to North River and Clarke's Beach. I am, informed, although, I did not have an opportunity of visiting these sections. I understand that the Minister of Public Works is arranging to send out the monies there in connection with the repairs to roads. That is satisfactory to me. There is one thing in the district that seems to be troublesome and that is supplies for the Labrador. I can hardly say how we can get over it. The Labrador boat will be leaving about the first of June, and I think that, if we exercise a little discretion, and arrange for salt that we can get quite a crowd out of Conception Bay to go on that steamer. If the Hr. Grace representatives take the matter seriously I feel sure that something can be done in that connection. Around Brigus and from Conception Hr. to Hr. Grace, most of the fishermen go to the Labrador. I hope that a scheme will be devised that will work out alright. I might say in all honesty that the government tried to help out a great deal of distress in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's but I learn from the members. Mr. Walsh and Mr. Sullivan, that the position has become more acute there now. They have shown me a message which demands immediate attention. I do not propose to read the telegram because the gentlemen representing the district know more about the circumstances than I do. Take Goodridge's house, as pointed out by Sir Michael Cashin. We all know what happened. The Marystown Trading Company are almost similarly situated. There are quite a few men from Placentia district in St. John's at the present moment and I think we should try and relieve these men and get them away from here and go fishing. I would suggest to the Prime Minister that the quicker we get at it the better. I am anxious to see this thing being done. Something must be done and I would suggest that the quicker this Select Committee gets at it the better.

MR. WALSH—I would like to have the privilege of saying one or two words. I am glad to see this important matter discussed in a friendly and co-operative spirit by both sides of the House; also I want, as one of the representatives of the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, to say that I fully appreciate all that has been done by the Prime Minister; but the matter is so serious that something has got to be done in order to get the men fishing. I want to thank the Hon leader of the Opposition, the hon. leader of the government and Sir John Crosbie for the pleas they have put in, and I want to respectfully thank the Prime Minister for the co-operation of the government in those pleas. There are thousands of men involved in that district and I shall be glad to communicate this information as quickly as possible, thereby relieving the tension that exists and assuring the people that the serious crisis will not occur. The people are anxious to go to work. They do not want pauper relief doled out to them, if they can possibly avoid it. All they want is the means to earn an honest living as they always did. The loss of the firm of Goodridge's in St. Mary's Bay, as already referred to, is keenly felt. They supplied practically the whole of that Bay and there are now nothing less than 500 men who are unable to purchase their own supplies and cannot get anybody to supply them. The men are not able to get employment at Grand Falls, Limeville or Bell Island and consequently have to return to their homes where there is nothing for them to do. I do not want to occupy the attention of this House unless the discussion is going to terminate in something substantial being done. I have great pleasure in supporting the motion that a Select Committee consisting of members from both sides of the House be appointed to deal with this matter within the next few days so that the people can go fishing.

MR. SULLIVAN—Mr. Speaker. The gravity of the situation must be our apology for detaining this House discussing this matter. I feel quite sure that the members on both sides of the House have the fullest sympathy in having this matter aired and ventilated. In making statements here of the conditions that exist in our district for the last couple of weeks, we members did not think that conditions were so bad as they really are. I have received some very touching messages from people in our district, appealing for immediate assistance, proving conclusively that something has to be done and done at once. It is no use dilly dallying about the matter and promising to do it within the next two or three days. It is imperative that food must go to the people in St. Mary's Bay immediately. One of the gentlemen from whom I received a message is Rev. Fr. O'Driscoll, who absolutely refuses on all occasions to take poor relief, if it can be avoided. He never appealed before to us as members. He has always done his best to keep people from getting poor relief. But he has spoken at last, intimating that the people cannot hold out any longer. He says if the people are to be kept from starving, it is absolutely necessary for them to go fishing at once. There is one thing that can be done and that is to fill up a steamer or vessel with provisions so that the people can be supplied for the fishery. If we allow our codfishery to go down where are we? We thank the government heartily for the offer of $500,000 to be spent on public works, but that is not sufficient to meet all the urgent demands of this large and important district. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is needed for supplies for the fishery and how the government is going to go about this I do not know, but I think there must be some way out of it. I hope that something good will come out of the conference of the Select Committee. I would suggest that this Committee meet the merchants and meet the Bankers and see if some way cannot be found to supply the fishermen this year. I am quite convinced that many of the merchants are not able to supply; but if the government would give one million towards the financing of supplies, I think it would be very easy to get some of the merchants to give some too. Some merchants take the stand that if the government supplies that they will not supply. The men at St. Vincent's, the Gaskers and Cape St. Mary's have been looking for supplies for weeks and cannot get any. These men have got to get supplies in order to go fishing immediately. The government should step in and give these men a chance in that section because, I understand, fish is plentiful already there. The embarrassment to the men of our district is caused by the failure of Goodridges and practically the curtailment of every merchant in the district. It has been told already that Goodridge's firm is gone. That affects Ferryland district as well as ours. The Marystown Trading Company are short of funds and not in a position to supply. The same applied to Kemp at Placentia and Wakely at Hr. Buffett. Consequently what are the fishermen going to do for supplies. They naturally look to the government, I have been told that the Limeville quarries at Port au Port are closed down. There must be some reason for that surely. Also Bell Island has curtailed considerably and that Grand Falls is closed down. I think that the government should communicate with those Companies and see what the possibilities are for having those much needed centres of employment opened up again.

MR. SINNOTT—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting the stand of the preceding speakers. As the conditions existing in Placentia and St. Mary's are beyond all imagination and previous occasions I think something ought to be done promptly by the government. The same applies to the district of Ferryland. The government has no doubt done a lot to relieve the distress among the fishermen, but I think that this Select Committee referred to before ought to take the matter up with reference to the coming fishery and do something as promptly as possible.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—If the leader of the Opposition at his leisure will give a list of those gentlemen he intend to recommend I will immediately make arrangements on behalf of the government.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sullivan gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Election Act, 1913." was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting a loan for requirements of the Colony and certain obligations of the Municipal Council.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Samson took the Chair of Committee.

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker. Through the courtesy of the Opposition I will submit these Resolutions in their present form as it has been impossible to get them printed. They will be considered and discussed contemporaneously with Supply and when Ways and Means come down before the House. Four and one half millions will be raised on the credit of the Colony at the rate of six and one half per cent. payable in London, New York, Montreal and Newfoundland. The objects for which this loan is being raised are as follows: (1) To pick up the loan of one million and one half raised temporarily last January at the rate of five and one half per cent from the Bank of Montreal; (2) To provide for the five hundred thousand to which reference has already been made; (3) To provide for the five hundred thousand raised and given to the Municipal Council three hundred and twenty thousand of which has already been floated and an extra one hundred and fifty thousand is now to be raised of which latter amount eighty to one hundred thousand dollars are to be expended on pipes and labour and fifty to sixty thousand to be reserved for emergency work. This one hundred and fifty has been carried with the Bank of Canada, the Council paying six per cent. (4) the further sum of one million to replace the amount taken from the Surplus Trust Account which should have been capital account. These bonds are in the form of fifteen year bonds at rate of interest six and one half per cent. Arrangements have been completed for the floating of this loan through Dill, Reid and Company of New York, Lea, Higginson of Boston, and the Dominion Securities of Toronto. At the present rate of exchange the Colony would not get for these bonds here in St. John's ninety nine and one eight. The rate of the floatation is ninety nine and three quarters which includes eleven per cent. exchange. In view of the fact that money transmissions from New York to Newfoundland costs according to the fluctuation of the rate of exchange we desired to get this Bill through with reasonable despatch, and have as much progress made as possible so that the government may be in a position to take advantage of the rate of exchange. If it had been passed some time ago it would have been possible to have these bonds here in St. John's at ninety nine and one eight. The transaction is this:—If the Minister of Finance handed that bond over to the representative of the Company the representative for that bond would place to our credit at the Bank of Montreal here ninety nine dollars and twenty five cents. I am sure Sir John understands the position. You would get eighty nine for them in New York; as for Toronto you would get for them there the sum of ninety nine and three quarters less the difference of exchange between Canada and Newfoundland. In other words if eighty nine in New York that would net us here ninety nine and one quarter at to-day's rate of exchange. The arrangement is that so long as we get ninety nine and one quarter for them at to-day's rate of exchange, they may be sold anywhere. If the bonds were sold in London and we got ninety nine and one eight for them then they would have to be sold beyond par. To get ninety nine for them in St. John's we would have to get over one hundred in London because of the rate of exchange. The interest is payable in the same way as it was with reference to the six and one half on the loan raised in New York some time ago. The details with respect to the working out of the loan are in accordance with previous acts that is left to the Governor-in-Council. At the present rate it will cost us some thing like one for six million did. My reason in handing these copies of the Resolutions to the members opposite was that progress may be made when we come to discuss them contemporaneously with Ways and Means.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I take it that the one million and one half is already spent; the five hundred thousand to the Council is also spent with the exception of the one hundred and fifty thousand; the million taken from the Surplus Trust account is gone; the million on the railway is also spent and the only amount left is the five hundred thousand for relief work and that will soon be gone.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That one million covers the four hundred thousand taken from the Surplus Trust Account so it is merely capitalization.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Cannot some amicable settlement be arrived at with the printers?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I do not know the details but I understand that the printers desire an increase of ten or eleven per cent. and the various publishing plants find it impossible to compete under such a condition of affairs and would have to either close up or run with a loss ensuing. I think the type to the extent of about four-fifths had been set up to print the estimates but it had to be reset to suit other machines to be used because of the present conditions. I have just got one copy here. The pages are numbered.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he is aware that large numbers of people are returning from Grand Falls as a result of being unable to secure work there owing to the existence of a strike, and if so what steps the Government proposes to take to find employment for these people or to assist them in getting supplies to prosecute the fishery, and if he does not consider the time has come when the Government should formulate some broad and comprehensive policy with reference to the widespread industrial depression now existing in this country?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I received a telegram from the Magistrate at Grand Falls a short time ago stating that the strike was still on and that the strikers had held another meeting but the result of it was not yet known. The Government felt, up to the time this strike burst on them like a thunder clap, that the 1¼ millions cut out would meet the emergencies of the case.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs, if it is correct that the imports from abroad since the beginning of this year have been smaller in volume than any year the past decade; if this result is not attributable entirely to the disaster brought upon the business people by the policy of Fishery Regulations enforced last year, and what steps the Government proposes to take in the effort to stimulate trade between this Colony and the outside world in accordance with the promises made by him in his Manifesto before the last election?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—In respect to the first part of the question I have asked that the information be prepared. As to the second part I felt sure that the hon. member does not think I would get any such thing done.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—It is a fact that you made them though.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—The price of codoll and seal-oil has been kept up.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Mr. Coaker, of course, always kept up the price of fishery products.

Questions 3, 5, 7 and 9 were deferred.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Justice if Mr. Albert Salter is receiving from the Martin-Royal Stores Hardware Co., Ltd., or any other business concerns in this city, a commission on orders received by them from the Public Works Department; if so what is the amount of said commission, and if it is the intention of his Department to prosecute the said Albert Salter and the said firms for this offence against the law prohibiting the payment or receipt of commissions in respect of goods purchased or supplies for public purposes?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I am unaware that Mr. Salter is receiving any commission from any business concern on orders received by them from the Public Works Department. If any charge is made that a breach of the law is being or has been committed the Department of Justice will take the necessary steps.

MR. WALSH asked the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines what steps have been taken by the Government with a view to the sale of all the pit props cut as relief work during the past winter, and to lay on the Table of the House a statement of the progress made up to date in the matter of the disposal of this material?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Department of Agriculture and Mines is busy with the possibility that a lot of these pit props may be thrown over on the Government.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in view of his statement a few days ago to the committee of the unemployed of St. John's, that the plans for the construction of a new "Long Bridge" have not yet been prepared, how it is that no action in this important matter has been taken before this date, seeing that the "Advocate" of December 1st, announces that the Railroad Commission sat for four hours the previous day and decided upon the building of a new Long Bridge and also on dredging the water above the bridge, and why no steps to carry these important decisions into effect have been taken for a period of five months?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The committee of the unemployed must have misunderstood me that the plans had not been prepared. What I said was, that since the allocation of the fund, no steps had been taken as till the vote is returned there is nothing with which to carry out the operations. The sum of $50,000 will represent but a small part of the expenditure necessary. The situation is this. There is a very strong feeling in certain circles of those interested in the matter that a permanent bridge, with dredging inside it so as to make a harbour, is not possible. Others, however, are in favor of it being undertaken. It has not been before the administrative Government at all but is a matter for engineering experts to deal with and Mr. Hall, the Government engineer, is making a report on the question. As to the construction of the Long Bridge I fear that I am somewhat responsible for it not going ahead last year. We had only the $50,000 and in view of the high cost of materials, iron, etc., it was considered that adequate value for the outlay could not be got. I think that Mr. Bennett will agree with me that if this account had been spent last year the work could not have been done to practical advantage. It was held over and but for the present depression might have been held over till next year so as to get the proper value for it. By going on, the benefit would not be equal to what half the amount would bring if expended according to the programme followed in St. John's East and West on road work where the labor represents about 90 per cent. of the expenditure. In this proposition now brought up the material for the work would take up the bulk of the money.

MR. BENNETT.—I agree with the Prime Minister that it was not an opportune time last year to get the necessary materials but I understand that part of the programme at present is the paving of the bridge from Water St. to the Southside which would give a very large amount of work. First, the cutting of the blocks at the quarries on the Southside Hill and then the laying of them would give a whole lot of labour. I sympathise with the Prime Minister in the Long Bridge situation. It is hard to tell what form of bridge to get there. The upper part of the river has been filled in by the continuous dumping by the people of refuse there and now the other side is being filled up also. If we had a breastwork from the bridge to the Gas House it would leave a narrow channel which the water would flow at increased rate and serve to keep it clear. A narrow drawbridge would allow schooners which are kept here for the winter to lay up above the bridge and relieve the trouble in the harbour. At present ships going to the upper part of the harbor or the dock find it difficult to navigate their way and this would be a great relief in that direction. It is a difficult question to settle as to the waters above the bridge. As to a harbor in the upper portion, that is out of the question as the place has been filled in. There should be a concrete wall just above the bridge and the channel dredged which would make a deep water terminus to the railway. If steamers were able to get up there it would be a great asset to the country.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The cost would be something enormous.

MR. BENNETT.—Of course it can hardly be grappled with now. But I refer to it as it has been mentioned by people who are competent to give an opinion on the matter. I think if the Government would consider the paving proposition it would be a good time now to spend some of the money.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Profiteering Act, 1920."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. HIGGINS.—Mr. Chairman, I support this Bill because although the Act has been on the Statute Book for a year and not the slightest attempt made to enforce, it can now do no harm and it is to be hoped that some use will now be made of the powers in the Act. While the need for such a measure has to a great extent disappeared there are still many ways in which it can be employed to good effect. I have in mind a case in point wherein through more or less of a monopoly of the limited cold storage facilities of the City, two or three persons have got together and have the price of fresh beef practically in their own hands. With these men it is, of course a matter of business but because of this monopoly we in St. John's are paying more than a reasonable price for this article. Now that a Board is to be appointed under the Act let us hope that it will be something more than a name. The position in the past has been that we had elaborate machinery to check this sort of thing but no attempt has ever been made to use it. It is I think pretty generally realized that a lot of the profiteering talk that has been heard was groundless but nevertheless comments on certain aspects of the matter has been absolutely justified and there is no doubt that at present cold storage in the City, the limited, is monopolized and as a result of this the prices that we have been forced to pay for beef have been unreasonable. The importation of this article is in the hands of a limited circle and the local or small butchers have at certain seasons of the year to buy from them and through their enterprise they have become the dictators of the prices to be charged. Now this is one of the things to which the Board to be appointed should give immediate attention.

As to the question asked with regard to the payment of the Board, that will no doubt be a matter to be regulated according to the result of their efforts. I support the Bill, Mr. Chairman, and the reason for my remarks is to draw attention to the necessity for having such cases as that which I have cited in connection with the cold storage looked into.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Chairman,

when this matter came up on Friday I said that I thought the creation of a Board now for the purpose of dealing with profiteering was a case of locking the stable door after the horse was stolen. There will no longer be the same opportunities for profiteering as existed during the war when fluctuating prices afforded such chances to business people to charge exorbitant prices. Personally I know nothing of the company interested in the cold storage to which reference has been made this afternoon but I made the statement that fresh beef was selling in Halifax for twelve cents per pound while we have to pay forty and fifty cents for it. Now to-day I notice there is a sale of a large quantity of live cattle that have just come in and perhaps the competition that will result from this will tend to lower prices somewhat. If we are going to do something under this Profiteering Act let us do it with earnestness. It is just as essential as it is to have a health inspector to have an official whose duty it would be to go around from one business place to another, see their invoices and in this way see that the people were given a square deal. Such a policy as this would greatly strengthen the Government. Nobody expects a man to do business unless he can get a legitimate profit but at the same time extortion should not be permitted. The people were extorted during the war and in my opinion this was the cause of the unrest that has been and still is so evident on every hand. Prices were permitted to soar at such a rate that wages were found to be inadequate to enable the laboring classes to live. Now, Sir, if a man were appointed who would carry out his duties in this respect fearlessly and without favor he would be an asset to the country.

HON. THE SPEAKER.—Mr. Chairman, there is an aspect of this, if it can be called an aspect of the Bill which seriously affects outport fishermen and which seems to have been overlooked. Does not this Bill take out of the hands of outport magistrates the power of deciding what shall be a fair and just price to be charged on the accounts of fishermen? Heretofore, if a shareman for example thought that he was being charged too much on his account, he could go to a magistrate who was empowered to decide what was or was not a fair price and have the matter adjusted. Now does not this Bill take that power away from the magistrate?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—No, the Bill does not affect that. I might say Mr. Chairman with regard to the working out of the Profiteering Act this act was placed on the Statute Book for the purpose of regulating prices generally. It seems to have been the idea that it was the duty of the Minister of Justice to institute all proceedings under the Act but this was not the case. The Act itself is almost a fac simile of the English Act and any person who thought that he was being charged exorbitant prices for goods he purchased could immediately proceed against the seller. As Mr. Bennett has said, the appointment of a competent inspector would go a long way towards remedying the evils that exist in this way. Last year when this Act was passed there were people very anxious to have some means of dealing with those who charged unreasonable and exorbitant prices, and a number of them like Mr. Thos. Peel and Mr. Doyle and others banded themselves together in what was known as the Consumers' League. They came up here and induced the Government to put this Act on the Statute Book and I thought when that power was placed in their hands that something effective would be done but nothing has been heard of them since. As to the question of meat prices, I do not know anything about cold storage monopolies but from personal experience I can say that although I purchase a portion of my meat from a local butcher as those who come from Kelligrews and other places of that kind are known, I do not get it any cheaper than I could get it in the City. It may be of course that these people are taking advantage of the cold storage monopoly. However, as I said, under the Act any individual who thinks he is unjustly charged can go to the Board and lay his complaint.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I wish to refer hon. members to page 18, Department of Public Works, on roads. The total for local roads is $75,000; for Main Lines $65,906 and for Railway Connecting Roads $3,060. All these amounts are the same as last year but the Special Grant is reduced to $20,000. We got the Special Grant as we had it for years. It is for the whole Island and is divided among the districts on the per capita basis.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I move that this $20,000 be not held for convenience but be spent right out.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Grant is simply there as a provision in the case of bridges, etc. being swept away by rains and floods.

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS.—I think that it will be allocated in a month or so and is always distributed quickly.

MR. HIGGINS.—It is what is commonly called the Local Special grant.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—It is alright as long as Hon. Mr. Jennings understands it.

MR. WALSH.—I take it, sir, that it will be at the disposal of the sitting members.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I think it would be best to have it distributed irrespective of politics.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Yes, that's right. I may say that the total grant for roads is $165,968.00.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—When can you get the amount allocated.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Immediately the account opens to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber for special purposes."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Samson took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Chairman, this bill (An Act respecting the cutting of pulp wood) was distributed some time ago. It was explained in the second reading. We were in Committee and the Committee rose until the contracts could be distributed. The effect of this bill is to legalize the arrangements made some time ago regarding the matter of cutting pulp wood for certain purposes. The matter to which Mr. Bennett referred could not be contained within the scope of this bill, and another bill will be brought in with respect to that.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Chairman, before this bill goes through I would like the privilege of saying a word. It seems to me, Sir, as one who has a little knowledge of the timber areas of the country that some arrangements ought to be made whereby it would be possible to give licenses for the cutting of timber on granted land on which an exportation tax of say one dollar a cord could be charged. I am informed that if a time limit of from three to five years could be granted that a good business could be done in this direction. In White Bay and other places there are limits held by people who are unable to carry on an industry. Gradually these valuable areas are being destroyed by fire, and neither the country nor any individual is getting any benefit from them. People who can turn these areas into revenue for the country should be permitted to do so rather than have them go up in smoke. A time limit of from three to five years would have to be allowed because certain machinery would have to be imported and put in operation. The work that needs to be done to comply with the requirements for exportation cannot be done by hand.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Chairman, I recognize the strength of the arguments produced by hon. friend Mr. Sullivan. The point, however, is contrary to the policy of the Government during the last 15 years at least. The policy has been the preservation of timber areas. The observations have some considerable weight in that through forest fires we are allowing to go up in smoke what should be exported. I shall be glad to submit the proposal to the Minister of Agriculture and Mines.

MR. MACDONNELL.—Mr. Chairman, I quite agree with the Prime Minister that this is contrary to the policy of our Governments during recent years, but that is really no argument. As it is these areas are held for many years without bringing any benefit to the country or to any individuals. There should be some provision whereby areas would revert after a certain number of years.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Prime Minister if it is the intention to allow the members to allocate this amount of $500,000.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, strictly speaking the members have nothing to do with the allocating. The various members see the Minister and arrange for the allocations, but the Minister is responsible for the final decision.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—Mr. Speaker, one reason why I would like to have the co-operation of the members is because they are familiar with the needs of their districts. We get scores of requests from every district, and without the advice of the representatives the money might be sent where it is least needed. I am prepared to accept suggestions from any members whether on the other side of the House or on this side.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the day were deferred.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled "An Act Respecting the Board of Pension Commissioners," without amendment.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, May 17th., 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. GOSSE—I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of Spaniard's Bay for $600 for repairs to the road between Spaniard's Bay and Hr. Grace and known as Hr. Grace Ridge. Quite a number of families live on this road which is in a neglected condition and almost impassable.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions to confirm an agreement between the government and the D'Arcy Exploration Syndicate Limited.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber" was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked hon. the Prime Minister if he has taken up, either directly, or through the High Commissioner in London (whose knowledge of conditions here would be invaluable in setting out the actual conditions), any representations to the President and Directors of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. with reference to the existing strike at Grand Falls and the desirability of the Company conceding everything possible to its employees in order to maintain this industry in active operation during the present summer, in view of the great scarcity of employment elsewhere, and if so to lay on the Table of the House copy of all correspondence bearing on this subject.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—On May 14th., I sent the following cable to the High Commissioner in London: "Rurality, London.

"Understand that Grand Falls has "closed down. Reported due either "to strike or disagreement between "company and workmen over reduc- "tion in wages. Am not informed as "to actual facts. Would you kindly "get in touch with Lord Rothermere "and advise me as to what is real "position and whether it is possible "for anything to be done to adjust "situation so that operations may "be continued as formerly.

"SQUIRES."

To-day I received the accompanying reply from Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring:

"Rothermere out of England. Directors Anglo Company considering "matter. They will reply early as "possible."

Up to the present moment nothing further has been forthcoming.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a list of the foreign-going vessels which ordinarily take away cargoes of codfish, now lying in this port, how many of the vessels are unemployed and the reason they are so unemployed; also an estimate of the number of seamen out of work as a result of this unemployment, and what steps, if any, he proposes to take to afford relief to the men so unemployed?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I have no particulars in my office as to the matters referred to.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he is aware that it is commonly reported in this city that there is very little, if any, of the salt landed by the S.S. "Tuckahoe" at Port Union some months ago now in the stores there; that the explanation given for the salt not being the government; and if he will appoint one or two constables to proceed to Port Union and other points, report how much of the salt is held in stock there, and trace what has become of the remainder, in the same way as he sent constables into Ferryland district after the election in the Fall of 1919, to force people in that district to return public monies that had been granted to them; and if not does he hold to the principle that there is one law for the F. P. U. and another law for the rest of the people of the country?

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I am making enquiries and will table the information as soon as it is ready.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked the Prime Minister if he has made any representations to the Imperial Government with regard to the conditions in this country, to the difficulty of obtaining funds for carrying on the pub- loan for such purposes; and if he has requested any such loan; and if so, what answer he has received; and to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence in relation to this matter; also if it is his intention, during the coming Imperial Conference, to make such representations to the Imperial Authorities, and if so what is the amount of the Loan which he will ask from them?

HON. PRIME MINISTER—No representations whatever have been made to the Imperial Government as to the condition of the country or the obtaining of funds. The reason none were made is that I felt there was no necessity for so doing as we already had the 4 1-2 millions.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—When I put the question on the Order Paper I did not know you had that loan.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the number of railway sleepers cut in the different electoral districts of this country from the first of July last up to date, and the amounts paid in each district for the same; also if any more sleepers require to be cut, and if he proposes in the distribution of the orders for the same to consider the claims of all the districts in the country?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE—I will table the information in a day or two.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked the Min. of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railroad Commission, if Mr. George Morley, Superintendent of the coal boring operations at South Branch, has reported to the Commission or to the government that it is waste of money to continue operations at this deposit; if he has so reported does the government intend to pursue this work and waste further public money; if he has not so reported, what report has been made and to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the same.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES—As far as I know the gentleman has made no report such as pointed out here, but if he has made any I will get them.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—The reason I ask is because it is public property, and very important if the rumour is correct, as the work there will be ceasing then.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—As far as I am concerned I do not know of any reports.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Is there any report from him, good or bad.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES.—I think reports have come from him, but I have not seen any.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Is it your intention to make any enquiry into the matter.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I will enquire about it.

MR. SULLIVAN—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House a statement of the Customs Revenue for St. John's week by week, from March 31st to date, for the financial years 1918-19, 1919-20, 1920-21, and an estimate by the Auditor-General of the expected receipts in St. John's for the balance of this fiscal year together with the actual receipts for the same period in the past two fiscal years.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—I will have the information shortly; it will take a little time to prepare.

MR. BENNETT—Asked the Prime Minister, seeing that only six weeks now intervene to the end of the fiscal year when, according to the correspondence between the government and the Reid Newfoundland Co. last August, the scheme for government co-operation in the working of the Railroad by a Commission will terminate:

- (a) If the Government has notified the Reid Newfoundland Company of its intention to terminate this agreement at the end of June next and if so to lay on the Table of the House, a copy of the letter giving such notification, a copy of the Reid Newfoundland Company's reply, if any, and if no such notification has been given, the reason why it has not been given, the reason why it has not been;
- (b) If the Government, in view of the fact that Mr. H. D. Reid, President of the Reid Newfoundland Co. has been back in this Colony for a month, has undertaken any negotiations with him or the Company in regard to the operation of the Railroad after June 30th next, and if so to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence between the Government and the Reid Newfoundland Company in regard to this matter, and if the negotiations, if any, have been conducted orally, to Table a statement describing what has been done, and if no negotiations have been commenced, a statement of the reason why;

(c) If the Government is not negotiating with the Reid Newfoundland Company, to lay on the Table a statement setting out the Government's position with regard to the operation of the railway system after the 30th of June next;

(d) If it is the intention of the Government to introduce any legislation at this session with reference to the matter of the further operation of the railroad system after June 30th, and if so will he undertake that such legislation will be Tabled in sufficient time to enable the House and proper opportunity be given to enable the country, to thoroughly understand the nature and effects of such a measure instead of rushing it through in the last hours of the session as was done last year;

(e) Will he give this House and the country proper undertakings that any such legislation, if introduced and enacted, will be carried out in accordance with the letter and spirit of the same instead of, as last year, being disregarded and an entirely new policy adopted by the Executive Government after the closing of the House, with the result that this Colony has been saddled with an expenditure of a million and a half dollars which it need not have paid if the legislation enacted last session had been enforced in accord with the terms of that enactment; and

(f) Is it the intention of the Government, after the 30th of June next, to identify itself with the operating of some of the Reid Newfoundland Company's steamers or to be come responsible for any of the obligations incurred in their operation, and if so to state to the House the reasons for such a determination?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I hope to have the information by tomorrow. I did not see the question till I picked up the Order Paper here in the House.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Justice (a) If Inspector General Hutchings is out of the Colony at the present time, (b) if he is away on public business, (c) if so what is the nature of his business and (d) what allowance has been made to him for his expenses?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I beg to state in reply, that

(a) Inspector General Hutchings is out of the Colony at the present time, but will be back on May 28th.

(b) He is away on public and private business.

(c) To procure some machinery and appliances in connection with the Fire Department, and fire-fighting apparatus for the Tuberculosis Sanitorium.

(d) $200.00.

MR. HIGGINS, in the absence of Mr. MacDonnell, asked the Minister of Education for (1) An explanation as to why the vote for the C. H. E. for 1920-21 is shown in this year's estimates as $13,903.00 instead of $14,425, being the total of the vote last year, including amount in supplementary supply? (2) Why this amount has been reduced this year to $11,429.80?

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION, —I gave an explanation to Mr. MacDonnell before but will now give it to the House. In the 1920-21 estimates the $13,903.00 did not include the amount of $52 as it had not been granted in supplementary supply when the paper was made up, so that that sum must be added. To that add $4.80 and with no reduction the total vote would be $14,429.80. This year $3,000 is being dropped.

MR. HIGGINS.—I know that Mr. MacDonnell is at a meeting this afternoon dealing with this and other educational matters. As to the second part of the question, is this is a matter of policy.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION.—We felt it best to put the knife into the vote.

MR. HIGGINS.—I think the meeting is on that this afternoon. I agree with the attitude taken by the Hon. Minister in the matter of retrenchment and I also think that while he is working along these lines he would be doing a laudable act in lopping off a lot of the fancy inspectors.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Profiteering Act, 1920" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled, "An Act Respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber for special purposes" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above, and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, permit me to read to the House the following communication to me from the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

14 May, 1921.

Dear Mr. Squires,

In view of the allegations made by Sir John Crosbie in the House of Assembly to the effect that I secured for myself, or the companies with which I am connected, special advantages in connection with Fish and Salt, purchased by the Government, I request the appointment of a Commission, under the Public Enquiries Act, to enquire into the subject matter of the said allegations of Sir John Crosbie.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) W. F. COAKER.

Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C.,
Prime Minister.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled the following Report of Hon. W. F. Penney re his visit to Norway:

HON. W. F. COAKER,

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Sir,—In pursuance of your instructions contained in your letter of July 30th, I embarked upon the S.S. "Digby", to Liverpool, England, thence by rail to London, enroute to Norway, where I was to collect all information possible regarding the Norwegian Fisheries and report upon same on my arrival at St. Johns'.

I therefore beg to submit the following report of my investigations during my circuit of the coast of Norway, and my stay at the principal fishing and exporting centres.

It is perhaps unnecessary for me to say that at our London Office of the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, I received every courtesy and in the absence of the High Commissioner, Captain Gordon obtained all the information he possibly could for me, regarding a visit to Norway—had my passport vized and assisted me with letters of introduction on the British Legation and Consul at Kristiannia and Bergen, which proved very useful indeed.

From London, I proceeded by rail to Newcastle, where I took passage by a Norwegian Line Steamer to Bergen, and arriving at this port I at once proceeded to Kristiannia, the Capital of Norway, in order to confer with the Legation Authorities. The Commercial Agent and his Assistant were most courteous and considerate. They very kindly mapped out a route of my travels, gave me letters of introduction to the Consuls and Vice-Consuls at the different points, which I found most useful. The Officials in every case where I used such letters, being very kind and manifesting a desire to assist me in every way they possibly could, and much useful information was imparted to me by those obliging officials.

Having obtained letters of introduction, I took the boat at Kristianna and proceeded around the South and West Coasts to Bergen, calling at all the principal ports and seeing what fishing was then in operation at the various points, but this was the slack season and there was not much fishing, but yet enough to show one the methods employed in the catching and cure of the fish caught.

Before proceeding further, I would like to remark that in considering the fisheries of Norway, and comparing the same with those of Newfoundland, one should remember that, in the first place, the fisheries of this great country form just one of the industries of a nation of about two and three quarter million inhabitants, with a very old European civilization, and this industry contributes about 45 per cent. of its annual exports, while in the case of Newfoundland, the fisheries are the principal industry of the oldest British colony, possessing a population of a little more than a quarter of a million inhabitants, which until recently was very little known, and very much isolated, and to my mind, from the standpoint of prestige and connection Norway possesses overwhelming advantages over Newfoundland in this respect.

I may here state, that general conditions in connection with the prosecution of the fisheries and trading in fishery products were conducted upon the same lines in Norway (as in Newfoundland some twenty years ago.

The large exporting merchant outfitted the Norwegian fisherman, and sent him to the fishing centres, and received the proceeds of his catch and once a year there was a settlement of accounts when the fishermen say they were rarely able to square up, and the exporters say the fishermen only thought how much supplies they could obtain, without paying for them.

To-day conditions are about the same in both countries, except to my mind, the Norwegian fisherman has the advantage, that he generally disposes of his catch as it is taken from the water, while the trading is upon a cash basis from the start.

The large fishing centres for cod, are Lafoten Islands and along the coast of Finmarken farther North, but at the same time, quite a lot of codfish is caught along the West and South Coasts of Norway, and in fact it is here that the best klip or split fish is produced, while the production of stock fish in this section is not possible owing to climatic conditions and the season when the fish is caught.

The seasons here for Lafoten during the months of January, February and March when codfish of large size averaging 5½ lbs. come around and inside those Islands in great schools to spawn, while in Finmarken, the season usually opens in April and continues until the beginning of July; but in fact a good deal of cod of smaller size than Lafoten fish can be caught along the Finmarken Coast during the whole summer, and I cannot refrain from remarking here that I gained the impression, while visiting this section, that if Newfoundland fishermen were prosecuting this fishery with their methods and gear the returns would be astonishing. I make this statement in the best of faith, casting no reflection upon the hardy and industrious Norwegian fishermen.

The Lafoten Islands are situated within the Arctic circle, many miles north of Newfoundland and of Northern Labrador, roughly between the degrees of 68" and 69" North Latitude.

The sun is not seen by the fishermen during the early part of the fishery when there is about three hours of daylight only, and this is the very heart of winter, and yet, strange as it may appear to many Newfoundlanders, there is never a cake of ice to be seen, owing to the action of the Gulf Stream, but the season is Winter and there are snow storms and frost, although 10" below is extreme cold, and under such conditions, much of the catch of Norway's codfish is taken.

The Aurora Borealis affords sufficient light for the work, and the temperature contributes to keeping the bait fresh and fish from getting soft. One must not have the impression that the Norwegian fisherman pursues his calling in these northern latitudes under conditions of isolation such as prevails for instance upon our Northern Labrador, nor yet as those upon our North East Coast, commonly termed the French Shore, because there are very many splendid towns around the Lafoten Islands. Those towns are provided with the most-up-to-date conveniences and facilities, such as water services, sewerage, electric light, paved streets, daily newspapers, hospitals, splendid public schools, telegraph and telephone service and in fact with every equipment which goes to make a modern civilization.

They are provided with a splendid postal service which consists of ships of 350 tons for the Fjords, and ships of about 1,000 tons which are termed "Express Boats" and which run between Bergen and the northernmost town of Finmarken, calling at all the principal places between. This service is continued the year round, and all sorts of luxuries in confections and fruit can be obtained, at all seasons, as well as every necessary article of commerce.

Magnificent stores, warehouses, stone piers abound, and the roads are exceptionally good when one considers the amount of labour and the money expended in the majority of cases to blast through walls of solid granite.

Automobiles are to be seen in goodly numbers the past year or so.

The town of Svolvaer, a new town of about 2,500 inhabitants, which is now being built up as the distributing centre for Lafoten Islands, is a striking example of Norwegian push and enterprise, as well as of engineering skill.

This town is built on three islands, practically on bare soil, and has a water service from a natural reservoir away up on one of the high mountains, and the service and sewerage systems have to be laid through solid granite mostly. It possesses a splendid harbour, well protected as all Norwegian harbours are, but its approaches are anything but desirable. The first day I landed here 8 different coastal and express steamers called,

A post office is being erected to cost $250,000.00, and the warehouses are most modern, and chiefly built of stone and reinforced concrete. I mention this place because it was right here in the neighbouring waters that the biggest fishing was done last season, and during the season perhaps 20,000 fishermen were in this neighbourhood for the months of last January and February and March, and as a consequence, the trade done was very great.

In addition to the settled population of the Lafoten Islands, fishermen from all parts of Norway congregate here for the fishing season, and at many points upon the Western or inside of the Islands, there are many erections where the fishermen reside during the season, paying hire for them to the owners. These houses are for the most part, covered with sods; but the sleeping and eating quarters are quite comfortable, and while from the outside, the houses make one think of Labrador some years since, still when one enters, he finds very comfortable and clean living quarters.

During seasons when the war was on, it was estimated that as many as 30,000 fishermen and attendants congregated at the Lafotens to participate in this fishery.

It would be a difficulty for me to attempt a description of the boats used in connection with this fishing, because of the many different types and builds—from the small cross-handed canoe type, to the 5, 10 & 20 ton decked motor craft, and the calculation is that 10,000 motor powered boats are operating. There are exceptionally few boats propelled with oars and sails nowadays, and everything from the canoe to the large freighter in Norwegian waters, is equipped with motor engines of one type or another, and one is led to ask this question: Where are the supplies of oil obtained and how are they kept up? I find most of the oil and petrol comes from America in tank ships, which supplies are taken in large quantities at the different towns and centres. There is every variety of engine used in the small boats, but with scarcely an exception all the decked boats, lighters and freighters are equipped with the hot-headed kerosene semi-deisel engine and every one seems to be loud in praise of this type.

The smaller decked boats carry one or two of the small boats for hand-line, fishing or trawling; but it is not unusual for the trawls to be hauled on board this larger boat.

Every engined and decked boat is fitted with a sort of capstan winch, operated by the motor, and the engine is so controlled by one man that the propellor can be very slowly turned over or not at all, while the man looks after the steering and the winch, and no strain is laid upon the trawl in hauling.

The larger motor craft and small steamers, of which there is a goodly number engaged in trawling, carry from 4 to 12 dories, which are locally built, after the style of American dories, but are claimed to be better conditioned. At any rate I should judge it to be a very serviceable boat. Before the advent of the motor, fishermen in those waters suffered untold hardships, and many harrowing tales are told of experiences in open boats, when they were driven off towards the mainland and then back again, until in many cases the occupants succumbed from cold and exposure. One noticeable feature of the build of the Norwegian boat is that they are all "Pink" sterned, while the same applies to the schooners and larger freighters, and our type of open square sterned trap-boat is nowhere to be seen, this is easily explained by the difference in the methods of fishing and of the gear used to take the fish.

Not all the fishermen build their boats by any means, and I priced some of the smaller types in a yard where they were on sale, to find that the small canoe cross-handed boat costs 280 kroners or say $58.00, and the price then climbs as the boat becomes larger, so that a decent sized boat for any use to a Newfoundland fisherman would cost more in Norway than in Newfoundland.

Motor decked craft built of soft wood are very expensive as well, and taking things all round, general fishing supplies in gear, boats and motors, about the same conditions as to price exist in Norway as in Newfoundland.

As to the gear used in the catching of cod, there is not a great variety, and no new or very improved methods are employed. The hand line fishermen use the same hook and lines as do our men, except perhaps the lead has an iron rod through it with an eye at either end to which the line and the leads are fastened. The jigger is the same practically and the trawl, while the Norwegian fisherman uses generally a wooden tray for his trawl, instead of a tub, he also uses a stick to hook on his hooks and hangs up his trawl in this way when not in use. The gill net seems to be the most popular method of taking cod when the school is on, and this net is very similar to the one in use by our fishermen, except perhaps that in Norway glass gloves covered with stout netting are used as floats, while the nets themselves are deep or shallow, long or short as the operator wishes. I noticed some gill nets were made of linen twine, others were of cotton and some of hank. During the fishing season at Lafoten, the cod appears to be very near the surface and the nets are operated almost afloat. The water is very deep around those Islands, and although there is a patch of ground where 60 to 80 fathoms is found for the most part the depth runs from one to two hundred fathoms and much deeper, and generally this is around the Norwegian Coast, and even in the Fjords. There are no codtraps or codseines used in Norway to take codfish, and, owing to the great depth of water, I can very well imagine that the use of such gear would be impracticable; but the Norwegian fisherman himself is prejudiced against the use of any methods whereby larger quantities of fish would be taken, and he reasons that if larger quantities were caught, then the price would decline and the business unremunerative.

The whole of the Norwegian Coast is not only exceptionally well lighted and buoyed, offering the best aids to navigation possible, which allows the coastal boats to run at full speed by night as well as by day, but every place is connected by telegraph, telephone or wireless stations. Consequently the fishermen are advised by properly constituted officials of the fish, and armies of these congregate at different points, which means great congestion. To facilitate those crowds in the operation of their gear, a fishery officer or extraordinary policeman is with them, and he directs the setting of the different gear, in allotted sections, while nobody starts out in the morning before six o'clock, when this same official by the hoisting of a flag, or the firing of a gun, notifies the fleet to begin the hauling of their gear, and in this way or otherwise very disorderly conditions are arrested if not entirely eliminated.

In order that the fishing may be prosecuted around the Lafotens, it is essential that a supply of bait must be found for those operating, and the fishermen themselves depend upon others for their supply. The bait used is chiefly herring, Loda (like our caplin) squid, mussels, and what our fishermen locally call "Cocks and Hens," and clams. The supplying of bait has been a most profitable business for those engaged in it. Small smart steamers and motor craft are employed to bring supplies from Finmarken and the Fjords. Squid is found to be a good bait, but only the "pip" of squid is used generally, and there is great difficulty in finding any supply of this article. Mussels are also prized as bait, and I was told that as much as $25.00 has been paid the fishermen for half a barrel of shelled mussels. Herring is the chief source of supply, and there is generally sufficient of this to be obtained. Loda is another small fish which frequents the coast of Finmarken, as our caplin come to our shores and generally contributes a large part of the supply. This Loda they say is, our caplin, the same species and the same fish, while I am convinced that it is a different fish altogether. I could not find anything but a decayed specimen in Finmarken during my visit there, except those preserved in liquid in the museums. The male fish is very similar to our caplin but the female fish to my mind is not.

From the descriptions I had given me, of this fish, its rank odour and its utter tastelessness, I decline to believe it is the same as our caplin.

From what I saw of the coming industry in Norway and the methods employed, to preserve, to me, unappetising fish, I feel convinced that the Loda of Norway is not the caplin of Newfoundland, but it is very similar to what our fishermen term white fish.

Bait is not put up on ice, for the simple reason that during winter it is not necessary to do so, and it is at this season the fishing is on.

The Finmarken fishery opens as a rule just as the Lafoten season becomes slack, and a great many of the fishermen who participated in the operations of this most southern fishery, move North to Finmarken to reap another harvest in this section.

The Finmarken fishery takes on more of the feature of our operations upon Northern Labrador. The fish being smaller than the Lafoten fish, and the coast line of such great extent, the congestion is not so great. But the facilities for gaining information are the same, and the dissemination looked after officially, so that the fishermen are not handicapped in searching out favourable localities as are the Labrador fishermen. In this way, a great deal of the uncertainty in connection with Newfoundland fishing is eliminated from that of Norway.

In this section it seems to me that people of all nationalities are scattered along the coast line and Fjords and the town of Hammerfest for instance presents a most interesting study to the stranger. The habits of the majority of the people appear very different to those even of the Lafotens, and here even a more diversified class of boat is seen, some of them most peculiarly built, which I confess my inability to intelligently describe.

It is in this district the Lapps are found, and I thought the habits of those people were not unlike the habits of our Labrador Esquimaux. Their camps along the coasts and Fjords reminded one very much of similar scenes met with upon Labrador, except that Reindeer would take the place of dogs, and yet the dogs were in evidence, but not in great numbers. The dress of these people comprised of skins and furs, intermixed with coloured fabrics, very diversified, presented a most unusual and peculiar sight.

A most unusual condition prevailed in Finmarken before the War, and the Norwegian Government was most considerate in its dealings with this Nordland people, taking into consideration their very northern situation and that their living depended upon the fisheries the success of which was not always a certainty. This country borders upon Russia at its North Eastern part, and a great deal of its trade was with Russia before the War. The Government did not enforce the revenue laws, but allowed a system of free trade so that the bulk of the produce of the fisheries found its way into Northern Russia. Russian trading craft had a free hand and traversed the coast of Finmarken with cargoes of lumber, flour and general merchandise, exchanging them for cargoes of fishing products, furs, etc.

During the War, those conditions were revoked and have not since been revived, so that the Finmarkens appear to be hard hit in this respect and they entertain a feeling of ill-treatment in this way, and there is considerable unrest in this quarter fostered by Bolsheviks, who manage to visit here and propagate their pernicious doctrines. I really think the fishermen of this district enjoy the special consideration of the Government.

Fishing along this great stretch of coast is prosecuted under very different conditions, in April, May and June and even July, to those at the Lafotens, because the season is not so rigid and the days grow longer quickly, until in July the sun is shining at midnight as at noonday. Bait is plentiful. Loda for the early part of the season run to the shores in immense shoals, as do caplin and herring in Newfoundland and is very plentiful.

It is in this section that the bulk of the klipfish or split codfish is cured, and hence this is the product that comes into competition with that of Newfoundland. The process of splitting and salting is very similar in Norway to that in Newfoundland, but it is the exception rather than the rule for the Norwegian fisherman to cure his own fish. There are quite a number of men owning their own vessels and outfits, who catch and salt their voyages, and then take the cargoes to places where the fish is dried as is done in Newfoundland, but as a rule, it is in the production of the cured article that the business differs. The fisherman of Norway, brings his day's catch to the producer who is generally the exporter or his agent, and makes his bargain, either so much per kilo, or so much per 100 fish, with or without the livers, as the case may be, and having made the sale, he delivers his catch and is through with it. Sometimes the fishermen agrees to take out the livers and guts, particularly when a big school is on, and the dressing crew of the purchaser is rushed, but the head and sound bone is always left to the buyer, who dries them to dispose of to the fertilizing plant, where they are converted into fish meal, fertilizer and glue. When I told those people that in Newfoundland and Labrador our fishermen allowed those to drop into the sea as waste products, they were shocked, and could not at all understand such waste of valuable products.

The throating and heading is generally done as our fishermen perform the operation on the banks, in a tub, and the fish is then placed upon a table for the splitter, but the salter, in curing for klip-fish, is considered the principal man.

The gills are very often taken from the fish as they are caught, and this is the bleeding process we have heard of.

The splitter open his fish to the very tip of the tail always, and as a rule, he cuts through two or more joints of the sound bone in the operation of removing it, which, to my mind, does not add anything to its appearance.

The fish is not always washed from the knife, but when this is done it is properly drained before salting and I find the usual quantity of salt used is 6 barrels to 40 barrels of fish.

In curing for stock fish, which is the usual cure for the bulk of the Lafoten fish, all the fish are not opened from the throat, but the knife is entered just below the fins and then down in the usual way. Seeing a good deal of fish cured in this way, I asked the reason, and was told that some of the markots preferred the fish cured in this manner.

The curing of stock-fish is very simple and crude indeed, the fish being simply throated and headed, removing the guts, then thoroughly washed in Fresh water, tied two together at the tails and thrown across a very smoothly planed quite heavy longer, which rests upon stout beams. Those fish are not removed until thoroughly cured. It is considered useless to hang fish for stock cure later than early April and the process occupies three or four months according to weather conditions.

