Message from the Chief Review Commissioner

I am pleased to present the Activity Plan for the Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Review Division for the year 2007-2008.

The Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Review Division (Review Division) provides workers' compensation review services to injured workers, their dependants and employers in the province. The Review Division is an independent, quasi-judicial body, which is responsible for reviewing final decisions of the Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Commission (WHSCC). It reports to government through the Minister of Human Resources, Labour and Employment.

The Review Division is committed to providing exceptional client service in the delivery of its programs and services to injured workers and employers. As such, areas that enhance service delivery are identified as the primary areas of focus throughout the plan. The plan also provides an overview of the Review Division and identifies the key goals to be accomplished in the coming year.

Pursuant to the Transparency and Accountability Act, the Review Division has been categorized as a Category 3 entity. This requires the Review Division to provide a performance-based activity plan as its accountability document. To accommodate the transition phase for compliance with the Transparency and Accountability Act, this plan covers the fiscal year 2007-2008. Subsequent plans will provide planning details for three fiscal years. I and the Review Division are responsible for the preparation of this plan and are accountable for the achievement of the specific goals that are identified.

Robert W. Lundrigan
Chief Review Commissioner

1.0 Overview

The Review Division was established in 1994 by a legislative amendment to the Workplace Health, Safety and Compensation Act (Act). The Review Division is the final level of review within the workers' compensation system in the province.

The Review Division is responsible for the review of decisions of the WHSCC to ensure that decisions of the WHSCC are made in accordance with the Act, Regulations and the policies as approved by the WHSCC Board of Directors. The following are examples of the types of issues that may be reviewed by the Review Division:

- entitlement to wage loss benefits;
- provisions of medical aid;
- the assignment of an employer to a particular group or industry rating;
- a worker's estimated earning capacity;
- an employer's assessment rating;
- the obligations of an employer and a worker in relation to the return to work and rehabilitation provisions of the Act.

The Review Division is independent of the WHSCC and is accountable to the Minister of Human Resources, Labour and Employment. Its offices are located in Mount Pearl where nine staff coordinate the caseload work for the Chief Review Commissioner and Review Commissioners.

The Review Division receives approximately 400 applications on an annual basis and hearings are conducted by the Commissioners in various centres throughout the province; St. John's, Gander, Grand Falls-Windsor, Corner Brook, Labrador City and Happy Valley-Goose Bay.

Upon completion of a hearing process, a Commissioner will provide a written decision in relation to the application and the decision of the WHSCC under review. Decisions of the Review Division are final and conclusive and may only be reviewed by the court under limited and specific grounds.

2.0 Mandate

The mandate of the Review Division is to review decisions of the WHSCC to ensure compliance with the Act and Regulations, as well as with the policies of the WHSCC. The Review Division is also mandated to direct appropriate remedies where necessary.

Specifically, PART II – APPEALS, Sections 21 to 37 of the Act provides the legislative provisions for the Review Division and are contained in Appendix B.

3.0 Lines of Business

The Review Division offers the following services to its clients:

1. Review of decisions of the WHSCC. The Review Division processes review applications made by injured workers, their dependants and employers in the province, as well as coordinates a review process that includes a hearing before a Review Commissioner.
2. Information Services. The Review Division provides information services to its clients by providing web-based distribution of its decisions; researching workers' compensation issues and collecting and maintaining statistical information relative to the review process.

4.0 Values

Values are the guiding principles which describe the culture of an organization. The culture of the Review Division is one which promotes exceptional client service in an environment where employees are supported in their professional and individual pursuits. The following core values will guide our behavior and our decision-making in our interactions on a daily basis.

- Independence Each person will provide services to clients in a manner that is fair, equitable, and free of bias.
- Respect Each person will treat clients and each other with courtesy and understanding while recognizing other views and opinions.
- Professionalism Each person will demonstrate the highest level of conduct by serving clients in a manner that is timely, competent and objective.

5.0 Primary Clients

The Review Division provides services to many people and organizations involved in the workers' compensation review and appeals process. The primary clients of the Review Division are injured workers, their dependants and employers in the province. Our clients also include their representatives such as union officials, consultants, lawyers and Members of the House of Assembly.

6.0 Vision

The vision of the Review Division is an environment where workers and employers participate in an independent, timely and fair review process anchored in a culture of exceptional client service.

7.0 Mission

The mission statement identifies the priority area of focus of the Review Division over the next two planning cycles. The mission statement of the Review Division spans two cycles of planning; the first cycle being for the fiscal year (2007-08) and the second cycle being for three fiscal years (2008-09, 2009-10, and 2010-11). The statement also identifies the measures and indicators that will assist the Review Division and others to monitor progress and evaluate success.

Many workers and employers who require the services of the Review Division represent their own interests. Workers often appear before the Review Commissioners alone or accompanied by friends or family. As well, employer representatives are often business owners or other employees within the organization who have been designated the responsibility for workers' compensation matters and may lack an in-depth knowledge of the system. Many of these workers and employers require assistance to participate effectively in the review process. The Review Division recognizes this challenge facing these individuals and is committed to ensuring support exists within the Division to assist in this regard.

Mission Statement: By 2011, the Review Division will have implemented a client service framework that provides workers and employers with effective tools and processes to assist in their participation within the review process.

Measure 1: Client Service Framework is Implemented

Indicators:

- Recommendations for changes to current practices and procedures are identified.
- Increased efficiency in application turnaround time.
- Increased awareness of the Review Division's role and services.

8.0 Issues

In consideration of Government's strategic directions (Appendix A) and the mandate and financial resources of the Review Division, the following area has been identified as a key priority of the Review Division for the next year. The goal identified reflects the results expected in the one-year time frame. Measures and indicators are provided for the first year's goal to assist both the Review Division and the public in monitoring and evaluating progress.

Providing enhanced client services and support to workers and employers is essential to ensuring fairness within the review process. The perception of a very complex workers' compensation system has left many workers and employers in need of additional support while participating in the review process. Often employers and workers are not familiar with the role of the Review Division or their roles within it. The Review Division will provide enhanced services to assist workers and employers in this regard by establishing an awareness campaign that informs employers and workers about the roles, responsibilities, and services within the Review Division.

Goal 1: By 2008, the Review Division will have initiated the development of a plan to increase awareness of existing services.

Measure: Awareness Plan Drafted

Indicators:

- Worker's and Employer's needs are identified and prioritized.
- Identify and review relevant promotional material in other entities.
- Identify educational/awareness opportunities.
- Identify communications' processes.

9.0 Appendix A: Strategic Directions

Strategic Directions are the articulation of desired physical, social, or economic outcomes and normally require action by more than one Government entity. Government generally communicates these directions through platform documents, Throne and Budget Speeches, policy documents, and other communiqués. The Transparency and Accountability Act requires departments and public bodies to take into account these strategic directions in the preparation of their performance-based plans. This action will facilitate the integration of planning practices across Government and will ensure that all entities are moving forward on key commitments.

The Minister of Human Resources, Labour and Employment is the Minister responsible for the Review Division. The directions related to the Review Division are provided in the following table, which illustrates the strategic direction, the desired outcome, areas of focus that will support the outcome and at what level of planning the direction will be addressed. These focus areas will be addressed through the Review Division's various planning processes. As indicated in the table below, some are addressed in this plan while others are addressed in the operational and/or work planning processes.
