1.0 Minister's Message

September 30, 2008

In accordance with government's commitment to accountability, I am pleased to submit the annual report of the Women's Policy Office. The report was prepared under my direction and documents the activities and outcomes of the Women's Policy Office from April 1, 2007 to March 31, 2008. The outcomes reported reflect government's strategic directions for the status of women portfolio and my signature below is indicative of my accountability for the actual results.

Joan Burke, MHA
Minister Responsible for the Status of Women

2.0 Organizational Overview

The Women's Policy Office was established in 1985 to:

- develop and expedite Government policies and programs to enhance the social and economic status of women in the province and ensure that these are communicated to the public;
- ensure that the impact on women of all legislation, policies and programs is brought to the attention of the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women, Cabinet, Cabinet Committees and departments;
- monitor and review programs and other activities of government departments and agencies to ensure compliance and conformity with the government policy of improving the status of women; and
- liaise with provincial government departments and agencies, other governments and advisory councils and women's organizations on all issues affecting women.

2.1 Vision

The Vision of the Women's Policy Office is social, legal, cultural and economic equality for women in the province of Newfoundland and Labrador.

2.2 Mission

Women's equality is yet to be achieved in areas of earned income and employment, social and economic security, leadership and decision making positions. Therefore, the necessity and relevance of the Women's Policy Office and its work continues to exist.

Mission: By 2011, the Women's Policy Office will have contributed to the advancement of women's social, cultural, legal and economic equality in Newfoundland and Labrador.

2.3 Lines of Business

Economic and Social Policy Analysis and Advisory Services: The Women's Policy Office defines policy as any action taken by government. The Office applies gender-based analysis to government policy in such forms as legislation, programs and services. By applying gender-based analysis to government policy, the Women's Policy Office provides advice to departments on how women are affected, how gender equity would be better achieved, as well as identifies needs and gaps.

Information Collection and Communication Services: The Women's Policy Office is responsible for collecting policy-relevant information from a variety of sources to provide evidence based policy advice and to report annually on the status of women. To meet this responsibility, the Women's Policy Office maintains a public library on women's issues, collects statistics and conducts research to assess the current status of women, and identifies systemic inequities and information gaps. As part of the information collection process, the Women's Policy Office consults regularly with women and women's organizations to identify ongoing and emerging issues of special concern as well as potential solutions. Beyond providing policy advice to government departments, the Women's Policy Office communicates information on the status of women through publications, events and initiatives.

Violence Prevention Initiative Services: The Violence Prevention Initiative (VPI) reflects government's commitment to addressing the problem of violence in this province. The Initiative is a six-year, multi-departmental, government-community partnership to find long-term solutions to the problem of violence against those most at risk in our society - women, children, seniors, Aboriginal women and children, persons with disabilities and other vulnerable people who are victims of violence because of their race, ethnicity, sexual orientation or economic status. Ten regional coordinating committees have been established to ensure representation from rural areas.

Grants Program: The Women's Policy Office provides non-repayable grants to equity seeking groups for activities and initiatives to advance the status of women in Newfoundland and Labrador. The Grants are subject to approved criteria.

2.4 Physical Location

The Women's Policy Office is located in St. John's on the fourth floor of the Confederation Building, West Block. The Women's Policy Office contracts delivery of services to St. John's, Bay St. George, Port aux Basques, Corner Brook, Gander, Labrador City, Happy Valley-Goose Bay and Grand Falls-Windsor through eight Status of Women Councils located across the province as well as through ten regional coordinating committees associated with the Violence Prevention Initiative. The review was required given expanded work requirements in the last few years which has included the: i) implementation of a new Violence Prevention Initiative; ii) implementation of an Aboriginal Women programs; iii) increased and improved stakeholder and client relationships, and iv) new accountability, financial and administrative, and planning requirements.

During 2006, a Workforce Plan was developed to support the implementation of the Business Plan. The recommendations in this plan identified the need for the organizational review.

2.6 Expenditures

In 2007-2008 the estimated budget of the Women's Policy Office was approximately $3.5 million which included the budget for the Violence Prevention Initiative. As indicated in the diagram below, grants to community-based organizations accounted for approximately 53% of the budget.

3.0 Shared Commitments

The mandate and mission of the Women's Policy Office (WPO) can only be achieved through working in partnership with the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women, Women's Centers, Regional Violence Prevention Coordinating Committees, other equality-seeking groups, as well as federal and provincial government departments and agencies and industry and educational institutions partners.

In 2007-2008 the Women's Policy Office strengthened community-government partnerships to prevent violence as a result of increased funding for the implementation of a new six-year violence prevention plan of action. Government partners include the Departments of Justice; Health and Community Services; Education; Human Resources, Labour and Employment; and Labrador and Aboriginal Affairs. Partners also include the Rural Secretariat, Newfoundland and Labrador Housing Corporation, the Labour Relations Agency, and Regional Integrated Health Authorities. Community partners include the ten regional coordinating committees, the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women, the Newfoundland and Labrador Sexual Assault Crisis and Prevention Centre, the Transition House Association of Newfoundland and Labrador, the Seniors Resource Centre of Newfoundland and Labrador, and the Citizen's Crime Prevention Association of Newfoundland and Labrador.

The Women's Policy Office worked in partnership with the departments of Human Resources, Labour and Employment; Natural Resources; and Environment and Conservation to increase women's employment in well paying jobs, particularly those in the natural resource sectors. This is largely done using the Environmental Protection Act, which requires proponents of large scale natural resource developments to put women's employment plans in place. To this end, the WPO worked closely with industry partners such as the Women in Resource Development Committee, Voisey's Bay Nickel Corporation, and the Canada-Newfoundland Offshore Petroleum Board. The Women's Policy Office also worked with post-secondary and training institutions on accessibility of training and education for women for these occupations.

The WPO worked in partnership with the Department of Human Resources, Labour and Employment to study the needs of employment supports for victims of violence, and been an active member on the officials and Deputy Minister's and Ministerial working committees on poverty reduction. The WPO also participated with the Department of Health and Community Services to provided advice on long-term care supports for women and healthy living initiatives.

To improve women's social and economic security, the Women's Policy Office worked closely with all provincial government departments to ensure that the impact on women of all legislation, policies and programs were brought to the attention of decision makers. The Women's Policy Office maintains a close relationship with Status of Women Canada as well as all Ministers in Canada Responsible for the Status of Women.

The Women's Policy Office collaborated with community partners such as the Community Service Council, Status of Women Councils, and the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women as well as women's Aboriginal, multicultural and seniors groups to strengthen women's voices and increase women's participation in leadership and decision making roles. The Women's Policy Office also worked with government departments to increase nominations of qualified women to agencies, boards and commissions.

National Aboriginal Women's Summit: The Women's Policy Office supported the Department of Labrador and Aboriginal Affairs as well as the national planning committee of national Aboriginal women's organizations and the federal Departments of Indian Affairs and Status of Women to plan and conduct the first ever national Aboriginal Women's Summit in June 2007, hosted by Premier Williams for 300 participants (150 Aboriginal women and 150 government observers). A website and recommendations for all levels of government was developed as part of the Conference.

The event included facilitated sessions led by Aboriginal facilitators, and Newfoundland and Labrador Aboriginal culture was highlighted in the opening reception and the gala dinner. This event for all Aboriginal women (First Nations, Metis, Labrador Metis Nation and Inuit, as well as those on and off reserve) provided the venue for these participants to come together and discuss collective solutions to advance their social, economic, legal and cultural equality in their communities and within Canadian society. This event was important as it recognizes the need for the improvement of the quality of life of Aboriginal women in Canada.

6.0 2006-2008 Goal Achievement

The results identified in the previous section combined with the results reported in 2006-2007 document WPO's success in achieving the goals and objectives identified in the WPO Business Plan for 2006-2008. The following provides an overview and summary of WPO's achievement of these outcomes.

Goal 1: By March 31, 2008 the Women's Policy Office will have coordinated and managed the Violence Prevention Initiative

During the life of this Business Plan significant advancements have been made to prevent violence in Newfoundland and Labrador. The most significant accomplishment is that Government approved a new six-year Action Plan, Taking Action Against Violence and has provided $10.0 million in funding to advance the issue.

The new program has formally identified nine provincial departments and agencies and allowed for four new regional coordinating committees to be established, bringing the number to ten regional committees operating throughout Newfoundland and Labrador to prevent violence against vulnerable populations including women, children and youth. The previous program had been a five-year, $2.5 million program with one full-time staff member. With new funding, a Director level position has been established along with specialized staff to advance training and research. The new funding has also allowed for an increase in the grant funding to the regional coordinating committees.