One of the largest producers of stock-fish at the Lafotens explained this process to me, and took me through his stores, which were then packed to their capacity, and I could not refrain from remarking that there was no smell of stale or slimy fish, and he laughed when told, and said: "Nay, nay, beautiful and fresh." He then brought two samples and tapped them with a stick when I noticed the sound from one was as if a hollow stick were tapped, and he explained that was the test; the hollow sounding one was spoiled in the cure and was hung too late in the season.

This gives me the impression that on account of climatic conditions, and the season when our fish is caught, Newfoundland cannot produce stock-fish, but I would strongly advise that an attempt be made while fishing is being done early in the year at our Western ports.

Could we produce good stock-fish in Newfoundland, a good deal of our troubles with split fish would be overcome, and our markets for that article, would be relieved to the extent of stock-fish production, and from what I have learned, I have the opinion that the market for stock fish is very large, indeed particularly in Italy and South America.

In Norway, particularly at the Lafotens, stock-fish is considered spoiled, if left upon the sticks later than 10th to 12th June, and when cured the cuticle is a veritable club, being so hard and dry and tough.

Of the 30 odd millions of fish caught at the Lafotens this season, only five millions were cured as klip-fish. One thing is very remarkable in connection with the size of the fish and that is its uniformity for one sees no small fish and there is no observable difference as to the length or weight. This fish also struck me as being thin fish and not well fleshed, and this is accounted for in this way; that the fish come around these Islands to spawn, and are not therefore in the best condition, while at the same time, there are no schools of bait fishes with them.

It will be observed that in the production of split fish in Norway, the producer has a very decided advantage over the Newfoundland producer, because of the waste products in heads and sound bones being converted into a marketable article, which yielded the producer this season a fraction over 5c. per pound, while the value of those products when converted into articles of commerce, such as cattle feed, meal, guano, glue, etc., contributes quite a sum to the annual value of Norway's exports.

To view the immense piles of dried cods heads and sound bones at the Converting Plants, simply astonishes one.

There are large quantities of fish similar to cod which are taken and cured both for export and local consumption, such as Sei (which I termed black cod) quite large in size and which is cured as stock-fish. Then there are haddocks in goodly numbers and of all sizes which are mostly consumed locally, but a large quantity is exported, while large quantities are smoked as well.

Oure (called red cod) is another very well flavoured eating fish, which is split open and pickled in barrels. This is a red fish with large protruding eyes, and quite short and thick and is much prized by Norwegians. While another fish similar to Cusk or Hake is caught in quite good numbers, and is cured as stock-fish, being split through the back to within three inches of the tail, and with the sound bone removed before it is hung for cure.

From an exporter in one of the towns of Finmarken I find that new split fish is rarely if ever ready for export earlier than the middle of June, under most favourable circumstances and generally the end of July is looked upon as the opening of the exportation season. Some of the earlier caught fish at Lafoten may be ready by June 1st but a very small quantity and any shipments made earlier is usually stock held over from the previous season.

Another product of the Lafoten fishery is the Cod Roe, which is canned in considerable quantities and salted as well.

I find that in all the handling of fish of every kind in Norway, extreme care is taken to handle it as an article of food should be handled, and in the preparation of dried cod fish, particularly in the washing, every particle of blood is removed, while the blood is washed and brushed off every nape, and the backs of the fish appear to receive even more care than the faces.

The beaches and rocks where the fish are spread, receive every attention with brooms as well, while the fish are always piled upon movable plank stands, and care is taken to always lay the fish perfectly flat in bulk and pile.

Many steamers and motor vessels with dressing crews are sent by the klip fish exporters and curers to the different places where the fish is caught, those vessels have the dressing crews and salt for curing the cargoes. When the cargoes are obtained, they are taken to the Fjords where the Islands are bare of turf to be cured, or to some southern port, such as Alaasuna or Christiansuna, where the owners have beaches and drying houses, and the fish is treated in the very same manner as in Newfoundland.

I have not seen a flake in Norway, and only at Alasuna did I see anything approaching a hand flake, covered with wire netting, and here too for the first time I saw what I concluded was being made for soft cure fish, to imitate our Labrador.

This fish has evidently been soaked in pickle, very white and of large size, but was very rough and to my mind was a very poor imitation of the real Labrador article.

I noticed as well that they have quite a bit of sunburnt fish here, while I am told that "mites" or dun is quite a common trouble, and the only remedy they use for the latter is to brush the stuff off.

I may now state authoritatively that no chemicals whatever are used in the cure of stock or clip fish in Norway. The Pure Food Law forbids its use, while the curers have evidently never used any in any way, and the same conditions apply to the production of Medicinal Oil.

In the production of Medicinal and Cod Liver Oil, every producer of cured codfish generally participates, and has his plant in connection with his warehouses, but there are some quite large factories in this business, such as we do not see in Newfoundland, and it appeared to me that the bulk of the livers were treated for Medicinal Oil.

The boilers used and the means employed to produce this oil are very similar to those employed in Newfoundland, except perhaps more labour saving devices are employed in Norway. Presses are for instance, constructed in a different way, and the bags are filled by machinery and not by hand.

Several firms possessing factories, all claim to turn out the best products, and also to possess a secret for the non-freezing process.

While at Sralveer, I noticed a very large building of stone and concrete upon the point near the pier, and upon enquiry I was told that this was a Medicinal Oil Factory.

There was no gaining admission to this place, and I was told it was the only one of its kind in Norway. The method or treatment is a German production, and a German Chemist was in charge and although the factory had entered upon its second year of production, none of its products had so far, been placed upon the market. The claim of this factory is that it produces an article perfectly "Neutral" to the taste without the least flavour, while at the same time, it possesses all the properties which makes its use so beneficial. While on this subject I may here state that some of the parties interested told me that some large French buyers of the Norwegian product prefer the first rendevingo or skimmings of Cod Liver Oil to the auto-freezing article.

We seem to have gained the impression in Newfoundland that the cod fisheries of Norway are the most productive of the national wealth, but from what I have seen in making the circuit of its long coast line, I am of opinion that the cod fishery forms only one of its many valuable fisheries. One can perhaps explain this mis-conception in this way—that the products of the cod fishery are those which compete with ours in the same markets.

The herring and mackerel fisheries are of such volume as to astonish one, particularly the former, and if I were asked which was the most valuable fishery of Norway, I would be led to answer the herring fishery, for such vast quantities are taken and such a large sum is invested in steamers, motor vessels and gear as to impress one that way.

At every point along the South and West Coasts, particularly, fleets of small steamers, from 80 to 200 tons were moored in rows, while there were very many motor crafts as well tied up in the same manner, and when one asked for what purpose they were used, the answer came: They were all employed in the Herring Fishery, but now that there was no market for herring, the whole outfit was tied up. Then the coast is dotted from one end to another with immense factories of most solid construction (generally stone and concrete) and those were pointed out as Herring Factories.

The Fisheries Department says an average take of Herring is one and one half million barrels per annum, and that perhaps the larger part of this quantity was converted into guano, feed meal and oil, which means a very large contribution to the values of this great country's productions.

I was much interested in watching this fishery because of the experience I had with herrings in the Straits of Belle Isle quite a few years ago, when we enclosed thousands of barrels at a time with seines. I remember as well the actions of our Fishery Board in forbidding the use of the seine, and the close seasons and other regulations enacted and enforced to protect our Herring Fishery, and still the herring practically forsook their old haunts along Labrador, and the Straits of Belle Isle, and other centres along our coast line.

I described the conditions as well as I could to the scientists of the Fishery Department and asked them for a reason as to this desertion of the herring, but they could offer no opinion upon my statements of bare facts. I expressed my consternation at the practices in vogue in Norway, and I asked if similar conditions to ours were not anticipated, those men smiled at the suggestion, saying those conditions were continuing from year to year, and yet there were no diminution of the schools. Thousands of barrels of immature herring were being taken and brought to those factories, where they were first boiled and the oil extracted, then pressed for the residue of oil, and then ground into meal and guano. Herrings of all quantities and sizes are accepted at all seasons, and at all points along the long coast line and factories are still in course of erection. I was informed those herrings produce from 10 to 15 per cent. of their bulk in oil, and the fatter the herring the most acceptable are they.

At first I was filled with a feeling of consternation, and was regularly shocked to find that this valuable food fish was caught in this way for reduction at those factories and I expressed myself along those lines, but I was told that I had the wrong idea altogether, that this idea was antiquated and not in keeping with the times. The argument was: Why should fish, capable of producing so many necessary articles to our civilization and so much wealth, be allowed to come to our doors and no effort be made to utilize them, and I confess that I am now a convert to that idea.

I believe I see here quite a source of wealth to the fishermen of Newfoundland, as well as good investment for capital.

The fertilizer is quite valuable in itself, while the feed meal, known in Norway as Herring Flour, has been proven a splendid article of food for cattle and hogs, while the oil itself it quite an odour about those fact-herring at the factories were about $1.60 per barrel and while there was was quite an odour about those factories and in the neighbourhood, still very little of the materials and products were handled by workmen. Herring Oil was about $235.00 per tun.

The purse-seine is a favourite means to take Herring in Norway, and those seines are huge. Motor schooners and steamers are equipped with those seines, often two for a ship, with very large seine boats fitted with rollers, over which the seine is run out, and with winches for hauling up the bottom and arm lines. There is often as well a smaller motor boat which carries a smaller seine or spiller, and often these seines overtake a school of fish where they can moor to the land and so "har" large quantities. The whole outfit is ponderous and quite expensive.

Steamers and motors are again supplied with long fleets of drift nets and those operate in the offing while the stationary fisherman has his nets where our people have and moor them small herring are taken with seines. in favourable places.

In this connection I may say, that I made enquiries as to the cure of Norwegian canned and pickled herring, and I was told that only herring taken with a seine and "barred" could produce the good No. 1 article.

The herring should be confined in the seine for at least three days before being hauled out for cure. The reasons given for this were: that the "stomach of the herring must be emptied" in order that the fish will keep and be of good flavour, and while enclosed for this length of time in the seine, the fish feed upon themselves empty their stomachs—then the "gills and heart" alone are easily extracted, and as much of the blood as possible goes into the brine to keep the flavor of the fish, soaking into it. I secured a sample of the pincers used in Norway for the operation of removing the gills and heart.

A great deal of mackerel could have been taken this season, but the price was low and the fishermen did not catch any quantities to cure. The fish were very good for size but were not fat.

In teh salting of the herring, I find the usual calculation is one barrel of salt to four barrels of herring.

During the war, an agreement was entered into between the British and Norwegian governments, so that the produce of the Norwegian fisheries as well as all other products of the country would be controlled by the state and not allowed to go to the Central Powers.

By this agreement the Norwegian government bought all the fishery products, principally stock and split fish, herring and oil, under British inspection and with British gold, and at very high prices. I believe the standard was set according to offers from Germany.

When the war ended enormous stocks of fish, particularly klip fish and herring had accumulated through out Norway, and the warehouses were practically filled, while immense bulks of barrelled were in evidence everywhere

Once peace terms were arranged, the idea prevailed that an enormous demand would be made for this fish at once, and an open market created in Germany, Austria, Finland and Russia, and the British government stopped buying, reselling its stocks in Norway to the government, at a loss of millions.

Then another fishing season was about to open, and the government of Norway, in order to sustain prices, and to alleviate the clamour of those interested, was compelled to purchase the catch of 1919, and that season's production was not delivered until July 1920.

I saw and handled this split fish as it was being delivered to the warehouses by the curers, and it was poor stuff to say the least of it.

In September there was about 10,000 tons of this article still with the government, and every effort was being made to dispose of it, special agents being sent out to Spain, Portugal, Italy, and I believe South America. Quite a quantity I learn, was disposed of or arrangements were made for its acceptance on consignment. To my mind, fully 40 per cent. of this article, if not more, will eventually find its way to fertilizing plants and a great many of the exporters endorse that opinion.

There are at the same time, fully one and a half million (1,500,000) barrels of herring in the hands of the state, as well, and although arrangements were being made with Germany for the export of quantities of this stock, yet a large amount of this stock must as well be converted into fertilizer.

There appeared to be demoralization in the export fish trade of Norway during August, but during September things appeared to brighten considerably.

From one dealer I had the cost of klip-fish to the government, which I figured would be about $9.50 per qtl. delivered to warehouses, and the freight to Portugal he said, would be nearly $1.60 per quintal, and to Italy nearly $3.00 per quintal. In preparing or shipping dry codfish for market, there is no compulsory government inspection and the exporter selects the different parcels for the different markets from his stocks through his own culler or inspector, but if he wishes to verify his inspection, he can call a government official to do so.

The No. 1 quality of klip-fish, or what he considers first quality, he calculates for the Havanna market, the next for Spain, Portugal, Italy and Brazil, while the next he considers he can market in Argentine, Chilli and Brazil.

I was told that a London firm had offered 60 pounds stg. per ton for a lot of 100 tons, delivered in London for export to Chilli, but that this firm in Norway wanted 80 pds. stg. which I thought was an excellent price indeed, but the deal was not made upon those terms.

Heretofore the shipments to Argentina and Chili were made in the lined cases, but now such packages are found to be too costly, and only the wood cases are used, while the quantity per case is regulated by the purchaser's demand. The same applies to Brazil, and I did not see our packages in evidence anywhere. In fact, all packed fish appeared to be cased, and I was told that in some cases a special paper lining is used.

Stock-fish is usually baled; the fish being packed heads to tails, and pressed tight, then bound with three or four wire binders, similar to those we find around baled hay. The quantities are 50 kilos or are about one qtl. to the bundle, but weights are regulated according to the requirements of the different markets. The napes are covered at both ends with brin sowed to the first wire, and the branding is done upon the brin before it is put in place. This process applies to all the stock-fish markets. Some of the Italian dealers have of late demanded that the tails be cut off and the tips of the napes, and this is done after bailing the fish with a broad axe, all the cuttings being saved for the fertilizing plants.

It is my firm conviction that the Norwegian producer and exporter produces a very much cheaper article in stock or split fish than is produced in Newfoundland.

He also handles the product more expeditiously and cheaply as well. In the first place the warehouses both for receiving the round fish from the fishermen and also for receiving the finished dry product and again for shipping out for export, are built upon stone or concrete foundations close to the water front, where vessels or steamers may discharge or load cargoes at the warehouse doors.

Along the South and West Coasts

there is very little rise and fall in the tides so that the ground floors of the warehouses are very little above the water. I noticed there was always some dunnage underneath the bulks of cured fish, while the fish was laid perfectly flat in the bulk.

I noticed that dried codfish while being discharged from schooners was scarcely handled in yaffles at all as in Newfoundland but boxes with rope stops at either end were fitted in the holds of the schooners and then hoisted to the warehouse where it was thrown upon the culling table, and in the majority of cases, women were doing the culling. Then the fish was placed upon a barrow for weighing, then placed upon a scale by two boys or women. The system of weighing being different to ours, usually 40 to 50 kilos, 88 and 110 1-4 pounds, the barrowing is not such heavy work, and women do a great deal of this work from start to finish, but of course, quite a number of men are employed as well.

There is very little drying or second handling of dried fish except by lighter and the passing by hand eliminated by the hoist. I imagine those hoists are operated by electricity, as power can be obtained now almost everywhere throughout the country and is very cheap.

The one great advantage the exporters of Norway possess over those of Newfoundland is the means of transportation, and her proximity to European markets. A list of steamship lines operating in Norway was given me by Mr. Brodewick, the obliging and courteous manager of the C.P.R. at Kristiania, which is appended to this report. This list will show that when at any time practically any exporter of Norway wishes to send forward a parcel of fish, either to a European market, to the West Indies or Brazil, Argentina, Chile or Peru, he can do so, and he can also calculate the time of arrival at its destination.

He also has this advantage, that the parcel may be large or small, and in this way he is able to cater to the needs of the smaller dealer. Many of those exporters were complaining bitterly of the outward freight rates, but those rates were becoming easier. The exporter is only four days journey from Portugal or Spain.

Many of the large exporting firms of Norway have as well, branch business in many of the large shipping ports of those countries, to which they send fish and the consignments are therefore looked after by those branches, while trade is drummed up as well. Some of the firms have branches in Rio de Janeiro or Pernambuco, Buenos Aires, and one of the Lafoten firms had a representative in Genoa, while one of the partners of an Oporto firm was doing business in Christiania. A large dealer in Svalren told me his son was then travelling in South America.

Norway as a nation consumes a good deal of the produce of those countries to which she sends her fishing products. She imports quite a lot of coffee from Brazil, hides from Argentina, and a good deal of olive oil and tomato which she uses in her canneries from Italy. A lot of Port Wine was also imported from Portugal and Spain, before she enacted her Prohibition Law, and while I was in Norway, both of those countries gave notice of a 25 per cent. duty on her dried fish in retaliation of her exclusion of their wines. A commission was at once dispatched to meet representatives of those countries for a conference, the result of which I have yet to learn.

Since writing the above, I find the Norwegian Commissioners have returned to Norway, and they were unsuccessful in obtaining any commercial treaty.

In making any attempt to describe the Fisheries Department of Norway, it might be said that this department had the distinction of being the second of its kind in the world, first place being accorded the Fisheries Department of Scotland and Edinburgh. The Department is constructed upon non-political lines, the Minister of Marine & Fisheries being in Kristianna while the Fisheries Department is at Bergen, presided over by a Director who controls the Department and advises the government of its working and needs.

I was fairly over-whelmed with manuscript and reports covering the fisheries of Norway, which reports are tendered with this report, but as such documents are all printed in language of the country, they would need to be translated in order to be intelligently understood. A copy of the Fisheries Budget is appended herewith, which was given in English, and will give an idea of the construction of this Department and of the amount of its disbursements for the year 1920 and 1921.

I may here remark that this is the only document which was obtainable for current year. None of the other reports on statistics have not yet been printed.

The Director talked over many matters in connection with the fisheries of both our countries, and he appeared very well informed as to our doings. He was very interested in our Fishery Inspection Laws and Export Regulations, copy of which he had in his possession, which he was having printed and distributed, and he was calling a meeting of the Fisheries Council to discuss them, with a view to suggesting Regulations for Norway, along the same lines, as he appeared to favour such himself.

Beside the general business department, with a large staff of clerks and stenographers, (about 12 to 15 I should say) there is a Department of Scientific Research, and a Technological Laboratory as well as a Department of Development, each being staffed with scientists in their special branches, and with assistance and stenographers.

A large building is now in course of erection to be the home of this Department, plans of which were given me, and which I tender herewith.

I was much interested in the method employed to find the age of the fish and it was demonstrated to me by Mr. Swed. The scales were taken from line fish, and sent to the Department, accompanying them being a description of the fish—its length in millimeters, weight, sex, and conditions whether active or normal. Those scales with particulars are carefully placed in small luvos upon which particulars are noted also when taken and where.

The scale is covered with a solution of glycerine and put upon a glass slide. This slide placed under a microscope operated with electricity shows a perfect picture upon a white screen, revealing certain very distinct lines or circles, each of which means one year's life, and in counting those lines or circles, the number gives the age of the fish.

I saw both cod and herring scales, placed underneath this machine, and it was quite simple to find the age of the fish they were taken from.

The work of taking those scales for the Department devolves upon the Inspectors, of which there are five (5), for the country. These Inspectors are not employed for the purpose their names would imply to us, for they do not pass upon the qualities of fish caught, but their duties are to assist fishermen by disseminating information regarding the movements of fish and to explain to them the Laws enacted for their guidance and protection.

I asked the opinion of the Scientists with regard to the increase and assistance of propagation of codfish by artificial means, such as hatcheries, and he replied that the Department was not decided as to whether the fish eries could be augmented by artificial hatching. In substantiation of this statement, he said that the Department was only operating one small hatchery which was still considered in an experimental stage, the construction and operation of which was explained to me.

This hatchery takes the form of a salt water pond, where by a pumping arrangement, the water is kept fresh and in motion so as to keep the ova or ova afloat or near the surface, in which position it is always found in the open sea to develop naturally. Once this fry is developed and given its freedom, it has to run the chance of fry naturally developed under circumstances which render it healthier and stronger. There has been no appreciable increase of cod in the neighbourhood to justify the development of this hatchery, or establishment of others.

This hatchery is situated on the South Coast, and after seeing photographs of the place and hearing the officials report regarding it, I did not visit the place. A report is attached. The Department of Research has the steamer "Michael Soos" under its charge, which vessel is equipped with fishing gear and apparatus for all kinds of scientific investigation. This ship is getting old and expensive to maintain, and is being replaced with a motor ship, plans of which were kindly given me, and are with this report.

While listening to these men talk of the ocean currents, depths, and temperatures, etc., I asked them if they could forecast where the school of fish would strike, knowing as they would where conditions were right and ideal. The answer was "No we cannot, but we can tell if the coming season would be a good or a poor one." The gentleman said, they had intelligently calculated the volume of the schools from year to year, from the ages of the cod frequenting the localities, and other statistics in their possession, and volunteered the statement that the next season's fishing would be better than this, or that the school would be larger.

In connection with this Department two Mercantile Agencies are established. One in Hamburg, and the other in Hull. Those agencies keep the Department informed as to the fishing operations being carried on in the countries where they are situated, the conditions of the markets in those countries, as well as all other matters pertaining to the marketing of the fishery products of Norway and every other matter of interest which would be helpful to producers and exporters alike.

I may say that I met the representative at Hull, Mr. Johnston, who impressed me as a gentleman, well informed in the business methods of his country, as well as their possession,

These gentlemen, along with special commercial agents, who collect information in the different centres of Norway, form an organization, whose advice and suggestions are most valuable and afford the Norwegian exporter an admirable means of information.

It must not be forgotten that the local markets of Norway for all kinds of fish and qualities of cure are considerable, for the Norwegians are a fish eating people.

Fish of all kinds and cures are offered, and disposed of in those markets, line-fish, dead fish, smoked, salted and dried, and it surprises one to see the quantities of small cod and haddock, crabs and prawns which are so carefully handled and sold daily.

The canning industry of Norway is as well an extensive business, and while Stavenger is considered headquarters for this industry, yet canneries are in operation all along the coast line.

The canning of Norwegian sardines, which are nothing more than immature herring, is quite an industry of itself, and while the producer is now forbidden by law to label his product, sardines, yet the business suffers no decline.

Larger Herring, Brisling, Crabs, Lobster, Fish Balls, Fish Soup, Cod Roes, Salmon etc., are all canned, and the industry is quite extensive, while it enhances the value of the fish and contributes quite an item to the statistics of the country's exports.

The fish exporters of Norway meet regularly at central points, and discuss matters very thoroughly in connection with their business and shipments, and they keep the commercial agents very busy answering inquiries and giving them advice with regard to markets and conditions in fish producing countries.

From all that I could gather, I find that there is no acute competition among exporters that would lead to the congestion of over supply of our markets, and indiscriminate shipping to one port does not occur; but shipments are regulated by the inquiries received, and there seems to be a feeling of mutual confidence among the exporters themselves which regulates shipments.

The meeting at Froudiheu early in August, was I believe, very interesting, because of a discussion on the "Regulations of Newfoundland" and the manifestation of a desire to set the consignments of shipments upon a cash against document basis.

The exporters of dry salted codfish in Norway have, and are yet having trouble, with dun and red fish, and I made special inquiries as to the methods used to eradicate them. I find that chemists and scientists have been making investigations, and a gentleman from London was brought over to investigate and with regard to "dun" the conclusion reached was that the infection was had from the rocks and places where the fish was dried, and a thorough disinfectant was advised, but the trouble has not been eradicated.

As to pink or red fish, it was thought that perhaps the infection might have come from the salt, and the holds of salt carriers as well as the salt stores, were disinfected, but this trouble has not been eliminated either.

The Seal Fishery too is quite an important industry in Norway and a large sum is invested in ships and gear for its prosecution. When one, however, is conversant with the outlay in Newfoundland, and the type of ship and gear employed, he is rather surprised when he is shown the class of steamer and motor vessel employed by the Norwegian.

When first I detected this ship in going along the West Coast, and then only by the "Crows Nest" at the mast head, and was told it was a sealing ship, I was not a little surprised at the size.

The steamers may be about 150 to 200 tons, perhaps smaller, while the motor vessels are as a rule, smaller.—numbers of them I should judge being 70 to 80 tons.

There must be a fleet all round of fully one hundred or more, motor vessels, principally, engaged in this fishery, all of which are sheathed and I suppose, specially strengthened in a way, but the method of catching seals is very different to ours and the ships are not "powered" to force the floes. The seals are usually shot upon the ice, by men put out in boats, and the pelts are taken on board in boats, while the ship lays by the floe. Not more than 15 to 25 men form a crew, and the pelts are skinned on board, the skin being salted, while the fat is cut up and put in barrels or tanks.

The proceeds of last season was over one hundred thousand skins, with a corresponding amount of blubber. One vessel brought home over 600 barrels of fat, and 3000 skins, after a four weeks trip, which was a record.

The owner outfits the vessel, and makes advances as needed to the crew, and of late years, the owner gets 67 per cent. of the value of the voyage, and the crew the 33 per cent. while gunners are paid two to three hundred kilo extra. The captains get 6 per cent and 1 and half share. A good many walrus and norwhales are picked up by those vessels, and it was said that last season's voyage, altho successful was unprofitable. I was told that one firm in Tromso, the headquarters for the fishery, had in store the skins of two seasons' catch.

From all that I could learn, the seals taken by those ships are of a different species altogether from ours; they are generally of the hood species. The blubber is subjected to a heating process in order to extract the oil, but it is not treated to any refining process.

They have what they term a Fisheries Council in Norway, which is met by the Director of Fisheries once a year. This Council consists of 20 members or representatives. Those 20 men are selected by representatives of Heralds or small Councils, and those smaller Councils are composed of men elected by small districts, with which the 20 electoral districts are subdivided, besides the towns of Bergen or Tromsdiem, which both have a representative upon the Council.

Those small Councils elect men to a fish Council or District Council (I term it) and again, this Fish Council select a Fisheries Council.

The subordinate Councils meet regularly and discuss all matters connected with the fisheries, which specially concern and apply to their localities, and they impart their views to the District Councils, through the representatives they send to those Councils, when again those Councils further discuss the matters and make investigations and report to the Fish Council, who finally pass their reports to the general Fisheries Council.

This Fisheries Council is summoned to meet once a year in Bergen by the Directors of the Fisheries who accept their views and every matter in connection with the fishing business is here thoroughly weighed and meditated upon, and the decisions of the Fisheries Council are then passed to the Storting or Parliamentary Committee, on National Industries, which sends them to Parliament. Those recommendations scarcely ever fail to become the law of the nation.

It must be remembered here, that every matter, before being submitted to the Norwegian Parliament, must be considered by the proper Committee whose function it is to bring the matter before Parliament for its discussion and decision. The fishermen through those Councils command the ear of Parliament, and as all the District Constituencies except two or three are specially interested in the fisheries. Parliament is particularly generous in dealing with all matters pertaining to this great natural industry and fosters it in every conceivable way.

There is no State Insurance, nor any Old Age Pension Scheme, but there is a Fishermen's Insurance under the direction of the Fisheries Department.

Fishermen participating in this scheme, pay a yearly tax on fee of 2 1-2 kroner and in case of death, his dependents get 2,000 kroner.

The Employees' Liability Law takes in the Fisheries as well as the Trades, and claims for disablement at the Fisheries are adjusted under it. The poor are taken care of in excellent houses provided in different towns and districts.

There is also a system of—Loans, for assisting fishermen to procure motor boats. The fisherman wishing to take advantage of this scheme, makes application to the Fisheries Department, stating his position, the cost of the craft, the amount he is able to put down towards the purchase or building of such, then the government appraiser certifies the value of the proposed craft.

The applicant pays his amount, gives the Department a mortgage for the balance, agrees to keep the craft insured and to pay 2 1-2 per cent. interest on the loan the second year. The fisherman gets the amount he needs, and is allowed 10 to 12 years in which to repay the amount. A scheme to include fishing gear with the schooner is now mooted.

I was informed this scheme was working well, and there were no delinquents, but the amounts were annually being returned and as regularly going out again in the same channel.

There were no Licenses extracted from the fishermen using gear of any kind, and no special taxes imposed upon them.

Hospital ships and nurses are supplied by the Fisheries Department for Lafoten and Finmarken, when the seas on is on, and a tax amounting to about 10 cents per cwt. of fish is collected from the producers or exporters to defray the cost of this service.

In the matter of education, Norway to my mind excels. The system of Public Schools provided all over the country is admirable, and the per cent age of illiteracy must be exceedingly small, for if you can write a phrase in the Norwegian language, any child man or woman you meet can read it. The school buildings are models of their kind, and are mostly constructed of brick, stone or concrete with recreation grounds and beautiful patches of flowers surrounding them.

All masters or skippers of craft are supposed to have certificates for their different services and areas—coasting, foreign going pilots, engineers, etc.

In order to facilitate the obtaining of these certificates, navigation schools are provided in every seaport where certificates can be obtained and where the tuition is free. It is only when a sailor sits for an examination to obtain a Master Mariner's Certificate for foreign trading, that he is asked to pay a nominal fee of 10 kr., while special courses for mariners, and other Engineers and Mechanics are provided in Technical Schools at Trondjem and Bergen, Curriculum of which is tendered herewith. This school at Trondjem may be said to be part of the University and is splendidly equipped.

There is no special instruction with regard to the Fisheries in any of the schools, except in the Public Schools under the subject of Natural History, a little extra time is given to Biology, but nothing to warrant the name of special Fishery Instruction.

The Public Schools open at 8 a.m. and for seniors or advanced classes are open until 6 p.m., but tots are through at 1 p.m., and juniors at 2, while there is an interval of 10 minutes every hour and an hour for mid day meal. Attendance is of course compulsory and no child over seven years but must attend school.

There is a Society in Norway of a National Historical character whose chief business is the founding of museums and every little town of any importance has its museum.

This Society collects funds for this purpose and when the fund reaches a certain percentage of the amount required to establish a museum, the State contributes the balance. In those museums specimens of relics of all things are exhibited to best advantage, specimens of invention and production and particularly specimens of all kinds of fish with their different finished products, also of animals, birds, etc., and everywhere the maps of Norway with the products of different districts noted upon them are in evidence, and every stranger who visits those museums is impressed at once with the variety of this country's produce.

The Museums of Kristiannia and Bergen of course take on the role of National Museums and the variety of specimens, ancient as many of them are, is very striking and the collections are most valuable. Those gathered by the Great Norse Explorer, Ronald Amundsen, are of themselves priceless treasures.

The Fisheries Museum at Bergen is most interesting to a fisherman, for here are practically specimens of every fish, found in the waters of Norway.

Specimens, too, of all Fishery Products are here in great profusion, while the different methods of capture fish, devices used in other parts of the world to capture fish, form a most interesting collection. I was particularly struck with the fishing appliances and apparatus of the Japanese to capture all kinds of fish, and as well the many traps made of twine used by these ingenious people. These people are sending their fish oil to Norway to-day, and they have sent shipments of stock-fish to Italy, which however were not acceptable, but it would be no surprise to find their salt codfish competing with ours in the near future in the different markets.

In the course of a conversation with Mr. Johnston, the Commercial Agent of Norway and Hull, England, I learnt of a firm in London which was doing an extensive business upon the Pacific Coast of South America, and from a remark made by this gentleman, I got the impression that this firm handled large quantities of salt fish.

Upon my return to London, I decided to make an attempt to locate this firm, and with the assistance of Captain Gordon of our London Office, we succeeded in arranging for an interview. I met the principal of Messrs. A. G. Scott and Co., East Cheap Street.

I found that this firm was one of very long standing having extensive branch business in South America, particularly upon the Pacific Coast in Bolivian and Chill.

This firm handles large quantities of salt cod fish and herrings and although they have been in business for many years, they have never handled any Newfoundland products. During pre-war days, Norway and Leith furnished this firm its supplies but in recent years Japan has secured the business and still retain it.

The following is an extract from a letter written to me by this firm while in London:—

"As promised in our pleasant interview with you this morning, the most suitable packing of Cod Fish for Chili and Bolivia is in tins of 5 or 5 1-2 kilos gross weight, in cases containing 8 tins. The boneless quality is most in demand but 'with bones' is also shipped to both these markets. Supplies in pre-war days went from Norway and Leith, but in recent years Japan has secured the business and still retains it. Her C.I.F. price to-day is roughly 6 pounds stg. for Boneless Cod in cases 8x5 kilo tins. Should the business interest you at those figures, small parcel sent on consignment should speak for itself.

"Herring in Brine"—There is a certain trade for small quarter barrels of salted herrings each containing about 110 fish. If, however, a large number of rather smaller fish of a reliable quality can be packed, it would be an advantage as they are sold at so much per fish. For your guidance, the dimensions of the barrels are 18 in. x 13 in. To give you a more definite idea of what exactly is required, we enclose a notice from a large Scotch supplier which gives full details regarding treatment of the Herrings on arrival at destination."

In concluding this report, I would say that the Director of Norwegian Fisheries complained that although the catch of Cod Fish in Norway was accurately furnished the British Consul for our information and guidance, still he could never obtain such information regarding the Newfoundland catch. He also informed me that he was recommending his government to appoint a Commercial Agent for Newfoundland.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 18th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

And it being after a quarter past three of the clock and there being no members present, Mr. Speaker adjourned the House until to-morrow afternoon, at three of the clock.

THURSDAY, May 19th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Lewis gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sinnott gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Scammell took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I do not propose to deliver the annual Budget Speech to-day but will do so to-morrow. I am moving the House into Committee of the Whole as the restrictions on sugar cease tomorrow and the Government having decided to impose an import tax of 2½ cents per lb. on this commodity, the matter can be dealt with and the increase come in opportunely. At present there is a deficit of about $184,000 to the debit account of the Food Control Board but that will be reduced when all the accounts are finalized. I understand the investigating committee is about to get a final statement from the Chairman of the Board and I am not yet ready to furnish that statement.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Education when the Annual Report of his Department will be laid on the Table of the House and if it cannot be laid in the form of a typescript as was the report of the Fisheries Department last week, instead of waiting for it to be printed, as its completion in this form will probably be delayed owing to the Printers' Strike.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he is aware that the Royal Stores, Limited has a monopoly of the grocery and provision trade of the town of Grand Falls where the employees of the paper mills are now on strike; if, as a result of this monopoly the cost of all the necessaries of life to the employees of the mills is greatly in excess of what it is in other parts of the Colony; if the Government will make representations to the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company with the object of having this monopoly terminated, and if not will the Government introduce at this session legislation to terminate this monopoly, and if not why not?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture & Mines, if, in spite of the fact that all Crown Lands in the Colony were reserved for mineral grants since last December, Mr. E. Collishaw was granted rights over certain areas on the West Coast supposed to contain petroleum or was given an understanding by the Department that his applications would receive first considerations on the re-opening of Crown Lands for mineral leases, and if this is the case to say why an exception was made in the case of Mr. E. Collishaw and what is the extent of the areas in respect of which this action has been taken?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance & Customs, to lay on the Table of the House the originals of all correspondence in relation to the raising of a loan for four and one-half million dollars, resolutions respecting which were tabled yesterday.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railroad Commission, if a lot of ballasting and other work is being done along the railway line, and if so is it being paid for out of the funds of the Colony or of the Reid Newfoundland Company or both, and if in the latter case what proportion of the cost is being paid by the Reid Newfoundland Company and what portion from the public funds and what is the extent of the programme of work in this and similar directions for which the Commission is responsible, and how much will the same cost the Colony?

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railroad Commission, if Albert Salter has been acting in any capacity for the Commission in the way of making purchases or otherwise, and if so for how long he has been acting in such capacity, and what payment has been made him for his services up to date?

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Wednesday afternoon, the 25th inst. at three of the clock.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER tabled the following correspondence:

Copy of wire sent by Fraser-Dominion Securities Corporation, Toronto, to R. W. Steele, Manager Dominion Securities, Montreal, to St. John's, on May 18th, 1921.

"A highly injurious article telegraphed by McGrath appeared this morning's New York Tribune—two columns with large headlines telling collapse fishing industry in Newfoundland and of serious unemployment situation and of difficulty of the Government in raising money by way of loan; coming at present time seems to us inspired for some unaccountable reason. Have Premier telegraph us to-day for insertion Morning New York papers a reassuring statement."

The Dominion Securities Corporation, Ltd., Toronto, Lee Higginson & Co., Boston, Dillon Read & Co., New York.

New York.

Hon. R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, St. John's, Newfoundland:

"New York Tribune to-days' date publishes in most glaring characters special cable from Sir Patrick McGrath, emphasizing unemployment, hunger, misery desolation, collapse fishing industry, contemplated looting provision-stores, general disorganization, entire financial fabric in Newfoundland. McGrath also inserts Government's difficulties increased by problem obtaining loans under present conditions. Object message evidently synchronize crucial period closing arrangements here prevent bonds being taken up. Dastardly attempt injure Domin-ion's credit in America, embarrass Government. Please hear loan success this market."

J. M. DEVINE.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 25th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Petitions were presented by Hon. Mr. Foote from S. Harris and Company Re guarantee.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker, I would like to have that petition for a moment. I may Sir, that it's one of the saddest moments of my lifetime to stand on the floors of this House and hear a petition read such as this one in connection with the firm of S. Harris Ltd. It's the saddest moment of my experience in more ways than one and in coming into the House with that petition I felt in duty bound to hand it to the senior member of the district which it affects and a member of the Executive who have assisted in bringing about the conditions which have made it necessary for the petitioners to approach the Legislature in the manner they do. Fearing the House may not have obtained from Mr. Foote's reading of the petition a true sense of its importance, I shall read it again. Mr. Foote's voice was very low and as he said he had not seen the petition before. This petition Mr. Speaker, is one of the best evidences we could have of what the real conditions in this country are to-day and it bears out everything that I said in this House just one year ago when I opposed the Regulations. I regret that Mr. Foote did not see just twelve calendar months ago that this very thing which we are now seeing occur was bound to result, for, if he had he would not now be seeing one of his best friends and one of the strongest supporters of his party brought to the pass where he has to appeal to this House to assist him in the keeping afloat of his business. He would not have seen him thrown down in the manner in which he has by the very men whom he helped to attain office. I should like to read the petition once more to the House. The matter is too serious to pass by without letting the country understand it. I feel that the Hon. member, Mr. Foote, feels, if he has any heart in him at all, for his old friend. One of the greatest supplying merchants the country has ever known is Samuel Harris of Grand Bank. I have known him from my boyhood. Ever since I was eight or nine years of age I have seen him and his business grow, and to think that all the work he has done has been undone by incapable men and to think that he has to come and appeal to this House to save himself from liquidation, is, I think, one of the worst crimes ever committed in the history of the country. So that the House and the country at large can appreciate properly how serious this position is, I will read the petition again: (Reads Petition). Mr. Speaker, what a mess has been brought about during eighteen months by the incapables in charge of the government of the colony. Poor old Newfoundland. What she has suffered by having such an incapable and incompetent gang in charge. Little did I dream in my darkest thoughts and in my darkest hours of blue ruin of what was going to happen. When I fought those Regulations on the floors of the House last session little did I dream that the great house of Samuel Harris Ltd. would, after twelve calendar months, have to come in and appeal to the government to save him and save his firms from liquidation. What if the Carters, the Thorburns, the Whiteways the Bonds and the Morrises could today look upon the present Prime Minister and the crowd associated with him in the Executive and see the turmoil brought about by the inability of the present administration? They would hang their heads in shame. How I feel for my old friend Mr. Harris whose business is to-day brought before the public of Newfoundland and whose business was in a position that no other house ever found itself in before. Imagine then the proposition of having to come in here and ask for a guarantee for a half million dollars to save one of the greatest supply houses Newfoundland has ever known. Oh Mr. Cheeseman when I appealed to you twelve months ago to save your district and when you were called upon to play the part of a man you allowed the opportunity to pass,—the greatest opportunity of your life as a young man—and yourself and Mr. Foote will go down in history as the greatest cowards ever known in Newfoundland. You allowed Mr. Harris, who began in his dory and who built up such a gigantic business and who attained such a prominent place in the commercial world by his industry and perseverance, to be crucified by the crowd of incapable that are governing this country.

HON. MR. FOOTE—I rise to a point of order.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You may rise to any point you like. I have the floors and I am going to give this matter the attention its seriousness merits. You sit down. You are the guilty culprit who caused this situation to-day.

HON. MR. FOOTE—I rise to a point of order, Mr. Speaker. The language of Sir John Crosbie in referring to Mr. Cheeseman and myself as cowards is unbecoming and unparliamentary. A man who has been in the House as long as he has should have better sense. Half the stuff he is getting off is absolute piffie. I ask the honourable member to conduct himself as a parliamentarian should. I am no more coward than he is. As a matter of fact he has illustrated himself all through this session of the House to be the coward himself.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You proved yourself a coward twelve months ago. You're only a joke as well; you are a joke to be representing the district you do represent.

HON. MR. FOOTE—A schoolboy can make those kind of remarks.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—If you had thought that twelve months ago you would be a scholar to-day.

HON. MR. FOOTE—Produce the argument?

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—I will give you the argument before I am done. The best argument which condemns you from A. to Z. is this petition and you know it.

HON. MR. FOOTE—In your opinion.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Not in my opinion, but in the opinion of your fellow-countrymen. If you had taken the position you should have taken twelve months ago you would not now be asking for a half million dollars on branch stores to-day. That is my opinion and the opinion of the country and when you talk of piffle I must ask you for a lesson on piffle because you are all piffle from the heel of your boot to the top of your head. You are the most incapable individual that ever represented the district of Burin. I was here on these floors when you would not be allowed in here and I want you to take a note of that now.

HON. THE SPEAKER—I wish to draw the Hon. member's attention to the fact that he is out of order and to inform him that the rule of this House is that he can speak only five minutes on a petition.

MR. HIGGINS—That rule was never enforced.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—That rule was never kept in this House.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Mr. Speaker? I rise to a point of order. Five minutes will not give any member a this House a chance to discuss intelligently such an important matter as the petition now before the House.

HON. THE SPEAKER—Rule 47 reads as follows: (Reads Rule). But in view of the importance of the petition I shall allow you to proceed.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You are quite right, Sir, this matter is very important and very serious and I am glad that His Honor the Speaker, if no other member in the House does, appreciates that fact. The fact is that houses like Mr. Harris's have been ruined within the past twelve months as a result of the fish regulations. Mr. Foote cannot stand to listen to this. This petition tells the whole story. No man like to hear the story, which when true, told on himself. I have been here for two sessions with Mr. Foote and I never saw him jump before or rise in his chair like he has this afternoon. The reason is because he has been pricked and his conscience is troubling him. He knows and his conscience tells him that he betrayed the trust of his constituents when he voted for the fish regulations. He knows as well as I do that nothing touches a man so severe when he is guilty as to mention something that he does not like to hear. An innocent man never troubles a continental about it. Fifty years ago Mr. Harris started out with his hand lines in a dory. He rose from that position and became one of a crew of a banking schooner. From that he became Mate, from that to Captain and then went in charge of a business, which when conducted by himself was absolutely sound and solvent commercially and one which nobody would refuse to give credit to. That was when he was not interfered with, but a crowd who do not know the first rudiments of commercial business dictates to him and tells him how he must handle and market his codfish. What a sorry plight Mr. Harris must find himself in to-day to have to send this petition to ask this government to guarantee $500,000 for supplies to outfit 4,000 fishermen who reside in Change Islands. The concern that is operating there is run by Elliott and Company and owned and controlled by Mr. George Harris, son of Mr. Samuel Harris. The enforcement of these fish regulations was the worst piece of legislation ever perpetrated on a free and intelligent people. To-day at Change Islands there are six or eight schooners tied up. They usually take sixty or seventy men to the Labrador, but not one penny's worth of supplies have been given them yet. Most of the people are in the city to-day and not one dollar's worth of credit can they get with which to purchase supplies to enable them to prosecute the fishery. The answer to all this is contained in the petition—the fish regulations. Look at the loss sustained on the cargoes of the "Little Stephano" and "Jean McKay"—$122,000, which practically puts the firm of Harris Ltd out of existence in Change Islands and makes practically eighty people with families dependent on the hand of sweet charity for supplies, if the government does not supply them. That is the position. Only a few days ago the Prime Minister said that he backed the regulations, but I think that he realises to-day, if he never realized before, the unfortunate position this country is in by putting on these accursed fish regulations which has caused us all this trouble. Now let us come to Placentia Bay. Marystown is where the great house of Samuel Harris started a branch some years ago. As this petition states, up to the years 1919 and 1920 when the owners were allowed to conduct their own business everything went well, but thru the interference of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who thought that he was Lord Almighty over all and who thought that he should control the whole of Newfoundland, would not allow him to handle his progressive business as he desired, with the result that to-day Marystown looks like a pauperized village. If you shake the hand of a man there to-day there is not enough life left in him to say how do you do. The Marystown Trading Company that used to employ 1400 men of Placentia Bay is not able to employ a boy to-day. Harris' house there to-day is ruined, due entirely to the fish regulations. What a shame, what a criminal offence against freedom. Why Lenine and Trotsky were Kings to you. And then I am called to order because I called Mr. Foote a coward. Yes, I called him a coward and I repeat it. It was his duty to have saved that firm from the position they are in by voting against the fish regulations in this House. Why if they were only the two of us in this House who voted against these regulations it would have saved financial ruin to that firm. Then why should I not call him a coward. He lost the opportunity to prove himself a man. Look at the fishermen of Placentia Bay, who used to be supplied by the Marystown Trading Company. They are going around St. John's with their hats off begging the merchants for supplies and even if there was a half guarantee from the government the merchants refuse to give supplies. That is the answer regarding a country that was once prosperous and that has been prostituted by the present gang of incapables. If I were in Mr. Foote's shoes I would be glad if coward was all that I was to be called, because I am afraid that some day he will have to go hide himself away from his fellow man. If you multiply that 1400 men by five it means that 7000 children as well as men and women are to-day demanding supplies from this colony to enable them to prosecute the fishery and thus carry on the business of the country. Mr. Speaker, this is the first time in the history of Responsible Government that a petition of this kind has been presented here, and you will live to be years older, unless the whole colony come in short and demands supplies, before such a thing happens again. Another thing I would like to point out to this House and to Mr. Foote in particular that the fishermen of Placentia Bay are not alone seeking supplies to-day, but they are crying out to be paid for the fish that was taken from them last Fall. Not a man in Placentia Bay can get a barrel of flour on credit there to-day and all this was brought about by the regulations which were put in existence by Mr. Coaker, who knew as much about carrying them out successfully as an eight year old boy.

I am sick and tired of this thing and I don't intend to stand it any longer. It is time we cried quit to this nonsense, and if I don't stop it the public will and I may tell the Prime Minister that a warship will not save him for a moment, because when public opinion becomes so intense they will demand their rights and will have them though the Heavens fall. Have you any idea what it is to sit in a merchant's chair to-day, and see a man come in with his hat in his hand with a government order for half of the supply and to have to refuse this order because of the position of the colony. Did it ever happen before. No it could not happen now if men of business ability were in charge. Step along with me now to the good old district of Burin, and Grand Bank a beehive of industry formerly, and now look at it, and Mr. Speaker take your own district of Carbonear. If you could have seen three years ago what was going to happen, if you could have seen that this government was going to pauperise the greatest people the country has ever known, and force these people to come here and ask for a half million dollars to save a situation which is the worst I have ever known, and force these people to come here and ask for a half million dollars to save a situation which is the worst I have ever known, you would have said save me from this crowd I am associated with. What will happen if Harris and Co., fall down what will happen to the four thousand people that Company supplies and takes care of, multiply that by five and it means twenty thousand men, women and children must be fed by the government or by the sweet hand of charity. These are not my words, but the words of that petition. Mr. Chesebrough that is what this petition tells you. How proud you must feel of your position. Now I want to jump across to a place called Fortune Bay. What has happened there? It is gone and Hermitage is gone also out and as Mr. Harris states through the Fish Regulations. On the cargo of the Jean McKay combined with the cargo of the Little Stephano one hundred and twenty-two thousand dollars was lost by the Elliott Trading Co., which is controlled by Harris & Co., forty thousand dollars was lost by the Hermitage Co., on a cargo of the General Maud that sailed from here in 1920 to Oporto, and anchored there in the harbour and was forced to stay there by the Fish Regulations until March, and the cargo of fish was finally used in Portugal for fertilization purposes. Do you think that would have happened if Mr. Harris had been allowed to conduct his own business? How can you expect a cargo of fish loaded in August on the West Coast and sent across to Oporto arriving there in September, and held there until March to be fit for food? Not only is this petition a serious one but every business man in the country is in a serious position. I have been told that I am a black ruin man, but if you had listened to me twelve months ago you would have a little money left which you have not now. Go down to Water Street to-day and what do you find, the most capable of business men are afraid to move because they do not know what the incapables are going to do next. Now let me read another little message from the West Coast that will interest Mr. Small concerning the story of the Edith Cavell as follows: (Reads message).

