Overview

The Office of the Commissioner of Lobbyists (the Office) is located at 120 Conception Bay Highway, Suite 114, Villa Nova Plaza, in Conception Bay South. Administrative support is shared among the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission (RNCPCC), the Criminal Code Mental Disorder Review Board (CCMDRB) and the Office of the Commissioner of Lobbyists and is provided by a manager (RNCPCC) and a secretary (RNCPCC and CCMDRB).

An online registry of lobbyists exists and there is no fee to access this information. The online registry can be found at <https://cado.eservices.gov.nl.ca/Lobbyist/Menu.aspx>.

During fiscal year 2025-26, there were 44 new lobbyist registrations. Of these, 34 were consultant lobbyists and 10 were organizations with in-house lobbyists.

A consultant lobbyist is one who for remuneration or other gain, reward or benefit, undertakes to lobby on behalf of a client. A consultant lobbyist is not an employee of the client or organization.

An in-house lobbyist is defined by paragraph 6(1)(b) of the Lobbyist Registration Act (the Act) which states that an "in-house lobbyist means a person who is employed by an organization:(i) 20% of whose duties as an employee, as assessed in a 3 month period, are to lobby on behalf of that organization; or (ii) a part of whose duties as an employee is to lobby on behalf of that organization if the employee's duties to lobby together with the duties of other employees to lobby would constitute 20% of time at work of one full-time employee, assessed in a 3 month period, were those duties to lobby to be performed by only one employee."

Mandate

The Mandate of the Office is contained in the Act. The Commissioner of Lobbyists (the Commissioner) is responsible for investigating alleged violations of the Act or the Code of Conduct, denying or cancelling a lobbyist's registration where the Act or Code has been breached, and ordering, upon application, that some or all registration information be kept confidential. The Commissioner may also recommend changes to the Code of Conduct.

Report on Performance

Issue 1: Investigating Alleged Violations of the Act or Code of Conduct

The Commissioner is responsible for investigating alleged violations of the Act or the Code of Conduct. Subsection 27(1) of the Act states: “where the commissioner believes, on reasonable grounds, that a provision of this Act or of the Code of Conduct has been violated, he or she may investigate that violation and where the commissioner believes there is sufficient reason to proceed, may conduct an inquiry into that violation.” The objectives for the Commissioner are consistent for the 2023-26 planning period and the associated indicators will be reported for each year of the planning period.

In smaller jurisdictions like Newfoundland and Labrador, it is common for the Commissioner to receive no formal allegations of violations of the Act or Code of Conduct. However, this does not diminish the important function the office serves.

Objective: By March 31, 2026, the Commissioner of Lobbyists will have addressed all alleged violations of the Lobbyist Registration Act or Code of Conduct.

Indicators	Actual Results
All alleged violations investigated	During the 2025-26 fiscal year, the Commissioner received inquiries from members of the public raising concerns with respect to potential violations of the Act or Code of Conduct. Upon review of each matter, the Commissioner determined that there were no reasonable grounds to believe that a provision of the Act or Code of Conduct had been violated. In accordance with subsection 27(1) of the Act, no investigation was commenced.
Reports prepared for each alleged violation	As no investigation was commenced during the 2025-26 fiscal year, no reports were required to be prepared.

Issue 2: Confidentiality Orders

Pursuant to Subsection 18(1) of the Lobbyist Registration Act, a lobbyist may request the Commissioner to issue a confidentiality order. This is conducted when the lobbyist feels that the disclosure of some or all of the information contained in the registration may seriously prejudice his or her economic or financial interest or enterprise.

In smaller jurisdictions like Newfoundland and Labrador, it is common for the Commissioner to receive no formal requests for Confidentiality Orders. However, this does not diminish the important function the office serves.

Objective: By March 31, 2026, the Commissioner of Lobbyists will have addressed all requests for Confidentiality Orders.

Indicators	Actual Results
Investigations conducted for each request	There were no requests for confidentiality orders and thus no investigations were required.
Decisions rendered for each request	There were no requests for confidentiality orders and thus no investigations were required.

Opportunities and Challenges Ahead

The Commissioner enters 2026-27 well-positioned to continue advancing the transparency and accountability objectives of the Office. The absence of alleged violations or formal complaints reflects positively on the lobbying community's awareness of its obligations under the Act. The Office remains committed to proactive engagement with registrants and to ensuring that lobbying in Newfoundland and Labrador continues to be conducted in an open and transparent manner.

A key opportunity in the current year is the continued promotion of awareness and voluntary compliance among lobbyists and public office holders. The Office engages with new and existing registrants to provide information and direction regarding obligations under the Act. Proactive outreach remains an important tool for ensuring that the Registry of Lobbyists is accurate and current, and that registrants understand their responsibilities. Strengthening these relationships supports the broader goal of maintaining a lobbying environment grounded in transparency and public trust.

The Commissioner continues to face several challenges inherent to operating in a smaller jurisdiction. The continued absence of formal complaints, while reflecting positively on the lobbying community's awareness of its obligations, also limits direct insight into how the current framework operates in practice. The Office relies on the public to report alleged non-compliance with the Act and/or the Code, which will only happen if individuals know their rights and responsibilities under the Act. The Commissioner will continue to seek opportunities for public engagement through interviews with local media across all platforms.

Financial Report

The budget of the Office is contained within the Policy and Administrative Support (Professional Services) budget of the Department of Justice and Public Safety and, as a result, the Office is not required to provide a separate audited statement. While the Office does not appear as a separate line in the Program Expenditures and Revenues of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, the approximate budget is provided below:
