Overview

Part III of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992 established the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission which began operating in May 1993. Its purpose is to provide members of the public with an independent forum for their complaints against Royal Newfoundland Constabulary officers.

The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission functions independently of both the Department of Justice and Public Safety and the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary, reporting directly to the people of Newfoundland and Labrador through the Speaker of the House of Assembly. The role of the Commissioner, under powers conferred through the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992, is to receive and maintain a registry of complaints made by members of the public against police officers. The Commissioner ensures that complaints are dealt with in accordance with the provisions of Part III of the Act which provides a framework for investigating, hearing and deciding complaints and handling appeals. Additionally, it is open to the Commissioner to make recommendations to appropriate authorities respecting matters of public interest related to police services.

An essential component of a civil society is an effective police service in which citizens have implicit confidence. Civilian oversight of police actions, like that carried out by this Commission, helps to maintain this public confidence.

The Commission is comprised of a part-time Commissioner, full-time manager, half-time administrative support, contractual investigators and a panel of adjudicators.

Complaints Process:

Chief of Police Investigation and Reports:

After a complaint is received by the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission, a copy is sent to the Chief of Police of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary. The police officer(s) concerned are then informed of the substance of the complaint. A complaint may also be submitted at any Royal Newfoundland Constabulary detachment office. The detachment office will forward such complaints to the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission.

The Chief of Police then designates a member of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Professional Standards Division to conduct an investigation into the complaint.

The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992 allows for the suspension of a public complaint if a criminal investigation is being conducted, or a prosecution is commenced relating to the subject-matter of the complaint, pending a decision on that prosecution.

The investigating officer will interview the complainant, the police officer(s) concerned and any other relevant witnesses, and review relevant documents.

Upon completion of the investigation, an investigative report will be forwarded to the Chief of Police. This report must be submitted within three months of the date the complaint was filed or received, not including the time during which the complaint may have been suspended.

The Chief or Deputy Chief of Police shall consider the complaint and he or she may:

- (a) With the agreement of all parties, reach an informal resolution to the complaint;
- (b) Dismiss the complaint;
- (c) If the complaint concerns the policies or procedures of the constabulary, the chief, or deputy, take whatever action is considered appropriate, if any; or
- (d) Discipline the police officer(s) who is/are the subject of the complaint.

The complainant and the police officer(s) who is/are the subject of a complaint shall be informed in writing of the dismissal of the complaint, or of the discipline imposed and the reasons for that dismissal or discipline.

Review by the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission:

A complainant or police officer who is not satisfied with any of the foregoing decisions may contact the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission to request that the Commission review the decision of the Chief of Police.

Complainants who wish to have the Commission review the decision of the Chief must complete an Appeal Form and forward it to the Commissioner. This form must be received by the Commission within 15 days from the date the report of the decision of the Chief of Police is received by the complainant.

Upon receipt of the Appeal Form, the Commissioner will review the matter, and his/her staff has broad powers to investigate. Documents must be made available upon request and individuals can be required to answer questions.

Following a review by the Commission, the Commissioner may:

- (a) Dismiss the complaint and confirm the decision of the Chief of Police; If the Commissioner does not confirm the decision of the Chief of Police, but is satisfied that the subject matter is frivolous or vexatious, the complaint has been abandoned or withdrawn, or that there is insufficient evidence supporting the complaint to justify a public hearing, the commissioner shall decline to take further action on the complaint;
- (b) With the consent of the parties, effect an informal resolution of the complaint; or
- (c) Refer the matter to a hearing before an independent adjudicator.

Adjudicator’s Hearing:

When a hearing before an adjudicator is ordered, the complainant and the officer(s) involved will be notified in writing of the date and place of the hearing. Each party has a right to attend and take part in the hearing and to be represented by counsel. The hearing will be open to the public unless the adjudicator otherwise determines. All parties will receive a copy of the adjudicator’s decision.

A Complaint against the Chief of Police:

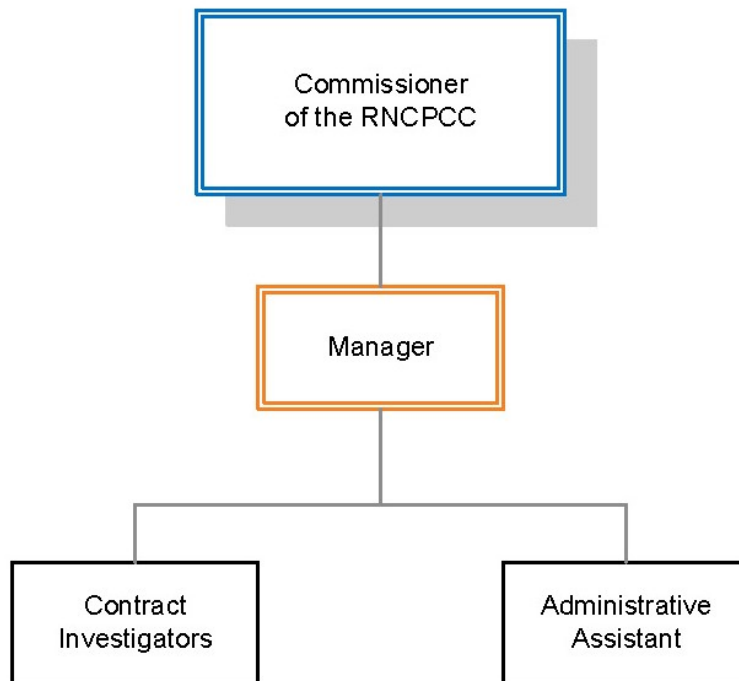

When a complaint has been made against the Chief of Police, the complaint shall be immediately taken up by the Commissioner as if that complaint were an Appeal to the Commissioner as outlined above.

Professional Association

The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission is a proud member of the Canadian Association for Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement (CACOLE).

CACOLE is a national non-profit organization of individuals and agencies involved in the oversight of police officers in Canada. CACOLE is dedicated to advancing the concept, principles and application of civilian oversight of law enforcement throughout Canada and abroad.

CACOLE, established in 1997, is an incorporated, non-profit organization under the Canada Incorporations Act. The national organization is governed by a set of By-Laws and is managed by an elected, volunteer Board of Directors representing oversight agencies in each province, as well as First Nations and the Federal Government. The part-time Executive Director is the only paid position.

CACOLE members represent diverse organizations – municipal and provincial police boards and commissions, First Nations, provincial and federal oversight agencies, ombudsman offices, police associations and professional standards bureaus, individuals and organizations in justice, rights and advocacy agencies, and representatives of community agencies and police services. Geographically, members represent Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Northern Ireland, Portugal and other European Countries.

For more information, please visit CACOLE's website at: www.cacole.ca.

CACOLE 2017 Conference

The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission is pleased to be hosting CACOLE's national annual conference in St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador on May 28-31, 2017. Extensive planning activities took place throughout 2016-17 in preparation for this national event. Approximately 175 delegates and speakers from across Canada and internationally are expected to attend.

Report on Performance

Issue: Complaints as per Part III of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992

As required by its enabling legislation, the Commission serves as an avenue of redress for members of the public wishing to complain about the conduct of an officer or the operational policies or procedures governing the manner in which a police officer discharges his or her duties.

Objective: By March 31, 2017 the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Public Complaints Commission will have responded to complaints from the public as per Part III of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992.

Measure: Complaints responded to as per Part III of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992.

Indicator	Results
Complaints reviewed to ensure compliance with Part III of the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary Act, 1992	All 37 complaints filed during this period were reviewed to ensure compliance with the Act .
Compliant complaints registered	37 complaints were registered.
Registered complaints investigated or delegated, as required	One of the registered complaints was deemed to be outside the Commission's jurisdiction. The Complainant, the named Officer and the Chief of Police are notified when a complaint is deemed outside the Commission's jurisdiction. Decisions on appeals rendered	This appeal was dismissed by the Commissioner.

Opportunities and Challenges

Investigations of citizen complaints concerning police conduct present challenges not found in other kinds of regulatory investigations. Police officers exercise exclusive rights to the use of non-negotiable force. The general public views police officers as protectors deserving of respect. However, victims of police misconduct may feel violated because they expect police to behave protectively, professionally, and fairly, and now believe the officer behaved in an unfair or unprofessional way.

Our investigators are, by definition, impartial, neutral, and fact gatherers. The investigator must balance being sympathetic and reassuring to the complainant while not offering an opinion or judgment on their allegations.

The investigators are not law enforcement professionals and are sometimes viewed by the officers he or she investigates as unable to fully appreciate what police officers do and the conditions under which they work.

To both parties, the investigator cannot guarantee anything more than a thorough investigation, by being fair and by focusing on how the Commission's independence counters favoritism or bias and supports impartiality. This professional approach will reassure the public (even if there is no finding of fault) that the public complaints process is fair, independent and thorough and their allegations were investigated.

If the allegations are substantiated, the benefit comes not only to the complainant but also to the police force which, hopefully, will remediate the misconduct so as not to tarnish the reputation of the force as a whole.

Financial Statements

Expenditure and revenue figures included in this document are based on public information provided in the Report on the Program Expenditures and Revenues of the Consolidated Revenue Fund for Fiscal Year ended 31 March 2017 (unaudited).