Did you send these messages Mr. Coaker? I hope Mr. Coaker in his position of Minister of Marine and Fisheries did not so far forget himself as to send this saucy message.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—It is no worse than you did here this afternoon.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—That has nothing to do with you. You should not model yourself on me. If I as a member of this House forget myself you should know how to conduct yourself or you should leave your position and according to Mr. Penney you had not the decency to send a courteous reply, only a bluff that you were the boss of the job. Mr. Speaker the Minister of Marine and Fisheries nor any other man has no right to throw a retort across the House to me, and if he does I will answer it the best way I can. When this House wants to deal with me they know what to do. What a nice thing for a Minister of the Crown to say to a man with a cargo of fish loaded and ready, "Do not send me any more of these messages I am running this job." He did run it and a nice mess he made of it, he ran her on the rocks. Listen to this further on. I did not intend to read this but the Minister reminded me I ought to. (Reads.)

It does look like a conspiracy to me of the worst kind and I think the President Coakers' cargo ought to be forgotten when we receive messages of this nature signed by reputable men like Mr. Penney and Mr. Samuel Harris. Just imagine the Government agent gives up documents of a cargo of fish worth sixty thousand dollars to Mr. Hawes when he was told to forward them to the Bank of Montreal in London. Do you not feel that a climax has been reached with the case of Mr. Penney and Samuel Harris & Co., Ltd. What is going to be done in this matter. Is not the whole country in a similar condition to the West Coast. Is not the North nearly as bad? The constituency I have the honour to represent is nearly as bad. I will state a case in this House this afternoon that will make the Government sit up. Listen to it Mr. Speaker and the Prime Minister and see what it means. Here is a man in my own district, one of the most upright men I have ever had anything to do with, receiving pauper relief, and a fish merchant owes him three hundred dollars of which he cannot get a cent. Isn't that a lovely position for Newfoundland to be in? This man is owed three hundred dollars for Labrador fish and he and his family are receiving the paltry dole of pauper relief, and yet that merchant has the audacity to write to a man in my district and say he will give him supplies for the fishery. How proud the Prime Minister must be of his position today in a country that has been prostituted by a crowd of incapables. Only the other afternoon when the House adjourned the Prime Minister stood on his feet and read a letter or telegram printed and sent to the Tribune in New York by Sir P. T. McGrath in which he stated certain things, and the indecency of you Sir, to forget your position and send that message to the Star, and write a castigation about me as being part and parcel with Sir P. T. McGrath in this matter, when you knew Sir, that I agreed with you that the message should not have been sent, but you wanted to get me blamed for that although I was innocent as Anderson Squires himself, you wanted to make me out a scoundrel before my fellow man, but may I say to you Sir, that you are not able to slander me. The people know me better than they know you. The day you told the story in Port de Grave that I had made my money out of the Government you lied, you knew better than that, because you sent to New York to bring down men to audit the books to try to find out what Crosbie had taken from his department, and you found nothing and you had to pay ten thousand five hundred dollars for that enquiry. Why should you stoop so low? I am not Sir Patrick McGrath's keeper and I don't want to be yours, and for what he does he is responsible to himself and not to me. You knew Sir, it was indecent to do this, but you are capable of any action that suits your own purpose, and that is the reason that the Fish Regulations were imposed upon the Colony, because you were trying to make a soft bed for yourself, and you had not the manhood to buck against Mr. Coaker. Why should you hit below the belt and bring me before the eyes of the public with regard to a message I had nothing to do with simply because you can never play the part of a man. I am proud Sir, to be classed in the Star with the Rev. Dr. Forbes of Gower St. Church, and I intend to treat you in the future with silent contempt, and let you go on with your dastardly acts, but you will be crowned before you finish in a way that you don't expect. Don't blame Dr. Mosdell, admit your guilt. Then you ask for co-operation from this side of the House to deal with a case such as Mr. Harris of Harris & Co., I would rather flee to the wilderness than have anything to do with a party such as yours. You think this state of affairs will continue but it will not. There is an outraged people looking to you to-day, and you and your associates shall not be saved from the downfall which you brought upon Newfoundland. This last week or so I was tempered with mercy for you and your Government, but when your filthy Star ceases its dirty abuse it will be time enough to let you alone and not before. Your paper is not fit for children to read, and I would suggest that the Minister of Education take you in hand and give you a little education in true etiquette. That is as far as I am connected with Sir P. T. McGrath and that is what I have to say to you now. You are not dealing with Sir Michael Cashin now, you are dealing with a bit of orange, and you can tell it to this country when you like, and unless you conduct yourself I will have no pity on you or any part of you. What are you and your Government going to do about the Harris Trading Co. What is the Minister of Marine and Fisheries going to do? Do you intend to let this non. House fall down and put twenty thousand people out of business, do you intend to let this Harris Trading Co. go into liquidation or what do you intend to do? The job is not mine it is yours and your Government's. You have to answer the question in the next few days and you have to reach a decision quickly. Are you aware that to-day or to-morrow a couple of hundred men will be paid off at Port au Port. What are you going to do about it? What do Mr. Foote, Mr. Cheeseman, Mr. Small and all the other members intend to do about it? You have no idea. I don't blame any individual member on the other side of the House, they have nothing to do more than to vote to keep the Prime Minister in his position. Mr. Foote gently reads this petition and then sits down without saying a word, and says it is the first he knew of it. That may be so but if I were the member for Burin I would have known of it long ago. What will you do? You have supplied certain people in Placentia Bay, Now Mr. Harris asks for a consideration to supply four hundred more. A public message was issued the other day to the effect that the Government was giving out supplies, some of my constituents were told this and they want to know what about it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Speaker, I would also crave your indulgence for a moment. I agree with the remarks made by Sir John Crosbie this afternoon. Perhaps I may not go as far as Sir John, but this much I will say with reference to the petition presented to this House from Harris & Co., that if the Government feel they are responsible for the downfall of the Harris firm through the Fish Regulations, then it is the duty of the Government to do something. That is the universal opinion throughout this Island to-day, and that is the opinion expressed in the petition presented to this House from the Harris Co. Well, if the Government of to-day made laws and rules and regulations, and on account of these laws, rules and regulations being put into force within the past eighteen months, the house of Harris & Co. and other business houses around this Island have gone into bankruptcy, certainly it is the duty of the Government to compensate them. It would only be common sense to do so, pure and simple. What this will mean to the country is another thing. The taxpayers of this Colony will have to pay the bill. I agree with Sir John, as I say, to a certain extent, but if the Harris Co. are to be compensated, I take it every other firm doing business in this country will have to be compensated, because there is no reason why you should compensate one firm and not compensate other firms that have suffered just as much. Have we not received petitions from other firms? As I pointed out a few days ago, where is the Penney firm of the West. Where are the other firms of the North? Where are the Templetons, the Ryans, the O'Rourke's, the Munns, and all the other firms that shipped fish from this Colony last year? Not through any fault of their own but by the Government taking over their fish business, they are placed in such a financial position to-day that they cannot carry on the fish business the coming year, and on account of that thousands of people are now without supplies to go to the fishery. Placentia Bay, I have no doubt, is more in the limelight than any other part of the Island to-day, through this great firm of Harris & Co. going to the wall. It is not one firm that has gone down there, it is half a dozen firms which seem to be controlled by Messrs. Harris of Grand Bank, The firm at Marystown supplies largely in Placentia Bay and St. Mary's Bay way down to Trepassey Bay. It has been pointed out that 4,000 accounts are on the books from that part of the country, which means that 20,000 people to-day are looking for supplies in that direction. The Harris Co. and all the other Companies have my sincere sympathy, but it is not our duty to do anything, you are the makers of the position they are in to-day and on you rests the responsibility, not on the Opposition. We are not responsible and it is your duty to get up and do something, not to let things drift as you are allowing them to drift. I am very grateful to a certain extent for the promises made for help in Ferryland District, but I would like to remind the Prime Minister this afternoon that he told me on yesterday and I know it is right, that Ferryland District would be treated the same as Placentia, because in Ferryland the great firm of Goodridge & Sons has gone to the wall and a number of fishermen in that District are left practically destitute to-day. But here's the difficulty in this matter. The Chairman of the Board of Works, I understand, has given a cheque for $50,000 for Placentia District, that cheque is held at the Bank.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Cheque to the order of Mr. O'Reilly who is the Commissioner placed in charge.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Yes, but Mr. O'Reilly refuses to give any cheques against the $50,000, I understand, till the fishery season is over.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Well, I don't know all the details of the arrangement.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Well, it was from you he got the assurance.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The point was this: The arrangements which were made by committee consisting of the representatives for Placentia District, under the Chairmanship of the Attorney General, was that the Government would give a guarantee of $75,000 as against a guarantee of $75,000, the District was putting up $25,000 of its own funds, that was the position. The Bank desired something more than a guarantee, by word of mouth or by letter or by Minute of Council, and desired a guarantee in cash, they having been advised by their solicitors that they would have to protect themselves by having the deposit while they weren't protected sufficiently by having Minute of Council guarantee, and consequently arrangement was carried out by actual deposit of money in Bank. So, if under the circumstances the Committee feel any other arrangement should be made, that is a matter for the Committee to consider and discuss, but the arrangement as finalized was that Government giving guarantee and not putting up cash, by giving guarantee to amount of $75,000 as against which $25,000 would remain in the Department of Public Works or be deposited with the Finance Minister, question of paying in cash not having been considered at all.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Well

that's the point I want to discuss this afternoon. I interviewed several merchants on Water Street this morning reference this matter and their answer was that they wanted cash. Perhaps the right way to do it would be to put the matter in the hands of Inspector O'Reilly or some other competent man you have ample confidence in, and if on inquiry he finds that it is necessary to issue $100, or $200, or $300, whatever the case may be, to any one man. The merchant on Water Street that I spoke to this morning required that 50 per cent. paid down now, not to wait till next fall for the amount, because the position is this, they have to spend the money to buy that supply and pay one hundred cents in the dollar, whereas if the government will pay the amount that they intended now to guarantee 50 per cent. the supplier is in this position that he uses that money and he can turn that cash over three or four times between now and the end of the year.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—But the proposition as it came to the Government from that joint committee under the Chairmanship of the Attorney-General was the idea of a guarantee.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Yes, but if the guarantee is good enough at the Bank it's good enough for cash if actual money was put up in the Bank as guarantee. I take it that the government have no objection to issue cheque instructing Inspector O'Reilly after inquiry of each applicant who comes along, after going fully into the list or the amount required by him, that he will pay to any one merchant on Water Street who wishes to supply 50 per cent. of that amount immediately.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Yes, well that's a matter I will take up at once.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Well, I find that I cannot do any business on Water Street under the other arrangements proposed by the Committee.

MR. SULLIVAN—Mr. Speaker, I have very much pleasure, Sir, in supporting the petition that has been presented by the hon. member, Mr. Foote, for the guarantee of the cost of supplies to the fishermen of the West Coast. It is regrettable that the Hon. member had not one word to say, pro or con, regarding this petition. We do not know whether he is in favor of it or not. It is pitiable to see one of the advisers of the Prime Minister, a member of the Executive government, without having an opinion of any kind on a question of such magnitude as this one, and one that primarily affects his own district. How will he ever be able to face these hungry men who are now looking for supplies? How will he ever be able to go into that district and face the many children to whom he turned a deafened ear when they were hungry and their fathers wanted to get supplies so as to be able to earn something for them to eat? I do not believe that they are any better off in Mr. Foote's district than they are in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. The firms that are asking for this assistance have done a very large business in this country. They have a large amount of capital invested in the fishing business of the country in many districts. Now Sir, what are you prepared to do about it? It is a very serious matter. The man that has presented that petition can very well go into liquidation, but what is going to happen to the 4,000 dealers and the 20,000 people that they represent.

Then there is the other question, what are you going to do with respect to our district? We got a promise of $50,000 on the understanding that the merchants would give another $50,000 supplies. We guaranteed $25,000 from our road grants. Since we got the promise we have heard nothing further about it. First, it was to be $50,000 in cash, then a $50,000 bond placed with the Bank of Nova Scotia. On enquiry up to the present no bond or guarantee has been put up. A few have been taken on and the others have been told to wait. I rang up the Prime Minister this morning, and he told me he had nothing to do with it, and that it was in the hands of the Poor Commissioner, Mr. O'Reilly.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It was the fact.

MR. SULLIVAN.—But you might have been more courteous, Sir. You know that my office is filled every day with men looking for supplies. Owing to the dilly-dally policy of the Government we have the best fishermen of the country walking around the streets of St. John's when they should be engaged in the fishery. When one of the biggest firms of the country asks for a guarantee for the supplying of the fishermen a member of your executive who represents Burin District hasn't got a word to say. What is $500,00 anyhow? Isn't it better to give that guarantee than spend many times that amount for poor relief? Harris is not asking the Government to put up one cent of cash. If you fail to give this assistance in getting supplies then you will be up against a condition of affairs that you have no idea of at the present time. There has been a great uproar about this $50,000 that you promised the district of Placentia & St. Mary's, but we are giving the district grants to the extent of $25,000 to assist in getting supplies. If there is a loss, it is the district that loses.

Now with reference to the Marys-town Trading Co., they have dealers in the district of Placentia & St. Mary's. Some of them have been provided for, but there are others for whom no provision has been made. We know that the $50,000 promised will not be sufficient. It will require at least $200,000. If we could get the guarantee of that $50,000 put up it would take care of many people, but the district looks mainly to the Marystown Trading Co. This Company has been placed in the position they are in not through any fault of their own, but through the mad policy of the Government. I feel sure that when the Government takes all the facts into consideration they will do something to relieve the situation.

It would be better for Harris if he went into liquidation to-morrow, but if he could get this guarantee he would go on. I hope the Hon. Mr. Foote will do his utmost to see that the prayer of this petition is granted. I confidently expect to see Mr. Cheeseman take an interest in this matter, and Mr. Warren and Mr. Small. If they do not I would not like to be in their shoes and go back to these Districts; to face an outraged electorate, are you aware that large numbers of men have walked here a distance of sixty or seventy miles to try and get supplies, they walked because they had not sufficient to pay their passage. And now they are beating the streets begging the merchants for supplies, without result because the guarantee has not been put up. Fish has now struck in on the Eastern Shore of Placentia Bay and men from Placentia Bay, good fishermen too, are walking the streets looking for supplies when if things were as they should be those men would be at home catching the fish which is practically at their doors. Is not this a dreadful state of affairs? If the Government intends doing anything it must be done at once, otherwise it will be too late as the caplin will be in on the South and West Coast in a few days, and if the Fishermen cannot prosecute the fishery it will mean a great loss to the people so hampered and to the Country generally.

MR. WALSH.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to give my heartiest support to the petition that is now before the House. But at the outset I want it to be distinctly understood that I am doing it not for any political propaganda. I think the firm of Harris is worthy of the most serious consideration of the Government. We had not the slightest hesitation in coming in here and voting ourself a 300 per cent. increase, and to vote tens of thousands of dollars to send men out of the country to come back and teach people how to die in poverty, but when an honest firm comes in here and asks for a guarantee the men who bring it in are looked upon as lunatics.

Probably the best way out of it for the Harris family would be to go into liquidation, but that is not their way. They grew up side by side with these 4,000 dealers. Old Mr. Harris went out himself in a dory or small skiff, he then went master of a banker, then as owner of the banker, and later as owner of a banking fleet. I do not intend discussing the cause of what brought this ruin about. It behooves us now, as representatives of the people, to get together and render assistance to the people who are looking to us. Men came in here a few months ago in the picture of health, now they are starving to death. No heed was paid to my suggestion of a few weeks ago for a secret session when the whole condition of the country would become known.

I promise the Government that I am prepared to give them my support to any extent and if my associates on this side of the House do not see their way clear I am prepared to shift my bench down to the end of the House. I trust the matter has been settled this afternoon and I hope the Prime Minister or the Minister of Justice will be in a position to be able to tell the House or the representatives of Placentia and St. Mary's that the matter has been settled one way or the other and then we will be able to tell our men what to do. If the Government does not intend to render any assistance let it say so or if it intends to do so then assure us of the same and then we shall thank them. With regard to the Marystown Trading Company it was pointed out that certain sections of the country were looking for the same treatment that was being given to Placentia and St. Mary's but I promise my unqualified support to any other section of the country because I have always preached from my seat here in this House that I admired the motto of the Advocate "To every man his own." If the Minister of Marine and Fisheries wants similar treatment for the District of Bonavista I will give it to it provided there is reciprocation. A half million dollars is not a large amount of money. It is easy to clip off a half million dollars off the present expenditure of the Government and if I ask him to hand over a cheque to-morrow drawn on the Bank of Nova Scotia signed by the Minister of Finance for one half million dollars I would not be asking too much not alone to ask for the guarantee for the same. And even if one cent of it never came back from the people to the Treasury even then I say they would have made a good investment. There are four thousand men dependent upon the Marystown Trading Company which cannot go on and as you know they cannot go to Limeville or to Grand Falls as both have closed down. And I see no hope when they are going to re-open. Mr. Sullivan has told the House that the fish is plentiful and it is a down right shame and an unprecedented crime on the part of the Government to sit down here day after day and then adjourn a week at a time to suit some individual so that he may go home to his family or may be attend to his private business. And about ninety-five per cent. of those attending this House day after day are fishermen who wish to get away to their work. This is the position I take and I do not want to go into details which can be discussed to better advantage later on. But the matter I am interested in is the remedy and I take it that every patriotic person is also interested therein and now is the occasion for the Ministerial heads to rise to their feet as they must hear the rumbling of the thunder in the distance and I say this not because of the applaud coming from the gallery, but because I am in contact with all people of Placentia and St. Mary's and for the past fifteen years I have travelled all over this Island and I now have on my desk some twenty-five letters not one of which is from my district, asking that assistance be rendered them. I promise the Government that if they make any attempt to overcome those difficulties which are quite evident during these days of depression, to make an honest attempt notwithstanding all the serious mistakes both of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and the Prime Minister, to relieve matters I will in turn do my best to help the Government out in any matters in which I can be of any assistance. I think the Minister of Marine ought to show some sympathy to those who put him where he is to-day. There are hundreds of people who are looking for work and it is better to have them working and earning their own living than to be a charge on the Treasury of this country. Let them become producers and not paupers. Whether he comes from Bonavista Bay, the Straits of Belle Isle or anywhere else, our Newfoundlander is independent and wants to be so all his life. He does not want to go to the Relieving Officer, the Parson or the Priest to get pauper relief. I also appeal especially to the Minister of Justice because he is the chairman of all the Committees dealing with the matter to give us an answer, an intelligent answer before bedtime to-night so that my colleague and myself may be able to tell the thousands of men awaiting on us what they can depend upon. You are responsible for their walking around. It is you who have fooled the people and as early as possible I beg you to let us know your answer so that we may know where we stand. I have much pleasure in giving my unqualified support to this petition with reference to the firm of Harris and Company and the other firms included.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker, it is now half past six, but with your permission, Sir, and by the courtesy of the House, it is my intention, if the hon. gentlemen on the other side have finished speaking on this petition, to deliver the Budget Speech at this sitting. I had arranged to do so this afternoon and move the adjournment of the House as I had a party meeting on for this evening. The time of the House, however, has been occupied by a matter that is altogether extraneous.....

MR. BENNETT—The matter is not extraneous, it is very pertinent.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—The subject matter of the petition with which the afternoon has been taken up is extraneous.

MR. BENNETT—The subject matter of this petition is the crux of the whole situation in this country to-day.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—There is one point I would like to call attention to; it is not fair for the gentlemen on the other side to criticize the government for adjourning the House from Thursday until to-day

SIR M. P. CASHIN—It is as fair as it was for you to write that article for the Star.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—In the first place I did not write it and SIR JOHN CROSBIE—It was you who gave the messages to Mosdell tho.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Certainly I did. I gave them to Dr. Mosdell and to Mr. Mews as well—As to the insolence of Sir John Crosbie, I shall deal with that on another occasion.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You can go ahead and do that now if you like.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I happen to know enough of parliamentary procedure to realize that this is not the time for the introduction of personalities.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—You don't know very much about parliamentary procedure.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—According to your ideas, Sir John, I do not.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Perhaps I can teach you a few things.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—There are some teachers one would not care to have. Under the circumstances, Mr. Speaker, I move that you leave the chair till 8 o'clock.

The Speaker left the chair till 8 o'clock.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker—When the House rose at 6.30 before recess I intimated my desire to address a few remarks in relation to the petition presented this afternoon by the Hon. Mr. Foote, and in common with other speakers this evening I want to express my sympathy with the petitioners upon the position they find themselves in through circumstances that have arisen in this country during the past eighteen months. I take it Sir, that this document that we are considering this evening is one of the most important documents that ever came before this Legislature, because it is the crux of the whole situation in this country. We have the extraordinary situation of one of the most reputable, one of the most reliable and one of the strongest financial concerns in this country a short year ago finding themselves in the position of absolute bankruptcy and unable to carry on their business. Hence I say that this petition is the crux of the situation advisedly because it brings this House immediately in contact with a situation that not alone appertains to the district of Burin, but to the entire country at large. A great deal has been said since this House opened. As a matter of fact during the last six weeks we have been considering, debating and dilating upon the conduct of the government in relation to the fishery policy of this country, and from the opening days it has been our effort on this side of the House to endeavour to drag from the Government some declaration of their policy with regard to the situation that we find ourselves in to-day. The very speech from the Throne foreshadowed a line of policy that has been followed out in every possible way since this House has been in session. In speaking to the Speech from the Throne I endeavoured to point out that on former occasions the Speech forecasted the legislation to be introduced during the ensuing session. The Speech from the Throne this year did not forecast anything. It was a document that was absolutely void of any information, void of any declaration of policy and void in any possible measure to inspire hope for the country, and in our criticisms of that document we took the same constitutional stand—and the only logical stand—that this country required from those in authority at the earliest possible moment a full declaration of what their policy was going to be, an entire explanation and the laying of the entire cards upon the table, so that this legislature would be prepared for eventualities which necessarily had to ensue, and in having that opportunity at an early date in the session we would not find ourselves in the position that we do this evening without one tittle of evidence or knowledge as to what the policy of the Government intended to be or how to cope with the situation. A most lamentable illustration of the government in this connection was given by the introducer of this petition—the Hon. Mr. Foote—this afternoon. He received this petition from Sir John Crosbie, who courteously asked him as one of the sitting members for Burin district, to present it, telling from whence the petition emanated. The Hon. Mr. Foote presented it in low tone of voice and refrained from making any comment upon it by in any way committing himself as to what should be done with the petition. He said that it was the first time that he had seen it, and, therefore, was not in a position to speak to it. Does the hon. member want this house to swallow such a statement that he was unaware of what that petition meant; that he was unaware of the conditions that led up to that petition and that he was unaware of the situation in his district and unaware of the conditions of the house of Samuel Harris Ltd. and subsidiary companies? I have too much regard for his intelligence to accuse him of absolute ignorance of a situation that was so well known to this House, and not alone to every member of this House, but to every thinking man in the country, and the petition is merely an outline, which is put in phrases and sentences, of the general knowledge that exists throughout the country.

The attitude taken by Mr. Foote a member of the Executive in getting up here is a demonstration of the indifference of the Government to the welfare of the country. If the Government has been considering what we are up against, Mr. Foote has not done them justice this afternoon by his silence on this matter. We have tried to awaken the government to a realization of their duties ever since this session opened. The government seems to be satisfied to lie back in their chairs with the assurance that this is only Opposition talk, done for purposes of obstruction to prevent any legislation being put through. Well, even if that were true which I absolutely deny what is the answer to the charges set forth in that petition, by one of the most influential men in Newfoundland, the guide, philosopher and friend of Mr. Foote and Mr. Cheesman in the last election. It is questionable whether either of these men would be here to-day if Harris Trading Co., had not given them their support, and then when they are in trouble you turn your back on them, men who have grown up in the trade of this country, who have devoted their lives to increasing that trade and who by the sweat of their brow, have attained the position of honour, emolument, and of commercial prestige, now through the policy of the present administration they are driven to the wall, and they are short of everything necessary to carry on their business, and the good work they have been doing for the general trade of Newfoundland. I say and that is my reason for craving your indulgence and the indulgence of the House that this is a very important matter, more important than any other business in the House to-day, because the whole economic position of Newfoundland is contained in that petition, and it does not stop with that Company but every merchant in the country is in a similar position, with rare exceptions, and that is the reason that we on this side of the House want to emphasize the seriousness and the importance of this situation, so that the government may even at this late hour wake up to a realisation of their duty. It has been contended that all this talk of the Fish Regulations was a political dodge all the Opposition have been doing is to try to embarrass the government, to try to turn out the present government and get in themselves. That of course is accepted by a certain section of the country, but that section is getting smaller every day, and when they read this petition it will be smaller still. You can't accuse George or Samuel Harris of politics talk. I say this matter cannot be considered too seriously and when the Estimates were tabled the other day I endeavored to bring home to the Prime Minister, the necessity that all documents relating to our finances should be tabled before we were asked to discuss the Estimates. He agreed with me and he gave notice of Ways and Means. We have the Estimates and we have Ways and Means, and we have Loan Bills, and we still lack that necessary information, and if we are to discuss these matters intelligently we must have that information. I said before we must cut our garment according to the cloth, and if the situation is going to arise as outlined in this petition it is well worthy of the consideration of the government. I cannot suggest at the present time any way out of the difficulty, but I say this. We must have the fullest information of our financial transactions, before we pass another vote in the Estimates, or the Loan Bill, or any other Legislation. Sir Michael Cashin has already asked for correspondence relating to this loan raised in New York. I presume that will be forthcoming, and it will enable us to diagnose the terms and merits of that Loan. The Prime Minister has also given notice that he would introduce the Budget, before this sitting closes, and I trust that we will get all the necessary information from that Budget. Let us face the issue like men, and take the country into our confidence. It is absurd to ask intelligent men to come here and discuss matters of importance practically in the dark. How can we consider what we will spend before we know what we can earn. We can't spend it unless we earn it and like any other business firm, the business of the country should be run on sound commercial principles. The country to-day is in a state of collapse. The Hon. W. Baine Grieve said a short time before he died. "Newfoundland before May will be suffering from financial paralysis." Those words were prophetic. He is dead and his words have come true, and that is the reason that we are as anxious and desirous that the best means be taken to meet the situation as it comes. This petition Sir, as I said before is one of the most important documents ever laid upon the table of this chamber, coming as it does from four firms namely Samuel Harris Co., Marystown Trading Co., Hermitage Trading Co., Elliott Trading Co., four large firms that have grown up with the trade of the country during the last twenty-five years, firms that have built up the West Coast of Newfoundland, firms that made a barren waste into smiling towns and villages, firms that put the West Coast of Newfoundland on the map as a big commercial centre, firms which up to the end of 1919 were in a position of affluence, with large credit balances, large property, not in the least appreciated, doing their business soundly, and with every possible advantage to those whose moneys were invested, firms of the highest character. I have never heard any man say a word against the treatment he received from these firms, and to-day what do we find. I have a great sympathy for Mr. Geo. Harris who has to come here to this House, praying us to come to his assistance or he will have to close his doors, and four thousand fishermen will be laid on the broad of their backs, without bag, or barrel for themselves and their families. It is tragic, and what puzzles me more than anything is that the men who come here as representatives of that district and other districts adjoining can condone that situation. I would like to ask the members for Burin if they have made any representation to the government during the past year to stay them in their mad policy of ruin forced upon their districts and other districts of the West Coast. I am sure Mr. Cheesman is sympathetic with the people with whom he lived. His relations, his friends in life, his business associates to-day are practically without hope as to what the future holds for them, and I do not say this on my own authority but on the authority of the four thousand men represented by Harris and Co., and for which the Fish Regulations is responsible. I said just now when we made these statements on this side of the House it was called politics. The government said the Fish Regulations saved the situation, they said we are no worse off than any other country. Well the only answer I can give to that to-night and it will be effective enough to refute even the statement of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries because it comes from men identified with the Fishery before he was thought of, a source beyond question of dispute. Take paragraph six of this petition. Is that an answer? Is that the Opposition speaking? Is that coming from a supporter of the present Opposition? It comes from the God-father of the government on the West Coast, a man whose opinion is second to none on this subject, and how men can sit on that side of the House in the face of this is beyond my comprehension, because I would rather dig stones for the rest of my life than go back on the people who honoured me, or dishonour them. I was going on Mr. Speaker when this unseemly interruption occurred by a man who has visited this House ever since its opening and has made himself a nuisance. His name is Cullen. He should not be allowed here any more. He is obnoxious and has no decency, because my remarks were not offensive, or at least I hope they were not, and interruptions like that should not be tolerated I know his history and character and its beneath my notice to refer to him. This House is engaged in very serious business, that not alone requires the close attention but the uninterrupted attention of every member of it, and I want to speak fairly as every Newfoundlander should speak on an important matter like this, its beyond a political issue, for our country's life is at stake. If nothing is done in this matter four thousand fishermen will be starving before the winter is over. I take it we are all serious in this matter and we want to have the fullest debate possible on this situation. Talk about Newfoundland to-day she is rotten with politics. You are fooling the people, it was said this afternoon codding them, we will use that word as it has been going on, men coming here to know what is going to be done by the government, what is going to be done by the Opposition, how they will get bread for their families, and surely God if anything is serious that is, and let us face it in a serious way, as statesmen and not politicians. I have said before this country needs the best men in it, no particular body of men or no particular creed, but the best men to pilot her through the shoals and difficulties she has entered upon and we can't do that blindfolded, we cannot camouflage the issue, nor burke the responsibilities upon us—and we must have a statement of the facts of the government transactions of the past couple of years, and what they hope for in the future. How will we meet our obligations, collect our revenues, pay our officials, meet our liabilities on this side, and the other side of the Atlantic, keep up our various departments. Those are the serious problems we are faced with, and on top of that we have a breakdown in our commercial industries, the banks have abandoned the trade of Newfoundland, the merchants on Water Street are unable to carry on their business owing to the lack of financial support. Our industries are closing down. Grand Falls where thousands of men are employed is practically closed down. Bell Island ordinarily a beehive of industry is practically abandoned, and we might as well all go when our fisheries is about to be abandoned. A serious situation, it is appalling, and we had a demonstration of a member of the Executive coming in here, and not saying a word in this connection when he presented this petition. If that is an index of what will happen this session it is a poor look-out. What we want next to bread in this country is confidence, confidence in our banks, in our merchants, and above all in our government, and there is no such thing in this country to-day. That petition is only one case, it is merely a forerunner of what will come from every part of the country, North, South, East and West.

I am not a blue ruinist. I have taken the position ever since this House opened that I believe in Newfoundland, and I still believe in Newfoundland. She can weather the storm if properly handled, although in so dangerous a condition at the present time. We are hearing a great deal about the recent loan, but we are not in possession of all the information. As large as it is it is not large enough to meet the situation. The fishery must be carried on. If it is not every one of us will meet with disaster and starvation. The main industry of the country is shaken to its very foundation, and the government is doing nothing to overcome the situation. This has been brought about according to Mr. Harris, and now I do not quote Sir Michael Cashin or Sir John Crosbie, but one of the largest business firms in the country that makes it undisputable that the Fish Regulations have been the downfall of the West Coast. After Mr. Harris makes that statement he gives the evidence. (Reads from petition).

That is an indictment that might shake the foundation of any government. It is more forceable than anything that could be said on this side of the House. It is an indictment from a man who fought hard for the present government. It is pitiable to see men like Mr. Cheesman and Mr. Foote sit down under such an administration as this. I do not want them to sit with the Opposition; not at all; but there is a place in this House for Independent men. I left the government ranks of this House before on a much smaller pretext. I left on a vote of sympathy and I have held my self-respect ever since. You will go down in history as men who are not afraid to show their independence.

This petition section 7 says:

Isn't that a serious statement? When you come to consider that there are 4,000 families depending on the firm of Harris, what is to be the answer. God knows there is enough of good blood emigrating already, and who will earn the revenue to keep the country going? That is a document, Mr. Speaker, I submit that will go down in history as the most important document ever introduced into this House. It is probable that the whole country will follow suit. We do not know how the finances of the country stands. We on this side can merely express an opinion. Any man could see that when the war was over reaction would set in, but unfortunately for Newfoundland she swapped horses while crossing the stream. We have now a government without brains. The country has been run on the rocks and the government merely watches the wreck breaking to pieces.

MR. HIGGINS—Mr. Speaker, I just want to say a word or two on this resolution. I shall endeavour to compress what I have to say into as narrow a compass as possible. I concur with you, Sir, in relaxing the rules of the House on this matter, and I would say to the honourable members opposite that the example set by the Speaker might well be followed by them.

An extraordinary situation developed just about half past six, when the Speaker left the Chair until eight o'clock. I refer to the attitude of the Hon. the Prime Minister. It is said that this is the most important petition that has ever been presented. It is surely the most important petition that has been presented since I have been in the House. It is a petition that affects the whole country, both politically and economically. Any man who does not bring his best thoughts to bear on this petition is not worthy of a seat in this House. It is not a question of politics. It is not a question as to who controls the government. It is a question that may decide whether or not our families are going to be brought up in Newfoundland. This petition summarizes two things: First, the temper of the people, the labour troubles that we are having in this House every day; and in the second place there is the larger question, the political and economic question if you wish what the country is able to do about it; and it is to the last phase that I want to address myself. I regret that the principle of the Government of the colony embarking on the matter of guaranteeing supplies for the fishery is a dangerous and probably a vicious one. But circumstances are now so unusual that extraordinary steps may be justified. If it is admitted that the principle in the present instance is sound then it must be true for the whole country, and the sum of ten million dollars will have to be placed as a charge against the country. What sort of an answer do we get to that? What is the answer to the other taxpayers? Is there the slightest attempt made to say that we will adjourn and consider this matter. No, Sir, the Hon. the leader of the government at half past six mere'y rose and said that the Budget must be brought in tonight. The Budget is the pronouncement as to what the estimated expenses of the coming year will be, and the method of meeting those expenses. I admit that the circumstances are hard, but because the case is a difficult one and the circumstances hard, we cannot give an off-hand decision and should rise to consider the matter. On the other hand the Prime Minister says the Budget is to be introduced. Much good indeed will that do. Much joy to you all if that is the kind of responsibilities that the administration attaches to it. Joy, I say, to you, Budget, but I pray that it may not be such a disappointment to those outside the House as it is to me. I say it deliberately, and I wish to make it clear, that you cannot bring in the matter of expenditure for the year without considering the fishermen. How dare you—how dare you, I say, come in here to this House with the Budget and cast aside flippantly this petition with no attempt to consider if anything can be done. We are here in this House merely by accident; we are only as chips and porridge; others have been here before us and others will come after. Let us not forget then that this is not the way this petition should be treated. Let the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who sat by all the afternoon and did not utter a sound, say whether this should be entertained or not. The honorable gentleman who introduced the petition boldly and calmly announces that he knows nothing about it; he cannot say a word for or against it. His colleague sits with his mouth shut as tight as a clam and the other honorable members sit idle with their own people are affected. Mr. Speaker, I speak to this petition because in the district which I have the honor to represent, and Mr. Fox and Mr. Vinnicombe will endorse what I say, the people are, but thank God to a much lesser degree, similarly affected. Would I deserve to be permitted to go down the Shore and sit in this House if I did not say a word about this. I put it to the members opposite, straight and squarely as Newfoundlanders, forgetting the accident which puts us on opposite sides of the House and the small talk that goes on outside, that here is one case where we can sink all differences. We have already stated that we will go outside the House and stay out till you do something. The leader of the Opposition made that statement here this afternoon and pointed out that it was made off his own bat without consultation with the others on this side, and I say now that in making that he speaks for me and the others as well. We all say, we shall go out—we will have nothing further to do with debating and let you take up this question. Whatever you may do, you have a hard proposition ahead of you. I know it is hard and recognize that it will mean a big demand on the Colony to settle this matter, and I also recognize that I will make the same demand for my district and the others on this side will do the same for theirs. In spite of all this you got to take the same position as a few days ago in regard to the nationalizing of the fishery. We heard the Hon. Minister of Marine talk glibly of the nationalizing of the marketing of our fish. And you must remember that this may be the first time in which you may have to nationalize the supplying for the fishery. It is no trouble for you to say that this matter is too big to touch, too great to handle. But you must remember on the other hand what is going to happen if you do not touch it, what is going to happen to the country. This is not a question of shrugging your shoulders and saying we would have to do the same all over the country. I say that unfortunately the position of the government is this, as the other members on his side of the House have already said, that we have arrived a stage where time can no longer be lost, the country will have to be supported. With regard to the suggestion made here that we, the Opposition, have brought extraneous matter into this discussion, I beg to remind you that we may possibly never meet again as this House is constituted now. If it be true that the fishermen cannot get supplies, as others who have proceeded have pointed out, and that conditions are the same in other places as in those referred to in the petition, we may not have to worry who will pay the bills. If it is true that thousands cannot get supplies and therefore cannot catch fish, it means that instead of the Colony shouldering a responsibility for carrying on the fishery it will have to carry an equal burden for relief later on. You have made a very poor job of it up to now, because as the petition claims the existing conditions are due to the enforcement of the Fish Regulations, and if you have done that there is all the more moral reason why you are strongly bound to apply the remedy. It is not enough for the Minister of Marine to feel that Port Union is alright. There are people outside that place who are now crying out for aid and he cannot divest himself of the responsibility; no member on his side can shake it off. The people put you there and you have to accept it or do the more manly thing, clear out and give the position to those who will try at least to do something. As long as the Minister of Marine keeps silent he is alright; that is his proper position. But I say this is no time to merely say we cannot entertain this proposition, or that because he provided for the North that there is no need to worry about the West. If the rumour be true that he is going out of political life, let him do so properly; now when he finds the wheel turned and retribution following close at hand, now is the time for him to make amends to the people. If you, Mr. Minister of Marine can compliment yourself on looking out for the North at the expense of the West, remember the people of the latter are still Newfoundlanders, and give them some share of the energy and attention that in the past you have bestowed upon the others. I recognize fully that compliance with the petition is not easy, compliance must mean a big drain upon our resources, but it is unfortunate for yourself and the government that the situation was brought about by your own conduct. During the past year you have given consideration to certain districts—you have allocated to another district on the West Coast a sum of money—and as I said before I now repeat, you cannot discriminate between the two. As it was not proper to discriminate last year in connection with the purchase of fish, it is not proper to discriminate now with regard to supplies. Surely the government recognizes as their duty that this petition is not to be lightly dismissed. Let the Prime Minister deeply consider the manner of answering this petition—let him consider that it is not to be treated as a request for a road to a cabbage garden and be thrown lightly on the table. Remember the people are not asking for an ordinary little vote, but have come in here to this House with a deliberate statement that they have been wronged morally and if there is to be redress for that let something be done now. Let the honorable members opposite take notice now that if the government imagine they can satisfy public opinion by discriminating this petition, without consideration, they are only laying up trouble for themselves. In view of what has happened in this House for one district, how can they neglect this. You have reached the point where you have got to face the situation of arranging for supplies or saddle the responsibility of supporting the people. Does any man mean to tell me that we can afford to see thousands of the people starving, and with the Sydney and Bell Island mines closed and other sources of employment cut down, that we can tide over the summer. The situation cannot be cured by indifference or shrugging of the shoulders. Give some thought to this petition and if you can devise some scheme as the result of your deliberations for the giving of supplies; if you can bring down a vote to give them out equally and indiscriminately; if you can do anything at all that is reasonable and business-like, I am prepared to support it. I do not ask you to jump up and say, yes; I do not ask you to say off-hand we are going to accede to the petition. The government should not take the position that this is a matter not deserving of consideration, because too many are affected and the position means so much—this carrying on of the fishery means the maintenance of the colony—and as the government is claimed to be a fisherman's government this question should be considered at once and an answer be given. May I not ask the representatives of that organization which controls the government—the Fishermen's Union—to see that this petition is fully considered before they rush in blindly and say here is our expenditure for the year. You cannot bring in the Budget without considering the petition unless you say you are going to do nothing about it. If you once venture on the methods of raising the expenditure, the only thing we can say is that you have turned a deaf ear to the appeal of these people. Can the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries who knows so much of the needs of the fishermen, who spoke so much of those needs in the days gone by, who talked and wrote so much of the "under dogs" can he when they come to him holding the position which he told them would give him the chance to redress all their wrongs, can he when they now make their first call upon him see that they do not get the deaf ear. Can he not see to it in view of the blame which is attached to the Fish Regulations, that this petition be considered. I ask for the sake of the country in which we have been born and in which we hope to die, for the sake of the children which we are bringing up here and in view of how much some assistance means to the fishery in this critical time, consider this matter. If after deliberation you come to the decision that you can do nothing, I will bow to it. But don't I pray you dismiss it lightly. I sympathise fully with the petition and again ask the government to deal with it. I thank you, Mr. Speaker, for the courtesy shown me in allowing me to trespass beyond the usual time discussing this most important question.

MR. MOORE—Would you permit me Mr. Speaker, about three minutes to explain my position on this question. I will not occupy longer than five minutes. I rise out of sympathy for the men who are responsible for sending that petition here. I do not know Mr. Harris personally, but I have heard a great deal of him as a business man. From what Sir M. P. Cashin and Sir John Crosbie has said. I think he is a gentleman, and am glad that every member of the Opposition is to be allowed to speak 5 minutes on the question. His position is the same as that of one whom I have in my mind's eye and who carried on business in the district of Ferryland. It is Mr. Goodridge I refer to. He has been forced out of business through the Fish Regulations of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. If he had been allowed to carry on his business in his own way as in the past, he would not have failed and the men of the Southern Shore who dealt with him would not be walking the streets to-day looking for supplies. Sir M. P. Cashin was up in Ferryland on Saturday and he found nothing more doing in the way of preparing for the fishery than if it were January. I hope the government will do something in this matter so that we will not have the men following us about day after day. I thank you Mr. Speaker for your courtesy and will not take up further time. I give my heartiest support to the petition and hope the government will do something for Mr. Harris and those depending on him.

MR. LEWIS—I crave, Mr. Speaker, the five minutes in which to refer to this question.

HON. MR. SPEAKER—The five minutes is allowed only to the one presenting the petition.

MR. LEWIS—I crave the 5 minutes on a point of privilege.

HON. MR. SPEAKER—I rule now that the question be put to the vote.

MR. HIGGINS—I rise, Mr. Speaker, to a point of order. In respect to your ruling, I wish to say that every member has a right to speak 5 minutes.

HON. MR. SPEAKER—It is allowed only to the one presenting the petition (reads the rule).

MR. HIGGINS—The ruling you have adopted is one which we decided on a few years ago. Every member is allowed to speak 5 minutes.

MR. LEWIS—I sympathize with Messrs. Harris and Elliott who are now compelled after their many years of successful business to petition this House for assistance. I have known Mr. Harris 40 years, ever since he was a bait carrier for the French. By industry and ability he rose to the important position of perhaps the largest supplier in the country but through no fault is now compelled to send in here a petition for consideration as to financial aid. It was my privilege 2 weeks ago to suggest to the government to consider well the taking of $500,000 and the manner in which it was to be spent. I then said it was not sufficient to meet the requirements of the fishermen and I also pointed out that it was high time for them to be up and doing to reap the harvest of the deep if they and the country are to keep going. Nothing has been done up to the present. One school of fish has already passed our headlands, and I say without fear of contradiction that if the Hon. Min. of Marine would speak openly he would say there has been a very great shortage on the herring catch. The caplin is now near our shores, but there is nothing doing. Thousands of men do not know what they are going to do to prepare for the fishery which will be here in a few weeks. The government sits callously by and says all the delay is due to the Opposition. It is up to us to plead the cause of those who are not here to plead for themselves; the first of the kind since we were granted responsible government. A leader of it is the head of the organization known as the Fishermen's Union, but still there is no effort made to help those who are the mainstay of the country. We know he did make an effort last Fall, he took $500,000 for 320 men; there were 40 vessels in the harbor with fish that carried 8 men each. To-day we have here a petition from 20,000 people asking for a half million to assist Mr. Harris to carry on and supply his 4,000 planters. I say that it is the bounden duty of the government not only to assist him but to take up the matter all over the country and supply the people or else feed them. Some form of employment will have to be given the next few months I can speak, like my colleague, Dr. Jones for my district, Hr. Main, which is a most important one in connection with the fishery and I say that the fishermen there who are as industrious as any in the country cannot go on without assistance. I have now spoken my 5 minutes and in closing I trust that the Hon. Minister of Marine in his generosity will do something so that those mentioned in the petition and the others too may be able to go and catch the codfish on which the country depends.

MR. MACDONNELL—I would like to say a word or two Mr. Speaker before the final disposal of the petition I have been of opinion from the first that the matter of supplying is a dangerous one. I have knowledge from experience, but do not want to lay down the law. It is known all over the country what has been done as to the purchasing of fish, and I believe that it has gone out through the public news to the North, South, East and West that the government proposes to give out supplies. I have received an intimation from the people of St. George's that they have the idea this is going to be done. I want to say right here that if a guarantee has been given to supply any section or district you cannot draw the line between one and another. I say further that if you embark on this policy I will consistently agitate in this House for an equal sum for my district for the fishery or some other purpose. In many instances, even in the case of brothers, one is a farmer and the other a fisherman. Most of the people in my district are farmers and I think that if the fishermen is supplied so should the farmer be. If you subsidize one, do the same to all districts. Here is a message which I received through the courtesy of the Prime Minister.

(Reads message.)

These three gentlemen who signed this message are beyond reproach and are thoroughly conversant with the conditions existing in Bay of Islands. From that I think that the idea of the government supplying is abroad. Since I got this another came asking how many men have been supplied. If such is done we of St. George's will look out for our proportionate share. The Hon. Min. of Marine has spoken before of a plan for nationalizing the fisheries and no time could be better for it than now. If you embark on the expenditure of 8 or 10 millions it is time for a plan to get it back to the Treasury. I feel sure that before this petition is disposed of we will hear from the Hon. Minister of Marine, from the representatives of the West Coast and from every member in the House as to what they can offer or suggest towards meeting this matter which is the most serious that was ever brought in here. I think it should be considered before any other business is transacted as it is of the most important nature and the opinion of those on the other side should be taken before going on.

MR. CHEESEMAN—I presume Mr. Speaker that if the Opposition members have 5 minutes to speak on this matter, we on this side have the same. In reference to the petition I realize that it is too important to deal with in a few minutes, and I will not say whether I agree with it or not. I am closely identified with the fishery and can fully sympathize with the petition to-day. With the firm of Harris or any other which is in financial difficulties, I sympathize. I am a merchant myself, but not many of those who have spoken here have any dealings with the fishermen. As to my firm, my father was not given money to throw away. He was a fisherman and sailed out of St. John's as master for $25 a month till he rose up and has given his last dollar and security, even as far as the bottom of Paradise to help the fishermen. I am prepared to do my best. I have been accused here to-day by Sir John Crosbie of being a coward. He can say what he likes, I don't care. I supported the Fish Regulations because I thought they were in the best interests of the fishermen and the country and I am not afraid to say it. I am not afraid of blame in that direction. If it means my political or commercial death, I am prepared for it. I acted in good faith and I am prepared to go back to the people who sent me here and if turned down I am satisfied. It is a fact that Newfoundland is faced with a serious situation and we must grapple with it, but we can't take up a matter of millions and deal with it in a few minutes. What we want is less politics and more business and we would be better off. Before an election every one poses as the friend of the fisherman, but they forget it once they are returned. This has always been and most likely will continue to be the history of this country for a long time to come. I may have more to say later on this matter, but I want to state now that I am not afraid to state my position last Fall and I am prepared to stand or fall by it.