Significant efforts have been made during the life of this plan to improve the effective working relationship of provincial partners and community organizations to advance violence prevention. This includes working effectively with the regional coordinating committees and organizations such as the Transition House Association of Newfoundland and Labrador, the Newfoundland and Labrador Sexual Assault and Crisis Center, the Seniors Resource Centre, as well as the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women. Expanded relationships to prevent violence have also been established with the four Regional Health Authorities in the province, the regional School Boards, the Red Cross, the Royal Newfoundland Constabulary, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and with many youth organizations including the Community Youth Network.

To advance an integrated and community-based management model, a Community Advisory Committee has been established along with Deputies, and Ministerial working committees. These new committees have increased accountability and have made it now possible for government and community partners to work effectively together to address violence prevention. Resource content specialists are also recognized as required to support this program and many have been invited to provide specialized knowledge as required.

During the term of this Business Plan the Violence Prevention Program has been expanded, enabling it to implement significant, province-wide social marketing campaigns. These campaigns have included one to prevent youth violence, another on the prevention of older adult violence and one focused on the reporting of child abuse.

During 2008/09, a campaign to target violence against women will be developed along with an evaluation framework to test the results of the campaigns, which were designed to change attitudes, awareness and actions to prevent violence.

During this period there have also been two provincial stakeholder conferences and implementation of important new legislation and training has been introduced, including the implementation of family violence prevention legislation and training of over 1000 justice officials to support the implementation of the new legislation. The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary has updated its youth program to prevent violence: Students Taking Responsibility for Violence Education. Other projects have been completed in partnership with the Departments of Health and Community Services, Education, Justice and Human Resources Labor and Employment including new research that highlights the impact of violence on children, the feasibility of specialized family violence courts and employment supports for victims of violence. The Department of Education has strengthened its Safe and Caring Schools Program, enhanced in-service training and strengthened its provincial coordination of this policy program with School Boards.

The new program has created four new regional coordinating committees in Marystown, Gander, Stephenville and Bay Roberts. All ten committees in the province have now been busy advancing violence prevention education, training and awareness including working with schools, community groups and the media.

A significant new program was also introduced to prevent violence in Aboriginal communities and approximately 30 grants have been provided to Aboriginal communities in this province to support the prevention of violence against Aboriginal women, children and families during the three years of this Plan.

The Violence Prevention Initiative office also worked with the Public Service Secretariat to support research and recommendations for the prevention of work place violence and improved employee supports for victims of violence.

Goal 2: By March 31, 2008 the Women’s Policy Office will have supported greater participation of women in occupations where they are currently under-represented.

Support for measures to advance women into non-traditional occupations and high paying jobs has remained an important priority for this Government. Women in NL now have the largest wage gap in the country falling behind Alberta. As our economy and resource based industries grow, women’s access to these opportunities continues to need to be supported. Women in this Province are now making 60 per cent of men’s wages.

The Women’s Policy Office has played a pivotal role in ensuring action by employers to advance women into non-traditional occupations through the Provincial Environmental Impact Assessment process. During the life of this Plan, this Office reviewed approximately 195 submissions under the Environmental Assessment Process, and requested measures to increase opportunities to advance women into non-traditional occupations in many of these proposals.

The Women’s Policy Office also prepared, based on these reviews, conditions of release for the consideration of the Minister of the Environment, which include special compliance-monitoring requirements and advice directly to industry. This is an area of significant workload requirements, both in the preparation of conditions of release under the Environmental Impact Assessment Process, as well as the demand to offer guidance to companies in their preparation of women’s employment plans as required under the conditions of release. This is the area that has increased significantly with the implementation of women’s employment plans as it requires a focus and dedication for to build and maintain working relationships with mining, forestry, oil and gas companies as well as construction trades, educational institutions, trade associations and other employers where women’s employment needs to be advanced. For large-scale projects, WPO requires significant and cumulative monitoring and communications with companies.

To advance the status of the economic equality of women, this Office has built and maintained dedicated relations with the following specific businesses and stakeholders:

- Voisey Bay Nickel
- AUR Resources
- NL Refining
- Resource Development Council
- Federation of Labour

- NL Chamber of Mineral Resources
- Canadian Petroleum Industries Human Resources Committee
- Newfoundland Ocean Industries Association
- Canadian Newfoundland Offshore Development Association
- Oil and Gas Company Officials including Husky Energy, Petro Canada and Chevron
- Newfoundland Hydro
- Churchill Falls Labrador Corporation
- Women in Successful Employment
- Women in Resource Development Committee
- Newfoundland Organization of Women Entrepreneurs
- The Marine Institute
- The College of the North Atlantic
- The Human Rights Commission
- The Royal Newfoundland Constabulary
- The Public Service Secretariat
- The Department of Justice
- The Department of Natural Resources
- The Department of the Environment

This Office also supported government Departments in identifying gaps and plans to advance women in non-traditional occupations within their programs and services. It provides policy advice to Departments and Cabinet on all policy decisions where women can benefit from economic opportunities.

During this period the Office has actioned the renewal of a new gender-based analysis (GBA) training for policy analysts across government and is proposing a component for government decision making. The Office is also advancing the development of culturally appropriate gender-based analysis training materials for policy analysts to better understand the social and economic circumstances of Aboriginal women, and it has developed violence prevention gender-analysis training material.

This Office also worked with the Public Service Secretariat to support research relating to employment equity and other matters of importance to women within the Provincial Government. During this period the Women's Policy Office has initiated research on family friendly policies.

Goal 3: By 2008, the Women's Policy Office will have supported increased knowledge and consideration of and response to women's issues in legislation, policy and program development.

During this period this office has provided policy advice to Departments and Agencies on policy decisions where women can benefit from improved social and economic conditions.

During this period, this Office has also influenced the development of many new horizontal initiatives of government where advancing the social and economic status of women in this province could be achieved. In particular, this Office has supported the development of the Poverty Reduction Strategy for Newfoundland and Labrador, the Immigration Strategy for Newfoundland and Labrador, the Healthy Living Strategy, the Provincial Early Learning and Child Care Plan, the Northern Strategic Plan as well as supporting the review of long term care supports.

During this period, the Office has actioned the renewal of gender-based analysis (GBA) training for policy analysts across government and piloted a new training program.

The Office is also developing culturally appropriate gender-based analysis training materials for policy analysts to better understand the social and economic circumstances of Aboriginal women and it has developed violence prevention gender-analysis training material.

During this period this office established effective and positive working relationships on concrete social and policy issues of importance to women with the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women, as well as with the eight women center's in the Province by: i) putting in place regular conference calls with Women Centers; ii) funding annual meetings; and iii) the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women being successful in doubling the funding for the women centers from $50,000 to $100,000 and increasing the funding of the Provincial Advisory Council from $257,600 in 2003/04 to $402,500 in Budget 2008/09. This represents an increase of $144,900, or 56.25 per cent.

One area where significant achievements were made provincially and where national leadership was undertaken was in the area of improving the status of Aboriginal women. New funding was obtained to support an annual Provincial Conference for Aboriginal Women that have included topics such as The Path to the Good Life and The Path to Economic Prosperity. A new violence prevention grants program for Aboriginal women and children was introduced as well as new funding was secured for a shelter in Hopedale.

Due to the Province's success in working and collaborating with Aboriginal women from all Aboriginal communities in the Province, the Director of Native Women's Association of Canada, Beverly Jacobs, asked Premier Williams at a First Ministers meeting if he would support a first ever National Aboriginal Women's Summit. The Premier did and hosted this historic occasion in Corner Brook in June 2007.

The Conference themed, Strong Women, Strong Communities, provided many recommendations for all governments to advance the status of Aboriginal women. This Province has established a provincial Advisory Committee of Aboriginal Women to respond to these recommendations, which this office co-chairs.

Due to this conference human rights and matrimonial issues relating to Aboriginal women, stalled for years by the Federal Department of Indian and Northern Affairs, were re-ignited, and it stimulated increased funding for shelters on reserves by Canada. The conference has been the catalyst to raise the profile of Aboriginal women in this Province and across Canada. Additional conferences were committed to at that time to continue the work by other Premiers. Reports from these conferences have been developed and they ensure that a written record of the event and the results exist for all residents of this province and for all Canadians.

Explored with government departments and women's organizations strategies to advance the status of women.	Monthly meetings with the 8 women center's in the province were introduced along with an annual meeting among these centers, this office and the Provincial Advisory Council on the Status of Women. These consultations informed the WPO to advance improved policies with departments such as Justice and the Newfoundland and Labrador Housing Corporation.