MR. VINICOMBE—I would like to say a few words Mr. Speaker as to the petition presented here by Hon. Mr. Foote and I may state that I would not like to be in his shoes. If I went to a district with a manifesto promising everything like he did and the people can now find nothing but depression I would not like to be in his place. Mr. Cheesman says he is not ready to state whether he will vote on this matter or not, and then refers to his father. But I would like to say that Mr. Harris is also a fisherman and he rose to the top too, but is again at the bottom and through what nothing but the Fish Regulations. The Government has squandered over 4 millions and we can get no statement as to where it went. The fishermen have to come in here and ask for help and if I were in the place of the members opposite I say now that I would sit as an independent rather than have my district abused as theirs has been. I want to say right here that when fishermen such as Harris have to ask for supplies we should certainly consider their petition and do something and Messrs. Foote and Cheesman should find out why aid was given the Northern men before. I think they were entitled to it but why do not the representatives for Burin get up and demand it for the Western men. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Mr. Cheesman gets up and says he does not know what his position is in the matter, in spite of all that has gone on. Sir M. P. Cashin said that the Prime Minister coddled Newfoundland and the Prime Minister laughed at it.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I always smile when attacked by Sir M. P. Cashin.

MR. VINICOMBE—You smiled at the crowd out there because you coddled them too. I wish I had charge of your four millions to spend.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—I dare say you do.

MR. VINICOMBE—I would like to hear the Hon. Min. of Justice express himself on this matter. Why do you not accept our proposition; we will go out and give you every opportunity to do something. Now what you done since closing the House last week; it's the little things that count up and you have many that could have been attended to. You have the matter of flour for instance. It was $17.50 during the winter and is now about $14, but is there any change in the price of hard bread to-day. This is an article that is largely used by the fishermen and why is there no change in the price. Hon. Mr. Coaker professes to be their friend and why does he not get hold of this matter. Why has it not gone down, I ask the Minister of Marine.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—It will have to go down.

MR. VINICOMBE—I knew I would get you to do something. If I had another 5 minutes to talk I'd get you to give the half million to the fishermen. Now, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to go over the 5 minutes allowance but I hope and trust that when you will get together, as we will allow you to do without obstruction, you will do something for the West as you did for the North and if you decide on anything reasonable and business-like I will have no fault to find with you.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker, the petition brought before the House by the Hon. Mr. Foote is one of major importance and the Opposition should not lessen weight and importance of that as of others by introducing into the discussion of it personal offensives. I have asked the Supervisor of debates for the report of Sir John Crosbie's remarks and will deal with them later. May I suggest, Sir, that the criticism of Hon. Mr. Foote in his presentation of the petition is not at all fair. I was in my seat when Sir John Crosbie who had received it, crossed the floor and asked Mr. Foote to present it. He arose and presented it and stated he was not in a position to deal with it then, as was only natural. His position was in full accordance with procedure under the circumstances. I will not now deal with the large losses of the petitioners as that is purely a business matter. I regret that Mr. Harris's name should be so dealt with as it has and I regret that a man of his standing should be dragged in here and his losses laid bare as well as the other things which contributed to these losses, together with the million which he attributes this year to the Fish Regulations. This is without our purview as it is purely a business matter and when Hon. Mr. Foote said he was not ready to deal with the petition I think he took a sane stand. I had proposed as I said at 6.30 to present the Budget but the talk of the others has delayed it till this hour. I think it most unfair to criticize us for the closing of the House the last few days as the proposition to do so really came from the Opposition and I concurred in it. It is unfair to criticize us for it. I agreed as I knew some of my own party would be glad of the opportunity to visit their own homes. With respect to the criticism that the Budget be delayed till this position be dealt with; it is essential that the House have before it the fullest financial statement. The presentation of the Budget should take precedence of any other financial matter. It is impossible to deal with a matter involving a capital of 10 millions or more before the finances and expenditure of the country are considered.

MR. HIGGINS—That is why it is delayed.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—My statement will cover all the financial position up to the 30th of June. Any proposition such as that of the petition must come up in the form of a resolution, as if moved by a member.

MR. HIGGINS—In Canada and England all large matters such as this petition are dealt with in the Budget.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—It should be brought in the form of a resolution The Budget should be dealt with first.

MR. FGX—Mr. Speaker, the one remark of the hon. member for Burin, Mr. Cheesman, and of the hon. the Prime Minister that struck me very forcibly was that this petition was one of more than ordinary importance and, therefore, I wondered why an attempt was being made in face of this to curtail a free expression of opinion by the members on this side of the House. I have in mind, Sir, petitions of minor importance which occupied much more of the time of this House and which were the subject of five or six times the discussion which has resulted in the case of that which we are now discussing, a petition dealing with matters touching the country's most vital interests and the expenditure of public monies, and one that should by no means be treated in the cursory manner in which it is apparently the government's intention and desire to deal with it. I say that I have asked myself why the government attempts to do this and there is but one answer that I can find. The Government realizing that upon their shoulders rests the full responsibility for the conditions of affairs in this country that makes an appeal such as is embodied in this petition imperative are very, very reluctant to admit their fault and to let it be the subject of full and frank discussion in this House, and now I ask the government what they are going to do about it. I think that it is very necessary we should have a full discussion of this matter, not necessarily a discussion that would be destructive but one that will help in dealing with the question confronting us.

The importance of this petition cannot be lost sight of. I speak of it with mixed feelings, feelings of sympathy for the firm of Harris Ltd., who have been compelled to thus appeal for assistance in the continuation of their business because they are facing ruin to-day as a result of the pernicious Fish Regulations, feelings of sorrow that I cannot support the prayer of the petition and of regret that the hon. members for Burin should stand idly by and allow the scandalous acts of a scandalous government to bring to the verge of insolvency and ruin the very men who gave them the support that placed them in their seats in this House.

It is the irony of fate that the duty of presenting such a petition as this should devolve upon the Hon. Mr. Foote and it would be ironical if it were not so sympathetic that it should be one of the strongest supporters of the government from whom the petition comes. There has been an attempt made also to hide from the public the real seriousness of the present situation. It has been said that the Opposition has time and again exaggerated the dreadful conditions existing to-day, but if anything is to be done we must know just where we stand. You cannot apply the remedy until you have first ascertained the cause. Can there be any doubt about the seriousness of present conditions? Is not this petition the strongest proof we could have that the Opposition has not exaggerated and when I heard it read I wondered that the man upon whom rests the responsibility for these conditions could take to his bosom, as he has done the one whose nefarious schemes had brought them about. Mr. Bennett has spoken of an observation made in this House to the effect that Newfoundland has a magnificent future, but permit me to say, Sir, that in my opinion Newfoundland has a magnificent future behind her, and this is not so because of exchange or because of any of the other influences that have been put forward as an excuse to palliate the offence of those responsible; it is due wholly and solely by the Fish Regulations. The hon. Prime Minister, although he does not say so directly, insinuates that the facts as set out by Mr. Harris are not alone far fetched, but that they are wrong, but Mr. Harris has been in the public eye for some time; he has had the white light thrown upon him perhaps more than any other man in the country in this connection and when the voice of Mr. Harris was awaited as to his opinion of the Regulations it was an accepted fact that if he said they were good and should be continued his pronouncement would immediately be accepted by the government and sent broadcast in the press; yes, it would have been shouted from the very house tops and now when this same Mr. Harris makes the statements he does here, they must be accepted as true. I should like to tell the Hon. Prime Minister that it seems to me most unfair, when Mr. Harris has been courageous enough to lay bare the facts of his business and invites enquiry into these facts, that it should be even hinted he is not stating what is true. I said, Mr. Speaker, that I had a feeling of regret that I could not support the prayer of the petition. I cannot support it because to do so would be to subscribe to a principle that is vicious. If we vote away the funds of the colony to buttress any man's business we must do the same thing for all who might make a similar appeal. If we accede to the request in this petition what reply can we make to the multitude of other business men who find themselves in the same position if they come in and ask for the same treatment, and moreover, this does not apply particularly to the fishery business but to the dry goods and every other class of trade, and it applies equally to all firms who find themselves in need of funds to carry on their business. It would apply to the F. P. U. organizations as well as it would Harris Ltd., not that I would say for a moment that the leader of the F. P. U. would dream of allowing the public funds to be used in forwarding the interests of the concerns with which he is connected. It is a position we cannot tolerate; it is a principle we can establish with regard to the expenditure of public monies.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Mr. Speaker, I would draw your attention to the fact that the five minutes has been exceeded by the hon. gentleman.

MR. FOX—Mr. Speaker, I am not surprised that the hon. minister should draw your attention to the clock. I am not surprised that he should want to curtail this discussion so that his own part in the transaction which have brought the present conditions about may not be made public. I know things about the conduct of Mr. Jennings that were I to tell them he would appear in a very different light from that in which he is seen to-day.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—I challenge you to tell anything that could in any way reflect upon me either in my public or private life.

HON. THE SPEAKER—As the hon. gentleman has exceeded the five minutes allowed for the discussion of the matter before the House, I would ask him to take his seat.

MR. FOX—The hon. Min. of Public Works has asked me to substantiate my statement and I am prepared to do so.

HON. THE SPEAKER—I must ask you to take your seat.

MR. FOX—If His Honor the Speaker will not give me the privilege of substantiating my statement, then I would appeal to the hon. Minister of Public Works, as a gentleman very close to the Speaker, to crave for me the indulgence of the House while I proceed to comply with the hon. Minister's request.

HON. THE SPEAKER—The five minutes allowed you are gone.

MR. FOX—Then His Hon. the Speaker refuses to allow me to proceed?

HIS HONOR THE SPEAKER—Yes.

MR. FOX—In that case I move the adjournment of the House, and in moving the adjournment of the House I want to express my regret that the Speaker should attempt to curtail the debate in this manner. I think it is very regrettable indeed Sir, that you should see fit to curtail an expression of opinion on any matter coming before this Chamber, but particularly is it regrettable when the matter under discussion is of such vast importance as this which relates to the condition of a section of the country as large and important as the West Coast. I think it is a pretty pass we have come to that we are not alone bound hand and foot at the feet of inconsiderate and incompetent men, but that we, the Opposition, the trustees of the people in this House are not permitted to give free expression of their opinions. It is, however, in keeping with the conduct of the present administration for the past eighteen months. The War Measures Act, than which there could be no more dangerous instrument in the hands of incompetent and unscrupulous persons and especially so in the hands of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was used by them without consideration of the possible consequences. Why Mr.

Speaker, if the War Measures Act were used to strip every man in the country of every right that has been his from the time of the Magna Charta, he would be powerless to resist and that is what was used by the government when they could gain their ends by no other means and now they try to close the mouths of those who would protest against such treatment. It matters not to me whether I speak for five minutes or five hours, but the principle must not be forgotten and every Hon. member of this House should, on behalf of the electorate who sent him here, protest against any violation of it. We have witnessed the most tyrannical acts on the part of the Government and if we have public uprisings they are but the result of attempts to crush the people. We had an example of this a few days ago when the public coming into this House, and expressing approval or disapproval of the governments actions, asked that fair play be accorded them, were called by the government press hooligans and we have not been allowed to forget that occasion because the gentlemen who should have kept those who caused them under control found himself unable to do so. Therefore, I protest to-night against any attempt being made to shut the mouth of any member of this House, and I am surprised Sir, that you should be the first to attempt to take such a regrettable step. If it were an ordinary matter I would not mind; but here's a petition that asks for the appropriation of a half million dollars, and if this House accedes to the prayer of the petitioners is it not only natural for every other constituency in the country, that is situated as Grand Bank is, to ask you the same privilege and as the Prime Minister himself has said it may involve the expenditure of ten million dollars. Still we are asked to consider the matter in the space of five minutes, and, as the Speaker of the House puts it, the petition has been received and referred to the department to which it relates and will be sunk into the oblivion of forgotten things and never to be resurrected. It is only natural that the government should want to hide their transactions for the past eighteen months; it is only natural that they want to throw dust in the eyes of the people and prevent them from peering into the dirty dark places the government have made within the past eighteen months and it is quite natural that they should attempt to prevent the people from instituting public enquiries. It is only during the past week or ten days that we have had the indecent spectacle of a Minister of the Crown, accused of a public offence, attempting to prevent the public from getting the appointment of a commission to enquire into the conduct of an office where he was put and asked to solemnly pledge himself and conduct properly. That minister came down on the floors of this Chamber and said that he courted a public enquiry into all his actions since he assumed office and he accused me of insinuating things and said that I should have preferred definite charges instead. But when definite charges were preferred and a Motion made to appoint a Select Committee to tell the people of Newfoundland the story he refuses to allow such an appointment. Then another Commission is asked for and the Government lurks that enquiry also; and is it not only natural Sir, that the attempt on your part to limit debate is only consistent with your attitude throughout. Surely then it is only natural that you are afraid to have your actions investigated and scrutinized as to how you comported yourselves while in office. But when you attempt to curtail the freedom of the individual members of this Chamber then you are up against a hopeless proposition. And then the Hon. Minister of Public Works, who is at an age when he should have learned more discretion, even if he has not a proper knowledge of the conduct of the procedure of this august assembly, has the impertinence and audacity to get up and interrupt a member of the Opposition because he exercises his freedom of speech in this Chamber. We are come to a pretty pass, a delightful situation has arisen, when we are to sit down and jump up at the command of any man—even a gentleman as important and as influential as the Hon. Min. of Public Works. We are come to a pretty pass when we must subject ourselves to the dictation of a man who should know better than to conduct himself in the way he was during the past six weeks. Does he imagine for one moment that any member of this Opposition is going to allow hi to exercise his sovereign rights over his conduct in this Assembly. I am surprised at the conduct of the Hon. Minister of Public Works. I always thought that he was a man of mystery and that he was one of these delightful individuals, a fine, courteous gentlemanly member, who was above all things that seek to hurt the feelings of any other person. We have been told how sincere the gentlean is, what a model of propriety he is, what an exponent of the great virtues he is and a man, who, like Caesar's wife, is above suspicion.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS.—My character was made before you were out of your swaddling clothes.

MR. FOX.—I am not talking of your character before you entered the party you are associated with; but the character you made since. For example when the last administration went out of office your government was pleased to parade the names of the several Ministers of that party before the world as crooks of the worst characters, blacklegs, scoundrels, men who should be inside the walls of the Penitentiary rather than inside the walls of public offices, and your leader, carried away by the sense of responsibility upon his shoulders brought Auditors from American to properly investigate the scandals of that administration. Of course the gentlemen that Newfoundland is paying for doing her audit work were not good enough; the government had to import Auditors. Those visitors reported that in every respect they found those departments conducted as they should be and that there was not a single stain on the characters of the gentlemen that you Sir, and your party immortalized in black headlines in your paper. Its a axiom of British law that a man is innocent until proven guilty; but you and your associates found guilty every man who was opposed to you. You hanged him first and tried him afterwards. And then we have the Hon. member for Twillingate saying "I am going to take charge of the Department of Public Works, a department that has been prostituted." The late head of that department was held up to public scorn and ridicule by one who was not fit to tie his shoe-strings, because what else Mr. Woodford might have done he did not do anything for his own selfish ends or personal aggrandisement. Mr. Jennings was going to bring order out of chaos in that department. He was the lovable and proper man; but the public accounts which have come down here show that he has saved for the government the fabulous sum of $239 on the purchase of splits. And then the Hon. member goes around swelling with pride over his wonderful achievement. The Harbor Main election next comes around and thereby hangs a tale. I wish I were capable tonight of bringing in somebody who could play a nice sorrowful piece of music while I am telling that story music that would instinctively be a sort of dreamy, mystic, mournfull, sorrowful medley when you hear it. The government provided thousands of dollars belonging to the people of Newfoundland and they threw it around Hr. Main district and bought votes with it and then they ran it in the pay sheets of the department of Public Works under the guise that $7,000 was expended in that district for the necessary purpose of snow shovelling. Where do we find this great exponent of public virtue, Mr. Jennings? Do we find him coming out and taking a firm stand against things of that sort as he said he would? And do we hear him reproaching the government for putting through such a transaction? The unlawful expenditure of $7,000 out of the public monies was ostensibly for snow shovelling, but in reality to buy votes. And then we wonder if any man has any doubt of Mr. Jennings' protestations of public virtue. There is another chapter in this story that I might enlarge upon to-night, but will refrain from doing so. For the future I would advise the Minister of Public Works to be careful at what he says to me.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—It's a terrible affair to interrupt you.

MR. FOX—I don't care what you say to anybody else; that won't affect me. And perhaps I might tell you something else. A few short weeks ago you attempted in the same manner to impertinently interrupt me when I was talking about the manner in which the public services of Newfoundland were being carried on North of Baccalieu and when I was pointing out that a half million dollars of the public monies was taken and given to the fishermen North of Baccalieu. He rose in his chair and said that I could not point to one single dollar that went to the district of Twillingate of that money. I was not talking of his district at all at the time, but I have a fairly strong suspicion that when the good things of the government were being given out that the last man to get something was not a Twillingate man. Do you remember the year of grace 1917 and the following year 1918 and the previous year 1916 when a pe-tion came from your district to the Legislature to cut pit props. Permission was given to cut on the three mile limit in order to keep the people from starving.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—No such thing; that's not correct.

MR. FOX—It is correct. Look up the records of the House. They speak with far more force than you speak. The contractors went down there and fitted out crews who went in and cut the pit props and were paid for cutting them and were given grub during the process. They were told to bring the pit props and store them on the banks. Unfortunately, the pit props were held up on account of shipping not being available. These contractors had spent tens of thousands of dollars on the manufacture of these pit props and were prevented from taking delivery of them owing to not being able to get ships to take them to England where they were to be sold. The people around Twillingate took advantage of the delay and they helped themselves to the pit props that did not belong to them and when they were asked about the matter they said that they took them on your word. The owners of the pit props were compelled to institute criminal proceedings against the people who were responsible and I was retained by some of those contractors to go and prosecute those people. I went down and carried out my duty and since I have been immortalized in the pages of the "Advocate" because I did something that the administration of justice in Newfoundland is sworn to do. I was merely performing a duty to a client who retained me, and when I went to enquire into the circumstances I found that justice should be tempered with mercy. In a great many cases these poor unsophisticated men were responsible because in many cases they had followed out the guidance of people to whom they look for protection and assistance. Eight or nine men were tried before a certain Stipendiary magistrate and were convicted and fined. The learned magistrate when trying these men expressed his regret that he had to inflict a penalty on them because he did not blame them so much as the gentleman who sit in this House and told them to do what they did; and it came out in sworn evidence, in my presence, that the gentleman, who told them to help themselves to the property that did not belong to them and whose advice eventually landed them in the position that they had to dip down in their pockets, was one by the name of Mr. W. B. Jennings.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—As the hon. member for St. John's East has finished his side of the story, I would ask him to take his seat while I give my side of it. I was wondering what the hon. member was trying to get at when he started back in the years 1916-17-18 to tell the history of the cutting of pit props in this country. During the war representations were made in Newfoundland from the Old Country that they were badly in need of timber of that kind and it was thought they would be procurable in Newfoundland more so than in any other part of the British Empire. Formerly it was got in Norway. The result was that certain legislation was introduced here making the exportation of it possible. Nobody at that time ever dreamt that the cutting of that timber was going to reach the proportions it did. Operations were carried on in Twillingate district and the second year of the cutting of timber showed some of us that the forest on the South Side of the Bay would be denuded if operations were continued much longer. Consequently, representations were made to the government of the day that it was unwise to cut timber on the three mile limit any longer and our request was acceded to. Personally, not being a Lawyer, I thought it was necessary to safeguard the interests of the people in the district. What happened was that certain contractors, who expected to make a fortune from having this timber cut, put up a proposition to the Morris government that the people in Twillingate district were starving so that they could get permission to cut, and I say now as I said at that time that the district was never in a more prosperous condition than it was at that time. These contractors got an Act passed allowing them to operate on the three mile limit. They had young men at work there who were incapable for the work. Lots came from the Southern districts and not half of the men belonged to Twillingate proper. However, the feeling among the people of Twillingate regarding the cutting of that timber was that it ought not be cut and that it was bad for the country. I remember when that matter was discussed in this House. The present Judge Morris, who was then a sitting member for the district of Placentia, contended that he did not consider that the people had broken the law by appropriating that timber, but that the government broke the law by allowing those contractors to cut it. In 1915 I was the means of getting a certain Act passed preventing timber from being cut and left in different parts of our Bays where they were no inhabitants in some places after eighteen months would not longer be the property of the person who cut it. This Act while not intended to apply to Saw Mills was later attached to the Saw Mills Act. However, the point I want to make clear to this House is that the people who appropriated that timber that Mr. Fox alluded to never approached me about the matter. I never knew anything about any man going to take that timber until I heard that a number of men were being brought before court and they wrote to me about it. I replied by sending them a copy of the Act passed in 1915, but declined any responsibility whatever for their conduct and I intimated in my reply that as far as I was personally concerned that I would have nothing whatever to do with it. The people took the timber on their own responsibility before I knew a word about it. Personally I believe that various opinions can be put on the clause relating to pit props in that Act; but I want to say plainly and fairly and particularly to my friend Mr. Fox, who made the charge against me to-night, that I never encouraged by word or deed or in any shape or form, any man in the taking of this timber. I hope that I shall have no worse charge levelled at me than that as long as I live, and that I shall feel my conscience as clear about everything else as I do about that timber episode. If I don't I shall not have to trouble much about the hereafter.

MR. FOX—The hon. member has evidently gone into the realms of metaphysics. If as the Hon. gentleman says he did not tell those men to take those pit props then he is in the same position as most of us on this side of the House; he has been badly belled. Not alone has the hon. member's character been taken away by ordinary word of mouth, but his character was taken away by sworn testimony by the very people who took this property. I am prepared to take his word, but I am pointing out to him this fact that in the district he represents, in my own presence and before a British Tribunal of justice men got in the witness box and they swore that they were told to take pit props by Mr. Jennings. It makes no matter to me whether you told one man to take them or whether you told one hundred men to take them. The evidence calls for depletion of these contracts in your district. A report was circulated that you told your people to help themselves to wood which they had been paid to cut, property as sacred to the men who employed them as the furniture in their houses. Contractors you say made fortunes

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—I did not, I said that the contractors expected to make fortunes.

MR. FOX—They met with heavy losses instead, losses that they would not have met with had the people represented by you been guided properly. I do not blame these people, but I blame their representative, who failed to regard the sacred rights of property. Now if Mr. Jennings had only remained silent this passage at arms would not have taken place. I did not come here with a chip on my shoulder looking for you, but I can't take my place here but Mr. Jennings is looking around for something to say to me. Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you, and then don't trouble. I didn't think of you at all, I had no idea where you were to-night. The first I knew of you was when your voice rang out, "Mr. Speaker. I draw your attention to the fact that the hon. members for St. John's East exceeded the five minutes. I don't want to cross swords with the honorable member any more than is necessary. If I have to administer punishment to the Hon. Minister or any other member of this House, it is not with relish I do it, but of necessity. In future might I ask him to keep silent, to refrain from interrupting, and observe the rudimentary principles of debate in this House. Now instead of the original five minutes I have taken nearly an hour, I have had to depart from the subject, wearying myself, and perhaps the government, and now I have to come back to it again. I move the adjournment of this House and in doing so I want to say I view the petition presented by Mr. Harris with the utmost seriousness and sympathy, sympathy for that gentleman who has had to expose his business to his fellow countrymen, and admit he has met with severe losses which have crippled his business of twenty-five years successful standing with feelings of indignation that the government of which he was a loyal supporter should have been responsible for this, feelings of surprise that members like Mr. Warren, Mr. Foote, Mr. Cheesman, and Mr. Small should have remained silent and inactive while their districts were being bled white, feelings of regret that I cannot support the prayer of the petition because of the principle it involves, feelings of hope that the government will arise like Phoenix out of the depths of their incompetency, and if they themselves have not the ability that they will seek assistance outside their own ranks. The position in Newfoundland is far more critical than the government thinks, or admits, our whole staple industry is at stake and this government is inactive, they adjourn from day to-day with nothing done for weeks at a time, last week they adjourned it from Thursday to to-day. They seem paralysed, and they have not the common decency to give up a charge which they cannot control, which they cannot protect. I ask them to attend to this matter with a full realisation of the seriousness of the situation, to give it their best attention, and to do so in the knowledge that this Opposition will be too ready to co-operate in a concerted attempt to save the land of which we are all so proud.

I regret Mr. Speaker, that I cannot like the others who have preceded me, thank you for the courtesy of the indulgence extended to them.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Venereal Diseases."

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled Returns of Reid-Newfoundland Company, under schedule "E" for period July 1st, 1919 to June 30th 1920.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Lewis gave Notice of Question.

Dr. Jones gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Vinicombe gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Bennett gave Notice of Question

MR. BENNETT—Asked Hon. the Min. of Posts and Telegraphs if it is correct that Mr. Geo. F. Moores, Post master at Heart's Content is pensioned, and if Mr. Walter Young is appointed in his place, if such is the case to state how long Mr. Moores has been in the public service, what is his age, and why he has been pensioned, also to state if any returned soldiers were applicants for the position, and if so why one of them was not appointed?

MR. HALFYARD—In reply to that question I might say that I did not see the Order Paper till I came here this afternoon. There is a mistake in the name. The gentleman in question is not pensioned. I asked over the 'phone how long he has been in the service, and I find it is six or seven years. I don't know his age. The reason he has retired because he is suffering and has been for the past six months from a peculiar illness. Two or three months ago a returned sailor made application for this position, but at the time we were hoping he would be able to return to his position. I understand that the gentleman who applied has since found employment of perhaps a more remunerative nature. I do not know of any other application.

MR. BENNETT—I would like to point out to the Minister that I don't think it is good enough for a Minister to come here and say he did not see the Order Paper. The custom is to have an Order Paper sent to the different departments before the session, and I would ask him to let me have that answer in writing on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Min. of Finance and Customs, if it is correct that the sugar remaining in the hands of the Food Control Board has all been disposed of to one purchaser, if the said purchaser is J. J. Rossiter, if Hon. M. P. Gibbs is a silent partner in the firm of J. J. Rossiter; if J. J. Rossiter received any advance information as to the rate of duty to be imposed on sugar in the Budget; and if the government proposes to take any action to cancel the contract that appears to be of a suspicious character?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—All the sugar was not disposed of to one purchaser. Mr. Rossiter is one I think of nine purchasers. I do not know whether Mr. Gibbs is a silent partner in the firm of J. J. Rossiter. Mr. Rossiter had no advance information.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—To ask the Min. of Shipping what was the cost of the salt now in this city and imported by the government; what was the cost of freight; what do the other expenses amount to; what will the salt be sold at and what will be the loss, if any, to the government; also if the F. P. U. is interested to any extent in the importation of this cargo; and if so what steps are being taken to see that this organization bears its share of cost?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask hon. the Min. of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, to lay on the Table of the House the annual statement of the Reid Newfoundland Company for the year ending June 30th, 1920, and also a statement of the operations of the Railroad under the Commission for the ten months ending on the 30th of April of this year.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Tabled a reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Min. of Finance and Customs, if imports, of cube sugar have been permitted into the Colony during the last few days, and if such sugar is now being sold at from eighteen to twenty cents a pound, whereas granulated sugar costs a higher figure, and if so is not this import contrary to law and how does it happen that it has been permitted?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Tabled the information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Min. of Finance and Customs seeing that the Hon. Min. of Marine & Fisheries claims it is not in his department, to lay on the Table of the House a list of the foreign going vessels which ordinarily take away cargoes of codfish, now lying in this port; how many of the vessels are unemployed and the reason they are so unemployed; also an estimate of the number of seamen out of work as a result of unemployment, and what steps, if any, the government proposes to take to afford relief to the men so unemployed?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I will ask the Assistant Collector to prepare the information. It will probably be ready in a day or two.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Min. of Finance and Customs, to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the account of the General Contingencies from July 1st last to date.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Tabled a reply.

And it being past midnight.

THURSDAY, May 26th.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

BUDGET SPEECH.

(Owing to the illness of the Hon. H. J. Brownrigg, Minister Finance and Customs, the Budget Speech was delivered by Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., Prime Minister.)

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

May 25th, 1921.

Mr. Speaker, in accordance with the custom of the House I take the opportunity on this motion that the House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means to present the annual Budget.

It is a matter of great personal regret to every member of this Legislature that the Hon. H. J. Brownrigg, the Minister of Finance and Customs, has for many months past been suffering from an illness which has made his attendance to the business of his Department utterly impossible, and consequently the responsibility has devolved upon me of addressing you on this occasion.

During the period of War the contesting nations paid for the War in blood; now that the War is over, we in common with others have to make our payments in money. Newfoundland was glad as a patriotic Colony of our great Empire to bear its responsibility to the Empire and to civilization through its fighting forces on both sea and land and through its sacrifices at home, and now we have to face the post-war problems of re-organization, reconstruction and deflation, and at the same time carry the large liabilities which the War has entailed. Deflation, reconstruction and re-organization after the world turmoil of four years' War are naturally difficult and trying problems, and we have to approach them in a spirit of seriousness and self-sacrifice. The trade depression throughout the world has seriously affected Newfoundland, and while we are fortunate in not having in our Colony a depression so serious and a trade disorganization so extreme as in many other countries, yet we have to realize that Newfoundland is now passing through a period of trade depression, deflation and liquidation which demands the serious consideration of every patriotic Newfoundlander.

Our chief source is revenue of Customs returns, practically the whole of which is an ad valorem duty on imported goods. In November last the high prices which had prevailed dropped almost suddenly, with the consequent result of a great depreciation in Customs returns.

During the previous year the leading importing merchants had brought into this country goods estimated at a value of seven million dollars over and above the natural requirements for that year. Their decision to make these large importations was undoubtedly due to the fact that the termination of War did not, as was expected, cause an early depression in values, but instead prices continued to advance, and in view of the situation the importers felt that for their own protection large importations should be made. As a consequence last year's revenue was augmented by an estimated amount of two million dollars over and above the duties which would be collected on normal supplies for that year, with the result that the quantities of imports during the present fiscal year were proportionately reduced because of the large stocks on hand. This has necessarily meant a corresponding reduction in revenue. In other words, the increases of $3,299,243.88 in the Customs returns for 1919-20 over the year 1917-18 represented to a substantial extent duties collected on surplus stocks which are going into consumption during the current fiscal year, and a consequent reduction of revenue on this year's returns. In addition, there is a shortage in revenue due to general trade depression throughout the world and the shrinkage in taxable value of imported goods subject to taxation on an ad valorem basis.

I estimate that the total revenue from all sources to the 30th day of June next will be $8,244,104.18, made up as follows:

Customs	$6,060,709.15
Postal	234,674.80
Telegraph	150,436.02
Inland Revenue Stamps	55,224.80
Crown Lands	84,307.80
Taxes and Assessments	244,125.04
Fees Institutions	5,118.91
Excess Profits and Income Tax	600,494.92
Liquor Sales	345,877.90
Broom Department	8,701.14
Fines and Forfeitures	7,000.00
Interest Guaranteed Loans	56,485.24
Miscellaneous Revenue	160,948.46
Probate Duties	50,000.00
Amount of Arrears collectable from A.A.Tel.Co.	180,000.00

$8,244,104.18

This, together with estimated balance to the credit of Surplus Trust Account as at June 30th, 1921, amounting to $3,001,186.21, makes a total credit of $11,245,290.39 on Current Revenue and Surplus Trust Accounts.

The expenditure during the current fiscal year, estimated up to the 30th day of June next, amounts to a total of approximately $11,171,821.07, made up as follows:

Amount voted as per Estimates of last year	$9,766,859.24
Amount expended for which Supplementary Supply will be sought (estimated)	1,151,961.83
Expenditures under Audit Act	380,000.00
	$11,298,821.07
Less dropped balances surrendered to the Treasury, (estimated)	127,000.00

$11,171,821.07

This leaves a credit balance as at the 30th day of June next of $73,469.32. That is to say, the Colony liquidates its liabilities as on the 30th day of June next and starts the next fiscal year with a credit balance of $73,469.32 in the Surplus Trust Account.

An examination of the details of Supplementary Supply will show that large amounts were paid during the past year in connection with the necessary completion and equipment of undertaking inaugurated by the late Administration, such as the Sanatorium and Insane Asylum Extensions, the consequent additional cost and maintenance of these institutions, the consolidation of the Statutes of Newfoundland undertaken many years ago but only partly paid for by the late Administration, and various other projects the responsibilities for which fell upon this Administration to liquidate.

The serious problem to which I now direct your attention is the matter of finance for the coming fiscal year ending June 30th, 1922. In view of the present world turmoil in financial and industrial matters, and the trying circumstances incidental to deflation, the problem of estimating with any degree of accuracy is exceedingly difficult and consequently the figures which I shall submit are based upon a most conservative calculation, as it is imperative that this Legislature and the Colony should face the situation squarely from a purely business standpoint and be prepared to make the necessary sacrifices to ensure safe and sound financing.

Last year's Estimates amounted to a total of $9,766,859.24. The Estimates already tabled show a total of $8,143,796.30. This represents a preliminary reduction of $1,623,062.94 in the public services of the Colony. I say "Preliminary" because the Estimates as tabled show only such reductions as had been determined upon when the printers were instructed to submit the proof for further revision. The printers' strike has made it necessary for me to table the Estimates in that form, and I am submitting the further reductions separately, as under existing strike conditions great delay would result if any other course were followed. The exact figure of the estimated expenditure for the year 1921-22 is $7,885,295.15, together with the sum of $422,500.00, being interest for a period of thirteen months from the first day of June, 1921 to the 30th day of June, 1922, on the new loan of six million dollars, making a total estimated expenditure of $8,307,795.15. This shows a reduction of $1,881,564.09 in the estimated expenditure for the public services of the Colony, less new interest charge of $422,500.00, being a net reduction of $1,459,064.09.

It will be noticed that in the Estimates as tabled there has been no reduction in the salaries of civil servants. It is proposed that the salaries of civil servants as voted remain in the Estimates as at last year, and that a special bill be introduced making a percentage reduction in all civil servants' salaries, including the salary of His Excellency the Governor, the judges of the Supreme Court, Ministers of the Crown, and the sessional indemnity of members of the House of Assembly and Legislative Council. It is also proposed that a Civil Service Commission of three be appointed to examine into the various public services of the Colony and report to His Excellency the Governor in Council as to what steps may be taken to maintain the efficiency of the service at a substantially reduced cost. This Commission would also deal with any special cases of hardship which resulted from the application of the Salary Reduction Act, as it is quite possible that in the operations of a general law some salaries may be reduced below the pre-war standard, and in the event of a necessary office occupied by an efficient civil servant whose pre-war salary did not exceed the pre-war standard of salaries for civil servants, a serious injustice might result. I estimate that the proposed measure will represent a reduction in civil service salaries of $230,000.00. For the purpose of dealing with the Estimates, however, this does not appear as a reduction in the Estimates, but will appear as an addition to income, the intention being that the percentage reduction will be deducted as the salary cheques are issued by the responsible Departments.

The revenue for the coming fiscal year I have estimated as follows:

Customs	$4,470,000.00
Customs Surtax Increase	1,117,500.00
Customs Surtax on Liquor	30,000.00
Postal and Telegraphs	360,000.00

Crown Lands	80,000.00
Fines and Forfeitures	5,000.00
Inland Revenue Stamps	50,000.00
Guaranteed Interest	56,000.00
Broom Department Penitentiary	11,000.00
Fees Institutions, including General Hospital	35,000.00

Taxes:—

Banks, cable etc.	$60,000.00
A. A. Tel. Co.	60,000.00
Estate Duties	60,000.00
Liquor Sales	480,000.00
Income Tax	150,000.00
Arrears collectable under Business Excess
Profits and Income Tax	100,000.00
Miscellaneous Revenue	150,000.00
Proposed Sales Tax	900,000.00
Proposed Civil Service reduction	230,000.00
	<hr/>
	$8,404,500.00

Expenditure is estimated as follows:

Total estimated expenditure as per Estimates
1921-22	$7,885,295.15
13 months' interest on new loan at 6½ per cent.
on $6,000,000.00	422,500.00

$8,307,795.15

showing an estimated surplus on June 30th, 1922 of $96,704.85. Based upon present tariff, the revenue for the coming year would probably not exceed $6,127,000.00. The total expenditure estimated for the coming fiscal year is $8,307,795.15. Thus without additional sources of revenue there would on the 30th day of June, 1922, appear an estimated deficit of $2,180,795.15. The additional taxation proposed to meet this prospective liability is as follows:

Special War Tax of 25 p.c.	$1,147,500.00
Civil Service Salaries Reduction Act	230,000.00
Sales Tax	900,000.00
	<hr/>
Total Additional Taxation	2,277,500.00
Amount required as above	2,180,795.15

I do not propose to weary you with a discussion of past revenues and expenditures, because the conditions which we are now facing are not such as can be materially helped by a consideration of past returns. The situation is brought about by the unparalleled world conditions of war and the aftermath of war. We have to bear the interest burdens on a war expenditure of approximately $16,000,000.00. We have to face an estimated annual expenditure of $1,750,000.00 due immediately and directly to the participation of Newfoundland in the War. This sum includes interest on War expenditure, pensions for soldiers and sailors, increased hospital, sanitarium and other services to suitably provide for those who suffered during the War. In other words, our increased annual burden immediately and directly attributable to Newfoundland's participation in the War is estimated at $1,750,000.00, and the indirect burden several million dollars additional for all of which revenue in addition to pre-war revenue must be secured.

It was the intention of the Minister of Finance and Customs to have submitted a revised tariff at this session of the Legislature, and considerable preliminary work was done with that in view. The illness of the Minister of Finance and Customs for such a long period of time and the fact that it may be impossible for him to attend the House during the present session has made the carrying out of that program impracticable. A commission will consequently be appointed for the purpose of a revision of the tariff, so that at the next session of the Legislature such may be considered and taxation placed upon a more equitable basis than it is at present.

The Sales Tax to which reference has been made takes the place of the Business Profits Tax, which tax is not now in existence.

It is proposed to introduce legislation during the present session to provide for the leasing of some of the many salmon fishing pools in the country, and while I have not estimated any revenue from that source for the coming fiscal year, yet it is a program which may reasonably be anticipated to bring in some returns during the coming year and be a most productive source of revenue in years to come.

The following are the trade returns for the past five years:—

Year	Imports	Exports
1915-16	$16,427,336	$18,969,493
1916-17	21,318,310	22,381,762
1917-18	26,892,946	30,153,517
1918-19	33,297,184	36,784,616
1919-20	40,533,388	34,865,438

From the above figures it will be noted that the Imports of 1916-17 exceeded those of 1915-16 by $4,390,974; those of 1917-18 exceeded those of 1916-17 by $5,574,636, and those of 1918-19 exceeded those of 1917-18 by $6,404,238. The value of the imports between 1915-16 and 1918-19 doubled; there is no doubt that during those years there was a large importation, but the increase in the amount of value was due largely to the increase in the cost of goods. I would particularly call attention to the difference in the amount of imports between 1918-19 and 1919-20 which amounts to $7,236,204. This excess is not in any way due to increased prices, as the average of prices for 1919-20 was, if anything, slightly less than for 1918-19, hence it is clear that the large increase of importation, amounting of 22½ per cent. above that of 1918-19 is due mainly, if not solely, to over importation. This would not only account for the large revenue of the year 1919-20 but would also largely account for the shortness in revenue at present, as there is a large amount of capital locked up in stocks that are remaining in the hands of Importers. In looking through the importations I find the following in excess of the previous year:

Dry Goods	$379,935
Confectionery	122,279
Groceries	223,921
Fancy wares	12,000
Jams and Jellies	44,128
Jewellery	22,804
Leatherware	62,854

Automobiles	45,301
Meats, canned	108,020
Preserved Meats	18,315
Fresh Meats	207,152
Poultry and Game	32,746
Bacon, Hams and Tongues	30,467
Barrelled Beef	274,575
Oiled Clothes	55,023
Paper Hangings	58,310
Musical Instruments	17,650
Perfumery	11,818
Readymades	361,875
Feathers, Ribbons, Velvet, etc.	150,370
Soap	61,185
Sugar	1,142,543 lbs.
Tea	$91,882
Tobacco, Cigars, etc.	34,007
Tweeds and Cloths	204,250
Women's Dress Goods	67,687

These are a few of the principal excess importations for the year 1919-20.

The year 1919-20 is the first year since 1912-13 that the Imports have exceeded the Exports; then the amount of difference was $1,339,476, last year the excess of Imports amounted to $5,667,950.

Our total funded debt as a Colony will on the 30th day of June, 1921, be approximately $49,000,000.00. Of this amount approximately $2,000,000.00 represents the Municipal debt of the city of St. John's. This Colony consequently compares in an exceptionally favorable manner with other colonies and countries in that (the total funded indebtedness of the entire Colony, including all Municipal indebtedness, will on the 30th day of June, 1921, be less than $50,000,000.00.

The loan of $6,000,000 which has recently been floated is being applied approximately as follows:

- (a) $2,500,000.00 approximately for railway purposes. This includes the $1,500,000 Loan Act of last year, which money was raised as a temporary loan from the Bank of Montreal, and the cost of purchase of certain new and improved equipment, certain railway improvements, and that portion of the deficit for which the Colony is responsible on current year's operations.
- (b) $90,000 approximately for the St. John's Municipal Council, which $500,000 is the capital indebtedness of the Municipal Council for public works during recent years and upon which the Council will pay the annual interest charge.
- (c) $500,000 for Public Works.
- (d) $1,000,000 as a refund to the Surplus Trust Account of moneys paid out of the Surplus Trust Account for War purposes which sum should have been borne on capital account.
- (e) $1,500,000 as a reserve for the general purposes of the Colony.

This means that the Colony will have approximately $2,500,000.00 out of the total loan of $6,000,000.00 as a reserve.

The Newfoundland Railway problem has not worked out very satisfactorily during the past year under the joint management created by the appointment of the Railway Commission whose term of office expires on the 30th day of June next. The operations of the railway will not be continued under the control of the Railway Commission after that date. If the Reid Newfoundland Company is not in a position to further finance their undertakings and carry out their contractual obligations to the Government, the Reid Newfoundland Company may find it necessary to wind up its operations in Newfoundland, when the many important legal and financial matters outstanding between the Government and the Reid Newfoundland Company will have to be determined by legal or other proceedings, and the railway and steamship systems operated by a receiver, so that the public transportation services of the Colony may not be interfered with, in which event entirely new arrangements must necessarily be made for the management and operation of the railway and coastal systems. In any event, a program for railway and coastal reorganization will be submitted to the Legislature at its next session.

I feel that I should not let this occasion pass without expressing my deep regret that there are some unpatriotic Newfoundlanders amongst us who by their voice in this House of Assembly, by their private conversations both at home and abroad, and by their writings in the local and foreign press, have for their own personal and supposed political advantage been prepared to attempt to sacrifice the financial reputation of the land of their birth on the altar of their own personal selfishness and ambition. For more than a year and a half there has been a concerted attempt of political opposition origin to injure the foreign trade and foreign credit of our Colony for the deliberate purpose of embarrassing the Government in this hour of world turmoil and deflation. I desire merely to say to my fellow countrymen who are loyal Newfoundlanders that such men are few, and as the years go by will count for less and less in Newfoundland life and as an influence abroad; and to the world at large I would say that Newfoundland already crossed the trough of the wave of depression and is steadily rising to a greater and more permanent prosperity than ever before.

The resolutions which I propose to submit to the Committee may be summarized as follows—

- duties; in the case of spirits 50 p.c.
2. A reduction and adjustment of the export tax on fish. The reduction is estimated at approximately 20 p.c. of present export tax. The adjustment in favour of Newfoundland registered vessels is an encouragement and protection for locally owned and operated shipping.
 3. An adjustment on imported sole leather, so that manufacturers who import sale leather in strips be not discriminated against, and the further manufacture of boots and shoes encouraged.
 4. The preference recently given to Kerosene Oil when imported in wood packages is to be repealed.
 5. The exemption clause in the Income War Tax Act, 1918 is made clearer in certain particulars and clergymen are made exempt from income taxation.
 6. The irregular practice of a sturdy ten years' growth by which free entries have been permitted and drawbacks and refunds given without special statutory authority is declared illegal.
 7. Home Industries are protected by the proposal enactment of special "Dumping" legislation.

8. The bank tax formerly collected under the Business Profits Act is continued.

I append hereto for the information of the Committee the following comparative statements in tabular form:

(a) Statement showing original estimates of expenditures, Supplemental Supply and expenditures under Audit Act, for a period of ten years; a statement of revenue and expenditure, showing Surplus or Deficit, covering a period of ten years; a statement of the public debt, showing interest charges thereon for a period of ten years.

(b) Statement of revenue, showing the various heads under which the revenue is scored, covering a ten-year period.

(c) Statement of estimates of salaries of civil servants from the year 1914-15 to the year 1919-20.

(d) Details of percentage increases to salaries, illustrating the effects on salaries of increases from 1916-17 to date.

(e) Statement of Surplus Trust Fund estimated as at the 30th day of June, 1921.

RESOLUTIONS.

Submitted to a Committee of the Whole House on Way and Means

Resolved—

(a) In addition to the duties, including excise duties, imposed by the Revenue Act, 1905, and by the Act in amendment thereof, and by the Resolutions tabled on Thursday the 19th day of May instant, and by these Resolutions, and in addition to the Surtax imposed by the Revenue Amendment Act, 1914 (4 Geo. V. Cap. XXV), there shall be paid a special War Surtax of twenty-five per cent (25%) upon the total amount payable in respect of all such duties, except only in the case of duties imposed upon coal and upon spirits the subject-matter of Item 133 of Schedule A to the Revenue Act, 1905, and of the excise duties imposed upon Butterine manufactured in the Colony, upon which last mentioned duties the said special War Surtax of twenty-five per cent. shall not be levied or collected.

(b) In addition to the duties, including excise duties, imposed by the Revenue Act, 1905, and Acts in amendment thereof, upon Spirits the subject matter of Item 133 of Schedule A to the Revenue Act, 1905, and Acts in amendment thereof, there shall be paid a special War Surtax of fifty per cent. (50%) upon the total amount payable in respect of all such duties.

(c) Whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the Governor-in-Council that the operation of the said surtax is producing a revenue in excess of the requirements of the public service, it shall be lawful for the Governor-in-Council, by Proclamation in the "Royal Gazette," to reduce the rate of the said surtax to such an extent as will in the opinion of the Governor-in-Council suffice to provide for the said requirements, and from the date fixed by such Proclamation the said reduced rate, and no other, shall apply.

RESOLUTION II.

Resolved,—

That Schedule E. of the Revenue Act, 1905. be amended by substituting for the item

"Fish, viz.: Cod, Haddock, Hake, Ling, Pollack, and Halibut, dried or otherwise preserved, per quintal, 20 cents."

"Fish, viz.: Cod, Haddock, Hake, Ling, Halibut and Turbot, fresh or exported from salt bulk, without spreading or airing, N.E.S. per cwt., 10 cents."

the items following—

"Fish, viz.: Cod, Haddock, Hake, Ling, Pollack and Halibut, dried or otherwise preserved, N.E.S. when exported in ships or vessels not registered in Newfoundland, per qtl., 10 cents."

"When exported in ships or vessels registered in Newfoundland, per qtl., 20 cents."

"Fish, viz.: Cod, Haddock, Hake, Ling, Pollack, Halibut and Turbot, fresh or exported from 'Salt Bulk' without spreading or airing, N.E.S. per cwt., 15 cents."

RESOLUTION III.

Resolved,—

That Item 90 of Schedule A of the Revenue Act, 1905, as amended by subsequent Acts, be further amended by striking out the words in Item 90, viz.:—

"Leather, known as 'Sole Leather' ad. val. 30 p.c."

and substituting therefor

"Leather known as 'Sole Leather' when imported by the side—lad. cal., "20%.