Recommended to government departments on how they can participate in advancing women's equality	From 2006-2008 WPO has provided numerous advisory services to departments as well as government agencies boards and commissions. WPO has provided the Department of Environment and Conservation with written assessments of environmental assessment submissions and provided various other government entities with written assessments on various issues related to advancing women's issues.
Meetings with Federal-Provincial-Territorial (FPT) Ministers responsible for the Status of Women and participation in FPT working groups to address issues such as women's economic security, justice, violence, against women and the special needs of Aboriginal women and other issues as they arise	As reported in 2006-2007 the proposed meeting between the FPT Ministers responsible for the Status of Women and those responsible for Justice did not take place due to changes in the federal government. In July 2007, FPT Ministers responsible for the Status of Women met in Iqaluit, Nunavut where they issued the Iqaluit Declaration on Aboriginal Women. Ministers also identified the following priorities: Aboriginal Women - The Action Plan on Aboriginal Women's Leadership is to increase the effective participation and number of Aboriginal women in decision-making roles by supporting training initiatives. As a first step, jurisdictions are collecting and sharing information regarding activities already underway. The Training of Justice Officials initiative is to improve the treatment of Aboriginal women by the Justice system by including information on issues that impact them (such as the high rates of violence in Aboriginal communities) in the professional training offered to crowns, police, and the judiciary. An inventory of existing training is being prepared as a first step in this initiative. Ministers directed officials to review the 36 priority recommendations from the National Aboriginal Women's Summit, assess progress, and develop work plans to advance the recommendations in the medium and long term. Women's Economic Security -Ministers adopted the action plan on Modernizing Support for Parents. Officials were directed to draft a Request for Proposals to undertake a cost-benefit analysis of proposed changes to the current employment insurance benefits program. The contract for this work was awarded to Goss Gilroy Incorporated. By the end of 2007-2008, the report was

Official were directed to examine protocols and initiatives related to trafficking, including public education, to bring forward proposals for ministers' consideration.
Developed and implemented training for government employees regarding gender awareness and gender based analysis in developing and implementing government policy	As reported in 2006-2007, WPO identified the Gender Based Analysis Policy Training program developed by Status of Women Canada as appropriate for delivery to the public service in Newfoundland and Labrador. In 2006-2007, 37 provincial government employees from various departments participated in the training. In 2007-2008 WPO transferred responsibility for this training to the Public Service Secretariat, Centre for Learning and Development. Three training sessions were offered in 2007-2008 with one in Corner Brook and two in St. John's. Approximately 30 public service employees participated in this training.
Recommendations made regarding: (i) the quality of life for Aboriginal women; (ii) homecare; (iii) healthy priorities for women in rural and urban areas; (iv) senior's independence and well being; (v) poverty reduction; (vi) childcare; (vii) supports for immigrant women.	Aboriginal Women – Recommendations regarding the quality of life for Aboriginal women were compiled in the conference reports for the Aboriginal Women's Conferences that took place, November 23-26, 2006 and March 12-14, 2008. The National Aboriginal Women's Summit also took place from June 20-22, 2007 in Corner Brook, Newfoundland and Labrador. Recommendations from this summit have been published in the conference report. Homecare – WPO offered advice on midwifery as well as long term care supports and supported the identification of health issues for Aboriginal women by working with the Department of Health and Community Services. Women in Rural and Urban Areas – WPO participated in an interdepartmental exercise to establish a comprehensive legislative framework for long term care and community support services for adults, particularly vulnerable adults. The review considered such issues as supported and substitute decision-making, protection of vulnerable adults from abuse, and the regulation of long term care facilities. Seniors – WPO continues to participate on the Healthy

	Aging Committee and in 2006-2008 focused work to educate health care providers on elder abuse. Poverty – WPO continues to participate in the Poverty Reduction Strategy Working Group. In 2006-2008 the group developed recommendations to offer employment supports for victims of violence. Childcare - From 2006-2008 WPO participated on the Provincial Child Care Services Advisory Committee and has regularly provided advisory services to the Department of Health and Community Services on issues related to child care. Work continues to focus on issues related to the training, recruitment and retention of licensed child care providers to meet the demand. Immigrant Women – From 2006-2008, WPO partnered with Status of Women Council and the immigration office to contract with the Multicultural Women’s Organization to offer a series of information workshops to immigrant women.
Developed and implemented a communications strategy to increase awareness of the status of women.	A communications strategy was developed and implemented to increase the awareness of the status of women. This strategy focused primarily on revisions to the WPO website, which included posting resources for gender-based analysis as well as statistics relating to the status of women.

Goal 4: By 2008, the Women’s Policy Office will have supported the participation of women in leadership and decision making positions at the community, regional and provincial levels.

During this period the government increased appointments for women to provincial agency boards and commissions and by 2007/08, 47per cent of these appointments went to women, significantly increasing the number of women in these important leadership positions from the 2003/04 period.

The Status of Women and Regional Women’s Centers and the Public Service Secretariat studied the issues surrounding advancing women into positions of leadership. Research has been undertaken to better understand where the most significant barriers exist for women in this province on this matter. This included how other provincial, national and international entities addressed training and the other ways to advance this matter.

Measure: Support mechanisms to encourage the participation of women in leadership and decision making positions at the community, regional and provincial levels.

Consulted with the Newfoundland and Labrador Federation of Municipalities (NLFM) regarding training for women interested in municipal government	From 2006-2008, the WPO has contacted the NLFM to encourage their action in increasing the participation of women in municipal government. In 2006-2007 WPO reported that the Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) set a goal to increase the number of women on municipal councils in Canada to 30 percent by 2026. The FCM also published a document, "Getting to 30 by 2026," that provides a listing and brief description of initiatives municipalities may undertake to increase the participation of women in their local governments. In 2006 the FCM reported that 19 percent of mayors and 27 percent of counselors in NL municipalities were women. In 2007, the FCM reported the gender balance of municipal councils in Newfoundland and Labrador unchanged.

7.0 Opportunities and Challenges Ahead

7.1 Opportunities

Prevention of Violence Against Women

- With additional funding of $150,000 in Budget 2008/09 the opportunity exists to plan, deliver and evaluate a standalone violence prevention for women social marketing campaign during 2008/09.

Prevention of Violence Against Older Adults

- An opportunity exists to plan and deliver violence prevention for older adults training in partnership with regional health authorities and others during the 2008-2011 period, due to new annual funding of $200,000 secured by the Minister Responsible for the Status of Women and Minister of Health.

New Research for the Prevention of Violence

- An opportunity exists to conduct more research on violence prevention specific to the Newfoundland and Labrador target populations with the introduction of a long-term Senior Violence Prevention Researcher.

Increase of Social Marketing Activities to Prevent Violence

- In partnership with the violence prevention stakeholders, an opportunity exists to build on the success of the existing Violence Prevention social marketing campaigns to create more awareness of the different types and forms of violence and encourage action to prevent violence against the target populations.

Advancing Employment Opportunities for Women in Natural Resources and Non - Traditional Occupations

- Within the environment of existing and projected national and provincial labour shortages in the areas of trades, technology, science and engineering occupations, where women are under-represented, employers are more open to ideas of workplace change. This presents an opportunity for employers to take initiative in making changes in the workplace and in the workplace culture to meet the needs of women and attracting them to meet the labour needs of their businesses.

Enhanced Internal Policy Services

- Women's Policy will continue their representation on various intergovernmental and inter-jurisdictional working groups, which will provide an excellent opportunity to have women's concerns and viewpoints included in governmental policy, planning, and strategic directions in ongoing work relating to poverty reduction and women and the justice system.
- A new gender-based analysis training program will be introduced for government policy analysts.

Advancing the Status of Aboriginal Women

- This will remain a priority of the Women's Policy Office and the Office will continue to co-chair a working committee with Aboriginal Women and Labrador and Aboriginal Affairs to develop responses to the recommendations in the National Aboriginal Women's Summit held in Corner Brook in June 2006.
- This office will introduce a culturally appropriate training module for gender based analysis for Aboriginal women's issues and continue to facilitate provincial conferences.
- The office will also focus on increasing Aboriginal women's access to positions of leadership.

7.2 Challenges

- The migratory nature of construction projects and natural resource development projects creates challenges for women's equality because women predominantly hold responsibility for care giving at home which limits their labour mobility and opportunity to participate in higher earning paid employment. This issue will need to be addressed in the development of women's employment plans associated with the development of such projects.
- The issues identified in the 2004 Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) report on early childhood education and care policy in Canada still persist: (i) weak public funding especially for children under the age of five; (ii) shortage of licensed childcare spaces; and (iii) high cost of childcare which makes childcare services inaccessible to modest and low income earners. The Federal Government has not responded to family needs for a universal social program for child care. The Provincial Government has continued their commitments to this issue. 70% of Newfoundland and Labrador mothers work outside the home, but only 8% of children have access to regulated childcare in 2008 (Statistics Canada). WPO will continue to support the Department of Health and Community Services in advancing the importance of childcare programs with the federal government.