"Sole Leather, in strips or pieces and shaped, when imported by Manufacturers of boots and shoes for use in their factories to be used in the manufacture of Ladies' fine Boots and Shoes, ad, val. 20 p.c."

RESOLUTION IV.

Resolved,—

That sub-section (d) of Section 1 of Chapter 56 of the Acts 11 Geo. V. entitled "An Act further to Amend the Revenue Act, 1905" be repealed.

RESOLUTION V.

Resolved,—

That sub-section (a) of Section 5 of the Income War Tax Act of 1918 be stricken out and the following substituted therefor:

(a) The income of the Governor, the judges of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland, the Judge of the Central District Court, and clergymen of all "religious denominations."

RESOLUTION VI.

Resolved,—

That no free entry, drawback, refund or reduction of revenue shall be deemed legal, unless expressly authorized by Statute. Provided, however, that His Excellency the Governor in Council may, by Order in Council, permit drawbacks or refunds with respect to stores required by the Admiralty, for the use of H.M.S. "Briton," upon which stores duty has been paid by the importer.

RESOLUTION VII.

Resolved.—

(a) That in the case of articles exported to Newfoundland of a class or kind made in Newfoundland, if the export or actual selling price to an importer in Newfoundland be less than the fair market value of the same article when sold for home consumption in the usual and ordinary course in the country whence exported to Newfoundland at the time of its exportation to Newfoundland, there shall, in addition to the duties otherwise established, be levied, collected and paid on such article on its importation into Newfoundland, a special duty (or dumping duty) equal to the difference between the said selling price of the article for export and the said fair market value thereof for home consumption.

Provided that the said special duty shall not exceed twenty-five per cent. ad valorem in any case;

Provided further that the excise duties shall be disregarded in estimating the market value of goods for the purpose of special duty.

(b) That the expression 'export price' or 'selling price' in this section shall be held to mean and include the exporters' price for the goods, exclusive of all charges thereon after their shipment from the place whence exported directly to Newfoundland.

(c) That if at any time it appears to the satisfaction of the Governor-in-Council, on a report from the Minister of Finance and Customs that the payment of the special duty by this section provided for is being evaded by the shipment of goods on consignment without sale prior to such shipment, the Governor-in-Council may in any case or class of cases authorize such action as it deems necessary to collect on such goods or any of them the same special duty as if the goods had been sold to an importer in Newfoundland prior to their shipment to Newfoundland.

(d) If the full amount of any special duty of Customs is not paid on goods imported, the Customs entry thereof shall be amended and the deficiency paid upon the demand of the Collector of Customs.

(e) The Minister of Finance and Customs may make such regulations as are deemed necessary for carrying out the provisions of this section and for the enforcement thereof.

(f) Such regulations may provide for the temporary exemption from special duty on any article or class of articles, when it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister of Finance and Customs that such articles are not made or sold in Newfoundland in substantial quantities, and offered for sale to all purchasers on equal terms.

(g) Such regulations may also provide for the exemption from special duty of any article when the difference between the fair market value and the selling price thereof to the importer as aforesaid amounts only to a small percentage of its fair market value.

RESOLUTION VIII.

Resolved,—

That there be paid to His Majesty by every bank and banking corporation doing business in Newfoundland, except the Newfoundland Government Savings Bank, an annual tax of one half of one per cent., to be computed on all moneys on deposit on December 31st of each year.

RESOLUTION IX.

Resolved,—

That these Resolutions come into effect at 9 a.m. on Thursday, the 26th day of May instant, except in so far as the special War Surtax affects sugar, which said surtax on sugar shall come into effect at 9 a.m. on Friday, the 27th day of May instant.

RESOLUTION X.

Resolved,—

That a Bill be introduced to give effect to these Resolutions.

RESOLUTIONS

Submitted to a Committee of the Whole House on Ways and Means.

Resolved,—That item 138 of Schedule "A" of the Revenue Act, 1905, as amended by subsequent Acts, be stricken out, and the following substituted therefor:

"Sugars, Loaf, Cut Loaf, Cube, Castor and Icing or Fine Ground, per lb. 5½ cents.

All other kinds of sugar, granulated or otherwise, white, brown or yellow, per lb. 4 cents.

Resolved,—

(a) The specific additional duty of two and a half cents per pound imposed on sugar as provided for in these resolutions and surtax thereon shall be placed to a separate account in the Bank of Montreal, to be held there for the purpose of liquidating the debit balance of the Food Control Board.

(b) Upon the certificate of the Auditor General that the amount of the deposits to the credit of the said account of the Food Control Board has entirely liquidated the debit balance of the said Board, the Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance and Customs, by proclamation published in the "Royal Gazette" reduce the duty on sugar, the said item 138 to then read as follows:

"Sugars, Loaf, Cut Loaf, Cube Castor and Icing or Fine Ground, per lb., 3 cents

"All other kinds of sugar, granulated or otherwise, White, Brown or Yellow, per lb., 1½ cents."

Resolved,—That a Bill be introduced to give effect to these resolutions.

Resolved,—These resolutions shall be held to be in force and to take effect as from the 20th day of May, at 9.30 o'clock in the morning.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, May 26th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

MR. HIGGINS.—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present two petitions, the first from residents of that section which may be regarded as No Mans' Land just outside the boundary of the City Council around Belvidere. In the past few years a number of houses have sprung up there and there are about fifty or sixty families living there. I believe that under the new Charter it is the intention to include this section in the activities of the Council, but up to the present it has been dependent upon the Board of Public Works. The petition is to ask for assistance with regard to roads out of the Government grant. I have great pleasure in supporting the prayer of this petition, and I would like to point out to the Minister of Public Works that it is a case where the money will be well spent for two reasons, first because of the amount of property there, and secondly because the roads around there are used considerably, and the people who would be employed in the work on those roads are the very people who are in need of work now.

The petition from Torbay has regard to a road on the South Side, and it will be found by the Minister of Public Works if he consults Mr. Parsons the Inspector of Roads, that it is a fact where it won't cost much, and it can easily be arranged out of the grants for that section of the district. I trust that these petitions will receive due consideration from the Department to which they appertain.

MR. FOX.—I beg to support the petition presented by my colleague, Mr. Higgins. The amount is not large and the object is a very deserving one. I trust that these petitions will receive due consideration from the Department to which they belong, and that the Government will see their way clear to grant the prayer of these petitions.

MR. VINNICOMBE.—Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the petition presented by Mr. Higgins. Those people around Belvidere are badly in need of the road asked for, and I feel sure that when this petition comes before the Minister of Public Works that he will do his utmost to see that the prayer of the petitioners is granted, as I am sure any member of the Government would do if he would go up there and see the condition of these people. With regard to the petition from Torbay, with Mr. Higgins I say that it will not cost much and it is a very necessary work, and I am sure that the Government will give this matter due consideration and grant the prayer of the petitioners.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sinnott gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the bill entitled, "An Act Respecting Venereal Diseases" was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Speaker, may I crave your indulgence and the indulgence of the House while I ask the Prime Minister what programme or arrangements have been made as far as the fishery supply is concerned. I understand Placentia Bay made application for a certain sum of money to supply the need in that district. I am sorry to say Ferryland is proportionately in the same position, and I would like to know from the Prime Minister this afternoon, if on representation from us Ferryland will be extended the same privilege as Placentia Bay.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Ferryland will receive the same per capita. Ferryland and Placentia are in a particularly bad position because of the failure of the two big firms in those places, Goodridges' in Ferryland and Harris & Co., in Placentia Bay, and consequently those sections of the country are so situated that unless merchants are encouraged to handle the situation, it will be impossible for the men to prosecute the fishery. No other sections are being considered.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if he has yet received any report from Messrs. Collishaw and Devine in reference to their recent visit to Washington, and if so to lay a copy of the same on the Table of the House, together with a statement showing the expenses incurred in connection with such visit, and if no report has been received, when does he expect to receive it?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No report has yet been received, and no bill has been received from any person. I expect a report from Mr. Devine.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if it is the intention of the Government in recalling the Trade Commissioners from the various centres in European countries where they have been acting lately, to appoint Mr. George Hawes to represent the Colony instead, and if so what compensation Mr. Hawes is to receive for his services and what guarantee will the country have that Mr. Hawes will not utilize his position for his own advantage rather than the country's advantage, as suggested by the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the notes on his European trip which he published in the Advocate after his return here, wherein he expressed opinions very hostile to Mr. Hawes.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It is not the intention of the Government to appoint Mr. George Hawes to represent the Colony on the lapse of the appointment of the present Trade Commissioners.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs, if the duties on the six motor cars given entries some months ago without payment of duty, has since been paid, and if not what steps is the Government going to take to secure payment of the same, and if the Government proposes to take no steps, what is the reason for such failure to act?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I will ask the Assitant Collector to favour me with that information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if his attention had been called to an advertisement in the "Evening Telegram" of Monday last offering for sale eight new houses on Merrymeeting Road near St. Georges Field, described as up-to-date in every particular and ready for occupancy, and if so (a) to say if these houses are part of the twenty houses constructed during the past year by the Company of which the Hon. John Anderson is the moving spirit; (b) if these houses were constructed by Mr. Andersons Company for the firm of Bowring Bros., Ltd., who intended to rent them to reliable workmen in their employ or to sell them to them on easy payment terms; (c) if Bowring Bros. have found that these houses have cost roughly twice the estimated amount and will therefore require a rental to be paid double that expected; (d) if as a consequence the houses are beyond the reach of the type of workman for whom they were designed and if Messrs. Bowring are selling them in consequence; and (e) if, in view of this proof that these houses are not suited for the working classes, what steps does the Government propose to take to redeem the Prime Minister's promise to the people of St. John's in his manifesto prior to the last general election, that one of the first steps the Government would take would be to solve the housing problem of the city?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I will ask my Deputy, Mr. Mews, to try to get that information.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraph to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence between himself and the Commercial Cable Co., or any other Company in relation to telegraphy in the Colony.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.—I beg to table a reply.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the financial statement of this Colony on which the recent loan was raised in New York.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No financial statement was furnished.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs (a) who is going to sign the Bonds representing the new Loan; (b) if Mr. J. S. Keating, Deputy Minister of Finance, is to proceed to New York shortly in order to undertake certain duties in connection with the floatation of this Loan; (c) if so why has it become necessary to take this step seeing that in all former cases when Loans have been raised outside the Colony it has not been necessary to send any official for such purpose; (d) in view of the illness of the Minister of Finance and the proposed absence of the Deputy Minister, who is to take charge of the affairs of the Finance Department?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The interim bonds will have the name of the Minister lithographed. They will be signed by the Deputy. Mr. Keating proceeded to New York on Wednesday for the purpose of signing the interim bonds. A Minute of Council as authority to sign the interim bonds has been given Mr. Keating.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the following questions: (1) Have any of the Coastwise Fishery Wardens been dismissed this year. (2) Have any of the Inland Game Fishery Wardens been dismissed this year. (3) If so to Table a list of all officials so dismissed, giving reasons.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table a reply.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railroad Commission, to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing what would have been paid for the private car occupied by him on his weekly trips to Port Union and return at the same rates charged ordinary travelers, and also what an ordinary passenger would pay for his first class ticket from St. Johns to Port Union and return for as many trips as made by the Minister since the first of July last.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I have referred that question to Mr. Hall.

MR. LEWIS asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, if a lot of material has been imported for the railroad system the past two years for which there is no immediate need, and if this material was ordered by an official of the Railway Company who comes from the organization which manufactures this material, and if so does this mean that this individual is working in the interests of his former employers and receiving a Commission from them for the ordering and bringing in here of a lot of material that is not being used; Also if the Government asked for bids or tenders for the new locomotives imported the past winter, or whether the order was placed with the Baldwin Locomotive people without tender; and if no tenders were sought why not; and if there is any report from any competent impartial authority certifying to the suitability of these locomotives for the work in this country for which they are to be used; and if there is any connection between the individual responsible for the ordering of these locomotives and other material and Mr. E. Collishaw?

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table a reply.

MR. LEWIS asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the value of food sent for relief purposes to the Districts of Burgeo, Fortune Bay, Burin and Placentia, from January the 1st to date, and the per capita value of the same among the people of each of these Districts.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I have called the attention of the Poor

Commissioner to that question, and hope to have a reply to-morrow.

DR. JONES asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, to lay on the Table of the House the names of the Fire Wardens appointed in the District of Hr. Main for the season 1921, giving rate of pay and length of engagement.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I'll table the answer to that question to-morrow.

MR. VINNICOMBE asked Hon. the Prime Minister if Mr. Albert Salter has been appointed by the Government to arrange for the supplying of relief goods to sufferers by forest fires during the year 1920 and if so to lay on the Table of the House a statement of all amounts paid him for his services in this connection and of all amounts paid for such relief goods and to whom?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No such arrangement has been made.

MR. BENNETT asked Hon. the Prime Minister (a) if the Government authorized the publication of a handbook of Newfoundland recently issued by the High Commissioner's Office in London and copies of which have been forwarded to members of this House and others; (b) who compiled the hand book and what amount, if any, was paid him for such work; (c) what sum was paid the publishers, Messrs. Whitehead and Morris Company of London for its issue and how many copies were included therein; (d) if the handbook for which Dr. Mosdell was recently paid $750, for the compilation and of which The Daily Star is to furnish 3,000 copies at 80 cents is the same handbook that has been published in London or a different one; (e) if these are two different books, what is the explanation of the publication of two at the same time and would not one or the other have done; (f) are any other handbooks or publications being prepared by authority of the Government or any Department thereof and if so who is preparing the same, what sum is being paid for the compilation thereof and what sum for the publication?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The Government did not authorize the publication to which reference has been made. No sum was paid to Messrs. Whitehead & Morris Co. London. The hand-book which Dr. Mosdell is preparing has no connection whatever with that published by Messrs. Whitehead & Morris & Co. There is no other publication being prepared on the authority of the government, unless there is any literature being sent out by the Agriculture & Mines Department.

MR. BENNETT—Asked the Prime Minister if it is correct that a British Warship is shortly to arrive here and if so to state the object of her visit, also to state if it is true that she is to take the Prime Minister of this Dominion over to England to attend the Imperial Conference to be held in London next month?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The ship to which reference is made is merely making the usual annual visit. The visits were interrupted during the war period. As to the last part of the question I might reply in the words of a well-known predecessor, the words are familiar to my hon. friend, "This is the first I have heard of it."

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker. The labor situation as it developed a few weeks ago resulted in a conference between the members of St. John's East and West and the Municipal Council, a matter in which the whole government was interested—but a matter in which the Municipality was primarily interested because of the large number of unemployed who came from the constituencies of St. John's East and West. The representatives of St. John's West met the Council and the matter was satisfactorily disposed of when a large additional number of men were employed on the roads to be opened up in the Western section of the city, and the Eastern Division as well. I put at the Council's service the surveyors of the Crown Land's department and the work was expedited thereby. On the Saturday in question the surveyors were on the spot and on the following Monday morning the men went to work. The arrangement as to wages was that the rate of wages was to be paid by the Municipality as for similar work outside the city limits namely two dollars per day that is as paid by the Public Works department, but it was municipal work in part, and as it was being done in the interests of the Electoral District of St. John's West that District agreed to pay half so that if the work was an external one undertaken in the ordinary course of business the rate would have been two dollars per day. This situation this afternoon is entirely new to me. As to whether my colleagues from St. John's East and West are aware of this I do not know and so far as I know there has not been any conference. I would suggest to the delegation the appointment of three or five members to compose a committee to discuss the premises in the situation and have it satisfactorily disposed of. The decision arrived at a few weeks ago after acting upon the suggestion of a conference between the members of the two districts worked out satisfactorily with the result that the work was undertaken and I take that the same organization will be only too glad to see what steps can be taken to have matters adjusted to the satisfaction of all. So far as to discussing the question here in this House it is utterly impossible. The work is being undertaken by the Municipal Council, but the money is being provided by the Government in the nature of a loan for which the Council is responsible, and for which they will have to pay interest. The only thing the government has to do was to secure the loan and the only thing I had personally to do with it was just that the Council should make it one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, so that it may have additional funds to deal with the necessities of the case. I suggest the appointment of three or five and have a conference called as soon as possible.

MR. BENNETT—I want to put myself clear as to my position in the matter. I must say that I know nothing whatever as to this demonstration. The Prime Minister has suggested that we on this side of the House knew something about it.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—If so I apologise.

MR. BENNETT—We had no knowledge whatever about this, but I must say that the prayer of the Committee before the House has my sympathy in view of the conditions existing in this town to-day. It is grave hardship to have one's wages cut these days, and as to my connection with this matter I want to inform the House and the gentlemen at the Bar that it ceased on the night I conferred with the Prime Minister and Council, and the representatives from St. John's East. I was asked to attend the conference and thereby devise means whereby these men may be employed. I have not been honoured since by being asked my opinions or being consulted as to the carrying out of its work.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I was not consulted either.

MR. BENNETT—The Prime Minister will pardon me if I will tell him that he is not absolutely correct. The road he has taken power to construct has my entire approval, but the work has been undertaken, the men employed, the position of foreman has been filled, the time keepers have been given their jobs and the general work commenced without my knowledge, so therefore I think it is absolutely futile for me to attend any conference, because well I do not intend to be treated with indifference and contempt any more. This matter was taken up clear of politics altogether, but it has not been carried out, though in its entirety as to the people who have been employed to my mind are political partizans, but I will assist the Prime Minister in anyway with regard to the district grants and the way so far they have been allocated, has my entire approval, and he has done what he pleased with the district grants since he has assumed office. The actions that are attributable to the Prime Minister are his own business and he may continue on. I may follow him.

MR. HIGGINS—Just a word from the representatives of St. John's East. So far as we are concerned we stand in an unusually fortunate position. We have a party of our own, and we do not stand in the same position as the honorable members for St. John's West. Further we are in the proud position to be able to tell the Prime Minister that not alone has there not been any conflict between ourselves but perhaps there has not been any conflict with the authorities at all. We attended the meeting and we understand the work is going on satisfactorily, and it is also gratifying to state to these men at the Bar that we from St. John's East are able to testify that we did not even visit the road so as to insult the cause for which this work is being given. The work being done out there is the best that can be desired, and I am given to understand that the workmen are certainly worthy of the consideration at the hands of the members of this House when the vote comes down later, worthy of the ready sympathy and endorsement of, this vote in spite of the comment upon the inefficient work which is supposed to have been carried out there, but I can assure you that out there have been and are time keepers who have actually dismissed men because of their improper conduct and regularly docked the time missed, and I know that in one instance where a man tried to bluff and say he worked full time when he did not, he had to forfeit his day's pay as a penalty. These facts show the spirit in which the matter is being lived up to, and there is an entire absence of anything that is bordering on disorder or impropriety, and I think there is great cause to compliment ourselves on the way in which the whole scheme is being worked out. Now if that spirit is wished to be availed and wanted to continue, I say with all sincerity that we ought to appreciate and court it, and give a sympathetic and ready ear to their request. There is no reason why we cannot deal satisfactorily with this message, delivered by the Council to the delegation. The Council certainly has today more than enough to cover the whole work. I am informed that it is said that there have to be arbitrations on land, and that these have to be taken into consideration, and that the sum is not sufficient, but here is the unfortunate position the Prime Minister has to face. The impressions created in the minds of these men was that one hundred and fifty thousand dollars was to be allocated to the Council for purely relief work, and in addition to this sum there was to be taken from each of the district grants the further sum of ten thousand dollars so that there would be the sum of one hundred and seventy thousand dollars at their disposal apart from the proposition with regard to water and sewer pipes. I trust my friends who are listening will not have a demonstration as this matter is too serious. I merely want to put the Prime Minister straight on behalf of the constituencies involved and on behalf of the Government itself. They say their impression is that the $80,000 is a district loan. Whether that impression is formed improperly or inspired improperly or is a conclusion jumped to as the result of impressions gained without full thought, the Hon. Prime Minister can take it from me that that is the whole crux of the situation. There are two troubles—first they are lead to believe that the loan for water works would be distinct from the $150,000, and second, they get a proposition put up to them reducing their pay to $2.50 per day. As far as the reduction is concerned that is a matter for the Council. If the money has been given to them the matter is in their hands, but the influence of the government ought to be strong enough to point out the anomaly of reducing these men who are Council employees while the others who are doing exactly the same class of work are paid $3.30 as they were in good times. I say it is unfair, for the reason that while recognizing that in time there must be a reduction of wages, there should be a standard rate for the one kind of work, and as the delegation put it, the cutting began at the wrong end. They have reason enough to say they expect a reduction sometime, but now they are asked to do for $2.50 what another man who is not on relief work gets $3.30 for. The honourable members can take it from me that to those men to whom every dollar means so much, this 80 cents a day, or $5 a week, is a very serious matter particularly as they have been so long unemployed, and their prospects for the future are so insecure. My suggestion to the Prime Minister is this; might not the government arrange to have the first impression of these men carried out, make this amount for water works a straight and separate loan. Say you have eaten up a lot of money in this relief work, but you most remember that all the amounts spent in this way comes back to the Colony, and really is no charge on the colony's funds. Cannot the Prime Minister arrange for an extra loan; it means no charge as it is a loan to the city. Instead of asking for $150,000, ask for more. It has been the practice for years to have the city loans guaranteed by the government. Any steps in that direction on behalf of the people will suit me and you will have my and their thanks.

MR. FOX—Mr. Speaker, Mr. Higgins has covered the situation so well that there is scarcely any need of my speaking. I fail to see why the original plans were not carried out. I took part with the Hon. Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett and my colleagues in the meeting with the Council; I attended in a consultative position. It was there suggested that work for 1100 men be found in the building of a new road in St. John's West, on Pearce Avenue and in the opening of other roads. Each district was to give $12,000 of its grant, the labour was to be given out on a non-partizan basis, the pay was to be $2.50 per day employment was to be given immediately and materials, such as picks, shovels etc., were to be obtained if necessary from the Reid & Co railway. We all left the chamber after that meeting with the impression that these plans were to be carried out, and I am at a loss to know why such was not done. I am in entire sympathy with the gentlemen at the Bar of the House and deeply regret that they have to come here again. I do not think it would be difficult to carry out the original plans and we, I think, should set ourselves to the task of finding out why they did not go on smoothly. I believe the situation is made more serious to-day by the reduction of the wages. That step is entirely opposed to the original plan, when it was distinctly understood that the pay be $3.30. That is one reason why the work was put under the direction of the Council. I would like to point out to the government that this is a matter for the authorities. If there is to be any solution it got to be reached by the government, as it is part of their duty to look after the people, and to consider what preparations can be made to overcome such difficulties as presented themselves. To-day we have only a Municipal Commission which is under direct control of the Government and which must do as they are told. I would again point out that the fact of it being a Commission eases the position for the government. But so far as the Commission can be helped I agree to help them to the full, but this is their business first, and foremost, and they cannot shift it to other shoulders. If aid is needed I will give it as far as I can, but I appeal to them, the government, to find out why the plans of 10 days were not carried out. If, as has been pointed out, destitution is abroad, this is no time for words but for action. I suggest to the government that they betake themselves to the task of finding out the reason why the plans did not work smoothly and ask themselves what is the matter. If they do not know themselves let them enquire and find out. I ask the spokesman of the delegation at the Bar to ask his followers to restrain themselves and remember the government may be in a serious position. All must see that the demonstration is kept within the bounds of propriety and that nothing is being done, that may cause regret, nothing that may seem to flout authority, but let all come together and try to find the best solution. In all sincerity I congratulate the leaders of the unemployed on the manner in which they have all through handled the demonstration and the good order prevailing in their ranks. They have indeed been tested to the limit, and are to be congratulated on the manner in which they have held themselves in leash. I ask them to continue in that spirit, and I ask the government to see that the situation is taken up and an offer of help made. I ask them to respond in the spirit in which we of the Opposition have offered to assist.

MR. BENNETT—Just a word, Mr. Speaker in corroboration of the statements of the members of St. John's that of the loan originally granted a portion was intended for the purchase of water pipes—some $30,000. That, I think, the Council negotiated months ago, before this situation arose. The pipes would not be here for some time and as the money had been ear-marked for this purpose, they refused to spend it on other work. As has been pointed out they are not a Council, but a Commission and should do as they are told or resign. I hope and feel that the situation will be overcome and that such a step as their resignation will not be necessary. One feature about this employment in which I fear sufficient enquiry has not been made, is as to who is really in need of employment. I have here a letter, which if correct, as I have no doubt it is, will show the indescribable state of things in St. John's West. Before the last election we started to build a road to circle Mundy's Pond, but it was stopped 10 days before nomination. Then the Winter came on, and it was not completed that Fall. Now they are working on it. While I had the honor of representing St. John's West, a period of 17 years, there was never any discrimination as to work shown there. If a man asked for work, he was treated as his neighbor. I am sorry to say this is not the case now. A few days ago the Minister of Public Works tabled a statement which showed that at Gunner's Cove $2,000 was expended on work, and not one of my supporters got a day's employment. I will not mention names, but I will read this letter which is from a hard working man with a large family. He states that work was given to four men of one family though they had no children to support or school or clothing to provide for, while he, the writer, who has a large family was not taken on and had become tired of asking the Inspector for a job. He is asking for aid for a dozen other families as well as his own. If this case be true there is discrimination of the worst kind, as the four men mentioned are single, Are the children to starve while others not needing it are given employment. I ask the Prime Minister to look into this and if these are deserving cases to give them help. Those not in need should not be employed. The money was given to aid those in distress and why are they kept out. We are not here to-day to help the well-off, but the poor and destitute. I hope that from this afternoon care will be taken to see that the deserving get the work and if they are too weak to stand up, give them a chance to get some food into their bodies. A few days ago a man working near Bennett's Dam actually fell down from hunger. It was not proper to discharge that man; he should be given a chance to get some nourishment. Though I said a few moments ago, I would have nothing to do with it. I am prepared to support any steps you, Mr. Prime Minister, may take to get over this situation. If you can meet it you will have my endorsement and admiration. Again I wish to express my sympathy with the gentlemen at the Bar.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER
Mr. Speaker, I wish to express my appreciation of the assurances of co-operation by Mr. Bennett and his colleagues in this matter. In reference to what Mr. Bennett has stated, I say there is no need of any family being destitute. At no moment since the opening of the road in the West End has the full number of men been employed on it; there is always been room for from 50 to 80 more. No man has been refused employment because he was not poor. The work is under direction of the West End Inspector who is a thoroughly capable man. If any man in that section where the work is going on is out of employment, all he has to do is apply for it. Mr. Fox has put it as to the Council very clearly; the plans laid at that meeting were definite. As he will remember, I even offered the assistance of the surveyors from the Crown Lands Office in arranging for the work. They made their survey and to make sure that everything was alright, I was at the spot at 7 o'clock in the morning to see that all were on the job, and that the work was taken up. I have been assured the work has gone on well though the full number of men has not been employed. It may be as Mr. Higgins says, that the loan of $150,000 is the crux of the whole situation. It never occurred to me that such an impression as he refers to could get abroad; that $35,000 was for material and $115,000 for labor. Eighty thousand was for water works which means there would be $35,000 short.

MR. HIGGINS—The Council has ear-marked $80,000 and would not start other work with it.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—If the Council wants that we will facilitate them in the matter.

The remaining orders of the day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon, at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, May 27th.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. Prime Minister, in order to facilitate the discussion of the Budget, to lay on the Table of the House the following statements:

(a) Details of the item, "Amount of

- arrears collectable from the A.A. Telegraph Company—$180,000.00 appearing on page two of the typescript of his Budget Speech.
- (b) Details of the estimated balance to the credit of Surplus Trust Account as at June 30th, 1921, amounting to $3,001,186," as shown on page three.
- (c) Details of the "amount expended for which Supplemental Supply will be sought, estimated at $1,151,961," as shown on page three.
- (d) Details of expenditure under Audit Act $380,000, as shown on page three.
- (e) Why, in his estimate of Interest payments of $42,500 on the new Loan for the thirteen months from June first next to June 30th, 1922, he makes no provision for exchange which at present is about twelve per cent. and which at that rate would represent an additional charge of about $50,000.
- (f) If in his plans for meeting our obligations he is making any provision for liquidating our loan to the British Government, roundly two million dollars, and if not why not, as he claims that the Colony will have two and one-half million dollars out of the total Loan of six million dollars as a reserve.
- (g) An outline of the proposed scheme of reducing salaries of public officials.
- (h) Details of the $2,500,000 described as approximately for Railway purposes, on page 9.
- (i) Details of the one million dollars described as "a refund to the Surplus Trust Account of moneys paid out for war purposes, which sum should have been borne on capital account" as told on the same page.
- (j) What liabilities, if any, will exist as against the sum approximately $2,500,000 which he claims the Colony will have out of the six million dollar loan as a reserve as shown on page 9, also
- (k) From what source he proposes to pay (1) any losses sustained on the Government's purchase of fish, salt, and sugar; (2) guarantees on pit props, fishery supplies and other things, if any; (3) payments on account of Poor Relief and any extraordinary undertakings during the present calendar year; and (4) expenditure on the railway after the first of June next:
- (l) What steps does the Government propose to take in the event of the Reid Newfoundland Company failing to operate the railroad system after July 1st, and how are the financial obligations which would then ensue to the Colony be met;
- (m) A statement giving the names, positions and salaries of all new appointments to the public service, including Trade Commissioners, Educational Inspectors and others, made since the 15th of November, 1919.
- (n) The amount of money on deposits in the Newfoundland Savings Bank, and in the Savings' Bank Department of the other Banks doing business in this Colony on the 31st of Dec., 1920, 1919, 1918, 1917, 1916, as shown by the annual reports of these banks to the Department of Finance and Customs, also the amount of deposits bearing interest in the various Banks doing business in the Colony at the end of each of the above years, as shown by the same statement.
- (o) A statement of the Customs Revenue for the financial year of 1920 giving (1) the amounts received at the various rates of duty as far as possible, (2) the amount of the present surtax of ten per cent. on duties and (3) what increase in the existing rates of duties, roundly will the special War Tax of twenty-five per cent. represent.

- (p) A statement of the dutiable imports and free imports for each of the past five financial years, the amount of duty paid in each of these years, distinguishing between the regular duty and the surtax in each year.
- (q) Details of his proposed scheme for a sales tax and how he proposes to raise by this means a sum of $900,000 as indicated on page 6, of his typescript.
- (r) To Table a copy of the Customs Blue Book for the financial year 1919-20 if printed and if not to table a manuscript copy of the same;
- (s) To Table a copy of the detailed statement of the expenditure of the Colony for the financial year 1919-20.
- (t) To Table copies of all correspondence and reports of the Auditor General in connection with the proposed reductions in the salaries of Civil Servants, the proposed special War Tax and the proposed Sales Tax, and any other correspondence with reference to matters covered in the Budget.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I think the Leader of the Opposition will agree with me that it would require some time to prepare an answer to this question as asked by him on to-day's Order Paper but I will ask the reporter to take it down and furnish it to the Leader of the Opposition as soon as possible.

With respect to

(a) That amount of one hundred and eighty thousand dollars ($180,000) is an amount which the Anglo American Company will owe the Government up to July next, I have not the exact dates. As to this sum of one hundred and eighty thousand due by the Company as to whether there is a difference of one or two months does not materially affect the discussion of the Budget.

(b) These will be tabled shortly.

(c) I hope to have these this evening and if I do not have them before the House closes I will send them to the Leader of the Opposition to-night or to-morrow morning.

(d) This sum was spent out of the sum of Five hundred thousand dollars on the purchase of fish. This sum is the estimated expenditure. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries did not know there was a letter of credit and the amounts as drawn were only member knows well the procedure. then placed to credit. I think the hon. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries had authority to draw to the extent of five hundred thousand but the five hundred thousand was not at any time placed to his credit. A Minute of Council authorized the drawing out of a sum up to Five hundred thousand dollars and no more.

(e) The exchange was not included for this reason. The Government for the past few years has had a large credit balance on exchange account. The credit balance on exchange account is in the vicinity of forty-four or forty-five thousand dollars. It was estimated that the situation next year would be somewhat similar to the last year, the English exchange would go up and there would be a depreciation of the American exchange so there would be a few thousand dollars one way or the other. I estimated sterling on the basis of four dollars and eighty-six and two-thirds cents and I put the American dollar at one hundred cents just the same as the Minister of Finance three years ago estimated his basis. If you put the American dollar above par then you would have to put the Sterling under.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You are out many thousands of dollars. Answer my question. Don't be afraid.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—You have asked the question and I have answered it.

(f) No. The loan due the British Government will be brought forward in the Estimates.

(g) That will be introduced in the form of a special Bill or Resolution. It is to the following effect. Ten per cent. reduction on salaries up to five hundred dollars; from five hundred to one thousand dollars, fifteen per cent.; over one thousand dollars, twenty per cent.; that does not mean that the man with a salary over one thousand will have to pay twenty per cent.; first ten per cent. on the first five hundred; fifteen per cent on the second five hundred and twenty per cent. on the amount over one thousand. The estimated gross reduction will amount to slightly over two hundred and thirty-one thousand dollars taking the exact figures of the department.

(h) That sum includes first a temporary loan raised from the Bank of Montreal. The further sum of one million is the sum necessary according to the Auditor General's report to close the railway transaction from June 1921. This includes the purchase of engines, the cost of the Argentinia terminal, the cost of coal operations, railway ballasting and ties. This is giving you a general idea. I desire to give the information as fully as possible. The details of the question will be laid on the table later to-day.

(i & j) I will send these to the home of Sir Michael Cashin as soon as I receive them. They are in accordance with my observations with respect to the supplemental supply.

(k) With regard to the purchase of fish with the sum of three hundred and eighty thousand dollars that whole sum is a debit. The credit does not show any amount at all. The amount paid out was three hundred and eighty thousand dollars in accordance with the papers already tabled.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—There are other expenses besides. I would like to get in detail a statement of that fish transaction covering amount paid for storage and labour up to present time.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I will get that for the hon. member.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I was told outside this House that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was not going to answer my questions but was going to evade them. I was told by a gentleman who is a friend of his. The proof of the truth of that statement is that you have left unanswered about forty questions on the order paper. The Prime Minister has done his best to answer them for you but there have been no answers from your department. You will have to answer them.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—There are no more than five outstanding unanswered.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—you are not as you ought to be. You are under a cloud and you know it.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—This is more of your dirt and if you want to be dirty I can defend myself.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—This Colony has paid ten thousand five hundred dollars for your dirt and I have a copy here. You brought down a number of auditors here to incriminate Sir John Crosbie and myself. This is where you have exhibited your foul dirt. And then you have impudence to get up here and talk to me like that. You are a beaten dirty cur and you know it.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES. — The Government brought them down to see how the accounts and the various matters stood in the different departments.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—No, you brought them down to enquire into the doings of the late Government. I will furnish copy of it. You tried to furnish the country with proof that I was a scoundrel and a robber; and that cost the Colony ten thousand five hundred dollars. You have no right to dictate to me like that. You have a wrong conception of your duty to your country.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Before I resume my observations I wish Mr. Speaker, to have it noted that the Leader of the Opposition described the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as a beaten dirty cur. I merely want that noted.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—If you do not believe it I will write it over to you.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—With regard to question (k) re salt, on the debit side of the account there is the sum of seventy six thousand dollars and the entire credit is twenty seven thousand, four hundred dollars and the difference between the two is the total cost. The surplus trust account shows a deficit of the differences between the debit and credit which is the loss.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I think the Prime Minister is mistaken, (reads portion of the Budget Speech). That cargo went to Port Union. The last page of the Budget Speech estimates the surplus trust fund as it will stand on the end of June 31st., 1921. At the bottom of page there is a credit of $77,767.02, because the surplus trust paid it out as a banker would do so, it appears as a credit when it really is a debit. That is the total paid by the Colony. The credit is $27,400. With regard to the loss on Sugar, the total expenditure on sugar it appears as a credit in the surplus trust accounts, is $184,000. That sum has been transferred to a special account at the Bank of Montreal in the name of the Food Control Board. To this there has to be credited between forty and fifty thousand dollars, and the two and one half cents duty until the account is liquidated. The sugar situation has been anything but a sweet thing for me. With respect to the guarantees on pit props, fishery supplies, and other things, as to the pit props the owner has to give notice to the government by the first day of June as to the number of pit props he has taken up and the number he has sold. As to Poor relief, the amount of liability incurred up to the present is included in the Supplemental Supply. As to the expenditure on the railway after the first of June next, the government anticipates that the control of the railway Commission will cease on the 31st of June next and then the Company will or will not continue in the performance of its contractual obligations to the colony, and if it throws them down then it will go into liquidation. All the assets of the Company and its stock will go for the security to the government

THE HON. PRIME MINISTER.—If the leader of the Opposition will pardon me I will now answer his question re the Municipal Loan. The debt due by the Council to this date not including the present Royal Bank guarantee is one million four hundred and twenty nine thousand dollars, ($1,429,000). To this there has to be added approximately three hundred and twenty thousand ($320,000) the amount of the already liability of the Council to the Bank plus the new loan of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000).

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I wish to draw the attention of the Prime Minister to the answer handed me yesterday, to a question of mine asked the other day, and in reading the reply it would appear that there was other correspondence not furnished. How did Lea, Higginson and Company find out

—I took up the matter first when I was in Montreal in December, re the Bell Island matter. I had an interview with the people and asked them to send the Manager of the Dominion Securities to Newfoundland. All the negotiations were personal up to a few weeks ago. There was never any financial statement. I told the manager to see the Auditor General and the Minister of Finance and get all the facts he wanted. I do not know of any memo in writing.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Is it not possible to find out whether there was any other correspondence or not?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I will find out. There was no writing to my knowledge. When he visited the Auditor General the representative talked over the financial affairs of the country. I am not aware that he got a statement from the Finance Minister.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Will you undertake to ask those people if they had a financial statement of the country from here?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I will undertake to hand over any memo passing from the Auditor General or the Finance Minister.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Do you think these people were going to give a loan to the country without being furnished with a financial statement of the country? I will now tell you exactly the statement you gave him. You gave him the statement we handed down in 1919-20, and I go further and say that it may be claimed you obtained money under false pretences.

MR. HIGGINS—Arising out of the correspondence re the loan to the colony there is a letter dated May the 10th, 1921. I understand from the Prime Minister then there was no correspondence previous to May the 10th. Is it to be understood that this correspondence really occurred after this gentleman had reported to his principals?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I cannot tell you what report he made to his principals.

MR. HIGGINS—You can surely speak for yourself while in Montreal. Do you mean to tell us that they confined themselves to enquiries concerning the conditions of the country twelve months ago?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—We did not discuss the financial position of Newfoundland. We came to the conclusion when they agreed to consider a loan to this colony.

MR. HIGGINS—This correspondence is very meagre and surely you ought to be able to find out what was done in the matter with regard to writing.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—The Auditor General and the Deputy Minister of Finance gave this gentleman all the information he required. I told the representative to get the information from what sources he liked and then come and see me.

MR. HIGGINS—You say there was nothing in writing so far as you know but you must recognize that they were not going to give a loan without having some thing in writing with regard to enquire as to the standing of the country. I endorse the position of the leader of the Opposition that at the next session we have some information from the Auditor General as to what happened.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I am sorry the Prime Minister did not tell us before that this gentleman was in town.

MR. BENNETT—I notice there is an absence of a Minute of Council which to my mind is essential to confirm such an arrangement as this. Was there one?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Yes. I was not asked to furnish it.

MR. SINNOTT—Asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to lay on the table of the House a detailed statement of Capt. Walter Kenney's expenses as Ships' Agent or Trade Commissioner for the calendar year 1920-21.

MR. MOORE—Asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of the House, a statement showing the total amount paid Messrs. Stafford—Druggists of this city, for drugs and other requisitions for the different public institutions from November 15, 1919 up to March 31st 1921, and to lay on the Table of the House, for inspection by Hon. members, the original bills furnished by Messrs. Stafford in regard thereto.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery.'" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

The Remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday next at three of the clock in the afternoon.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 30th, 1921.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled report of Commission on Prohibition.

Mr. Moore gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Walsh gave Notice of Question.

Mr. Sinnott gave Notice of Question.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—Mr. Speaker, before going on with the business of the House I would like to ask the Prime Minister if any decision has been reached with respect to supplying

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER

—Yes, the intention of the government is to let the various districts have an advance per capita on the basis of a $500,000 dollar fish guarantee out of a new loan account. This will be available when the new loan bill is past. The question as to each district will be left in the hands of the representatives of the district. It will be on a per capita basis. A half million was all the government thought it could spend.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—If that is so $12,000 is all we will get for Ferryland District; you can take that and add it to some other district. You have spent practically all the revenue of the Colony in other districts. You have recently added $80,000 to the Marine grant in Bonavista district. You have given half a million dollars for fish in a few districts that the rest of the country could not avail of. That was done in your absence. Now the rest of the districts must put up with their per capita share.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—How is this going to be distributed?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker, I beg to table a copy of the report of the Royal Commission on the matter of intoxicating liquors.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Min. of Justice, do I understand that the City Council at yesterday's sitting decided that inasmuch as the Commercial Cable Co., are now and have for sometime been doing business in this City if it is in order for the Council to collect the Telegraph Tax of four hundred dollars from that Company, and it was ordered that this be done forthwith?

Do I understand that the Act empowering the Council to impose this tax also empowers the Council to permit the Company paying the tax to carry on business in the city, and I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Justice how this will effect the exclusive rights of telegraphy as vested in the Nfld. Postal Telegraphs by special

Act of Legislature enacted, 1904 and what he proposes to do to preserve the integrity of these rights or are they being allowed to be by default.

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES—I have no knowledge of what was decided by the City Council at the sitting referred to. Any question of law regarding the City Council is one for the decision of the City Council's solicitor.

I cannot find anything in the Act referred to empowering the City Council to permit any telegraph company to carry on business in the colony. I have advised the government as to its rights, and I understand the matter is in the hands of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.

MR. MOORE—Asked Hon. the Min. of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity as Chairman of the Railway Commission:

- (a) if the new "folder" for the railroad recently issued was with his authority, and if not why;
- (b) how many copies were ordered and what was the cost of same.
- (c) was any person paid any sum of money for the preparation of the reading matter in the book, and if so, whom and what sum,
- (d) what was the cost of the ordinary time-table folder previously used and what amount would have been saved by continuing the old folder, and what is the object of issuing an expensive folder like the present and inducing tourists and other travellers to come here at a time when we have no hotels or other facilities for their convenience, and when, according to leading members of the government, the Railroad is in such a hopelessly broken down condition that it is unsafe to human life to travel over?

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Min. of Marine and Fisheries in his capacity of Chairman of the Railway Commission, if, in view of the Prime Minister's statement that the government intends to cancel the present arrangement for the operation of the railway at the end of June he has made any commitments involving the government in any financial liabilities with respect to the ballasting or improving of the Railroad across the country or other services which would involve the Colony in any payments after June 30th, and if so, to lay on the Table of the House a statement of the said commitments and an estimate of the amount the same will cost the colony.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a statement certified by the Auditor-General showing:

- (a) the disposition of the Temporary Loan of $1,500,000 raised by the Bank of Montreal on account of the Loan Act of last year, and giving the amounts paid for the purchase, freight, and setting up of the six locomotives recently brought in here;
- (b) the purchase, freight and cost of setting up of the fifty freight cars under erection;
- (c) the cost and freight on the fish plates for the Railroad if ordered and the cost of putting in position such of these as have been applied to the Railway irons on the main line or elsewhere;
- (d) how the remainder of the sum of one million dollars provided in the Loan Act for Railway purposes has been spent;
- (e) the amount spent on coal boring and other work and expenses in connection therewith at South Branch and what has become of the balance of the $500,000 appropriated by the Loan Act for coal boring purposes?

Also a statement showing:

- (a) the amount applied from Current Revenue or Surplus Trust Fund month by month since the first of July last towards the cost of operating the Reid Newfoundland Railroad system and steamboat services, and

- (b) the amount required to be applied to such purposes for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Also to show the actual loss, on the operation

- (a) of the Reid Newfoundland Company's Railroad system and
 (b) steamboat services during the current year and the amount provided
 (a) towards the Railroad and
 (b) towards the steamboat services, and a statement showing the loss on operation of the Reid Railroad System for the five previous years as shown by the statements already furnished by the Reid Co. to the government in regard there to.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—asked Hon. the Prime Minister if the hand-book of Newfoundland, under preparation by Dr. Mosdell has yet been completed, and if so to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the same.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I ask to have all the questions directed to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries particularly number seven of Mr. Moore deferred. The information in answer to question number two was sent to the home of the Leader of the Opposition on Saturday night at about nine o'clock. I beg to lay on the table of the House a copy of the Book referred to in question three of Sir Michael Cashin.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Asked Hon. the Min. of Education if his annual report is yet ready and if not when it is likely to be; if it is his intention to introduce any legislation this year to give effect to the promises of the government with regard to education progress and reform and if not will he say what services are being performed by him and his staff which justify the maintenance of his Department and the expenditure of public money on the officials?

THE HON. THE MIN. OF EDUCATION—In reply to the honorable gentleman I have to say that the annual report is not yet ready on account of the printer's strike, but the party who has the handling of the work tells me I may be able to have a copy of it in ten days time, and as to the second part of the question I have to say that it is not the intention of the government to introduce any educational legislation during the present session and the services performed by the Minister and the Department are those imposed by means of legislation passed during the last session of this House.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—What about the Address to His Excellency?

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—The Min. of Marine and Fisheries is out of town.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—It is not necessary to have him here. I understand he is not coming to town until next week. He was here last week, and it looks as if you are purposely putting it off. We ought to deal with it right away.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Three or four days ago, it was decided to go into Committee of the Whole on these Loan Resolutions, and it behoves us I think to make immediate progress from the country's standpoint.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—I beg to draw the attention of the Prime Minister to the fact that we asked for a copy of the statement furnished the Financial Agents by the Auditor General when the representative was here previous to the raising of this loan and we cannot go on till we get the particulars of that statement. On Friday last you told us he got from the Auditor General the necessary information as to the financial standing of the country. Until we get a copy of that statement, whether it was furnished by the Auditor General, the Finance Minister, or the Prime Minister, signed by the Auditor General, we cannot proceed with this loan Bill wherein is involved the raising of six million dollars. There is no reason why the particulars in this connection cannot be tabled and thereby give satisfaction to the country and to the House. I think the Prime Minister will see likewise. We must have this financial statement before we can proceed.

THE HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—I telegraphed the Auditor General this morning who is away because his wife is ill, making enquiry as to whether such a statement was ever given or not. There is no record in the department and under my opinion no such statement was ever given by him. The leader of the Opposition was Finance Minister one time himself and for a long time and I think he will agree with me that in the interests of the colony that it is imperative that we make expeditious progress, yet if he desires to have this matter adjourned until later to-day or until to-morrow. I shall be only too happy to extend him the courtesy, provided there is a bona fide feeling on the other side to expedite this loan bill according to parliamentary debate and to have this very necessary transaction closed as quickly as possible. Time is vitally important in so far as the exchange is concerned on the one hand and the saving of our interest on the other, and if the leader of the Opposition will facilitate this matter so far as the ordinary procedure of the House will permit I shall be only too happy to have the matter stand over until we get a reply from the Auditor General. I have no desire to press this matter but from the stand point of the country it is very important that as much despatch as is reasonably possible ought to be made.

SIR M. P. CASHIN,—I thank the Prime Minister for the courtesy extended to me, but I think the Prime Minister will agree with me that no important financial house is going to loan a large sum of money to any country whether the firm is an English, American, or Canadian one, without first having a statement showing the financial standing of the borrowing country, and it is certain somebody must have furnished a financial statement in Great Britain, United States, and Canada before they entered into negotiations re this loan, and it is necessary to have this financial statement before this House. Yes it is true I had previous experience and I had advertisements issued and they were soon grabbed up and looked over by a half dozen specialists and I take it the same thing should have been done in this matter. It is only folly to tell us that a financial statement was not given. On what basis did the people loan the money if they had no statement? Did they not ask for a statement showing the trade of the Colony and its resources? I feel sure all this information was furnished before these firms undertook to talk loan matters and I notice there was not any notice given to the outside world. There was no advertisement given to Canada or the United States and this loan was negotiated by the Prime Minister when in Montreal last December. There are many other firms in Canada and the United States that had no intimation of this loan and I do not agree with the Prime Minister that that is the right way to raise a loan. I think some one must have given a financial statement. The Prime Minister also lost a quarter of a million dollars to the Colony by reason of the way he went about raising this sum of money. If the proper advertisement had been inserted in Canada and the United States you would have had applications from many firms, including Wood Gundy & Company. I learned from Wood Gundy & Company they had no notice of this loan. It was simply and purely a private negotiation. It should have been handled as you would sell any article of commerce and thereby receive tenders and then have the tenders opened in the presence of the various agents of the firms who made application, in the Finance Minister's office and the lowest tender, if according to Hoyle, accepted. When I was Finance Minister we advertised the loan abroad and received five or six tenders and they were opened in the Finance Minister's office in the presence of the various representatives of the firms interested who had come to St. John's from the United States and Canada. The Finance Minister and his Solicitor were also present. The tenders were opened, the lowest tender from Wood Gundy & Company was accepted. But the Prime Minister opened up this loan and I ask him to have furnished to this House the Statement given by the Auditor General, as we cannot go on without it. By reason of the Prime Minister's method of raising the same we lost, or rather the United States beat us, seven hundred and twenty thousand dollars. According to what the Prime Minister told us we only received eighty-eight for the loan. I happen to have an advertisement here which I will read. (Reads.)

MR. BENNETT.—I think the House will feel very grateful to the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, for throwing so much light on the subject because the more we consider this loan the more astounded we are at the price this country is called upon to pay for this accommodation. It looks very heroic for the Government to raise this loan but the limits have been reached when this country only is getting eighty-eight dollars out of every one hundred dollars in New York funds and when we have to pay six and one half per cent. in New York funds as well. The astounding part of it all is the fact that the loan is floated in New York at ninety-three and five-eighths, an increase over the price by five-eighths per cent. for every dollar we give. That is to be the price we shall have to pay for this accommodation. The person on the street there is asked to pay ninety-three and five-eighths but the underwriters price was eighty-eight and we now come to the position that vital information is asked for and it must be forthcoming before we are prepared to give our endorsement to this loan. The leader of the Opposition had to drag for this information. The question has not been answered and I agree with him and endorse his intention, that no financial firm in the United States, Canada or Great Britain will advance one dollar to this country without being first furnished with a statement as to the financial standing of the country. It is absolutely absurd to think that any intelligent person will accept the statement that there was no such statement. We want the document or some concrete information and we must have it before we can proceed. In the interest of the country we must get this information first. It is only right and proper that we should.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Fitzgerald, to whom reference has been made, was sacrificed last year because he did not see eye to eye with the Minister of Education. He has been in the Department of Marine and Fisheries for the last ten or twelve years, and he was one of the best officials of the Civil Service, but there was some misunderstanding and with the assistance of the great poo bah, his excellency I think he is called by some, who has ruined the codfishery and is now starting to ruin the salmon fishery, Mr. Fitzgerald was thrown out on the street. The Prime Minister is here this afternoon straining himself trying to tell us what is happening down in the Marine and Fisheries Department. I think you had better leave this matter until we can get the gentleman who organized the department here.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Speaker, the policy of the Government with respect to the Inland Fisheries is absolutely contemptible and unworthy. The salmon fishery of this country can be made second to the codfishery, but instead we are pursuing a policy of waste with agriculture. Last year we voted $50,000 for this department, and now again we are asked to vote another $50,000. It is nothing short of outrageous, and the country should not stand for it. We have not had one dollar's return from the Agriculture & Mines Department, but we are seriously asked to vote that department $50,000 and we cannot do a thing for the fishermen of the country who are looking for supplies. Men who pose as representatives of the fishermen come in here and ask us to vote this money.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that the policy of the present Government with respect to the Agriculture & Mines Department is merely a continuance of the policy of previous Governments. I can appreciate the enthusiasm of the hon. member for St. John's West regarding the Inland Fisheries, he being a member of that Board, but I do not think that the dropping of that vote is going to be such a serious matter as the hon. member seems to think.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting the raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for the general purposes of the Colony.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

SIR M P. CASHIN.—If you are going to hand the cable back to the Commercial Cable Company, you have got to go back for years and hand it back to the Anglo Telegraph Company. I do not propose to go into the matter at any length to-night, but I will certainly take the very earliest opportunity to discuss it. Why not give us the whole correspondence? Why give it to us piecemeal, if we are to deal with it intelligently in this House I am sure that this House and this country will be surprised when the whole correspondence is read; and I am sure that the correspondence never took place within the knowledge of the Attorney General. The ordinary school boy would not write the letters that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs wrote to the President of the Commercial Cable Company. The revenue annually from the Anglo is something in the vicinity of a hundred thousand dollars, as against thirty or thirty-five thousand from the Commercial Cable Co. Moreover the Commercial Cable Company have nothing to offer the Government. They have nothing but two cables; but the Anglo Company have eighteen cables in and out of this country to-day. Had I known that this was going to happen, I would have brought this correspondence down, but I asked the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to table the correspondence in full, not a little bit to-day and another bit to-morrow. It is just as much my business and every other man's in the country, as it is the Minister's. Why should he take the matter in his own hands and make an offer to the Commercial Cable Co., when the matter should be dealt with by this House, and in this House, not after the House closes. If you do this after the House closes you will be in the same position as Sir

Robert Bond. In his case when the contract came up it was thrown out and justly so. This matter requires to be gone into by someone who understands it. From the correspondence which I have received I believe that Mr. Halfyard knows nothing about it, and it is a matter which means thousands of dollars to the country. The offer made to us by the Anglo American Telegraph Co., in 1918, if carried out, means a quarter of a million dollars to this Colony. They made an offer to carry our correspondence in and out of this country free, and to give us twenty cents and two cents for every extra word on every other message in or out of this country. We had a cable from Port aux Basques to Canso and from that we never collected more than forty thousand dollars and we had to bear the expenses of that cable, the offices, salaries, and the keeping up of the line at the other end. The Anglo people say we will give you all correspondence free, we will give you twenty cents and two cents on every message transmitted, and in addition to that we will give you the telephone system in St. John's, which is equivalent to fifty thousand dollars. In return for this we want that cable from Port aux Basques to Sydney. That cable across the Gulf cost one hundred and five thousand dollars before the war. For this they would give us their own lines in Newfoundland. As you know here in this country you can go to a small outport and you will find two offices side by side, an Anglo office and Government office, where there is not enough revenue for one. If the Government accepted this offer they could use whichever of the offices suited best and close up the other one. In addition to this we would get the telephone system, or as they have sold out to another company, the amount they received from that Company instead. They want this cable across the Gulf in return. That cost one hundred and five thousand dollars thirteen or fourteen years ago. The life of cables is I believe twenty-five years. The depreciation on that cable to-day would not warrant more than half that amount from the Anglo people, and if you accept that offer and the country receives an increased revenue of eighty or seventy or sixty thousand a year because of it, in times like these, are we not in a better position than when we were running the cables in 1914, when the most we ever got was from thirty to forty thousand dollars. Then here we find that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs says to the President of the Commercial Cable Co., I am heartily sorry for the manner in which the late Government handled the affairs in Newfoundland. It would make the saddest man in Newfoundland laugh to read that correspondence and see it as I see it and what it means to the country. I would suggest to the Attorney General and to the Prime Minister that at the earliest opportunity they bring this matter before the House, and let the House dispose of it in the proper way, as it means a quarter of a million dollars to the country. Instead of this you are taking that quarter of a million off Civil Servants and you know that you can have it for the asking. Mr. Halfyard was the most surprised man in the House when I told him that if he had accepted that offer he would be owed that money by those people. You get in touch with the Commercial Cable Co., who have no line across the Gulf, and here is the Anglo American Telegraph Co., with eighteen lines, all over two hemispheres. This is purely a business transaction and a very good one. The Commercial Cable Co. are doing business here now without leave. They started about three or four weeks ago. Surely that is not permissible. If they can do so there is no reason why the Reid Newfoundland Co., or any other private concern who can put a cable here should not do so. The trouble is that this offer is too good to be true. That is what Mr. Halfyard thought and what his officials thought. Some people thought that this twenty and a two applied only to messages over Government lines but that is not so. When the Commercial Cable Co. came here it was not for the benefit of Newfoundland. They put a cable across the ocean first and they found they could not do sufficient business, and they put a repeating station at St. John's, which meant that they could do one-third more business. That is the reason they are here, and that is why we did not ratify their contract in 1909 after Sir Robert Bond was defeated and we came into power. I would suggest that the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice go into this matter and I am sure that after reading this correspondence which I have received, no member will sanction an agreement such as is hinted at by the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.

MR. HALFYARD.—Mr. Speaker, I crave the indulgence of the House while I make a few remarks in reply to Sir Michael Cashin. It seems that the Opposition side of the House is the only place where you can learn anything. I suppose the explanation is that they have no business of Government to take their attention. The business with the Commercial Cable Co. terminated in 1918. In August or September of 1919 the Government of that day of which Sir Michael Cashin was the leader, sent the Postmaster General of that day, Dr. Robinson, to Canada to try to make arrangements with the C.P.R. people to take over the Newfoundland cable business, and it was only recently upon receiving a message from Mr. McMillan of that Company, referring to a contract between the Newfoundland Government and the C.P.R., drafted in August, 1919, that I knew such a contract existed, and my deputy knew nothing of it whatever, and the Deputy Colonial Secretary was some time looking it up. It was found that a contract between the Government and the C.P.R. had been drafted on similar lines to the one with the Commercial Cable Co., with certain disadvantages when compared with the Commercial Cable Co. agreement. Sir Michael Cashin was Premier at the time and that was twelve or thirteen months after we had broken off business with the Commercial Cable Co., and the Anglo American Telegraph Co., was doing our business and that proposed contract was read and re-read by Sir Michael Cashin, as it had been presented to him in Oct. 1918.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I never saw the correspondence you refer to.

MR. HALFYARD.—Sir Michael Cashin says he knew nothing of that proposition and he was acting Premier and Chairman of a committee of the Executive Council in conjunction with Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Clift with regard to negotiations on behalf of the Government with the Anglo American Co. Now if you want the correspondence since 1918 to date I will bring it down and find out all the notes passed and repassed by you as Acting Premier and Chairman of that Committee. Sir Michael talks in a grieved fashion because we did not enter into a contract with the Anglo Co., which proposition was made to him in 1918, thirteen months before the Squires administration assumed office. Now can I be blamed for trying to induce the Commercial Cable Co. to do our business on similar lines as they did up to August 1918, which item estimated would have given us a revenue of one hundred thousand dollars where we were not getting a cent.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—That is not correct. You are forgetting that the agreement was until 1918, and no year from 1914 did we earn more than forty thousand dollars.

MR. HALFYARD.—I will give you figures. The fact of the matter is that Sir Michael Cashin knows more of this matter to-day than ever he did, and if he is honest he will admit it. He knew nothing of it when we broke off business with the Commercial Cable Co. One of the chief reasons why the Government of the day turned down the Anglo proposition was that they considered there should be competition, but as far as I am concerned there is no sentiment in connection with it. We want a revenue and what I did I am not a bit ashamed of, nor of the correspondence which I, as an act of courtesy, gave Sir Michael Cashin the correspondence and trusted to his honour. I told Mr. Bennett that negotiations were going on between the different companies and it would not be advisable to have it tabled, and he let it go at that. Sir Michael Cashin said it would be alright to show him the correspondence. If he thinks it should be tabled personally I don't care but it is nevertheless a breach of honour. It is time for someone to do something. We are trying to do it. You tried to do it while you were Premier. You sent Dr. Robinson up to Canada to interview the C.P.R. people. You were making arrangements to get a steamer to repair the Canso Cable. If I were to table that correspondence it would look much more ridiculous than you claim mine does. However I am glad Sir Michael is so interested in this matter, it is an important matter. I will be only too pleased to have his support, as apparently he has as good a knowledge of conditions that obtain, much better than he had in 1918 and 1919. He has admitted to me that we did not know what we were doing at that time. I hope that this matter will be finalized soon and that some arrangement will be made to give the Postal Telegraphs a revenue. Even with this new proposition we don't know that the trade will be satisfied because of cable rates. Mr. Chairman, I hope Sir Michael Cashin will reconsider the matter of tabling this correspondence, I don't care but we are all working for the common interest of the country and I don't think it will help to table this correspondence.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You have only tabled one-half of the correspondence between Dr. Robinson and the people he went to see.

MR. HALFYARD.—In answering questions we have been accused of going out of our way to answer things we have not been asked, and I was under the impression that Sir Michael Cashin was familiar with any correspondence that transpired during his term of office.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—May I ask Mr. Halfyard as he has such a good knowledge of this matter whether he considers the Anglo proposition or the Commercial Cable Co.'s proposition the best. He has given both these offers consideration and which does he consider best for the country.

MR. HALFYARD.—I would like for some arrangement to be made with some company.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—The Commercial Cable Co. have only one cable where the Anglo American Telegraph Co. control two hemispheres, and as far as the Trade is concerned, the trade here is nothing like so important as the trade in Canada or the United States, and they are operating there.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Mr. Speaker, now I would like to remind Mr. Halfyard that I remember sitting with him when this matter was brought up for discussion, and he was just as ambitious for us to turn down the Commercial Cable Co., as anyone else, and it was on the advice of Sir William Lloyd also that it was done. He also knows what happened when Dr. Robinson went to the C.P.R. people to try to make arrangements. The Commercial Cable Co. jumped in and said we will not allow you to do this, we will not allow you to do business with the Nfld. Government. You did not know what the C.P.R. could do but let me tell you that the C.P.R. does as much business as the Commercial Cable Co., but they had a deal with the Commercial Cable Co. and the Commercial Cable Co. would not allow them to come down here. Lord Shaunessey who was the man in charge of this agreed to do what we wanted, and when Dr. Robinson went up he found that the Commercial Cable Co. had blocked the matter. If it were not for the Anglo American Co. we would get nothing from this Company at all. You know that. What I can't understand is that you have been flirting with that crowd, and the man making you do so is one David Stott, who is always meddling with such contracts and you can tell him to-morrow I said so. If you did not want the Commercial Cable Co. in 1918 and 19 why do you want them now? What I want to say here and now is that the quicker we get this thing fixed the better, and I want to see the correspondence referred to myself, I was on that Committee you referred to, and I would like to see all the correspondence and refresh my memory on the matter.

MR. HIGGINS—Mr. Speaker. I would like to say that it is quite time now to suggest to the government and to Mr. Jennings in particular, now that the government is in the Liquor business that they adopt the suggestion of the Committee appointed to go into this matter. They recommend that the Controller's Department be abolished in the sense of Controller, and in its place we have a Clergyman, Medical man and a business man in charge on the Board, and make a State business of it, and to offset the making of moonshine that Liquor be sold to householders, and the matter be left to the government as to quantity. Might I suggest to the government that now that they are Liquor Vendors that they compete with Cuba and British Columbia. It is no news that you cannot get a passage to the former place because of the influx of American tourists. May I suggest to the Prime Minister, as he said that the Railway is going into the hands of a receiver and as there has been a loss on it of two and a half million dollars, that you avail of Cuba's example and send men out along the road, and extend your State Control. The position is that the government wants money and the government is taking a very rational means of getting it. We all know that the lid is off. If you extend the control out along the country, the amount of travellers on the railway would go a long way to make up the loss. My friend Mr. MacDonnell here who travels across country suggests a Bar in the Dining Car would be acceptable. It is about time now to quit this hypocrisy about Prohibition. When we talked about the injustice of it, hon. members from other sections of the country, cast up their eyes to Heaven in holy horror, and said that they didn't want to have anything to do with liquor, and now we are told that we are setting out to make a half million dollars on liquor. It is just as well to cut out all this. It only gets back to the position that we have been saying all along. Honourable members opposite want to get money to increase their own salaries, and allow the sale of liquors to a certain extent for that purpose. The whole thing is a joke, and a farce of the worst kind. I say seriously that it would be far better to have no prohibition at all. As I said last year I repeat now—the carrying out of the Prohibition Act is an absolute scandal. Apart altogether from the talk we hear about the prevention of smuggling, the manner in which liquor is got to-day is a huge joke. Why not wipe out the script system entirely? Leave the Controller there and take chances on his judgment. It is only gross hypocrisy to be coming in here and casting sanctimonious faces across the floors of this House. A continuance of the present frightful conditions in this country is going to destroy the morale and the finer things in the character of our people. The attitude of the average man to-day is that it would be better to have no Prohibition Act at all rather than have this script system continued. At present a man is supposed to get liquor only for medicinal use. Every man knows in his heart this is a joke. Imagine the great number of men who are suddenly going to take sick in this community and who are going to get liquor prescribed for them to remedy their sickness in order to provide a half million dollars revenue for the government within the next year. I say seriously Sir that the time will come when the men who will be the greatest advocates for the abolition of this present condition will be Hon. members who took a different stand up to now. When they open their eyes to see the conditions around them the more they will satisfy themselves that this system should be done away with. What is happening in town to-day is that not alone is it a case that certain medical men have grossly and scandalously abused the rights given them under the Prohibition Act, but it is got to stage that some of the doctors are practically living out of nothing else and that the only form of medical practice they do now is the signing of scripts. The extent of their diagnosis of a man's case is to look at his face and decide that he requires a script. If on the second hand you have what is going on in this island, known as smuggling; if on the third hand you got the worst evil of all—moonshining; and if finally you got the demoralizing of our police force—and all those in authority, then it is about time that honourable members opposite understood that many of us here have come to the conclusion that the whole thing is nothing more or less than sanctimonious hypocrisy. Hon. members opposite have come here and solemnly assert that they are going to have nothing to do with liquor in any shape or form and yet on opening their Budget we are told that they expect to derive $480,000 revenue from the sale of liquor. Why not eliminate the Act entirely? I think it would be more consistent to drive liquor out of the country altogether than handle it the way it is being handled to-day. It would be more reasonable to take that attitude than what you are going to do this year. Therefore, I ask if it is the intention of the government to deal with the liquor question fully at this session. I think that it is regrettable to debate this thing in such a form as at present. We went to work last year and appointed a representative commission. That commission, recognizing the abuses that were carried on, recommended an alteration. Surely you are not going to have the further farce by letting the thing go on as it is now, but rather do I hope that the government will bring down legislation in some form or other that will meet the wishes and the views of the largest sections of this community. The House has been besieged with petitions during the past two sessions asking for a change in the present system. A commission was appointed to deal with the matter and the finding of that commission is in the hands of the government. I do not think that their report should be put aside, without some attempt being made to meet the views of the largest number of our people in the different sections throughout the Island. I think we ought strip ourselves of the farcial notion that we hate liquor and in the same breath invest a quarter of a million dollars to buy liquor for the purpose of making another quarter of a million on that transaction. I think the principle is wrong, unsound and hypocritical.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Mr. Chairman: It seems to me that the Hon. member for St. John's East has forgotten his usual courtesy in addressing this House. Some of his remarks were a kind of strange, and I do not think they were well advised. When he mentioned my name I took it for granted that I was one of the sanctimonious hypocrites that he alluded to because of the position I always took in relation to Prohibition. I do not think that I gave any expression of opinion on this matter for the last two years. In fact very little has been said from this side of the House at all about this matter during that period; but several members of the Opposition side have taken occasion to refer to it. As far as the government being engaged in the liquor business is concerned, that is something that some of us cannot help. We got a Prohibition Act given us by the Morris administration and many of the present members of the Opposition were members of that government. We are in the unfortunate position that we are saddled with that Act; and more than that we have an Act on the Statute Book that two-thirds of the people are studying day and night how to break and how to evade. You take any law that is framed by God or man. If sixty or seventy per cent. of the people make up their minds to break it they will do so in spite of everybody else. Take the Ten Commandments. They are being broken right and left every day. That is the history of the world. There is no proof that the Ten Commandments have no right to exist.

MR. HIGGINS—What excuse do you offer for your making money out of the liquor?

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—I am prepared to have a bone dry law. I spent sixty years in the world and during which period I can say that I never hardly tasted liquor and I expect to live the rest of my days without doing so.

MR. HIGGINS—I have no doubt but that you are prepared to go bone dry alright; but why then make money out of it.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—We are compelled to take a certain position of things; but if the people are foolish enough to pour liquor down their throats it is just as well to make them pay for their foolishness.

MR. HIGGINS—Do you contend then that you are your brother's keeper?

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—If I had the power to stop the stuff from coming in I would stop it.

MR. BENNETT—What then about the money to get revenue and increase your salaries?

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—When Prohibition was first talked of the revenue was taking care of itself.

MR. HIGGINS—Why put on the 25 per cent. Surtax? Why not make the outside fellows pay?

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS.—I think this debate is rather premature. The Commission have tabled their report and there might be something satisfactory arrived at in that report. Both sides of the House will have an opportunity to discuss it later.

MR. MOORE—I would like to ask the Prime Minister if it is the intention to bring in a Bill this year?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—On Saturday last I received a copy of the report of the Royal Commission from His Excellency the Governor. I did not read it, but I immediately got copies made by stenographers. This afternoon I got some copies and tabled one in the House so that honorable members would have an opportunity of reading it. To-morrow I expect to have more copies available when all honourable members will, I hope, be supplied. I do not know what is contained in the report. It appears to be dry, but it may be interesting.

MR. MOORE—The reason I asked the question was that last year numerous petitions were presented by members on both sides of the House—petitions that represented some twenty thousand people. These people are entitled to some consideration surely. Their sentiments are being re-echoed to-night at the Casino theatre where three thousand people are assembled advocating the abolition of the present liquor system, and, in all probability, Mr. Chairman, you will have these people here at the Bar of the House before an adjournment to-night. I am glad to know that the Prime Minister has intimated his intention of bringing in a Bill to remedy this present condition of affairs.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I never said there would be.

MR. MOORE—Well then we will live in hopes.

MR. MACDONNELL—Mr. Chairman. Although at the risk of being classed among those who are foolish enough to pour liquor down my throat—but I will take good care not to pay too much for it—I would like to ask the Hon. Mr. Jennings on what grounds does he contend that there should be a continuance of the present Act or that the Act should be in force at all. He just said himself that sixty or seventy per cent. of the people were endeavouring to violate it. Well is not that positive proof that the Act came into existence through trickery and deceit?

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—No. The Act was made on principle.

MR. MACDONNELL—It is very bad principle to have to stand for legislation that was enacted contrary to the wishes of, at least, fifty per cent. of the people, much more seventy per cent. as stated by the Hon. Mr. Jennings himself.]

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled "An Act respecting the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in the United Kingdom" without amendment.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain "Resolutions respecting Civil Service Salaries."

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, May 31st.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

FROM MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES.—I beg to table the following answer to question of Mr. Moore, No. 1, on order paper of May 21st, 1921.

Cost of two trucks (including sea insurance)	$18,461.19
Exchange at 14%	2,584.57
Freight and exchange on freight (about)	939.00

The late Government authorized the purchase of the trucks, and I know of no reference to a reduction in the number of horses for the Fire Department as a reason for the purchase. As a matter of fact the number of horses has been reduced by three since the fire trucks were purchased. There has been a saving but it is difficult to say what it is. As a result of the purchase of the trucks the higher levels of the town are now protected in the event of fire occurring there at the same time as the outbreak of a fire on the lower levels. This was not the case before.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I would again ask your privilege Sir, to refer to the matter of supplies for the fishery for destitute people around the Island and I again ask the Prime Minister through you, Sir, what arrangements have been made with reference to the half million dollars which I understand is about to be allocated for the purpose of helping out the needy fishermen. Is that amount to be allocated out of the half million granted by this House few days ago? I would like the Prime Minister to tell us exactly what arrangements he has made with reference to that amount so that wo may be able to get in touch with the supplier and the fisherman who are now awaiting an answer. You know it is a great hardship to the fishermen from the different outports and there are a great number of men in Conception Bay, Placentia and St. Mary's and the Southern Shore who are very much disturbed also. It is now the first day of June and we would like to know what you are going to do and we would exhort you to do it quickly. Despatch means everything in this case and it must not be put off. You have got to give the supplies and put the men to work and the quicker you relieve the situation the better. If that half million dollars is to be allocated the quicker the representatives on this side of the House are made aware of the arrangement the quicker will that sum be distributed. I understand from the members of the district that Placentia proper has not been touched although the district as a whole has done fairly well. Many got relief and while I am here on my feet I would like to throw the suggestion out that many of them who want to get relief still owe much money from last year's account and I would like to know from the Government what steps they are taking to protect that public money being handed the fishermen. If the fishermen receive supplies partly through the Government and partly through the planter or the merchant, three months from now there ought to be a fairly good voyage on hand, then their creditors from last year may come in and pounce on them. The Government ought to make some provision in this direction and have the advance to each and every fisherman out of this half million dollars made preferential and while we are here now with this House in session, we should protect that amount and protect the fishermen and the country at large. That is really the position and I had a case of it only to-day when a man came to me wanting two hundred dollars and I happened to ask him whether he owed any money or not. I found out that he owed about seven or eight hundred dollars. What's the use of my taking that man to a merchant and say to him that the Government are prepared to advance fifty per cent. to the fisherman. The merchant will answer back even though the Government advances him fifty per cent. and I the other half, what is the good if his creditor of last year seizes upon him. This feature has not been considered by the Government to my mind. We should protect that half million dollars in as much as the amount advanced to each and every fisherman ought to be made preferential. I think a bill ought to be brought in to safeguard the amount because I believe eighty per cent. of that money can be gotten back and I would like to ask the Prime Minister what are the details in connection with this half million dollars provided for the purpose of supplying the fishermen which I presume will be allocated in a few days. The members for the districts are only too anxious to attend to the matter immediately and there is no reason why there should be a number of men in town and kept here for such a long time. There have been numerous representations coming from the Outports enquiring whether advances are obtainable from the planters at least in the Western part of the country. I will have more to say later.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The last point raised by the leader of the Opposition is a point well taken. That point was the subject matter of discussion between myself, some business men and bankers and has been under the consideration of the Government for the past ten days whereby some scheme might be devised to protect the total advance preferably by means of a preferential claim on the voyage and the first fish caught as it is the case in liquidating these kind of debts in the ordinary course of getting supplies. I anticipate that a bill will be introduced in this connection. It is very important that those supplies should be protected. The first point as to whether it is the intention of the Government to appropriate the half million out of the loan known as the fishery loan the idea in connection therewith has been under the consideration of the committee in the matter of Placentia Bay relief. It will be strictly per capita and either in cash or by way of a bank guarantee. The cash will be given when the money is available and it will be divided on a per capita basis. The representatives of the various districts are handling the money of the districts so far as the portion is concerned. Some districts will not be handling any portion at all but other districts will be handling it in the interests of the fishermen. But there will be a commissioner appointed for each district for the purpose of distributing the money. As to Ferryland and Placentia Mr. O'Reilly has been asked to take the matter with regard to Placentia in charge and it has been attended to. The Board of Works Departments' money does not come under the jurisdiction of the Assessor except where the district availed of the opportunity of putting up one dollar for every two advanced, making in all three dollars for supplies. That was the general idea but each individual district has to be handled by its own commissioner, as the situation in each district is different, for instance the District of Carbonear, of which His Honor the Speaker is the worthy representative. The same applies to Placentia and Fogo and any other district involved.

Each district shall have to deal with its own particular problem through its own commissioner per capita share being provided for and the per capita share will be appropriated from the loan referred to. Again referring to the preferential claim question, the matter came into prominence two days ago when a man owed four hundred dollars on last year's account. The matter was discussed and as his voyage might be seized upon he found that the best remedy was to declare insolvent and then there are a large number who do not know that the writ of execution is preferable. So a statute shall have to be enacted this session to have the matter adjusted.

MR. WALSH.—First of all I want to offer my sincere thanks to the Government for the assistance rendered by it. When this question was first raised by my colleagues and myself it was pointed out that owing to the large area of the district and the large number of people involved a very large amount of money would be required to be of any great value. We asked for the sum of two hundred thousand as we estimated that that sum would be necessary to put all those men to work. We thought with the opening up of Bell Island and Grand Falls there would be a lot of employment for our our people but these avenues of employment have not been opened up and Mr. O'Reilly has informed us that our accounts are overdrawn by sixty dollars and to-day at least some one hundred men are in the city from St. Mary's and Trepassey, some of them having travelled miles and miles and some of them merely had the price of their ticket here and no more funds. I do not care if I ever go back for re-election but I am interested in having them put to work. My wife and children could tell you some pitiful tales about the men who come to my home and some seven years ago when I came into public life some of them could help me but now they are seeking help from me. I do not blame any particular class of men but I am interested in the remedy and I especially appeal to the Prime Minister that in the allocation of this five hundred thousand dollars the entire district will be considered and I hope that will be at an early date. We have been asked to pay board bills for some of those men amounting to two hundred dollars and I do not agree with the position that we should be called upon to pay them. I have a list now of the men in the city and they number over one hundred and some seventy-five more to come. And this does not touch Placentia Bay at all. Placentia and St. Mary's need the help more than any other part of the country. And I would appreciate an early reply as to the steps to be taken so that I may be able to tell them to hang around for a few days longer and if they are not to be considered I see no hope for those people but I feel sure the Government does not intend to have one-half of the Island fishing and the other half starving. So far as Placentia and St. Mary's is concerned the money has been allocated to the best of our ability. There were a couple of cases where some got the relief when they should not and I want to say that if I were on a jury dealing with this kind of a contemptible person I would put him down in jail. I trust that before the Committee rises or immediately afterwards, that the Prime Minister will intimate as to what we are to expect so that we may be all able to tell those who are here and prevent others from coming in.

CAPTAIN LEWIS.—I wish to ask the Prime Minister if it is the intention of the Government to appoint a commissioner for the district of Harbour Main with respect to the handling of our portion of this five hundred thousand dollars.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The matter has not been considered yet.

CAPTAIN LEWIS.—There are two hundred men prepared to go to the fishery if they see there is any money available. There are two hundred others wishing to attend the shore fishery if they had the means so to do. We would like to know where we stand in this matter so that we can tell our people. There is another matter and that is the twenty cents export tax which came down in the Budget. I consider this a great hardship to the fishermen of Newfoundland. It is forty cents on foreign vessels. Chartered vessels shall have to pay forty cents per quintal and this is very far reaching. Twenty cents is the tax per quintal in sale. For myself I say this is a mistake to have them pay that tax. For every five dollars the fisherman gets you take forty cents from him. The fishery of this country at the present time is paralyzed.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The matter to which you refer will be discussed on to-morrow.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I do not intend to prolong the debate but I wish to comment upon the question raised by Sir Michael Cashin and referred to by the Prime Minister, and that is the preferential claim matter. This is really a very serious matter and it ought to be dealt with immediately. Some of the constituents of the Prime Minister and Mr. Bennett came to see me but on account of the money they owed I say that if they caught any fish the other fellow might come in and grab it. I think the matter ought to be immediately fixed up.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—So far as the respective portions for the various districts concerned it is matter for the respective members to take up.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I am ready to suggest a commissioner if you will permit me. I do not want it all on my shoulders but I will do what I can to assist the Government and if the work is not too heavy and if the Commissioner I will name will work with me, I will be only too glad to commence right away. I wish to name the Minister of Public Works, Mr. Jennings. If he will assume the responsibility for Port de Grave district I feel we will work together harmoniously. If the Prime Minister will make it clear that it is possible to go right away with this matter and if the Minister of Public Works will assume the responsibility, I will begin to-morrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—As he is a departmental officer there might be some question whether he could assume those duties. I feel sure that Sir John will appreciate that position.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I cannot appreciate the point, because Mr. Jennings is too good a man to lose in this connection. And as to this matter of preferential claim this Bill ought to be attended to right away. I am not going to allow Baird, Job, Smith or somebody else to take the security I have from me. The other day an article appeared in the Advocate saying that I was not supplying at all. But they forgot to say that I had not taken any guarantee from the Government. I have supplied some men without this Government money because they will pay me I am sure if they get the fish. I have asked the manager of the Advocate to have this adjusted. I want the country to know at large that the supplies I give out come entirely from myself.

MR. MACDONNELL.—I agree with the previous speakers re this preferential claim and I think as early as possible it ought to be brought forward and finalized. Only to-day through the courtesy of the Minister of Public Works I was handed a telegram from Bay of Islands asking what was being done with regard to supplies for the coming fishery. Another message from Woods Island came to hand relative to the same matter. In the Port au Port peninsula last year they were not able to pay their bills and there are some seven hundred men there dependent upon the fishery.

MR. BENNETT.—I would like to ask the Prime Minister if St. John's West is included in this allocation?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No arrangements have yet been made.

MR. BENNETT.—There are many men in Petty Harbour and Maddox Cove who are desirous to get some of this relief.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—These men are very reliable and industrious and I would be only too glad to have their wants attended to but I think they will not need this guarantee but I guess their real desire is to be protected against last year's creditor. If there was anything to be done it would be necessary to have a Commissioner, that is an outside party.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave Notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting "An Act to amend the Income War Tax Acts—1918-20."

At a quarter past four of the clock, Mr. Warwick Smith on behalf of the Moderate Prohibition Committee, appeared at the Bar of the House, and presented certain petitions respecting a modification of the present Prohibition Law together with a suite of Resolutions passed at a Public Meeting in St. John's on May 30th which latter were then read to the House by the Clerk.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the Moderate Prohibition Committee, the report of the Commission appointed to go into this matter was received a day or two ago and I expected to see it in this afternoon's Telegram to which it was forwarded for publication. Up to the present moment the Government has not had an opportunity of considering the draft of the Bill which the Moderate Prohibition Committee has forwarded them. We appreciate the fact that the present measure is not working out satisfactorily and that something more is at stake than whether a man does or does not obtain a certain quantity of liquor; it is a question of the maintenance of the moral strength and fibre of the people which are being weakened by the present system. This system tends towards the development of law breaking through smuggling and the obtaining of scripts for purposes other than medical. The whole question is one that is well worthy of the closest attention of yourselves and of this House and the government will take the earliest opportunity of considering it.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the subject of the confirmation of an Agreement between the government and the D'Arcy Exploration Company Limited.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE.—Mr. Speaker. I beg to move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole, to consider resolutions for confirming an agreement between the government and the D'Arcy Exploration Company, Limited. I may say that the D'Arcy Exploration Company is a subsidiary company of the Anglo-Peruvian Oil Company, Limited, which is the largest Oil Company in the British Empire. It is, moreover, not a company that speculates, nor is it a promoting company. The Company is a bona fide operating company to find out whether we have any oil-bearing lands in Newfoundland. For the benefit of the House I would read a short extract that will give an accurate idea of just what the Company is. The Chairman of the Company and of the Anglo Persian Oil Company is Sir C. Greenway, Bart. The British government nominates two directors and at present they are Lord Inchapec and Mr. E. G. Packe. The Company was registered April 14th, 1909 to acquire a concession granted by the Shah of Persia to another company formed in 1903, to search for, develop and sell petroleum within the empire of Persia. The concession holds good for 60 years from May 1901. The Company has also acquired the whole of the issued capital of the British Tanker Co. Ltd. (3,000,000 pds.) British Petroleum Co. Ltd. 3,000,000 pds.; D'Arcy Exploration Co. Ltd. (50,000 pds.); Home-light Oil Co. Ltd., (500,000 pds.); National Oil Refineries Ltd, (300,000 pds) Petroleum Steamship Co. Ltd. (362,582). The capital of the company is (25,000,000 pds.), of which 17,500,000 pds. has been called up. The British government holds 2,000,000 ordinary shares of 1 pound each, 1000 Preferred pds. of Debenture Stock. shares of 1 pound each, and 199,000. That, Sir, is the Company which is back of this agreement; and, shortly, the meaning of the agreement is this: The Company shall have two years in which to prospect and survey unoccupied Crown lands for oil, and as they prospect they are to furnish the government from time to time, with reports of what they do and what they find. If they discover oil, or think that oil is likely to be found in any particular area, they will form what is called a "test area." The total test area will not exceed 3,600 sq. miles, which they claim is only a reasonable oil field. In order to hold a test area they must sink a well in every 12 sq. miles within six months after they have taken it up. The other words of the agreement are those usually contained in any similar agreement. The Company have expressed a keen desire to have Labrador included in the agreement; but, owing to the Labrador boundary question, it is impossible at the present time for us to include Labrador, but we have worded the agreement so that if it is found that we have jurisdiction after the Boundary dispute has been settled by the Privy Council, they may go there.

Section 9 provides that the Company shall commence its geological investigations in the summer of 1921: Provided this agreement has been ratified by the Legislature three months prior to the 31st May. This, of course, has not been done, but I have been in communication with the Company, and they have assured me that they will commence operations in Newfoundland this summer in spite of the fact that the agreement has not yet been ratified. The consideration in the agreement in the event of the successful working of oil is that they will pay to the government 12 and 1-2 per cent. of the value of all oil obtained by them at the casing head. Their operations must be continuously carried on. I think the agreement will commend itself to the House, and I therefore move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—I quite agree with the Resolutions and I am in accord with anything that tends for the advancement of the country, and I believe that we should encourage outside people to come in here to test the possibilities of the country; but at the same time there should be some section inserted in the Resolutions protecting ourselves in the event of this agreement not being carried out. If the industry is not started up in two years, as stated in this agreement, there should be a penalty provided whereby some concessions would be allowed to the country. You are giving this company a grant or license to go on all Crown Lands throughout the country to do prospecting and after this agreement is passed and ratified by this House the Company need not start for two years if they so desire, and need not do a stroke of work in Newfoundland. Consequently, I think there ought to be a clause inserted in the agreement providing for a penalty in the case of their failing to live up to their agreement within the prescribed time. We do not know who or what is behind this Company or what the intention is of that Company. Various constructions can be put upon it. However, I have not had an opportunity to read the agreement through yet.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—Section nine shows the intention.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Yes, but they can tie up exploration work for oil on Crown Lands for two years, and I think that there should be some safeguards put in the agreement. Looking at it from a Layman's standpoint I think the Company are in a position to tie up this industry if it suits them. They are the greatest people of the world, according to the explanation given by the Minister of Justice, and there is no reason why there should not be safeguards provided before this has gone too far.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—No. Although section nine is not of much use now, it shows the bona fides. The Co. really intended to come out this year, but it is not their fault that they have not done so. When this agreement was drafted it was their intention to come out this year; we can provide for any safeguards when the Bill is under discussion in Committee.

MR. HIGGINS—Mr. Speaker. I support the suggestion of the leader of the Opposition as to safeguards and I am glad to find that the Hon. Min. of Justice takes that attitude also. I would also suggest to the Minister that the Resolutions be left stand over as for to-day and clean it up to-morrow and in the interim to have a draft prepared.

MR. MOORE—Mr. Speaker. I remember here four or five years ago a number of gentlemen from Water Street did a lot of oil boring at Deer Lake. Will this Company affect them? I remember the late Hon. John Harvey, Mr. Job and others spent a lot of money there trying to develop the Deer Lake property.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—No. This Company will deal entirely with unoccupied Crown Lands and will not interfere with any property belonging to any other person where oil boring operations have taken place.

MR. WALSH—Mr. Speaker. I am not quite clear on the explanation to section one of the Resolutions which says that the company are to have the exclusive right for two years. I do not see in any section of the Resolutions where the Company asked for exclusive right for a period of two years over a certain area they may choose; and section one goes on to say that the company will prospect for petroleum and kindred products. Now would it be possible that this company may take in any area in any section where any other mineral may be found and would they be given exclusive right to that area so that others may not be permitted to operate there.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—No.

MR. WALSH—I think this House should encourage as much as possible outside capital and, if possible, try to develop our mineral resources, though I think this House should be very careful in dealing with Companies from outside, as most of us have no opportunity of finding out what their intentions are or what their standing is. On numerous occasions very attractive propositions have been presented to this House heretofore, ostensibly for the purpose of developing our mineral wealth, and some members in the House on more than one occasion saw eye to eye with the promoters and gave them certain concessions for the inducements held out. But later it was found to be another attempt made to get hold of some lands or water power. Personally I believe that there is great mineral wealth existing in the country and that it should be developed. Whilst I do not doubt for one moment the bona fides of this D'Arcy Exploration Company, still I would like to have it made compulsory for this Company to spend some stipulated amount of money for this proposed work before asking us to discuss and pronounce upon this Bill. Take the great Newfoundland Products Corporation a few years ago. I strongly supported that measure in all seriousness and in all sincerity, because at that time there was an intimation in the Bill of a certain amount of money to be spent. But we all know what happened afterwards. The framers of those kind of bills are sufficiently cute to make the language read so that the ordinary layman, who have not the education on legal points, may think they are alright when they really are not, and suddenly the people wake up and find that the promoters of the Company have escaped the obligations they were under. Personally I have great hope that at some future time the great mineral wealth of Newfoundland will get a square show. I have great hopes that the millions of dollars worth of mineral wealth that is snugly hidden away in the valleys and hills around Newfoundland may get an opportunity of being intelligently prospected, and then we will not have the spectacle witnessed in this House this evening and witnessed for the past six weeks—hundred of men waiting to get supplies to participate in the only industry we have apart from Grand Falls and Bell Island. We are absolutely dependent on the codfishery of this country at present. From my experience, though, the great copper ore mine of Little Bay, Notre Dame Bay, would be employing a thousand men to-day only for bad management and dishonesty. And Little Bay is not the only place where there are large deposits of mineral. In other sections of this Island there are all kinds of deposits of minerals such as gold, silver, nickel and all the minerals that are essential for the different industries all over the world. I would like to see the Department of Agriculture & Mines not only encourage an intelligent search for minerals, but I would be a party to voting $50,000 for such work, or, if necessary, vote a reasonable amount for a start and convert that vote that is at present in the Budget for a Model Farm to such a purpose. Put that amount of twenty five or thirty thousand dollars for the paying of competent men to do the prospecting work. There are lots of competent men in Newfoundland. Why there are good practical men walking the streets of St. John's to-day and who thirty years ago carried on that part of our industries. Put in charge men who have travelled throughout the country, men who know the mineral bearing sections of the country and who know the kind of mineral that any particular rock is likely to bear. I trust that at this particular time, especially now that the fishery is not what it used to be and people are looking around for other avenues of employment, that the vote for the Model Farm and for experimenting purposes will be used to encourage what may prove to be the salvation of Newfoundland. I remember when a boy in Notre Dame Bay an old gentleman named Toms came out from the other side of the water and began operations at Sleepy Valley with one man and a pick and shovel. The first day they went to work they cut a vein of copper six feet wide. I remember myself when they developed that very seam. They went down 100 feet and found six feet of solid copper. There was not any money spent there since to determine whether there was any further copper there or not and development was stopped because of lack of funds. Up at York Harbor some years ago I had the honour to sink a shaft and to bring boulders of solid copper without a peck of earth on it; but the lode was never discovered. It was reported favorably on by a gentleman who held a responsible position in one of the largest copper companies in Lake Superior. Right at Blow Me Down where one of the great est copper mines existing this side of the Atlantic Ocean, irresponsible men had sufficient authority to be able to put aside the recommendations made thereon. Take Pilleys's Island mine. That fell through, through mismanagement. Take the great silver mine at LaManche, Placentia Bay. The sea was allowed to come in there and the mine was destroyed. Mr. Speaker, I will avail of the opportunity to deal with this matter again, but I could not let this occasion pass without having a word or two to say. I trust that the government, before ratifying this agreement and giving this company exclusive rights for two years, will see that a sufficient amount of money will be spent for that period. We want to safeguard ourselves as much as possible.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—I would like to say for the information of the hon. member that there is a guarantee in the contract now for the spending of money. The hon. member will understand that for the first two years no money can be spent, as that period will not be used for providing machinery, but for the bringing out of geologists, etc., but at the expiration of that two years or when they decide to test the places in any areas by sinking wells it will cost them the machinery and labour necessary for the sinking of a well; and if the well is not sunk in six months they have no further claim to the property. I understand that the cost of a well is about 15,000 pds. In New Brunswick they have an exclusion concession and may drill on any part of 10,000 sq. miles. They have drilled 5 wells at a cost of over 100,000 pds., and so far have not struck oil in commercial quantity.

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Speaker. I just want to add a word or two on the lines followed by Mr. Walsh. I am glad that we have a Company of standing and prestige coming in here, and, as contemplated in this agreement, to determine and develop our mineral and particularly our oil wealth. It has been always a matter of great wonder to me what the possibilities of Newfoundland really are in this connection. I think that Newfoundland—speaking from experience and the knowledge at present available—has rich mineral qualities and second to no other part of the British empire. When one realises that it is only just the mere fringe of the country that has been explored and the returns from that fringe have shown a good percentage of mines, it shows that only a small proportion of the country has been surveyed and explored. That is very creditable indeed. But what about the great bulk of the country that is unexplored? This country is a vast and enormous country for its population and we have a vast area that possibly has not yet been scratched. We have not the faintest bit of scientific knowledge as to what the possibilities of Newfoundland are as a mineral country. Personally I believe we have great possibilities in this respect and I have always felt and always advocated that this country would have spent money well and much to our advantage if we had secured in the past highly qualified scientists to come here and investigate, explore and properly survey the entire interior of Newfoundland. If this Company that is now contemplating exploration work here will do no other good and even if it never strikes oil it will settle for always the question as to whether or not there is any oil here. As referred to by Mr. Moore, the member for Ferryland, several local capitalists started developing the region of Deer Lake a few years ago. There were undoubtedly good indications there at that time, and there was a lot of shale taken therefrom and sent to England, and the assay of that shale was reported to be very rich, but evidently the thing fell down for the want of either capital or enterprise. If there are good indications in that section of the country and the development of that was not carried out to the fullest extent, well here is an opportunity for developing a property that is lying dormant and that otherwise would not have been properly developed. I commend these Resolutions to the House and I feel sure that good results will ensue. Anyway we will have the satisfaction of determining at least one section of our resources whether we have any such mineral or whether we have not. The only clause in the agreement that I take any degree of exception to is the matter of transfer, as the agreement says that the Company will merely come here for two years for preliminary work because that is all the agreement calls for. This I cannot understand and perhaps the Minister of Justice will explain. I do not want to be unfair to the promoters or to cheapen the agreement by having a new clause inserted.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE—If any oil is found by the D'Arcy Exploration Co they will transfer their rights to the Anglo Persian Oil Company to do the developing and to carry on the work. They cannot have a Syndicate that is not approved of by the government.

MR. BENNETT—That is quite satisfactory, and I give the Resolutions my hearty support and I only wish that we will have other companies to come here and develop our resources, and let us see what we really have. I believe from the opinions of men who are experienced in mining matters and who have done some exploring that this country have great possibilities as a mineral country and anything done with regard to the development of those possibilities should receive the fullest endorsement of this House.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this Report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the subject of Civil Service Salaries.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Chairman. This is a matter which appertains specifically to the Committee of Ways and Means. Although it is in the form of a separate Bill I will take the liberty of introducing it by special notice and to ask the courtesy of the House to consider it when debating the Budget. The Bill is exactly as I intimated to the House some days ago, namely, to provide that all those who received voted salaries under the Civil Service Act should have deducted therefrom ten per cent. on all salaries up to and including five hundred salaries; and in addition thereto fifteen per cent. on a salary on the next five hundred and twenty per cent. on a salary that exceeds one thousand dollars. As those salaries relate specifically to the committee on Ways and Means, I would specifically suggest that instead of debating them separately that those salaries be dealt with in Committee and to which departments they specifically relate.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Chairman. The Prime Minister seemed to have labored hard this afternoon in giving an explanation for the reduction in the salaries of civil servants. I do not agree with those Resolutions before the House and I do not agree for more reasons than one, first of all that the Prime Minister should decide to touch at all the salary of the official receiving anything under $1200 a year. Why go back and check him up from 1914 up to now instead of taking a general view of the surroundings to-day and compare it with 1914. I would like to flour as against $6 when the war take the House back to 1914 for a few moments. I do not think there is any comparison between conditions in 1914 and now. Look at the enormous prices that we are called upon to pay for goods now and the low prices that prevailed prior to the war. The fishery is held up at a standstill. I think that is apparent to all in this House. The fisherman is paying to-day in the vicinity of fifteen dollars a barrel for flour. The civil servant is practically in the same position as far as the necessaries of life are concerned to-day. He is paying anywhere from $14 to $15 a barrel for flour. Many of them have to go and receive credit from the grocer, not having the ready cash to purchase, and the usual profit is tacked on that. Take a civil servant living in St. John's to-day, who is getting $1200 a year. The reduction on that amount, according to those Resolutions, is going to be $165. You must first take into consideration the class of man that he is and then take into consideration the high cost of living in St. John's. He has to pay enormous rent, probably three or four hundred dollars a year, as rents to-day have increased to considerably more than what they were before the war. He has got to appear respectable at his work in the department to which he is attached. Then he has got to support his family properly and educate his children. All that is necessary and has got to be provided for. How then can you cold-bloodedly come in and cut down that $1200 a year to practically $1000? I think it would be far better to go into the civil service to-day and prune out the many useless officials that are not at all necessary. Send them about their business and let them look for employment elsewhere; but don't reduce the salaries of all officials who are paid $1200 a year and less. You are putting all that class of official in the one category. You are going to reduce all their salaries and practically make beggars of them. You cannot expect from that class of man any returns in the future, because a man who is not properly fed and not properly looked after loses all spirit and all energy to work. When we come to discuss the Budget I hope to point out the many reasons why you should not reduce the salary of a civil servant who is getting $1200 or less. $1200 a year is $100 a month, well that is a very small amount for a family man to live on in St. John's now, when you take into account the taxes he is called upon to pay, the high price for coal and provisions and the various other obligations that he has to meet. To come in here and attack that class of men for the purpose of retrenchment, is, in my opinion, the last resource, you should resort to instead of being the first. This will be shown to you before this Budget is through, you should have practised retrenchments in other directions and allowed the salaries of civil servants of this colony receiving upwards of $1200 a year to remain as they were. Why not cut down in your department of Education, as was pointed out to you here last night. I want to say to the Prime Minister this evening that if he wants to get back to 1914 conditions—and you have to get back there if you want to make two ends meet—why not dispose of some of the extra officials that were taken on since that period? I would like to ask how much was spent last year on extra officials?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Roughly $26,000.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Is there any reason why these extra officials are needed to do the work that was done previous to the war? Our revenue for 1914 was about six million dollars and it is probably about the same now. You have to get back to 1914 conditions unless you want to hand this country over to Canada.

Are you going to do that by coming in here with a budget in which the Auditor General has screwed down the salaries of the Civil Servants making a saving of $231,000. You stop there. You have made no other reductions except in the Marine and Fisheries department, but there you had a staff of officials such as cullers, commissioners and other friends of the Minister that have cost the country an enormous sum of money. Last year you tacked on 10c. a quintal on fish, and now you tack on another 20c. The cost of living the Prime Minister tells us is about 30 per cent. reduced. I do not agree with you. Coal, flour, butter, dry goods and many other essentials of life have not been reduced 30 per cent. There is no comparison between now and previous to the war. If he is in earnest we should get back to conditions before the war. Here we are with an educational department costing almost a million dollars. If you are in earnest why not lop that department off altogether. If you have the interests of the fishermen at heart Mr. Minister you should be one of the first advocates to instruct the Prime Minister to carry out this policy of retrenchment in your department. But what do we find? Not one cent of reduction in your department. Still you come in here and talk about taking off $200 off the man getting $1200. Your department is costing the country between eight and nine hundred thousand dollars a year. Are you not prepared Mr. Minister to cut down expenses in that direction? If you are not then it is waste of time for us to come in here. You know what is creeping on us. You may put up a bluff for a while, but bills are going to be piled up, in all directions. When this House opens again, with what is in view at the present time, there is nothing for us to expect but a deficit of four or five million dollars. We cannot look to the fishery. Here we have the principal fish merchant in the country, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in a circular which I have in my possession, tells the fishermen that the most they can expect is $6. or an average of $5 per quintal. So that allowing a million and a half quintals that would be about nine million dollars.

Now add to that the other business of the country. Grand Falls is closed down. Bell Island is practically closed; lumber is gone down to about one-third its price last year. The very most you can expect as the earning power of the country is twelve million dollars. Put your duty at 50% and it will give you six million dollars. Now where does that land you with the estimates that you have brought in here.

Now the Prime Minister comes in and tells us that the only thing he can do is to reduce the Civil Servants $231,000. Why are we losing time here taking off $231,000 if our position is going to be anywhere near my forecast. There is no earnest effort made by the Government to reduce the cost of running the affairs of the country. Reduce the educational grant back to what it was in 1914. It was then about $300,000. Sir Edward Morris boasted here in the House that it had reached that amount, and here we are in our darkest hour asked to vote three times that amount, and there is not an attempt made by any man on the other side of the House to reduce that enormous figure. These are the representatives of the underdogs, and still there is not one of them who is willing to get up here and tell us why they are voting these estimates.

Mr. Chairman, you cannot get six million dollars revenue this year. You calculate $900,000 from Sales Tax. We have asked you how you plan to get it, but you say that you have not yet got it from Canada. When you add that Sales Tax you add another 15% to the fishermen of the Colony in addition to the 25% surtax. Now we ask you on behalf of the Civil Servants who are receiving from $1,200 down, not to attempt to make any reduction. If you cannot do that then send down one of your cullers to cull out some of the people who are now under pay and who are giving no returns to the country.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Now you are talking politics again. My hon. friend naturally shifts off to the political point quite frequently. I am not asking the civil servants to go back to the standing of 1918; I am asking them to go back a little which is less, however, than the proportionate drop in the cost of living. I will try and have the matter in connection with the wholesale prices tabulated in time for use when we get into Ways and Means. Reference has been made by my hon. friend to the tax on fish. Having regard to the catch being this year 120,000 qtls. short of last year, the tax will be a straight one of 30 cents.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—How do you figure it all out.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—Last year it was figured on a 30 cents per qtl. basis.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—In my opinion the catch will be about 1,350,000 qtls. this year.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I judged that more than $\frac{3}{4}$ of this will go out in local bottoms; it will be shipped in Newfoundland owned vessels or those registered here. That means we will lose 10 cents a qtl. on what I judge to be more than $\frac{3}{4}$ of the catch. But we will gain 10 cents a qtl. on that portion which will be carried in foreign bottoms. That portion, the salt bulk to the States and Canada, will stand the same as last year in all bottoms. There will be a saving to the fishermen by that readjustment.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—It will not give each of them a stick of tobacco.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That depends on the price of tobacco. Of course I have not been so long in the Finance Department as Sir Michael. I handle finance as other men handle golf, not as a regular business. But I handled the Surplus Trust Fund to show that we can pay our bills on June 30th.

MR. HIGGINS.—I have heard that one can make figures talk as he likes.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am satisfied we will come out with a surplus.

MR. HIGGINS.—How will you pay back what was taken for War and Naval purposes.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The war cost us about 30 millions. If we have regard to the pensions and liabilities for soldiers and sailors, hospitals, etc., the capitalization will work out at between 20 and 30 millions. During the years of the war period there was a splendid revenue and the Government felt justified in making payments out of current account. It was not necessary to raise a fund to meet the situation as it was in January of this year. It was necessary to get 3½ millions. In December the Opposition concurred and realized that Newfoundland needed finances and there was a strenuous period to face. It was desirable that the Surplus Trust Fund should not be added to. We had credit and put back what we had taken out of capital account.

MR. HIGGINS.—But is not that what you have a Surplus Trust Fund for. Why didn't you put it back straight.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We were taking 6 millions while we only needed $3\frac{1}{2}$, so as to have $2\frac{1}{2}$ left.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You put it back to try and justify your loan.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Grant for argument sake that we did; were we not justified in getting a million extra.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Why did you not do so right straight.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We paid $1,400,000 which could be called capital war expenditure. Of that we have a balance of $400,000 which could be treated as a surplus fund. The money is there as a million for the benefit of the Colony no matter what you call it.

MR. HIGGINS.—Instead of calling it a war loan, why not call it a boost loan.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—Why not call it a bust loan.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The bust factory is not on this side of the House.

MR. BENNETT.—These are current expenses; the pensions are the same and are not chargeable to the trust fund.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—These were not paid out of current account; they were paid out of the amount voted by the Legislature. When we came into office there was a claim for $400,000 on us which we took out of the Surplus Trust Fund as it was the most convenient place to get it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Don't you call that frenzied finance.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—But didn't we get it back again.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You only got your justification for the loan.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We got the loan without submitting any financial statement in the sense that there was no written document.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I said a few days ago I would pay the bill if you would telegraph the agents for the confirmation of your statement.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—And now I accept your challenge.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—And then you will send a code message saying not to forward it.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am glad to see the gentlemen outside the Bar are enjoying your joke.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—They got more sense than a good many inside the Bar.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I thought you were going to say "more than me." The men out there are all right. Now the figures which I have submitted in connection with the percentages are as accurate as can be got in the circumstances; those dealing with the invoices have been obtained from the Assistant Collector. All are reasonably correct. I move that the Committee now rise.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I will not have much to say, Mr. Speaker, at present, as I take it this question will come up again later in debate. The civil servants who supported you were looking for a Liberal-Reform government and they got it with a vengeance; I hope they are happy now. I agree with the Leader of the Opposition that to cut a man who is doing an honest day's work for a small salary is hitting below the belt. If he has a family of 5 or 6 and is in the civil service at $3.25 per day, he can only start to be a rogue immediately you cut it. If he is reduced how is he going to school, feed and clothe his family on less than $1,200. I am in accord with the Leader of the Opposition that if you have too many civil servants in the country, let them go somewhere else to work and it would be better than giving them only a half salary. The Hon. Prime Minister states that the necessities of life have dropped 30%; in other words 70 cents now is the same as a dollar last year. I do not agree with this as there is really no difference. Take the case of sugar; it was high when it was under control, while others were paying 12 cents a pound for it we were paying 25 because of mismanagement. That cost the Colony $130,000 which might have been left for the civil servants. Then turn to and consider the other expenses that could have been avoided; take the codfish on which money was squandered to no advantage but really with disaster. The Colony will find this a loss of $400,000 which, with the other, will amount to $530,000. We would not be debating the cut of salaries now if this had been left alone. Through rank mismanagement the civil servants are now face to face with the situation of increased taxation. I agree with the Prime Minister that some is necessary but if it is done right you will not be taxing the fishermen but will let them go on as ever. Some little things of course did happen that probably could not be provided against but if the handling of fish had been left alone there would be none of it left in store here to-day and the country would be far better off. As Sir M. P. Cashin said, interference with trade has been the cause of all the trouble. You are asking to-day for taxes in order to raise what was squandered on the railway; taxing the people to raise money for fads and expenses that should never have taken place. There are many ways, I think, by which you could avoid cutting the pay of the civil servants and these I will point out as we go along on the Estimates. I hope when this question comes up again you will reconsider the cutting of these salaries. Imagine a man in the Custom House with $500 a year and who has 5 or 6 children, having 10% taken off his salary. It is an absolute joke. There are men there who are doing practically nothing and it would be better to let them go about their business elsewhere. Instead of sending them, however, you send Mr. Jas. McGrath with a salary of $1,700 on the Daisy. You are adding on new expenses and keeping others on at the old salary. I cannot vote for this kind of thing. If I were in the Customs with 5 or 6 children, and had my pay cut I would beat the Government at every opportunity, even to the extent of letting a man get through with a keg of rum. Imagine such an official's pleasure on realizing that on July 1st, he is to get a $50 cut. Take the policeman—are you going to cut them 10% or more though they are beating around day and night in all kinds of weather to protect ourselves and property and to keep law and order. Are you going to reduce these men, most of whom have large families. Again you are putting on a Sales Tax which nobody understands. I don't—and no man on Water St. understands what it means. One has one idea and the other a different one. And then you come in here after wasting millions and ask us to cut the unfortunate who can barely subsist, such as the policeman who you will meet on duty at all hours of the night and morning. If you knew the men in the civil service whom I am helping to carry along from month to month you would not do it. Put your proposition on a business basis and I will back it up. The men who are not getting a decent salary should try to get something else; I wonder how they can stay in their positions. When the cut comes they will get it in the neck. I am glad to see that His Excellency the Governor is to be reduced. As Sir M. P. Cashin said, I care about neither Governor nor Judges, I am glad to see them cut; they can stand it better than the policeman, the man in the Custom's night or day boat, the man who pilots the ship into the harbor or the man who labors on the wharf. These latter are entitled to the best consideration of the country. When you put the tax on fish also, the fisherman is the one who will pay it whether he likes it or not. Yet I am told that this is a fishermen's government. I am going to move before it goes through the House that this tax be reconsidered. Knowing something of the fishing industry in all its branches I ask that it be left severely alone. This money would certainly be taken off the fishermen. I would not attempt to expound the law to you, Mr. Prime Minister as that is your profession and you know too much about it, but I will take dictation on fishery matters from no man in the country, not even the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. If the catch this year be 1,300,000 qtls., it means the fishermen will have to pay about $270,000 in taxes. If you want to encourage both the men and the industry, in view of the poor conditions of the markets abroad and the prevailing conditions here you ought to try and raise in some other way than by taxing the codfish. I know perfectly well that the money is needed but this is no way to get it. No man who comes to my wharf to sell fish but will have to pay this tax.

The Committee rose till 8 o'clock.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—At the hour of adjournment I was discussing the fish tax and what it means. But getting back now to the matter of salaries of the civil servants, I feel there are many things that could be done without taking $230,000 from the men who are drawing under $1200. Men getting above that can stand some moderate reduction, but I cannot see how those drawing below that can even exist. I think that if the Hon. Prime Minister would take my suggestions the civil servants need not be cut. I suggest that the Model Farm vote for instance be done away with; last year it cost 60 or 70 thousand dollars. Then abolish the department of Shipping and if that were done there would be no need to touch the civil servants who have families to support. I was also speaking this afternoon about the police; I do not see how you can touch their salaries. It simply can't be done. The men are always at the service of the public; they have only 15 days off during the year, and surely the Government will not attempt to cut them when the votes for the Model Farm and other departments which are not necessary can be abolished. The Prime Minister said this afternoon that the Assistant-Collector gave him a statement showing a reduction of about 30 per cent. in the cost of living. I would like to point out that in 1918-19 sugar was high and it is just as high to-day, molasses and butter and flour are the same. These articles are essentials and in fact meats are even higher, and if men are to have a chance to help the coming generation, by rearing them up with well fed bodies, I do not see how they are going to do it if their salaries are cut. I know something of food prices and no matter what the Assistant-Collector may say he saw in the Custom's invoices there is no reduction in retail shop prices. As one man said a few days ago we can now use Canadian butter for cooking and Newfoundland for table purposes owing to the difference in the price. This is an article that is largely used by the fishermen. You know that no man with this surtax on can expect any material drop in prices without a change in the foreign countries. I know you got to get revenue, but I think you can do it without touching the civil servants. In Nova Scotia the government started to economize and they thought the printing of the Hansard etc., unnecessary. A lot of this kind of thing could be cut off here. The Education grant could also stand a clip easily. I ask the Hon. Min. of Education if it is right that Mr. Solomon Whiteway is being paid $3,600.

HON. MIN. OF EDUCATION—His expenses are not being paid. He is only getting what he is worth.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE—But there are a lot of men not getting what they are worth and that is why I am up here to-day. I will sit down if the Prime Minister will give me an assurance that there will be no cut on the $1200 men. If Mr. Whiteway is worth $3600 the others are worth $1200. There can be no justification for increasing his salary and you ought not increase it by $600. I do not begrudge any man his worth and I believe that Mr. Whiteway has good qualifications, but I do think it is very harsh to come here, and perhaps through a misunderstanding, vote for a cut on those who can least bear it. I think the principle is unfair. I think that for Dr. Burke, Deputy Minister of Education, $3300 is not necessary. He would not miss the reduction but the man with the small pay will feel the pain of it. I believe, Mr. Minister, that you are in sympathy with my ideas. Is it true, sir, that the eleven teachers now training abroad are being paid just as ever. That is an expense that could be done without; we have no Normal School built yet for them or Mr. Whiteway, and we don't know when we will. If a man does not get salary enough to send his children to school, Mr. Whiteway will be of no service. Neither will Dr. Burke be if the children cannot be sent to school and trained up as good citizens. Mr. Whiteway ought to be proud of us, we are so kind. Cut the pay of the Governor and Judges if you like, but give the backbone of the country a chance to bring up their offspring decently. The Hon. Prime Minister tells us what he would do if he were running a corporation, a limited concern, how he would pare it and fix it up. But he is really the trustee for a corporation that is not even limited and he must deliver the goods. You can't make chalk of one and cheese of another. Now what is the sense of printing all these debates and sending them to all the papers in the country for publication? Who wants to read next November what we are saying now—the fishermen will get nothing out of it. If you are going to economize let us have it in proper form and I will support anything that is right and just. Now take these resolutions as to the reductions. I will support them if you will guarantee to protect the man who is only existing to-day. If you start to cut after the $1200 I will support it, but I cannot help anything that is totally wrong. May I not appeal to you, Mr. Prime Minister to reconsider this matter. I know you have given it thought, and I believe it hurts you to bring it in. Remember the children—would you or I like to be on $1,200 and have 5 or 6 children; I don't think we would be able to put boots and clothes on them or send them to school. It is no good to have big educational institutions if we cannot pay our civil servants enough to allow them to send their children to them. I ask you on behalf of those men who supported and were loyal to you to reconsider the idea of cutting them below $1,200. After all if you can float along, if you can manage to keep the country off the shoals I do not see what you would save by this that would be worth talking about. I do not believe that the saving on the $1,200 cut will amount to $30,000. I have not figured it out, but I do not think that at the most it will be $50,000. You can easily save the necessary money. Take your railway policy; you can save a whole lot on that. I know you have lost a lot of money this year, and I hope the mistake of last year will not be made again. I do not intend to make it you can easily give the $1200 men their salaries.

Here is a book prepared by Dr. H. M. Mosdell, managing editor of the Daily Star. I understand it cost $3,600. You know it is all very well to get up and vote away this money as no body outside sees it, but as surely as chickens come home to roost the people will not stand for it when they learn of it. Just think $3,600 for a book Mistakes have been made, but you should decide to cut out the Hansard and all this unnecessary printing. It is no good; a man will take up this book and simply throw it aside. Other governments have made the same mistake perhaps in this government printing, but it is time for economy now though not the time to cut our greatest asset, the working man, or touch the $1200 man who is trying to bring up the next generation. If the Prime Minister will be good enough to tell me now on behalf of the government that the $1200 man will be left alone, I will sit down and be glad that I have done a better turn for them than I expected when I got on my feet I do not want Mr. Speaker to criticize unfairly or bring in anything that is not before the Chair, but I must say again to the Prime Minister and the government that they must absolutely discontinue all interference with the codfishery. I listened to-night to a conversation in the Crosbie Hotel between two suppliers and one of the horrors they had of supplying was the thought of the tax on fish. You know that if the fish is not caught and something done to help the country along you will not be able to pay the $1200 men or give Mr. Whiteway or Dr. Burke a salary. I take it, Sir, that it is essential for us to decide on some policy to send these men who are waiting here to go to the fishery whether they come from Trepassey or Port de Grave. I read to-night that the King's Cove boats had been out and returned loaded. You will not be here long as Prime Minister or I in Opposition if you don't start to produce, to catch, the fish which is so essential to the colony. I want to be fair to you, sir, and to the government. I never did much supplying and I do not know much about it. I have done more this year than in my 20 years' experience. I was known as the fellow who bought fish for cash. I am prepared to assist yet and to squander my money if it is to be squandered, as I say to you right now, sir, that I made it out of the fishermen. That's why I say get down to work. I do not want to unjustly criticize you as I know you have a difficult problem to face and I will gladly give you advice or assist you to let them get out of this House and about their business. Here is a telegram Sir M. P. Cashin just passed me—it's the same old thing as you and the other members of the government have been receiving. It says we can't get supplies; we can't do anything about the fishery. It comes from Arnold's Cove. It is the same old story and I would like you to-night to tell us the arrangements you have made to take place to-morrow. I thank you, Sir, for the aid you have given my district. I am doing my best to keep the men there away from able-bodied relief. The money for roads and bridges has done a lot of good and I thank the Minister of Public Works for his co-operation. I am willing to do all possible for my district. I want you too to let Mr. McRae go back with the insurance on foreign vessels fixed up. There is another side to this story but I will not discuss it till it comes up in the Budget. He told me this evening he had sent a telegram to his brother Frank, in Mr. Grace, to discontinue supplying if something is not done as to this fish tax. You ought to decide to-night to help the McRae outfit as it is a large concern. Many men from my district go to the Labrador with them and I do not want to have more to deal with than I can help. The past 18 months experience in the fish business ought to have taught us a lesson we should not soon forget. There ought to be some way of getting taxes without putting it on the main industry of the country. It has been the history everywhere that where the government touches industries they in variably upset the apple cart. If something be not done everyone will be looking to you to do their business. I will refrain from further discussion of this till we get it in Ways and Means, but I will fight against the taxing of salaries till the figure is set at $2,000 and then you can do what you like. You must remember that you cannot tax the goose that lays the golden egg that is the fisherman and the one who is only getting enough to exist on. I want you to reconsider your decision and tell us you have decided not to touch the $1,200 man or to interfere with the cod-fishery.

MR. BENNETT—I have listened, Mr. Speaker, with much interest this afternoon to the discussion on this Bill and particularly to the references to the reduction of the $1200 salaries. I claim to know something of why they were increased. Prior to the War it is a well-known fact that the minor officials in the Civil Service were receiving only starvation wages; they were absolutely living from hand to mouth and not getting sufficient to provide the ordinary comforts of a home. By the table submitted it will be seen the increases were given to those who had under $1,000; they were given by Sir Edward, now Lord Morris to try and even up the inequalities and to make amends for the wrongs of years past. As the situation became more acute all the salaries had to be considered and a sliding scale was adopted whereby those receiving the higher rates would get only their proportionate share of the advance. It has been contended here this afternoon that 70 cents is now worth $1 of last year. But I think that when you come to have a proper auditing of the situation and consider your Budget, your dollar will not be worth a cent more than it was 12 months ago. I don't think that the people have properly digested the facts. Looking over the Estimates I see the Hon. Prime Minister expects from the Special War Tax $1,147,500 and after that $900,000 from the Sales Tax. That is about 2 millions direct taxation and instead of the person who imports goods adding 25 per cent. on the cost he will have to add 50 per cent to meet what he will have to pay. Under these conditions I submit that the civil servant to-day who is to have his salary reduced, as contemplated in the Resolutions, will find himself in a worse position, when you take it from a sympathetic viewpoint, than he was in 1914 or 1915. I think that by cutting his salary you are depriving him of getting an ordinary decent living. This two million dollars of extra taxation will have to be paid by every man, woman and child in Newfoundland. The cutting of the smaller salaries in the Civil Service is not going to prove as beneficial as is anticipated or what is looked for here this afternoon. You take beef which is a large item in the home of any family. It is not ten per cent cheaper than what it was twelve months ago. There may be some articles that have cheapened, but as a general rule the reduction in food commodities has been very low indeed and the reduction will not be as low as it is now when the additional taxation, as contemplated in the Budget, is put on imported goods. We all appreciate and know that the government have to retrench and that every one should contribute towards that retrenchment. We all have to live cheaper to meet the altered conditions, but it is no use to reduce to the extent so that people cannot live at all. It is no use to have a civil service that will be disorganized or to have people that will be discontented or to resort to means that will only enable people to get sufficient to keep body and soul together. That would not be proper or it would not be right. You cannot expect a starving man to contribute taxes in a state of starvation. He has got to get enough to keep his family alive. There is no better way to get returns from the civil service or from other service than by properly paying him. Take the Police Force as was cited here this afternoon. To-day they are a credit to the country. We have members of the force in this House every afternoon, men as good as you will see anywhere. But that was brought about by properly paying them and properly appreciating them. Not many years ago the police force was depleted and prostituted and good men left the force and went away to try and keep their families from starving. What is true of the police force is true of other ranks in the civil service. Take the Firemen for instance on whom we must depend for our safety. Are they going to have their salaries cut and made discontented? Are you going to expect men to go and risk their lives for the protection of property without sufficient payment? Take the staff at the General Hospital. The nurses there have given creditable service. Many of them went across and nursed the soldiers, the sick and taken up work in the various hospitals that are in existence in this community. I say it is indecent for the Government to cut the salaries of those women to help to pay your deficit. Look at the work the nurses at the Lunatic Asylum have to perform. Why it is a wonder that you can get women to work there at all for forty or fifty dollars a month. And then the retrenchment axe must be used to lop off their salaries. I repeat that such a procedure will tend to demoralize the service. Now whilst I sympathize with the government in what they have to contend with, I say that they are ill-advised in reducing the smaller salaries, because we are living under altered conditions, and the situation in this and every other country is different since the war. People have learned to live differently and people have learned to be more respectable and it is only this last few years that they got a chance to know what the comforts of life were. It is like putting the hands of the clock back when you bring in legislation of this kind and cut out every desire on the part of people to become good and respectable citizens. We are confronted with the peculiar position that last year the government thought well to raise the salaries of the three Judges of the Supreme Court $1000 each. The matter was discussed here and the Minister of Justice made a strong plea for these people and that they should be put on the same level as the Provincial Judges of Canada, perhaps, very heroic, very right and very proper; but the question is whether it was advisable to raise these salaries after this House closed last year. Judges of the Supreme Court are to-day getting $7000 and $8000 a year respectively, which is considered to be a very respectable and substantial salary for any man to receive in this community, especially under present circumstances. It is not so long ago when the Colonial Secretary of this country received only $2000 a year. A man like Sir Robert Bond filled that office and did the work for $2000 and which was considered quite a decent salary ten years ago; but to-day that amount is considered a mere pittance. If we can afford to increase the salaries of the Judges, I have no fault to find with it because we have a Bench that everyone has the fullest confidence in and that everyone trusts and respects, but I say this advisedly, as I have already said before on one or two occasions in this House that we should cut our garment according to our cloth. If we can afford to pay the Judges their present salaries by all means pay them. It may be argued their salaries will be reduced this year, but not to the extent of the amount that it was increased last year. Since the House met last year, we have the case of Sir William Lloyd, the Registrar of the Supreme Court. He was appointed by this House at $3600 a year. Sir William Lloyd may possess qualifications above the ordinary Lawyer or the ordinary man, but after the House closed last year another $1000 was tacked on his salary making it $4600 a year. In my opinion that is a very handsome salary for a position of that sort in a country like this, and further I am told that the occupant of that office makes very large fees in addition to his salary. I have no means of knowing what those fees amount to but I have heard they amount to a substantial sum. I have no doubt that he makes considerable fees as Administrator of estates, and things of that kind. Well if it is possible for a government to grant salaries of this character, surely there is nothing illogical about the position taken by the members on this side of the House, namely, that underpaid officials should not be victimized and lopped off to meet the increases for higher paid officials. I understand that $230,000 is the amount to be saved by reducing the salaries of civil servants. This amount will be so much blood money in very many cases. It will be an untold hardship on very many capable officials, and after all it is not the higher up officials that deserve sympathy, because men occupying high positions in the Government offices and getting high salaries, if they do not like it they can go at something else. That class of men are not going to feel it; but it is in the man who have been working along and living in routine for a number of years and who are unfitted for anything else other than the jobs they hold at present who are going to feel it hardest. Take a man who has been in a Government office for thirty years on a small salary. He has not got a dollar put aside for a rainy day or if sickness overtakes him or any member of his family he has to curtail to meet any additional expenditure. Well I say that that is an untold hardship on a man of that kind; and it is an untold hardship on the policemen and on the firemen and on the nurses. I was at the General Hospital this morning speaking to some of the nurses. They said to me "surely you are not going to cut our pay?" I said as far as the Opposition are concerned they have no such desire and the only thing I can advise you to do is to pick out a delegation of the best looking nurses you have here—and I suppose that will include all—and approach the Bar of the House and address the Prime Minister and see what effect it will have on him. Perhaps, out of the goodness of his heart he will re-consider the blow he intends to strike.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Not the blow but the pressure.

MR. BENNETT—We will leave it at that. I do not intend to delay the House unnecessarily on this subject, because when we go into Committee on Ways and Means we will have an opportunity of expressing our opinions on the different votes as they come along; but I would certainly emphasize the desirability of the government re-considering the question of cutting any salaries below $1200 a year, because I think that it is false economy. I do not think that the government will be anything in pocket at the end of the year as a result of this form of retrenchment because efficiency in the public service is absolutely essential and must be maintained. The thing is too infinitesimal to help Newfoundland. We got to think on larger lines than this. What we must think of is how the country is going to recover from the position into which she has drifted. There are other and more effective means of curtailment than this cutting of small salaries can possibly be. It has been pointed out here already that we have a service in this country that can be very easily dispensed with. It almost takes one's breath away when one realises that one million dollars a year is being spent for education in this country—and still going up. Well now it's alright to talk in favor of education, and I would be the last person, perhaps, in the world to say a word against it, but I say we can only afford a certain amount for that purpose. In my opinion there is more money wasted on the department of education than there is in any other department in the civil service. I was astounded last winter while there was a trial on in the Supreme Court in which a man was accused of the death of his child in an important settlement in an important district and that within a few miles of St. John's. I never heard of such absolute ignorance. Children were let run wild without the advantages of an idea of elementary education—from the youngest to the oldest. Still we are told of the great advantages of education in this country. I heard of some things that happened in this country that are almost unbelievable. Why its like the dark ages, and I heard from clergymen of things that they have seen, that are a reflection on our civilization. And still we are asked to vote nearly a million dollars for education. It is high time that education entered the homes and tried to enlighten the people a bit first. It is a waste of time to send children to school and people living in places with schools right next door to them and they do not know what the schools are for. We are told that there are eleven men in Canada and the United States training to become school inspectors. Can any sane man tell me that that is a proper way to spend money, under present conditions. I say the educational system we had for the last twenty years is sufficient for us until such time as we can afford something better. What advantage to us is it going to be to have men going around inspecting schools if most of their time is to be spent in holding consultations with school teachers, as I heard it explained. I think if I was a school inspector I would get around to all the schools of any of the denominations that I had to visit in one summer, and I think that if there was a little more energy and industry displayed on the part of those who are high up in educational circles and if they spent less of their time here in St. John's that there would be a great deal more improvement in our educational system than we see in the country at the present time. Any how I protest and protest vigorously against a continuance of such expenditure of public monies for men going away and training for anything at present, I care not what it is. I think those would be inspectors should be ordered home like the Fish Commissioners were and made go and earn their living at something else. The idea of having a crowd of fancy inspectors going all over the country, is, I think ridiculous. Talk about economy, why it is a delusion and a snare. It is like the Estimates. Last year we were asked to pass Estimates and we find to-day from the statement of Supplemental Supply, as tabled, or in other words the money not voted last year by this Legislature amounts to $1,151,000, not including the $380,000 that was spent on fish. It is an absolute joke for a government to come in here and ask us to pass Estimates and then go out and spend half as much again on Executive responsibility. The Prime Minister last year deplored the system of Supplemental Supply and sad it was vicious and improper, but he himself has outheroded Herod in this instance. Never before was there such an exhibition of extravagance as demonstrated in Additional Estimates or Supplemental Supply for the year 1920-21. This Legislature is the proper place to vote the people's money. We are the representatives of all the people of the country no matter which side of the House we sit on. We are the appointed trustees of the people to look after their money and after their interest and to see that no money is voted that is not properly cared for. But Responsible Government becomes a joke when you go out after the closing of the House and add hundreds of thousands of dollars to the expenditure and deny all the representatives of the people the chance to say whether this money should be spent or not. Here are the additions to the Estimates that we passed last year. Last year we voted $50,000 for the Agriculture and Mines Department additional expenditure $45,000; additional expenditure Postal Telegraphs $66,000; additional expenditure Public Charities Department $131,000; Finance Department $35,000; Marine & Fisheries Department $86,000; Justice Department $39,000; Contingencies Account $68,000; Liquor Control $107,000 Dept. of Colonial Secretary $6,000 and Department of Public Works $425,000. The total amount not voted by this Legislature last year plus $380,000 for fish is $1,151,000. What guarantees have we got that the estimates that we pass this year will not be augmented by the time we come back next year—if we ever do come back. Consequently, I say that it is folly for the government or any member of the government to say that the affairs of this country are not in a serious condition. It must be remembered that the earning power of the people is cut in two. A few years ago the earning power of the people of Newfoundland was over forty million dollars or $800 per family. To-day twenty millions would be a conservative estimate of the earning power of the people or half of what it was in 1917-18 and 1919, and we can only earn one dollar where we earned two before. We can only afford to spend one dollar where we spent two before, I care not what your estimates are put down for or what revenue you expect to get or what you expect to save by taxing salaries. I say the earning power of the people to-day is only half of what it was three or four years ago and the expenditure of running the government, through extravagance has increased from six to eleven millions of dollars. Now it is only a matter of common sense as to what is going to be the result and I do not think that the Government is taking that seriously enough. The situation should have been gone into with that care and attention that it requires. The Prime Minister may have considered it, but I doubt very much if any member of his Executive have sat down calmly and deliberately and thought of what is going to happen during the coming year, particularly next Fall. What is going to happen in this country after the 30th of November next? That is the question. I have no doubt that the great bulk of the fishermen will be supplied for the fishery and that the government are doing all they can in that direction, but what is going to happen after the fishery is over. A man has got to think first of his family for next winter. The expense of outfitting a man to-day for the fishery is such that five or six dollars a quintal for his fish will not pay to keep his family for the Summer and him for his labor. It may be sufficient Fall seasons, but if he turns his catch back to the merchant who supplied him he will have nothing left for the winter. The merchant to-day is supplying mainly on Government guarantee and to the credit of some merchants they are doing the best they can. I know of one merchant, Mr. Walter Monroe, who has given out almost every dollar he possesses to supply Newfoundland dealers in the hope that he will get proper returns. I think that a man like that deserves the highest commendation of the entire community. But the unfortunate part of it is this. If the price of fish is going to be where it is estimated to be next Fall and even if many do have a good voyage what position are the merchants going to be in to give supplies for next winter to their dealers. That is why I say that the situation is going to be serious in this country from the 30th of November next until the end of January of next winter and that is why I say that the government is not sincere in devising ways and means to meet that contingency. I appreciate what has been done already this Spring, but what is going to be done when this present session of the House of Assembly closes. Every member on this side will be absolutely silent, and unable to do anything without power and without influence, and the government will have to assume all responsibility for looking after the people next winter and now is the time to consider the matter. It may be said that the thing is hopeless. Well I do not think that it is hopeless. I have ways and means in my mind that I think can get over the situation effectively, and, if that course was taken, without any sacrifice of our independence, I believe that the situation can be provided for effectively. I do not know whether the government have any such thoughts in their minds—I hope they have. I say that this House should merely adjourn this year and arrangements made so that an emergency session could be called without any delay should any great crisis arise.

MR. MACDONNELL.—I would like Mr. Speaker, to say a word or two as to the scale of salaries. In my opinion, so far as the discussion has gone, I don't think it is a question of whether the salaries stay as they are or go back to the 1918 standard, the first thing to decide is, what is a decent living wage for many of the civil servants. Till you do that everything will be wrong. You must arrive at the minimum salary. And, if I might, now put it to Hon. Dr. Barnes, who is holding a position that needs not much work, to evolve some scheme for a standard where a man can live decently and not go above it. The civil service is in an absolute muddle at present as positions are awarded as the result of pull. The Prime Minister for two years has done nothing and some may say how can he do anything without making trouble. I say by competitive examinations. Unless you do that nothing will be proper. When the Estimates come up I will refer to this again. Before taking my seat I wish to refer to the circular letter of Hon. Mr. Coaker which has been read by the Prime Minister. That circular created one of the greatest sensations in the history of this House. It was written by the same man of whom the Prime Minister said things that all we are saying now can in no way compare. The points made were just as strong. This letter too is just as strong. I was really puzzled by the position of the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in this House. His was only an act of attrition, not an act of contrition. It is only a half-hearted contrition as it was inspired by the fear of the devils and hell as he described this side of the House. He sees only the small space of the floor between him and it. He fears the punishment of his misdeeds and the appointment of the Commission to enquire into the same and fire him into what he pictures as the Hell of the Opposition. His is a happy conception indeed, but as Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Bennett pointed out the three leading denominations of the country are well represented in that region. He says he is a representative among clowns, and I can only think he refers to the Prime Minister and his other associates. I hope the Prime Minister will disabuse him of that impression. The Hon. Minister of Marine, I am glad to learn, is not going to leave the Port Union men orphans. This reminds me of the story of the boy who went to college. His father spent a lot of money on him, and when asked what he was going to be, the boy said, a poet. The father expressed the hope that he would be a mute and glorious one of the type of Milton. When he turned out a politician, the father was sorry he was not mute. Now as to writing the epitaph of Hon. Mr. Coaker, I suggest that he be no longer tormented by the fear of Hell to which is due his breakdown. I am sorry that the Hon. Prime Minister does not hurry up the Commission to enquire into his conduct and put him out of pain. He should grant that Commission that has been so much talked about. And then—let the finding of that Commission be his epitaph. It certainly would be a fitting one. With all things in connection with his career duly weighed I think his best act is his retiring from political life. But,

No longer seek his merits to disclose
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode.

Let them rest in Port Union. That place has been his guiding star; there his sun rose and there it set for him; Now he has hied him away to his own select portion of the country—and may he have many happy years there.

MR. WALSH—I would like, Mr. Speaker, to say a few words. I did not intend to speak but as Sir M. P. Cashin brought up the matter of supplies, I would like to point out that the proportionate share should not enter into consideration. The sum of $500,000 was voted last year to buy fish but none of it went to Fortune or St. Mary's Bays; $72,000 was used to purchase the salt which is stored at Port Union; there was $120,000 for cutting pit props and in St. Mary's and Placentia we got $12,000 of it and yet again there was $100,000 for cutting stuff for cars in Twillingate District but none of it went to the westward. It has to be paid up by the taxpayers of the West as well as the North. I thanked the Prime Minister for what he has done for Placentia and St. Mary's but I asked for a loan of $200,000—a loan, not a gift. If industries were taken up as Sir M. P. Cashin pointed out there would be no need to send so many people to the fishery. But after hearing the document by the Hon. Minister of Marine in which he tells the people of the North that they will be supplied and assisted by the Government, I do not think it fair that members on this side of the House must be pleading day after day for men who are just as good as any in the country or Empire. I will not make a lengthy speech now as I have met the Hon. Prime Minister and he agreed to meet me at 11 o'clock in the morning.

HON. PRIME MINISTER.—If we are not still in session.

MR. WALSH.—I hope you do not mean that as a slur, as an insinuation that I am holding up the House. As we suggested I am prepared to adjourn now if you will only promise to do something. But if there be any shilly-shallying, if these men are to be compelled to come here indefinitely, I will hold up all legislation in this House to-morrow unless removed by the police force for which Sir John Crosbie has been pleading this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had recommended that the Resolutions be refer^d red to the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

On motion this Report was received and adopted and it was so ordered.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Justice to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the cost of the two motor fire engines imported here last year for the Fire Department, also the original bills both for the machines and for the freight and other expenses thereon; also to say if the argument in favor of buying these machines was that it would enable a reduction in the number of horses in the Fire Department, and if the number of horses had been reduced, and if not why not; also to show what saving if any has been effected by the importation of these engines.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I may say this question was not brought to my attention to-day but I will answer it to-morrow.

MR. MOORE asked Hon. the Minister of Justice if it is the intention of the government, in view of its announced policy of economy and reduction of expenditures, to cancel, as from July 1st, the use of a motor car for the Inspector General of Constabulary, seeing that this car is mainly used for the private convenience of that official and the members of his family, and would it not be in the interests of the public to adopt this policy and use the money spent on this machine in maintaining the salaries of the firemen rather than to cut their salaries as is apparently proposed under the Estimates now before the House?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—

The Government has no information as to the privileges given him by the late government.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if his Department is carrying out the work of opening Day's Pond, Bona-vista, and if it is being done on the recommendation of the government engineer, to lay on the Table of the House copy of his report advising the same, and if on the recommendation of any other person to table copy of the report of said person. Also to state the estimated cost of the work, the number of men that will be occupied in carrying it out, to say from what fund the money is being taken to carry out the work, and if it is from special relief fund, is the amount provided more than the per capita allowance to which the District of Bonavista is entitled, and if so on what ground is it being given and what provision is being made for all the rest of the settlements in that district.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—

No work is being done at Bonavista except such as is covered by the appropriation of last year for Day's Pond operations. Out of the $100,000 allocation a certain portion was for that district. The work is being completed with that and a portion of the district grant. No extra expense to the Colony is entailed at all.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in his capacity of Chairman of the Railroad Commission, if Messrs. Kerr and Rober, experts now here from the United States in connection with railway affairs have been brought here at the instance of the Railway Commission, the Reid Newfoundland Co., or both; what is the nature of their duties, how long will they be engaged therein, what remuneration is there being paid, and what portion, if any, is to be borne by the Colony?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am informed that the gentlemen referred to have no connection with the Railway Commission. Their visit is due entirely to the instigation, if I may use the word, of private members of the Reid Nfld. Co. I do not know their duties. They are receiving no remuneration from the Colony.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House a statement from the Auditor General certified by that official, embodying the financial details furnished by him to the representatives of the Bond Brokerage Firms who negotiated the recent loan of six million dollars for this Colony, and also copy of the Minute of Council authorizing the raising of the said loan.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—No financial details were furnished, verbally or in writing, by the Auditor General to the men who negotiated the loan. I beg to table a copy of the Minute of Council.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if it is correct that the Imperial Tobacco Factory and the Colonial Cordage Co. are planning to close their factories as from to-morrow, May 31st, if so, for what period are they likely to remain closed; what number of employees will be laid off, and what steps if any, is the government proposing to take for the relief of these people?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I received a communication from the Tobacco Co. and the Cordage Co. to the effect that they desire a protective tariff put on while we are in Ways and Means. Both these factories are already well stocked. At a meeting some time ago the Cordage people stated the imported goods was cheaper than they could produce.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Can you tell me if tobacco was taken out of bond two days before the Estimates were tabled, and the price raised 10c. per lb.

MR. MOORE.—And still these people are looking for more concessions. It is a great thing to have a monopoly in this country.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—If the tobacco were taken out, it would be pretty keen business.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Education why the grants for sparsely settled places and for school buildings have been reduced in the Estimates for the coming year, and the grant for inspection increased, and to state what services adequate to the expenditure are given for the latter outlay?

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION.—There has been a reduction for schools as in view of the hard times the vote will be able to stand it. The increase for inspection is in accord with the grant of last session.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House copies of all cablegrams, radiograms and telegrams between his Department or any officials thereof and himself, and his replies thereto during the period of his absences from this Colony, from the 15th November 1919, up to date, and a statement showing the cost of the same.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I ask that this question be deferred.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister why tenders for the recent loan were not sought from various firms of bond dealers in the United States and Canada with a view to securing the best terms possible for the Colony as was done in the case of previous loans as for instance in that of 1919 when several different syndicates tendered, and what was the reason that induced him to restrict his dealings to only one syndicate when by putting the loan to competition much better terms might have been obtained?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—There was no need of publicity at the time and as a matter of fact, but that it had been negotiated direct, a few days later it would have been difficult to close as the article in the Tribune had appeared.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—We find here in a paper that in Manitoba bonds were selling at a good rate.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—But none of the people were writing against their own resources.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—That is no justification.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We will deal with that in Committee.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I will read your letter to the Tribune.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—You mean you will read part of my letter but later I will get my letter from the editor of the Tribune with the deletions made.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I don't know about that. I am only an outsider.

MR. WALSH asked Hon. the Prime Minister if it is the intention of the government to appoint Mr. E. Collishaw to be High Commissioner for this Colony at Washington, and if so what salary and allowances will be paid to him in connection with that position?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Collishaw is not being appointed.

MR. SINNOTT asked Hon. the Minister of Public Works, from what date the payment of $90.00 a month to Mr. Albert Salter for special services as adviser to the Public Works Department began; how much he has received on this account up to date, and if it is the intention of the government to reduce his salary in the same way as the salaries of other public officials are to be reduced?

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS.—All the information has been given before in answer to Sir John Crosbie. As to the latter part of the question I think he will be reduced like the others.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Education (a) If any amounts from the Augmentation Grant are being paid to the supervisors now training abroad; (b) Is any such amount from such grant being paid Mr. S. P. Whiteway; (c) What are the amounts paid in each case?

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION.—They are being paid for out of Augmentation. (b) No. (c) I will have the amounts to-morrow.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a comparative statement for the past ten years showing (a) the amount annually paid to lobster fishermen all over the Dominion as compensation for the spawn lobsters returned to the water; (b) the cost annually of government inspection; (c) the inspectors connected with this service, giving the complete list of same showing date of appointment of each; (d) the districts mainly concerned with the lobster fishery.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is being looked up by the Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He is always prompt in forwarding information and we will likely have it to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I beg to draw the attention of the House to the following article which appears in the Daily Star of recent date. (Reads article.) In this we have the first suggestion that McGrath is leader of the Opposition in the Upper House.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—He is acting as such, in place of Hon. Mr. Ellis.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Mr. Ellis is the leader; we have nothing to do with Mr. McGrath. I hope now you will all listen to this as it is a clever article. As a fisherman would say it is sailing pretty close to the wind. I read the article a few days ago and asked the Prime Minister if each paragraph was correct.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It is grossly disloyal; if a soldier had written it in war time he would have been shot.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—“The fishery is being conducted as usual.” Is that statement in the article correct? If so I must be dreaming. A few days ago we had a petition here from a man who supplies over 20,000 people asking for aid and I now ask can this article be correct in stating the fishery already shows better returns. It is signed R. A. Squires.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Mr. Speaker, I am delighted that Sir M. P. Cashin has drawn attention to this message. I am the author of it but I wrote it in an even more aggressive form. I have a letter from the editor of the Tribune who as he had a lot of matter from McGrath did not let mine go in. Mr. Steele of the Nova Scotia corporation, finding McGrath's message injurious, came to my house at night and stated their bonds abroad were being prejudiced by the article. I said I was sorry if any Newfoundlander was hurting them but ours for the loan had already been sold and the transaction closed. A day or two after I announced the closing of the bonds this article of McGrath appears. Whether it was written in good faith or not I will not now discuss. I do say that if it had been written by a soldier in war time, as McGrath did in our hour of need, he would have been taken out before a firing squad and shot.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—No, no, you are wrong there.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It is the basest, the most treacherous and the most dangerous article to a Colony that a cur could be guilty of writing.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Do you know if what was contained in that article was the truth and if it was right or not? And do you know who wrote the article I just read?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The article you just read was a digest of a cable I sent to the New York Tribune.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—In the face of that, you knowing of Harris's petition and of the general depression in this country, you have gone out and raised that Loan under false pretences.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Supposing I did.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You talk about loyalty. Where were you from 1914 to 1918? You were one of the men who took to the woods. You hid when those men who are looking for relief to-night went and spilled their blood for you.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I was doing as much for the war and got less out of it than the Hon. Leader of the Opposition.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—During the term of office of the National Government, under the Premiership of Sir William Lloyd, we came in here, at the instance of the present Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and passed a law to prevent you as Attorney General from collecting fees from the estates of returned soldiers and sailors. Ask your colleagues if that is correct?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—The hon. member lies.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You will find it in the Hansard.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I shall be delighted if you will look it up.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—There is no more doubt about this than there is about the statement made by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that you were the black rascal. That is also in the Hansard if you go turn it up.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—That is what your job is.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—You are not going to hand me out any old kind of bluff you like. I served through that war and I think that I did my part and when you were not to be found. But now we find you eulogizing the soldiers. What have you done in the way of enacting new legislation for their benefit? The answer is—nothing.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am glad my hon. friend thinks that he did something for the war and thinks that he got nothing out of it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I am sure of it.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—But to get back to this point. I propose to go where I like and there is one man in Newfoundland that will not stop me from going any place that I like; but I succeeded in putting the Hon. Leader of the Opposition where I liked.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—What do you mean by that?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Here is the article written by Sir Patrick McGrath to the New York Tribune:

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—What is that to you?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It would be a great lift to you, if we did not succeed in getting the Loan.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I don't know anything about McGrath; I am not responsible for him.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—But you are in daily conference with him.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—And I am in daily connection here with you too.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Exactly, and in spite of that I cannot make a gentleman out of you. By the interruptions of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition while I was reading that McGrath article one would be almost inclined to think that Sir Michael wrote the article himself and yet he says he does not know the real author of that article. That article was published in the New York Tribune on Wednesday, May 18th, and it received subsequent publication in allied newspapers at the same time. I have received letters from scores of people in the United States, some of them from Newfoundlanders and some of them not, calling my attention to this dastardly article, appearing as it did contemporaneously with Bonds on the market would naturally have an effect. A prominent gentleman in New York who is not connected with any newspaper there, with this comment of his: "The enclosed does not tend to sell your Bonds here, does it?" I have also here a commercial clipping from the "Globe," dated May 20th, an article written by Alfred W. McCann.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—If it were against Newfoundland I would say that Alfred B. Morine wrote it, but being in support of Newfoundland the author is Alfred W. McCann.

MR. MACDONNELL.—He must be an Irishman, the name sounds Irish.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Yes, an Irish name of one who is loyal to the Irish in Newfoundland. The article reads as follows: (Reads article.)

That is one of the articles which, up to the present, I have received from the New York press in which the press of the United States, realising that an effort was made by McGrath, in their opinion at least, to endeavour to hamper the flotation of bonds in New York, is dealing with McGrath and that is not the only one who will be dealing with McGrath before the incident is closed.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Would you mind telling me the source of the letter signed McCann? If you can't tell, I'll tell the source. It is a man, one of two candidates of yours, who ran in Harbour Main district for election and was defeated.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—It is delightful to know that the Hon.

Leader of the Opposition, after six week's campaigning and spending his hard earned dollars, succeeded in getting his two men elected in Hr. Main.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—It's consoling to know that I trimmed you.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—You trimmed me. I wonder if this is what you call trimming me. I went into an Opposition constituency where it was generally conceded I did not have a ghost of a chance of election. The result was that I was not only returned to office but increased my majority, and what was looked upon as a hopeless fight turned out to be a Government triumph and a Government victory. Do you know, Sir, that the worst curse that could come on this administration would be to have the two candidates, you referred to, on the Government side.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I can give you the address of McCann. You inspired that article and sent it to Devine to get it in that paper. My friend, Mr. MacDonnell thought that McCann was an Irishman in the United States. You cannot find an Irishman in the States who would touch that article.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—You mean to say that no Irishman in the United States would attack McGrath.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—No, but there is no man there who would allow himself to be made a tool of by you.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Fortunately, I usually select nner tools, rapiers, not bludgeons or sandbags.

MR. MACDONNELL.—I would like for the Prime Minister to describe the term loyalty, because this term before the war and after the war mean two different things. I want to tell the Prime Minister that when the time comes to have a court martial in this country, whether it will be a military court martial or the court martial of an outraged people that McGrath, even when he is damned will find himself in good company.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I know of one or two others who will be associated with him.

MR. MACDONNELL.—I want to hear your definition of the word loyalty; then I will give you mine.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—We will have to move the House into Committee of the Whole to discuss that matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I am glad that the occasion presented itself to-night to deal with this matter, as I wanted to have an opportunity of getting on the Hansard the McGrath article.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Is not everything stated in that article true?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Why I would not think of defaming the man's character or to insinuate that he ever told a lie in his life; his character is beyond any question of doubt for truthfulness.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—You seem to judge another man by yourself.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—Sir John accused me of very many things since this House has been in session and he now tells me that I judge another man by myself. Well, now Sir John have not you judged me by yourself?

SIR JOHN CROSBIE.—I would not attempt to do that. What I strongly object to now, as I objected to it some days ago when the article appeared in the "Star," is for blaming me for having knowledge of what McGrath wrote. I am not McGrath's keeper. I do not care what McGrath said or wrote. But I would like to call the Prime Minister's attention to the fact that what that article contained was a correct picture of the whole situation. There can be no question at all about that. To-night the fishermen are here in this House looking for supplies I can see them here from my own district as well as from other districts, and I endorse McGrath's statement that they are looking for something they have not yet got.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act further Respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act for the Prevention of Venereal Diseases" was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Select Committee.

Mr. Speaker appointed the Select Committee as follows: Hon. Minister of Posts, Minister of Public Works, Dr. Jones, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Mr. Fox.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—I would like to ask the Prime Minister to put the Motion for an Address to His Excellency the Governor first on the Order Paper to-morrow in order to facilitate matters.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—I was anxious to make progress with the Loan Resolutions, and I would much prefer having the Minister of Marine and Fisheries here during the course of the discussion on the address.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—There is no necessity to have him here, and, in my opinion it would be better that he would not be here while the debate is on.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—If he is not here by Thursday we will go on with it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Thank you.

MR. FOX.—Mr. Speaker, I would crave your indulgence for a few minutes to present a petition on behalf of a number of motorists in the city. There are 150 names to the petition and an equally large, if not greater, number will sign the petition in the course of the next few days. I shall reserve comment upon it for the present and will merely read the petition to the House. (Reads petition.) And it being past midnight

WEDNESDAY, June 1st.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. Fox gave Notice of Question.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until this afternoon at three of the clock.

MR. FOX asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries why Mr. P. J. Fitzgerald, late Inspector of Pickled Fish was discharged from office; how long had he been in the employ of the Government; did he hold office under Commission; if so to lay on the Table of the House a copy of said Commission; under whose authority was he dismissed and when; was it under Order in Council, if so to lay on the Table of the House a copy of the Minute of Council relative thereto, together with all correspondence and other memoranda dealing with this matter.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to furnish a list of the officials in his department showing:

- (1) The length of service of each (giving as near as possible actual date of appointment in each case.)
- (2) The special and particular work done by each.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, for a list of the officials in the Department of Finance and Customs, showing:

- (1) The length of service of each (giving as near as possible the actual date of appointment in each case.)
- (2) The special and particular work done by each.

MR. MACDONNELL asked Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to furnish a statement for the past ten years showing:

- (a) The number of men employed each year in the lobster fishery.
- (b) The number of packing stations each year.
- (c) The number of cases of lobsters put up each year.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, to lay on the Table of the House a statement of the quantity of pit props cut as relief in this Colony during the past winter and a list of the parties who cut same who have notified the Government that they are unable to make a sale of the stocks in their hands and to state what action the Government proposes to take with a view to disposing of all this material?

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to lay on the Table of the House copies of all correspondence between the late Postmaster or himself, or both and the C.P.R., in connection with a Cable service and between the last Postmaster General, himself, or both and the Anglo American Telegraph Company in regard to proposals by that Company for a service in conjunction with the Postal Telegraph.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked Hon. the Prime Minister if Mr. E. Collishaw was in Toronto or New York during the time when the negotiations for the recent loan for the Colony were in progress, and if so, did he furnish the Bond Brokers with a statement in regard to the Colony's finances on which the loan was raised, and is he the missing link in connection with this transaction?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—As to question one the information is being prepared. As to the third question Mr. MacDonnell will appreciate that the reply will necessitate a great deal of research work. As to the list asked for I will have that to-orrow. As to question four in the absence of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries I have asked the Deputy to prepare the reply. In response to number five I have to say that the Minister of Agriculture and Mines has been asked to prepare the information.

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.—In reply I have to say that my department has no copies of the matter herein referred to.

SIR M. P. CASHIN.—Dr. Robinson was in Canada in relation to this matter and there was a lot of correspondence and Dr. Robinson reported to the Government in reference to this matter. The Department ought to have a record of it.

HON. THE MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.—We have no record of it but I think the Department of the Colonial Secretary may. They at the time asked to have it returned. I will ask for it. I remember I asked the Department for it last year. I will try and have it for to-morrow.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.—As to question seven I am not aware that Mr. E. Collishaw was in Toronto or New York when this loan was in progress. I am not aware that he was ever approached by the brokers in question and he certainly had nothing whatever to do with the matter in question. He is the missing link in this matter.

The remaining Orders of the day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, June 2nd.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Speaker, I crave the indulgence of the House to bring forward a matter that is of the utmost importance to the industrial life of the Colony and especially to the District which is represented by the hon. Prime Minister and myself. Last evening upon taking up the papers I saw a notice therein which I shall read before making any comment upon it. The notice to which I refer is as follows:

To the Employees of the Colonial Cordage Company, Limited:

We regret to be compelled to give notice that work will cease in this Factory, one week from this date, and that we shall have to dispense with your services from 8th June, 1921. For many months we have been operating under difficulties, and stocks have been accumulating. This is the only industry in Newfoundland which has no protection against the production of countries where labor is cheaper, and where conditions are more favorable. We are now faced with an increase in duties on the ingredients used in our manufacture, and no corresponding duties placed on the foreign article with which we are obliged to compete. This means that the home made article will be driven from our own country, and the foreign made article will take its place. We have represented these facts to the Government, and so far have no assurance of redress, and it would be unwise for us to continue to pile up stocks, which might at any time be swamped by the dumping of the produce of foreign countries, admitted free of duty. We regret the severance of the pleasant relations existing between us, in many cases from 20 to 30 years, and we assure you that it is with great reluctance we are compelled to serve this notice.

COLONIAL CORDAGE CO., LTD.

Mr. Speaker, when I read that notice I felt that this was a very serious matter and one which, as a member for the District most concerned and considered the extent to which it affected my constituents, I felt it my duty to investigate with a view to ascertaining if possible what it was that brought about the necessity for the closing down of the Colonial Cordage Company's plant. I accordingly waited upon the general manager of the Company to discuss the matter with him and to see if in some way the plant could not be kept in operation. It is a serious matter when, in addition to all our other troubles, we have a concern like this upon which one hundred families are dependent for their livelihood going out of business and the consequences are such as one trembles to contemplate. However, I feel that in bringing this matter forward here I will have the sympathy of the Prime Minister whose constituents these people also are and there is no doubt that everything possible under the circumstances will be done to have the thing properly adjusted.

In the course of the interview to which I have referred I listened to the following statement with regard to the manufacture of the products of this concern, especially with regard to lines and twines:

THE COLONIAL CORDAGE CO. LTD. MEMORANDUM.

The local manufacture gives employment to many Newfoundlanders, the imported article gives none

The only argument against placing a duty on imported Lines and Twines is that it would increase the cost to the fishermen. This would not be the case where they use the local article.

There is a duty of 10 per cent. on fishing hooks; we would suggest that if benefit to the fishermen is intended it would be much better to take the duty off hooks which give no labor here, and give the ten per cent. protection to Lines and Twines which do. This would benefit the fishermen as well as local labor, and would at the same time tend to increase the Revenue of the country. A fisherman uses 100 hooks for every line used.

The remission of duties on articles which we use in manufacture would not be practicable as we sell many of these to the trade, and separation would be impossible, besides this it would tend to confuse the Customs.

Particulars of cost of manufacture of one dozen fishing lines, together with the duties payable by this Company.

Cotton, $1.20; Tar, 10 cts. duty at 20 per cent., 2.0 cts.; Paper, 4cts., duty at 15 per cent., 0.6 cts.; Burlap, 20 cts., duty at 15 per cent., 3.0 cts.; Labor (flat), 45 cts.; Mill supplies, 30 cts., duty at 25 per cent., 7.5 cts.; Overhead expenses, 20 cts. Total $2.49. Total duty, 13.1|10 cts.

The above figures show a penalty to the extent of 5 per cent on the local made article in its own country, whereas the foreign made comes in free of all duty

The gain to the country by protecting, or at least placing this branch of industry upon an equality with the foreign made lines is very considerable.

1st.—Duties collectable under the new tariff if the industry continues, enumerated above . . . 13.10|100 cts.

2nd.—Interest gain of revenue on amount paid for flat, viz., 4c. at an average; duty at 35 per ct. 14.71|100 cts

3rd.—It is of great economic advantage to the fishing industry that stocks should be carried by this Company where it is immediately available, rather than that merchants generally should carry overlapping stocks, the interest and general charges of which are difficult to compute, but which are inevitably added to the selling cost of the foreign made article which in turn falls upon the fishermen.

Total 27.81|100 cts.

Or roundly 28 cents for every dozen lines made in the country. The average output of this company exceeds 30,000 dozen per annum.

This number of dozens at 28c. per dozen brings in a return to the revenue of the country of well up to nine thousand dollars in this branch alone. Inversely, if this work stops the revenue loses and receives no compensating gain from the foreign made article

The loss to the revenue does not stop here.

For without the aid of the line and twine branches to enable the Company to carry its overhead expenses, we could not hope to compete with our rope competitors in our comparatively restricted market. Consequently, the stopping of the line and twine branches necessitates the closing down the entire plant.

Our estimate of the total amount of revenue collected directly from the company and indirectly from our operatives is well over fifty thousand dollars per annum. On the other hand if this factory closes down this revenue ceases and in addition an added burden will be placed upon the resources of the Country in finding relief or employment for our out-of-work operatives.

MR. BENNETT—I submit, Sir, that that is a very clear and concise statement of a position that should no longer exist. If we are to exist as a country at all we must in every possible way and by every possible measure protect and encourage our local industries. Here is a case of one hundred families who are depending for a living on that institution, an institution, which, owing to the increased duties that they are faced with and the unfair competition that they are called upon to enter into, have to close down. The Ropewalk during the past winter have been kept practically in full operation and have accumulated large stocks of ready-made materials; and it is no great hardship on the Company to cease work, but it will come on those, unfortunately, who can least afford to bear it. I appeal now to the Prime Minister to see if something cannot be done. I know he is as much interested in this matter and in these people as I am and I hope that he will see the justice of making an alteration in the tariff that will not in any degree bear heavily on the fishermen of the country. I would suggest an adjustment of the tariff on all lines and twines and hooks, as I believe that it can be done without any loss to the revenue. I, therefore, thank you Mr. Speaker for allowing me the privilege of putting those views before the House and trust that the Prime Minister will give the matter that attention and consideration that its importance merits.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker. May I crave your permission to thank Mr. Bennett for drawing the attention of the House to this matter which is of such importance to the country generally as well as to the constituency which we jointly represent. On Monday morning last I had a communication from the Colonial Cordage Co., the tenor of it being somewhat similar to what Mr. Bennett read in the report this afternoon, the position of the Company being that they desire to have an import duty of ten per cent. on all lines and twines imported into the country. I might say that the Manager for the Colonial Cordage Company formed part of a very large deputation, representing local factories, that waited on the Government some time ago in an effort to secure some protection for local industries, particularly with respect to the dumping of surplus stocks of foreign manufactured goods into Newfoundland and their desires in that regard have been fully met in the Resolutions by the insertion of the dumping clause which disposes of one of the points referred to in the report which was read by Mr. Bennett. The question of the rebate of duty on the remaining portion of the materials used by them in their manufacturing operations would not be of any practical benefit to them, under the circumstances. However, an effort is being made in the Sales Tax, which are embodied in Resolutions now in the course of being drafted and which will be submitted to the Committee on Ways & Means for discussion, to give preference to local manufacturers generally and by which the Colonial Cordage Co would substantially benefit. The question of the tax which the Company desires to have removed has been referred to a Committee of Council for consideration and discussion. The situation that they have large stocks on hand and that they have given an assurance that, if the tax is put on lines and twines, they will not have to increase their prices the coming year is before the Committee of Council for consideration, so that we hope when we get into Committee on Ways and Means to discuss more fully the whole facts. The major portion of the facts referred to this afternoon were given in the letter I have received from the Colonial Cordage Company; but I would be much obliged if the hon. member would let me have a copy of the memorandum he has. As I said before, the entire matter is one that the government have under careful consideration.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—Mr. Speaker. With your permission I would like to add a word in support of the appeal made by Mr. Bennett this afternoon with reference to increased taxation on the products of the Ropewalk. I think we will all agree that the Rope walk, at the present time, is a great institution in our midst. One hundred families, as has been already stated by Mr. Bennett, are receiving their support in that direction. Putting the number of families down at practically $1,000 each, they are no doubt paying into the revenue of this colony $30,000 in addition to the $50,000 revenue, already estimated in the memorandum that was read to the House this afternoon. With reference to the Prime Minister's remarks that part of the memorandum has been covered already by the dumping clause in the Budget. I do not agree with him. The line of goods at the Ropewalk never finds its way into this colony in this form. The Ropewalk manufacture lines and twines and ropes and cables of all descriptions, and I never heard in all my experience—and I have had some little experience as Minister of Finance and Customs as well as in the supplying of bankers and fishermen generally—of any goods in the dumping class coming through the Custom House that belonged to the Ropewalk. There is no such things as "dumping goods" in this line at all. Take cables for vessels that are made at the Ropewalk. They are looked upon to be as good as any cables manufactured in Canada or the United States. I have sold cables, which were made at the Ropewalk, to American and Canadian vessels and from which I subsequently received testimonials from stating that the material and the make up of those cables were just as good if not superior to cables that are turned out in Canadian or American factories. I happened to meet Mr. Monroe, the Manager of the Ropewalk, this morning. He came as a bolt from the blue to me when he stated his position of having to close down that institution, if the present tariff was enforced. Practically two hundred operatives have been turned out of employment. I think that the government are going too fast in that direction. One time that institution had a subsidy; to-day they have no subsidy in the way of encouragement from the government. In view of the large amount of employment given by them within the past six months and with the consequent piling up of huge stocks, I think that special consideration should be given them. To-day they cannot dispense with the enormous stocks they have on hand. Mr. Monroe was telling me that they have sufficient stocks on hand to last for about six months. That is due to the depression generally that exists all round the Island. I think we should make haste slowly in this matter if it is not our intention to put two hundred employees on the street. I know it is not the intention of the government to carry out a programme that will make over one hundred families or four or five hundred people destitute. Not alone that, but I do not think that the fishermen of this Colony should not be taxed any more than what they are at the present time. To-day they are called upon to pay for cod-netting something like $1 a fathom, compared with about 40 cents retail before the war. Now if the government is going to tack on any more duty for this class of material it will make it impossible for any fisherman to make two ends meet under any circumstances. Many of the fishermen along the Southern Shore have their traps set in the Atlantic Ocean, without any shelter whatever. I know that on numerous occasions traps have torn up over night there by the sea. If that work is to be carried on in that section in the future in Newfoundland, the price of codnetting will have to reduce instead of advance. Surely you are not going to drive right at the heart of this industry, without taking all the evidence into consideration.

I do not think that the dumping clause in the Resolutions as outlined by the Prime Minister here this afternoon, does not touch that industry at all, because there is no such thing as second hand lines and twines and rope coming into the country as it is an impossibility to get fishermen to use second hand material; they always want the best. If they find any ropes or lines moulded or mildewed they will not have anything to do with them. Consequently, I think the Prime Minister will find that the dumping clause in his Budget will have nothing whatever to do with this industry. I think we should go slow in this matter and when the Budget will come up for discussion we will have more to say about it. I think the statement read by Mr. Bennett this afternoon to this House is deplorable in the extreme and that this great industry, after a quarter of a century operating, has to close its doors on account of taxation and put one hundred families out of employment and take bread and butter from four or five hundred people. This must either be an oversight on the part of the government or simply a desire to get revenue, without considering the sources whence that revenue comes or whether it is got justly or honestly.

Mr. MacDonnell gave Notice of Question.

MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS—Mr. Speaker. I give notice that I will on to-morrow move the House into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions to amend the Act Cap. 40 of 11 Geo. V. entitled "An Act respecting the maintenance of certain public roads."

MR. FOX—Mr. Speaker. With your permission I would like to present a petition from a number of motorists of this city along the same lines as the petition I presented yesterday, asking for an amendment of the present Act. I shall have no comment to make, as I take it that the Amendment of the Hon. Minister of Public Works covers the matter.

Mr. Fox gave Notice of Question.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave Notice of Question.

Hon. the Min. of Justice gave Notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill to amend Chapter 87 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series).

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting the Raising of a Loan for General Purposes of the Colony.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr.

Speaker. I would crave the indulgence of the Opposition with a suggestion that I desire to make, and that is, that instead of taking up this notice of motion to move the House into Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting the amendment of the Income War Tax Act, 1918 20 that we go into Committee on the Loan Resolutions. The Loan has been floated on the basis of 98 3-4 with 11 per cent. on exchange. Exchange is fluctuating and on yesterday or the day before my advice from New York were that if I closed the Loan then the Colony would have got 99.04 instead of 98 3-4. Thus will be seen the advantages of closing the Loan as speedily as possible in the interest of the Colony, If it is possible to close the Loan on Monday next I could finalize all arrangements with the Bank of Montreal and it would save a considerable amount in exchange to the Colony. The transfer of such a large amount of money from the United States to Newfoundland in one block is a matter that would materially upset exchange, so I am advised by our New York agents, and in addition, I am informed, there will be certain large remittances to other countries, amounting to many millions of dollars taking place within a short time. Consequently, the advices I have secured, in so far as it is possible to get any definite information, intimate that if this thing could be closed immediately and arrangements made with the Bank on Montreal on Monday, we would be in a much better position as to terms than we otherwise would be. I hope that during the month there may be a fluctuation arise that will be beneficial to Newfoundland in this connection. I feel that the whole country would sincerely appreciate if we disposed of this Loan Bill as promptly and with as less criticism as possible, have it assented to by His Excellency the Governor so that all the necessary arrangements could be finalized to enable us to take advantage of exceptionally favorable rates. The whole matter will come up in Ways and Means for discussion and the figures in connection with the Loan will be submitted. Consequently, I crave the indulgence of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition and his associates to consider this matter and to ask that this motion of mine stand deferred and that we immediately proceed with the first item on the Order Paper.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Speaker. I quite agree with the remarks of the Hon. the Prime Minister that exchange is fluctuating day after day. It may be up today and down to-morrow. On Monday next it may be 10 per cent instead of 12; but I would like to point out to the Prime Minister that the matter does not rest with the Opposition, because it is only within the past week that we have heard of this Loan and this Loan could have gone through, and any criticisms we have to make will have very little to do with its passage through this House. While we have a considerable amount of criticism to offer to this Bill as to why and how the Loan was raised and all the other details in connection with it, still we are prepared to suspend the rules of the House and put it through all its stages this afternoon, if considered necessary in the interests of the Colony and if we are to save money under it. Speaking on behalf of the Opposition, we are prepared to suspend the rules of the House and get down to business immediately, because I can see the awkward position the government is in at the present time. The government needs the money for many reasons and particularly to pay their bills in relation to railway expenditure.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER—Mr. Speaker. I am sure that the entire country will appreciate the patriotic attitude of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition and his colleagues in this respect, and on behalf of the Government I thank them very much, because every dollar that we take advantage of in exchange is not a dollar in the way of advantage to the government or the Opposition, or to any individual members but in the interests of the entire country. I, consequently, move that the House do now resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on these Resolutions.

MR. BENNETT—Whilst we are waiting, I want to add a word to what the Leader of the Opposition say re these Loan Resolutions. I am quite in accord with the efforts of the Prime Minister to have this money transferred as soon as possible. We on this side of the House have been endeavoring to obtain the official correspondence which took place or rather the financial statement given when this loan was under negotiation. But the Prime Minister gave us an assurance that no such statement was given, but Mr. Steele who represented the various firms came down here and got all the information necessary. I also asked for the Minute of Council and only yesterday was a copy of the same furnished the House. This Minute of Council embodies some facts which do not go to the kernel of the situation. This is the only official document that we have throwing light on the condition of this loan and I am quite in accord that this matter be put through right away.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed the Resolutions without amendment, and recommended that a Bill be introduced to give effect to the same.

On motion this report was received and adopted and the Bill entitled "An Act to authorize the raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for the General Purposes of the Colony," was introduced and read a first time and it was ordered that it be read a second time presently.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister and with the unanimous consent of the House, the Bill entitled "An Act to authorize the Raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for the General Purposes of the Colony," was read a second time and it was ordered that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, by unanimous consent the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to authorize the raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for the General Purposes of the Colony."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman of the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the said Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, with unanimous consent the Bill, entitled "An Act to authorize the raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for the General Purposes of the Colony" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above, and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting amendment of the Income War Tax Acts 1918-20."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.— (Amendments to the Income Profits Tax Acts 1918-19). I just make the formal motion of submitting these amendments to the Committee of the Whole and ask for a report by the Committee of Ways and Means one section of which is already set out in the Budget. I might say the amendments are merely technical which have been suggested by Mr. O'Reilly which will facilitate the working out of the matter. These will be considered by the Committee of Ways and Means. I know that the members opposite will notice that the printer in this matter is not accustomed to do Government printing and consequently he has printed the Resolutions and the bill on the same sheet.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and recommended that the said Resolutions be referred to the Committee of the Whole House on Ways and Means.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered accordingly.

Motion for an Address re Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER.— Mr. Speaker, this address to the Governor asking for an investigation into the various allegations and insinuations against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was adjourned some days ago by me as at that moment it appeared to me that as it was late in the evening and that it would require much more time than there was then at our disposal to deal with this matter. As the Opposition has facilitated the Government in the passing of this loan bill which is very essential to the Colony I regret to have to take up the question of making personal observations in this matter but I will confine my comments to the private statements of the position of the Government and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I shall speak in a different tone than I would have had I spoken on the matter a few days ago. The suggestions that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is guilty of using the advantages which he derived from his position in the Government to further the interests which he represents is entirely without foundation in fact. Just so long as these statements came from political opponents of his just so long as this Minister of the Crown is representing certain constituencies, just so long will the Opposition use the opportunity to have this a subject of discussion and consideration in this House. The matter then came to the point when Sir John Crosbie, the hon. member for Port de Grave, made certain definite statements based upon the information of Mr. J. Sellars every item of which reflects very seriously upon the Hon. Minister and then the Minister took up the matter and decided that at the first opportunity Mr. Sellars and certain other gentlemen should be examined upon oath and then have the actual facts given to the public. Just so long as this matter amounted to party politics in which the Minister of the Crown is submitted to a political attack the question of enquiry is out of the question. But when it came to the point that there were certain allegations based upon the statements of gentlemen of high standing in the community, the Minister himself desired that at the first opportunity he would like to have these persons given a chance to prove their statements or else deny the charges so made and then apologise to the Minister. It was decided that the best way to have this worked out was to invoke the aid of the Public Enquiries Act. On the 14th of May I received from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the following letter: (Reads as follows.) "In view of certain allegations or insinuations made by Sir John Crosbie in the House of Assembly, to the effect that I received for myself and the companies in which I am connected, certain advantages with reference to salt and fish purchased by the Government, I ask that a commission be appointed under the Public Enquiries Act to investigate into the subject matter of those allegations or insinuations." The letter was addressed to me as Prime Minister and I received on the same day as it was written. I for myself have gone into this whole matter with much considerable detail and I have come to the conclusion that it is wise and expedient to have this matter probed under oath so that there will be a satisfactory proof that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had profited nothing nor had the companies he represents profited anything because of his holding the post of Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Nor was it used by him to benefit the allied interests to which he is connected in any financial way whatever. This appointment of this commission will give the Opposition an opportunity of seeing for themselves that the Minister has not merited most of the severe censure which has been heaped upon him. This enquiry will undoubtedly prove to the public that not alone did he conduct himself properly in those transactions referred to but not the slightest advantage whatever was taken by him on behalf of himself, any companies he represents, or any companies in which he has an interest, because of his associations with the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The Minister is delighted that this opportunity will be afforded the public and the members of this House under the Public Enquiries Act to prove upon oath the veracity of the statements referred to and I feel certain that the hon. members opposite are glad and will agree with the suggestion of the Minister.

MR. HIGGINS.—Following the example of the Prime Minister I shall not unduly delay the time of the House. The extraordinary attitude taken by the Prime Minister is the completest justification of the Opposition for the course which has been taken in this matter. The Prime Minister has announced, and it is the only way out, for himself and party, the appointment of a commission under the Public Enquiries Act. That statement coming from the leader of the Government is the best endorsement possible of the strength of the position taken by us and is the strongest indication of the necessity that not alone should the motion be really considered but it should be carried out. This is not a personal matter. The conduct of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was of such an extraordinary nature that it should be enquired into. It is absolutely drawing a red herring across the trail to say that it was an attack on the Government or on the Minister. The Resolutions simply stated facts gathered from questions asked here in the House. They started off with the fact that certain moneys belonging to the Government of the Colony were placed under the control of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. It happened that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was the Hon. Mr. Coaker. A certain amount of the money was used to purchase the cargo and pay the freight of the "President Coaker." Then they go on to state in the second paragraph. (Reads paragraph of Address.) It was clearly an embezzlement of public moneys. The Hon. Mr. Coaker was president of both companies, and he was acting in the dual capacity of a Minister of the Crown and president of these companies.

Then paragraph 5 states: (Reads paragraph 5 of Address.) At the time this 5th paragraph was read here in the House there was no knowledge of the extraordinary incident that subsequently occurred. The Minister of Marine & Fisheries stated that he had no connection with the cargo that Joseph Sellars was the person who owned the fish and that a cheque had been given him for the fish. We soon found out, however, that that cheque did not show the real transaction. It was only "colourable," as the Resolutions state, because it was immediately followed by the tabling here in the House of a cheque back for a like amount. Surely that is a matter of grave public concern. Even in our charity for him surely it is not personal to say that this was a most extraordinary transaction, sitting down in his office and buying from himself, making out a bill to himself, certifying his own bill, giving a cheque to Mr. Sellars and having a cheque sent back to him from Mr. Sellars for a similar amount. Time there was when the Minister himself would not be satisfied with this. Time there was when the Minister would hold up to public ridicule any person involved in such a transaction and would demand the most searching enquiry and not one such as that of which we have happy memories, where no one was allowed to act as counsel, when the Commission determined whom they would call, and just what examination he would be put through.

Don't flog the dead horse too much, gentlemen. We bemoaned him here the other night when the Leader of the Opposition read that famous circular. In justice to him, in justice to the day when you thought more of him, don't go back on him and treat him as the commonest type of political heeler. Say to yourselves we don't want our worthy president to be put up before the country, before an ungrateful public. See to it that you act as pall-bearer in a decent way. Give him a dignified funeral. Accordingly we are asking for a state funeral. If the matter is so serious that he wants an enquiry, let the commission be of such a character that their judgment will reinstate him without blemish in public life. If he can raise the price of fish, let you raise him back to public life.

I say in all sincerity to hon. members opposite that if the enquiry is carried on as one was recently carried on, no matter how honest his concern for the needs of the people, public opinion will be that something was whitewashed; but I think the explanation ought to be given before a Board that will leave no doubt. It is desirable from the standpoint of the Hon. Minister himself that such a Commission be appointed.

The paragraph 6 goes on to state: (Reads paragraph with reference to expenditure for salt.) That is the second matter of enquiry. Nothing can be more serious than that. Sixty or seventy thousand dollars taken from the treasury of the country without any minute of council by one who happens to be Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He takes it himself as Minister of Marine & Fisheries, hands it himself as president of several corporations and then appeals to himself in his third capacity as leader of the Government for the time. There are different reports from the Auditor General regarding this matter. The first report stated that it had been bought by some concern, the second that he had been told this by some person, and the third that it had not been sold but stored. Not one cent of money was paid to the Colony for this salt, but as soon as a question was asked in the House $4,000 were paid. If the statement is true the man perpetrated a criminal act. If it was merely stored he had no right to buy any of it. If he bought any of it then comes the inference that he bought all of it. The unfortunate transaction has made the Minister worry. The hardest thing a man can have is a bad conscience. No hell can be worse than when a man's conscience worries him. Hence it may be that this is the hell which is referred to in the celebrated circular of the Minister.

So, Mr. Speaker, I say regarding this second enquiry, it is an enquiry regarding the handling by a Minister of the Crown of a large amount of public moneys. Surely that cannot be said to be personal. Can any Minister act as he likes without being responsible to anybody. The kindest thing we could do for the Hon. Minister is to have an enquiry. It is unfortunate that the price of salt has gone down, the question is whether the salt would now be stored or bought. That is the question that agitates the public mind. We are asked to cut $230,000 off the poorly paid Civil Servants but we must not enquire as to the expenditure of such an amount as half a million by a Minister of the Crown. Must we close our eyes to this enquiry. We do not know whether or not the salt is now stored at Port Union.

Then paragraph ten states: (Reads paragraph.) I think that that is a point that no member on either side of this House can disagree with. The constitutional bed-rock principle is admitted. I have heard of men connected only in a legal way with business concerns who had to resign as Ministers of the Crown. Surely you cannot call this a personal attack. It is a pity that the fates have played it so that the man who only a few years ago set out as the real exponent of democracy should be involved in such a transaction as this. Now the leader of the House should see to it that as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is about to retire from public life the post which has caused him endless trouble and as we have had sufficient examples of this type of man that this should not be condoned as an example for others to follow, that we are taught aright and will not on any account take the precedents set by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as a pattern, and that the country at large will be assured that matters will be conducted along lines of principle and honour henceforth so let him see to it that proper, safe and honest justice is rendered by the tribunal which the public will have confidence in. A commission appointed by the Governor in Council is only a joke in this country. In order to be fair to him and ourselves, in order that the public should have no doubt in this procedure and in order that it shall not prove a failure as in the past, I think the hon. members opposite will support the motion before the chair. I support it not in a partizan spirit. The circumstances surrounding the whole case speak for themselves. The allegations indicating or purporting that he as Minister made out an invoice to himself, issued a cheque by himself to himself and that he did many other things in like manner, involving a large sum of money, should be enquired into and I trust that despite the assurance of the Prime Minister that a commission will be appointed along the lines indicated, that the Minister will satisfactorily explain his conduct and I hope that those who in the day of old listened to his sophistries and advice will not forsake him in his decaying days but will see that he is given a fair trial which is necessitated on account of his actions, the result of a frightful mistake.

MR. FOX—Mr. Speaker. Just before the motion is put to the House, I would like to say that I am quite in accord with Mr. Higgins. First of all I think it would be advisable in the interests of the Minister the most complete and far reaching enquiry should be made by a tribunal which this country will look up to but the idea which has been suggested that this matter should be referred to a commission appointed under the Public Enquiries Act is too ridiculous for words. This Act says that this commission will be appointed by the Governor in Council if the circumstances warrant it. Coaker is de facto controller of the government and leader of the Governor in Council. Following Mr. Coaker there is Mr. Squires and he comes out and says this afternoon that the allegations against the Minister are without foundation in fact and we can imagine the attention which the Prime Minister is going to pay to the personnel of this commission and the conduct of this investigation the previous ones of this kind which have gone down in the history of the country as the most ludicrous and unjust and which are ever before the attention of the people. The working out of the Woodford Affidavit Commission conducted to lessen the respect for law and the administration in this country more than all other agencies put together. It was a horrible sham. Those who could see to it that the proper conclusion would have been arrived at, were excluded from the sittings. Are you going on in the same way? There was not one on the Commission who was willing to enquire into the matter. Are the members of the F. P. U. going to allow the Minister to take his medicine? No the public will again look upon the whole thing as a farce. Are we going to have our children's children recognize that in the year of grace nineteen twenty one when a serious charge was made against a Minister of the Crown that the people had to take their coats off to see to it that the best tribunal in the land was to be the judge. Are we going to have this done? I hope not. I am quite in accord with the remarks of Mr. Higgins that there is no partizanship about this motion. And in the interests of that great personage Mr. Coaker, those serious charges against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the result of his association and union with the government should be enquired in to in a manner which will be above suspicion, but when the commission is to be one under the Public Enquiries Act it will be looked upon as a mere joke. When the Prime Minister says that the allegations are without foundation in fact then we must assume that Governor in Council will not deem it expedient to appoint the commission. Yet he says that this commission will be appointed under the Public Enquiries Act. I want to know where is his consistency. Who is going to do it? I am sure the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is not going to do it, and I am certain that Mr. Foote will not because they are afraid of the Coaker element. Is the Minister of Justice going to attend to it? Who is the member of the Executive Council who will stand up here and demand that this enquiry be at once instigated into those charges? When are we going to arrive at the time when the Governor in Council will deem it expedient? An other instance of throwing dust in the eyes of the public. I suppose if it is appointed it will meet in the boiler room of the House of Assembly or the Tower Room of the Court wherein no one of impartiality will be admitted. This will be another example of what happened during the bank crash. There was a big wave of public disapproval followed by a determined decision that no commoner will go to jail when it is possible to secure him an escape because of the fact that the bank directors at that time too easily made good their get away from the tolls of the law. This same rotten administration of justice was effected last year during the Woodford affidavit Commission. The public have come to the conclusion that there is one law for the poor and one for the rich. Men of wealth and influence can always make their get away. But the man who smuggles a jar of rum into this country from St. Pierre not alone gets into trouble but the whole detective force and the justice department do their best to get after this scoundrel. If the police discovers a man with a beverage containing over two and one half per cent. of alcohol the whole of the detective force is on its head trying to land the poor unfortunate individual. Instead of having a proper administration of justice we have always had the authorities trying to let them clear perhaps not intentionally but actually at any rate. All this frightful conduct has had the devastating effect of lowering the moral tone of this country. We should try and have our constitution obeyed and have the law and order of the country respected. We want to avoid having our people know that discrimination is shown. I want to say that if there is a charge that is serious and which warrants a proper enquiry then let the best tribunal in the land be the judge, that tribunal which is impartial and will see to it that justice is rendered. The Prime Minister last year wrote a pamphlet entitled "the trail of a serpent" and the serpent was A. B. Morine. He told us about the doings of this man and what he did when he was a member of the Executive and at the same time the solicitor for the Reid Newfoundland Company. I want to say he is misjudged man and much of this ballyragging is without foundation in fact and it is high time for this scurrility and villification to stop. Three years ago anything done by this man was thought very highly of by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, but to-day this very same Minister would go to his neck in water to have something happen to A. B. Morine, he would do anything to have him ostracized. What is flesh for the goose is flesh for the gander. If A. B. Morine should have been shut out of public life what should be done with Mr. Coaker? who is a member of the Executive Council, President of the F.P.U., and he controls the Government side of the House, he is also President of the Trading Company. He is also chairman of the Railway Commission. He is Minister of Marine and Fisheries as well. He is the leader and in control in fact of the government of the country and in addition comes into this House, sworn not alone to obey the dictates of his conscience that his powers be used for the benefit of Newfoundland, but sworn to follow the dictates of the Union which sent him here. What did he do? Is he any different from Mr. Morine who was drummed out of public life 20 years ago because he gave legal advice to the firm for which he was solicitor. His conduct was not a circumstance to Hon. Mr. Coaker's, but still it was a reason for you to wax indignant and write a pamphlet entitled "The Trail of the Serpent" which was sent all over the country; you did this because he had occupied a Ministerial position while solicitor for the Reid Nfld. Co., and put him out of political life; that is vote with the Opposition. Morine was a terrible character—you tell how Governor Murray dismissed him, how indignation meetings were held all over town and the people swayed to petition the governor in the case, and how the latter asked for his resignation. But you do not tell how he came back in triumph. I hold no brief for Mr. Morine, but it is positively indecent for us to go on criticizing one who does not deserve one half the structures and censure showered upon him by the political hot-heads of the country. He is a man that raised his family in this country, and has conducted himself in a manner that does not warrant the vilification heaped upon him for 20 years. As I said before, to censure him is now almost a tradition. To-day when the government papers have nothing else to talk about they jump on Morine because he was a candidate for the Opposition two years ago. This has gone on too long—it is time for someone to point out to the country the members of the Government are not fit to tie his shoe strings. Say what you like about him he stands out prominently because of his ability and clear-mindedness in connection with the affairs of the country. And that comes from one who has had intimate knowledge of him and from one who is not biased in his favour, but who wishes to take an impartial view of him. I think we should recognize his ability and give him his due meed of praise for his general characteristics. I think it is time we realized that we cannot allow things to go on in the administration as they have gone on. It is time to realize that when a Minister of the Crown has most serious charges preferred against him, an enquiry should be conducted on such lines as will leave no room in the minds of the people for comment. The Hon. Minister himself sees the need of the enquiry and asks for it. If the charges were trivial he would not do that. I take it for granted he sees how serious they are if there is a single individual on the other side of the House who wants to see him cleared, then it is his duty to see that he be tried by a tribunal so constituted that it will leave no doubt whatever with the people that it was fairly and properly conducted. We should no longer have a ravenstony justice such as we did a few months ago when the Hon. Prime Minister himself was concerned and a "SCOTCH verdict" was returned. I do not think it at all fair to the government to have such. It would be better for them to say it is true, than that it is not. I do not think it fair to the Hon. Minister of Marine to have such a verdict brought in in his case. The only way to see there is a proper investigation and a correct conclusion reached is to see that the tribunal is one that will perform its duty fearlessly and strengthen the confidence of the people to feel that all such matters will be properly dealt with. Therefore, I say, the House should take this resolution, see that it is put through properly, and not leave it in the hands of the Governor-in-Council, who is only Hon. Mr. Squires or Hon. Mr. Coaker, and would be appointing himself his own judge. If the man in the street is arrested for stealing surely none will think he can come into Court tomorrow and try himself. Are we going to have this position in this instance. Because he holds the Government in the hollow of his hand, when he is brought to book and the public demands an investigation, is he to say: "I will have an enquiry. I will appoint the judges and have every step possible taken to preserve my reputation" Are you going to have this situation? You should have this thing done right. Let the government have the Commission sit immediately, and report, but do not let them think for a moment they are going to get away with any stage play, and that we will allow it. Mr. Coaker says in his letter of May 14th to the Hon. Prime Minister that he wants the enquiry; and the government say they will have it. I do not think it will ever sit. Everyone will remember last year when the Commission dealt with the case against the Leader of the government. They grew tired of waiting; every expedient was used against the appointment of the Commission; after two long months Commission was appointed and eventually sat; but with what result we do not yet definitely know. Suppose the government will not accede to the governor appointing the Commission asked for in this resolution, but they say they will do it, you can mark my words we will never have it. Still they ask the Opposition to join hands with them and believe in their bona fides. The country will not tolerate the state of affairs such as pictured in these resolutions. The government say the things asserted are not taking place and are trying to wriggle out of the holding of the enquiry. But the Opposition will not allow them, and I say further that the people of the country will not allow them. The charges are serious enough, goodness knows, to warrant us in insisting that this investigation be proceeded with and carried on properly. It is only turning it into a farce to think that the people will tolerate the charges being investigated in the manner indicated by the Prime Minister here to-day. Therefore it is in the Prime Minister's own interests to see that Hon. Mr. Coaker does not rest under a cloud the same as he does himself. I think the honorable gentleman is indeed unfortunate in having to put up with such a verdict as was returned in his case. If I were in his position I would rather be convicted than remain under such a cloud. He should give his experience to his colleague and see that in the future he will not be left to labor under the same shadow as himself. I suggest that in their own interests the F. P. U. members should see their leader cleared as surely they cannot support a leader whose reputation is besmirched. They should see that the tribunal to proceed with the charges against him is a properly constituted one and if they do not, they are doing something which will be to their own lasting discredit. I heartily support the resolution and I ask them to insist that the Commission appear above suspicion in the least degree.

MR. VINICOMBE—I rise to support the resolution before the Chair, Mr. Speaker, and in doing so I wish to do it with fairness to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He has told me that he is as innocent as the child unborn of any wrong doing. If so, I don't see why the Prime Minister should refuse to allow these resolutions to go through to-day; but if he has any doubt why should he not let the judges sit on the Commission. Last year an enquiry was held on himself, and all in Court who saw the three men on that commission saw that they whitewashed him. If the same three sit on this they will want to mix salt with their whitewash to do it properly. I believe this will happen in the same way as last year. As Mr. Higgins has pointed out Mr. Woodford went into that as a layman, but you had your lawyers. He had no opportunity to have legal counsel. It put me in mind of a play I once saw with a court scene in it and I think you want to make the same out of this case of Mr. Coaker's. The Hon. Mr. Coaker tried to play his part but failed; he tried some desperate things but failed and at last put himself in the hole. If he is innocent you will have this commission, but as Mr. Fox has said, you will not agree to it. Why should you sit there and say you will form a commission yourselves if he is innocent. You sir, went to Bell Island and said that Mr. Higgins was Reid's solicitor. But you were Reid's fools and you were the biggest, if we are Hon. Mr. Coaker's clowns. I want to show that you are fools. You lost 2 millions on the railroad last year, and were you not fooled into doing so. If you call it by any other name I will use it. Here we have these resolutions and we are told the Commission will be formed. Surely we will have no more of this whitewashing. The three judges have been asked for. Hon. Mr. Coaker does not say he wants a committee, and I believe he will go before the three judges. The Woodford trial was a mockery of Court proceedings. One day I went up there to listen to the evidence, and I did not think the men interested belonged to St. John's because when one had to go to Woodford's house at 10 o'clock in the night, another accompanied him as far as the Post Office to post a letter. He actually did not know that there was a Post Office in the East End. That will show what a farce that Court was. And then another time they hauled down the blinds so that people could not see what was going on.

HON. PRIME MINISTER—It was not a farce, it was a funeral.

MR. VINICOMBE—It was almost your funeral. I think the Hon. Mr. Coaker is big enough to say he will go before the three judges. I believe he will not stand for the same thing as last year. I do not know to-day whether you or Mr. Woodford are guilty as there was no real trial and now we have the same proposition as to the form of the Court and perhaps the same three men will be appointed and make as good a job of it as they did in your case. They may even use the brush better to-day. I think the Prime Minister ought to say right straight out that the government accepts the resolutions as placed before the House.

SIR M. P. CASHIN—Mr. Speaker, just a word before the vote is taken on this matter. I have already spoken upon it at some length, and I do not now intend to delay the House very long. It was I think on the 12th of May that this petition was introduced and it is now June 2nd, which means that the petition has been side tracked by this House. This afternoon, after three weeks have elapsed, the Prime Minister comes in and tells the House that no definite charge has been made against the Minister of Marine & Fisheries, nothing but insinuations. Now Sir, I am not going to make a speech on that aspect of the matter, but I would like to put it to any fair-minded member of this House or to any man outside of the House who has followed the debate on the question it from the evidence that has been adduced here and from the statements that have been written by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, himself to the various companies associated with the organization of which he is the leader, there can be any doubt in the minds of the government that there is something in the conduct of the Minister which should be investigated. It is easily understood, however, why the government are not pre pared to have his actions made the subject of enquiry. He is their chief; he is the man who is keeping the Prime Minister in his seat to-day; he is the man whom the Prime Minister is courting and he is the man who is now deserting this House to-day. He is in a degrading position and there is not one of his army of followers on the other side, the F. P. U. members, has had the courage to rise in his place and attempt to put up an argument in his favour for the simple reason that they know it is impossible to do so. As to the charges in this petition it is only necessary to take the salt scandal to show whether or not it is insinuations that have been made against the Hon. Mr. Coaker. I was told in the Board of Trade rooms that this cargo of salt was imported by four Water Street merchants plus Mr. Coaker. It was brought in here by arrangement amongst these men, and they allowed it to go to Port Union. That was sometime in June or early in July and it looked then as if there would be a good fishery and the merchants who were interested in the cargo would not allow the Hon. Mr. Coaker to have more than half of it. In spite of that, however, he took three quarters of the salt off his own bat and without consulting them at all and they, of course, strongly protested against his action. He was going to send the steamer back to St. John's with quarter of her cargo on board, but the captain would not agree to take it unless he was paid extra freight on it and the balance was subsequently landed at Port Union. The fishery then took a twist and the Minister of Fisheries realized that he was not going to make as good a thing out of that salt which like the sugar was purchased at top notch, as he at first hoped he would. The Hon. Mr. Coaker then took another thought when he saw the fishery dropping off, but he took good care not to tell his colleagues what he intended doing. They
